ATLANTIC FLYER'S OWN STORY

HOOVER SIGNS FARM AID BILL AND ASKS FUNDS

Relief to Be Rushed to Wheat Growers.

BY ARTHUR CRAWFORD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 15.—[Special.]—After signing the farm relief bill, President Hoover today announced that he will ask congress to appropriate immediately 150 million dollars of the authorized 500 million dollar revolving loan fund.

Members of the new farm board, the President said, will be appointed within two or three weeks. While he did not refer to specific problems confronting the board it is known that he wishes its members to lose no time in taking up the wheat price situation. To deal with the wheat question, it is expected that a commodity advisory council of seven members will be formed at the direction of the board, and that from its deliberations will develop plans for a wheat stabilization corporation controlled by coöperatives and financed by government loans."

"A Constructive Start."

"After many years of contention we have at last made a constructive start at agricultural relief with the most important measure ever passed by congress in aid of a single industry," asserted President Hoover in a formal statement.

"As it would have introduced many cross currents to have initiated any movement toward the selection of the farm board until after the legislation was completed, no steps have been taken in this direction beyond the receipt of several hundred recommendations. It will require two or three weeks to make these selections.

"The choice of the board is not easy, for its members must in a measure be distributed regionally over the country. It must at the same time be chosen so as to represent so far as possible each major branch of agriculture.

Farm, Business Skill Needed.

"Moreover, the board must be made up of men of actual farm experience and inasmuch as its work lies largely in marketing in conjunction with farm coöperatives, its membership should be comprised of men who have been actually engaged in directing farmers' market organizations.

"It is desirable that the board should have in its constitution at least one man experienced in general business and one with special experience in finance.

"I am asking for a preliminary appropriation of $150,000,000 at once out of the $500,000,000 that has been authorized, and as congress will be in session except for short periods, the board will be able to present its further requirements at almost any time."

Pens Given McNary, Haugen.

The President signed the farm bill at noon at his desk in the executive offices. Grouped behind him were a number of persons who have figured in the consideration of the legislation. Numerous photographers were on hand to make a record of the event for the newspapers and motion pictures.

Three pens were used by the President in signing the bill. One of them was given to Senator Charles L. McNary [Rep., Ore.], chairman of the senate committee on agriculture, and another to Representative Gilbert N. Haugen [Rep., Ia.], chairman of the house committee on agriculture.

Secretary of Agriculture Hyde was present at the ceremony, as were Vice President Curtis and Speaker Longworth and Senator James E. Watson [Rep., Ind.], majority leader of the senate.

Others of the senate and house conferees besides Senator McNary and Representative Haugen were Senators Arthur Capper [Rep., Kas.] and J. E. Ransdell [Dem., La.] and Representatives Fred Purnell [Rep., Ind.], Thomas S. Williams [Rep., Ill.], J. B. Aswell [Dem., La.], and D. H. Kincheloe [Dem., Ky.].

Morris, Smith Not Present.

Senators George W. Norris [Rep., Neb.] and E. S. Smith [Dem., S. C.], the two senate conferees who held out for the export debenture scheme, remained away.

The President's statement was issued later in the afternoon. Before announcing the amount of the appropriation to be asked he consulted with senate and house leaders and found the plan to be acceptable to them.

On Monday Mr. Hoover will transmit to congress a budget message recommending the immediate appropriation of $150,000,000 from the $500,000,000 fund as authorized by the new

HIS LOCKER KEY SOLVES PUZZLE OF MAN'S DEATH

Body in North Woods Chicago Youth.

Only a key was left as a clew to the identity of the man whose skeleton furnished Oneida county, Wis., officials with a "shotgun and bonfire murder mystery." But that was sufficient yesterday to disprove the theory that a Chicago gangster's body had been burned at the stake and that his head was blown off for good measure.

The key led to the identification of the dead man as Ben Gisin, 26 years old, 6101 Normal avenue, a lithographer, amateur artist, and love hungry young man of good character and reputation. It was evident that he had intended suicide because, as he had explained, "I cannot endure to lead a loveless life," and it appeared that for the benefit of the public and his friends he had carefully planned to camouflage his death as a murder but desired to let his family know the truth.

Letters Reveal Purpose.

His elaborate preparations went astray in three particulars. The key that did not burn or melt revealed his identity; a letter he had intended to destroy became public and another letter was reported to the authorities, and both bared his suicidal purpose.

One motive for his desire to hide the identity of his corpse is believed to have been that he was of the opinion that such a course would aid his parents in collecting his insurance. A motive for his self-destruction was less obvious, but, according to his own words it was because of some physical defect which caused him to shun marriage and because he believed he was not attractive to women.

Advises Brother to End Life.

Pictures of Gisin in various poses show him to be apparently normal physically, and of not displeasing appearance. Yet, in a letter he had written to his brother Harry he disclosed that he did not regard himself as of average features and physique. He advised Harry to commit suicide, too.

"Do it accidentally, though, for mother's sake," he requested of Harry. "Put a gun through a fence or let a tree fall on you."

State's Attorney E. L. Kennedy of Rhinelander, Wis., was convinced the body found between Stella lake and Thunder lake, up in the north woods, last Friday, was Gisin's. He communicated with Gisin's family at Mound City, Kas., and the father, Henry Gisin, started for Chicago last night.

Chooses Lonely Spot.

The site chosen for the suicide and the self-created funeral pyre was off the path of hunters, fishermen and summer resorters. It might not have yielded up its secret for several weeks more, had it not been that a track worker followed a deer into a swamp, and time, through the rusting of the one key, might have prevented forever the giving of a name to the body.

Joe Saltis, prominent in Chicago's beer wars of other days, has a summer camp at Barker lake, seventy miles away. Alphonse Capone has another resort home fifty miles farther away, on Cranberry lake. It was natural for the officials of Oneida county to suspect, as they did, that a gang execution had taken place in their jurisdiction.

There were indications that telephone wire had been used to bind the dead man's hands and feet. It appeared that he had been shot in the head and officials thought the body had been brought to this place for disposal, and that it had been wired to a pole and borne there on the shoulders of two men.

Body Burned Beyond Recognition.

To add to the difficulties of the authorities the body had been burned beyond recognition. The teeth, sometimes identifiable through dentistry or peculiarities, offered no solution. The clothing had burned excepting the sole of one shoe and a rubber heel of another.

A bunch of a dozen or more keys was in the center of the pile of ashes and bones. They had either melted or were twisted and misshapen by the heat—all but one. That bore a name and a number, which strength-

Vivian and Isabel Walsh, 11 and 13 years old, were struggling beyond their depth in the Washington park lagoon yesterday when E. C. De Launty, a landscape painter, 549 East 60th street, plunged in and rescued them.

Vivian, the younger, had taken off her shoes and waded into the pool to retrieve a rubber ball. Suddenly she stepped into deeper water and sank with a scream. Her sister, Isabel, jumped in after her, but the smaller child, struggling to rise, seized Isabel's dress and dragged her below the surface.

De Launty, who was lingering in the park after the tournament of the Illinois Fly Casting club, extended his fishing rod and the older sister grasped it. As the artist hauled in the rod parted. De Launty plunged in and carried the children ashore. They waited half an hour to dry their dresses in the sun before starting home to tell their experience to their mother, Mrs. Hazel Walsh, 6045 Prairie avenue.

Benny Ruplankas, 12 years old, 4515 Lowe avenue, yesterday afternoon rescued a boy who fell from a bridge over the north lagoon of Jackson park. The rescued boy, apparently about 10 years old, ran away to his home without leaving his name.

Columbus, O., June 15.—[Special.]—Police tightened their net tonight about Prof. James W. Snook of Ohio State university, held in connection with the hammer murder of Miss Theora Hix, 24 year old medical student at the school.

Mrs. W. W. Smalley, a rooming house proprietor, confronted Dr. Snook tonight at the county jail and identified him as the man who had rented a room at her house which he shared at times with Miss Hix. The professor admitted Mrs. Smalley's statement was true.

A brown felt hat found in the room became the leading clew following Snook's admission. Police said Miss Hix wore it on the night of the murder and advanced the theory that she had visited the room with the veterinary professor before she met her death.

Mrs. Smalley said the teacher had rented the room for himself and "wife" last February, using the name of Howard Snook of Newark. He explained that he worked for a salt concern.

Gave Up Room Friday.

Dr. Snook, after being confronted with Mrs. Smalley admitted that he had given up the room yesterday and removed all articles of clothing with the exception of the brown felt hat.

Officials were spurred on tonight by the discovery of a stained glove, cap, knife, and shirt among Snook's belongings. Chemical tests are under way to determine whether the stains are human blood.

Glove in Snook's Car.

The glove and cap were found in Snook's car. The glove, of slate gray, aside from the stains, revealed several hairs. It was found in a rear compartment of the car. The cap was found behind the driver's seat. A ball headed hammer, such as could have caused the wounds found on the dead girl's body, a hair pin and a woman's umbrella were also taken from the car. The stained shirt and the jackknife, the tip end of which was stained, were found in the home of Prof. Snook during the afternoon.

Police also questioned Marian T. Meyers of the agriculture department of the school.

Meyers, who has been working on the Ohio state corn borer field, told police that he was in Columbus Thursday night but spent the evening at his fraternity house and left Friday morning for Bono, O.

Both Snook and Meyers admitted they had been intimately acquainted with Miss Hix, but Meyers said he had not seen her for more than two weeks.

Snook admitted knowing the girl for several years. He said he had taken her out in his auto and also made her a present of a revolver. Snook is married and has a child two years old.

Snook Presents Alibi.

Snook told police he had spent the early evening in one of the university laboratories until 8 p. m. and then left to go to the Scioto Country club for a pair of glasses which he had left there during the afternoon. He returned home about 9:20 p. m.

When asked why his hand was bandaged, Snook said he had hurt it while repairing his automobile. Police surgeons said the hurt was not new.

DROP $1,500,000 PAY FOR U. S. MARINES IN NICARAGUA FROM AIR

Washington, D. C., June 15.—[Special.]—Marine corps headquarters today was advised that its aviators in Nicaragua had just completed payment to personnel in outlying sections of more than $1,500,000 by airplanes.

The currency was packed in strong paper packages and the coin in small wooden boxes. These were put in ordinary mail bags, which were dropped to the troops in the jungle regions.

No losses were reported and so accurate was the judgment of the pilots that the average distance from markers on the ground where the money fell was only ten feet. The period covered by the payments is approximately two years.

Lake County Prisoners' Baths Barred; Bill Too High

Inmates of the Lake county jail at Waukegan have been ordered to curtail their ablutions. Bathing has become so popular among the prisoners as to run up the water bill of the jail to $2,545 for the last three months, an amount equal to one-third of the outlay for food. The shower baths have been banned and a check ordered on the water consumption of each prisoner.

Altoona, Pa., June 15.—(AP)—Ray Keech, who flashed suddenly from comparative obscurity as a dirt track racing driver to fame as one time holder of the world automobile speed record, died on the Altoona speedway at Tipton late today.

Driving a brilliant race as he led the field through three-quarters of the 200 mile Flag day event, the Philadelphia speed king, winner of the Indianapolis race this year, was killed instantly in a smashup before 25,000 spectators.

Cliff Woodbury of Chicago was injured seriously, while Ernest Triplett of Indianapolis, and Bob Robinson of Los Angeles, the other drivers involved in the accident escaped uninjured. Doctors said Woodbury, barring unforeseen developments, would recover.

Keech Leading Field.

Keech had maintained a three quarter lap lead over Bob Meyer, Pacific coast driver, for 150 miles. Bob Robinson, his red racer thundering into the east stretch, led the pack to the turn. His car, traveling 120 miles an hour, struck a hole in the boards. Out of control, it shot to the top of the saucer, hit the guard rail, perched momentarily and then slid backwards into the infield—undamaged.

Keech veered slightly to avoid hitting Robinson. One of his tires hit an uneven spot and the machine was further deflected by the wreckage of the guard rail. The car overturned, rolling down the bowl, crushing the pilot and bursting into flames. Blazing gasoline spread over the track and fire and smoke added to the menace to six other drivers.

Triplett Has Close Call.

Triplett's racer crashed into the mass of broken wood and careened to the top of the track, shrouded by a cloud of smoke. The machine seemed to go over the edge but later it skidded safely to the infield. Triplett was not hurt and the machine was little damaged.

Woodbury was not so fortunate. His car buckled against the wrecked rail and toppled to the infield, where he was trapped. Emergency doctors and nurses dug him out.

The other drivers on the track succeeded in passing the barrier of wreckage, fire, and smoke. They rounded the last turn and halted at the judges' stand. Almost without official flagging, the race had ended.

Third Tipton Fatality.

Today's event was the eleventh on the Tipton track which was opened in 1923. In the initial event "Howdy" Wilcox lost his life. The following year Joe Boyer was killed. Keech was the third to end his career on the speedway.

Keech's death came when victory lay just 50 miles ahead and shortly after official announcement had been made that he would attempt next year to regain the world's speed record now held by Maj. H. O. D. Seagrave. With a record of 231 miles an hour at Daytona Beach, Keech held the fastest time ever set by an American.

Race officials announced the prizes would be awarded to the drivers in the order of their positions at the time the race ended. This would give Keech first money of $4,500; Meyer, second; Woodbury, third, and Cliff Bergere, fourth.

LOTTI CABLES HIS NARRATIVE OF SEA PERILS

Battle for Life in Terrific Storm.

BULLETIN.

The plane Yellow Bird took off from Comillas, Spain, for Paris at 6:45 a. m. today (12:45 a. m. Chicago daylight saving time.) A Bordeaux, France, dispatch by Associated Press says that Jean Assolant, the pilot, telephoned the Cazaux aviation field at Bordeaux that shortly after 9 a. m. (3:45 a. m. Chicago time), the plane had been forced down at Minnigan les Bains, 25 miles from Bordeaux, by lack of gas. A supply was rushed to the plane.

Armeno Lotti, radio operator and backer of the flight of the monoplane Yellow Bird, which landed at Comillas, Spain, after a 3,200 mile flight across the Atlantic ocean from Old Orchard, Me., when it ran out of gasoline, herewith tells his own story of the battle for life through a terrific storm in mid-Atlantic. The Yellow Bird was unable to proceed to its destination, Paris, yesterday due to the necessity of making repairs on its engine. M. Lotti's story follows:

BY ARMENO LOTTI JR.

COMILLAS, Spain, June 15.—It is good to have the Atlantic behind us. We knew the difficulties that lay before us and our Yellow Bird, but we had the fullest confidence, both in it and in ourselves and we are glad that the confidence proved justified, even despite the difficulties—such as our stowaway, which we could not foresee.

Our chief trouble during the whole flight was to take off from Old Orchard. We had the same amount of gasoline we carried on our successful test. To be more certain of success, we even refused gas and left behind our thermos bottles in order to lighten the load on the tail, but when the crucial moment came in getting off we all noticed, Assollant first of all, that the Yellow Bird didn't rise as well as before.

Ready to Empty Tanks.

I was ready to open the dump valves and thought we would have to empty several tanks. I was crouched in the middle of the ship and, looking back after we had about run our limit along Old Orchard beach, and just as the sea loomed in front of us, I saw the ship had not yet lifted. It seemed tail heavy. The next thing I knew we were up with the Yellow Bird's tail still low. We passed some anxious moments while we flew only ten or twelve feet above the waves. Then we got into the wind and she began really to lift.

It was ten minutes later when we found the real cause of the trouble. Young Arthur Schreiber crawled out from the tail where he had hidden the night before. We looked at him and realized that it was he who had added to the weight of the Yellow Bird and our feelings—well, they weren't precisely friendly.

Stowaway Is Adopted.

But there he was and there he has remained for better or worse. He made himself useful the rest of the trip and we now count him one of us. Needless to say, he added to the weight of the Yellow Bird, which has accomplished a really great feat because it means we got across with a greater load than had been our idea or than we had carried on the test flight.

Moreover, the additional weight was in the tail—the worst place imaginable. Besides there was danger of the lad's feet getting mixed up with the steering apparatus, but, obviously, he did not realise the risk he was making us run for he had never flown before and we all sincerely hope no other will follow his example.

Ran Into Fog.

Twenty-nine miles from the American coast we ran into fog which we supposed would be low, but which forced us to climb until within two hours we reached 2,000 feet, a height which we felt very dangerous for our heavily loaded plane. We remained above the clouds for the rest of the flight. We saw the ocean only two or three times during the trip through holes in the clouds, though, naturally, we were always quite aware it was below us. We did not see a single ship.

When night began to fall at the end of our first day's flight about 7 o'clock New York time, we ran into a very severe fog. It was a mixture of mist, fog, rain and wind with complete obscurity for from eight to ten hours.

I don't know how Assollant brought us through it, for it was nothing but an unending succession of aerial acrobatics. We were whirling dizzily or dropping suddenly through space, until Schreiber, who was courageous enough during the rest of the trip, took my arm and said: "I think the end has some." I told him I thought so, too.

Once we fell in one drop through darkness from an altitude of 2,000 down to 800 meters (from about 6,560 feet to 2,620 feet). Finally we succeeded in flying out of the storm into clear skies lit by the moon and stars through which we flew for two hours. That gave Lafevre time to calculate where we were and we were delighted to find we hadn't left our course.

During the storm we kept our wireless running full strength. Although we realy felt it could not help us, it was very encouraging morally to receive messages from ships and know we were in touch with the world. To start a trans-Atlantic flight without a wireless seems to me after this experience a crazy thing to do.

Motor Suddenly Stops.

For the first two hours we had flown on wing tanks. Then we passed to our first reserve tanks. We had counted on this tank lasting for four hours. With the added weight of the stowaway it was, however, exhausted in three hours and to our surprise, our motor suddenly stoped, though the propeller continued on its own momentum. That was rather a ghastly moment. Lefevre and I rush to the valves to open the other tank in time. Then we heard the motor give a new little spurt and resumed normally again. We felt that heaven was again at hand. We had continued anxiety because of the gas supply and all along did not know precisely what we had.

We nearly missed the coast, for in drifting winds and poor visibility, we got off our course towards the end. The first land we sighted was Cape Finistere. That was a great relief but we didn't realize at first what cape it was as we thought we had been heading towards Portugal. Not knowing how much gas we had left and with night coming on, we bagan looking for a place to land. When we saw the beach here we went for it, telling each other: "It's through at last!"

Three Hours' Gas Left.

We had no trouble in landing. Since then we have found we had three hundred liters of gasoline left in the tanks—enough for three hours.

FRENCH OCEAN FLYERS HELD IN SPAIN BY ENGINE TROUBLE

[Associated Press Photo.]

I cannot conclude this hurried sketch of our trip without expressing our heartfelt gratitude to Clarence Chamberlain and other American friends who did so much to help us and also to the Spaniards here for the warm reception they have given us and for their welcome. We also have to thank our Hispano Suiza motor.

HOP FOR PARIS TODAY

[Copyright: 1929: By the New York Times.]

COMILLAS, Spain, June 15.—The Yellow Bird will take off from the beach here about 6:30 a. m. tomorrow for Paris, according to the French flyers' plans tonight. All preparations have been finished and the plane will land en route at Cazaux, in the department of Lande, to refuel.

Meanwhile, the singing, dancing, and good cheer which has filled this quaint village since the ocean flyers arrived, is continuing at this late hour. The flyers have had little opportunity to rest since they landed, and are beginning to show the strain of their great fatigue.

Spanish Crowds Make Whoopee.

Last night when the flyers landed near the golf house, Lotti managed to borrow a bicycle on the highway to get to the governor's office here. The pilgrimage began this morning and the crowds that rode here lifted the flyers on their shoulders and carried them through the narrow streets while fires blazed up from nearby hills. The village authorities followed in a long train, and the Spanish government did its utmost to aid the flyers and offered to send a new plane to get them to their destination.

Tonight the golf house is filled with dancing couples and both flyers and stowaway are much sought as partners. The music has not ceased for hours. It is such a day as Comillas never had before.

The 22 year old stowaway is not the least honored and his arm is tired from signing autographs. He obviously is proud and Assollant, Lefevre and Lotti have accepted him as one of them. He is keeping very reserved for the time being about his own plans and his own story, saying only he had planned for some time to hide in the plane for the adventure of it. Apparently he had no idea of the risk in which he involved the three French men and though they knew this they have forgiven him.

A gain of more than $10,000,000 over last year's collections in the Chicago district was indicated yesterday at the close of the payment of federal income tax for the second quarter of the year. Figures made public by Myrtle Blacklidge, collector of internal revenue, show collections of $42,958,406 for the period June 1 to 15, 1929, as compared with $32,313,075 for the same period last year. Approximately 33,000 returns had been totaled last night, Mrs. Blacklidge said, and in the mails are hundreds more.

CHICAGO GANGS RAISE $50,000 TO FREE CAPONE

Seek to Shorten Leader's Jail Sentence.

Philadelphia, Pa., June 15.—[Special.]—A fund of $50,000 has been raised by Chicago racketeers for legal assistance to obtain the release of Alphonse [Scarface Al] Capone, notorious gangster, from the Philadelphia county prison at Holmsburg, police officials declared here today.

Attorneys will be paid from this fund, it was said, only in case they obtain a reduction in Capone's sentence of one year, which was imposed by Judge Walsh a month ago for carrying a loaded revolver. Public Safety Director Schofield said he was investigating the reports that a legal fight probably would be made to secure a commutation of the gang leader's sentence. He intimated that strenuous efforts would be exerted by police to have him serve the full term.

"Capone pleaded guilty to the charges on which he was sentenced and no extenuating circumstances were offered in support of a plea for short sentence," Schofield said. "It would appear that any attempt now to obtain Capone's release was to be based on a technicality, rather than the merits of the case."

Disclosure of the $50,000 fund followed a request by Wisconsin authorities that the Philadelphia police aid in the identification of a gangster who was burned to death at a stake near Three Lakes, Wis. The victim is believed to have been a former Philadelphian, who wore a signet ring bearing the engraved initials "E. L.," with a trade mark showing it was purchased or manufactured here.

DR. DORAN PUTS OUT FIGURES TO SHOW PROHIBITION PAYS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 15.—[Special.] — Dry propaganda emanating from official sources reached a new high point today when Prohibition Commissioner James M. Doran, in an analysis of the cost of Volsteadism to date, claimed $460,502,792 collected in taxes, fines, and penalties, with total cost of prohibition enforcement $213,178,845, showing a net profit of $247,324,307 in nine years.

The claim was made in a letter to the Rev. A. R. Robinson, chairman of the East End Ministerial association of Pittsburgh, Pa. It was prepared and made public, the dry chief declared, as an answer to the recent bulletin of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, fixing the total cost of enforcing prohibition at nearly one billion dollars.

In his letter, Dr. Doran failed to mention the fact that taxes were collected on spirits and fermented liquors before prohibition became effective, and that the annual receipts from that source of revenue for several years prior to enactment of the 18th amendment were nearly as much as the total collected since.

ASPHYXIATED BY ESCAPING GAS.

Antone Wozniak, 50 years old, 2254 West 18th place, was asphyxiated when a coffee pot boiled over and extinguished the flame in a gas stove yesterday. His body was found by his wife, Mary.

SOUTH AMERICAN STIMULANT PEPS UP SUNDAY MOTORISTS

PEGGY DAVIDSON AND SCOTT TIEDMAN were only two of many hundreds who sampled thirst-quenching, stimulating Yermat along the crowded Waukegan Road. Senorita Alvarez, the Yermat demonstrator, was deluged with requests for more Test along Waukegan Road proves that this sparkling drink of unusual flavor quickly ends physical and mental fatigue!

Whoever called Sunday a day of rest never spent it motoring. Few pastimes are more tiring! That's why Sunday motorists were selected as subjects for a test of Yermat Stimulating Drink.

Of 327 who sampled it along the Waukegan Road, 9 out of 10 said they felt wonderfully refreshed and invigorated. "It sure does pep you up!" remarked one. "I feel like a new person!" said another. All pronounced it a marvelous thirst-quencher.

Made from Yerba Mate

Yermat is brewed from Yerba Mate, an herb used for centuries in South America as a harmless stimulant. The 30 million South Americans who drink it daily find it so satisfying that they have no desire for alcoholic beverages.

According to doctors, Yermat speedily dispels fatigue without increasing the heart action, exciting the nerves or causing insomnia! Thus it may be freely consumed . . . even by children, convalescents and the aged.

Doctors also credit Yermat with preventing indigestion, constipation and malnutrition. This advantage, plus its stimulating effect, makes it an unusually healthful table beverage.

A Unique Flavor

Yermat has a delightful flavor . . . a flavor utterly different from that of any other drink. And a sparkle actually superior to that of the costliest French champagne. No wonder it sells for a trifle more than inferior carbonated beverages!

Drink Yermat on arising, at meals, and whenever you feel thirsty, tired or blue. Also animate your friends with it when they drop in to call or play cards. It's sold in 3 and 12 bottle cartons by druggists and grocers, and is served by the bottle or glass at fountains, restaurants, hotels and clubs. Drink a bottle daily for a week or two and see how much better you feel!

10¢ A GLASS AT MOST FOUNTAINS

Bottle 30c
3-bottle carton 85c
12-bottle carton $3.25

When only a glass of Yermat is desired, cork the bottle tightly and put in a cold place. The remainder will retain its original sparkle and freshness for several days.

Says DR. DOUBLET of Medical College of Paris:
"Yerba Mate harmlessly stimulates all the organic activities, producing a feeling of strength and vigor. Its effects may be expressed in three short words . . . superabundance of life."

DAWES CALLS ON KING; RUSHES TO MEET M'DONALD

Open Parley at Scotch Retreat Today.

"His Excellency"

"Windsor Castle, June 15, 1929. His excellency Gen. Charles Gates Dawes was received in audience by the king this morning and presented letters for recall of his predecessor and his own letters of credence as United States ambassador extraordinary and plenipotentiary to the court of St. James.

"The Rt. Hon. Arthur Henderson, M. P., secretary of state for foreign affairs, was present and had audience of his majesty and the gentlemen of the household in waiting were in attendance.

"His excellency the United States ambassador and Mrs. Charles Gates Dawes subsequently had the honor of being received by the king and queen."

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 15.—Charles G. Dawes, new American ambassador to the court of St. James's, tonight was speeding to Scotland for an important conference with J. Ramsay MacDonald, labor prime minister of Great Britain. The conference promises to be of grave import to the future relations between the United States and Great Britain, and is expected to result in a closer understanding between the two great English speaking nations and a big step forward toward world peace.

Gen. Dawes and the British premier will discuss Anglo-American relations in general and are expected to take up the vexing problem of naval disarmament. It is expected also that Gen. Dawes will inform Mr. MacDonald that President Hoover welcomes his suggestion to go to the United States for a personal conference, although it is not certain that this is included in the ambassador's mission.

Calls on King George.

Gen. Dawes' departure for Scotland followed a day of great activity. He continued to break all records for ambassadorial speed by getting down to work at the embassy early this morning. Shortly before noon he journeyed to Windsor and presented his credentials to King George, thus becoming a full fledged ambassador. It was the first time since the beginning of his illness seven months ago that the king had received a foreign diplomat.

Rides in Royal Carriage.

Gen. Dawes was accompanied to Windsor by Mrs. Dawes, Ray Atherton, counsellor of the embassy; Arthur Henderson, foreign secretary of the Labor government, and J. B. Monck of the British foreign office. Upon arrival at Windsor the party was met at the station by Sir John Hanbury-Williams, marshal of the diplomatic corps.

The new American envoy got his first taste of the ceremony of English court life as he started off for the castle in a royal carriage. As the carriage drove through the gates of the medieval pile, a company of Grenadier guardsmen was just leaving, following the changing of the guard.

But ceremonial observances seemed doomed when the matter of fact American ambassador put in his appearance. Following a half hour chat with King George, Gen. Dawes smilingly reappeared. Responding to queries as to whether he had found the ceremony interesting, he replied: "I don't know what the usual ceremony is. I just presented my credentials."

Finds King Delightful.

So far Gen. Dawes has given England the impression that everything is going to be just that simple. The press today is full of praises of him, seeing a new era of closer rapprochement between England and America as a result of cutting short diplomatic verbiage and shilly-shallying by conducting negotiations between two governments in the same straightforward manner that might be employed by two business men.

"I found the king delightful," was Gen. Dawes' comment after leaving Windsor. "His majesty is looking very well. We chatted on various subjects for half an hour."

One of the busiest men in the British Isles just now, Gen. Dawes returned to the embassy this afternoon and dug into the business of preparing for tomorrow's interview with Prime Minister MacDonald in Scotland. The conference will take place at Forres, near Lossiemouth. Forres is almost as far north as one can go without running off into the North sea.

MacDonald Ready for Parley.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LOSSIEMOUTH, Scotland, June 15.—The plans of Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald for tomorrow's conference with Ambassador Dawes are all made. He has selected Logie house, the residence of Sir Alexander Grant, seven miles from Forres, as the meeting place and hopes to combine pleasure with business by taking the American ambassador for a drive to show him some of the historic features of the neighborhood.

Mr. MacDonald will attend services at the United Free church here in the morning, after which he will motor to Forrest to meet Gen. Dawes, whose train arrives at 1:17 p. m., after a fourteen hour trip from London. His daughter, Isabel, and his private secretary, H. B. Usher, will accompany him. The party will return and dine with Sir Alexander and Lady Grant and family. The discussions between the American envoy and the British premier will then begin quite informally.

May Go to See Cairngorm.

Mr. MacDonald hopes to have time to take Gen. Dawes to Aviemore, which is the best vantage point for seeing the glorious Cairngorm, the famous mountain of Scotland. The road over the moor of Glenferness passes the ruins of Lochindorb castle, formerly the headquarters of the Wolf of Badenoch, the greatest bandit in highland history, who burned down Forres castle and Elgin cathedral.

Another possibility, if Gen. Dawes has time to see something of the vicinity before taking the five o'clock train for the return journey of 600 miles, is to visit Culbin sands, on the shore of Moray firth, four miles from Forres. The great wind of the seventeenth century brought in sands which covered the Culbin estate under drifts several feet deep. It still remains buried, though the vagaries of wind and tides occasionally expose part of the ruins to view.

An Appropriate Meeting Place.

Logie house, where the actual meeting will be held, is a baronial mansion overlooking a wooded ravine through which the River Findhorn flows to the sea. Bonnie Prince Charlie stayed there on the eve of the battle of Culloden. Over its door is carved Sir Alexander's crest, which is startlingly appropriate for the present meeting. It includes angels, a dove of peace, and a child with an hour glass symbolizing time, while below is the motto, "Stand firm."

Sir Alexander Grant, who is proud of his present position as host to the new American ambassador and who is a lifelong friend of Mr. MacDonald, has had a remarkable career. He started life as a baker and now is one of Scotland's wealthiest men. He donated large sums to Edinburgh university and the Scottish national library. During Mr. MacDonald's last premiership he made him a gift of a motor car and provided for its upkeep, and now, as usual when Mr. MacDonald is in Lossiemouth, has placed a motor at his disposal.

BRITISH LABOR PLANS DRASTIC CLEANUP OF ELECTORAL LAWS

KILSYTH, Scotland, June 15.—(AP)—A forecast of the labor government's response to the liberal demand for reform in the electoral laws was made by the under secretary for Scotland, Tom Johnson, in an address today.

Labor would deal with electoral reform in a way over which Lloyd George would not be too happy, he declared. They would abolish university representation, and also plural voting which permits persons filling certain residential and business qualifications to vote in two constituencies, and would insist on limitation of expenses.

The government would also require detailed accounts of the source and expenditure of campaign, in order to preclude any party spending $4,000,000 on any election, Mr. Johnson asserted. This last was a reference to the amount the liberals are believed to have expended.

70TH BIRTHDAY OF WAUKEGAN IS CELEBRATED

Parade Recalls Visit Made by Lincoln.

Waukegan yesterday became for an afternoon the settlement town of 1860 when Abraham Lincoln, then a presidential candidate, rode in a carriage down the main street and was greeted by crowds of cheering men in high hats and frock coats and women in bustled skirts and tiny hats.

The north shore city, which is one of the oldest towns in Illinois, celebrated its 80th year as an organization and 70th year as a city. Proceeds were given to the Goodfellowship settlement, a charitable organization, and the entire population turned out to celebrate, many donning the fashions of three-quarters of a century ago for the occasion.

Hold Old Time Market.

Upton park was turned into an old fashioned market square, while the two blocks south from the park were lined with old fashioned groups representing the customs of Little Fort, as Waukegan was known before it became a city.

The climax of the celebration was a reproduction of Lincoln's visit to the town. Riding in a carriage 90 years old, the character who portrayed Lincoln was followed in a parade by several hundred early settlers, most of whom had passed more than 60 years in Lake county.

When Lincoln came to the town, a warehouse fire interrupted his speech, it was recalled, and he himself left the platform to run to the fire and help put it out. He was the guest at that time of Mayor E. P. Ferry and Mayor Ferry's daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth A. Leary, 78 years old, took part in the parade yesterday.

Kin of First White Man There.

Also in the parade were Daniel Wigham, grandson of Daniel White, first white man born in Lake county, and Mrs. R. H. Aiken, granddaughter of the first white woman born in the county. State's Attorney A. V. Smith was marshal of the parade.

North shore society women took part in the celebration. Carl Sandburg and Dorothy Aldis autographed their books for those who wished them. Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen and Jane Addams also played a part in the celebration.

Among those in costume were Mrs. K. M. Wilkins, a descendant of Nathaniel Hawthorne; Miss Avis Edwards, great-great-granddaughter of Elmsley Sunderlin, an early settler who lent the money to buy the first courthouse site; Andrew Cooke and Miss Mary Cooke, whose grandfather, Homer Cooke, escorted Lincoln in Waukegan.

The first motion picture of women ever taken in the United States, a film taken in Waukegan in 1896, was part of the exhibit. One of the town's first fire engines was in the parade, and a group of high wheeled bicycles. The market square contained a reproduction of Thomas Jenkins' store, the first corner grocery in Waukegan, and there was the town's first old book shop.

SWANSON RAIDS CLUB ALABAM; SEIZE PLAYERS

Fifteen of State's Attorney Swanson's policemen, led by Lieut. William Blaul, early this morning raided the Club Alabam, 747 Rush street, battered in the door of a third floor room with axes and arrested three men and a girl whom they said they found playing roulette. Dan Blanco, manager of the night life resort, also was taken into custody for questioning. None of the dancers and diners in the café was molested.

On the upper floor the policemen said they found two roulette tables and wheels and a half pint of whisky. Those seized beside Blanco are Miss Virginia Parker, 3202 Sheridan road; William Fuller, 209 Lake Shore drive; Charles M. Smith, 6063 Winthrop avenue, and William Harrington.

LOOP SYNAGOGUE PLANS 2 SCHOOLS AND RESTAURANT

Faced with the need for resident schools where children of employed Jewish parents may live, and also the necessity for a real kosher restaurant within the loop, the Loop Orthodox synagogue, dedicated only last week at 110 North La Salle street, has announced that its activities will be widened to include the realization of both projects.

"The ladies' auxiliary, of which Mrs. Sam B. Blankstein is president, and Mrs. Max Coleman, honorary president, are working with us on the children's schools," Maurice J. Nathanson, leader of the synagogue congregation, said.

The loop kosher restaurant, Mr. Nathanson explained, will cost at least $75,000 for equipment. Two kitchens will be necessary, he said, one for dairy foods and the other for meats.

The Yizkor services in memory of the dead were held yesterday.

BABY HOLDS HIS OWN IN 65 HOUR BATTLE FOR LIFE

Firemen Work On; Doctor Sees Hope of Recovery.

Raymond Di Chiara, 16 month old son of Joseph Di Chiara, 1031 George street, was reported holding his own last night after a fire department inhalator squad had worked for 65 hours administering oxygen to save his life. The firemen were still at the child's bedside battling the bronchial pneumonia which reached an acute stage Thursday morning when they were called.

Dr. John Pishotta of the Illinois Masonic hospital, in charge of the case, said last night that because Raymond spent many hours in natural sleep yesterday he believed there was hope for his recovery. The pulse rate had not lowered and the lung congestion was no worse last night than it has been, he reported.

Crib in Center of Room.

The baby patient's white crib stands in the center of the tiny parlor at the Di Chiara home on the second floor of the building. Over the crib a white garbed nurse and two blue uniformed firemen bend with their magic tube, which the child, again sleeping last night, sucked as he would a nursing bottle, his entire body cupped around it eagerly.

Thirty small tanks and twelve large tanks of oxygen had been exhausted yesterday evening. The firemen work in shifts of two. Each shift is on duty only a few hours. They are weary, but not too weary to keep the flow of oxygen at a desired volume through the tube.

Doctor Praises Firemen.

Capt. John Scanlan of inhalator squad 10 is in charge of the men. Dr. Pishotta said last night that if the baby lives it will be due to the untiring efforts of the firemen.

The mother, worn out by the long illness of the baby, which began two weeks ago, and unable to handle the complications of oxygen giving, slept last evening for the first time in days. She was downstairs in the rooms of her relatives. The two other Di Chiara children, a 9 year old girl and a 7 year old boy, and the father are also being cared for by the relatives while the battle for life goes on.

HOOVER SIGNS FARM AID BILL AND ASKS FUNDS

Relief Will Be Speeded to Wheat Growers.

act. Some members of congress may seek to increase the amount, but it is expected that an appropriation will be passed in the house not later than Tuesday and in the senate not later than Wednesday.

Under the present program both houses plan to recess on Wednesday until the middle of August. A complication affecting the recess program is the resolution of Senator William E. Borah [Rep., Idaho] which is before the senate and which directs the senate finance committee to confine tariff revision to agricultural products.

Alliance Seen Again.

Republican leaders expressed fear today that the Borah resolution may be adopted by the senate on Monday.

A canvass by the leaders showed that an alliance of Democrats and radical Republicans is in the making similar to that which twice obtained approval of the export debenture scheme in the senate. It was indicated that fourteen Republicans are disposed to support the Borah resolution and that only eight Democrats had declared themselves against it.

Adoption of the resolution would seriously upset the tariff program. It would mean that the finance committee would be obliged to abandon its schedule of hearings other than those relating to agriculture. This might shorten the recess considerably and permit the committee to report the bill to the senate in July.

Even if the resolution should be adopted there would still be a chance for manufacturers to obtain increases in duties on industrial products. The bill will be wide open for amendment on the floor of the senate and it would be possible for senate and house conferees to incorporate in the final draft of the legislation the house rates on any items desired.

Barnes and Meyer Counted Out.

It is understood that the President has no intention of naming either Julius Barnes or Eugene Meyer as members of the farm board. Mr. Barnes, as director of the wheat corporation during the war, and as one of the President's closest advisers, has been considered a possibility but farm groups are strongly opposed to him. Mr. Meyer's service as head of the war finance corporation and of the farm loan board has caused him to be prominently mentioned for appointment but he also has incurred the displeasure of farm leaders.

It also is regarded as unlikely that former Gov. Frank O. Lowden, leading advocate of the equalization fee, which was rejected by the President as a measure of farm relief, will be given serious consideration or that he would accept.

Campbell May Be Chairman.

Among those mentioned for the chairmanship of the farm board is Thomas Campbell of Montana, largest wheat producer in the country.

The board is to include eight appointive members besides the secretary of agriculture.

Among those suggested for places are James R. Howard of Iowa, former president of the American Farm Bureau federation; H. L. Hartshorn of Kansas, active in the wheat coöperative movement; John Lee Coulter, president of North Dakota Agricultural college; William F. Schilling of Minnesota, active in dairy coöperatives; James C. Stone of Kentucky, former head of a tobacco coöperative; Carl Williams of Oklahoma, a coöperative leader; C. O. Moser of Texas, head of a cotton coöperative, and W. H. Marshall of Florida, a fruit grower.

Investigations Ordered.

The new board under the terms of the bill besides having authority to make loans to stabilization corporations and coöperatives in connection with the handling of crop surpluses is authorized and directed:

"To promote education in the principles and practices of coöperative marketing of agricultural commodities and food products thereof.

"To encourage the organization, improvement in methods, and development of effective coöperative associations.

"To keep advised from any available sources and make reports as to crop prices, experiences, prospects, supply, and demand, at home and abroad.

"To investigate conditions of over production of agricultural commodities and advise as to the prevention of such over production.

"To make investigations and reports and publish the same, including investigations and reports upon the following: Land utilization for agricultural purposes, reduction of the acreage of unprofitable marginal lands in cultivation, methods of expanding markets at home and abroad for agricultural commodities and food products thereof, methods of developing by-products of and new uses for agricultural commodities, and transportation conditions and their effect upon the marketing of agricultural commodities."

THOMPSON SEES NEW FARM ERA IN RELIEF LAW

Sam H. Thompson, president of the American Farm Bureau federation, hailed President Hoover's signing of the agricultural bill yesterday as the advent of a new and improved economic era in American farming. In his statement Mr. Thompson said:

"Signing of the agricultural marketing bill today by President Hoover was the final step in laying the foundation of a national agricultural policy—a policy forecasting an immediate turn in the economic position of the farming industry.

"Farming will become an increasingly profitable business. For the last 150 years the farmers have struggled against inequalities arising from the fact that other groups in our national life existed under an economic system based on governmental aid and protection that resulted to their peculiar advantage.

"President Hoover is to be congratulated for so promptly and energetically carrying out the campaign pledge he made a year ago to the nation's thirty million farm people when he sought their support. Both the senate and the house are also to be commended for their earnest efforts to solve the problem to the satisfaction of all concerned."

Boy, 18, Shoots Stepfather on Visit to Divorced Wife

Ignatius Banbrys, 45 years old, was shot in the thigh yesterday by his step-son, Thomas Lehman, 18 years old, at the home of Mrs. Josephine Lehman Banbrys, 706 Gardner street, who obtained a divorce from him a few days ago. Banbrys went to the home after serving a 30 day sentence in bridewell on a disorderly conduct charge made by his wife. He sought a reconciliation, he told police. He sought money and struck her, according to Mrs. Banbrys.

BORDER OFFICER KEEPS SLAYERS' IDENTITY SECRET

Murder Charge Against Drys Likely.

Plattsburg, N. Y., June 15.—[Special.]—Members of the Mooers, N. Y., customs patrol who killed Arthur Gordon, 22, of this city, this morning will be charged with first degree murder, District Attorney B. Loyal O'Connell indicated tonight. Mr. O'Connell said he would make immediate application for a John Doe warrant and endeavor to learn which members of the border patrol did the shooting.

Deputy Collector of Customs John O'Hare has refused to give the district attorney the names of the officers concerned.

Delivered to Hospital.

Gordon's body was brought to Physicians' hospital here at 6 a. m. by two patrolmen who refused to reveal their names. They hurried away as soon as they had delivered the body.

Gordon had been shot through the back, and he died of an internal hemorrhage.

According to the hospital staff the customs patrolmen said they picked the youth up on the road about a mile north of Mooers, which is 21 miles northwest of Plattsburg.

Farmers Report Shooting.

George Colton and Lucien Bosworth, farmers who live near the place where the customs men said they "picked up" Gordon, have reported that two autos driven by customs partlomen were parked so as to block the road by their homes early today. Another car appeared, crashed into one of the autos, and swerved into the ditch. A youth jumped out, sprang over a fence and vanished among the trees. The farmers say the customs men set out after him, and soon five shots were heard. The officers then reappeared bearing a burden, according to the farmers, put it into one of their cars and drove off.

Border officials have reported seizure of two carloads of liquor early today. One of the cars is presumed to have been driven by Gordon. The slain youth was seen last night in a restaurant in Plattsburgh with Raymond Broderick and Nolan Chapman. Broderick said today that after eating he and Chapman drove up to the border near Mooers "for a few bottles of beer." Gordon supposedly followed in his own car.

While drinking beer Broderick saw young Gordon load what he thought to be liquor into a car and drive off.

Mother Given Some Money.

An interview with Gordon's mother, Mrs. Frank Stay, just after she had returned from viewing the body this morning, disclosed that he had not been at home for the last five or six days.

At the meat market here, where Gordon worked, it was learned that he had quit his job last Saturday without giving any notice.

Mrs. Stay said her son came home yesterday afternoon to show his mother his new suit, which he had just bought and of which he was apparently very proud. At that time he also gave his mother some money.

CAMERAMEN PRAISED FOR KEEPING MOUTHS OF SENATORS CLOSED

Washington, D. C., June 15.—[Special.]—Senator James E. Watson [Rep., Ind.] today paid tribute to the ingenuity of the newspaper photographers who filmed President Hoover signing the farm relief bill surrounded by senators and others.

"Now all still for just a moment," was the order as the cameras began to click.

"Once more," said another voice and the group remained quiet and watched carefully for the "birdie" that the old time photographer told the children would come out of the end of the camera.

"These kodakers are the only fellows in the world who could keep the mouths of four senators shut for three minutes," Senator Watson said, speaking of himself and Senators Capper, Ransdell, and McNary, who were in the group.

HIS PERFUMING BUSINESS PUTS JERRY IN JAIL

Roses may smell as sweet by any other name, but perfumes do not. This homily came home rather forcibly to several chorus girls in loop shows yesterday when they learned that the scent Jerry Newton has been peddling them in exquisitely wrought vials and labeled with poetic French names was in reality a [illegible] mixed by Jerry in five gallon [illegible] and "imported" from his room at the North Shore hotel. Jerry [illegible] from $10 to $15 an ounce for his "perfumes," delivered at the theaters. The police, considering all things, thought the price too high. They [illegible] charges of operating a confidence game, obtaining money under false pretenses and counterfeiting [illegible] against Newton and locked him up.

For families whose children are critical—The New Model
CHICKERING

When daughter returns home after several weeks absence, she's acquired an outside point of view. Her fresh, sophisticated eyes—like those of your friends and neighbors—perceive the clumsiness, the gaucherie of an out-of-date piano.

Don't let an antiquated instrument hint that you can't keep up with the times. Replace the old derelict with one of the new Chickering models, perhaps the most beautiful pianos that have yet been created. To any person who appreciates beauty of design, the slenderness and grace of the Chickering will prove a continual source of pleasure. Its rich tone explains why Chickering is the only piano ever to have received the Legion of Honor; its name is respected wherever piano music is heard, for it is to improvements made nearly a hundred years ago by Jonas Chickering that the modern piano owes its tone. The Chickering stands in the homes of hundreds of America's socially prominent. When will it enter yours? $1095.

Only $109.50 down

Three years to dispose of the balance. Your old piano taken in exchange and a generous allowance made.

The Chickering can also be had in charming Sheraton and Florentine designs. With the Ampico, the supreme reproducing instrument, the Chickering is $1995 and up.

MELLON TO KEEP DRY COMMAND; TOO MUCH "FIRE"

Killings Cause Hoover to Delay Transfer.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 15.—Transfer of prohibition enforcement to the department of justice in the interests of more effective administration of the dry laws, as visualized by President Hoover in a recent message to congress, may be indefinitely delayed by the wave of indignation kindled throughout the nation by recent dry killings.

So much resentment has been aroused in congress by the slaying of Henry Virkula, northern Minnesota confectioner, by a customs patrolman that sponsors of the resolution authorizing an investigation designed to pave the way for the reorganization of prohibition enforcement and its concentration in the justice department, have abandoned plans to bring it to an immediate vote.

Sought Quick Action.

President Hoover considered quick action on this resolution so important in his recently launched drive against rum smugglers on the Canadian border that he sent a special message to congress asking for the appointment of a joint committee to make an immediate study and formulate recommendations for dry enforcement changes to the next session of congress this winter.

An immediate investigation was needed, Mr. Hoover said, in order to expedite plans for legislation.

Administration leaders admitted today no effort is being made to force an early vote on the investigating resolution introduced in the senate by Senator Wesley L. Jones [Rep., Wash.], author of the Jones five year imprisonment law.

High Air Wholesale Killings.

Fear that if the resolution were pressed, congressional wets would open up the whole question of prohibition killings and possibly obtain a complete congressional airing of dry law administration, is said to be responsible for the delay.

In the meantime the whole question of prohibition killings has been placed on the White House doorstep by the citizens of International Falls, Minn., the home town of the widow and two children left by the slaying of Virkula by Emmett White, customs inspector and dry sleuth. A telegram carrying a plea for presidential protection from the "hair trigger" activities of armed dry sleuths was received by Mr. Hoover today.

The message to the President, signed by County Attorney David Hurlbut, recited the lawless acts committed by dry agents and appealed for presidential aid in curbing the hair trigger activities of members of the dry rum patrol. It also asserted that one of the dry agents had "within a week murdered one of our respected and reputable fellow citizens."

The President read the telegram late today, and there were indications he will comment on it some time within the next week. Mr. Hoover has been advised by the treasury department of the Virkula incident, but, thus far, has taken no steps to modify present regulations governing the use of firmarms by the drys.

There were indications that he also would look into the treasury's "dry killing" record and also discuss the matter with Secretary Mellon and Attorney General William D. Mitchell. Figures on prohibition killings have been prepared by the treasury and are available if the President desires them.

U. S. to Aid Killer.

Federal machinery continued today to function in behalf of White, now held on a charge of second degree murder. Following its usual custom, the customs patrolman, and following upon the department of justice to aid the customs patrolman and following its unbroken practice, the attorney general's office is granting the request.

Seymour Lowman, assistant secretary of the treasury in charge of customs, coast guard and prohibition, said today that L. L. Drill, district attorney in St. Paul, will give every protection to White.

From other sources it was learned that White's action will be defended as legal under the tariff act, which permits customs men to use all necessary force in stopping vehicles. Under this law the treasury permits its customs agents and coast guardsmen to fire at automobile tires and in certain instances to fire directly into vehicles in order to stop them.

Secretary Mellon left Washington for a week, yesterday, following the cabinet meeting. Before he left he talked to Lowman. After this interview, Lowman was asked if any steps were to be taken to stop shooting at automobile tires. His answer was, "Not so far as he knew."

Just what steps Mr. Hoover will take to effect his reorganization plans if congress does not pave the way with an investigating resolution still are undetermined. Attorney General Mitchell has been studying the subject and it is possible he may be asked to frame the legislation after the Hoover law enforcement commission has studied the subject.

Before approving such legislation a stiff fight is certain to be made by the wets to include a provision curbing the use of firearms.

DEATH ENDS CAREER OF FAMOUS RACE DRIVER

FIX INGERSOLL INHERITANCE TAX AT $233,313

Rockford, Ill., June 15.—[U. P.]—Heirs to the $2,772,662 personal estate of Winthrop Ingersoll, millionaire Rockford manufacturer who died Dec. 19, must pay an inheritance tax of $233,313.62 to the state of Illinois.

When the tax hearing was held today before County Judge Fred E. Carpenter, the computed gross tax was reported by Ward Thompson, appraiser of the estate, as $243,589.07, but a rebate of five per cent was permitted for payment within six months after Ingersoll's death.

Mrs. Harriett Ingersoll, the widow; Mildred Ingersoll Gaylord, a daughter, of Rockford, and Harold Ingersoll, a son of Colorado Springs, are heirs to the estate which is in excess of $4,000,000.

The federal tax is $41,797.60. A trust fund of $1,301,008.79 is exempt from inheritance tax.

CITIZENS ASK GOVERNOR'S AID IN VIRKULA CASE

Insist on State Trial for Dry Slayer.

BY ORVILLE DWYER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

International Falls, Minn., June 15.—[Special.]—Three hundred of this city's prominent men today petitioned Theodore Christianson and Attorney General G. A. Youngquist to "take steps to retain jurisdiction for the state in the case of Emmett J. White, customs patrolman, charged with the murder of Henry Virkula.

The citizens are determined to have White tried in the state courts and in Koochiching county. They have been told that Federal District Attorney L. L. Drill, in St. Paul, will move to take the case out of the state's hands. But they hope to bring pressure to bear in Washington for the government to keep hands off in this case. A petition with this end in view was sent yesterday to President Hoover.

After White's Partner.

Feeling in the community has been bitter against Emil Servine, companion of White, when the latter killed Virkula. Victor Johnson, cousin of the murdered man, has several times asked that Servine be placed in a cell on a murder charge and this morning a committee of citizens, independent of Johnson, wiated upon State's Attorney David Hurlburt with the request that Servine be arrested. Servine was on duty yesterday at the international bridge, ordering people out of their cars while he searched for liquor or other contraband.

The killing of Virkula happened on the highway near the town of Little Fork, [illegible] miles south of the border. Servine and White were stationed, watching they said, for smugglers when the unfortunate Virkula, his wife by his side and his two small daughters asleep in the rear seat of his automobile, drove past and to his doom.

Servine Prompted Shooting.

Servine had a big sign ordering motorists to stop. White was on hand with a sawed-off shotgun. As Virkula passed him, Servine shouted to White up ahead, "Let him have it," and White poured slugs into the car.

It is because of that shout, "Let him have it," by Servine that the citizens are demanding his arrest. They claim he is as guilty as White.

Leading men of the town are listing a series of acts of terrorism against citizens by border dry enforcers.

One of these was the case of Dr. Mary Ghostley. She has twice been fired on by customs patrolmen while driving late at night.

Once her husband was with her. They were driving to their cottage on Rainy lake, about 1:30 in the morning. The husband thought the patrolmen were highwaymen and kept on going. They fired a score of slugs at the car.

Another incident recorded occurred at Rainier, four miles from International Falls. There was an order, for safety's sake to stop automobiles at a dangerous railroad crossing. A border patrolman, driving by, refused to stop. The policeman brought him to a halt and explained.

"Say, do you know who I am?" demanded the federal dry enforcer. "Well, if you try to fool with me, I'll kill you," and he reached for his automatic pistol.

Threatens Police Chief.

Several members of the border patrol in the last several days threatened unwarranted arrests in this city. Chief of Police H. G. Roysland heard of them. He went to the chief of the service here and complained. That night, on the street, he encountered a customs agent named Sullivan, in plain clothes. Sullivan threatened to beat up the chief unless he "laid off" the border patrol.

Frank Keyes, former mayor of the town, was stopped and questioned at the point of a pistol on his way home one recent night. He threw up his hands on command from the government agent, thinking he was being held up.

REPEATED DRY SEARCHES IRK YACHT OWNERS

Terrorizing of Families Is Protested by Clubs.

Detroit, Mich., June 15.—[Special.]—Detroit river yachting clubs have sent letters to Acting Customs Collector Petty protesting the continual stopping and searching of their yachts.

"We have received several complaints concerning apparently unwarranted and unreasonable search of water craft on the Detroit river by United States customs officers," a letter prepared by the yachting association states.

Homes Are Affected.

"While this organization is not fraught with the intent to hamper or impair the full enforcement of any law of the United States, and well knowing that the strict enforcement of any law cannot be accomplished without inconvenience to any person within the realm of possible suspicion, we hope you appreciate that a great many of our members owning water craft make them their homes during the summer, and that repeated and unjustifiable searches result in damage to their property and have a terrorizing effect on those aboard, particularly women and children."

Liquor Market Bullish.

With the drive against rum runners just started, prohibition enforcement officials already are claiming results.

While admitting that Canadian beer is scarce, big operators in the illicit liquor traffic say that there will be plenty of liquor, at increased prices, for at least a month. That much is in storage here, they aver, to be unloaded on the "bull" market by operators who bought when liquor was coming over freely and at low prices.

Body in Wisconsin Woods Chicago Youth.

ened the belief that Chicago gunmen had done the killing, inasmuch as the key had been sold by a Chicago Heights firm, and Chicago Heights has been called a headquarters for Chicago's alcohol and slot machine syndicates.

Yesterday State's Attorney Kennedy sent photographs of the key to the state's attorney's office in Chicago. It was learned that the key had been manufactured by the Miller Lock company at Philadelphia and sent with a consignment of 100,000 to the Durand Steel Locker company of Chicago Heights.

It bore the serial "12D18," and on the reverse side the number "27." A detective was put to work tracing it. The Durand company officials said it would be almost impossible to tell where one key out of 100,000 went.

Recalls Suicide Note.

Then State's Attorney Kennedy of Rhinelander furnished a new lead. He had read in THE TRIBUNE that Henry Gisin of Mound City, Kas., had notified the Chicago police that his son, Ben, had written to him that he intended to take his shotgun and go up into the Wisconsin woods and commit suicide. Mr. Kennedy suggested that the state's attorney's office here check at Gisin's residence for a lock the key might fit.

At 6101 Normal avenue Mrs. Johanne Christensen said Gisin had disappeared on June 4. He worked at the Goes Lithographing company, 42 West 61st street, she informed the detectives. At their plant last night a search was made of the several hundred lockers. They had been bought from various concerns, but soon a group bearing the Durand Steel Locker company name was found.

Find Gisin's Locker.

A section was marked "L2D18" and No. 27 was not locked. Inside was a lodge paper, the Security News, of Topeka, Kas., and addressed to Ben Gisin, 6061 Normal avenue.

The body thereby acquired a name. A perfect identification, the detectives enthusiastically asserted. A dozen negatives were in the locker.

The detectives understood how he might have committed suicide when they saw the negatives and read the letter telling his brother to put the gun through a fence. Gisin had been photographed in many poses with a shotgun, throwing a snowball up in the air and shooting at it, and falling backwards, with and without the gun in hand.

They decided he could have wrapped wire around his ankles and wrists after he placed himself in position on the pile of brush, which he then set on fire. He could have discharged the shotgun at his head by a movement of his foot if he had the wire on his ankles connected with the trigger of the gun, they explained, and their opinion was that he had arranged to kill himself and dispose of his body in this fashion.

Tells of Finding Note.

"Yes, I picked a rumpled and partially torn letter out of the wastebasket," Mrs. Christensen informed them. "That was after he fent away."

"Dear brother Harry," the letter began. "I committed suicide. I advise you to do the same. It was not because of a girl."

"No, it was not because of a girl," said Gisin's mother last night over the telephone from Mound City. "Ben was not in love. He was not engaged. He did not keep company with any girl. He was a good boy."

The mother admitted having received a letter two weeks ago in which Gisin said he was going up into Wisconsin to kill himself and that it related his decision that he would no longer "endure a loveless life." He had been ill, the mother said.

Says He Was Morose.

Mrs. Christensen gave a better insight into the mental workings that drove Gisin to a weird form of suicide. He was morose, she said. She pointed to one of his drawings which showed him to have some talent.

It was a picture of an emaciated woman leaning over a washtub with a scrawny and sad eyed child, barelegged and ragged, at her feet. Off to the side was a figure representing the ghost of the father who left this widow and orphan behind, and the ghost had a hand over its eyes as though to shield itself from the sight of the suffering and misery of its loved ones.

"I can't understand why he did it," Mrs. Christensen pondered. "He was such a good boy, always wanting to help me with the work; always thinking of others."

ENDS LIFE BY BURNING AT STAKE

VATICAN ENVOYS ASK MEXICO FOR NEW PEACE TALK

Morrow Meets Portes Gil; May Take Hand.

BY JOHN CORNYN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MEXICO CITY, June 15.—After deliberating for hours and considering all points of difference at the last conference between President Emilic Portes Gil and the representatives of Pope Pius XI., the prelates, Msgr. Leopoldo Ruiz y Flores, archbishop of Michoacan, and Bishop Pascual Diaz of Tobasco, this morning notified President Portes Gil that they were ready to resume the conferences.

United States Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow spent an hour with President Portes Gil today and reports in Mexico City are now being made for bringing about peace between the Mexican government and the Roman Catholic church. Mr. Morrow, however, refused to make any statement, but observers were persistent in their opinion that the negotiations have come to a crisis and that the American envoy, who is said to have been of considerable aid in starting the peace move, was at last taking an active part.

Status of Church Schools Vague.

One question causing the most discussion is the status of the church schools under the law and constitution. The prelates, by their very presence here, are willing to accept these provisions, but back of these are numerous legal regulations made through decrees issued by the president of Mexico and by local legislatures which leave the question of religion and instruction in rather an undefined situation.

Another stumbling block in the discussions is the status of priests in the various states of Mexico. Some states have practically barred the priests from state territory by state laws and religious legislation at the federal congress. In other states the number of priests is regulated by law. Some of these laws permit only one priest to 1,000 inhabitants, and other states even less. These local laws were passed when the religious controversy was at the height of its intensity.

Validity of Laws Doubtful.

Many of these state laws are unconstitutional, according to Mexican lawyers. The church contends that the church alone is capable to say what number of priests the church needs in each case.

Under what condition a Catholic priest will hold his church from the government is another question which must be settled by the conferences between the president and the papal delegates, and the responsibility is placed upon them for the preservation of church property, which by law has been nationalized.

SEARCH ILLINOIS MOUNDS FOR OLD INDIAN CULTURE

U. of C. Student Explorers Go All Over World.

Thirty young anthropologists from the University of Chicago were preparing yesterday to leave for all parts of the world where they will study the sites of ancient and primitive civilizations to learn the customs of past ages. One special expedition will dig in the Indian mounds of Illinois near Quincy.

Before the coming of the white man Illinois was the center of progress and culture among the Indians of mid-western America, according to Prof. Fay-Cooper Cole, head of the anthropology department of the university. At least four important Indian cultures flourished successively on the prairies, he declared.

Other students will accompany Prof. Edward Sapir to the Navajo reservation in New Mexico where they will participate with students from 14 other universities in linguistic and ethnological studies under the auspices of the laboratory of anthropology founded at Santa Fé by John D. Rockefeller Jr.

Other students are accompanying expeditions to Australia, Hawaii, Borneo, Canada, Sicily, Algeria, Palestine and Asia Minor.

Possibility that human life existed on the western hemisphere during the ice age, a period long antedating the time now accepted by anthropologists as the date when the Indians first crossed the Aleutian islands into America, will be investigated by Richard Snodgrass, a member of the University of Chicago department.

"Here comes CANNON BALL"

..in his air-cooled FRANKLIN-which has captured all America's major road records

Cannon Ball Baker, a hard, fast road driver, tests cars to the limit. When he takes the wheel and flashes down the road on a record run, that car is given the most gruelling test it is possible to give a car. Of all cars, Cannon Ball has chosen Franklin to break records.

Never before has one car held America's major road records. Never before has any other car demonstrated such spirited performance. And it is all made possible by the great superiority of the powerful air-cooled engine.

When Cannon Ball Baker drives his Franklin he maintains high speed all day—knowing well there is no danger of overheating or injury to the motor or loss of power. He feels arrow-fast acceleration as he darts around other cars at 50—even on hills. Roads smooth out as he swiftly and quietly glides along. After a long run he is not tired—full-elliptic springs and a flexible chassis have cradled his journey—no other car is as roomy and as comfortable as a Franklin 5-passenger sedan.

You, too, can enjoy this same thrilling motoring experience—the same comfort—the same safety and confident control. Drive a Franklin—you will instantly realize what Franklin's record-performance means to everyday driving—also you will experience the famous airplane feel of the Franklin.

ALL THESE AMAZING ROAD RECORDS NOW HELD BY FRANKLIN

Los Angeles to New York and return—6692 miles in 6½ days—beating previous record by 10 hours, 36 minutes.

CANADA DREAMS OF ANNEXATION OF WEST INDIES

Trade Pact Seen as Link in Closer Union.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTREAL, Que., June 14.—[Special.]—The Canadian business man who was piloting me about the docks of Montreal, second largest ocean port of the Americas, asked me to fix my attention on the stream of bunches of bananas pouring forth from the hold of a steamer.

"That's one of the Canadian government's crack new passenger and cargo ships bringing bananas direct from Jamaica," he explained. "Under our new trade arrangement with the British West Indies and with direct shipment, bananas are retailing in Canada at 18 cents, compared with 30 cents when purchased from the United States.

These Are Historical Bananas.

"Don't forget about these bananas. They are destined, in my opinion to go down in history. For the new trade arrangement with the West Indies is working out successfully for all parties and demonstrating the advantages of even closer relations. You need not be surprised to find the British West Indies, at no distant date, becoming a part of the Dominion of Canada. It's the logical step in the development of a greater Canada."

"Isn't it more logical that they should join the United States?" I asked.

"Not at all," snapped the Canadian. "There is no sentiment in the islands favoring annexation by the United States. They have no desire to leave the empire. But sentiment favoring a closer union with Canada is growing. There are reasons why they will not be annexed by the United States, but it is not necessary to mention more than one. Why should the islands join a prohibition country? In order to destroy their rum industry and their trade in liquors and put an end to the influx of American tourists who pick an oasis for their holiday? They know which side their bread is buttered on."

Officials Deny Any Design.

Afterwards I heard from other Canadians the same suggestion of an ultimate union of the dominion and the British West Indies, though officials of the government denied that they are entertaining any such designs in connection with the promotion of more profitable trade relations.

Ever since the war there has been agitation in the United States for the annexation of the British West Indies by cession. The movement is based on the consideration that these islands, extending from Bermuda on the north to the South American continent on the south, constitute a vast potential base of attack on the United States and the Panama canal, the jugular vein of American national defense. Jamaica alone, within aerial bombing distance of the canal, is the spearhead threatening national safety so long as it remains in alien hands.

Question of National Defense.

It is contended that considerations not only of physical defense of the United States, but if the spirit of the Monroe Doctrine demand the transfer not only of the British, but of the French and Dutch West Indies, from European to American sovereignty. President Wilson was criticized for failing to exact such a cession from Great Britain and France in the war settlement. His successors have been urged to bargain for the islands in return for a reduction of the debts owed the United States by Britain and France.

British statesmen have spurned the proposition with indignation, asserting that Britain does not sell her subjects. The British ambassador to Washington at the time gave vent to the objurgation that Britain does not purpose to sell any people into prohibition slavery. The South and Central American republics have generally frowned on the proposal from motives of antagonism to any further territorial expansion of the United States, their statesmen expressing the hope that, if any country annexes the British West Indies, it shall be Canada.

See Strategy in Conference.

There are many Canadians who believe that the Rt. Hon. W. L. MacKenzie King, prime minister of the dominion, was not wholly disregardful of the possibility of a political union eventually between Canada and the British West Indies when he called the conference from which their trade agreement evolved. That was at a time when the agitation in the United States for annexation of the islands was beginning to attract attention abroad.

In complimenting the conference upon its accomplishments, Mr. King said that he had come in order to "have the privilege of witnessing what I believe is going to prove to be an historic gathering." He added he had a thought he wanted to submit.

One Thought in Common.

"My thought," he went on, "was this: That, working as you are from day to day on questions of dollars and cents and pounds, shillings and pence, and other material substances, there is great danger of losing, perhaps, the larger vision which relates to the things we hold in common, as against those smaller considerations which tend to emphasize the difference between us.

"What we hold in common above all else is the fact that we are members of a great British community, and I believe that there is a possibility of throwing out from this conference into the mind of the world a conception of a British entity, a British-American entity, not hitherto as apparent as it should be."

Refers to "British America."

Mr. King then quoted the reference in the king's speech from the throne to the conference on trade development "throughout British America."

"There is a new word, a new expression, 'British America,'" the Canadian prime minister continued. "Our friends to the south of us talk about 'America.' In speaking of the United States they refer to it as 'America,' an all-embracing phrase; sometimes we hear the phrase 'North America,' which includes the States and ourselves.

"Then we hear mention of 'Pan-America,' which takes in North and South America. But the thought of there being a British America; that there are on this side of the Atlantic great colonies that are British; that there are in South America British possessions; that there is this dominion, all under the same flag; and that, as a matter of fact, we are one great entity, and are all embraced under the term 'British America,' this is a thought that I do not believe has been in the mind of the world as it should have been, and I think it is impossible to realize what may flow from an association of that kind being emphasized in a sympathetic and emphatic manner.

"That was the thought that was in my mind and which really prompted me to come here this afternoon, because I am sure that your visit has produced a closer community of interest and more intimate association between all that part of the eastern hemisphere which is known as 'British America.'

Finds Political Significance.

"I cannot but believe that, as far as the British colonies are concerned, which are in close proximity to us, that an increase in closer relationships in a commercial way will mean also very much in a political way, using the word 'political' in its larger significance. For that reason, I repeat I believe this gathering is in the nature of an historic and memorable one."

When the benefits accruing to Porto Rico from annexation by the United States were mentioned, the Hon. Guy S. Ewen, representing Jamaica, observed, addressing the Canadian delegates:

"Unless you are prepared to take up the question of absorbing the West Indies by political union you cannot possibly hope to bring about the conditions between Canada and the West Indies which prevail between the United States and Porto Rico; and we are not in a position to discuss today, at any rate, or at this conference, any condition which involves political union."

Cites Need to Resist U. S.

Herbert Marler, Canadian member of the parliament, voiced the need of the dominion and the islands joining hands to resist the influence of the United States. He said:

"We are influenced, here by the proximity of the United States of America. I am speaking of Canada at the moment, and I hope there is no harm in using these words. But we are, without a doubt, influenced in every direction by the United States, and, likewise, the colonies represented here are influenced in precisely the same way.

"So far as I am concerned, I wish to state that we do not want to have that influence continue. We want, in every respect, to remain a part of the empire. I feel quite confident that the delegates from the British West Indies and the other colonies have precisely the same sentiments in their hearts that I have in my heart.

"But how is it possible to do that? How is it possible when we have that great, rich, progressive nation at our door, unless we join together and meet together and try to bring about imperial trade and so solidify the empire in that particular?"

Results in Tariff Pact.

The outcome of the conference was an agreement between Canada and the islands reciprocally reducing tariffs on imports from each other. The colonies participating in the agreement were Bermuda, the Bahama islands, Barbados, British Guiana, British Honduras, Jamaica, the Leeward islands, Trinidad and Tobago, and the Windward islands.

One provision of the agreement was that Canada should establish a line of up to date passenger and cargo steamers between the dominion and the colonies. There are now eight ships in this service, all owned by the dominion government.

Since reciprocal lowering of tariffs, imports into Canada from the West Indian colonies have increased $5,500,000 a year and exports from Canada to the colonies are $6,000,000 greater.

REDUCTION IN TAX ON SEARS ESTATE IS RECOMMENDED

A material reduction in the $1,703,621.56 personal property tax assessment against the estate of Richard W. Sears, one of the founders of Sears, Roebuck & Co., was recommended yesterday in a report tentatively drawn by Master in Chancery William G. Strong to be presented to Judge Claire C. Edwards of the Lake county Circuit court.

The tax, which was termed the biggest of its kind ever assessed, during the hearing, was made in September, 1916, for back taxes for the years 1907 to 1912, on personal property valuations varying between $6,000,000 and $8,000,000. Mrs. Sears, the widow, fought the assessment, alleging it was vastly out of proportion to other personal property taxes. Her estate, including realty, has been valued at approximately $15,000,000.

The only tax similar in size was the recent inheritance tax paid by the estat of James A. Patten, on which the state collected $1,535,733.

Voted Beauty Queen of France

Mlle. Roberta Cusey (Miss France) voted the most beautiful woman of her country, now reveals her personal beauty methods—the secret of her marvelous complexion. Tells how glycerin helped her win the highest of beauty honors. Every woman should read her fascinating free beauty book, obtainable from any toilet soap dealer.

Let this adorably beautiful "Miss France" tell you in her frank, interesting and convincing way, why she has always used glycerin—how she found in Jap Rose Soap that positive, beauty-producing glycerin of perfect purity in the most convenient and beneficial form for facials, shampoo and bath.

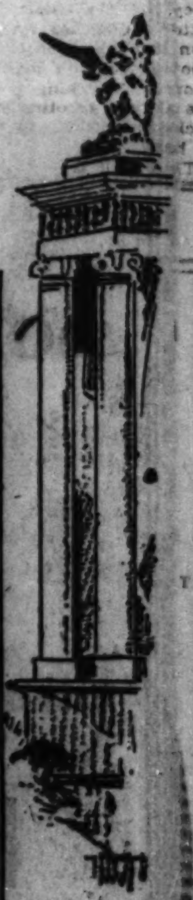
Already hundreds of thousands of women—famous American stage and movie stars, debutantes, society leaders, business women, shop girls, nurses and office workers—have asked for Mlle. Cusey's beauty book and are following her successful methods.

Mlle. Cusey's remarkable beauty attainments clearly prove the supreme value and superiority of glycerin over all other bases used in cosmetics. Its pore-cleansing, skin-softening qualities have been established under every conceivable test. With its 20 other ingredients and costly perfumes, Jap Rose supplies a perfect glycerin soap for every beauty and body need. Possessing unusual fragrance and antiseptic qualities it is also the finest health soap one can use for dispelling unpleasant body odors.

Mlle. Roberta Cusey, France's Most Beautiful Woman, Says:

"I use only pure glycerin soap—your incomparable Jap Rose. There is no glycerin soap in all France to compare with American Jap Rose. I know of no soap that has such light, penetrating lather—that lifts out dirt, grime, creme, powder and rouge so thoroughly, so harmlessly. It does not leave its own clogging substances in the depth of each pore as do most grease soaps and all cremes—deposits that cause coarseness, pimples, blackheads and a muddy pallor."

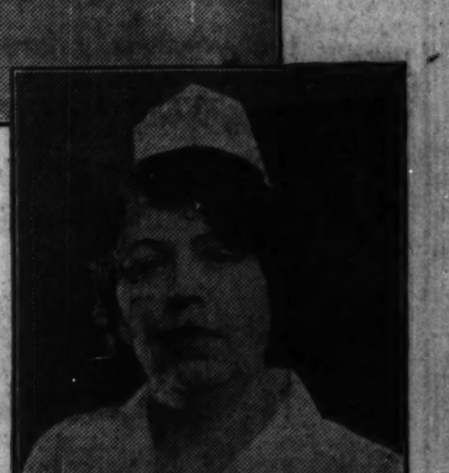
When told that some people object to the tingle of Jap Rose, Miss France explained this stimulation as proof positive that the pores have been purged—the tiny nerve endings stirred to healthful action—a tonic effect as beneficial as the tingle and glow of increased circulation produced by a brisk walk on a frosty morning.



Mary Adams
Leading Lady with "A Connecticut Yankee," Says—

"'France's Most Beautiful Woman and Her Beauty Secrets' is the most delightful exposition of beauty helps that has come to my attention. Mlle. Cusey's instructive little book offers the best advice I know to women seeking an effectual method of self-applied beauty culture."

(Signed) MARY ADAMS,
Leading Lady with "A Connecticut Yankee."



REGISTERED NURSE
"Keeping the hands and body clean and thoroughly antiseptic is a constant requirement in my work. Jap Rose fills this need perfectly because of its proven antiseptic qualities. Possessing a full base of purest glycerin so beneficial to the skin, it is also the ideal soap for every toilet purpose, including baths and shampoos. I find I need no other soap for myself or for my patients." (Signed) KATHLEEN STANLEY, R. N., Bellevue Hospital, New York City.

This Beauty Book is available free to every purchaser of Jap Rose Soap—obtainable through all grocery or department stores or wherever soap is sold.

ASKS $10,000 OF CLEANERS' GROUP FOR STRIKE LOSS

Becker Charges Association with Racketeering.

Morris Becker, head of the M. Becker Cleaning company, yesterday filed a $10,000 damage suit against the Chicago Master Cleaners and Dyers' association in the Circuit court. Becker charges that the organization's alleged racketeering activities caused him to lose his business and alleges he was coerced into making a $3,000 payment to Walter Crowley, president of the association, to settle a strike.

Becker has long been waging a price war with the association. His prices have been below the standard set by the Master Cleaners and Dyers. He refused to join the organization or raise his prices to their level, the bill states. The present action is the result of a strike called at his plant at 25th street and South Park avenue on May 10, 1927.

Sends Son to Negotiate.

The bill states that Becker arrived at his plant on the morning of that date to find his employés had walked out. He learned that the cause of the walkout was his dispute with the association, and on advice of J. Gorman, business agent of the Cleaners, Pressers and Dyers' union, sent his son, Theodore Becker to see Crowley.

Crowley is said is have told the son that he would have to pay $5,000 to have the strike called off. Crowley pointed out that Becker would have paid $20,000 in dues and assessments up to the date of the strike and advised him to join the association. The son refused to meet the offer. A day later, after consulting with his father, Theodore offered to pay $2,000 in a check and the balance in three monthly payments of $1,000 each.

Strike Called Off.

The bill states that Crowley refused the check and insisted on $3,000 in cash and the balance in two monthly payments. Becker made this initial payment through his son on May 13, 1927. Within one hour after payment, the bill avers, the strike was called off and the employés returned to work.

The bill alleges that Crowley had threatened to call a strike if Becker refused to raise his prices and that Crowley gave him a printed price list to follow. Becker said he would rather go out of business and did shut the establishment after making the settlement. He asks $10,000 for loss of the business.

In May of 1928 Becker announced that he had taken Alphonse Capone, gang chieftain, into partnership and announced that he would charge lower prices without fear of racketeer opposition. He announced that he had "the best protection in the world" in his defy to the organization.

This challenge was followed six months later with the bombing of a branch chop at 2231 East 71st street, on Nov. 21, 1928. Becker was injured in the blast which tore out a wall of the building near the homes of State's Attorney John A. Swanson and United States District Attorney George E. Q. Johnson. Police attributed the booming to price war.

SOVIET DREAM OF U.S. TOURIST GOLD GETS RUDE SHOCK

Only Poor Radicals Visit Bolshevik Heaven.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, June 15.—Opulent American tourists are avoiding Russian tours, according to the Leningrad Pravda, reporting that the first three delegations of American travelers arriving in Leningrad are chiefly "lower bourgeoisie and poor intelligentia," who have taken advantage of the $500 tour of Russia advertised in radical magazines in New York.

During the last week three groups totaling 180 persons stopped at special quarters arranged for Americans, accompanied by specially-trained guides, whose instructions are to show visitors the achievements of the soviet government and take them to special souvenir stores operated by the cheka.

Only Buy Cheap Souvenirs.

The Pravda expresses surprise that the visitors spend so little money, their purchases chiefly consisting of cheap carved wooden spoons, cigaret cases, plates, and handkerchiefs embellished with Lenin's picture. Expensive ikons, oil paintings, and antique furniture have not interested the tourists. The Pravda fears that the souvenir stores are likely to show an unfavorable balance sheet at the end of the season.

Reporters of other papers, interviewing hotel porters and bellhops, say that the Americans are complaining of the high prices charged at the hotels and stores. The papers remark that wealthy tourists are evidently afraid to visit Russia and must be attracted through first class hotel accommodations and railroad trains.

Cab Rides Expensive.

Both Leningrad and Moscow are suffering an acute shortage in automobiles, and a short ride in an ancient "Isvoschik," or cab, costs more than two dollars.

During the last winter the soviet press published many articles anticipating large numbers of Americans and forecast that expenditures on souvenirs would amount to considerable sums. The first tourist contingent proved a great disappointment as spenders. The papers hope for the arrival of wealthier tourists later.

What Price Home Ownership?

Must the Advantages of Owning a Home be Forever Discounted by the Disadvantages? . . . . Must the Price of Home Ownership be the Burden of Playing Janitor Eight Months Each Year? . . . EMPHATICALLY, NO!

What a substitute these extra thirty minutes of precious sleep in the morning would make, for the early rising in a cold house. But—there's no need for the "morning parade." Install a Morrissey.

What, in your experience, is the greatest single barrier to complete enjoyment of home ownership?

How can a home owner find pleasure in getting up on chilly mornings to encourage the fire—shoveling constantly to keep it satisfied—returning early from social engagements—carrying out ashes in near-zero weather—putting up with dirt, dust and soot throughout the winter?

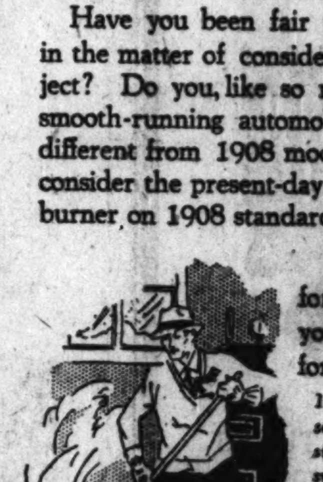
That unending round of ashes—coal—and then more ashes and coal. And the colder it is, the more there are—unless you install a Morrissey.

Is it necessary? Must the pleasure of owning a home be nullified by the distasteful job of playing janitor 8 months each year?

You will find the answer in hundreds of homes, many similar to your own. The owners of these homes have no heating worries. They enjoy to the utmost those last precious thirty minutes of sleep—carry out no ashes—have no dust, dirt or soot—never even visit the basement for heating purposes. They stay out as long as they wish with the full assurance that their rooms will be cozily warm when they return. Their basements have been changed from dust-laden bins to children's play rooms and daddies' workshops. From September to May, regardless of weather conditions, the rooms are at comfortable, even temperatures.

By the simple process of installing a Morrissey Oil Burner they have eliminated, completely and permanently, the most unpleasant job connected with home ownership.

Have you been fair with yourself in the matter of considering this subject? Do you, like so many, ride in smooth-running automobiles—totally different from 1908 models—and yet consider the present-day, perfected oil burner on 1908 standards?



Instead of dirt, soot and dust that simply MUST be swept up, would it not be nicer to have a clean, spacious floor for the kiddies to play on.

If so, please, for the sake of your own comfort and convenience, investigate the MORRISSEY. Learn through the experiences of users what a clean, efficient and trouble-free heating service it provides. So quiet you can't hear it in the next room; so simple it has but one moving part; so safe the Underwriters' Laboratories list it as standard; so economical, actual records prove it to be either equal to or only slightly higher than coal.

Freedom from heating cares! The chance to throw away your coal shovel forever! Permanent independence from dirt! Certainly these advantages are worth investigating. The coupon will bring full information on the MORRISSEY without cost or obligation.

FEATURES OF THE MORRISSEY

- Astonishingly simple in operation.
- Completely automatic and noiseless in operation.

CITY'S OFFICIALS ARE BLAMED FOR FINANCIAL WOES

Borrowing Power Abused, Fairweather Says.

George O. Fairweather, business manager of the University of Chicago and chairman of the joint commission on real estate valuations, quoted figures yesterday to support a charge that in the case of the city at least its executive officers are responsible for its financial embarrassment.

Mr. Fairweather was prompted to investigate the situation by the complaints of officeholders that the delay in collecting 1928 taxes, due to the reassessment, was responsible for the city's problem.

A survey showed that between Dec. 31, 1922, and Dec. 31, 1928, the city spent about $11,000,000 more than its revenue. Approximately $7,600,000 of this excess expenditure took place in 1927 and 1928. Mayor Thompson began his present term of office in April of 1927.

Uses City's Own Reports.

Mr. Fairweather took his information from the annual reports of the city controller over a period of years.

"Public attention in Cook county and throughout the state," his statement says, "should be focused upon stabilizing the tax revenue base through improved assessment administration and in the preparation and execution of a plan to place local governments on a basis where annual expenditures and revenues are equal. In my opinion, this will involve some plan of funding existing floating debts and the enactment of some sensible budgeting legislation which will prevent a recurrence of the present condition after its correction."

Mr. Fairweather reached this conclusion after pointing out that the city administration for many years has abused its borrowing powers, spending more than its income and permitting debts to pyramid.

Shows Expenditures Gain.

"This condition is indicated," says the report, "by the fact that on Dec. 31, 1922, the net obligations of the corporate found were $28,392,000, while on Dec. 31, 1928, the net obligations of the corporate fund were $48,825,000. The taxes collected in 1922 for the corporate fund were $28,349,000, while the taxes collected in 1928 were $37,793,000.

"This is the direct result of appropriating against estimates of future tax collections which year after year turn out to be less than estimated in advance."

The following table shows the amounts borrowed and the amounts actually collected from 1923 to 1928:

LOANS.		TAXES.
1923	....$35,000,000	1924	....$30,391,000
1924	 37,050,000	1925	 39,651,000
1925	 33,650,000	1926	 31,068,000
1926	 32,750,000	1927	 32,029,000
1927	 42,750,000	1928	 37,783,000
1928	 37,965,000	1929	[Not collected.]

Along with the drop in temporary loans last year, according to Mr. Fairweather, there was an accumulation of unpaid bills of $11,111,000 and a practical depletion of any cash balance.

Blames Unsound Practices.

"It appears to me," he writes, "that the present financial difficulties of the local political subdivisions are an accumulation of the results of unsound practices which go back to the war period when the financing of government with anticipated taxes was started to meet the problem growing out of the rapid changes in price levels.

"Instead of clearing up these conditions after the war, political subdivisions, and particularly cities and counties throughout Illinois, have been going from bad to worse in anticipating taxes for current expenses farther and farther in advance."

CHURCH REVIEWS 20 YR. PASTORATE OF DR. STIFLER

DR. J. M. STIFLER.

The achievements of the First Baptist church, Evanston, during the 20 years' pastorate of Dr. James Madison Stifler will be reviewed at the morning service today when the anniversary will be observed.

During that period the church has contributed more than $500,000 to benevolences. During the last seven years property improvements have amounted to 325,000, including the church house, new chancel and organ. In 1919 the church erected a dormitory on the campus of Shanghai Baptist college, Shanghai, China.

Dr. Stifler, a Phi Beta Kappa of the University of Pennsylvania, was awarded an honorary degree in 1913 from Denison university and from Brown university in 1925. He is noted as a student of the life of Benjamin Franklin on whom he has written several books and monographs. He is also the author of a number of religious books and is connected with the Sunday school publications of the Christian Century. Dr. Stifler has served as president of the Evanston Municipal association, president of the Central Association of Evanston Charities. For the last eighteen years Dr. Stifler has served as a member of the Baptist board of education.

Movie Couple to Rewed Here Today

Edwin Carewe, movie producer, and his former wife, Mary Akin Carewe, who will be remarried this afternoon in Highland Park, shown in movie pose.

EDWIN CAREWE AND MARY AKIN TO REWED TODAY

Ceremony Will Be at Highland Park.

Edwin and Mary Akin Carewe of Hollywood will be remarried at 4 o'clock this afternoon at the home of Mrs. Carewe's sister, Mrs. William A. Gibson, 303 Orchard lane, Highland Park.

"It's been less than 18 months since we separated but it has seemed like an age," said the gray haired motion picture director who on July 10, 1928, divorced his former protegé in Juarez, Mexico, charging incompatibility.

Former Oak Park Girl.

Mrs. Carewe, a former Oak Park girl, who became a Sennett bathing beauty and later a star under Carewe's direction, will arrive here for the ceremony this morning at 10 o'clock in company with her husband's brother, Finis Fox, a scenario writer, and the latter's wife. The Fox couple will be the only attendants at the ceremony, to be performed by the Rev. Frank Fitt, pastor of the Highland Park Presbyterian church.

Carewe, who was born Edwin Fox and legally changed his name when he first went on the stage twenty years ago, hastened to Waukegan to the home of Lew A. Hendee, clerk of Lake county last night, to obtain a second marriage license. A newspaper man had informed him the Cook county license he took out earlier in the day would be useless in Highland Park.

Tells Honeymoon Plans.

Carewe gave his age as 45 years and his wife's as 27 years. While awaiting the Lake county clerk's signature to the license, the director enthused over his wedding and honeymoon plans.

"You can tell the world we're going to have a real, enjoyable honeymoon," he announced. "We're leaving on Monday for New York—then, on Friday, we board the Majestic for London. After that, Paris, Madrid, Seville and Barcelona, where I'm going to combine business with pleasure by attempting to stimulate the talking pictures in Spain."

Right after the wedding there's a dinner for about 25 of the folks—relatives and family friends. My only regret is that my babies, Edson and Sally Ann, won't be there to see their dad and mother reunited. The children are at a summer camp at Airhead lake, Cal."

ATTORNEY SEIZED ON PHILADELPHIA FRAUD CHARGES

Attorney Frank R. Loney, who has been going under the name of Frank R. Lewis, was arrested yesterday by Lieut. Edward Birmingham of the state's attorney's office on a charge of defrauding his clients in Philadelphia.

Attorney Loney has been a fugitive from the Philadelphia police since August, 1927. He was located through information given to Chief Investigator Patrick Roche of the state's attorney's office. He was found with his wife and two children at 5733 Winthrop avenue.

The specific complaint against Loney is that of taking $6,500 from Bridget Byrne, who gave him the money to settle a real estate deal. Roche said it is his information that Loney took close to $100,000 from his clients, but the attorney said that $10,000 would cover it all. He said he took the money entrusted to him because he was up against it. He waived extradition.

Noted Pianos for Noteworthy Occasions

For Graduation, Anniversary, or Wedding, there is no gift more highly prized or appreciated than a beautiful Grand Piano. It is our good fortune to be exclusive representatives for two justly celebrated pianos—the artistic Conover, and the famous Bechstein. To Music Lovers who value mellowness, resonance, and singing quality, these two pianos, built with such high ideals of musical beauty, rank as acknowledged leaders.

The Artistic CONOVER

The Conover is a personality among pianos. Its tone is unique, with a lovely warm, vibrant quality, unmistakable and individual to the Conover alone. We are its makers and guarantors. It is more moderately priced than any other really great piano of today.

The Famous
BECHSTEIN

From Berlin comes the Bechstein—most famous of European Pianos. Just as it was acclaimed by Liszt, Wagner, Brahms and other great masters of yesterday, so the Bechstein Piano is acclaimed by great masters of today—Strauss, DePachman, Ravel.

Special for Monday!
Five Brand New Pianos returned from short-term rental, at reductions of $75 to $130.

BLAME VACCINE FOR DEATH OF 3 MORE IN LONDON

Smallpox Scare Brings New Medical Puzzle.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 15.—Yesterday's two inquests upon persons dying as the result of inflammation of the brain—encephalitis—after vaccination, were followed today by a third. The London press is demanding a reform in the technique of, and regulations regarding, vaccination.

Medical opinion here is that vaccination should be compulsory before the age of three. Encephalitis, it is said, never develops after vaccination at that age and revaccination also fails to bring it out. Vaccination is theoretically compulsory in England, but any one is exempted who takes the trouble to claim he does not believe in vaccination.

Recommend Lymph Dilution.

The coroner of one of the inquests remarked that seven cases of death following vaccination had come to his notice within the last few weeks. The other coroner asked a doctor who was present how many deaths following vaccination had occurred recently. The doctor replied that there have been 45 cases, of which 32 were fatal since July, 1928, when a medical report recommended a dilution of the lymph, making only one scar instead of four, as the result of the deaths occurring then.

Death following vaccination was very rare in the past, but when the recent smallpox scare occurred in England hundreds of persons were vaccinated and a number of deaths followed. A suggested explanation is that the virus of sleeping sickness dormant in the victim was brought out by vaccination, as is known to happen occasionally as the result of primary vaccination.

New Disease Suggested.

The number of cases, however, led to the suggestion in the medical profession that a new disease had appeared. This suggestion is less fantastic than it seems. Diseases, like animal and plant species, are apt to become extinct. Some plagues and maladies of ancient times have now vanished, while certain modern diseases appear to have been unknown until fairly modern times.

That the lymph is not faulty is shown by the fact that in every case the same lymph was used as in other vaccinations of which the patients did not acquire the disease. A servant girl, who died after being vaccinated a few days ago with twenty-seven other persons, was vaccinated with the same government lymph and none of the others felt any ill effects.

STRENGTHEN YOUR NERVES

The stronger your nerves are, the stronger you are in muscular power, vitality and brain power. Nervousness wrecks your Health and Happiness. It is the direct cause of Nervous Indigestion and endless other ailments and weaknesses.

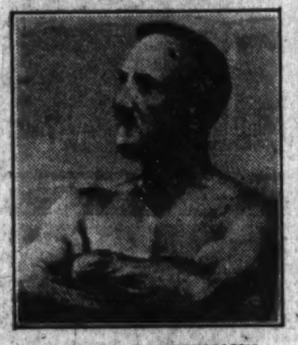
If you have weakened your nerves through worry, mental strains or perhaps neglected them through ignorance, you can strengthen them 100 per cent in a short time by applying the advice contained in my 64-page illustrated book on the CARE OF THE NERVES. The cost is only 25 cents (coin or stamps).

This book will open to you a new path to a higher and happier life and health. It teaches how to control and calm the nerves, and how to make yourself immune to nerve strain.

Thousands of Letters like these:

A physician writes as follows: "I am writing you as a Graduate M. D. to say that I have carefully read your excellent book on 'Nerves.' It has done me more good already than anything I have seen or tried and I think it easily worth a hundred times what I paid for it. It is impossible to read it without feeling the wonderful Truth it reveals."

A school teacher writes: "I had the opportunity of reading Paul Von Boeckmann's 64-page book 'Nerve Force.' I completed it in one reading. One feels at home and understands unfathomed ideas concerning nerves, mind, and body. As I was reading it a stranger approached and remarked, 'That book cured me from what doctors called stomach trouble. I had nothing of the kind, it was just nervousness. I am now a well man.'"



PAUL VON BOECKMANN
at the age of 57 years—the acme of Strength, Health and New Force.

Paul Von Boeckmann is a national authority on NERVE CULTURE, deep breathing, psychology and kindred subjects. Over a million copies of his various books have been sold, and they are on file in many libraries and at the National Medical Library.

"PIGS IS PIGS"

The idea of personal service had not reached him.

Recently a man entered a barber shop and requested a light-slow-shave.

The barber did not answer. He proceeded to use a fast and rather heavy stroke.

Then came the first response:

"I shave every one the same way."

The barber was handling a "keen kutter," so the customer meekly asked:

"Have you ever heard of the Stock Yards?"

"Yes."

"Do you know how they shave pigs?"

"No."

"They shave or scrape them by machinery. All are shaved alike. Machinery disregards personal service. However, the shaving is good for pigs."

"Nuf sed."

Apply this to any business. The person or firm that does not give personal service will not be a continuing success.

BOY MADE BOMB KILLS ONE; PAL IS NEAR DEATH

Blast Spurs Enforcement of Fireworks Ban.

One boy was killed and another critically injured in the explosion of a home made bomb on Friday as they were preparing to celebrate the Fourth of July in the old fashioned way. Report of the accident spurred the Chicago police yesterday to a more strict enforcement of the ordinance against the sale of fireworks.

The dead boy was Oliver S. Theobald, 15 year old son of P. F. Theobald, an official of the United States Gypsum company. Walter Regnery, about the same age, son of W. H. Regnery, president of the Western Shade Cloth company, was reported near death in the Hinsdale sanitarium.

Play with Potash and Sulphur.

The two boys, with two other playmates, were tinkering with a tin can filled with potash and sulphur in a garage at the rear of the Regnery home in Hinsdale.

A fuse was attached and lighted. The boys waited outside for the expected report. After a few minutes, when no explosion came, Oliver and Walter entered the garage to see what was the matter.

Can Explodes; Boy Dies.

As Walter picked up the can, it exploded, blowing off two fingers of his left hand and causing other serious injuries. The Theobald boy was struck in the abdomen, dying instantly. The rear wal lof the garage was torn away, but the two lads outside escaped injury.

The Theobald and Regnery boys were Hinsdale high school students. The other two are Alfred Smith, 14 years old, 147 North Lincoln avenue, Hinsdale; and Paul Theobald, 13 years old, a brother of Oliver.

Boy, 13, Accidentally Shot.

Having no firecrackers with which to join companions in an early celebration of the Fourth, Harry Strauss, 13 years old, 530 North Dearborn street, got out his father's revolver and was holding up his end of the merry making when he accidentily discharged the weapon while his left hand was over the muzzle. He was taken to the County hospital for treatment.

NOVICE AIRMAN DIES OF PLANE CRASH INJURIES

Harry Gartley, 26 year old mechanic of Waukegan and former private in the Marine corps, died last evening in the Victory Memorial hospital at Waukegan of a skull fracture and internal injuries, suffered on Friday when he crashed in a borrowed Curtiss plane at the northern limits of Waukegan.

A coroner's jury at Zion yesterday returned a verdict of accidental death in the airplane accident of May 13 near the Waukegan airport which cost the lives of Elmer Hobbs and Clarence Bradshaw, both of Zion. Carl Kern, who escaped with serious injuries, was a witness at the inquest but said he had no recollection of how the crash occurred.

WAR MINISTER OF GERMANY SCORES ARMY COSTS CUT

BERLIN, June 15.—(AP)—Heavy cuts made in the German army budget last April were severely attacked by Gen. Wilhelm Groener, minister of defense, in a speech before the reichstag today. These cuts totaled 7,500,000 marks [about $1,800,000].

Reviewing Germany's military policy, Gen. Groener asserted the states victorious in the world war had done nothing along disarmament lines. He also said it was absurd for the Allies to say they could not disarm until they were sure of not being attacked by Germany, adding that France, Poland, Belgium, and Czecho-Slovakia had a total of about 76 divisions, whereas Germany only had 10.

Identify Body of Boy Recovered from Lake

The body of a boy removed from the lake near 27th street Friday evening was identified yesterday as that of Tony Borona, 11 years old, 2614 Wentworth avenue. He is supposed to have fallen from the 27th street dock while fishing on May 31.

SPURNED SUITOR SURRENDERS AND ADMITS KILLING

Strangler of Girl, 17, Pleads Guilty.

Port Huron, Mich., June 15.—[Special.]—Alfred Loune, 22, surrendered at noon today and confessed strangling his sweetheart, Beatrice Fry, 17. At 6 p. m. he was on his way to Jackson prison to serve a life sentence.

Loune pleaded guilty to a first degree murder charge, but Judge E. F. Law ruled that there was no evidence of premeditation to warrant such a charge and ordered it changed to murder in the second degree. Sentence was pronounced at 3:55 p. m.

He told Sheriff Hugh Springer that he choked the girl to death because she broke her promise to marry him and told him she intended to marry another man.

Loune told the sheriff that he went to Detroit after the slaying and took a train to Chicago. Then he returned here and surrendered.

Tortured by Conscience.

"I have come to give up," Loune said to the sheriff, "I killed Beatrice."

He said his conscience had not permitted him to sleep since the killing.

"I left my boarding house Wednesday morning intending to get married that day," he said. "Beatrice was to become a mother and I was responsible.

"I went to her sister's home on Stone street. I forced my way into the house and found Beatrice and her sister in bed.

"I walked into the bedroom where they were and told Beatrice to get up, that we were going down town and get married that day. I gave her $10 to pay for a dress. Her sister went away.

Crazed by Jealousy.

"I had been almost crazy the way Beatrice was treating me. She had been running around with some one else. I insisted we were to be married that day. She said she didn't care for me any more and that she wasn't going to marry me at all but was going to marry Frank Peavey.

"That made me so crazy that I grabbed her by the throat and kept choking her until she was dead. I carried her into the bedroom and laid her on the bed. Then I twisted a lamp cord around her neck. I didn't want her to come to life."

CHILD AND TWO WOMEN DIE IN AUTO ACCIDENTS

Driver of Death Car Flees from Scene.

A hit and run motorist ran over 3 year old Louisa Vitale as she played in the street in front of her parents' home at 1016 South Winchester avenue last evening. The child was pronounced dead of a skull fracture at the County hospital. Police were unable to obtain a description of the driver.

This death and three others raised the Cook county motor toll for 1929 to 347. The other victims:

Delmar A. Grindy, 30 years old, 6954 Greenview avenue. Died from injuries received when he was struck at Sheridan road and Morse avenue by an automobile driven by Charles R. Pickering, 5555 Sheridan road. Pickering and two women companions, Anna Reddin and Margaret Gibson, both 18, of 4650 Clarendon avenue, were held.

Mrs. Sophie Burnett, 50 years old, 1424 South Halsted street. A motorbus ran her down last Wednesday at 14th and Halsted streets. Maxwell street police arrested the driver, Gene Egnee, 208 Willow street.

When her automobile overturned after colliding with another car driven by William Heiting, 115 North street, Waukegan, Mrs. Ellen Delange, 315 Fulton avenue in the same city, suffered a skull fracture. She was in critical condition last night in the Victory Memorial hospital, Waukegan.

Lloyd Lawson, 27 years old, 5343 Winthrop avenue, a private chauffeur for Harry Goldstine of the real estate company bearing his name, was charged with assault with a deadly weapon, driving while intoxicated, and disorderly conduct as the result of his having driven his automobile into the rear of another car driven by Mrs. Katherine Seek, 2829 Lunt avenue, at Lunt and Ridge avenues. The Seek car was driven to the sidewalk by the force of the compact. Mrs. Seek received slight bruises and suffered from the shock. The charges were laid against Lawson at the Rogers Park police station, where he is being held. Golstine is legal advisor to the board of local improvements

130 LIFE GUARDS IN TRAINING FOR BATHING SEASON

Chicago's beaches will probably be officially opened within two weeks, it was announced yesterday. Intensive drills in boatmanship, rescuing and resuscitation are being practiced at the Rogers Park beach, Touhy avenue and the lake, where 130 life guards are in training.

Walter Wright, head of the bureau of parks, playgrounds, and bathing beaches, said the public would be offered 100 per cent protection when the beaches were opened. The life guard school has promoted such a degree of efficiency that a final checkup last year showed that not a single life had been lost on a guarded beach, Mr. Wright said.

In order to become guards, the men must have passed physical, swimming and boatmanship tests and have acquired expert knowledge of resuscitation

Visits Director

Kermit Roosevelt, returning from a three months' hunting trip in the interior of Indo-China in the interests of the Field museum, changed trains in Chicago yesterday en route to New York from San Francisco, where he landed Wednesday. His few hours in Chicago was spent in the office of Stephen C. Simms, director of the museum, to whom he made a preliminary report of the expedition's accomplishments.

Included among his baggage was a specimen of the giant panda, which has aroused the interest of anthropologists all over the world. The animal, which resembles both a bear and a racoon, is as yet unclassified, but scientists on the staff of the museum hope to decide in which zoölogical division it belongs with the aid of the specimen Roosevelt brought to the museum yesterday.

Col. Theodore Roosevelt, Kermit's brother, remained in Indo-China to conclude the work of the expedition, and will return to America in six weeks, according to the younger Roosevelt.

SOUTH IS ANGRY AT MRS. HOOVER AND RECEPTION

Resents Making Guest of Mrs. De Priest.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 15.—[Special.]—Southern Democrats are in a furore over the presence of Mrs. Oscar De Priest, wife of Chicago's Negro house member, at a White House tea on Wednesday. Southern members of both houses are denouncing Mrs. Hoover's reception of Mrs. De Priest as an acknowledgement of social equality between the two races.

According to southern political observers, the invitation to Mrs. De Priest was the climax of a series of incidents which may tend to solidify the old "solid south" closer than ever before.

During the presidential campaign much was made in the south of the fact that President Hoover, as secretary of commerce, abolished the order which segregated colored employés from whites. Then a few weeks ago, during the house debate on the census-reapportionment bill, congress threw a scare into the south by adopting the Tinkham amendment to reduce southern states' representation in proportion to the extent Negroes are disfranchised.

Resent De Priest Statement.

White House explanations that the function which Mrs. De Priest attended was the last of a series of similar affairs given by Mrs. Hoover to the wives of congressmen and that more than 100 guests were invited have failed to mollify the southerners, who are at white heat as a result of the statement attributed to Representative De Priest.

"I am delighted beyond measure at the fine social contacts my wife was able to make at the White House," asserted Mr. De Priest, "and that there was no tendency whatever toward discrimination against her at the tea. She greatly enjoyed herself and is greatly delighted."

"I deplore the incident beyond measure," declared Senator Morris Sheppard [Dem., Tex.], author of the 18th amendment. "It is recognition of social equality between the white and black races and is fraught with infinite danger to our white civilization."

"I deplore the incident very much," said Senator J. T. Heflin [Dem., Ala.], who, as a Hoovercrat campaigner, warned the south that Gov. Smith would undoubtedly introduce social equality if elected. "It was a serious mistake. Roosevelt made the same mistake in a different way, but I understand that afterward he said if he had it to do over again he would not have invited Booker T. Washington."

Views of Pat Harrison.

"It is as deplorable as it is astounding," said Senator Pat Harrison [Dem., Miss.]. "If there is one thing the people of the south look on with grave concern and anxiety, it is any tendency toward social equality between the races."

"If I am any judge," said Senator Kenneth McKellar [Dem., Tenn.], "even the so-called Hoover Democrats in Tennessee will not approve the President's and Mrs. Hoover's latest step in favor of social equality of the races. There will be no southern states going for Hoover next time. The incident will be deplored by all right thinking members of both races."

One repercussion of the incident is expected on Tuesday when a "Hoover Democratic" convention, called by Bishop James Cannon Jr., meets in Roanoke, Va., to name independent candidates for state officers. Whether the bishop can hold the bolters from bolting back into the old party, now that the race issue has been raised, is problematical.

Premature Wreck Saves Crack Passenger Train

Buchanan, Mich., June 15.—[Special.]—The premature wrecking of a hand car containing five section hands today possibly averted the derailment of the crack Chicago to Detroit passenger train No. 2 on Michigan Central railroad. Frank Anderson, 17, is held for trial on a charge of placing a brakeshoe on the track ten minutes before the flyer was due here. Otto Reinke, section foreman, and four of his men were making a tour of inspection through the yards when their car was derailed.

STUDEBAKER'S NEW Dictator Eight
ONE HUNDRED AND FIFTEEN (115) INCH WHEELBASE

$1185 at the factory

HERE is an eight—a worthy companion car to the World Champion President and the famous Commander Eights. The New Dictator Eight places abundant power at your command — adequate to every emergency — an engine which makes play of mile-a-minute speed, yet which is thrifty of oil and gas.

Studebaker engineers have enhanced quality and performance, beauty and economy. In The New Dictator these qualities fittingly complement that finest expression of modern motoring — the straight eight engine. Since the introduction of its line of straight eights, Studebaker has won every official stock car speed and endurance record.

Here is modern, low-swung grace, made possible by The Dictator's costlier double-drop frame and a wheelbase increased to 115 inches. Here is the riding ease for which all Studebaker cars are renowned.

Here Is the Evidence of Fine-Car Quality!

A straight eight motor.
Hydraulic shock absorbers.
Fore-shackled front springs.
One-piece steel-core safety steering wheel which cannot fail you.
Non-shatterable safety windshield.
Fully adjustable steering wheel column and front seats.
Genuine mohair upholstery.
Amplified-action 4-wheel brakes that stop you in half the accepted distance.
Double-drop frame of new compound flange design—far costlier but steadier, safer, and permitting lowness and grace of body line.
Full-vision, full-ventilating bodies of steel over hardwood foundation—the accepted fine-car coachcraft.
All exterior brightwork in tarnish-proof chromium.

And here is the economy which you have demanded — an economy which begins with low first cost and is carried through with remarkable thrift of fuel and oil and with traditional Studebaker sturdiness.

The New Dictator Straight Eight today awaits you. Come in — take the wheel — put it through its paces.

FOR ten years the Greeks besieged Troy. Force of arms futile, they built a wooden horse, left it as a peace offering, retired. Happy, tired, unwitting Trojans pulled it in the gates. In the silence of the night, Greeks inside the horse climbed out, unbolted creaking locks. Troy capitulated.

They tackled the thing that couldn't be done ...and they did it!

THEY said it couldn't be done—that there would have to be hum where there was power, that radio squeals and whistles had to be. Majestic engineers tackled the job that for years had blocked radio progress—and did the thing that couldn't be done. Today—after years of tireless research and experiment—Lyon & Healy offers a radio startlingly new in principle, revolutionary in performance

The New 1930 HUMLESS Majestic Electric Radio has developed power detection to its highest form. This important contribution produces a powerful and selective radio set without the slightest trace of A-C hum—free from disconcerting squeals and annoying whistles. There are no background noises. There is nothing to hear but the magnificent reproduction of speech and music, rich and undistorted

If you have waited for the set of flawless pleasure—now is the time to buy. Hear the New 1930 HUMLESS Majestic Electric Radio at any of the eight Lyon & Healy stores tomorrow.

THE GREATEST GENERAL.

Sixty-five years ago Grant had assured the union of the American states in the indissoluble republic by the success of the greatest military operation the world had known. Its like had not entered into military comprehension before. Its success has never been repeated. There never before had been such a maneuver of armies. There has not been such a line in any war since. There had, of course, never been such a line before.

No other general ever had included so vast a region in operations released simultaneously by a single command, each army with its objective, each movement interlocked with the other, and with success destined for the whole.

A reader interested in the reprint of news of sixty-five years ago on this page will not find this indicated there, simply because it was not comprehended for what it was. The modest general never insisted on it. He has been Wellington at Waterloo overshadowed by Lee as Napoleon. Military study respects Lee. The great Virginian was a soldier's soldier. Grant was not. He put a uniform on with regret. He took it off with relief. He was in a private's blouse at Appomattox Court House.

He has been thought of as incidental to the exhaustion of a great cause supported by great soldiers. He seems mechanically to have used the superior and crushing resources when this exhaustion was inevitable. He appears later as pathetically unaware when political and financial knavery, almost absurd roguery, engulfed him as President. He is mistily perceivable as personally heroic, writing to leave his family a competence as cancer of the throat choked him, and writing the last word four days before it did. All these conditions of life and work, of failure and success and failure, with the personal characteristics of an unassuming man, have obscured the fact that Grant was and is the greatest general of all time.

Sixty-five years ago he was lieutenant general of the United States with headquarters in the field and commanding all the forces of the north. He had been somewhat recognized or he would not have had that command, but in a way it was a choice of despair. All other northern generals had failed in the Virginia field. His previous experience had been to take Forts Henry and Donelson in two weeks. He took Vicksburg in two months after he got his troops on dry land. In that time he put his army between Pemberton and Johnston, fought five pitched battles, marched two hundred miles, and had besieged and taken a nearly impregnable town.

He had moved on to rescue Rosecrans in Chattanooga and had opened the way south to the subsequent grand maneuver.

All of these movements had been of almost miraculous certainty. They were destined for success. Grant never was stopped short of an objective, whether it was the trivial one of keeping Leonidas Polk out of Paducah or the great one of moving a half dozen armies at one command, from salt water to salt water, by mountain, valley, and plain.

The order to go, given sixty-five years ago in May, released a line from the Virginia peninsula to Louisiana. The Army of the Potomac was the center. Butler and the Army of the James was part of the left. The navy was another part. Sigel in the Shenandoah was the beginning of the right. Sherman advancing on Georgia continued it. Banks with an army in the southwest was its further continuation.

It was a nut cracker. The Army of the Potomac crossed the Rapidan the midnight of May 3-4, with Meade in command. Lieut. Gen. Grant, headquarters in the field, was with it. It went across the Rapidan into the sacrificial field of three years of failure.

June 14 the Army of the Potomac had crossed the James. It was south of Lee. The Army of Northern Virginia was shut in on the Petersburg-Richmond line.

In less than six weeks, from May 4 to June 14, the Army of the Potomac had fought the equivalent of four Chancellorsvilles. It had fought four Fredericksburgs. It had fought four such battles as had wrecked Pope, Burnside and Hooker. Day by day it had thrown Lee back. It had taken every field which had destroyed federal hopes in Virginia since the first battle of Manassas in '61, and it had marched south. It had been rocked on its feet. It had been shocked, staggered, and almost disrupted by the stabs of the master tactician, Lee, but it had not ceased to go ahead.

It had fought the horror of the Wilderness, and had gone on to the terror of Spottsylvania. It had taken the fighting on to the North Anna, after which Grant advised Halleck in Washington that "Lee's army is really whipped." It then took the historic punishment of Cold Harbor, and two days later it had crossed the James. It was bled white, but its flags for the first time in the war kept on south.

The achievement was beyond precedent in the war, and it was purely Grant. He crossed the Rapidan with 116,000 men. He crossed the James with 115,000. He had 40,000 reinforcements. Forty thousand was the use and waste of war. The undisturbed mind was Grant's.

From May 4 to June 14 Grant had done in the center what no federal general could do, and what Lee had been unable to do in three years' fighting. He had a decision. The south was lost. The north did not know it, but the south did. Its hope then was only political. Would the north in the election reject Lincoln and denounce the war?

In the great concerted movement Sigel in the Shenandoah had failed. He was recalled. Hunter succeeded him and, not for personal incompetence, failed. Butler in the peninsula failed, and bottled himself up. The great general had to accept this. His immediate flanks had exposed him. They had collapsed. If he could have been three Grants, Lee would have surrendered in July, 1864, instead of April, 1865. The failures of Sigel and Butler produced the situation requiring the siege of Petersburg. But Lee was confined there and immobilized in spite of Early's raid on Washington through the Shenandoah valley. Banks also failed, but in June, 1864, Grant had offered the Union a victory it never has fully appreciated, so astonishing was the success of this master of campaigns.

His great scheme, certain in conception, could not fail, but the north, knowing then less than is known now of what had been done and was being done, had its deepest despair. Early's raid on Washington, which Sheridan ultimately stopped by utterly destroying Early, caused a renewal of the old consternation. Lincoln understood Grant, but expected his own political defeat, and wondered how he could save the Union between the election and the inauguration of his anti-war successor. The Democratic national convention met in Chicago and declared the war a failure at a time when the greatest of all generals, Ulysses S. Grant, was offering victory to an unseeing nation.

Curiously enough there was more political effect when the right, under Sherman, presented the north with a lesser exhibit of success in the capture of Atlanta in early September.

That may have saved Lincoln and the Union government in the elections. It was a part of the great maneuver, but the greatest was the unrecognized one, the defeat of the Army of Northern Virginia in a month's fighting.

There never was before and there never has been since so great a leader of armed men as Grant. With the German army he would have ended the latest of wars in 1915, by February.

THE GOLDEN VOICE IN CANADA.

The Hon. Michael Luchovitch, Progressive member of the Canadian parliament from Saskatchewan, was apprised that the Anglican bishop of that province had protested against the admission of any more "dirty, garlic smelling European continentals." Mr. Luchovitch from the floor of the house replied that the bishop was a moron and that he ought to be given six years in the penitentiary for utterances calculated to stir up strife in western Canada.

Both the reverend and the parliamentary gentlemen indicate that the art of calling a spade in public controversy is in its infancy in Washington. In comparison the best efforts of Mr. Heflin are pale and ineffectual. Possibly the course of true polemics has gone west and north since the days of John Randolph of Roanoke. Too many blossoms in the spring in Washington, the winters too mild, the summers too hot, nothing in the air but the sound of the dove; nothing to fight about except where the customers are to sit when they are invited out to eat, and nothing to worry about except whether they'll get anything to drink when they have their chairs.

Up in the northwest, across the boundary, the breath of freedom still blows in the winds which cross the wheat fields and the muskeg. When it gets to Ottawa it is still youthful, vibrant, and confident. If any star eyed champion of the people ever discharges the like of John Randolph's "Like a dead mackerel in the moonlight it shines and stinks," it will be in Ottawa and not in Washington.

Editorial of the Day

IS IT CHRISTIAN?

[The New York World.]

The forces of prohibition, which may be said to be also the forces of Protestantism, are striving to make out prohibition and Christianity as about one and the same thing. At all events, the political program of the Evangelical Protestant sects has as its capstone the eighteenth amendment. Protestantism is disinclined to make any tests of orthodoxy, and this tendency is a growing one. Hand in hand with this goes the desire to multiply, at least, the number of those Protestants who profess prohibition. Whilst the census may never reveal the reality, every one knows that if prohibition is made an article of faith there will be vastly fewer Christians in this country than the unbeliever alleges. In an official way Protestant bodies are concerned a great deal about the manufacture and sale of liquor. The political parties, keeping their eyes open for votes, engage themselves in somewhat similar exaggerations, particularly at impending elections. It should be stated straightforwardly that prohibition has absolutely nothing to do with the Christian dispensation. If there be any philosophy underlying it, it is entirely anti-Christian. The Puritan brought with him, among his other possessions, a strain of Manichæanism. This was a yardstick to determine what the Puritan liked and what he disliked. What he liked was essentially good; what he disliked was essentially bad. It happens, however, that he did not dislike liquor. As an individual and as a group he probably drank more strong liquor than any person or body that ever existed in the world. He was afraid of joy so he forbade mince pie and abolished Christmas. He has merely enlarged his circle of taboos with time. The Christian prefers temperance to fanaticism, moderation to excess, a glass of beer or wine if he needs it, and the joy of living, always. There is no evil in material things. The only evil is in the heart of man. That arch-Puritan, Oliver Cromwell, when asked by a committee of Protestant ministers to close up all the public drinking houses in the country, replied: "Why should nine men go thirsty because one man gets drunk?"

TOLERANCE OVERDONE

[Minister Austin Presbyterian Church, Chicago.]

The pendulum explains the story. We have swung to the extreme on one side, because we had gone too far on the other. Not long ago we heard little of tolerance and too much of intolerance; now it is almost all tolerance. In fact tolerance has become so magnified that to say some one is in error is a breach of good manners, or an indication of narrowness.

Of course, it is essential that there should be respect for other people's views. Men do not think alike in this world. They cannot. There must also be respect for other men's convictions. These are things to which men come, often by painful effort, and always with solemnity. Few men are willing to abandon them without a struggle. They may be false but they are precious. And the fact that we may know or think we know other men's convictions to be false does not alter the obligation to treat them with respect. Real tolerance means to have a belief and to be aware of another man's belief which disagrees with it.

All persons, in a society whose principles in religion have no tendency to hurt the public, have a right to toleration. We must never sacrifice convictions to expediency, but we may sacrifice almost everything else. Men are not persecuted out of their prejudices and errors and superstitions.

But tolerance of evil is another matter. And we have fallen into a grievous error in this regard, for there is nothing more false and immoral than the weak, sentimental tenderness with which crime and criminals are sometimes regarded. It is a spurious benignity that always recoils from severity, shrinks from the sight of pain, and would treat vice and crime as a thing to be wept over with effusive sensibility and not to be sternly condemned and punished. The hysteric cry for remission of a criminal's sentence, that occasionally bursts forth from foolish women and still more foolish men, has in it nothing of the spirit of true Christian charity. Pity for the oppressed and the wronged is thought to be Christian but condemnation of and protestation against the wrongdoer is thought to be un-Christian. Righteous indignation is dying out. There is far too much apathy in regard to things which are wrong. We talk about the reformers and think of them with gratitude. But as we read their lives there is one thing that is plain to the most casual reader—they were lovers of good, but they were equally haters of wrong. They did their work of reformation as much by their condemnation of what was wrong as by their advocacy of what was right. And there is no prospect of reformation in our city or state or nation by any other method. When the men and women in our Christian churches are moved to a righteous intolerance of the wrongs of our social life, these wrongs will wither in the heat of that indignation.

Love of the positive order, however—love which loves enough to give a positive rebuke—is comparatively rare. Love, which deprecates the raising of the voice or any expression of indignation, has settled itself in the hearts and minds of not a few as the proper method of Christian love. There must be no reproof or else the reprover is unbrotherly. A mild dissent is all that is permissible. The very idea of anger is looked upon as a relic of a barbaric age. All around there is a cry for a general arrest of judgment, a smoothness of bearing, a suppression of everything except compliment. If we take note of the tendencies which are working in the world around us, we cannot fail to notice that the idea is far too common that to condemn anything or any one vigorously and plainly is thought to be uncharitable. The ideal Christian is popularly supposed to be one who is a meek and gentle soul, who never says an ill word or a condemning word about any one or anything, it matters not how much it may be deserved; one who never raises his voice in protest against wrong, never feels the glow of righteous indignation in his heart, never stands up to oppression and tyranny and speaks the plain blunt truth about them. One reason for this is that fear is not a characteristic of the religion of our age. Increasing knowledge has, according to its usual law, brought increasing familiarity. And it may be questioned whether pious affections have not been weakened and effeminated by the absence of it. Not long ago we heard little of love and too much of fear; now it is almost all love and no fear. But God is more angry than we are. In God there is an immitigable abhorrence and hatred of evil to which, in our keenest moments of aggrieved sensibility, we only faintly approximate. The easy, good natured divinity which makes everything comfortable is not the God of the Bible. There He has a frowning as well as a smiling face, an aspect not of feeble benignity but of terror and wrath and relentless hostility to evil and evildoers. If mercy means foregoing just indignation and letting off from punishment, then there is no mercy in God. He is the most merciless, relentless, inexorable of all beings. If sin and misery were disconnected, if in all the universe one selfish soul could ever escape wretchedness and live on at peace, it would be a universe over which God had ceased to rule.

Then the common conception of the character of Christ as a meek and gentle spirit, with infinite patience and love, has also had its effect upon us. He came into the world with its strife and wrath, speaking of love, forbearance and forgiveness. Meekness, gentleness and peace seem to be the virtues which He most inculcates. But we misread the story of the gospels if we have not recognized that there was in Him this passion of righteous indignation. We miss the strength of the Savior of men when we miss the teaching of His anger. We make Christianity a feeble thing when we deprive it of this pure passion of wrath against evildoing. The Christianity of Christ is a Christianity of love. But when was love pure and strong in which there was no intensity of feeling against whatever would injure what was loved? Let a mother love her child, and will she not be filled with hate of all that injures it? Let men love the good, and will they not be moved to indignation against all that hinders it or oppresses it? A strong desire for that which is good carries with it a strong dislike for that which is evil. The love of what is pure involves the hate of what is impure. Therefore love and hate are one. The one implies the other. The trouble is we love so weakly that our indignation is practically negative also.

The dying out of this passion is the result of selfishness. It is not easy to stand up to the strong and show them the error of their ways. It is too hard a task. So we think and so we act. We care more for our peace and comfort than for the righteousness of God and the good of men.

FAVORITE HYMNS

65.

BY JOHN NEWTON.

How tedious and tasteless the hours
When Jesus no longer I see;
Sweet prospects, sweet birds and sweet flowers,
Have all lost their sweetness to me;
The midsummer sun shines but dim,
The fields strive in vain to look gay;
But when I am happy in Him,
December's as pleasant as May.

His name yields the richest perfume,
And sweeter than music His voice;
His presence disperses my gloom,
And makes all within me rejoice;
I should, were He always thus nigh,
Have nothing to wish or to fear;
No mortal so happy as I,
My summer would last all the year.

Content with beholding His face,
My all to His pleasure resigned,
No changes of season or place
Would make any change in my mind:
While blest with a sense of His love,
A palace a toy would appear;
And prisons would palaces prove,
If Jesus would dwell with me there.

"I'VE SEEN YOU SEASICK."

In all probability there is more than one kind of seasickness and, therefore, any one preventive will not work with all who try it.

Dr. Orill thinks that some of us may have invited the disorder by the precautions we have taken to escape it. Many people prepare for a sea voyage by fasting a few days before starting the trip. Others fill up on booze and banquet food. Neither group is wise. The better plan is to taboo liquor, eat in moderation, avoiding excess of food, but not abstemiousness carried to the point of hunger.

His theory is that acidosis is largely responsible for seasickness, though many of the symptoms are due to other causes. Hunger ranks high among the causes of acidosis. After seasickness develops, lack of appetite, nausea and vomiting increase acidosis. He prevents and cures seasickness by giving dextrose in 180 grain doses. He has tried this treatment on one thousand voyagers and he is satisfied with the results he has had. If the disorder has already developed before he has been called and his patients are vomiting so much that they cannot keep dextrose down he gives it by injection one way or another. He says: "One finds that if passengers can be persuaded to eat plenty of fruit and starchy and sweet foods, and to avoid fats, they are never violently seasick. The common error is to avoid food, which leads to an early exhaustion of the glycogen reserve. Acidosis is the inevitable sequel."

Dextrose is a form of sugar which is absorbed and used most readily by the body. Reduced to somewhat simpler terms the advice is to diet for a day or more before starting the journey. The diet should not contain much butter, fat meat, salads, greases, or oils of any kind. Nor should there be an abundance of breads, pastries, and cereals. It should consist of vegetables, fruits, milk, cheese; potatoes, beans, and other bread substitutes; and such desserts as ice creams. The diet may contain a moderate amount of lean meats and of breads.

When sailing time comes the passenger should go aboard ship with several boxes of candy, some hard and some soft, and a basket or two of fruit. From time to time he should eat of candy, but without satiation, and fruit should be taken as a routine. If, in spite of all this sugar and alkali, symptoms of acidosis develop, let him send for the doctor and his dextrose.

WHISKY AND SNAKEBITE.

L. G. writes: I wish you would tell me what to do in case of snakebite. My teacher and I have been arguing about it and he said if a man was bitten by a snake he could be cured by drinking whisky. I said this was not true. Am I right?

REPLY.

You are right and teacher is wrong. It is an agile teacher who manages to keep one lap ahead of alert reading pupils.

Whisky in cases of snakebite has been abandoned as worse than useless.

Treatment of snakebite: Slash the wound and suck and squeeze the poison out. Apply a tourniquet properly. Use external heat as a stimulant and warm drinks or aromatic spirits of ammonia internally. Use morphine if necessary to overcome pain and shock. Try to get and use antivenin.

THE KETOGENIC DIET.

J. M. writes: Would you be kind enough to describe the ketogenic diet?

REPLY.

The ketogenic diet is one that is rich in such fatty foods as fat meat, gravy and all kinds of oils and fats and foods rich in these ingredients. The amount of proteins, vitamins, minerals, water and roughage are held at a proper level. This being established, the effort is to reduce the starches and sugars and to increase the fats to the point where there is a fairly definite but not severe continuing acidosis. Have your physician and dietitian furnish detailed instruction in your case.

MOTHER AND PLEURISY.

C. A. K. writes: Could a woman who has pleurisy pass it on to her nursing baby?

REPLY.

No. However, if her pleurisy is tubercular she should seek counsel from her physician.

CHESTNUT STREET DUMP.

Chicago, June 3.—[Friend of the People.]—I read your columns in the paper daily. I wonder if you could not do something about the property adjoining the hotel in which I live? There are all sorts of tin cans and other pieces of junk that make Chestnut street look like a dump. Couldn't you try to help us get this cleaned up and prevent people from throwing refuse there? Is there any way of compelling the owners to put up a fence to cover this if the city does not keep it cleaned? J. O. B.

Report is made that our representative called on owner of the vacant property and assurance has been given that he lot will be filled to grade and put in good condition.
THOMAS H. BYRNE,
Superintendent of Streets.

TRAVELER'S FIREARMS.

Chicago, June 5.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Is a person permitted to carry a gun in his car while traveling? If so, where must weapon be kept? G. J.

The 1925 statute provides: "No person shall carry concealed on or about his person a pistol, revolver, or other firearms." In 322 Illinois at page 52 our Supreme court held "about his person" means sufficiently close to the person to be readily accessible for immediate use. A firearm is concealed about the person when it is pushed down behind the cushion of an automobile on which the accused is sitting. But not when it is lying on the floor.

BOTH SPOUSES SIGN.

Chicago, June 3.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Please settle an argument between mother and daughter by giving us some legal advice on this question. The mother owns some property in this city in her own name and she would like to sell it but says she would have to have her husband's signature on it. The daughter claims that inasmuch as the property is in the mother's name, his signature is not necessary. I. D.

Both spouses must sign in order to convey a clear title.

65 YEARS AGO TODAY

JUNE 16, 1864.

CINCINNATI.—C. L. Vallandigham has returned from his exile and is now among his friends in Butler county. He comes back in open and avowed defiance of the federal government and has begun to light the fires of active treason in the west. He addressed the Democratic district convention at Hamilton. He reiterated his right to criticize the acts of the administration and said: "If Abraham Lincoln seeks my life let him so declare, but he shall not again restrain me of my personal liberty except upon due process of law." He denounced order No. 38, under which he was arrested, and said he was against the constitution.

WASHINGTON.—Our army in Virginia moved from its lines on the south side of the Chickahominy on June 12. Gen. Warren took the advance and Gen. Wright crossed in the rear. Gen. Grant moved from Cold Harbor and reached Bermuda Landing. The 18th corps, Gen. W. F. Smith, marched to White House and embarked on transports for Bermuda Landing. Burnside's corps marched to Charles City on the James river. A dispatch from Gen. Grant dated Tuesday, June 13, says the army was to begin crossing the James that afternoon.

WASHINGTON.—A dispatch from Gen. Sherman near Kenesaw mountain, Ga., dated June 14 says that he is advancing his lines on Kenesaw. On the next day he reported, "There has been some advance today. Gen. Thomas gained some ground and one rebel brigade is nearly surrounded." He also reports that the rebel Gen. Polk was killed and his body sent to Marietta.

JUNE 16, 1899.

CHICAGO.—Electricity probably will supersede the cable as motive power on both the north and west Chicago street railroads. The men who are in the syndicate which has purchased the stock of Charles T. Yerkes and who have formed the Chicago Union Traction company, to operate the lines underground trolley for the lines in authorities for permission to use the under ground trolley for the lines in the downtown district and to substitute the overhead trolley for the cable on the lines north and west of the river.

LONDON.—It was learned that the troops in South Africa, while being constantly increased by small drafts from England and India, are not leaving the Cape as usual, so that at the present rate of increase the force will have been almost doubled in twelve months by next August.

LEBANON, Mo.—Richard Parks Bland, a member of congress for 22 years and one of the authors of the Bland-Allison silver coinage act, died at his home near here. Mr. Bland was a leading candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination before the Bryan stampede in the Chicago convention of 1896. He was 63 years old.

JUNE 16, 1919.

EL PASO.—United States troops entered Mexico and are engaged in a battle with the forces of Francisco Villa in and around Juarez. American artillery stationed on the north bank of the Rio Grande is shelling the race course to the southeast of Juarez, where the Villistas are reported to be concentrated. A large detachment of United States cavalry which crossed the border at San Lorenzo, Chihuahua, is engaged in an encircling movement to get behind the Villa forces. The decision of the Americans to take part in the fighting was the result of the killing of a man and a woman in El Paso by shots from the rebel forces which for several days have been attempting to capture Juarez from the Carranzistas. The order for the advance of the Americans was issued by Brig. Gen. J. B. Erwin.

LONDON.—Capt. John Alcock and Lieut. Arthur W. Brown in their Vickers-Vimy biplane landed at Clifden, Ireland, completing the first nonstop flight across the Atlantic. Their trip from St. John's, N. F., 1,960 land miles, or 1,682 sea miles, was made in 16 hours 12 minutes and wins the Daily Mail $50,000 prize. Much of the flight was made through a fog, with an occasional drizzle.

EXTEMPORIZING A NEW LOOP.

Maywood, Ill., June 5.—As a user of Chicago's transportation, I'd like to see in your columns a discussion of these questions:

Is the tunnel system of the Chicago Terminal and Warehouse company, which is soon to become the property of the city, at all suitable for a nucleus for an underground passenger transportation system in Chicago's main business district; said system to adequately replace all elevated and surface car systems within that district? Could the same tracks be used for passengers in the day time and freight at night?

Would it be practical for the Rapid Transit company instead of building extensions to and continuing to operate upon their own tracks, which are obsolete and incapable of carrying heavy trains at very high speed, to lease and operate a union suburban service over electrified trackage built on the rights of way now owned and occupied by various railroads in Chicago—the "loop" to be the North Water street tracks of the North Western, the Grant park tracks of the I. C., the Sixteenth street tracks of the I. C., and the C. N. S. tracks from Sixteenth to Canal streets to Madison street, and equipment to be patterned after the new equipment of the I. C. suburban service?
EARL A. HAYFORD.

PLAYGROUNDS FOR GAMBLERS.

Chicago, June 3.—All that "A Teacher" said on May 29 about hoodlums and gangs using playgrounds for playing ball is certainly true, but those few words don't by any means cover the situation. The gangs not only play ball but use these public grounds for gambling purposes and the police make no attempt to stop such practices.

On the west side in many places the playgrounds are very inadequate for the number of children in the school. The grounds are so small that the children have to use the streets and sidewalks.
ONE WHO KNOWS.

SUMMER SCENERY.

Chicago, June 6.—Each summer—and already this summer—the water filled quarry at 95th street and Stony Island avenue is frequented by swimmers who wear less than did friend Adam in the Garden of Eden. Why not remedy this condition and give people an opportunity to park at this quarry with their families. It is one of the few places on the south side where one may spend an hour or two before sundown. Too, this quarry is but 50 or 75 feet from the car line, and in full view of Stony Island avenue traffic. S. S.

REQUEST FOR REPRINTS.

Madison, Wis., June 6.—Will you kindly reprint the front page article in your issue of July 7, 1865, entitled "The Bitter End"? Also an editorial of the following day entitled "The Objects of Punishment"? There is a first page article "Hanged" that might well accompany these. In "News by Telegraph" the paragraph "Miss Surratt" will show that the editor did not write without knowledge.

What matter for regret that the wise counsel of THE TRIBUNE was not followed—namely: to have Jefferson Davis and Gen. Lee tried, as Mrs. Surratt was, by military commission and, of course, put to death!

What a wise counselor to the American people THE TRIBUNE has always been and continues still to be. How considerate and just its utterances, and how impartial its selection and handling of news. JOHN N. DAVIDSON.

FOREST PRESERVE GOLF.

Chicago, June 5.—I would like to call Mr. Cermak's attention to the unfairness of the hours of registration for Sunday golf games in the forest preserve district. You can register at the county building Monday or Tuesday beginning at 8 a. m. Only a select few can arrange to register in the early morning. It's impossible to get tickets after 9 or 9:30 a. m. Monday, excepting possibly for Palos Park.

How about the majority of us whose only chance to register is at lunch time? We can't all get reservations, but give us a sporting chance by starting reservations at noon. WILLIAM M. MARTIN.

CURE FOR RADIO TROUBLES.

Oak Park, Ill., June 6.—Sleep on, let no midnight radio disturb you. Put a plug of soft unvulcanized rubber in each ear. Your dentist will provide you with two nice cone shaped plugs. By using them you will rest better than you ever did before. F. F. EHLERS.

MUFFLERS FOR GAS ENGINES.

Chicago, June 6.—Unmuffled gasoline air compressors used by contractors in remodeling work on buildings in the loop are a source of great disturbance to loop workers. Automobiles, by legislation of city ordinance, are restricted from creating abnormal noises and have their exhausts muffled. These compressor engines, doubtless for economy's sake, are unmuffled. The worst feature is that they are intermittent in the volume of their exhausts and one is unable to accustom themselves to this annoyance, and it is very distressing upon the nerves of an office organization.

Can you help some tired office workers? F. M.

The costliest error in tire-buying!

This is worse than a careless statement; in total effect it is the costliest error in tire-buying.

The plain truth is—and it cannot be made too emphatic—all tires are NOT alike!

The leading manufacturers of motor cars know it—so they use more Goodyear Tires for original equipment than any other kind.

The cost-wary owners of the great truck fleets of industry know it—so in simple economy they use more Goodyear Tires than any other kind.

The purchasing experts of the urban, interurban and transcontinental bus lines know it—so for safe and profitable operation they use more Goodyear Tires than any other kind.

The rank and file of informed motor car owners throughout the world know it—so "more people ride on Goodyear Tires than on any other kind."

IF Goodyear Tires were not definitely and greatly superior, these impressive preferences would not obtain.

What makes them so superior? What are the special advantages they enjoy that explain their outstanding quality?

Goodyear Tires are the principal product of the largest rubber company in the world.

They are sold and serviced by the largest and most successful body of retail tire merchants in the world.

They are beneficiaries of the steadily advancing science of the largest tire engineering and development department in the world.

Their quality is kept uniform by the most closely controlled manufacturing processes and inspection exercised by any rubber company in the world.

They embody standards of material and workmanship equaled in no other like product in the world.

They are so unmistakably better in performance and value that their percentage of gain in sales last year was nearly three times the percentage of gain in sales recorded for the industry as a whole!

NO, emphatically no, all tires are NOT alike. Don't be talked into thinking they are. Remember the facts about Goodyear.

When you come to buy a tire, insist on the tire that consistently surpasses any and all rivals in the confidence and favor of the public, and has done so for fourteen triumphant years.

Get a Goodyear Tire and you get the best, and, since it costs you little if anything more than any other, you get the greatest tire value money can buy.

Tread and carcass: these are the two main parts of a tire. There is greater traction in the Goodyear All-Weather Tread. There is greater vitality in the Goodyear Supertwist carcass. Evidence? Any Goodyear Dealer will demonstrate. Proof? "More people ride on Goodyear Tires than on any other kind!"

SEEK 'MR. DAVIS' AS GO-BETWEEN IN LICENSE RING

Named as Negotiating with State Official.

Search was started yesterday by Chief Investigator Pat Roche of the state's attorney's office for a mysterious "Mr. Davis," who has been named in the latest confession as the go-between in the ring operating a fake license mill and a former state official. The name of Davis was brought into the case by L. Mitchell Blaine, 5042 Winthrop avenue, who was found to be in the possession of an investigator's star of the department of registration and education.

Blaine said that he did most of his business through Davis. According to Assistant State's Attorney Charles A. Bellows, Blaine said Davis frequently called or purported to call A. M. Shelton, former director of the state department of education and registration, on the telephone and consult him about the license question.

Mr. Shelton last night said he had never heard of Davis. He declared he himself had furnished the information which brought Blaine to the attention of the investigators.

Seek New Indictment.

Prosecutor Bellows said that new indictments would be sought against the ring next week. He said that if the proper connecting evidence is obtained in the meantime others believed to be involved, would be made defendants in the new true bills.

So far seven men have been indicted as a result of the investigation. Efforts are being made to obtain the release on bonds of Harry Goldstein, alias Browsky, 1704 Noble street, Springfield, Ill., known there as "The Senator." Goldstein, according to such evidence as has been uncovered so far is the leader of the ring, which issued either medical or dentistry licenses for $3,500 each.

Will Return Two Doctors.

Detectives were sent with extradition papers yesterday to bring to Chicago Dr. Marcus Kalmus, Marcy hotel, New York City, and Dr. Robert Lentine, 9020 O'Fallon street, St. Louis, Mo. Dr. Kalmus was intercepted in Pittsburgh while returning to his home after a conference in Chicago and Dr. Lentine was arrested in St. Louis. The latter indicated that he would not fight extradition, but Dr. Kalmus said that he would make a fight.

N. U. Medical School Alumni Give Dance

One hundred members of the graduating class of the Northwestern university medical school were guests of the alumni at a dinner dance in the Palmer house last night. Speakers at the banquet included Dr. Charles B. Younger, president of the alumni; Dr. Irving S. Cutter, dean of the medical school, and Richard H. Young, president of the 1929 class.

SAMUEL E. KNIGHT, CHICAGO BANKER AND LAWYER, DIES

Samuel E. Knight, vice president of the State Bank of Chicago, died yesterday morning at his residence in the Orrington hotel, Evanston. The cause of his death was heart disease which had troubled him for some time.

Mr. Knight was born in Deerfield, Lake county. He graduated from North Central college, Naperville, in 1886, and from Northwestern Law school in 1891. He practiced law in the city for ten years prior to entering the State bank. He was a member of the Royal Arcanium and has for years been a member of the supreme council of the Royal league and chairman of its investment committee.

He was a member of the First Congregational Church of Evanston, previously having been a member of the Wellington Avenue Congregational church where he was chairman of the board. He was also a member of the Union League club of Chicago, the Banker's club, the Chicago Bar association and Westmoreland Country club.

Mr. Knight was a director of the Chicago Theological seminary, and chairman of its finance committee. Surviving him are his wife, Mary E. Knight, a son, Howard W. Knight, and two grandchildren.

Rebel Chiefs Surrender to Italy in North Africa

BENGAZI, Cyrenaica, June 15.—(AP)—The principal rebel chieftains who have been under arms against the Italian troops in Cyrenaica, Italian North Africa, for many months, surrendered unconditionally on June 13 to Lieut. Gov. Siciliani at Barka.

CONSTABLE GIVES HIMSELF UP IN SPEED TRAP QUIZ

A traffic worrying constable and an assortment of arrest records, considered important by the state's attorney in his speed racket investigation, which eluded county investigators armed with subpoenas duces tecum during their search of Norwood Park on Friday, were partly recovered yesterday.

The constable turned up, but the records still are missing. The disappearance of Constable Anthony Dolatowski was reported to Assistant State's Attorney Charles J Mueller and Mr. Mueller reported the fact to the newspapers. A few hours later Mr. Mueller was called to the phone.

"This is Dolatowski," a voice said, "and I have not disappeared."

"All right, bring in your records," the prosecutor said.

When Dolatowski appeared at the Criminal court building he had one arrest slip dated May 24 and two subpeonas in other matters, which he handed over.

"Where are the rest?" asked Mr. Mueller.

"That's all I have," Dolatowski replied. "I never keep records."

Dolatowski was released after a reprimand and the state will have to investigate his activities through the records turned in by Justice of the Peace C. A. La Rock, before whom Dolatowski's cases habitually are heard.

CIVIC FEDERATION URGES DEFEAT OF "BABY" BUDGET

Defeat of the "baby" budget of more than $1,000,000 which will come up for passage at the next council meeting, June 26, was urged by the Civic Federation of Chicago yesterday in a letter sent to every member of the city council. The tendency of the council to pass supplemental budgets before July 1 has become "little short of scandalous," the letter states.

It recalls that the aldermen determined last December to make no supplemental appropriations increasing the 1929 general budget ordinance, that this resolution has been violated already and that other large appropriations are contemplated. A vote cast for those is a vote to add to the already heavy burdens of Chicago home owners and taxpayers, the letter states.

"A budget ordinance should be the fiscal program of the city for a year," the federation statement says. "Some elasticity in transfers from one fund to another is desirable, but additional appropriations increasing the total established destroy the value of a budget plan and the practice must be stopped if the city is to be upon a sound financial basis. Otherwise tax burdens will continue to increase beyond all reason."

HEIRESS IS FINED $200 FOR EASTER WHOOPEE PARTY

Miss Irene Simmons, 18 years old, to whom a $200,000 inheritance left by her father meant whoopee, was fined $200 by Municipal Judge John H. Lyle yesterday on a disorderly conduct charge growing out of a party in her apartment at 1501 North Kedzie avenue on Easter.

100,000 CHICAGOANS SIGN YOUNG PEOPLE'S PLEDGE TO OBEY LAWS

More than 100,000 Chicagoans have agreed to obey the laws of the nation by signing pledges to that effect in a survey conducted by the Young People's Civic council, 203 North Wabash avenue, Mrs. Mable P. Simpson, director of the organization, announced yesterday. Among the many prominent citizens who signed the pledges are Judge Mary M. Bartelme, Judge John P. McGoorty, Rabbi Louis L. Mann, Sheriff John E. Traeger, Judge Francis Allegretti, Judge Theodore Ehler, H. P. Chandler, and M. S. Szymczak, Superior court clerk.

The pledges will be exhibited before the Young People's Civic council massmeeting July 1, at which Frank J. Loesch, Judge McGoorty, Senator Charles S. Deneen, and others will speak. Members of the city council are expected to be present to receive the pledges.

The pledges read:

"Believing with the President that 'the duty of citizens to support the law is co-equal with the duty of their government to enforce it,' I solemnly covenant to obey the laws of my country so far as they are known to me, without reservation and without exception. In making this pledge, however, I am not surrendering my right to protest against such laws as I may disapprove or to seek their amendment or repeal by constitutional means."

Display Men Will Open Convention Here Monday

Many Have Tried It and Failed—

Why is it that "Hursen" funerals have successfully defied competition through these many years? Why is it that "Hursen's" is the largest and greatest funeral organization in America today? Why is it that its growth continues so persistently as time passes?

There are good reasons for the continued success of any business. Many have tried to fathom these reasons. They set about to imitate them—and failed!

They have seen "Hursen" massiveness without. They have seen "Hursen" elegance within. They have seen art exposed in exquisite taste. They have seen manner and method carried to the sublime. They have seen equipment unmatched in America for beauty and comfort. They have seen, from day to day, the great heart of Chicago, in homage, at "Hursen" funerals.

But there is something beyond these things that they have not seen, because it cannot be seen. It can only be felt. Only the heart can feel it. The thousands of mourning families who have attended "Hursen" funerals have felt this invisible thing. Go to them and learn what it is that makes "Hursen" funerals the sweetest final tribute possible!

Lower, Delivered, Completely Equipped Prices

A clear example is the Standard Six "400" 4-Door Sedan—a big, full 5-passenger car—the leader of the $900 field in quality, and performance, and value.

DRIVE it! Note the exceptional power, speed, and acceleration of its Nash-designed, high-compression, 7-bearing motor, with Bohnalite pistons, and torsional vibration damper.

Another unusual feature is its handling, turning, parking ease—the world's easiest car to drive—and equally comfortable in riding because of alloy steel springs scientifically engineered to the exact size and weight of each model and the Lovejoy hydraulic shock absorbers with a special Nash outboard mounting which gives the highest degree of efficiency.

Chief among the attractions of the Special Six and Advanced Six 4-Door Sedans is the great Twin-Ignition motor.

The advantage of Twin-Ignition over the same motor with single ignition is remarkable—resulting in 22% more power, 5 miles per hour higher speed, and adding 2 miles to each gallon of gasoline.

Nash-Bijur centralized chassis lubrication is another invaluable asset of these larger "400's"—simply depress a foot pedal once and all vital chassis points are thoroughly lubricated.

Nash also offers three 2-Door Sedans at respectively lower prices.

We urge you to compare closely all Nash offers you in unusual performance and in outstanding features—then compare delivered, fully equipped prices and see how Nash saves you money.

ESTABLISH TRUST FUND OF $1,948 FOR DE KING BOY

Aurora Raid Orphan Gets Income for Education.

One phase of the De King tragedy at Aurora reached a happy conclusion yesterday—the disposition of the fund provided by TRIBUNE readers for the education of 12 year old Gerald De King. A trust fund in the amount of $1,948.12 was created, and by the time Gerald is ready to enter college this should amount to nearly $3,000.

By agreement between the Tribune company, the Lake Shore Trust and Savings bank, Gerald De King and his father, Joseph De King, the principal is not to be touched until that time. While in college he will receive $600 a year, and any balance there may be will be paid to him upon his graduation.

Shoots Mother's Slayer.

It was at the suggestion of Vincent E. Healy, Chicago manager of W. A. Harriman & Co., investment brokers, who with a number of his friends contributed $200, that THE TRIBUNE agreed to accept contributions from its readers. Mr. Healy and his friends liked the pluck of the youngster, who when his father was felled by a blow over the head and his mother mortally wounded, picked up a revolver and shot Deputy Sheriff Roy Smith in the right thigh.

TRIBUNE readers responded to the suggestion, while State's Attorney George D. Carbary of Kane county was giving the protection of his office to Smith, the killer, whom the grand jury failed to indict. Throughout the several investigations little Gerald appeared, bright eyed, intelligent and winsome, telling over and over again the story of how he saw his father go down under a shotgun butt wielded by Smith, heard his mother scream, and start to her husband's assistance, only to fall with the charge of two shotgun shells in her body.

Gerald de King finished his classes Friday in the fifth grade of St. Joseph's school at Aurora. He had lost one year through sickness in his childhood.

"Where are you going to spend your vacation?" he was asked.

"Well, I was going to Yellowstone park," he said, with a side glance at his father.

"We were going to take him, my wife and I," Mr. De King said.

Wants to Be an Aviator.

"What do you expect to do when you finish school?" Gerald was asked.

"I want to be an aviator," he stated. "I was up last week with dad at Moline and I liked it fine, except when we ran into an airpocket."

"I want him to have the best education he can obtain," his father said. "I want him to be fit for any vocation he choose and I thank the readers of THE TRIBUNE from my heart for their help."

Mr. De King owns a patch of ground surrounding his home on the outskirts of Aurora. He operates a gasoline filling station adjoining his home and he adds to his income by raising chickens.

The terms of the trust estate are that if Gerald does not go to college the fund will be held intact until he is 25 years of age when it will be paid him in full, but the income would be paid him after his 21st birthday. In the event of his death it would revert to his heirs at law. The bank has waived its usual charge in trust matters and will charge only the actual expenses of administration against the estate. It has decided to overdraw the account immediately and purchase a $2,000 6 per cent mortgage as a start.

STORM FLOODS AROUSE SOUTH SIDE ALDERMEN

Lakes in Subways Block Traffic for Hours.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Lack of sewage facilities on the south side has aroused several aldermen who are attempting to decide on some means of relief. With every heavy rain hundreds of basements in recently constructed buildings are flooded and hundreds of complaints are filed with the aldermen because of the damage done.

Street car service has been tied up for hours because the subways under steam railroad tracks are flooded with so much water that the cars cannot plow through. The complaints from street car riders, who form the majority of voters in most wards, caused one alderman to ask the Chicago Surface lines for a list of the subways where traffic was tied up and the period of the suspension of street car service due to the big rain of June 11.

The information supplied shows that street car traffic was blocked at spots for period of from 24 minutes to more than 20 hours.

Seventy-ninth street contains the southernmost car line which operates the full width of the city, although the southern municipal limits are at 138th street.

Sidewalks also Impassable.

The street railway company explains that it operated cars up to both ends of the flooded subways, but that in one reported instance the water got so high that patrons could not use the sidewalk in the subway and climbed over the elevated steam tracks to get to the street car on the other side of the flood.

The 75th street car line was tied up worse than the 79th street line if the length of a single blockade be considered. The subway at South Chicago avenue was so flooded that traffic through it was impossible between 8 o'clock at night on June 11 to 4:35 o'clock the next afternoon. That is a tieup of 20 hours and 35 minutes.

The subway at Wallace street was flooded between 8 at night and 6 the next morning. The one at Racine avenue was impassable between 7:50 o'clock at night and 10:15 the next morning, and the one at Ashland avenue between 8:10 p. m. and 9:45 p. m.

A subway in Vincennes avenue, just north of 89th street, was out of commission between 8:50 p. m. and 9:45 a. m. That is 12 hours and 55 minutes.

The flooding of the subway at 63d and State streets tied up street car and cab traffic between 7:57 p. m. and 6 a. m. This is close to the Englewood railway station where the fast trains of the New York Central, Pennsylvania and Rock Island take on and let off passengers. The flooded subway interfered with long distance as well as street car traveling.

Street cars were blocked for 11 hours and 46 minutes by the flooded subway at 51st and Leavitt streets. The underpass at 59th and Leavitt was impassable for 11 hours and 51 minutes.

Other Blockades on South Side.

Two blockades were effective at 51st and Federal streets. One was from 4:03 to 4:25 p. m. and the second from 9:01 to 10:15 p. m. Fifty-ninth and La Salle streets was flooded beyond passage between 3:52 and 5:10 p. m. and then again between 8:02 and 10:20 p. m. Fifty-ninth street and Stewart avenue was completely submerged between 3:55 and 5:55 p. m. and again between 7:57 p. m. and 4:26 a. m. the next day.

Traffic at 63d and La Salle streets was blocked between 3:43 and 5:20 p. m. and between 8 p. m. and 5:21 a. m. the next morning.

Sixty-ninth and Leavitt streets kept everything out except water between 8:10 p. m. and 12:10 a. m. At 74th street and Parnell avenue there was a blockade between 8 at night and 6 in the morning. The subway at 74th street and Eggleston avenue was out of commission for approximately the same period.

Ninety-fifth and Cottage Grove was a sea between 8:20 p. m. and 4:08 a. m. and Keefe and Anthony avenues was a lake between 8:25 p. m. and 8:05 a. m.

But the flooded subways cause only a part of the damage from lack of drainage on the south side. Data is being collected by one alderman, at least, on other phases of the subject. He hopes to be able to show the injury done before urging a remedy.

67 Year Old Thief Seized by Woman Is Sent to Cell

George Lewis, 67 years old, 1008 West Monroe street, an ex-convict, who was captured in Ogden park last week by Mrs. Robert E. Whalen, a teacher in the Loring School for Girls, as he was stealing her suitcase, was sentenced to serve six months in the Bridewell and fined $50 by Judge William E. Helander yesterday. Police said Lewis had served five years for burglary in the penitentiary at Waupun, Wis.

DISMISS WIFE'S PETITION IN CASE OF S. R. M'CORMICK

Circuit Judge Michael Feinberg yesterday dismissed the petition of Mrs. Katherine McCormick asking that she be appointed sole conservator of her husband, Stanley R. McCormick, a brother of Harold F. McCormick and Cyrus McCormick. The decision sustained a ruling of Probate Judge Henry Horner holding that Illinois courts could not acquire jurisdiction because Mr. McCormick is living in California.

Judge Horner appointed the wife, Harold F. McCormick and the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company joint conservators of the $35,000,000 estate, but refused to set aside an order of a California court naming Mrs. McCormick, Harold F. McCormick, and a sister, Mrs. Emmons McCormick Blaine, joint conservators of the person of Stanley R. McCormick. Attorney Newton D. Baker, former secretary of war under President Wilson, representing Mrs. McCormick, announced that the case will be appealed.

ROBBERS FORCE VICTIM UNDER PORCH.

Two young robbers waylaid Fred W. [illegible]man, 141 South Austin boulevard, a [illegible] collector, as he was leaving the residence of Mrs. Sarah Lambria, 1254 West [illegible] street, yesterday afternoon and after taking $55 made him crawl under the front porch. Then they fled.

FOGARTY BURIED WITH BLESSING OF HIS CHURCH

Warden's Life Praised at South Bend Grave.

BY KATHLEEN McLAUGHLIN.

South Bend, Ind., June 15.—[Special.]—"Blessed are they that suffer persecution for justice sake, for theirs is the kingdom of Heaven." A world removed from the politics ridden post he had held as warden of the Cook county jail, Edward J. Fogarty was laid to rest this morning in quiet Cedar Grove cemetery here with the blessing of his church. There were tributes from hundreds of friends, and he was eulogized as "the miracle man among wardens," by a long time friend, Father John Cavanaugh, former president of Notre Dame university.

St. Joseph's Roman Catholic church, only a stone's throw from Fogarty's birthplace, was thronged with persons from every walk of life for the last rites usually denied a member of that faith who dies by his own hand. The granting of those rites was dwelt upon by Father Cavanaugh in his funeral oration as a vindication of the harried man who shot himself to death last Tuesday after receiving information that he was to be summarily dismissed from his position as jail warden.

Places Blame for Death.

Evil influences that balked his work and frustrated his efforts in corrective methods at penal institutions were referred to by Father Cavanaugh—although he avoided naming the organization—as the Ku Klux Klan and politicians, at whose door he laid the blame for the shattered life of Warden Fogarty.

"There is such a thing," asserted the priest, "as an almost fanatical consecration to an ideal. Edward Fogarty possessed such a devotion. Don't expect any sob artistry from me this morning about criminals. But the man in prison is just a broken and mutilated brother, and as such this man put so much of humanity and understanding into his treatment of and contracts with them, that when I paid a visit beside his coffin last night, and saw carried in a big floral piece inscribed 'Our warden,' I could hardly restrain my tears.

Charge Crime to Politics.

"Politics should be a beautiful word. It comes from a Greek word meaning 'The City.' But there are more crimes wrought in the name of party politics than even in the name of that organization that hides itself beneath the name of patriotism and flaunts the banner and the flag throughout the nation. Both these influences came into his world and worked against him, once in Michigan City, and again in Chicago, where his record was such that the citizens of that great metropolis mourn him as one of their own.

"If I were to take a text this morning I would quote from that sermon on the mount where Christ said, 'Blessed are they that suffer persecution for justice sake, for theirs is the kingdom of heaven.' This man has suffered persecution for justice sake. The pain and grief and strain and fretting of opposition had scarred his heart and broken his mind.

Praises Warden's Life.

"Every man that shares his faith knows that the thing called suicide is the greatest sin a man can commit because it leaves no time for repentance. But the understanding will remember only the great and noble man he was at heart, and the beauty and character of his life, his vast devotion to his religion and to his work."

Sixty-eight honorary and six active pallbearers accompanied the body to the grave in the family lot at Cedar Grove cemetery, numbering among them prominent men from three states.

Chicagoans present included Judge John P. McGoorty, credited with having been instrumental in obtaining the services of Warden Fogarty for the Cook county jail after the scandals there with regard to prison management; David Monepyenny, acting warden of the jail; former Sheriff Charles Graydon, Frank Loomis, Mrs. Minnie J. Berlin of the Jewish Charities, and members of the state welfare commission. Former Gov. Warren T. McCray of Indiana also was present.

Six priests participated in the funeral services, including Msgr. Michael Abraham of Michigan City, Father Cavanaugh, the Rev. Michael McUlcair and the Rev. Joseph Heiser, all of Notre Dame; Father Ryder of Gary, and the Rev. W. P. Lennartz, C. S. C., pastor of St. Joseph's church and celebrant of the requiem low mass. Father Lennartz also officiated at the grave as the casket was lowered with the final prayer of the Catholic church: "Eternal rest grant unto him, O Lord, and let perpetual light shine upon him."

Y. W. C. A. EXECUTIVES TO DISCUSS PROGRAM OF HEALTH EDUCATION

Executives responsible for the health education program of thousands of girls over the country will meet today for a week's conference at Forest Beach camp, New Buffalo, Mich., to consider new standards of general education as applied to the gymnasium, swimming pool, and the recreation center. The conference will be directed by Miss Edith Gates, national health education director of the Y. W. C. A.

Miss Annetta Dieckmann, industrial secretary; Miss Martha Jaeger, general education secretary; Miss Grace Richardson, business and professional women's executive, and Miss Elizabeth Lietzbach, publicity executive, will be Chicagoans who will conduct seminars during the week. Mental hygiene, model health examinations and tap dancing will be among the courses offered. Recreation and play as an educational experiment affecting character and life will form a major discussion.

SMART young couples, nowadays, refuse to take chances with so important a matter as safeguarding their homes from extreme weather.

Especially since they know they can make sure of proper protection with Celotex insulation. They know that Celotex secures them against the attacks of heat, cold and illness... leaves them happy in the knowledge of year 'round comfort.

A constantly increasing number of people are obtaining greater home enjoyment through the use of Celotex. Already, more than 250,000 families are living in Celotex homes.

It is made from long, tough fibres of southern cane. These fibres are felted into big, strong boards, 4 feet wide, 7 to 12 feet long and 7/16 of an inch thick.

YOUR LOCAL BUILDER

It is your assurance of greater home comfort.

(Also made double-thick—7/8 inch.)

When used on the outside of houses, as sheathing, Celotex adds structural strength . . . makes walls tighter and more permanent.

And on inside walls and ceilings, you can obtain finer, smoother plastered surfaces with Celotex Lath. This new lath, 18 inches by 48 inches and 7/16 of an inch thick (also made double-thick —7/8 inch), is especially designed to reinforce against plaster cracks and eliminate lath marks.

Celotex is used in old homes as well as new; for insulating roofs; for lining basements, attics and garages; for making comfortable extra rooms from waste spaces.

As insulation, Celotex is not an expensive extra item, because it replaces other materials, and in later years saves you hundreds of dollars in fuel bills.

ALBERT TO ASK SWANSON FOR ETTELSON QUIZ

Aroused by Attempt to Block Utilities Inquiry.

Evidence of irregularities in the pay rolls of Corporation Counsel Samuel A. Ettelson will be laid before the state's attorney tomorrow with a request that the old investigation which lapsed be given new impetus, Ald. Arthur F. Albert [43d] said yesterday. The alderman was preparing a letter to State's Attorney Swanson asking for a conference at which he will lay his case before the prosecutor.

At the same time Earl G. Gubbins, president of the Cook County Real Estate board, disclosed that he was one of the party that visited Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska in Washington and was responsible for the request for a senatorial investigation into Chicago public utility affairs. It was the administration's battle to prevent the adoption of Albert's resolution,, asking the mayor to appoint a committee to coöperate with the senate committee, that aroused Albert to demand an investigation of Ettelson's office.

Urges Coöperation in Quiz.

"Powerful influences may change the opinions of a number of aldermen within an hour," wrote Mr. Gubbins to Mayor Thompson and members of the council, state legislature, and Senator Norris' committee, "but no influence will be able to alter the attitude of Senator Norris and his investigating committee, with whom we shall closely coöperate, and it will do far more harm to attempt to hinder such an investigation than to aid and assist in the exposure of methods used in stealing the public utilities of our great city.

"Our organization has time and time again urged and pleaded for consideration of our contentions as expressed by resolutions. We have received no attention or even courteous reply to our attempts to impress the city council and the members of the state legislature with the importance of the resolutions concerning the passage of the seven transit bills together with other measures which have recently increased taxes enormously."

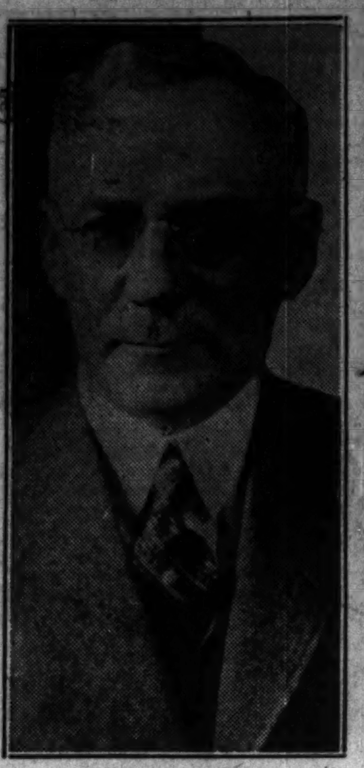
Wants Pay Rolls Scanned.

Irregularities were found in the Ettelson pay rolls soon after Swanson took office, according to Ald. Albert, who said he believes that a thorough study of the rolls again would disclose that relatives of the corporation counsel and workers for "America First" are being retained in positions with no work or at excessive per diem pay. Mr. Albert indicated also that some of the aldermen are given jobs in return for votes on administration measures.

A meeting of the council judiciary committee will be called before the next council meeting, June 26, to discuss the Albert resolution, Ald. Oscar Nelson [46th] announced.

"I have asked Ald. Albert to get information on which he would base his demand for an investigation and bring it to the committee meeting," said Ald. Nelson. "My position is that we shouldn't petition Congress for an investigation of a local situation until we have facts in our hands that would warrant it. I would be willing then to turn over our facts to the senate committee."

Three Named as Trustees of N. U.



ARTHUR CUTTEN.

FRED W. SARGENT.

MRS. ARTHUR M. LONG.

Two Vacancies Filled

Three new trustees of Northwestern university were elected at the annual meeting of the board yesterday. Fred W. Sargent of Evanston, president of the Chicago and North Western railroad, and Arthur W. Cutten, Chicago financier, were named to fill vacancies caused by the deaths of John J. Mitchell, Chicago banker, and Milton H. Wilson. Mrs. Arthur W. Long of Wilmette succeeded to the place left vacant by Mrs. Carl R. Latham, whose term expired this year.

Mr. Sargent, who became president of the railroad two years ago, is a graduate of the University of Iowa. The honorary degree of doctor of laws was recently conferred on him by Lawrence college. Mr. Cutten is a director of the Baldwin Locomotive works and other corporations.

Mrs. Long, before her marriage Miss Winifred Richardson, was for six years dean of women at Northwestern university, resigning shortly before her marriage a year ago.

Five hundred former students of Northwestern university gathered on the Evanston campus yesterday to commemorate "Alumni Day." There was a parade of decorated floats, first prize going to the class of 1909 which entered a span of horses drawing an antique buggy in which rode a couple dressed in the fashion of 1910. Mrs. Ella E. Hussey, 80 years old, of the class of 1870, came to the reunion from her home in Glen Ellyn and won distinction as the oldest alumna present.

FALL ON SIDEWALK FATAL.

August R. Eckert, 54 years old, 808 North 40th avenue, Melrose Park, died in the West Lake hospital last night of injuries suffered on June 13 when he fell on the sidewalk near his home.

400 OF CITY POOR TO SPEND 4TH AT CAMP ALGONQUIN

Mothers and Children to See Fireworks Display.

More than 400 mothers and children of the city's back yards will be Fourth of July guests at Camp Algonquin, the offices of the United Charities were informed yesterday.

For the first time in their lives many of the tenement dwellers will have front seats to a real display of fireworks. Frank Duffield of the Thearle-Duffield Fireworks company, 624 South Michigan avenue, announced that he would present to Camp Algonquin one of the best fireworks programs on hand. The company for several years has supplied the fireworks displays to Algonquin's Independence day guests.

The fireworks will be shot off over the Fox river after dark. The visitors will group themselves on the river's edge and hillside where the view of skyrockets, pinwheels, flags and all the individual colored sets will not be obstructed. During the morning and afternoon the mothers and children will parade; they will be told the meaning of Independence day; and will all be treated to a special Fourth of July dinner.

As the camp's opening date draws nearer, Mrs. Astrid Save, camp superintendent, and her staff are working overtime so that everything will be in readiness for the first guests, who will arrive—180 of them—next Tuesday evening. The buildings have been scrubbed on the inside until they shine, and on the outside have been dressed up with a coat of green paint.

Need Toothbrushes for Children.

Even the large Board of Trade refectory, where the visitors will step out of the trucks to a waiting supper, will hold a special welcome. Elsa Hirsch, director of the northwest district of the United Charities, spent her vacation painting a gayly colored Czecho-Slovakian peasant scene on one of the fireplace chimneys, a Polish peasant scene on the other, and a colored stencil border around the great room.

Two minor but essential gifts will be welcomed before the camp opens, Mrs. Save said yesterday. One is enough toothbrushes to care for all incoming children, and twenty old dressers to provide drawer space for the guests. The latter, she said, will be picked up by United Charity trucks, if the general office, 203 North Wabash avenue, is notified.

The Tribune's free ice fund will start melting within a few days as trucks begin visiting the families in the tenements whose tiny babies and children need fresh milk and vegetables to keep well. A check for $100 from Mrs. Arthur F. Towne has arrived to boost the fund and bring cheer to as many weary mothers. With a $3 check from Carol Neuhafer, Marian Schoenfeld and Alice Pearson, the ice fund now totals $448.

The Algonquin fund received $10 from Master John Hopkins Holmes and $2 from Mrs. Walter Krumdick, bringing the camp total to $3,078.68. All gifts should be made payable to the cashier of The Tribune.

Edward Eckhert, 24 years old, 9739 Escanaba avenue, sustained serious internal injuries when he fell about 100 feet from a scaffold on which he was painting at the Rosebaum grain elevators at 102d street and the Calumet river, to the roof of a box car standing on a railroad siding.

Auburn bids for your patronage not with words, claims or promises but with THE GOODS. Amazing cars at amazing prices! Values so outstanding as to preclude comparison. That is why Auburn is over-sold today. That is why Auburn sales are breaking records every month, month after month. That is why we have had to increase production 100 per cent this year. Such a nation-wide demand can not be ignored. It means with finality that Auburn enables your dollar to buy more than other cars do. We bet everything on the belief that the public is motor-educated; that you KNOW cars; that you can COMPARE values and judge for yourself. And Auburn has won the most decisive victory of public acceptance ever won by any car. And won it for one and only one reason, because people HAVE compared, HAVE driven and found that Auburn DOES give more than other automobiles; more power; more strength; more endurance; more comfort; better performance; easier handling; safer roadability and smoother riding. And gives all this for LESS. By passing back to the buyers the fruits of Auburn's sensational success, Auburn is enabled to grow as no other company is doing. Public approval and the success of the cars in owners hands is KEEPING Auburn oversold.

E. L. CORD says:
All of our resources are dedicated to the purpose that every Auburn owner be convinced he has made the best investment.

HUSBAND KILLS PRIEST AFTER CLUBBING WIFE

Police Say Jealousy Was Motive.

Winona, Minn., June 15.—(AP)—Jealousy was the motive given by police tonight for the slaying last night of Father Nicholas Brommen-Schenkel, 65, a Roman Catholic priest, by John Gira, also 65, at whose home the priest roomed. Gira was wounded in the thigh with his own pistol.

Father Brommen-Schenkel, on leave of absence from the Lacrosse diocese for the past ten years, was shot to death, police said, in an encounter with Gira, after the latter had clubbed his wife over the head with a baseball bat. Mrs. Gira, 48, said the priest was killed when he responded to her screams for aid.

Gira charged that his wife shot him, but Mrs. Gira maintained he was wounded when his pistol was accidentally discharged as she grappled with him for the weapon. Both Gira and his wife are held.

Husband Tells Story.

County Attorney Morris J. Owens said that Gira had admitted the shooting. Gira declared the priest, who was said to have been in ill health, had lived at the rooming house operated by his wife for five years.

"My wife had this man in her house for five years," Gira's statement said, "and not a half dozen persons knew he was there. She carried meals to him and said he was sick, but he was no more sick than you or me. Twice he beat me up when she told him what I said about him."

For six months, Gira's statement said, he accepted the situation, but last night he obtained an automatic pistol in St. Paul and a baseball bat, locked all the doors and windows in the house and then hid under a bed.

Peeks Through Keyhole.

"I finally came out and looked through the keyhole in his room," the statement said, "and I could see them. Then she came out and the trouble started."

"Last night," Mrs. Gira said, "my husband came home. The priest was not feeling well, so I went to his room to give him an alcohol rub. When I came out of the room an hour later [I was reading the paper for a while] my husband struck me over the head with a bat. I screamed for help and the priest came. There was a shot and the priest lay wounded on the floor."

Indian Totem Pole Erected at Lincoln Park Entrance

Lincoln park's recently imported totem pole, carved from cypress over a hundred years ago by Alaskan Indians, was erected yesterday at the Addison street entrance to the park. The pole, on which is inscribed in pictures outstanding events in the history of the tribe which carved it, will be dedicated next Thursday with an Indian pageant. The operation of raising the pole into place required twenty men and two derricks.

CHARGE EFFORT TO "COVER UP" IN BUILDING GARAGE

Suit Against Paschen Claims Plans Altered

An iron fence, torn down in the building of a garage at Clark street and Wrightwood avenue, was reconstructed, complete in detail to the cement balls on foundation posts, by the Callner Construction company so that it could be photographed in an effort to impeach witnesses. The photograph was produced in the hearing yesterday before Master in Chancery Roswell Mason on a petition for an injunction to restrain the building of the garage.

The injunction is sought by Mrs. Clementia C. Gearon, 525 Wrightwood avenue, who alleges Building Commissioner Christian P. Paschen entered into collusion with the company to erect a fire hazard adjacent to the North Chicago hospital. She further avers that the plan of construction was changed by secret manipulation in the city hall after she brought action against the garage as a public nuisance.

Changed Entrance, Charge.

Her husband, Desmond Gearon, testified at a previous hearing that the garage front on Clark street was to be occupied by stores. He said he had seen the concrete pillars and the base for store fronts. The Gearons held that the original plans called for one entrance on an alley east of Clark street, which would result in heavy auto traffic near their home. When the action was brought the new entrance was hurriedly begun, Gearon said.

L. R. Croy, superintendent of construction, produced the photograph claiming that Gearson had mistaken the fence supports for store front supports. He denied that the plans had ever been drawn without provision for a Clark street entrance. Under cross examination by Attorneys Edmund P. Kelly and Joseph Nicolai, representing Mrs. Gearon, Croy admitted that structural changes had been made without consulting the city building department.

Fence Torn Down and Rebuilt.

The attorneys attacked the rebuilding of the fence as an extravagant effort to conceal secret manipulations. They pointed out that the fence was torn down in December, dragged from a rubbish heap to be reconstructed in a heavy downpour of rain last Tuesday, only to be destroyed again after being photographed.

Svithiod Lodges Compete for Trophy at Outing Today

City Treasurer Charles S. Peterson yesterday presented a trophy to the Svithiod Day outing committee which will be contested for today at the annual outing of the Chicago and Cook county Svithiod lodges. The trophy will go to the one declared the all around champion in the sports which will be the main event of the outing. The outing, which will be held at Glenwood park, Batavia, Ill., is expected to attract 25,000 members of the lodges. Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick will be one of the principal speakers.

RABBI TO ADDRESS Y. M. C. A.

Dr. G. George Fox, rabbi of the South Shore temple, will be one of the speakers at the Y. M. C. A. conference of college men which is in session at Lake Geneva until June 20. Dr. Fox will discuss the relation between college men of Jewish faith and those of the Christian faith.

MEXICAN DIVORCE MILLS KEPT BUSY CUTTING U.S. TIES

Sonora Lawyers Have American Agents.

BY JOHN CORNYN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MEXICO CITY, June 15.—Mexico has become the mecca of Americans seeking easy divorces. This is due to the facility with which divorces can be had here. In the neigboring state of Morelos, in its capital, Cuernavaca, where Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and Anne S. Morrow passed their courtship days, the divorce mill grinds steadily and surely and the semi-tropical week-end resort of the inhabitants of the Mexican capital is never without its aspirants for the recovery of single blessedness.

It is just 407 years ago since the first recorded divorce of foreigners took place in Cuernavaca. One of Cortez's, the conqueror of the Aztec empire, generals turned his wife over to a local Indian ruler, who undertook to make the divorce effective in the Indian way. Nothing more was heard of the "divorced woman" and her husband promptly took to wife a niece of the deposed Aztec sovereign, Montezuma II.

Fat Pickings for Lawyers.

There are an American and two Mexican lawyers here who have, for several years, been making a living out of the divorces obtained in Cuernavaca for foreigners, most of whom are Americans. The American lawyer boasted some time ago that he had obtained divorces in Cuernavaca for Americans from 75 per cent of the American states.

But Cuernavaca is not the only city where divorces are easily obtained. In the state of Sonora one has no need to be troubled with irksome marital bonds, since all one has to do is to make up one's mind to cut them. In fact, so popular as a mart for the disposal of family woes has Sonora become, that it has lately surpassed Cuernavaca and now stands at the head of the Mexican states that furnish divorces while you wait.

Translate Spanish Law.

In several cities of Sonora the securing of divorces has become a legitimate part of the lawyer's routine business; and at least a dozen Sonoroa lawyers keep up a correspondence with representatives in numerous large cities of the United States, who handle divorces. American divorce patronage is growing so rapidly that American and Mexican divorce agents alike have had to translate the divorce law of the state of Sonora into English for the benefit of American clients who do not understand Spanish. This translation is supposed to be ready in a few weeks, and will be sent all over the United States "wherever it would be likely to do most good."

Mexico is traditionally the land of the carefree, and the state of Sonora has apparently set out in earnest to sweep into the brotherhood the matrimonially discontented of the lands north of the Rio Grande.

MRS. J. O. ARMOUR PLANS HOME NEAR MELLODY FARM

Mrs. J. Ogden Armour is having plans drawn by Architect David Adler for a residence which she proposes to erect on the west side of Bradley road, directly opposite Mellody Farm, the old Armour estate which a wealthy syndicate is converting into a millionaire's club. Mrs. Armour already owned twenty acres on Bradley road and she recently acquired another twenty acres through John Griffith & Son from Charles F. Glore, Edward J. Bermingham, and Robert Hixon. Her forty acre homesite is a half mile north of Deerpath road, the south boundary of Mellody farm, Bradley road being the west boundary.

QUINN ATTORNEYS TRY TO BAR VOTE THEFT EVIDENCE

The attorneys representing "Prince" Arthur Quinn, Democratic political leader of the 42d ward, and four other officials of the 22d precinct of the ward, tried yesterday to stop the state from showing that the defendants stole votes from Thompson and gave them to Dever in the 1927 mayoralty compaign.

Attorneys Thomas D. Nash and Joseph A. Kolb moved to stop the citizens of the precinct from testifying for whom they cast their ballots. They proceeded on the theory that, balloting being a secret, a voter could not disclose the names of candidates for whom he voted. Judge Harry B. Miller agreed with them regarding the secrecy of the ballot, but said that criminals could not hide behind that provision of the law. He overruled the motion and allowed a dozen or more witnesses to testify that they cast votes for Thompson which were not counted.

Every Driving Convenience
Every Provision for Comfort
Oldsmobile is RESTFUL TO DRIVE

Not only does this finer Oldsmobile give you brilliant all-round performance—not only does it combine exceptional speed, power, and acceleration with stamina, long life, and economy of operation—but it is wonderfully restful to drive, no matter how long you remain at the wheel.

Come prove it yourself. Take an Oldsmobile for a trial drive. Make your own critical tests and comparisons.

Relax in the comfortable, deep-cushioned driver's seat. It is instantly adjustable to the most natural position for your height. The steering wheel, too, may be adjusted to suit your individual preference. Gear-shift, starter, clutch, and brake are easy to reach and easy to operate. Instruments are conveniently arranged on the dash.

Drive through traffic. Note how Oldsmobile's flashing getaway and quick response to the controls simplify city driving—how fingertip steering and a short turning radius make parking easy.

Try it on the highway. Observe how Oldsmobile's smoothness, quietness, and splendid roadability permit relaxation at any speed. Test its swift, sure acceleration, its remarkable handling ease, its powerful four-wheel brakes. Drive over rough roads and see how four Lovejoy hydraulic shock absorbers cushion your ride.

Then, when you know what Oldsmobile can do, and how it does it, compare it with other cars. You'll find that Oldsmobile gives you every driving luxury—every desirable convenience—every provision for comfort. That's why it is so restful to drive. That's why it is unsurpassed in value at its low price.

COAST TO COAST AIR-RAIL PLANES PAUSE IN CITY

Mrs. Willebrandt Along with Atlantic Fleet.

BY ROBERT WOOD.

Three Fokker air liners roared out of the eastern sky, swung low across the municipal airport, and floated down to the runways yesterday morning bearing the first passengers over the new transcontinental air-rail service between New York and Los Angeles. The passengers left New York Friday night by train, transferred to planes at Cleveland, and flew on to Chicago.

The business of arriving and departing here was conducted as orderly as a station stop on a railroad line. The planes taxied in formation and lined up in front of the hangars. Uniformed attendants helped the passengers from the planes. While mechanics set about tinkering with the motors the passengers retired to the hangar restaurant for breakfast. Forty-five minutes later the departure of the planes was announced, the passengers climbed aboard, the planes swept down the runways, and flew off toward Kansas City, four hundred miles away.

Mrs. Willebrandt on Trip.

Mrs. Mabel Willebrandt, retiring assistant attorney general, was a passenger in the first plane to arrive. She carried a quart bottle of Atlantic ocean water, which she will pour into the Pacific ocean on the arrival of the plane in Los Angeles.

Mrs. Willebrandt had nothing to say about prohibition, aside from assuring reporters that the bottle she carried contained nothing but salt water. She had much to say, however, about aviation. In her new connection with Aviation corporation as Washington counsel she is receiving an annual salary of $35,000; it was learned.

The passengers were bound for Garden City, Kas., 700 miles from Chicago, where they will be transferred to a Santa Fe train for Los Angeles, arriving tomorrow morning. Fifty hour service across the continent is provided by the air-rail line. The passenegers are carried 1,000 miles by air.

List of Passengers.

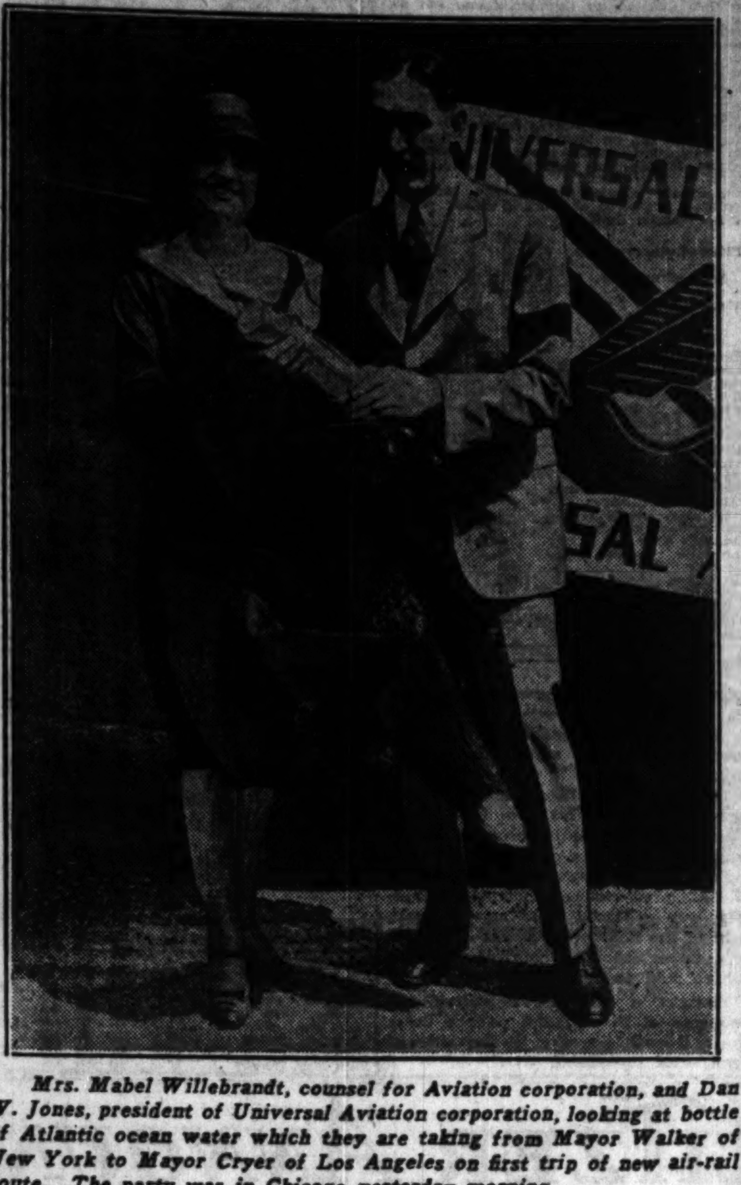
Among the eighteen passengers yesterday were Dan W. Jones, president of Universal Aviation corporation which is operating the new air line; C. W. T. Currie of the New York Central lines, George R. Hahn- vice president of Aviation corporation; John E. Sommers of the department of commerce; Col. Halsey Dunwoody, vice president of the Universal lines, and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Eckman of Los Angeles.

Elmer Kane and Jack Atkinson were the pilots of the leading ship in the fleet of planes.

Friend's Home Brew Gift Blows Up in Her Face

A friend left a case of home brew Friday at the home of Miss Laverne Wheelock of Wauconda, a Lake county hamlet west of Waukegan. In the night Miss Wheelock was awakened several times by the popping of bottles in the basement. Yesterday she took a bottle of the stuff upstairs and was holding it to the light when it burst. Ten surgical stitches were necessary to close the cuts in her face and hands.

New Air-Rail Service Started



Mrs. Mabel Willebrandt, counsel for Aviation corporation, and Dan W. Jones, president of Universal Aviation corporation, looking at bottle of Atlantic ocean water which they are taking from Mayor Walker of New York to Mayor Cryer of Los Angeles on first trip of new air-rail route. The party was in Chicago yesterday morning.

SPECIAL GRAND JURY MAY PROBE DOG RACE TRACKS

Possibility of a special grand jury investigation into the operation of the three dog tracks in Cook county was seen yesterday in a conference between First Assistant State's Attorney John E. Northup and Chief Investigator Pat Roche. The tracks are now operating under new temporary injunctions issued by Judge Harry Fisher of the Circuit court.

"A special grand jury should be called to investigate the dog tracks," said Investigator Roche. "I have gathered much information about the dog tracks and I think a grand jury should look into the connections of certain politicians with the gangsters, who are reputed to own the tracks."

The Hawthorne track is reported to be backed by the interests of Al Capone, the Fairview track by the George [Bugs] Moran interests, and the Thornton track by the Chicago Heights group.

An effort was made yesterday by attorneys representing the dog track operators to secure the return of two machine guns seized by Investigator Roche in his raids last Tuesday night. The guns were found at the Hawthorne track. Roche said he would not return the guns.

YOUTH ADMITS HE SLEW POLICEMAN IN DRUNKEN RAGE

After twelve hours of questioning, Patrick Joyce, 23 years old, confessed yesterday that he had shot and killed Policeman Earl Leonard last Sunday night. Joyce said he was drunk and became infuriated when Leonard insisted upon arresting the driver of the car in which Joyce was riding, because the car had driven through a stop light.

"I don't know why I did it," the young hoodlum told Capt. Charles McGurn. "I've known Leonard much longer, and knew him better than I did Bartelli, the guy he was arresting. But it got me sore when he pinched Bartelli. I grabbed my gun, ran after them and let the copper have it."

Joyce was ordered booked for murder. He was arrested Friday after a five days' search by police for the slayer of their comrade. He was found in a rooming house at 402 South Western avenue.

Passenger Is Burned to Death in Airplane Crash

Memphis, Tenn., June 15.—(AP)—Hubert South, Memphis, was burned to death and Franklin Stephenson was burned seriously in an airplane crash here today. Stephenson was flying a rented plane. It went into a dose dive when taking off.

PRIZE FLOWERS OF NORTH SHORE PUT ON DISPLAY

Lake Forest Garden Club Opens Annual Show.

BY NANCY R——.

All those anxious and ardent north shore gardeners who have been praying to their pet plants to burst into bloom at the crucial moment were well rewarded as they viewed the results of their handiwork yesterday afternoon at the opening session of the Lake Forest Garden club's annual two day flower show, held in the spacious service building of Villa Turicum, Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick's Lake Forest estate. The day was perfect, the visitors plentiful and enthusiastic.

Striking the note of the whole show was the fragrant and colorful flower market at the gateway into the paved court between the buildings, a bower through which one strolled to the various wings, where potted plants or cut flowers might be bought from Mrs. John Andrews King, general chairman of the show; Mrs. Cyrus Adams, Mrs. Lester Armour and other members of the energetic committee.

Garden Group a New Venture.

Directly across from the entrance the visitor came upon one of the most effective displays of the day, the "Garden group." A new venture this year, and most successful. The foundation for each plant was a bit of white fence, a pair of white wooden gateposts and a flagged walk leading to a smart little house painted on a backdrop. The path border designed by Mrs. William E. Casselberry and Miss Marion Clow of high Columbines and peonies and anchusas and white petunias, took the blue ribbon. The second award went to Mrs. D. Mark Cummings. The Glencoe Garden club's exhibit won third place. Mrs. Alfred Carton received honorable mention.

Next door was another new venture in flower displays—handsome metal flower stands filled with rare and lovely plants. Mrs. Stephen Foster's fuchsia and mignonette took the first ribbon, with Mrs. Cummings' stunning giant begonias a close second, and Mrs. Benedict Goodman's purple and yellow and green arrangement only one step behind.

Tables Display Is Crowded.

The west wing, with its dinner tables, breakfast tables, special occasion tables and exquisite centerpieces, was packed to capacity as soon as the show opened. One emerged from there with a kaleidoscopic picture of the whole—of Mrs. William Mitchell Blair's white and yellow iris in modern black vases; Mrs. W. David Owen's "tenth anniversary" table, set with a shining tin and ornamented with lilies of the valley and ropes of green. The other features were the great heaps of mangoes and bananas in the center of Mrs. C. N. Goodwin's red and white picnic table; the rose and blue silver gleam of Mrs. Walter Brewster's table; Mrs. Samuel T. Chase's green lace and green glass; Mrs. William McCormick Blair's chic breakfast table with its blue and white cloth and silver luster equipment, and Mrs. W. W. Wheelock's clever use of cherries and fuchsia and milk glass.

Wit Mingles with Beauty.

Beauty is to be expected at a flower show, but this year wit and humor had their place in the general display, with two special classes of flower arrangements. They both presented suitable and unsuitable arrangements of garden bouquets; the first using the same flowers in different containers, and the second using identical vases with different flowers it was something of the idea of the old fashioned "before and after taking" pictures of the advertisements.

In the modern group of flower arrangements, Miss Virginia Miller's irregular black container with its fresh white gardenias won the blue ribbon, while Mrs. Walter Brewster's silver gray bowl filled with rare and colorful blooms was second. Mrs. John W. Scott's handsome red and black centerpieces won the third award. In contrast with the modern vases were the Victorian arrangements, beautiful old vases filled with quaint and formal bouquets of June flowers. Mrs. Lawrence Scudder won the blue ribbon in this class. Mrs. Walter Launder was second, and Mrs. John Lee, third.

Among the Prize Winners.

Other prize winners besides those already mentioned were as follows:

Seek Oak Park Youth, Missing Since Friday

George H. Zimmerman, 926 North Humphrey street, Oak Park, assistant superintendent of the Chicago division of the Chicago and North Western railroad, last night appealed to THE TRIBUNE to aid him in a search for his son, William, 20 years old, who disappeared after leaving his brother, Ray, at 22d and Halsted streets Friday evening. Young Zimmerman was suffering from a nervous breakdown and was under a doctor's care. He was described as 5 feet 8 inches tall, weighing 140 pounds, with dark eyes and black curly hear. He wore gray trousers and cap, a red sweater, black shoes, and a black raincoat.

FIND WOMAN'S BODY AT ROADSIDE.

Laguna Beach, Cal., June 15.—(AP)—A body believed to be that of Mrs. Myrtle Wood, 49, of Long Beach, Cal., was found behind a signboard off the highway near here today. There was a bullet wound in the left temple.

BAPTISTS HEAR PLEA FOR UNION OF TWO GROUPS

Southerners Broach Subject at Convention.

Denver, Colo., June 15.—(AP)—In an effort to bring two great church branches closer together, the southern Baptists through Dr. J. B. Lawrence of Kansas City made overtures to the northern division of the denomination at today's session of the northern Baptist convention here.

In presenting the greetings of the southern group, Dr. Lawrence, who is state secretary of the southern Baptists for Missouri, suggested the two conventions should meet during successive weeks in Washington, two years hence.

Likened to Emancipation.

Ramsay MacDonald, British prime minister, was compared with Abraham Lincoln in an address by the Rev. James Rushbrooke, M. A. D. D., London, general secretary of the Baptist World alliance.

"Like Lincoln, MacDonald has had to break 'his birth's invidious bar'; like Lincoln, by sheer grit, without adventitious aid, he has 'grappled with his evil star,' has 'made by force his merit known,' and has eventually attained the loftiest position open to him in his own land," said Dr. Rushbrooke.

"Rely upon it, that in all noble adventure for human well-being your Mr. Hoover will find a worthy comrade in our Mr. MacDonald."

Tells of Soviet Persecution.

The Rev. Rushbrooke said that Baptists had been persecuted in Russia and that the soviet government in the last few months had imposed severe restrictions upon the Baptist church.

The Rev. H. C. Wong, a native Chinese Christian, and the Rev. John Macneill of Toronto, brought greetings from Baptists of their countries.

Dr. A. W. Beaven of Rochester, N. Y., president of Colgate university, was expected to be named president of the northern Baptist assembly, a member of the nominating committee said today.

Tonight a pageant, depicting the progress of the Baptist church from the sixteenth century to the present time, was presented.

THE FAIR is proud to announce this showing of the powerful new 10-Tube LYRIC RADIO—the latest contribution to progress in this field. It is the product of the All-American Mohawk Corporation, one of the pioneers of the industry.

Consider These Points

Distance—Sensitivity to the Nth degree has been achieved by the use of 10 tubes, 4 stages of neutralized tuned radio frequency amplification, and 1 tuned detector.

Selectivity—The famous Hazeltine Neutrodyne circuit with 5-gang condensers, all controlled by a single dial insures the sharpest tuning.

Precision Construction—Every LYRIC set is actually inspected 222 times before leaving the factory. Every eighth worker at the shop is an inspector—making it as near perfect as possible.

ILLINOIS JOINS 'BURN YOUR HOME COAL' CAMPAIGN

Seek Work for 40,000 Idle Miners.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Indianapolis, Ind., June 15.—[Special.]—Relief for nearly 40,000 idle miners in the coal fields of Indiana and Illinois is to be sought by operators and workers acting in concert. A drive for the use of home coal in the home market is the program. Following Gov. Harry Leslie's dinner last night, at which the movement was launched to "burn Indiana coal in Indiana," John Lewis, head of the United Mine Workers, today put the problem thus:

In Indiana the mines employed 35,000 in 1923 and 24,000 in 1927. It means nearly 12,000 out of work during the last few years in mine depression. In Illinois, where similar efforts are being made to recapture more home markets, the mines employed 99,700 in 1923 and 77,000 in 1927. Between 25,000 and 30,000 are estimated to be almost chronically unemployed. It reflects the general slump in the coal industry. Government figures show that between 1923 and 1927 110,000 soft coal miners lost their jobs and 2,330 mines closed.

Fuel Habits Have Altered.

The remarkable shift in the trend of America's energy is another factor. In 1913 bituminous coal was furnishing 70.3 per cent of the total energy derived from mineral fuels and water power. In 1927 its share had dropped to 54.8. Meanwhile oil and gas grew from 12.4 per cent to 29.6 per cent in the same period, and water power went up from 3.3 per cent to 6.8.

Oil and natural gas now furnish more than one-fourth of the total energy supply. As to coal, more efficient combustion is making a ton do more work, which also decreases the market demand. Typical of this is the consumption of locomotive fuel, which absorbs about 24 per cent of the bituminous supply. In 1927 the railroads did nine per cent more work than in 1917, but they required 13 per cent less bituminous coal. Similarly, in the iron and steel industry, the year 1926, compared with 1916, showed an increase of 2,700,000 tons in steel and iron products, but a decrease of 15 millions of tons in soft coal consumption.

Power Company Figures.

Government figures show even more striking changes in the consumption of coal by the electric utilities. In the last [illegible] years the production of electric power by central stations and electric railways has increased nineteenfold, while the coal consumption has increased only fourfold. Part of this increased energy, of course, has been due to hydro-power, but improvements in fuel efficiency made this remarkable result possible. In 1902 the average coal consumption per kilowatt hour was 6.6 pounds. In 1917 this had been cut to 3.2 pounds, and in 1927 the average fell to 1.84 pounds.

The trend of coal consumption in general manufacturing has been another great factor. Plants have been buying more and more of their power from central electric stations.

From 1909 to 1926 the physical volume of manufactured goods increased [illegible] per cent, but the consumption of coal in manufacturing increased only [illegible] per cent.

Argument for 5 Day Week.

The United Mine Workers of America sees in all this an argument for the policy of a six hour day and a five day week, which it adopted several years ago. At headquarters today, Ellis Searles, editor of the United Mine Workers' journal, compiled a few figures. His conclusion was: "If steam driven public utilities had used coal in 1927 at the same rate that they did in 1919, the additional tonnage would have amounted to 81 million tons.

"Because of more efficient use of fuel coal, railroads made a saving of [illegible] million tons in 1927. Developed water power in 1928 had a horsepower capacity equal to 31 million tons of coal. The 431 million barrels of fuel used in the United States in 1927 displaced 110 million tons of coal. This makes a total loss in coal consumption of approximately 214 million tons for the year."

As to the overmanned industry, Mr. Searles says:

Points One Way Out.

"There is a surplus of at least 200,000 soft coal mine workers in this country today. Although there is no prospect that all will ever be profitably employed in the mines, they hang on, clinging to a forlorn hope that something may turn up. Reduction of the working time to six hours a day and five days a week would furnish employment for a vast number of additional men and reduce the unemployed.

"The volume of production would thus be stabilized. As it is, the average number of days worked in the mines in 1927 was only 114 in Illinois and 120 in Indiana."

17 BOY SCOUTS START TRAINING FOR WORLD JAMBOREE IN ENGLAND

Seventeen Boy Scouts of Evanston and Park Ridge went into encampment yesterday at Barrington, Ill., for a ten day period of training to prepare for the worldwide Boy Scout jamboree to be held in Birkenhead, England, next month. On July 18 they will leave Chicago with their Scoutmaster A. E. Towne and his assistants, Miles Towne and Harlan Roden, for the trip abroad. After the two week's jamboree in which 1,500 American boys will join 50,000 scouts of the world, they will tour the continent. The party will return September 10.

RADICALS BATTLE POLICE IN GRANT PARK; 27 SEIZED

Several hundred radicals engaged in a brief but lively scrimmage with forty policemen yesterday afternoon around the peristyle in Grant park at Randolph street and Michigan avenue while twice that number of less fractious citizens watched the struggle, not knowing what provoked it.

The issue was decided when seventeen men and ten women were hustled into patrol wagons and locked up at the Central station. The others were dispersed.

The radicals, originally 700 strong, assembled earlier in Washington square, Clark street and Walton place, to hear communist leaders harangue on the textile strike situation in North Carolina. Hats were passed to collect a defense fund for a dozen agitators charged with the murder of three North Carolina policemen. Then the mob started to move downtown.

Flaunting banners and chanting the Internationale, the radicals rallied at the peristyle, having lost half their following as they paraded to the loop. William T. Kruse, district organizer of the Communist party, was belaboring the capitalist class from a soap box when Policemen William O'Neil and Maurice Slattery ordered clearance for traffic.

Several women shrieked defiance, clawing and kicking at the officers. Someone turned in a riot alarm bringing five patrol loads of uniformed men from headquarters. Fifteen minutes later the avenue was clear except for a litter of Communist pamphlets scattered by the rioters in flight.

300 PLACES OPEN AT FT. SHERIDAN TRAINING CAMP

There is still opportunity for about 300 Chicago youths to enroll for the citizens' military training camp course at Fort Sheridan, according to an announcement yesterday by George F. James, executive secretary of the Military Training Camps association of the United States.

Enrollment for all other camps is practically closed, he stated. Enough applications have been received for the Fort Sheridan camp, but he explained that cancellations will make the expected openings. City youths are always a bit slower than country lads in applying for the summer course in training, he said, because jobs are easier for them to get, but when they compare a summer of work with a summer of sport and training, such as the camps afford, they rush in at the last minute.

Applications will be received during the next ten days at room 705 Tower building, 6 North Michigan avenue, and, while there may be a few vacancies after that, Mr. James advises applicants to avoid the rush.

RAID STILL AT STEGER.

Prohibition agents yesterday seized two seventy-five gallon stills and 112 fifty gallon barrels of whisky mash in a distillery at Steger, which they believe was being operated by the remnants of the Chicago Heights alcohol ring. Steve Paolle was arrested in the plant.

ALL-AMERICAN MOHAWK CORPORATION
CHICAGO

1 Selectivity

BECAUSE LYRIC has a 5-gang condenser tuning 5 stages of neutralized, tuned radio frequency, thus insuring greater selectivity—no cutting of side-bands, thereby insuring quality reproduction without distortion.

2 Tone Quality

BECAUSE LYRIC unequalled Audio Transformers in double push-pull combination, using NEW 245 Power Tubes, guarantees natural tones from the lowest to the highest notes of the musical scale. Ultra Dynamic Speaker—tremendous volume—full range—wonderful reproduction!

3 Sensitivity

BECAUSE the Nth degree has been reached by LYRIC engineers using four (4) stages of neutralized, tuned radio frequency and tuned detector using a 5-gang condenser scientifically balanced. Records in our possession prove the new LYRIC will reach farther and reproduce more clearly than any set you ever heard.

4 Precision of Construction

BECAUSE every LYRIC set is actually inspected 222 times before leaving the factory — every eighth worker is an inspector — RESULT, the amazing LYRIC "Challenger", a set way out in the lead.

5 Ease of Operation

BECAUSE LYRIC has the one and original single dial control, without complicated or unnecessary gadgets, with single control 5-gang condensers. Here is perfection plus!

6 Distance Getting

BECAUSE the famous Hazeltine Neutrodyne circuit, under which LYRIC is licensed, plus R. C. A. Westinghouse A. T. & T., and Gen. El. licenses, and our years of precision manufacture bring you the final refinement in DX hunting, and reception! Also 10 LYRIC Tubes!

7 Volume

BECAUSE of LYRIC'S famed power pack. Massed to deliver necessary power, still keeping well below the safety line, using a graduated volume control that means glorious shadings and smooth variations in volume without being jumpy.

8 Beauty

BECAUSE the new LYRIC Radio, "The Challenger", presents a remarkable cabinet ensemble of carefully selected woods, grace of line, beauty of construction often imitated but impossible to excel. A cabinet design to appeal to every discriminating buyer.

9 Value

BECAUSE of the greatest assemblage of radio engineering feats, perfected cabinet and chassis, LYRIC Radio, "The Challenger" is priced to amaze the public and throw consternation into the ranks of the "also rans".

300 GUESTS SEE MISS SHAW WED DANIEL PETERKIN

Ceremony Performed at Lake Geneva Estate.

About 300 guests journeyed out to Lake Geneva yesterday to attend the wedding of Miss Bessie Shaw and Daniel Peterkin Jr. at the summer estate of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walden Shaw. The ceremony was performed on the wide landing of the curved stairway, with the attendants on the steps below the bride and bridegroom. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Peterkin of 199 Lake Shore drive.

The maid of honor was Miss Dorothy Wegner and the bridesmaids were Mrs. Dean Arnold, Mrs. William B. Freer, and Jeannette Peterkin. Jack Olcott attended Mr. Peterkin as best man.

After a honeymoon abroad, Mr. and Mrs. Peterkin will occupy an apartment at 222 East Chestnut street.

Miss Maude Sippy, daughter of Mrs. Bertram Sippy, and Dr. Thomas Hill of Stanford, Ky., were married at 8:30 p. m. at the Sippy residence at 5616 Woodlawn avenue, with the Rev. Edward Scribner Ames of the University church officiating. Miss Christina Atterbury of New York City, Miss Jean Elizabeth Culver, Miss Rosalie Clapp and Mrs. Lewellyn Wescott attended Miss Sippy. Dr. William Pryor of Louisville acted as best man.

Armless Composer Placed Under Peace Bond by Court

Tommy Malie, author of several song hits, who lost both arms, it is said, in world war combat, was arraigned yesterday before Municipal Judge Joseph W. Schulman on a charge of drunkenness and dismissed after signing his own peace bond. He is 32 years old and lives at 509 North Clark street. His popular compositions include "Looking at the World Through Rose Colored Glasses," "Today Is the Morning After," "Highways Are Happy Ways," and "Jealous."

YANKS MAY FIGHT CHINA'S REMOVAL OF FOREIGN ZONE

Fessenden on Way to U.S. to See Hoover.

BY JOHN POWELL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, June 15.—Stirling Fessenden, for many years American chairman of the international government of the Shanghai foreign settlement, is leaving next week for the United States. While it is publicly announced the purpose of the trip is a rest and vacation, it is learned the actual purpose is to discuss with President Hoover and Secretary of State Stimson the question of the future political status of the foreign settlement, which has again became an acute question. This is due to the Nationalist government central executive committee this week voting to push immediately the question of rendition of the foreign area, as well as abrogation of extraterritoriality, the two questions being interdependent.

It is reported that local British interests are also sending a prominent Briton to London for the purpose of consulting with the British government for a similar purpose.

U. S. and Britain to Take Lead.

The plan which the local foreign interests intend to propose is secret, but it is reported their intention is to ask the United States and Great Britain to take the lead in calling a conference of the representatives of the powers interested in the international settlement and the Chinese government, in order to work out a scheme for the gradual relinquishment of foreign jurisdiction so as to prevent disturbance of local municipal activities and property values, as well as regularize the taxation measures which the Chinese contemplate in respect to foreign interests.

The minority of the foreign "die hard" faction, however, is opposed to any conference, urging unbending resistance to the Chinese government's plans to take over the settlement, even to the extent of building up a local standing army for the purpose of resisting Chinese encroachment in the foreign area.

Chinese Solid for Rendition.

While the Chinese are unanimously pushing the rendition question, Chinese opinion is not unified regarding the most favorable method of gradual assumption of Chinese control. But the Chinese government officials are demanding complete Chinese control in the shortest possible time, intending to merge the foreign settlement with the local Chinese administration of Shanghai and promising not to disturb local business or properties of foreign residents.

The present population of Shanghai, including the foreign settlement, is approximately 3,000,000, of which about 50,000 are foreigners, most of foreigners residing within the settlement, which occupies the center of the city. About 9,000 foreigners live within the Chinese area.

Since more than 50 per cent of China's foreign trade passes through Shanghai, which is the financial, industrial, commercial and shipping center of the republic, the question of readjustment of Chinese-foreign relations here is likely to prove a knotty problem.

Mr. Fessenden is a native of Fort Fairfield, Me., a graduate of Bowdoin college and New York Law school, and has been a practicing lawyer here since 1903.

TWO BOATS NEAR CRASH; BOUL MICH TRAFFIC TIED UP

A near collision between two boats going in opposite directions in the Chicago river kept the Michigan avenue bridge up for ten minutes yesterday, delaying traffic and resulting in damage to the bowsprit of the power boat Fame. The northern half of the bridge had been lifted for the Fame when the dredge boat, the Gilbert of Michigan City, appeared in its path. The Fame backed up and swerved to the Wacker drive side of the river, but before it could stop completely it crashed into the lower level of the southern half of the bridge. The boat was able to proceed, but the ten minute delay tied up motor traffic for blocks.

The new Clark street bridge will be opened to street cars tomorrow, it was announced yesterday, and it will be ready to serve automobiles and pedestrians within a couple of weeks. The old bridge was knocked out of service a little over a month ago when it was rammed by the boat Sandmaster.

G. A. Richardson, vice president of the Chicago Surface Lines, said that street cars will resume their former routes.

BODY IS FOUND IN SEWER; BELIEVED GANG RIDE VICTIM

The body of a man believed to be Louis Sevick, 25 years old, of the Unity hotel, 2300 South Cicero avenue, Cicero, was found yesterday in a sewer in the midst of prairies in La Grange Park. Four bullet wounds were in the man's head and he was believed to have been the victim of a gangster "ride."

Lieut. C. A. Wolfe of the county highway police found a hotel receipt from the Unity hotel in the man's clothing. At the hotel he found that Sevick had been registered from April 9 to April 16, when he disappeared. Two days before he disappeared, Sevick was seen with a black eye, apparently received in a fight. Police believed he may have tried to get revenge and was himself slain.

The body had been in the sewer for two months and was lying crumpled, half submerged in five inches of water. It was found by Louis Habbin of Maywood who had been spreading oil in the sewers to prevent mosquito breeding. The sewer was in a lonely spot, there being no houses within half a mile.

AUSTRALIA ENDS MANY YEARS OF LABOR MISRULE

Millions of Dollars Lost by State Enterprises.

BY JACK MYERS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

[Copyright: 1929: By The Chicago Tribune.]

SYDNEY, Australia, June 15.—The debacle of the Labor party in the Queensland elections ends a continuous period of fourteen years of Labor rule. It reduces the number of state labor governments in Australia to one only (Western Australia). Previously Labor was in office in the commonwealth and in five of the states.

The Labor movement in Queensland always was well organized. It was not surprising that with the increase in the industrial vote it should replace a somewhat weak ministry in 1915, doing this under the capable leadership of J. Ryan, the first Labor premier in Queensland. It undoubtedly operated in favor of Labor in the succeeding years that (except for a brief period under the premiership of W. N. Gillies) it was led by three men of outstanding ability and force of character—Mr. Ryan, E. G. Theodore (now a member of the federal parliament), and William McCormack, the retiring premier.

The Nationalists were handicapped by weak leadership and divisions within their own ranks, especially when the Country party became a political force.

Voting Lists Inflated.

The Labor governments maintained themselves in office largely as the result of a most improper distribution of the electorates, which resulted in a glaring disproportion in the number of electors in seats held by Labor and the opposition parties respectively. There was also evidence that the electoral rolls were inflated. It was always surprising that, although the Federal National party was able to secure eight and sometimes nine seats out of ten for the house of representatives, and the whole of the six senate seats, the Labor party should be returned in the state sphere at successive elections.

The Country-National party, which united the two wings of the opposition led by Arthur Moore, made a strong attack on the financial administration of the Labor party during its term of office, including enormous increases in expenditure from revenue and loan, taxation and debt, huge deficits on the railways and losses on government trading.

The state enterprises inaugurated by the Labor governments included state stations, mines, hotel, sawmills, produce agency, butcher shops, cannery and fish supply and other undertakings. The net loss on these enterprises, including uncharged interest, was, up to the end of the last financial year, June 30, 1928, $18,240,000, and the total investment in state enterprise, including amounts written off, was $15,555,000.

A Fatal Comparison.

The Country-National party made the following comparisons between 13 years of Labor administrations and 13 years under previous governments, and the figures quoted undoubtedly influenced the minds of a great many electors:

Expenditure.	13 yrs., previous governments.	13 yrs., labor governments.
From revenue ..	$327,792,000	805,427,000
From loan	96,679,500	241,527,500
From trust funds	49,066,000	292,858,000
Totals	$473,537,500	$1,339,812,500
Taxation	39,954,500	212,132,000
Railway deficits.	7,943,000	88,889,500
Int. chg. on rev.	34,699,500	129,078,000
Unemployment relief	594,500	10,498,500

It was also pointed out that the gross public debt had grown from $184,245,000 in 1915 to $558,670,000 in 1928, and in the same period the loan indebtedness on the railways had increased from $188,606,000 to $309,200,000.

Confiscation of Estates.

One of the matters which aroused acute controversy during Mr. Theodore's premiership was his action with regard to pastoral properties which was described as sheer confiscation at the time. The action taken was severely criticized in London financial circles with the result that Mr. Theodore was unable to raise loan money in London. He secured the necessary funds in New York at a high rate of interest, Queensland being the first Australian government to float a loan in the United States.

Mr. McCormack undoubtedly has effected economies during the past two years. He assigned as one of the reasons for his defeat his refusal to raise loans for relief of the unemployed, which inevitably would be spent on unreproductive works. At the same time he was a member of previous governments which were responsible for the financial orgy to which reference has been made.

Loss of Confidence.

The extremist and communist element in Queensland labor has been increasingly active in recent years. Mr. McCormack attributes another cause of his defeat to the fact that he resisted the attempts of the railway workers to hold up the railway service and employed police to prevent disorder during the waterside strike. The general feeling among opponents of labor and unallied electors was that the sinister forces behind the labor movement were too dangerous to permit the party to a large extent dominated by them to continue in office. Other factors operating were the general desire of the electors to change a government after a long period in office, and the fact that while Mr. Moore made definite pledges for the relief of unemployment, Mr. McCormack was silent on the subject.

The result of the election has been that whereas the state of parties at the dissolution was: Labor, 43; anti-labor, 29, the position with the determination of doubtful seats is now likely to be labor, 26; anti-labor, 46, a gain to the opposition of 17 seats. The turnover of votes was very large even in seats retained by labor. The labor losses were in all parts of the state.

Platforms of Candidates.

The main features of Mr. McCormack's program were:

[1] The extension of assistance to primary industries on coöperative lines, including dairying, wheat, fruits, cotton and tobacco; [2] the provision of facilities for using the by products of sugar in the manufacture of celotex, power alcohol and artificial silk; [3] reorganization of the cattle industry; [4] assistance in the revival of mining; [5] a vigorous main roads policy; [6] development of irrigation areas and land settlement; [7] establishment of an electricity commission to coördinate the distribution of electricity and assist hydro-electric schemes; [8] increased assitance in the provision of workers' homes.

Blows to Socialism.

The proposals of Arthur Moore, leader of the Country National party and the new premier, included: [1] abolition of government trading; [2] use of loan moneys only for reproductive works; [3] freedom of railways from party political misuse and influence, and the public service from Tammany methods; [4] reduction of salaries of members of parliament; [5] restoration of freehold tenure and removal of restrictions on land settlement; [6] encouragement of copartnership and profit sharing, coöperative ownership of secondary industries and conciliation through round table conferences and works committees; [7] reduction and ultimate abolition of the land tax; [8] referendum on the question of the restoration of an upper house in the state parliament; [9] restoration of democracy through an equitable redistribution of the electorates, removal of "ghosts" from the electoral rolls, and unification of the federal and state electoral machinery; [10] elimination of the wasteful system of "day labor" where work can be done as effectively and more effectively by contract; [11] gasoline tax for road construction.

NAVY YARDS UNDERBID PRIVATE FIRMS FOR NEW LIGHT CRUISERS

Washington, D. C., June 15.—[Special.]—Bids for the construction of the five new light cruisers to be started this fiscal year under the terms of the fifteen cruiser bill were opened at the navy department today by Secretary of the Navy Charles Francis Adams. Although no contracts have been let, the estimates submitted by private and government shipyards revealed the cost of construction for the new 10,000 ton ships will be approximately $17,000,000 apiece, virtually the same as is being paid for each of the eight similar ships now being built. Estimates submitted by navy yards were in virtually all cases lower than those turned in by private yards. Under the terms of the cruiser bill three ships must be built in navy yards.

The lowest bid submitted by a private yard was made by the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation of New York. This firm offered to build the hull and machinery for one vessel for $10,753,000, the ship to be completed within three years from date of contract. With armament added the cost of this vessel would be slightly more than $16,000,000.

The Puget sound Pacific coast navy yard offered to build the hull and machinery of one vessel in forty months for $8,838,000.

Urge Governor to Sign River Terminal Bill

James D. Cunningham, president of the Illinois Manufacturers' association, addressed a letter to Gov. Emmerson yesterday, urging him to sign the river terminal bill passed at the recent session of the general assembly. The legislation authorizes the state department of purchases and construction to acquire rail water terminals along the Illinois waterway.

BALTIC LOOKS TO SWEDEN TO LEAD WAY TO PEACE

Visit of King Gustaf May Lead to New Union.

BY DONALD DAY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TALLINN, Esthonia, June 15.—Sheltered from bolshevism by the modernly equipped armies of Finland, Esthonia and Latvia, both Sweden and Denmark embarked upon a policy of disarmament which is slowly developing into a Baltic union similar to the Locarno pact, according to Esthonian statesmen, who view the approaching visit of King Gustav of Sweden to Tallinn and Riga as a symptom of the increasing interest of Sweden in the nations on the other side of the Baltic.

The Swedish defense law passed by parliament in 1925 reduced the army to the same size as that of Finland and only slightly larger than the armies of Esthonia and Latvia. Denmark this year announced a radical reduction of armaments and is discussing complete disarmament.

Plan Big Military Displays.

Both Esthonia and Latvia are featuring parades of their armies in programs arranged in honor of the visiting king and the quartermaster department of each army has equipped its troops with new uniforms in preparation for the military displays, calculated to assure the Swedes that these countries are prepared to put up a good fight for their independence if necessary.

Neither the Esthonians nor the Latvians hope for an early realization of the dream of a northern Baltic political union, but leaders in both countries anticipate a political union guaranteeing the neutrality of the Baltic by means of a single arbitration treaty uniting the Baltic countries to follow the northern Baltic Cultural league, now in process of formation.

Hope Sweden Will Take Lead.

The Baltic states hope that Sweden will take the initiative in the negotiations and there are already indications that Sweden is thinking of changing her traditional policy of neutrality. However, neither Esthonia nor Latvia wish to appear as poor relatives asking aid from their rich uncle and officials at the foreign offices of the Baltic states have said that they have not approached Sweden regarding either a political or cultural union.

The recent visits of the presidents of Finland, Esthonia and Latvia to the palace of King Gustav in Stockholm are the reasons for the present royal visit, which will give the king a chance to acquaint himself with the countries which Sweden once ruled.

There is tremendous activity both in Tallinn and in Riga, where streets are being repaved and houses painted in preparation for the Swedish king's arrival. Both countries are preparing to house the visiting sovereign in royal stye.

¶ See New European Lineup.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PRAGUE, Czecho-Slovakia, June 15.—A new alignment in Europe is seen by the newspaper Lidove Novini, which comments on the fact that the recent visit of Premier Benito Mussolini's secretary of state, Dino Grandi, encouraged the irredenta action of Hungary, against which the little entente had already officially protested. The newspaper says the declaration of Premier Stephen Bethlen of Hungary, refusing to accept the treaty of Trianon as permanent, was taken into consideration with the recent visits of the Polish foreign minister, August Zaleski, and Sig. Grandi at Budapest to indicate a new alignment in central Europe, beginning with Italy, Bulgaria, Roumania, Hungary and Poland up to the Baltic states.

Beauty and Grace Achieved Through Tailored Lines..... in the 90° V-Eight at Medium Price

In creating the new Viking V-type eight, the designers sought distinction along the most difficult path—the achievement of beauty and grace through tailored lines.

The result more than justifies their diligence, for although it was introduced only a few weeks ago, the public has already appraised the Viking as a car of exceptional beauty.

The Viking is a low-swung, trimly-tailored car of generous size. Sweeping full-crown fenders, graceful hood, and handsome body contours all blend into a pleasing, beautifully proportioned whole—at once fleet in appearance and dignified in character.

The same richness and harmony of design that bring such distinguished style have been carried out to the last detail in the interior. The entire interior decoration effect is one of luxury. The upholstery materials are soft to the touch, neutral in color, fine in quality. Seats are deep-cushioned, and incline at just the right angle to provide armchair comfort. Appointments, panelings, and hardware have been selected with discriminating taste.

The riding qualities of the car bear out this luxurious comfort. Four Lovejoy hydraulic shock absorbers, synchronized with the springs, smooth out road irregularities and assure restful riding ease. The low center of gravity, long wheelbase, and balanced weight of the Viking chassis also contribute to riding comfort by providing matchless roadability.

Combined with all this are the smoothness, quietness, and perfection of performance of the ninety-degree, V-type, eight-cylinder engine. The new Viking will deliver far greater speed than the average motorist requires—easy, effortless speed that may be sustained hour after hour. Response to the throttle is remarkable, both in getaway from a standing start and in acceleration at the higher speeds. And there is mighty power for steep hills, long grades, and hard pulling.

In the new Viking engine, the ninety-degree, V-type, eight-cylinder principle—characteristic of high-priced cars—reaches a high stage of development. Among the outstanding advantages of this new engine are its simplicity, rigidity, accessibility, and compactness. The valve mechanism is entirely new in design and is more accessible than in the conventional automobile engine. Fuel distribution is through down-draft manifolds, providing all cylinders with a uniform fuel mixture. Lubrication and cooling are both remarkably efficient. There is an exclusive new precipitating-trap system of oil cleaning. And thermostatically-controlled radiator shutters are standard equipment.

The new Viking provides appearance, performance, comfort, and luxury of a type formerly associated with expensive cars—and, at the same time, the Viking is priced within the means of the American family.

See the great new Viking V-type eight in the showroom of the nearest Oldsmobile-Viking dealer. Examine its many new engineering features. Take it for a trial drive. Then compare the Viking, point by point, with other cars of medium price and know how much more it offers in value.

OLDSMOBILE SIX
—the Fine Car of Low Price—continues to win ever greater success throughout the nation. Companion car to the new Viking Eight, and equally outstanding in engineering and value at its price, it offers a wide choice of body style and equipment combination ranging from $875 up, f. o. b. factory, Lansing, Michigan.

KERMANS

SEMI-ANNUAL CLEARANCE

Beginning Tomorrow—2 Weeks Earlier—Because of the Backward Season

This sale of Kermans smart fashions is one that is ordinarily held in July. But because the season has been so backward we find we are much too heavily stocked. We know that modes reduced in midseason are more attractive than later on. And so the sale begins tomorrow.

Everything in both stores is included—plain tailored and fur-trimmed coats, ensembles, frocks, hats, evening dresses . . . nothing reserved. When you consider the character and distinction of Kermans apparel and the fact that many of Chicago's smartest women get their clothes here, you will agree that you simply must be here early.

Now look at the prices! Really, aren't the values remarkable? All merchandise on display in open racks, plainly marked as to size and price. Come and examine them.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Twenty thousand baseball bugs who spurned the American Derby yesterday and went out to Wrigley field, had nothing to moan about, for the Cubs and Phillies put on a drama that hasn't been surpassed in these parts in many seasons. Of course our Cubs won—in ten innings—and the score was 8 to 7. But the way they did it, neighbors, there was the wallop.

The winning run was scored by a combination of hypnotism and the alertness of Manager Joe McCarthy and Norm McMillan. Pitcher Bob McGraw was the hypnotized one—he failed to cover home on a simple little sacrifice foul fly thirty feet from the plate, permitting McMillan to score the winning marker while First Baseman Hurst was holding the ball, trying to find some place to throw the darned thing.

Here Are the High Spots.

There was so much in the game that it's difficult to find a place to start in telling about it. But here are some of the peaks:

There were two homers with the bases full, the first by Virgil Davis and the second by Rogers Hornsby, the Rajah doing his stuff with the Cubs three runs in arrears in the seventh inning and with two out. And he did it while 60 per cent of the customers were booing him because his two bad errors apparently had blown up the ball game for Guy Bush.

There were two homers with none on, by Chuck Klein with his sixteenth of the year, and by Kiki Cuyler.

The Phillies outhit the Cubs 12 hits for 21 bases to 7 hits for 14 bases.

Pat Malone won his ninth victory, and though he pitched to but four batsmen he richly deserved the credit.

The victory gave the Cubs a record of eight out of the last nine games and was the first extra inning game they have won in six played this year.

The Cubs made four double plays, all of which halted dangerous rallies.

The Cubs' two distinguished invalids, Gabby Hartnett and Riggs Stephenson, appeared in the game as pinch batters and both figured in the scoring though neither was chalked with a time at bat.

McMillan, in addition to his coup which won the ball game, stole third in order to get in a position to put on his big victory act.

Fans Watch Scoreboard, Too.

The Cubs used five pitchers and the Phillies four. The four Phils walked 11 Cubs, including three in the scoreless eighth. There were only two strikeouts, one on each side, up till the time Pat Malone fanned Southern and Friberg in the tenth. Incidentally, Pat had two strikes on Davis when the latter tapped to McMillan to retire the side.

Of course there were other features, including the fact that the Phils scored the tying run in the ninth and had men on first and third with one out when Whitney hit into a double play. But outside of these things nothing much happened in the ball game except the thrill of watching the score board, to see if the Pirates and Cardinals were going to lose tie games so the Cubs could go into first place.

The score was 0 to 0 when the Phillies grabbed themselves a 5 to 0

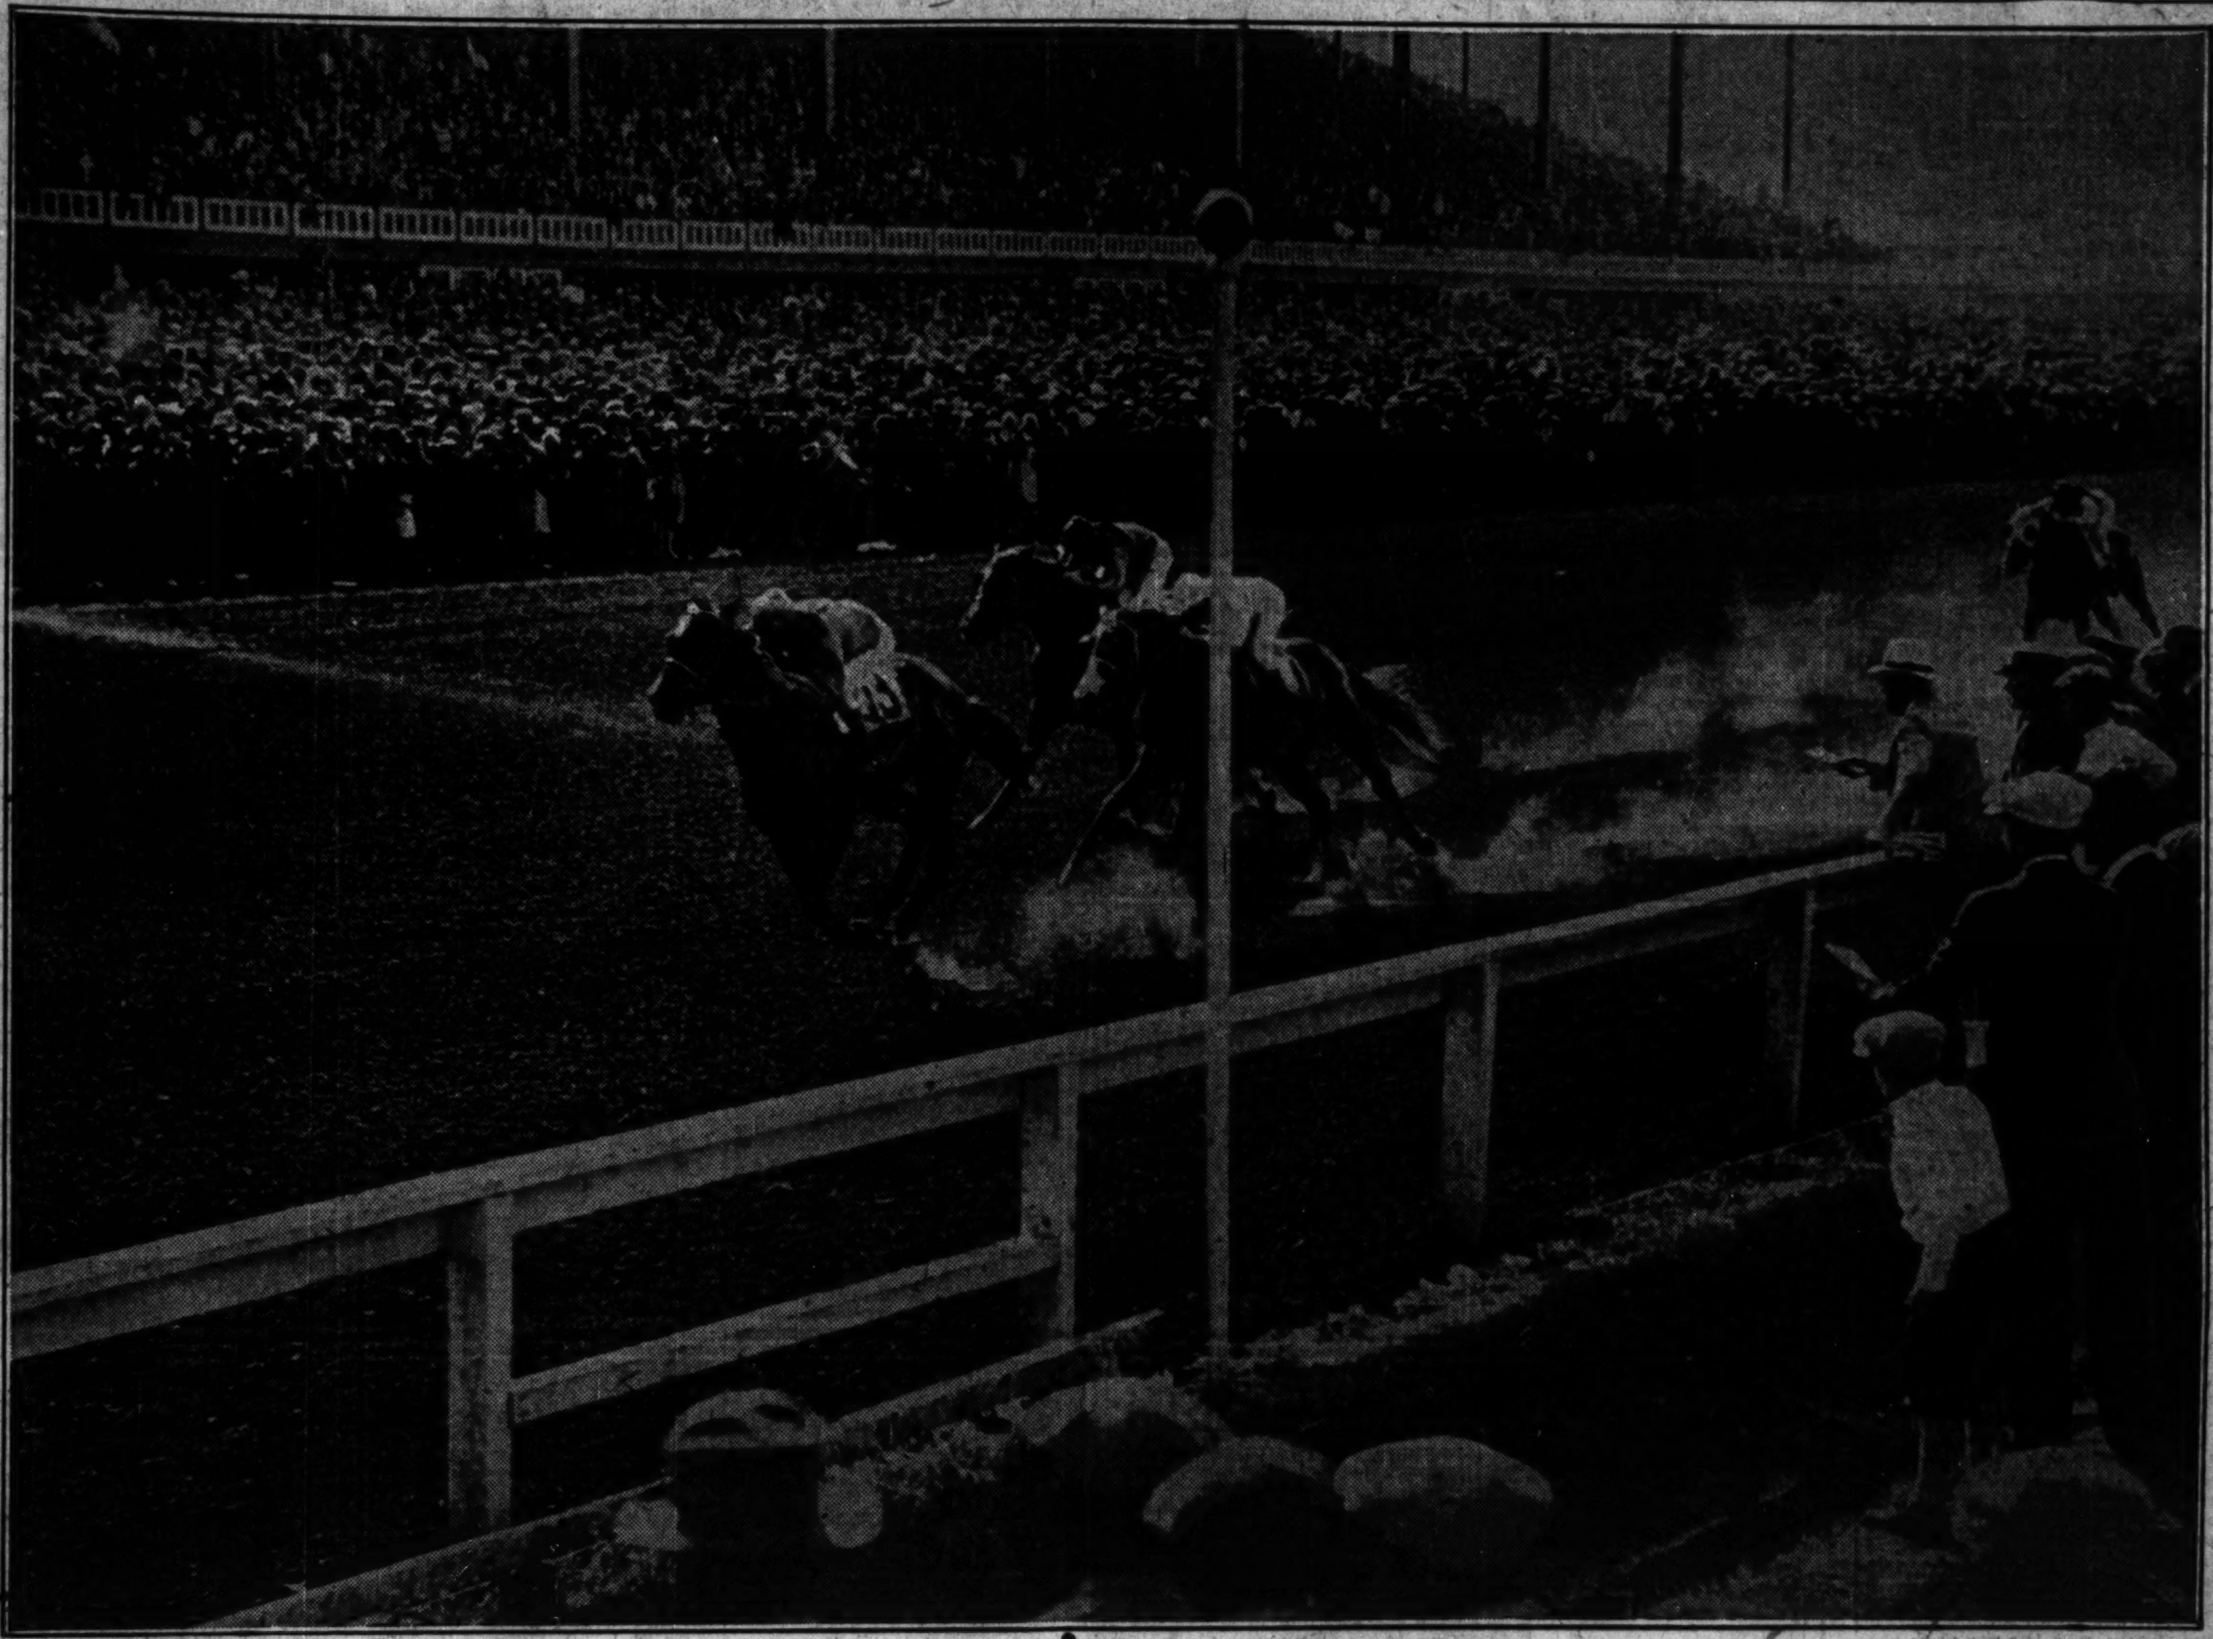
HOW CHICAGO'S OWN HORSE TRIUMPHED



Windy City, owned by Fred Grabner of Chicago, crosses the finish line a winner in the $50,000 American Derby at Washington Park. He leads Naishapur by a length and a half, while the Wilshire stable entry is a like distance ahead of African. Windy City's surprising victory brought $30.14 for each $2 wager his backers had made. Jockey McDermott, laying his mount in fourth position throughout the major portion of the mile and a quarter, moved up to take the lead at the head of the stretch by half a length. From here on he gradually lengthened his margin of victory.

Cyril Tolley Wins British Amateur Title

SANDWICH, Eng., June 15.—(AP)—Cyril Tolley, new commanding general of British amateur golf, will carry his country's championship title, which he won here today, when he invades the United States to play in the American amateur championship at Pebble Beach, Cal., next September.

Tolley won his second crown by defeating John Nelson Smith, Scottish carpenter from Fife, 4 up and 3 to play, in the 36 hole final, closing a week of brilliant golf during which he scored a series of convincing successes.

Scot Holds Tolly Even.

The Scotch artisan opposing the great Tolley today played the same dour, determined sort of game that brought him a sensational victory yesterday over John Dawson, the brilliant young American, and for 18 holes he held his English opponent to level terms. Sturdy shouldered, big boned and with huge hands that Trained by J. Lowenstein. Went to post at 5:14. At post 9 minutes. Start good. Won easily, second driving.

Windy City, well up in the early racing, moved steadily to the leaders after six furlongs and, taking the lead when straightened in the stretch, held the others safe thereafter, and won well in hand. Naishapur began slowly, and was far back for half a mile, came steadily thereafter, and was going fast near the end. African, also far out of it for three-quarters, moved with a rush, and appeared the winner in the last furlong, but swerved out badly in the final drive. Dr. Freeland, a strong factor earlier in the racing, began tiring badly in the stretch. Black Diamond tired after showing good speed. Silverdale was done after six furlongs. Clyde Van Dusen's elimination was complete after six furlongs. Paul Bunyan acted badly at the post and kicked Dr. Freeland and Naishapur, closed a good one after a slow beginning.

Favorite Fails, Now Try to Find Reasons

BY HARVEY WOODRUFF.

In all the Derbies this writer has ever seen at old Washington Park and at Louisville for the last two decades, I never have seen such a pronounced favorite as Clyde Van Dusen fold up more completely than did the chestnut gelding in whose veins flows the blood of Man o'War.

Clyde Van Dusen, winner of the Kentucky Derby over a sloppy track and winner last fall of the Kentucky Jockey club stakes for 2 year olds on a similar track, was supposed to be the greatest mud running 3 year old in America before yesterday. The diminutive Man o' War gelding may be all of that on a sloppy track, but he was something else on the heavy holding track conditions under which this Derby was decided.

Clyde Van Dusen, on his prestige and the bromide that he "just eats mud," was backed into a favoritism which would have paid only $1.89 profit for each dollar invested had he won. This favoritism was over the Salmon-Wilson entry of three which included Dr. Freeland, winner of the Preakness; African, which ran Blue Larkspur such a close race in the Belmont stakes, and Black Diamond, a Black Toney colt highly regarded. The trio was priced at $2.09 to 1.

Doesn't Like Track.

This short priced favorite ran eighth among the field of nine starters, a complete disappointment to his horde of followers. Clyde was so bad one looks around for excuses. There are two, to one of which this writer subscribes and another which we hope is not true.

The first excuse is that Clyde Van Dusen does not like a heavy drying out track. That needs little proof because it was so conclusively proved. Van Dusen was away favorably, tried to race into the van position which Black Diamond assumed, chased him around the first and second turns, and then when the pack closed up from behind, this short priced favorite had nothing left to meet the challenge.

Half a mile from the finish it was apparent to those with glasses that the favorite was done. Jockey Garner shook up his mount, even plied the whip and Clyde Van Dusen couldn't respond. At the turn for home, Clyde Van Dusen, carrying 126 pounds, was so soundly beaten that Jockey Garner allowed the gelding to finish where he would.

Jockey L. McDermott, who rode Windy City to victory.

Even assuming that Clyde Van Dusen did not fancy this particular type of track, his showing was so poor his prestige has suffered severely. All claim to 3 year old championship is dissipated for the present at least.

The other excuse for this Derby's form reversal is that there are no great 3 year olds in the country this year. That always is an unpopular opinion for modern custom likes to deal in superlatives and champions. In its support is the turf axiom that when colts of the same division keep beating each other, there is no champion. And when there is no champion, it is customary to believe that class is below par. Clyde Van Dusen beat Windy City at Louisville and also Naishapur and Blue Larkspur. Then Blue Larkspur, of course, beat African and so on ad finitum.

Now look at the other side of the picture, the Windy City side. Windy City won the Derby trial at Louisville so handily that he attracted many followers for the Derby itself. His race in the Derby slop was not bad but he was not in the money. Windy City won the Derby trial here Tuesday, beating Minotaur, and ran a good race but comment was, "Well, what did he beat?"

But let's go back to the 2 year old division of last summer on Chicago

Mutuel Bets Top Million on Derby Day

BY DON MAXWELL.

It was Chicago's own Derby.

Folks from everywhere make the trek to Louisville where the famous Kentucky classic is run, but the Derby yesterday at Washington Park drew its patrons from the Windy City, after which the winner derived its name. There were hundreds from Lake Forest, thousands from Rogers Park, and a multitude from the south side where the Derby winner's owner lives.

The crowd seemed immense. It overflowed the boxes—there are 700 of them—it jammed the passageways and almost filled the huge areaways in front of club house and grandstand. Some called it 60,000. But the best figuring, including that done by the astute Col. Matt Winn, the director general of the race course, estimated the attendance at 40,000.

5,000 Autos Parked.

Officials of the Illinois Central railroad reported that more than 20,000 were carried to the track on the 60 mile an hour trains that started speeding southward early in the morning and were still discharging their cargoes of Derby pilgrims at 3 o'clock.

Attendants at the three huge parking spaces reported that 5,000 automobiles, averaged four persons to a car, had been drawn up at the track before the bugler trilled the first notes of the call to boots and saddles.

The clubhouse boxes cost their purchasers $34 apiece and the grand stand boxes cost $60. More than $50,000 came into the track's treasury through the box seat sale. Then there were 3,000 reserved seats and the regular admissions. And, as a final revenue collector, there was the 6½ per cent which the track deducted from the $1,200,000 handle.

The turnstiles were clicking for hours and Col. Winn's workers reported that approximately 25,000 paid admissions exclusive of the occupants of boxes and reserved seats had filed through. As supporting evidence to the claim of a 40,000 crowd there was

FINISHES 1½ LENGTHS AHEAD OF NAISHAPUR

Van Dusen Quits on Lower Bend.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Clyde Van Dusen, the ugly little son of Man O War, broke the hearts of all Kentuckians when he finished next to last in the 21st running of the American Derby at Washington Park yesterday. And Windy City, a real Chicagoan, at 14 to 1 in the betting, made the native and adopted sons happy when he galloped to victory.

FREDERICK GRABNER.

With 40,000 pairs of eyes upon him the Kentucky Derby winner gamely forced the pace for the first six furlongs of the gruelling mile and a quarter struggle. Then he faltered and all but collapsed. He came staggering home only inches out of last position.

The race, with a gross value of $57,550, was run over a slow, drying out and very deceiving track. Windy City beat Naishapur by a length and a half. African, second to Blue Larkspur in the Belmont stakes a week earlier, was third. His stablemate, Dr. Freeland, was fourth and Paul Bunyon fifth.

Two Horses Hurt.

The Derby left two casualties in its wane. Naishapur, which ran such a smashing race to be second, and Dr. Freeland. Paul Bunyan kicked both of them during the nine minute delay at the post. He opened up a ugly wound on Naishapur's left hind hock from which blood was flowing as he came dashing past the finish line. Bunyan's hoof's left a 12 inch gash in Dr. Freeland's side, but it was not a deep cut.

From the beginning Windy City, whose time over the difficult track was 2:10, was always in a contending position. When Jockey Larry McDermott started driving him at the end of three-quarters, he raced by the wilting pacemaker, Black Diamond, flew on past African, conquered Dr. Freeland as he hit the lower bend and shook off Naishapur's desperate challenge in the last sixteenth.

The big crowd, mostly Chicagoans, and the most representative that has gathered at a Chicago race course in many years gave Windy City a noisy round of applause as he scored his triumph.

Grabner Receives Trophy.

Fred Grabner, former carpenter on the south side, later a contractor, stepped out in his baggy palm beach suit to receive the trophy. He is no youngster at racing but receiving prizes of $50,000 was something new to him. Old Grab just smiled while his friends from down at the yards and others from back o'th yards whooped it up as the spoils were presented.

Clyde Van Dusen might not have liked the going, although he was noted as a heavy or slow track performer. Some thought he might have suffered injuries or broken down, so dismal was his finish.

During the delay of nine minutes at the post Naishapur, Clyde Van Dusen, Dr. Freeland and Pal Bunyan caused most of the trouble. They wheeled, reared and kicked. Each seemed to be sparring for an advantage and waiting for Morrissey to release the barrier.

When the barrier finally was lifted, Dr. Freeland broke in front, with Clyde Van Dusen second and Black Diamond third. But they hadn't taken a dozen strides until Black Diamond raced to the front with Van Dusen lapped on him as they rounded the club house turn. Silverdale, the great sprinter from the E. B. McLean stable, was running third and strung out in the wake of the leaders were Windy City, Minotaur, Dr. Freeland, Paul Bunyan, Naisphapur and African.

Black Diamond Sets Pace.

At the quarter Black Diamond was leading Clyde Van Dusen by a length. Silverdale was third and Windy City, running easily next to the rail, was fourth.

They ran in this order until they hit the lower bend. Clyde Van Dusen, the Kentucky Derby winner, was quitting and the crowd was groaning. He didn't look like the same proud Clyde Van Dusen that galloped around so stylishly in the Kentucky Derby.

A streak of purple was moving up on the outside of the track. A noisy fan on the lawn shouted, "Windy City is running over 'em." The crowd took up the cry, "Come on, Windy City!"

Windy City came on. With sour faced McDermott urging him he drove past one after another until he had taken the lead. There was nothing to it from there until the finish. Windy City galloped on. McDermott was shouting and whipping.

He came right home as Grabner, the ex-carpenter, and his trainer, Jake Lowenstein, also of Chicago, slapped each other on the backs and bowed to the shouts and the cheers of the south siders.

"Where's Van Dusen?"

"He's last," some one answered. And there were no other cheers for the Kentucky Derby winner.

Whether this Derby can be taken into consideration as far as settling the 3 year old championship is concerned will be a much mooted question.

Blue Larkspur no doubt can beat all the eastern 3 year olds. It's hard to tell which is the best in the west, although Windy City's race in the American Derby stamps him as a topnotcher.

It looks as if these 3 year olds are going to carry us along until late summer or fall before they finally agree to let one of their number be declared the champion.

WOLVERINES WIN FINAL, 15-6, FROM MICHIGAN STATE

Ann Arbor, Mich., June 15.—[Special.]—Michigan State and her star pitcher, Jerry Byrne, took a severe beating at the hands of a Wolverine nine which went on a batting spree here today in the final game of the season. The score was 15 to 6, the conference champs collecting 17 hits, six of them for extra bases.

The Spartans started out with two runs in the first, but were held helpless by Fred Asbeck until the ninth when four more went across. Asbeck retired 18 batters in order in his final appearance as a Wolverine twirler.

The third inning settled the issue, the Maize and Blue machine chalking up seven runs on five singles, a triple, a double, a base on balls, and two errors.

The new captain is a junior and led the Wolverines in batting this year with a mark of about .350. Originally an infielder, Straub was shifted to right field this year and remained there all season. Last year he subbed in the infield. Straub throws right handed and bats left handed. His home is in Toledo, O. In addition to two letters in baseball he won his "M" as quarter back on last year's football team.

GENERAL SLUMP HITS BATTERS OF BIG SIX GROUP

The batting averages of Big Six members underwent a general slump yesterday, although Jimmy Foxx was the only active member who failed to hit. Foxx went to bat only twice in the Athletics' abbreviated game and lost four points. Rogers Hornsby made the day's only gain, getting two hits in four times at bat and lifting his mark from .328 to .332. Paul Waner held his own at .342 by hitting twice in six attempts during the Pirates' struggle with the Giants. Frank O'Doul and Lou Gehrig each got one hit in four tries and lost a few points. SOCIETY'S BRIGHT RACING APPAREL ENLIVENS DERBY

Terrace and Clubhouse Aglow with Color.

BY MILDRED JAKLON.

GLENNA COLLETT.

The clubhouse terrace at Washington Park resolved itself into a gaudy spectrum of spectators dressed in "race track" clothes, and the boxes above were crammed. A large quota of the box occupants were society folk entertaining or being entertained at lunch in the stunning dining room at the races.

The Stuyvesant Peabodys had one of the largest parties, some fifty guests. Miss Glenna Collett, national women's golf champion, was with Mrs. Peabody in her box for the greater part of the afternoon, as also was another woman golf star, Miss Marion Hollins. Devereux Milburn of New York, international polo star, also was in the party. Others were Mrs. John Wentworth, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Forgan, Mr. and Mrs. Philip L. Reed, Mrs. Lawrence Robbins, Mrs. Stanley Keith, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Cable, Mr. and Mrs. Clive Runnells, Mrs. Jane Morton Gammon, Mrs. Frederick Letts, the Vincent Healys, Arthur Mekeer, Laurance H. Armour, and Earl Savage of Minneapolis.

Gay Costumes on Lawn.

The society women wore painted frocks and suits, conservative in comparison with the gay costumes of persons in the throng on the lawn. Maj. Gen. Milton J. Foreman's attire, consisting of an emerald ensemble, green and white checked suit, green silk shirt, tie and handkerchief, stood out.

Mrs. Peabody was a striking picture in a brown dress figured in orange and yellow flowers and a brown perimeme hat with a ribbon ornament of yellow and orange.

Miss Katherine Christie, Canadian golfer; Everts Wrenn, and Mrs. Robert Caldwell were guests of Mrs. R. R. McCormick, who also had a luncheon.

Mrs. William E. Clow Jr., whose costumes always are distinctive, wore a brown printed crêpe, a tan coat, and a hat of vari-colored straw. Mrs. Stanley Keith, who was seen at the paddock looking over the horses for the important fifth race, wore a greenish blue crêpe and a gray felt hat, and Mrs. Jane Morton Gammon, who accompanied her, was in a black quilted silk suit and a small black hat.

Those in Richardson Party.

Mrs. Chauncey McCormick, who was with the Ralph R. Richardsons, wore a brown and white print dress and a brown felt and straw hat. The Richardsons' daughters, Miss Frances Richardson, Mrs. Frederick Spencer (Bluford Richardson), and Mr. Spencer also were in the party.

Edison Dick had a gay young party of Lake Foresters in his box after having entertained them at lunch and provided the women with gardenia bouquets. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas C. Dennehy Jr., Mrs. Claire Childs Laflin, Miss Jane Warner, and Paul MacBride were his guests.

Mrs. George A. McKinlock, in a tan silk dress and brown turban, and Eugene Thayer, who has moved to Chicago from New York, were with the Joseph T. Ryersons. Mr. and Mrs. Frederick T. Haskell's guests included Mr. and Mrs. William H. Rehm, Mrs. August Magnus, and Dr. George Paul Marquis.

Horsewoman with Cranes.

H. P. Crane had with him Mrs. Val Crane, Miss Jean Brown Scott, the horsewoman who has been here from Philadelphia for the South Shore Country club horse show; the John R. Thompsons, and Mr. and Mrs. Allen Russell of California. Mrs. Thompson wore a black and yellow figured crêpe dress and a shiny black hat.

Mrs. Clive Runnells, who was "winning a little" at the end of the third race, wore a black crêpe figured in capucine green and yellow, and Miss Louise Tyler, who was with William Steinwedell of Cleveland, to whom she has just become engaged, wore navy black and white. Mrs. Francis J. Johnston, who was being "beaued" to and from the betting window by Walter Salmon Jr., was in a black, gray, and white ensemble.

Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Logan, Mrs. Helen Logan, Mrs. Ruth Gardner, Stanley Morrill, and Roland Boswell occupied the Paul Gardner box. Mr. and Mrs. James G. Condon had with them Miss Jane Condon, Miss Jean Logan, and the latter's fiancé, Donald La Chance. Mr. and Mrs. Samuel A. Ettelson, Melvin Emerich, Bernard and Leonard Ettelson, Miss Sylvia Glick, and Mr. and Mrs. Lee J. Strauss were in the William Hale Thompson box.

Thomas Millers Are Hosts.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Miller of Wheaton were hosts to Mrs. Adele H. Whiting, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar W. Johnson, and Miss Helen Gurley. With Mr. and Mrs. Herbert S. Johnson were Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Clark and Mr. and Mrs. George H. Bird. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Cutten had with them Mr. and Mrs. J. T. McLaughlin. Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. MhCulloch were there, and Weymouth Kirkland was seen in the clubhouse.

The Gustavus F. Swifts were hosts to Mrs. James C. Ames and Mr. and Mrs. Huntington Henry. Mrs. Swift wore yellow, Mrs. Ames a beige knitted suit, and Mrs. Henry a green and black print. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hooper Jr. entertained Mr. and Mrs. Richard Fox, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Connor, and Mrs. Horatio Hackett.

With the John W. O'Learys were Miss Dorothy O'Leary, Mr. and Mrs. Ross Byron, and Miss Virginia Melody. Mr. and Mrs. Albert Pick, Mr. and Mrs. David Jetzinger, and A. Freedman were with Mr. and Mrs. Harry B. Kempner. Guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Peyton were Charles Peyton Jr., Mrs. Graham Harris, and Mrs. Jessie Hayes. With Dr. and Mrs. Ira Frank were Gen. Robert E. Wood, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Friedlich, and Lee Frank.

Those seen in the clubhouse, sauntering around to the betting and cashing in windows and through the boxes, included Mrs. Thomas A. Belknap, in a brown and yellow crepe suit; Mr and Mrs. Robert J. Dunham, the latter in a tan covert suit and a scarlet turban; Miss Peggy Hambleton, in a navy blue polka dotted dress and a blue silk cape coat; Mrs. Dudley Mudge, Miss Janet Frey, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Westcott, Mr. and Mrs. Elliott Wortham, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Carruthers, and Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Zaring.

40,000 Wager $1,200,000 on Seven Derby Day Races

The mutuel handle yesterday was the largest of record in Chicago since the return of racing.

During the afternoon the fans wagered $1,214,214. The largest handle, of course, was on the fifth race, or the Derby. It totaled $298,636. This is far short of what the Kentucky Derby crowd wagers but is large for a Chicago race.

The amount of money wagered on each of the races yesterday follows:

1st	$106,531	5th	$298,636
2d	145,800	6th	162,930
3d	168,040	7th	139,439
4th	192,838

The crowd had begun to leave after the Derby which accounts for the falling off in the handle on the last two races. The Derby favorite had lost—and that was another factor decreasing the amount wagared toward the end of the day.

Col. Winn's tabulation of how yesterday's crowd wagered, shows that more than a third of the money bet was in small wagers. Out of a total of $1,214,214, the two dollar bets accounted for $383,734. The Derby was the only race in which the larger sized wagers predominated.

Denomination.	No. of Tickets.	Total.
$100	594	$ 59,400
10	10,064	100,640
5	9,770	48,850
2	28,433	56,866
Combination.
$ 6	3,010	18,060
15	988	14,820

The Washington Park track found the Derby extremely profitable.

Racing Plant Perfect.

The weather was a factor favorable to the success of the race. The sun was shining all day, with fleecy clouds now and then veiling it but never threatening to hide it completely. The breeze which unfurled the pennants over the clubhouse and grandstand kept the atmosphere cool.

The remodeled racing plant was in perfect condition. The infield looked like a carpet of green, decorated with flowery designs. Near the lagoon on which gondolas floated stood an old tallyho with pretty mannequins and a red coated coachman on top. The Derby throng came dressed to kill. Chicago women who had been forced to keep their finery in their trunks when rain deluged Louisville Derby day yesterday were attractive illustrations of present day fashion.

AMONG THOSE PRESENT

Who was there?

Well, there was Lieut. Gov. Fred Sterling, representing the officialdom of Springfield. He was prepared to make a nice speech in praise of Clyde Van Dusen, but seemed delighted at the opportunity to change it to a tribute to the Chicagoan whose horse humbled the favorite.

And representing the officialdom of Chicago was Samuel Ettelson, impeccably clad and confident that one of the Chicago entries would triumph.

State Senator Richard Barr, friend of horse racing, had a box party. Pat Joyce, the big box car magnate, with his friends, Charles Sullivan and William Carlisle, the erstwhile postmaster, were busy all afternoon touting folks onto Naishapur and, at that, none of the friends lost any money if they followed Pat's advice.

Judge Jacob H. Hopkins, recently honored by his alma mater, Knox college, with the degree of doctor of laws, walked through the clubhouse with stately mein, tightly clenching tickets on the eastern entry of Dr. Freeland, Black Diamond and African.

Van Dusen Had Backers.

Cylde Van Dusen had his backers, too. The clubhouse boxes were full of them. There was Mr. and Mrs. Hopewell Rogers, and Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Griffin, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles O'Leary, and Judge Howard Hayes, and Judge and Mrs. Fred Rush—there's no use in trying to name all of them.

Lawrence Armour and Roy Carruthers were out on the lawn, generously praising Washington Park, but hoping, too, that Arlington Park's $60,000 classic to be held next month would be just as great, if not a greater attraction.

John R. Thompson Jr., another Arlington booster, was telling friends that he didn't know what Minotaur would do, but that they could be sure of one thing—he'd be in there trying. And he was.

John C. Schank was another of the race track enthusiasts in the clubhouse. He had a right to be happy, for in the second race his newly purchased Black Beetle came cantering first past the finish line. While Carruthers, Armour and Thompson were talking Arlington Mr. Schank was asking folks not to forget his track, Hawthorne, planed a great meeting.

Weymouth Kirkland, the w. k. lawyer, was arguing the legal points in favor of a Chicago horse winning—the result proved his logic good—and William Russell, commissioner of police, was threatening all sorts of action if his favorite, African, didn't get a fair start.

The son of Walter J. Salmon, copartner in the ownership of the triple entry which was backed into a tie with Van Dusen for favoritism, represented his father at the track. Naturally he was prejudiced in his Derby pick and he must have been a bit enthusiastic, when, for a time, it looked like his father's horses might finish one-two.

There were thousands more—for Chicago turned out en masse for the Derby a Chicago horse was to win.

Three Year Olds May Be Inferior Class.

tracks and we find that Windy City and Clyde Van Dusen clashed four times with honors even. So one may argue, if he wishes, that Windy City is coming back to his best 2 year old form. Also the Grabner colt has started five times this year, including the American Derby, and the only time he did not earn brackets was when he finished fifth in the Kentucky Derby slop. Possibly Windy City has been underestimated.

Windy City was always in striking position. Jockey McDermott kept the Upset-Allivan colt in the flight just back of the pace making Black Diamond and Clyde Van Dusen. When the challenge started before reaching the far turn, still a half mile from the finish, it was Windy City which was leading these challengers.

Charge Down the Stretch.

Clyde Van Dusen chucked it so quickly it was apparent from clubhouse and stand. Black Diamond faded out gradually. With Windy City in this quest for first money were Dr. Freeland, African, and Naishapur. Windy City's margin was nominal.

As these contenders straightened away in the stretch, Windy City, with McDermott hard at work, had a half length on Dr. Freeland. The latter was a half length before African, which still had a length and a half on Naishapur, that California horse which always closes with a rush.

A sixteenth from the finish, Dr. Freeland was through. African, too, was stopping. Only Naishapur was left. He still was coming but the distance was too great. Considering his post injury, Naishapur ran a good race.

RUTH MAY BE BACK IN GAME NEXT THURSDAY

Annapolis, Md., June 15.—(AP)—Babe Ruth, New York Yankee home run king, has improved so much in health in his four day fishing vacation on Chesapeake bay that he hopes to get into the Athletics-Yankee series starting next Thursday, he told newspaper men today.

Ruth stepped from a boat in which he had spent the greater part of the day fishing with his host, Harry Mohler of Washington, and Mohler told the interviewers that the Babe had caught the greater part of the 20 "hard heads" they brought in as the day's catch.

This and That About Chicago's $50,000 Derby

PROHIBITION ADMINISTRATOR YELLOWLEY occupied a box. When he called to pay his respects to Executive Director M. J. Winn the latter showed him the lake in the infield and the dry enforcer appeared satisfied there was no law violation.

Twenty mannikins, displaying styles and the prevalent shade of synthetic tan on face and legs, paraded through the clubhouse. They were from Stevens, Mandel's, Weathered's, and McAvoy's.

Despite the immense crowd, train service was as advertised and the run to the track from Randolph street was made in about 30 minutes. Twenty-five specials operated on the track, carrying on the average about 806 persons each.

Willie Garner, who came from New York to ride Clyde Van Dusen, had appeared under colors on all Chicago courses in other seasons. It was his first appearance at Washington Park. He appeared early at the jockey's room. First thing he did was to step on the scales. After ringing up 107 pounds he shook hands with all riders as they came in.

New Orleans racing fans were present. Prominent in the delegation were Placide Frigerio and Robert Maestri, both identified with the Jefferson racing organization.

The failure of W. R. Coe's 10 racers to arrive from Belmont Park mystified Joseph McLennan, racing secretary. William Greaves, the Coe agent, had telephoned him that the consignment would leave New York in apple time to reach Washington Park for the Derby engagement on Dail and Igloo. Stalls had been reserved and all arrangements made for the reception of the racers.

Judge C. W. Hay, manager of Washington Park, was joined by Mrs. Hay and their children, E. H. Taylor Hay, C. W. Taylor Jr., Jackie Hay, and Eugenia Crittenden Hay. They motored from Scotland farm near Frankfort, Ky.

Lieut. Eddie Kelly came in for much praise for the way he handled the big crowd. The pickpockets were shoved aside as they tried to go through the gates. Handbookers tried to so some business out on the lawns, but Kelly's men grabbed them about the time they took the first bet. There wasn't a disturbance of any kind.

COLUMBIA WINS IN BENNETT CUP PRELIMINARIES

Intruder Is Victorious in Q Class.

Columbia, Intruder and Shalamar skimmed home in the lead of their respective classes in the second race of the preliminary series for the Bennett cup at Jackson Park Yacht club yesterday. Columbia and Intruder held their leads, however, only by the slimmest margins. The former, skippered by Hal Redmon, finished the nine mile windward-leeward course only six seconds ahead of Bob Williamson's Edith II. on adjusted time in the 30 foot Seawanhaka class by virtue of Edith's handicap of about one minute.

The O'Rourke brothers' Intruder, sailing on elapsed time against her "Q" class sisters, held a 20 second lead all the way home over Jedzry-Kowski's Princess to finish in 1:30:05, and evened up the point standings in the "Q" class. King's Chaperon was third in 1:34:10. Only two members of the yawl class turned out, and Buckley's Shalamar outsailed Hess' Beaver to win by two minutes in 1:51:07.

Make Fast Time.

While the wind was light south-southeast, the racers turned in fast times for the nine mile windward-leeward course, which included four and one-half miles of straight sailing with the wind, and an equal distance of beating directly into breeze.

Slower times were registered in the Chicago Yacht club championship racing at Belmont harbor. In the "R" class, the McClurg Syndicate's Ariel finished the nine mile triangle in 2:37:04, which seems slow compared with the performances at Jackson Park.

Faurot and Spencer's Fantome was second, and Hollis Potter's Calypso third with times of 2:37:44 and 2:47:00 respectively. Guerilla, the old Sari with a new name, and Jonnie, which under the name of Ardell and the skippering of Clark Wright won the Lipton cup last summer, finished fourth and fifth.

Patsy Beats Wanderer II.

Metz' Altair with Eudell at the helm won an "Eagle" class contest for the first time in years, and in the same race finished better than one member of the "R" class. Altair toured the course in 2:56:11. Davis' Orn was second and Haynie's Falcon was third.

Thte breezes which sped the Jackson Park boats on their way absent from the vicinity of the Pier, where the Columbia Yacht staged one of its weekly races.

In the racing division, Hewitt Ortmayer's Patsy won a match from Mason's Wanderer Patsy drifted the ten miles cribs in 2:53:30, while Wanderer scratch boat of the fleet, took for the triangle. Barquita, the boat in the cruising division Alert, her only contender, by minutes, while George Dalser's the great lakes star class took 1:39:59 for a four and mile journey. Summaries:

BLACK DIAMOND TAKES LEAD AS DERBY FIELD MAKES FIRST TRIP PAST JUDGES' STAND IN RACE FOR $50,000 PURSE AT WASHINGTON PARK. Clyde Van Dusen, Kentucky derby winner, closely follows the Salmon entry with E. B. McLean's Silverdale in third position. Black Diamond sped into a four length lead at the half mile post and covered that distance in 49 seconds. Here the pace demanded its toll and Windy City, which had trailed in fourth position, made his bid, taking the lead at the start of the stretch, coming on to win by a length and a half. BY IRVING VAUGHN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 15.—An unusual form of base hit mania overcame the White Sox in one inning today, and they required only a few minutes to slap home five runs that eventually proved sufficient to give them a 5 to 1 decision over the Senators. Outside of this there wasn't much to amuse the few thousand spectators excepting some surprisingly effective pitching by Young Ed Walsh and a great amount of rainfall.

Although he has lacked the appearance of a genuine big league article in his recent engagements, Young Walsh finally came through with a performance that even Boss Blackburne hadn't anticipated. Despite the handicap of a wet ball and a gummy slab, the son of the great Ed of other days shot his way through the Senator batters with consummate ease and at the conclusion of eight innings had yielded only four blows. On this basis a shut out appeared highly probable, but he skidded about a bit in the ninth and lost this extra distinction because of two hits and a pass.

Liska Routed in Seventh.

The Senators' hurling burden was leased for the afternoon to Ed Liska, the lad with the underhand delivery, and for five rounds the ex-American association satellite proved able to run Walsh an even race. The seventh, however, changed everything, and before the round closed Liska was no more. Before he could make his getaway, the Sox had crammed three hits into the inning and he had helped them a bit by hitting Walsh on the foot. This much accounted for four runs. Then Brown came to the rescue and he turned loose a pair of wild pitches on which the fifth run of the chapter was registered.

Opening the lucky seventh was a single by Kamm. Cissell sacrificed. Kerr whacked a hit to right, scoring Kamm with the first run. Berg doubled and Kerr tallied. Then Walsh was hit by a pitched ball and he followed Berg across the plate on a triple that Metzler splashed against the left field wall. This was where Liska vanished. Brown, his successor, walked Shires, who went to second on a wild pitch. The another wild pitch occurred, and Metzler ran home from third.

Walsh Escapes Trouble.

In the first eight rounds there was only one spot in which the nonchalant Walsh gave evidence of being his average self. To start the second he walked Cronin. Judge followed with a single. A sacrifice moved the two runners along, but in this pinch Walsh induced Ruel to pop to Kamm, and three strikes disposed of Liska. After this, Walsh seemed to enjoy himself immensely until Hayes and Tate singled and pinch batter Flagstead walked with one out in the ninth. Myer's fly to Hoffman let Hayes hike home with Washington's only run.

Outdoor Shows to Keep Mat Sport in Limelight

Wrestling promoters have decided to keep the sport moving during the summer months. Logan Square baseball park and possibly Mills Stadium will be the scenes of activity.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

MEETING A NEW PREXY.

FRIEND DON: Well, Don, I have met Robert M. Hutchins, the "boy" president elect of the University of Chicago, and he's all right, too. It was at a dinner given to alumni in his honor by Harold Swift, chairman of the board of trustees.

Now, Don, when I received an invitation from Harold I was surprised and I must confess just a mite suspicious. As you know, I went to college only about a year because I had no more money and I wasn't a letter man, so I didn't know where to get any more money except to work. So I'm an alumnus only when there's an endowment drive or something. I called up the alumni secretary and found there was no endowment drive, so I accepted.

Now, Don, don't think I'm tight about drives, but what with hospitals wanting new beds and scholarship funds wanting more funds and visiting nurses' associations wanting to do more visiting, and the United Charities wanting to do more uniting, and the Cradle society wanting more cradles, and the Infant Welfare society wanting more infants, and the little Wakes wanting more shoes and stockings, especially silk stockings, ad infinitum, I'm about cloyed on drives.

Well, of course, President Elect Hutchins made a talk and it was good, too. He told about the high standards of the graduate school. Then he talked about the undergraduate school to which he said the trustees were committed. As you know, some of the alumni have been squawking about the entrance requirements because it reduces the athletes. Well, he didn't even mention athletics, but he said entrance requirements were no higher than at several eastern colleges he named, and he asked what Chicago man would want to lower that standard. Well, I looked at Fritz Crisler, Nels Norgren, and several other coaches and they looked around, but nobody batted an eye. So I guess no Chicago man wants to lower those standards, at least in public.

And the president elect also said that as an administrative officer he hoped the alumni were as prosperous as they looked and that made a laugh, because if you want to you can contribute to a scholarship fund, even if you only went one year. Then he told some stories and what he hoped to do and he went over big.

Then the alumni called on "Fritz" Woodward, acting president, who's very popular out there, and he told how much alumni could do for the university. He cited the Kansas City alumni who found there were 36 honor scholarships to be awarded, paying tuition for two years or $600, and they combed the Kansas City schools and selected five outstanding chaps of true Chicago standard. These five outstanding chaps were awarded honor scholarships.

Now John Schommer was sitting near me. He was a great football player and he teaches chemistry or mathematics or something at Armour. John, as you know, is very practical. Of course, they couldn't hear him at the speakers' table, but all those in our part of the room could, and when Prof. Woodward finished about the five outstanding chaps of Chicago caliber John grunted, "How much do they weigh." So that's that. See you Monday. Harvey T. Woodruff.

OUR CUBS BEAT PHILLIES, 8 TO 7, IN TEN INNINGS

Hornsby, McMillan Star in Bruin Attack.

lead in the sixth. The inning started with Bush striking out Klein. Hornsby then booted Hurst's easy roller for his second error. It seems that our pitchers can't weather a little boot anymore. Anyhow, Bush went right up in the air. A single by Whitney, a double by Southern, and an intentional pass were climaxed by Davis' homer into the centerfield stand. Roy then walked but Thompson and O'Doul filed to Wilson.

In the Cub half Cuyler made a homer with none out, but this was canceled when Klein led off the seventh with a homer which brought about the removal of Bush.

It was in the seventh the Cubs had their big session. Grimm walked. McMillan beat out an infield single, Grimm stopping at second. Grace walked, filling the bases. Heathcote batted for Horne and forced Grace, Grimm scoring. Beck walked, filling the bases. Sweetland relieved Roy and walked Hartnett, who batted for Moore, forcing in McMillan. Blair ran for Hartnett. Collins relieved Sweetland and struck out Cuyler for the second out. Hornsby came up and squelched the howling wolves by knocking the ball over the left field wall, scoring Heathcote, Beck and Blair. The score was: Cubs, 7; Phils, 6.

Phils Tie Score.

With Cvengros pitching, the Phils tied the score in the ninth. After McMillan had thrown out Thompson, O'Doul walked and went to third on Klein's single. Hurst singled to center, scoring O'Doul and putting Klein on third. Malone went in and Whitney lined to Beck, who doubled Hurst off first.

Now for that tenth which is to become historic in ivory annals. Grimm opened with a double. McMillan attempted to sacrifice but bunted to McGraw, who threw to Thompson, who got Grimm between second and third, McMillan reaching second while Capt. Charley delayed the process. After a powwow, McGraw gave Grace an intentional pass to create a force at third, but McMillan foiled the strategy by stealing third. McGraw then gave Heathcote an intentional pass, filling the bases. At this point Stevie rolled out of his cot to bat for Beck. He popped a high foul and both Davis and Hurst went after it. Hurst got it, half way between the dugout and the screen. But, as you know, home was left uncovered so Manager Mac, coaching at third, and Player Mac thought it would be a good idea for the latter to touch up at third and dash home with the winning run. He did it, standing up.

Onwentsia Polo Team Awaits 12 Goal Meet

The second major polo tournament of the Chicago season will start Thursday when Onwentsia opposes one of the two Oak Brook entries in the Chicago twelve goal tourney on field No. 5 at Oak Brook. Whether the Cantigny or Four Horsemen provides the opening opposition for Onwentsia will be determined by pairings to be made today.

Thursday's winner will take on the remaining Oak Brook entry in the final Sunday afternoon.

Personnel of the competing teams follows: Onwentsia—Ken Fitzpatrick, Barney Balding, William Mitchell Blair and Richard Simmons; Cantigny [Oak Brook]—H. L. Turner, M. M. Corpening, N. E. Margetts and Col. R. R. McCormick; Four Horsemen [Oak Brook]—H. P. Baldwin, Harold Strotz, Paul Butler, and T. L. Crites.

At Onwentsia today, Toledo, O., riders take the field in the first and final of a series against Onwentsia. The Ohioans were prevented from playing their inaugural yesterday because turf conditions were such that playing would have proved dangerous.

Weather permitting, two Oak Brook fours will stage a match game this afternoon, starting at 3:30 o'clock, on either field No. 3 or No. 7. The contest will be played for the purpose of getting a final line on material prior to the opening of the twelve goal tournament.

Invitations for Oak Brook to send a representative polo team into competition on foreign fields have been received from Buffalo, N. Y., Cincinnati, O., Kansas City, Mo., Detroit, Mich., Minneapolis, Minn., Philadelphia, Pa., and Colorado Springs, Colo., according to information given out by Paul Butler yesterday.

Pyle's Creditors Wait for Troop at Journey's End

Los Angeles, Cal., June 15.—[Special.]—Threats by a half a dozen creditors of C. C. Pyle and by foot racers in Pyle's transcontinental jaunt to attach gate receipts at Wrigley field here tomorrow, tinted the end of the 3,631 mile race with a deep blue today.

The next to last lap—the seventy-seventh day's jog out of New York—was run by a muttering bunch of athletes today with Guisto Umek of Italy capturing the 58 mile jog from San Juan Capistrano to Huntington Park.

Umek's time was 8:45:50. His total time for the seventy-seven laps with mileage approximately given at 3,631 miles, is 534:17:28. Umek made certain today of dragging down the $6,000 third place money which Pyle promised to have for his racers tomorrow.

Pete Gavuzzi holds the lead with an elapsed time of 521:58:38. John Salo is second with 522:08:34.

"Not merely a new note in motoring—a new school in engineering and performance, is the Chrysler. ✣ ✣ Height, weight, balance, acceleration, power, appearance—these are some of the things Chrysler has revolutionized. ✣ ✣ Make no mistake—you are witnessing the rise of new principles in motor manufacture which are profoundly affecting all motor car design. ✣ ✣ No car is immune to the irresistible attractions of the Chrysler."

WHAT IS CHRYSLER ENGINEERING?

It is a matter of opinion as to who did most in creating the automobile, but it is a matter of fact that Chrysler has done most in modernizing it.

Some of the most vital and thrilling chapters in the history of the motor car have been written by Chrysler engineers, and as the pages of the future unfold they will continue to be filled with Chrysler accomplishments.

Chrysler engineering, analyzed in simple terms, is a combination of far-sighted vision and resourceful genius that succeeds in accomplishing inspired improvements.

In one word, Chrysler engineering is . . . Progress.

This is not a vainglorious gesture—it is a statement of plain, hard-shell fact fully borne out by the following partial list of advancements which Chrysler has pioneered, developed or popularized:

Hydraulic Four-Wheel Brakes
Rubber Shock Insulators
"Silver-Dome" and "Red Head" High-compression Engines
High Turbulence Offset Combustion Chamber
Fully Counter-weighted 7-Bearing Crankshaft
Iso-therm Invar Strut Pistons with Tungtite Rings
Non-wearing Chilled Cast-Iron Face Tappets
Modern Alloy Steel Exhaust Valves
Crankshaft Impulse Neutralizer
Self-Contained Rifle-Drilled Oil Passages in Cylinder Block Air Cleaner
Oil Filter
Rubber Engine Mountings
Heat Control Manifold
Electric Fumer (for easy starting)
Modern Plain Tube Carburetion—with Positive Pressure Pump Acceleration and Semi-Automatic Choke Valve
Tubular Front Axle
Steel Re-enforced Rubber Steering Wheel
Light Controls on Steering Wheel
Indirect Lighting of Instrument Panel
Radimeter and Electric Gasoline Gauge on Instrument Panel Ornamental Radiator Cap
Body Impulse Neutralizer
Small Diameter Road Wheels
Modern Roadster Body Type
Beaded Belt Moulding and Modern Body Color Treatment
Springs Mounted Parallel to Wheels
Low Back-Pressure Muffler for Greater Power
Hydraulic Stop-light Switch

Each of these would have been extraordinary if introduced separately. Considered collectively, they are actually revolutionary.

The Chrysler you buy today is the direct beneficiary of all the progress that Chrysler engineering has made in the five years of its brilliant history. What Chrysler engineering has done is all summed up in performance unlike anything you have ever known in a motor car—an aliveness, a swiftness, a smoothness utterly without counterpart. Let us give you a demonstration.

GIANTS OUTSLUG PIRATES, 20-15, IN 14 INNINGS

Eight Run Attack Ends Long Battle.

Pittsburgh, Pa., June 15.—(AP)—The Giants won a weird fourteen inning game from the Pirates here today, 20 to 15, and gained an even break in the series of four engagements. Eleven pitchers were used, equaling the major league record.

The Pirates overcame an eight run disadvantage to tie the game in nine innings and Pie Traynor's homer plunged it into a deadlock again in the eleventh after the Giants had taken a lead of one in their half of the round. The visitors scored eight times in the fourteenth and the Pirates came back with three runs.

Jackson hit two homers, a triple, and a double, driving in seven runs. Comorosky also hit for the circuit. Donie Bush was ejected from the game for protesting a decision at third in the fourteenth as Roush opened the winning rally with a triple. Pop bottles then were thrown by fans back of third, and in the home half part of the crowd surged upon the field. Police, however, held the fans in check. Score:

M'CARTHY SHOOTS RECORD 65 FOR METRO CROWN

Montclair, N. J., June 15.—[Special.]—Shooting a record 65 on the first eighteen holes to clip five strokes from par, Maurice J. McCarthy Jr., strapping Georgetown university senior, today added the Metropolitan amateur championship to the intercollegiate title he now holds.

This barrage of birdies and pars put him 6 up on his opponent, Paul Haviland of Brooklawn, former Yale captain, and the match, scheduled for thirty-six holes, went only twelve in the afternoon, McCarthy winning by 7 up and 6 to play.

Tilden to Meet Hunter in Dutch Tennis Final

Nordwyk, Holland, June 15.—(AP)—Bill Tilden and Frank Hunter, America's top ranking tennis players, will be finalists for the men's singles crown in the international championships of Holland. In the semi-finals today Tilden beat Wilbur F. Coen, Jr., his younb countryman, 10-8, 6-3, 6-2, while Hunter defeated the Dutch champion, Hans Timmer, 6-8, 6-2, 6-1, 6-4.

DE MAVE, STRIBLING SIGN.

New York, June 15.—(AP)—Jack De Mave, blonde heavyweight sparring partner of Paulino Uzcudun, signed articles today to box Young Stribling of Macon, Ga., ten rounds at Knoxville, Tenn., July 11.

Clubhouse Confessions of Our Cubs

By Edward Burns.

THIS is the eighth, and, for the time being, at least, the last of the pieces that have been printed under the heading, "Clubhouse Confessions of Our Cubs." This concluding installment isn't a soul baring human document like each of the preceding seven chapters based on the secret lives of Cub ballplayers, but rather a brief roll call of the boys who haven't told all.

Among the reasons that there aren't going to be any more clubhouse confessions is the fact that we virtually have been enjoined by an organization which calls itself the Fannettes' Romance and Autograph Collecting League of America. The complaint was predicated upon the fact that of all seven of our confessors Riggs Stephenson was the only unmarried man.

Injunction Comes Like Thunderbolt.

The injunction came like a thunderbolt just as we were in the midst of Charley Root's confession. We were going to tell you about how Charley, as a semi-pro pitching for the Armcos, of the American Rolling Mills, Middletown, O., appeared in an exhibition game against the St. Louis Browns back in 1921 and did so well that the Browns signed him after the game.

We were going right through his record; how he won 21 games for Los Angeles in 1924 and came back in 1925 to win 25 victories for the Angels; how he won 18 for the Cubs in 1926.

Why, we were going to write paragraph after paragraph on his 1927 season when he was in 48 ball games, pitched 309 innings with 26 victories to 15 losses. We were going to touch lightly upon 1928, including his major league record prior to this season, which is as follows: 4 years—157 games, 877 innings pitched; 58 games won; 54 games lost; 421 strikeouts; 270 bases on balls; 845 hits allowed.

Curses! Charley Root Is a Married Man.

But we tore up the piece. Charley is married and has a daughter 10 years old and a son five.

The transcriber of these confessions did not set out to run a lonely hearts corner or a matrimonial department and is greatly distressed at the turn things have taken. But you can see what the trend was if you read the following bona fide letter from a little gal out in Riverdale, Ill.:

"Won't you print Cliff Heathcote's confession after Charley Root's? Please do, as I think Heathie is just about the cutest thing in his baseball unie. Don't tell me he's married or I'll just die. Print confessions of all single boys. Lot's of work for you, but come on ol' deah, please favor a lonely miss,

"Heathie Fan of Riverdale, Ill."

"P. S. Don't forget Heathie's picture and 'fession."

Being a crusty but modest old bachelor, we didn't realize the appeal of the single boys until the Fannette's Romance and Autograph Collecting League of America and "Heathie Fan" brought the matter home to us.

Only Three Cubs Are Unmarried Men.

And here's the rub, Mr. Heathcote, Woody English and Earl Grace are the only unmarried men on the team, besides Stevie, so there was no use trying to comply with the demands of the Fannette organization with only three athletes to work on.

As proof of our dilemma, the following list of those who were ready to confess under the original plan is given, together with towns where their loving wives keep house for them in the winter time.

John Fred Blake, Charleston, W. Va.; Harold Gust Carlson, Rockford, Ill.; Mike John Cvengros, Pana, Ill.; Hank Grampp, New York City [maybe Hank isn't married, at that; we never asked him about it]; Berlyn D. Horne, Dayton, O.; Charles Henry Root, Los Angeles, Cal.; Charles Leo Hartnett, Chicago; Clyde Eugene Beck, Los Angeles, Cal.; Clarence Vick Blair, Texarkana, Tex.; Rogers Hornsby, Anglum, Mo.; Norman Alexio McMillan, Latta, S. C.; Hazen Cuyler, Flint, Mich., and John Francis Moore, Waterville, Conn.

If we wanted to we could deliver a swell sermon on the advantage of home cookin' as applied to ballplayers, for, while most of the Cubs are married, most of the White Sox are single. There have been many Sox games when Chalmer Cissell, a benedick of less than two years, was the only married man in the lineup.

Besides the home cookin', wives are a great help to ballplayers, especially in the fall. Along about the middle of October look for the action picture we are going to run of each Cub wife tripping to the bank to deposit papa's world series dough.

AURORA AUTO RACE ON DESPITE KEECH'S DEATH

Aurora, Ill., June 15.—[Special.]—The American Automobile association races at Exposition park will be held tomorrow afternoon despite the death of Ray Keech, winner of the Memorial day 500 mile race at Indianapolis, and the serious injury of Cliff Woodbury in the crash at Altoona speedway this afternoon, it was announced tonight by William Pickens, in charge of the Aurora races.

Substitute drivers from Indianapolis are to be secured to drive the cars of Keech and Woodbury, which have been at the Aurora track for several days.

More than a dozen of the best known A. A. A. drivers in the country will compete in the Exposition park events. Among them are Jack Petticord, Harrow Powell, Jack Manceloff, Glenn Price, Al Cotey, Louis Schneider, Billy Arnold, Johnny Krieger, and Shorty Cantlon.

Bell, Texas Star, Takes Maryland Tennis Title

Baltimore, Md., June 15.—(AP)—Berkeley Bell of Texas won the singles championship today in the Maryland state men's tennis championship tournament, defeating Bradshaw Harrison of Oregon, 6-1, 5-7, 6-4, 6-1. Bell, defending the championship he won last year, got his greatest advantage in the final match from a specially effective service.

Kansas City Monarchs Win from American Giants, 7-1

Kansas City, Mo., June 15.—[Special.]—Knocking Foster from the mound with five hits worth four runs in the first inning, the Kansas City Monarchs won the first game of a five game series from the Chicago American Giants today.

OWNERS OF 300 HORSES STRANDED BY COURT EDICT

Omaha, Neb., June 15.—[U. P.]—The decree of the Nebraska Supreme court which outlowed pari-mutuel betting has left 300 horse owners stranded here and it appears it may result in the $2,000,000 Ak-Sar-Ben track becoming a corn field.

Horse owners, who a few days ago, were listing their thoroughbreds at prices ranging from $1,500 to $2,000 today were willing, in many cases, to dispose of horses at $150, in order to "get out of town."

The Supreme court decision apparently has sounded the death knell of racing here. The local track has attempted to stage many booster enterprises but so far only racing has been self-supporting, according to Gould Dietz, chairman of the track organization.

MARRINER AND DORVAL SET FOR DEFERRED BOUT

Les Marriner, former University of Illinois football player, and Jack Dorval, Pennsylvania heavyweight, will meet in the windup of Promoter Mique Malloy's boxing show at White City tomorrow night. It will be the only boxing show to be held in Chicago this week. The bouts have been postponed twice because of unfavorable weather. Haakon Hansen, Norwegian middleweight, and Ted Ross of South Chicago will meet in the ten round semi-windup. Four other fights round out the card.

Argentine Fighter Kayoes Paluso in Second Round

Lakewood, N. J., June 15.—[Special.]—Max Schmeling demonstrated today, in eight rounds of boxing with four sparring partners, one of the offensive maneuvers he intends to employ against Paulino Uzcudun June 27. It was a straight left hand which proved troublesome to his mates all afternoon.

Herman Heller, first to enter the ring with the black Uhlan, almost went to the canvas from the blow in the second round of his tilt. King Solomon, Walter Sills and George Neron followed. All were treated to unmerciful trouncings, particularly from the straight left-hand.

BASQUE DRILLS IN RAIN.

Hoosick Falls, N. Y., June 15.—[Special.]—A Saturday crowd including twenty Basques from the stone quarries in Barre, Vt., and a group of fifty friends of Buddy Howard, who had motored up from New Haven, watched Paulino Uzcudun work out in the rain today. The woodchopper went two rounds with Jack Demave, Buddy Howard and Benny Touchstone, slugging away from bell to bell, as usual. Bag punching and calisthenics accompanied the boxing, and with his road work this morning and hours spent in posing for photographers who still are swarming all over the camp, Paulino had a strenuous day.

Illinois Wesleyan Star to Coach Kansas, Ill., High

Kansas, Ill., June 15.—[Special.]—Merrill Gibson, who was graduated Tuesday from Illinois Wesleyan university at Bloomington, has been appointed coach of the Kansas High school. He will take charge at the opening of the fall term.

TIGERS POUND 3 YANK HURLERS FOR 9-2 VICTORY

Pipgras, Heimach, Moore Yield 15 Hits.

New York, June 15.—[Special.]—Tearing into three of the four Yankee pitchers who went to the mound the Detroit Tigers today walloped the champions, 9 to 2. Pipgras, Heimach and Moore were bombarded for 15 hits. Roy Sherid also pitched for the Yanks, but he held the Tigers hitless.

Victor Sorrell, a righthander, did the throwing for the visitors. Against him the Yanks could score only in the first and seventh innings. Score:

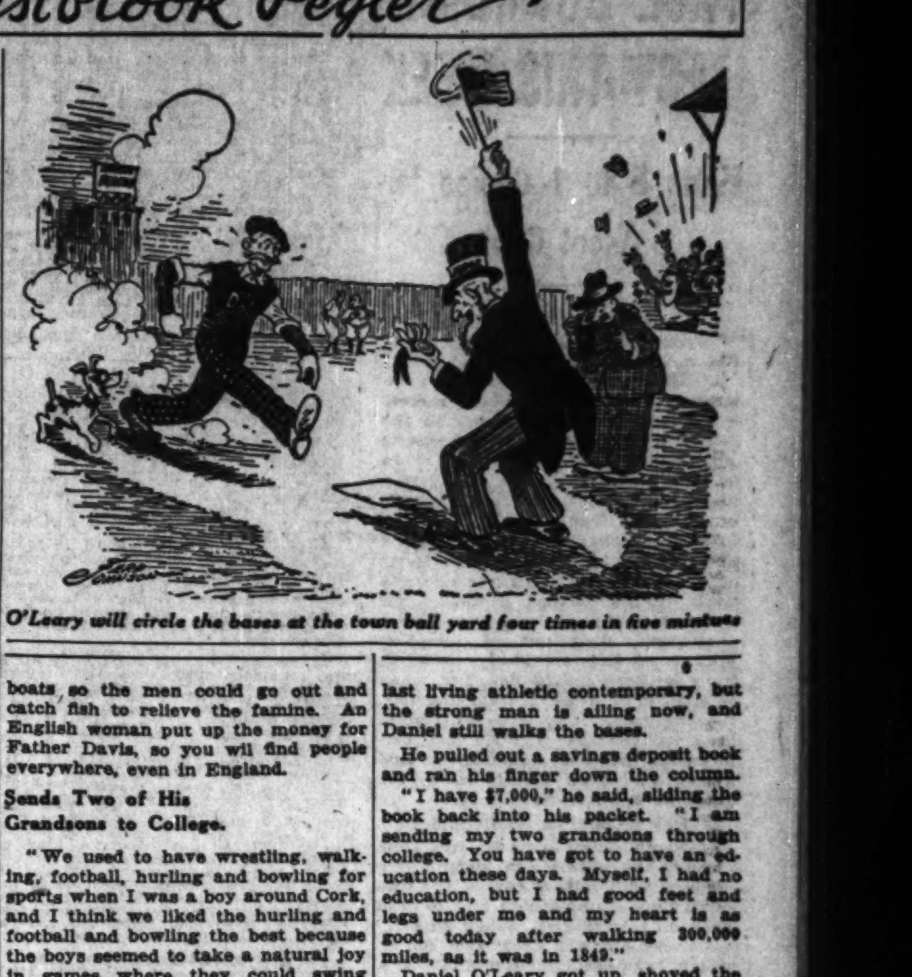
NOBODY'S BUSINESS

by Westbrook Pegler



O'Leary will circle the bases at the town ball yard four times in five minutes

NEW YORK, June 15.—A frisky old party comes into the sport department now and again to drop a hand wrought piece for the paper on the copy desk stating that Daniel O'Leary, now 90 years old, who reckoned that he has walked the equivalent of a dozen times around the world, will circle the bases at the town ball yard four times in five minutes for a modest purse. Mr. O'Leary seems to have plenty of get around left in those dogged old dogs of his, for he walks the bases without the aid of crutch, cane or nurse, and it just seems that he has been walking so long that he can't pull up to a full stop, even when some one unsheathes a newspaper mud pencil, points to a chair and says, "Sit!"

He is the first one or the boys who come into the sport departments to drop small writings on the copy desk that I ever saw who does not sit with alacrity at the word of command.

One-Eyed Connelly Sits Instinctively.

Now, there is Mr. One-Eyed Connelly, itinerant who has made a vocation of going places and seeing things as the guest of the human race, no hosts barred. Mr. Connelly sits instinctively, without invitation or provocation, and he has sat in almost every sport department in this land, pouring out his reminiscences, some few of which, I am forced to suspect, never happened, although he vows they did with that horrible solemnity which marks the oaths of the boys in the sport business when they are affirming trivial matters.

Did you ever hear a prize fighter state upon his word of honor that he busted his hand in the fourth round? They conjure the most morbid penalties, such as "I hope I may never see my dear old mother again if I did not crack my hand on his elbow," or "may lightning strike my little girl dead where she stands this minute if I am not telling you the truth."

But, returning to old Mr. O'Leary, who was foot walking for money when Queen Victoria was a bride, and who still is walking the bases at town ball yards before crowds that were, in the main, unborn when he was half a century old, I find him to be a hesitant sitter. It seems as though the impetus of 75 years of foot walking will carry him on and on when the marvelous old engine within him quits. They may have to lasso old Daniel for his own obsequies when the time comes.

Shuffles His Venerable Dogs Like Tap Dancer on Edge.

He stands a little apart from the desks and people, in a small clearing, and shuffles his venerable dogs like a tap dancer waiting to break into his routine. He is little and skinny as a sparrow and a trifle seedy but jaunty, too, if not positively cocky at the age of 90 years, which makes him senior to William Muldoon, the inveterate old man of New York.

"Sit."

Mr. O'Leary sits restlessly, like a bird trying to lie on its back. The old dogs tap and shuffle on the linoleum, and he taps the weathered old fingers which hoisted stem glasses in Piccadilly, London, W., when the kerosene lamp was an advanced and luxurious dood-dad of the well to do and champagne was 3 shillings a quart.

In County Cork he was born, not far from Queenstown. He is a little stubborn about calling Queenstown the Cove of Cork, which is the name of the place, so it is, because he remembers when the queen made a visit there along in the fifties and the British called it Queenstown without, so much as a "by your leave" to the Irish there.

"I remember," he says, "the big potato famine in Ireland and people dying at Skibbereen and Cork, although it was Ireland's own fault because they wouldn't plant turnips or wheat or anything but just potatoes like they need to plant nothing but cotton down south. There was a priest at Skibbereen named Father Davis and he went to England and came back with some money to buy some fishing boats so the men could go out and catch fish to relieve the famine. An English woman put up the money for Father Davis, so you will find people everywhere, even in England.

Sends Two of His Grandsons to College.

"We used to have wrestling, walking, football, hurling and bowling for sports when I was a boy around Cork, and I think we liked the hurling and football and bowling the best because the boys seemed to take a natural joy in games where they could swing some kind of a club, or kick something or throw a small, round rock, the size of an apple, which was the ball we bowled with, out on the road on Sundays."

William Muldoon is Daniel O'Leary's last living athletic contemporary, but the strong man is ailing now, and Daniel still walks the bases.

He pulled out a savings deposit book and ran his finger down the column.

"I have $7,000," he said, sliding the book back into his packet. "I am sending my two grandsons through college. You have got to have an education these days. Myself, I had no education, but I had good feet and legs under me and my heart is as good today after walking 300,000 miles, as it was in 1849."

Daniel O'Leary got up, shoved the chair away and fiddled his feet, shuff-shuff, on the linoleum.

"Well, I'm off. Walking the bases tomorrow. You have to keep hustling to lay up something for your old age."

TRACKS, GAMES FEATURE ANNUAL SVITHOID OUTING

The fourth annual track meet, field games and general outing of the Svithiod day outing will be held today at Batavia under the auspices of the 47 Svithiod lodges of Illinois. Leading athletes will participate in the meet at which an attendance of 25,000 is expected.

In conjunction with the track events there will be several wrestling and boxing bouts in which men from the Swedish-American, Danish-American, Finnish-American and Norwegian-American Athletic associations will compete. A baseball game between the Finnish-American A. A. and the Svithiod A. A. is scheduled; also a soccer game in which the Danish-American A. A. will oppose the Svithiod A. A. team.

The meet is open only to Scandinavians by birth or descent.

BRITAIN ASSUMES DAVIS CUP LEAD OVER HUNGARY

BUDAPEST, Hungary, June 15.—(AP)—Great Britain took a lead of two matches to one today in the semi-final round of the European Davis cup zone play by winning the doubles engagement from Hungary, Dr. J. C. Gregory and L. G. Collins turning back Baron Von Kehrling and Aschner, 6-2, 4-6, 6-2, 6-3.

Great Britain now needs but one victory in two remaining singles matches to reach the final round with either Germany or Szecho-Slovakia.

REIGH COUNT TO FACE SUPREME TEST THIS WEEK

Made 5 to 1 Choice for Ascot Cup.

BY ROBERT M. LEE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
[Copyright: 1929: By The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, June 15.—American interest in racing, even if that interest is intensified by local racing in the neighborhood of Chicago, just now is quite likely to be concentrated to an unusual degree this week in the running of the Ascot gold cup, which will be contested Thursday.

When Reigh Count, the American horse owned by Mrs. John D. Hertz of Chicago, lost three races consecutively in his English campaign for a championship position, there was a consequent dwindling of attention upon what this previously outstanding race horse might do. But when he swiftly returned to form and took the Coronation Cup race at Epsom in most courageous style his performance provided astonishment and a return of keen anxiety as to the outcome of the Ascot Cup race.

Reigh Count to Be Retired.

If Reigh Count wins he will have attained the ultimate in English racing, and with this, of course, the title to all time championship that is little likely to be disputed. When an English horse wins the Ascot gold cup he seldom runs again but is mantled with honors and retired to stud, amid the applause of all horsedom. This, according to Mrs. Hertz, win or lose, will be Reigh Count's future, based upon his American championship. Reigh Count, heading the Hertz English stable, starts for Chicago immediately after the Ascot race. He is insured for $500,000, and his last public appearance in all probability will be an exhibition at Arlington track during July.

Reigh Count's jockey at Ascot will depend on the decision of Viscount Lascelles to enter or withdraw his horse St. Jerome. If St. Jerome runs he will be ridden by Joe Childs, who is attached to the stables of King George. In this event Reigh Count will be ridden by H. Wragg, a premier jockey who, however, has not had Childs' experience with Reigh Count in trial gallops at Newmarket and over the Coronation course at Epsom.

Cup Established in 1807.

Irrespective of this, however, Reigh Count starts much nearer favoritism than his performances previous to the Coronation cup indicated. The price is now, however, around 5 to 1. Wragg's appearance as a jockey may affect this price as he has a record of winning the Lascelles derby with Felstead.

The Ascot cup was established in 1807, and except for an occasional brief lapse its history has been continuous.

The prize is the traditional gold cup and $15,000. The last American horse to win it was James R. Keene's Foxhall in 1882. In fifty years it was won thrice by French horses. This brings attention to the fact that most horsemen are now putting next Thursday's result between French horses and Reigh Count. The leading English entry is Invershin, owned by Reid Walker. Invershin won the Ascot last year and represents one of the few instances of an Ascot winner being re-entered. The French entries are Cri de Guerre, Caccao, and Palais Royale. The last two are owned by Baron Edmund de Rothschild.

It is one of the exposed secrets of racing that the French stables send two entries for the big races, one to run out as a pacemaker with the view of wearing out the field, while the second is laid back for a fast finish Last year Invershin's rider did not accept this palatable bait, but laid back on his own account and ran a flying finish when the pacemaker was ready to drop from his excessive exertions. Part of this style of running is adapted to Reigh Count and is considered necessary to victory on the Ascot track.

Course Starts Downhill.

The course begins down hill for the better part of a mile, then up for a similar distance, then down to some flat going, and finishes with more than a quarter mile of stiff uphill. The gradient is what kills the ambitious early runners. Unless a horse saves himself there is no pair of equine legs in the world stout enough to endure that crucifying finish on the hilltop.

In the Coronation at Ascot Reigh Count's early races were duplicated. He took the first three quarters of a mile uphill far in the rear. He gained a dozen laps round the turn into the straightaway. He did this at Louisville, Belmont and Saratoga. But at Epsom in the Coronation the finish, in addition to being down hill, sloped towards the rail. This going seemed to specify a lopsided horse whose left legs were shorter than the right. Jockey Childs reported his left leg was nearly numbed from trying to pull Reigh Count off the rail so unusual was this double slope to the American horse.

Much has been printed by various titled racing experts in the newspapers about the reports that Reigh Count bumped Plantago in the Coronation cup. It seems apparent, however, that the minor tempest of criticism has been restricted to experts. Jockey Childs, whose manner is that of an up country duke, and who is a person of means and standing in the racing world, not only denied with great particularity that Reigh Count in any way interfered with Plantago or any other horse, but has followed this by a general letter to critical writers.

Donoghue Backs Childs.

Steve Donoghue, who rides Sir Victor Sassoon's mount, was immediately behind Reigh Count through the finish. He said he watched the going closely and did not see any interference.

The incident is prolific with newspaper comment on English sportsmanship for not making a point of the interference. That is to say, while making a great point of the interference, experts emphasize the idea that if the English were not great sports something might be said about it.

It is mildly confusing to a person from the great open spaces. Casual conversations with many horse owners, however, provide the conclusion that the journalistic experts represent their own thought in the matter.

Ascot becomes the royal social center of England this week. In addition to the fact that the course is just reversed from our American way of running and is two and one-half miles in length, it is also peculiar that it is the one racing event, which under normal circumstances, requires the presence of the royal entourage. Gold cup day opens with the king's arrival in a coach with such splendor that the British never tire of regaling each other in description of his entrance. In front and behind are postilions of royal guards and gentlemen of the household in abundant profusion. After the first race the king desires tea to be served and everybody knocks off for an hour while cups, scones and biscuits are passed.

Thus refreshed the king and the people resume their programs and field glasses.

This year, however, there will be no royal parade. The king's illness prevents and the prince of Wales will do the honors by his mere presence. Tea will be issued, however.

A considerable group of Chicagoans are in London to attend Ascot, and this at least makes it seem probable that the American horse will have its own gallery, win or lose. If he wins the Americans will have plenty of help in their efforts to make the welkin ring, as is the habit in points west.

Kaufman's b. m., 6, by Sweep—Nettie K. Trained by owner. Went to post at 2:04. At post 3 minutes. Start good and slow. Won easily, second driving.

Sweep Net kept in the best going for the entire race moved up steadily, and drew out in the last furlong to win well in hand. Gold Ridge, also in the best going during the last quarter, came with a rush through the last sixteenth, and outstayed Her Answer. The latter was in the good part of the track, but was allowed to swerve down in deeper going by weak handling. Black Spot came from far back in the last quarter after being shuffled back in the early stages. Governor Pratt had no mishaps. Go Away tired. Watch On quit badly after a fast three furlong sprint.

Winner, Mrs. E. L. Swikard's ch. f., 2, by Supremus-Eyes of Youth. Trained by J. T. Taylor. Went to post at 2:48. At post 1 minute. Start good. Won easily, second driving.

Surpryse, energetically handled, saved ground to the stretch, moved up fast and, disposing of Chatter Anne in the last furlong, won drawing away with much in reserve. Chatter Anne, also ridden hard in the early part, took a good lead, but began tiring in the stretch. North Ypres showed a good effort, and held on fairly well in the final drive. High Gravity was allowed to drop completely out of it, and came with a rush in the stretch. Zev's Gold suffered much by weak handling and interference, and had little chance to race her best. Librarian was taken completely out of it soon after the start.

Hirsch's ch. g., 5, by John P. Grier-Captious. Trained by F. Tennant. Went to post at 3:30. At post 5 minutes. Start good and slow. Won driving, second the same.

Sixty began slowly, raced around the others with a rush before reaching the stretch, held on gamely in the stretch, but was allowed a swerve into Cheers, and outstayed her in the final strides. Cheers began fast, but was taken back in the first furlong, but moved fast when called on, and might have won but for the interference he suffered. Badger Face was always well up, and tired slightly near the end. Dreana Lee went fairly well. Paul Hertenstein quit fast after going three furlongs. Senator Seth was forced back immediately after the start, and was never serious.

Time, :23 3-5, :48 2-5, 1:15 1-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Black Beetle, $5.94 straight, $4.62 place, $3.10 show; Devon, $15.78 place, $6.00 show; Gaffsman, $4.02 show. Winner, P. Reuter's b. c., 4, by Black Toney-Moorland Melody. Trained by owner. Went to post at 4:16. At post 1 minute. Start good. Won easily, second driving.

Black Beetle, outrun in the early stages, saved much ground when entering the stretch and, standing a hard drive gamely, drew into the lead a furlong out, and outstayed Devon. The latter also began slowly, and raced wide in the firmer going, and came strongly in the last furlong. Gaffsman, well up for most of the way, began tiring in the last furlong. Blushing Maiden showed a brief flight of early speed, and tired. Montanaro dropped out of it in the first quarter. Indian Love Call was a strong factor for half a mile before tiring.

Goose's b. m., 5, by Light Brigade-Plausible. Trained by R. Goose. Went to post at 6:16. At post 1 minute. Start good. Won driving, second the same.

Flattery dropped out of it after going half a mile, but came again with a rush through the stretch and, holding on well, overhauled Maxiva in the last sixteenth. Maxiva showed the most early speed, and seemed to have the race when reaching the stretch, but tired and was in the deep going during the last furlong. Wacker Drive, far back for half a mile, continued wide in good going, and finished fast through the stretch. Aviator moved up determinedly before reaching the stretch, but tired badly. Isostacy raced well for six furlongs before tiring.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse $1,200. Three year olds and up. Claiming. Net value to winner, $900; second, $254; third, $136.

Allen's blk. h., 5, by Calkennie-Amazon. Trained by owner. Went to post at 6:53. At post 1 minute. Start good. Won driving, second the same.

Gotham moved up fast after going half a mile and, holding on gamely when urged hard, just managed to get up in the closing strides. Sweet Mandy, racing in her best form, moved into the lead when approaching the stretch, but began tiring steadily in the last sixteenth. Overfire was well up for the entire trip, but tired in the last furlong. Adele W. was taken completely out of it in the early stages, but came fast in the stretch. Colonel Seth and Milady retired after going three quarters.

TOLEDO TRACK PICKS OFFICIALS FOR CIRCUIT MEET

Toledo, O., June 15.—[Special].—Toledo driving club directors have picked officials to preside at the grand circuit meet to be held at the Fort Miami track the week of June 24.

Joe McGraw, Washington, Pa., is presiding judge and Tom Gehagan, Detroit, his assistant. Steve Phillips of Zenia is starting judge. C. L. Floyd, Hartford, Conn., will coöperate with Phillips, and Herbert J. Kohl, Columbus, will have charge of paddock.

Toledo races will inaugurate the first night racing on the Grand Circuit. The track was lighted every night this week, so the horses could practice and get accustomed to the lights.

New York, June 15.—[Special.]—Except when Exterminator won in 1922, the oldest horse to win the Brooklyn handicap since the war scored today at Aqueduct when the six yeor old Light Carbine, owned by I. B. Humphreys, finished in front. Light Carbine bore his years as lightly as his impost—he was in under the feather of 97 pounds—and showed his heels to crack handicap horses of three and four.

A length and a half back at the end of the mile and a furlong route was Diavolo, winner of the Dixie Handicap, and four lengths more to the bad was Sun Beau. The race was worth $14,300 and produced comparatively few thrills for the crowd of 15,000 as Light Carbine was never threatened in the long stretch run.

BEAUCAIRE TAKES 3 GAITED HONORS AT HORSE SHOW

Kentucky Entry Defeats International Field.

Beaucaire, of the blue grass country, cantered out of the ring yesterday with a ribbon emblematic of the three gaited championship at the South Shore Country club's horse show fluttering from his bridle.

The handsome, smooth-stepping chestnut gelding is owned by Charles T. Fisher of Lexington, Ky., proprietor of Dixiana. Likely Lady, entered by Mr. and Mrs. Harold Palmer of Grosse Point, Mich., was second. Glint o' Gold, owned by Martha Nicolaus, was third, and W. D. Alexander's Romany Acres, fourth.

In winning the championship of the show, Beaucaire beat off the challenge of some of the finest saddle horses in America. He stood out above entries from Canada, West Virginia, California and Kentucky.

The Wizard, aged entry of the Canadian Sifton stables, was crowned king of the hunters. He went soaring over the hurdles in graceful style. Stonegate's Ozella took second and the Sifton stables scored again by winning third with Brian Boru.

Lillian Sydles trotted at a dizzy clip to win the Roadster stake, a prize for gentlemen's driving horses capable of speed when used with a light vehicle. She is the property of Dr. Daniel A. Orth of Wheaton, Ill.

AFTERNOON EVENTS.

FIVE GAITED SADDLE HORSE—Won by Naughty But Nice [Miss Mary Fiers]; Claire Castix [Dr. Daniel A. Orth], second; Blondie [W. G. Valentine], third.

GIG HORSE—Won by Leading Article [John R. Thompson]; Newton Victor [Fox Chapel Farms], second; Scottish Rite [Mrs. A. C. Thompson], third.

$1,000 THREE GAITED STAKE—Won by Beaucaire [Dixiana]; Likely Lady [Mr. and Mrs. Harold Palmer], second; Glint o' Gold [Miss Martha Nicolaus], third; Romany Acres [W. D. Alexander], fourth; Beau Cavalier [Herbert M. Woolf], fifth; Ivoletta [Dr. C. H. Bramwell], sixth.

HOUSE OF DAVID TO PLAY FLORALS AND MILLS TODAY

Two Chicago teams will be hosts to the colorful House of David nine in today's semi-pro baseball feature games. In the morning the bewhiskered Benton Harbor, Mich., players will invade Shrewbridge field for a game with the Duffy Forals, and in the afternoon they will appear at Mills' stadium against the Mills.

Manager Harley will rely on his mound ace, Lefty Sullivan, to stop the Benton Harbor club in the combat at Mills' stadium. Forrest Paddock will be held in reserve.

The Florals also are scheduled to play in the afternoon at Shrewbridge field, with the Battle Creek Postums furnishing the opposition. Johnny Duffy, owner of the Florals, has strengthened his lineup with the acquisition of Elmer Olson, Whitie Rentz, Charley Lyons and Sweetman. Today's semi-pro schedule:

House of David vs. Duffy Florals at Shrewbrkige field, 10:30 a. m.

House of David vs. Mills Stadium, 3 p. m.

Colored All Stars vs. Steamfitters at Normal Park [two games].

Hoellens at Hammond, Ind.

YANKS DROP HURLER.

New York, June 15.—(AP)—Myles L. Thomas, Yankee right hander, was released to Washington on waivers today, the management of the New York club announced. Thomas was obtained from Toronto of the International league three years ago.

Kahn Stops Blanchard in Sixth at Eau Claire

Eau Claire, Wis., June 15.—(AP)—Harry Kahn, slugging Milwaukee lightweight, scored a technical knockout over Reddy Blanchard of Battle Creek, in the sixth round of a scheduled ten round bout here last night. Kahn outclassed Blanchard throughout the fight, taking every round and administering severe punishment to his opponent almost at will.

SIGNS COAST LEAGUE UMPIRE.

New York, June 15.—(AP)—William B. Carpenter, umpire in chief of the International league, announced today that he had signed Umpire Joe Becker, for four years a member of the staff of the Pacific Coast league and released Umpire W. T. Gaston.

MYSZA HURLS AND BATS HARRISON TO 9-0 VICTORY

Joe Mysza, Harrison Tech's star pitcher, led his team to a 9 to 0 triumph over Crane, west section titleholder, in a semi-final City league game at Mills stadium yesterday. The victory, Harrison's second in the semi-final round, made it a strong contender for the city title. Harrison finished second to Crane in the west division race, each team winning one game of their series.

Mysza held Crane to three hits and contributed a triple, double and single to the Harrison offensive, the double coming with the bases loaded in the fifth inning. Zapalik and Gondek each aided the winners' attack with a pair of hits. Arrigo, Vreules and Bocek were the three Crane batters to connect with Mysza's offerings. Score:

Crane	000	000	0	0—3—4

LAKE VIEW, 1; BOWEN, 0.

Hardy's sixth inning single scored Pitcher Olander to give Lake View its second semi-final victory in the City league at Normal park yesterday. The game was a pitching duel between Olander and Henshaw, each allowing only three hits. Henshaw struck out nine against Olander's six, but granted six passes, while the Lake View hurler gave only one. Score:

Bowen	000	000	0	0—3—2

Batteries—Olander and Kott; Henshaw and Blastic.

LINDBLOM, 3; ENGLEWOOD, 1.

Lindblom and Englewood, central section rivals, met again in a semi-final tilt at Byrne field yesterday and the former won, 3 to 1. Charlie Mack, Lindblom hurling ace, allowed only two hits and fanned eight, while Joe Ponzevic of Englewood was touched for six blows. Score:

Lindblom	010	100	1	3—6—1
Englewood	000	100	0	1—2—1

Batteries—Mack and Sohr; Ponzevic and Wolf.

TIERNEY TO JOIN MUSKOGEE.

Joplin, Mo., June 15.—[Special.]—Cotton Tierney, formerly manager of the Pueblo club of the Western league and a veteran of the Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, and Brooklyn National league teams, will join the Muskogee Western association club, it was announced yesterday. He will play third base.

The Inquiring Reporter

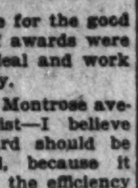
Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question.

The Tribune will pay $5 for each question accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send name and address with your question to "Inquiring Reporter," Chicago Tribune. For today's question Andrew J. Thelen, 1230 Chauncey avenue, West Lafayette, Ind., was awarded $5.

The Question.

Do you approve of the major leagues abolishing the most valuable player awards?

The Answers.



Jack Souders, 210 South Francisco avenue, cook—Not exactly. Inasmuch as there are so many players of value to their respective teams, a single award within a league is not sufficient. One award is productive of jealousy and does not compensate for the good it does. If a number of awards were provided, it would be ideal and work out more advantageously.

W. D. MacCourt, 5117 Montrose avenue, artist—I believe the award should be continued, because it increases the efficiency of the player, and it also gives baseball fans something to look forward to. Awards in athletics always stimulate interest and spur competitors to greater efforts.

Wallace Arthur, 114 Walton place, actor—Why should they discontinue the awards? If a motion picture director finishes a picture before specified time, he usually receives a bonus; if actors make an especially good scene they are usually rewarded in some substantial manner. In sports it is even more important that there should be an added incentive or attraction.

Paul Plunkett, 3045 South Elizabeth street, elevator man—The award should not be abolished. If a man puts in a good season on his team, it is no more than fair that he should be rewarded. However, I'd scatter the bouquets more freely; that is, not restrict it to one man. Each year there are several players worthy of an award.

Alex Turnbull, 6812 Lakewood avenue, office manager—I believe the big league magnates made the right move when they voted to discontinue the valuable player awards. Exceptional players deserve recognition for their skill, but I think they're getting all that is coming to them in the form of fan worship and large salaries.

PRINCETON POLOISTS WIN.

Philadelphia, Pa., June 15.—(AP)—The Princeton polo team defeated West Point Military academy, 11 to 4, today, in the first match for the intercollegiate championship.

IRVING PARK WINS Y. M. C. A. TRACK, FIELD CARNIVAL

Thirteen Meet Marks Are Shattered.

Table of Points

Irving Park	40	111th Street	8½
Sears Roebuck	39 1-3	Lincoln-Belmont	6
Englewood	24½	Austin	3
West Side	24	Division Street	2
Wilson Avenue	12 1-3	Evanston	1
South Chicago	12	Wabash	1-3

Scoring a total of 40 points, athletes representing the Irving Park Y. M. C. A. yesterday won the second annual state track and field carnival. Sears Roebuck was second and Englewood third. Nearly two hundred from junior and intermediate classes participated. Eleven Chicago departments and one each from Evanston and Oak Park made up the field.

In all, thirteen meet records were shattered. Among the record breakers were: James Litz of the west side department in the junior C 50 yard dash, running high jump and broad jump; Robert Connan of Irving Park in the junior B 50 and 75 yard dashes; Sam Naismith and W. D. Stoney in record tie for junior A high jump; Walter Bowen of Evanston in the intermediate high jump; John Sautter of Sears Roebuck in the broad jump; C. Baltori of west side in the hop, step and jump; west side in the intermediate one-half mile relay; Irving Park in the junior B 440 yard relay; Englewood in the junior C 440 yard relay, and Kerlin Nattinger of Wilson avenue in the junior B running high jump.

Saturday the senior division of the championship track and field meet will be staged on Sears field. Many out of town teams will compete.

CARYL, YACHT CHALLENGER, WINS FIRST RACE

ROTHESAY, Scotland, June 15.—(AP)—W. F. Robertson's new eight meter yacht Caryl, the challenger for the American Seawanhaka cup, celebrated her maiden appearance by winning from five other yachts in an eight meter class race of the Northern Yacht club regatta today. It was a keen race over a twenty mile course. F. J. Stephen's Coila, hitherto unbeaten this season, was second.

The Caryl will be shipped to America for the Seawanhaka race in September.

MARMON-BUILT

Nothing succeeds like
GIVING THE MOST... FOR THE MONEY

The World's First Straight-Eight under $1000

THE Roosevelt is the biggest new success of 1929. The reason is the car itself—the simple, easily understood principle of giving the most for the money.

Compare the Roosevelt with any car at or near the $1000 figure on the basis of these important features:

Motor—Marmon-built straight-eight, 70 H. P., more power by far than any car at this price.

Appearance—So wonderfully harmonious and correct that it meets the desire for simplicity; the feeling for character; the urge for newness—all in one satisfying glance.

Easy Riding—81% of wheelbase is covered by long, flexible springs . . . You can step from almost any car into the Roosevelt and get a genuine thrill from the added comfort.

Sturdiness—The Roosevelt is no mere figure of the boulevards . . . It's built for the open spaces as well. Put it in the mountains; the desert; the oil fields . . . It will come out just as confidently as it went in.

Economy—The Roosevelt charges not one cent of premium for extra performance . . . In fact, no car could be more "tight fisted" in economy.

Protecting Your Investment—The Roosevelt is a straight-eight . . . This type won't be obsoleted. Not only will it serve longer, but it will be worth more after it has served.

Again we invite you—just compare . . . May we send a Roosevelt to you today?

A Marmon-built straight-eight for every purse—Roosevelt, $995; Marmon 68, $1465; Marmon 78, $1965. Prices at factory. Group equipment extra.

TOLLEY REGAINS BRITISH AMATEUR GOLFING CROWN

Consistently outdriven, Smith, nevertheless, chalked the faces of his wooden clubs with a piece of blue chalk he uses on other days for drawing lines in his carpenter shop and smacked his own shots straight and true.

At the 22nd hole Tolley hit a fine iron to the green and with this seemed to divest himself of the strain that was beginning to tell on both players. He then played great golf to the close. His performance over the next five holes was enough to break the heart of a less courageous man than Smith but the Scotsman hit back by winning three.

Tolley's position was unassailable, however, and no matter how hard Smith hammered, the big English star held his lead and with a long putt won the 32nd to become dormie. The 33rd was carefully halved and the title was Tolley's.

TOLLEY LONG HITTER

BY HARLAND ROHM.

Cyril James Hastings Tolley, the thirty-three year old Briton, who won the British amateur golf championship for the second time yesterday is one of the longest hitters in golf. A big, powerful chap, both tall and broad, his tremendous drives are famed not only in England but internationally.

A few years ago Tolley played in the United States and for a week was the guest of Bobby Jones at Atlanta. If Jones isn't the longest driver in the United States, the longest hitter is in hiding, and Bob and Tolley had a lot of fun at the East Lake course "slugging" golf balls. Yet, even Jones' magnificent smashes off the tees were passed as much as twenty and thirty yards by Tolley's drives. On one hole he carried a creek that crosses the fairway 280 yards from the tee.

Drives Into Record Book.

Two of Tolley's drives have won places in the record books. In the open championship at Troon in 1923 he drove the first green and sank his putt for a two on the 350 yard hole. In the amateur championship the same year his drive carried into a ditch guarding the green at the first hole. The hole is 330 yards and the ditch is 310 yards from the tee.

In winning the British amateur championship the first time in 1920, Tolley had one of the historic battles in golf with Robert A. Gardner of Chicago. It was the first championship after the great war and Gardner had fought his way through the usual huge field to the final. And the final was a battle royal.

At the end of the first round Gardner was two up and in the second round Tolley doggedly came from behind to stand three up with four to play. Gardner, with renewed determination won two holes, halved another and won the 36th to square the match. On the extra hole which decided the match Gardner put his tee shot 25 feet to the left of the pin, while Tolley was 12 feet short of the cup. Gardner laid his approach putt dead, but Tolley holed his twelve footer for a birdie two winning the hole and the match.

Onda, Jap Davis Cup Star, Wins Metropolitan Title

New York, June 15.—(AP)—Sadakazu Onda, Japanese Davis cup player, captured the metropolitan clay court singles tennis championship today by defeating Melvin Partridge, former Dartmouth star, in the final round, 3-6, 6-4, 6-3, 6-2.

Indian Youth Beats De Mar in Los Angeles Marathon

Los Angeles, Cal., June 15.—(AP)—Harry Chauca, 19 year old Hopi Indian, won the first annual Los Angeles Times pre-Olympic marathon race today, scoring a convincing victory over Clarence De Mar, the Melrose, Mass., veteran and favorite in the event.

SCORES OF GOLFERS WHO DIDN'T GO TO THE DERBY

C. E. MEKOTA, a guest of J. W. Murphy, gathered two birdies on the 535 yard ninth hole at Euclid Hills yesterday when his brassie second killed a bird in flight across the fairway and he followed this up by scoring a "birdie" four on the hole. In the 18 hole match play against par, W. M. Writt finished two up on par. His card showed 42—41—83—10—73. G. S. Geary was 1 up.

MOTORS — TRAFFIC — HIGHWAYS

WIDER ASHLAND AVENUE TO GIVE MOTORIST RELIEF

Pavement Now Is Being Laid.

Motorists of the northwest side see relief in the activities now manifested by paving contractors on North Ashland avenue from Irving Park boulevard to Winnemac avenue. Forty more feet of paving surface is being laid on the street for that distance—eleven city blocks—and it is being done with traffic moving through.

In the 4400 block a number of building fronts are being sacrificed to traffic and this phase of the assessment job is about all the damage items included. For the greater part of the way the extra width has been obtained by placing the curb back across a portion of the parkway which has existed along the thoroughfare since it was laid out. While many trees have been removed, there are still some remaining, and these are more numerous at the northern section.

Where to Go?

The improvement of Ashland avenue is one of the many dragging, holdover widening projects which were planned years ago. While it will provide better motor traffic facilities north of Irving Park boulevard, the assembly and distribution of traffic will remain a problem, for the plaza at Devon avenue ends there and cars may then go only west to Western avenue or McCormick boulevard.

South of Irving Park boulevard on Ashland there are street car tracks and motor transit is achieved with many dangers. Through traffic is not interested greatly in south arteries at that point, for Ashland avenue ceases to exist as a thoroughfare at Fullerton avenue. It resumes at Cortland street, three blocks of North avenue, but is of no use to automobiles for a distance of several miles to the south, where the boulevard portion starts again at Madison and Ogden avenue and continues to Roosevelt road and thence to 22d street.

The real value of the current improvement above Irving Park boulevard lies in the fact that it can serve as a connecting link between Greenview avenue, a throgh street one block to the east, from Diversey parkway to the Clark street-Ashland avenue plaza above Victoria street, which has a great width of pavement from the latter street to Devon avenue.

Will Serve Fast Traffic.

South of Victoria street, North Ashland avenue has been well paved and fairly well maintained as a through street to a point near Winona avenue, so that the northern portion will still serve fast traffic if the pavement is kept in repair. The work now being done will extend the high speed surface all the way to Irving Park boulevard, where traffic may jog over onto Greenview and proceed as far south as Diversey, thence eastward to the Lincoln park boulevard system and downtown, or westward into the west park system and south and southwest as far as desired.

Completed Ashland avenue will speed up traffic facilities for cars seeking to get on the north and northwest state highways. Starting from The Tribune Tower a car may travel rapidly north to Diversey, west to Greenview, north to Irving Park boulevard, jog slightly to the left and north to Granville avenue (a protected street), west to North Francisco avenue, north to Devon and west to McCormick boulevard. From McCormick boulevard lateral thoroughfares connect with all the northwest state highways, as well as Waukegan road and Sheridan road.

NEW ROAD WILL OPEN OUT OF WAY PARTS OF FRANCE

An automobile route which will make unfrequented parts of France accessible to tourists is in project under the direction of the engineer Pigelet. The route will start from the Le Bourget aeroport, with a common base as high as Breteuil, in l'Oise. From there two branch lines will be established; the Flemish route, leading to Lille, and the British route, finishing at Calais.

The route will be constructed of concrete, or brick of sandstone terra cotta clay, depending upon local conditions. It will run above or below existing railway lines and other transportation routes and be subject to a toll tax. Watch stations for the surveyance and repairing of the line and the provisioning of travelers and vehicles will be provided along the route.

Uniform Auto Laws for N. and S. America Planned

Uniform traffic regulation for the nations of the western hemisphere, as well as between cities themselves, is brought forward as a possibility following the action of the Pan-American Union requesting, by resolution, the consideration of this subject at the forthcoming sessions of the second Pan-American congress of highways, to convene at Rio de Janeiro in August of this year.

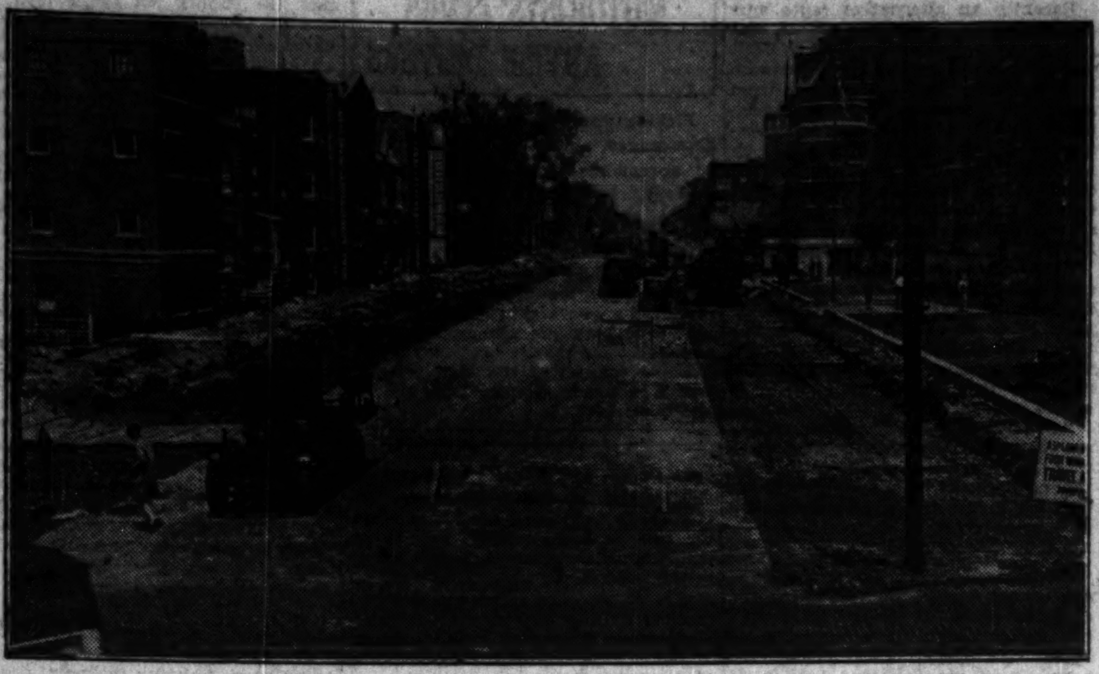
1,145 Horses, 9,725,470 Autos Cross Toll Bridge

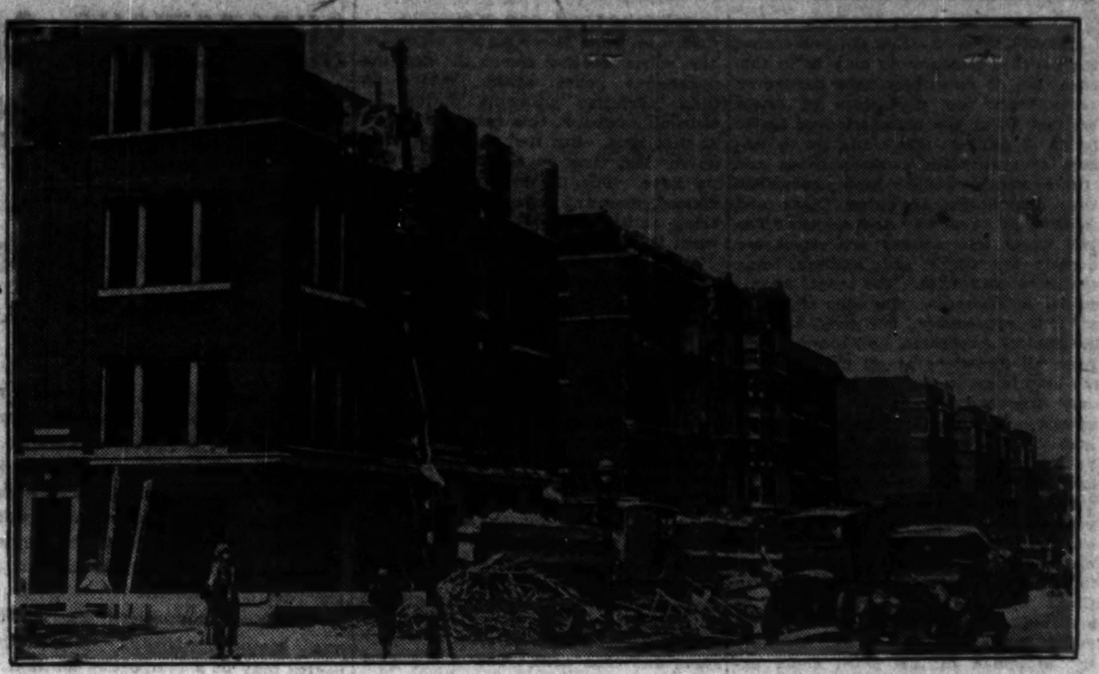
Only 1,145 horses crossed the Philadelphia-Camden toll bridge over the Delaware river in 1928, although there was a record total traffic of 9,725,470 vehicles. In 1927, the total traffic was 6,593,201 vehicles, and of this number 5,169 were horse drawn. The gross receipts from the bridge last year were $2,827,786.83, an increase of $355,274.93 over the preceding year.

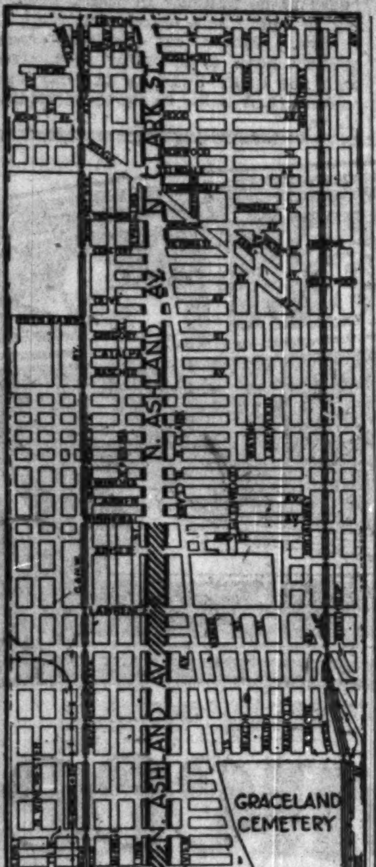
Los Angeles Has Traffic Light Worked by Walkers

A new form of crossing signal has been designed in Los Angeles, Cal., which allows pedestrians to cross streets while acting as their own traffic officers. A push button works the signal that stops traffic for fifteen seconds, after which it automatically reverts to the "clear" position for twenty-five seconds.

AT WORK ON NEGLECTED ASHLAND AVENUE







Pavers are working on Ashland avenue north of Irving Park boulevard and south of Winnemac avenue. When completed this section will connect the through route, Greenview avenue, at the south, with the Clark street plaza at Devon avenue, offering a modicum of relief for northwest traffic.

NEWS AND VIEWS

Thomas J. Hay, head of the Willys-Knight distributing organization, announces appointment of H. H. Drew in charge of retail sales; Harrison Goldsmith, R. L. Bell and George Hickey in charge of wholesale sales, used car sales and service, respectively. The Hay organization has leased and will occupy the three story building adjoining at the north, to care for expansion of sales and service.

Auburn announces the introduction of a system of factory methods for servicing cars by dealers. Bert McInnis, developer of the system, has been appointed executive in charge of this branch, not only in a supervisory capacity but also in an educational campaign.

Studebaker is placing on the market a new inter-city 25 passenger bus, built on a straight eight chassis of 220 inches wheelbase.

One million Ford all steel wheels have just been produced within a period of forty-two days at the company's Hamilton, O., plant, sufficient for 200,000 automobiles giving each car five wheels.

Within two years cars without four-speed transmission will be as obsolete as cars without four-wheel brakes, predicts Col. E. S. Gorrell, president of Stutz.

To more conveniently handle demands for fleets of Chrysler made units, including Chryslers, Dodge Brothers, DeSoto, Plymouth and Fargo divisions, from merchants and manufacturers, the national business sales department has been formed. Additional representatives have been assigned to serve fleet owners in districts supplied by Chicago.

Nash makes known the expenditure of $5,000,000 in an expansion program, including machine reoutfitting for half the amount and plant enlargements at Kenosha, Racine and Milwaukee. Increased power, storage, furnace and transportation terminal facilities are among the items of new improvements.

Figures available indicate that the combined product of the Ford and Chevrolet are now furnishing at least 50 per cent of the cars placed in the hands of consumers. Pontiacs, Essex and Whippets are accounting for at least 65,000 monthly.

Hawaiian Autoists Pay Licenses by Car Weight

A new auto tax measure, to be introduced in Hawaii, provides for a 3 cent tax on gasoline, ½ a cent a pound weight tax for all vehicles equipped with pneumatic tires, and 1 cent a pound weight tax for cars and trucks with solid tires. Owners of motor vehicles now pay for their licenses at the rate of 1 cent a pound. Such a levy runs the cost of the lightest cars above $20.

MAN IN OREGON WONDERS IF HIS AUTO IS AN AUTO

Something unique in an automobile, if that is what it is, has been built by J. S. Eastham, Cottage Grove, Ore. It has the front wheels and axle of a Ford and the mechanism of a motorcycle geared to a single rear wheel.

Although not built primarily for speed, it has developed nearly 90 miles in trial spins, and its owner may enter it in automobile races if he can get it classified as an automobile. The entire machine, which stands less than three feet high, weighs only 465 pounds, and has been built so that it cannot easily leave the road. The hood slopes down at a sharp angle, and the wind pressure, while it may lessen the speed, holds the machine on the road.

A rudder at the rear end is designed to hold the machine to the road on sharp curves. The rudder is operated by the steering wheel, turning in the opposite direction from the wheels, thereby getting pressure to keep the machine from skidding. The front tires carry nine pounds of air and the rear one 40 pounds.

STORY OF TOLL ROADS TOLD IN PICTURES BY U. S.

"Travelers Toll," a three reel film recently released for distribution by the United States department of agriculture, is a dramatization of the tale of an old time toll gate keeper as told to two young transcontinental motorists. He tells of the discarding of the toll collection and tax labor methods of paying for road improvement and of the adoption of modern methods based upon property taxes, motor vehicles, fees, gasoline taxes and bond issues, which is making possible the rapid improvement of the highways of the United States. The film was produced by the office of motion pictures for the bureau of public roads.

The old man's yarn begins in 1875, when he was a young toll gate keeper, and when the only good roads were those built by turnpike companies and supported by tolls. The roads were well kept as long as traffic was sufficient to pay for repairs.

WISCONSIN WILL PAVE 338 MILES OF ROAD IN 1929

Wisconsin will pave 338.41 miles of highway during the 1929 construction season, according to the construction department of the state highway commission.

This is an increase over 1928 of 35.44 miles, when 302.93 miles were paved.

Contracts have already been let for the construction of 165.83 miles of the total 1929 mileage.

HIGHWAY SIGNS CONDEMNED BY AUTO CHAMBER

The National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, at a meeting in New York, adopted resolutions condemning the erection of signboards on highways in such positions that they menace safety and mar the scenery. The resolutions, in part, were:

"Advertising billboards erected in large number along and adjacent to the highways unnecessarily mar the appearance of the countryside and detract from the pleasures of motoring.

"Such signs are in many cases erected at points, such as curves, and railroad and highway intersections, where they are a positive menace to the safety of operators and users of motor vehicles. By distracting the attention of drivers they may be a contributing cause to accidents.

"The National Automobile Chamber of Commerce endorses civic efforts to improve this situation in the public interest and specifically and emphatically disapproves of any and all advertising along our rural highways which may imperil life, limb or property."

Women's Courtesy Complex Leads to Auto Accidents

The feminine automobile driver's "courtesy complex" is responsible for a large number of minor accidents, in the opinion of Mrs. Mattie G. Tipton, Jacksonville policewoman. "The woman at the wheel feels that she is entitled to certain privileges, traffic laws or no traffic laws, and she is going to have them," said Mrs. Tipton. "She cuts corners, ignores traffic lights and makes pedestrians jump for their lives. Yet, Mrs. Tipton pointed out, most of the serious automobile accidents are laid to the male driver. "Only about 15 per cent of the automobile fatalities involve women drivers," she commented.

—but you needn't be an expert to see why!

Here are the plain facts:—

Pennzoil is made from the highest quality Pennsylvania crude—admittedly the best source for lubricating oil in the world. (This crude sells for more than double the average price of all other crudes right at the wells.)

Pennzoil is refined by the most complete and modern methods known to the petroleum industry—the famous Pennzoil process. It is made by the world's largest refiners of pure Pennsylvania oil.

And yet—it costs less to use. Because of its quality, Pennzoil lasts fully twice as long as ordinary oil, so that it actually costs you less to use. No wonder thousands of motor car dealers and over 1,000,000 motorists say, "Use it!"

Sold by dealers from Maine to California who believe in quality merchandise. They are good men to deal with.

MOTORS — TRAFFIC — HIGHWAYS

ASKS A SINGLE AUTHORITY FOR ALL ROADMAKING

Defects of Present System Basis for Demand.

BY PUTNEY HAIGHT.

The failure of the city, county and state to provide highways of adequate width and continuity for the motor traffic of the Chicago area with the tremendous funds that have been contributed by motor vehicle owners and other taxpayers, has led Charles M. Hayes, president of the Chicago Motor club to submit to Gov. Louis L. Emmerson a suggestion for a solution to the problem which daily is becoming more acute.

Observations in the last few days on main arteries of travel indicate that the congestion of 1929 will surpass anything in automobile history round about Chicago, the highway and street departments having been unable to keep up with the growth in numbers and the increase in use of cars in any proportionate degree.

Mr. Hayes points out that in the Chicago area there is not one continuous artery of adequate width, although highway officials of the city, county and state have been working at such an improvement for nearly twenty years, and have expended vast sums of money.

Wants Authority Set Up.

His suggestion to the governor is that a competent authority over vehicular thoroughfares in the Chicago area be set up by the state, with power to design, finance and construct a definite system. In commenting on the existing situation he says:

"There is not a single main motor traffic artery leading into Chicago, whether of the state, county or city system—any one or all—which is without major defects or which offers traffic continuity for any considerable distance.

"There has not been a single alternative route, by which motorists might escape either the heavy congestion of these arteries or the poor paving or the narrow and angular sections, suggested by county, city or state officials which comes anywhere near equaling in quality the defective main arteries.

"In other words, highway construction administration thus far in our road history has been more of a failure than a success, so far as traffic needs are concerned. This applies not only in Illinois, but nearly everywhere else. What it will be in future may be judged by the sad, though although ridiculous results in the past, unless some more effective policy of coördinated design and construction can be devised.

A Piecemeal System.

"The best that can be said for the system is that it is piecemeal. Some completed units are modern. These are nullified by connecting units which are antiquated. Some completed units are wide. The width is rendered futile by narrow connections. Some completed units are both wide and well paved. These are of little use because of connections that are poorly paved.

"In the last five years $100,000,000 has been spent upon highways in the Chicago area by the state, county, city, and sanitary and park districts, yet not one thoroughfare is continuously improved in a uniform manner.

"The solution for this problem in the Chicago area is a simple one, though undoubtedly difficult to achieve. It lies in the creation of a body designed to exercise complete and intelligent authority over the whole subject of thoroughfares, which would have the power to direct the expenditures of all funds available for highway purposes; to design coördinated, continuous thoroughfares which would meet the needs of traffic, and to allocate funds to specific projects under priority designation."

Growing Highway Snarl.

Such an authority, created by legislative act, could straighten out the growing highway snarl within a year or two and put under way the projects for essential facilities which economical motor traffic seeks, he believes.

The nearest to an adequate thoroughfare existing in the Chicago area, it is generally admitted, is Western avenue [Dixie highway]. This highway penetrates into the city only as far as 26th street. It terminates, so far as traffic is concerned, at 147th street.

Waukegan road is a four lane thoroughfare from Touhy avenue to the county line at the north. At Lake county line it narrows to two lanes. At Touhy avenue it joins Milwaukee avenue, which is impractical south of Lawrence avenue.

Ogden avenue is four or more lanes from 26th street and Cicero avenue to Lyons [with one break]. West of Lyons it is narrow and terribly paved. At Cicero avenue and 26th street it narrows to two lanes as it passes under the railway and then is a badly paved street car highway to the boulevard system.

Indianapolis avenue, wide and well paved, pours traffic into the street car infested Ewing avenue, after which it is twisted and turned, over poorly paved, angling streets until it reaches the narrow, antiquated South Shore boulevard. At the south it pours traffic through the maze of East Chicago, Whiting and toward Gary.

An Elevated Roosevelt Road.

Sheridan road, along the north shore, possesses sections which would be adequate if continuous. Physical defects render the avenue inefficient for the traffic which seeks travel way over it.

Roosevelt road, over 100 feet wide from the lake to the city limits, four lanes wide to the county limits, and 20 feet thereafter, is so badly paved and intersected within the city that it does not serve traffic. An elevated or two level highway on this street would be the greatest traffic achievement possible for Chicago.

Milwaukee avenue is worthless within the city, is six lanes wide just beyond the limits and is under construction as a four lane road to the county limits. When complete, probably in 1930, it will pour traffic on to a narrow pavement at the county line.

VOICE OF THE TRAFFIC

A HINT OF POLITICS.

Chicago, June 13.—I do not know what the political background may be in this case, but it is evident that something aside from the necessities of traffic brought about the installation of traffic lights at Addison street and North Racine avenue, when common sense and traffic counts would have compelled their installation at either Clark and Addison or Broadway and Addison. The two latter intersections are street car corners—the Clark and Addison being the more distressful. The tangle at this corner is incessant. The stop signs are at four approaches, but they are not mechanically operated, and compel stops from all directions at all times. After the stop is made the cars plunge across and frequently cars from opposite streets launch their plunge at the same instant. Right and left turns are permitted and there are plenty of right and left turns. Between the street cars, trucks, and automobiles crossing the intersection without control it is not strange that tangles characterise the place. With the alternating control lights now at Racine avenue moved to Clark street much relief would be achieved. The necessity at Racine avenue is far less than at Clark. Possibly the alderman in this ward could explain the bungle.
PETER LUMB.

ANOTHER ENFORCEMENT JOKE.

Chicago, June 11.—It required fully eight minutes to travel two blocks from Hamlin to Crawford avenue on Jackson boulevard due to machines being parked on both sides of the street. Are the owners of these cars privileged characters, or is it due to the laxity of the park police force? I notice signs all along the boulevard saying: "No parking here at any time, by order of west park commissioners." I am wondering if those orders are supposed to be enforced.
AL C. MYERS.

HOLES IN THE PAVEMENTS.

Chicago, June 12.—As a taxpayer I have filed a suit for an injunction against the Peoples Gas, Light and Coke company and the commissioner of public works asking that they be restrained from making any more holes in the streets until they repair the ones already made. In this bill for an injunction I invite all other motorists and taxpayers in the city to join me and thus eliminate the situation described in your article. Therefore if the residents of the neighborhood in question as well as automobile users of that section and all other parts of the city where openings have been made and not repaired will communicate with me something might happen to change the attitude of the city administration and the public utilities as regards street openings.

As an amusing side light, the motion for a temporary injunction was argued on April 29, at which time the attorney for the gas company stated that no asphalt repairs could be made before May 1 on account of the weather. Thirteen openings made in my neighborhood were being repaired at the exact time the argument in court was going on.
ARTHUR L. ISREAL.

WHOSE RESPONSIBILITY?

Chicago, June 10.—On Memorial day, when no cars were allowed to enter Calvary cemetery and no parking allowed on Sheridan road, men, women, and children, many of them carrying heavy baskets of flowers, had to walk through heavy sand for about two blocks in the midst of traffic, in order to gain entrance to the cemetery.

This is always a hazardous strip of road, and in the summer, especially, with heavy traffic in both directions and great numbers of people walking down to the beach, it is nothing short of criminal neglect to postpone the laying of a sidewalk.

If the job belongs to Evanston, where is its civic spirit? If it is up to Calvary cemetery, cannot the rich diocese of Chicago afford to do what the owner of the humblest cottage is forced to do—lay a sidewalk in front of his property?
I. R. KEARNS.

MOTORCYCLE COP MYSTERY.

Chicago, June 11.—With the arrival of nice warm weather comes the grafting motorcycle police again. Where do these parasites hibernate during inclement weather? One never sees them at that time. But they certainly make up for lost time on the first nice day we have. For the last week I have noticed, time and time again, motorists being subjected to arrest or a graft when there is no reason for it at all.

The officer patrolling North Western avenue, between Diversey and Lawrence, pulled the rawest deal that I have seen. He hides on a side street and pounces out on the car that may be in the lead of a string of cars, regardless of how fast he may be traveling. Then he grins at the rest as they pass by. Just what this grin means is hard to say. Probably to indicate what a great officer he is to hide like that. He caught this car in less than a block, but in doing so he went fifty miles an hour at his top speed. And that speed is when he clocks them—not at the speed they are really traveling. And the courts will take his word for it—all motorists are liars. A car could be standing still and yet what is to prevent an officer to set his clock at a high speed and then accuse one of traveling that fast?

It was my opinion that an officer was supposed to travel a beat to prevent violations—not to wait until the damage is done and then make an arrest. They hide themselves in order to make an arrest so as to make a record for themselves. They acknowledge by this fact that they are incapable of making good on their merits. Is it the policy of the foot patrolmen to hide and wait until a crime is committed before showing? Why not as good for one as the other?

I would suggest that all motorists stop in cases like this and offer themselves as witnesses to the victims of these officers.
FRANK C. SMYTHE.

UTILITIES AS JOKERS.

Chicago, June 12.—Here is a grim jest by the gas company. It dug a trench across the street to 5605 South Homan avenue, partially filled it with the excavated material, and now has left it as a plaything for motor traffic. When heavy machines hit this hole adjacent dwellings are shaken by the vibration and occupants of vehicles are endangered. The neighbors live in constant fear that some high speed car, failing to observe the hole, may bound out of its course and knock down the abutting buildings.
EDWARD C. JENNINGS.

STOP LIGHT CONFUSION.

Chicago, June 13.—I want to call attention to improvements of stop and go signs. As now operated, between green and red there is yellow; drivers continue through yellow [often only a flash] following green and red so rapidly that the driver given green cannot make the crossing, while the driver facing the red starts when the yellow turns and has a green light before the opposite driver is out of the way.

Why not give the driver having a green light sufficient yellow time to make a crossing? Then red, and the other driver the red, without yellow intervening before the green?
H. W. SISSON.

OBSCURE LIGHTS.

Chicago, June 12.—Recently I ran through a red light at Thorndale and Broadway, was given a ticket, paid a fine of $2. Next day I passed the same corner and observed it carefully. The habit of most drivers, I think, is to watch the left hand light on the far side of the street. Of course, if this cannot be seen, it is the natural thing to watch the light at your right, but very often it is obscured by another vehicle or the top of your own car. The light in this case, on the left hand side of the street, going north, is completely obscured by a trolley pole. The light is just about a foot behind it and the trolley pole is directly in the line of vision of approaching automobiles.

CHICAGO SALON TO BE HELD AT DRAKE NOV. 9-16

The coming season will mark the twenty-fifth anniversary of the automobile salon in America. As has been the case for the last two seasons, there will be four presentations of high priced chassis and custom coach work.

The 1929-1930 season will open Nov. 9 in the Drake hotel, Chicago, and continue seven days. It will be repeated at the Commodore, New York, Dec. 1 to 7, inclusive. The third showing will be in the Biltmore, Los Angeles, Feb. 8, and last in the Palace hotel, San Francisco, Feb. 22.

The completion of an annex to the Drake hotel, which provides another adjoining ballroom and foyer, will make the Chicago salon the largest in the number of exhibits, as well as the first of the coming season. This salon has formerly been held each year in January, coincident with the national automobile show. The date has been changed because many wealthy Chicago people, the class that constitutes the clientele of the salon, spend the winter months in Florida or California or on the Riviera.

MICHIGAN PASSES FEW LAWS FOR MOTOR VEHICLES

With only a few important changes in the laws affecting automobiles enacted, the Michigan legislature has adjourned.

Of the more than 80 bills introduced on the subject only a score met the approval of the legislators.

After either killing or stifling such measures as bills to make automobile liability insurance compulsory, instituting triennial drivers' licenses in lieu of the present permanent licenses, and a proposal to raise the gas tax to 5 cents per gallon, the house and senate has passed other bills affecting the driving public.

Michigan Central Leads as Auto Carrying Railway

The Michigan Central heads the list of railroads as the leading carrier of automobile shipments. In 1927 the Michigan Central hauled 172,795 carloads of automobiles, trucks and parts that originated at Detroit and other manufacturing points on its line, and a further 26,094 carloads received from connecting lines swelled the total to 198,889 carloads.

ELEMENTAL RULES EVERY AUTOMOBILIST SHOULD HAVE IN MIND

If a motorist hopes to get along without police interference this summer he should be absolutely certain that his rear light signal is operating. Any day now the police of Chicago and near by suburbs will start making arrests for failure to have illuminated tail lights. Counts show 20 per cent of cars traveling at night without rear illumination.

Here are a few simple things to keep in mind also:

See that you have the right kind of license plates, 1929 issue, front and rear, plainly visible. If you have not already got your plates, apply for them at once, as penalties may cost money, cause correspondence and delay.

Check up on your lamps. See that you have two good lamps in front and one in the rear. Put in new bulbs if any burn out. Have your lights tested at an official testing station. If there is none close by, observe the light from your headlamps some foggy night. If the main beam points upward instead of striking the road, have your lamps adjusted at once.

See that your vehicle complies with the state law relative to length, width, height. Do not carry loads greater than limits prescribed by special orders posted on certain roads and bridges.

Practice safety. Keep to the right of the center of the road. Do not go over on the left side to pass other vehicles if there are cars coming from the opposite direction. Slow down at turns and crossings where the view is obscured.

Keep your car under control at all times. See that your brakes are in good working order.

Bright Colored Cars Are Safest, Auto Experts Say

The safest automobiles in the world today, according to prominent safety engineers, are the ones equipped with all-steel bodies and painted in bright colors. The bright colors, they declare, are safer because they can be seen from a greater distance and because they attract more attention. The use of all-steel, of course, has proven a greater adjunct to traffic safety than any other recent development in automobiles, with the possible exception of the four wheel brakes.

AUTOISTS RESENT SUGGESTIONS OF ALTERNATE ROADS

Will Stick to Primary Routes.

There has been an effort made recently by highway officials to induce motorists of Chicago and vicinity to use alternative streets and roads instead of main highways, for the purpose of helping to relieve congestion on the through arteries. The suggestion has met with no enthusiasm on the part of motorists.

"From an engineering standpoint," one motorist wrote, "alternative routes may be a temporary solution to the traffic problem. But it is not a solution so far as the average driver is concerned. He seeks the most direct and familiar route, regardless of congestion and stop lights, and shuns suggestions to go where he may get lost or where he is unfamiliar with the pavement conditions."

Suggestion Meets Protest.

Recently an alternative route suggestion, made by a public official, was published in THE TRIBUNE. It dealt with Torrence avenue as a by-way.

Immediately protest rebounded from motorists. A score of letters insinuated that this paper was endeavoring to get motorists in trouble by sending them thither. They pointed out that the roundabout route is not only a nightmare for drivers but is actually dangerous. John W. Lusche, 5803 Sangamon street, had this to say:

"I would advise motorists to avoid this outlet [Torrence avenue] until the county highway department or some other branch of officialdom has taken precaution, by either placing warning signals or by warning the motorist, that travel along there is at the motorists' risk.

"Conditions along Torrence avenue are deplorable and it is surprising that the road is recommended through the columns of your paper without pointing to the danger connected with passing over this road.

Water Over Road.

"The road is excellent until one approaches a sign, "curve," near the Calumet canal. A bridge leads over the canal and immediately turns again. A little further on another bridge goes over another branch of the canal. Between the bridges the road is below the level of the surrounding country. At times, immediately after rains, and on days when the lake level is extremely high, the portion between the bridges is overflowed. On the night I passed over this section of the road it was impossible to turn back because the water was so high, and I had to go through water which came almost up to the floor of my car. There are no guides or warning signs and it is extremely difficult to stay on the pavement when it is dark. As a matter of fact I saw one car that had gone off the pavement and was in the water up to the radiator cap."

An added feature of the troubles on Torrence avenue is the lack of identifying signs. Both the county and state have failed to erect markers at the intersection of Lincoln way and at Glenwood road. The county, however, has erected some black lettered announcements on a dark brown background along the road, telling that the county did the paving and naming the highway. These are situated about two miles from any intersection and require a telescope to decipher. Coming in from the southeast and getting on Torrence avenue by guess, the writer was two miles north of the intersection with Glenwood before finding any identifying marks. Five dollars worth of signs would probably result in a $50 a day saving of gasoline by motorists who seriously seek to travel over it.

LET HIKER HIKE, MOTORISTS' CLUBS ADVISE DRIVERS

Picking up of hitch hikers is being discouraged, according to legal heads of automobile clubs throughout the country. Few car owners are aware that in giving a walker a lift they are liable for any damages which may result to their guest in event of injury.

Often, too, the apparent wanderer produces a gun and relieves his benefactor of both his money and automobile.

Legal counsel of the clubs are advising motorists to play safe and let the hiker hike.

California Expects to Register 1,675,000 Cars

When the 1929 round-up of new license plates has been completed it will be found that California has within its borders 1,675,000 passenger cars. This is the estimate of C. H. Townsend, publisher of Motor-Fax, based upon the high total already tabulated. Last year 192,962 new cars were sold in the state. Of this total 111,709 were credited to southern California, leaving 81,253 to northern California.

DURING the first five months of 1929, the New Pontiac Big Six has attracted a volume of sales far surpassing the spectacular sales recorded for earlier Pontiac Sixes. The New Pontiac Big Six is a sweeping success—an even more pronounced success than its famous predecessors. And it owes its success largely to the fact that it offers big car qualities at low prices.

The New Pontiac Big Six has introduced a new standard of values into the low-priced field. It has the style and features of a big car. There is big car luxury and comfort in its sturdy, skillfully designed Fisher bodies with their beautiful, long-wearing upholstery, their correctly pitched seat backs and cushions, their adjustable drivers' seats. Big car power, speed and acceleration are developed by its big, smooth engine equipped with a 1¼-inch carburetor, and an efficient gasoline pump. And big car safety is assured by its two separate braking systems—the emergency brake which operates on the transmission, and noiseless four-wheel internal-expanding service brakes which are fully protected against mud or rain.

Oakland produced the Pontiac Big Six to enable progressive people to step up in motor car quality without leaving the low-priced field. And the very people for whom it was created have made it an impressive sales success.

THUS far in 1929, sales of Oakland and Pontiac Sixes have totaled over 151,000 as compared with 131,303 for the same period in 1928 and 79,286 for 1927. The New Oakland All-American Six, which shares this achievement with Pontiac, has come to be known through the enthusiasm of its owners as the finest medium-priced car in America today.

TRIBUNE PLANS TO BEGIN SERIES ON AIR SAFETY

Planes for Different Uses Will Be Considered.

BY ROBERT WOOD.

Beginning next Sunday this department will carry a series of articles dealing with the subject of safety in airplanes. The articles will be a general and semi-technical discussion of airplane performance and construction, pointing to the features desirable for safety. In this connection the adaptability of certain types of planes for particular types of service will be considered.

Safety in airplanes has only recently become a matter of first importance to aircraft builders and designers. It may be said that the effort to evolve an airplane as basically safe as land and water carriers began with the development of the airplane for commercial transportation at the close of the world war. Until that time the effort had been toward military and naval planes of great speed, power and capacity. Attack and pursuit ships demanded speed and the ability to climb rapidly; bombing planes demanded large capacity for munitions.

Safety of Primary Importance.

With the coming of the commercial air transport and the pleasure plane safety became the question of greatest importance. It was realized that before the airplane could be accepted as an expedient mode of travel safety and reliability must be achieved. Passengers and cargos must be carried on schedule and without injury or damage. This brought a demand for an airplane capable of flying from one point to another over varying terrain and through varying weather and capable of landing in confined areas in an emergency.

Realizing this the aircraft producers began to build safety into planes and engines, with the result that today the airplane is a relatively safe carrier. Military and naval aircraft, which jammed the market after the war, was mostly obsolete and totally unsuited for commerce which it was expected to serve. It was gradually junked and in its place came the transport and pleasure planes.

The most ardent advocate of aviation will not deny, however, that there are still some risks to flying. The average man has demonstrated that he is friendly toward aviation, willing to have airplanes carry his mail and express and perform varied services for him. But he is still skeptical about actually flying himself. The risks must be taken from flying before his full confidence is won.

Various agencies are lending a hand to the industry in its work toward safety. Chief among these are the Guggenheim Foundation for the Promotion of Aeronautics and the national advisory council for aeronautics.

Developing New Inventions.

These groups are carrying on tests and laboratory experiments and developing new inventions. In the line of safety the Guggenheim foundation is conducting a competition for safe aircraft and has established a $100,000 prize for the winner. The contest is to close in October.

In the series of articles which is to appear in this section no attempt will be made to list specifications for safe aircraft. That problem concerns the builders and designers of planes. The aim is to point to what performance is desirable in airplanes. The discussion will cover the various types of wings, propellors, landing gear, and power plants, the helicopter principle of flight and those accessories which have much to do with safety in air transportation yet are not a part of the planes, namely, radio, airports, and airways.

STATISTICS SHOW U. S. NOW HAS 5,830 LICENSED PLANES

Five thousand, eight hundred and thirty registered or identified airplanes were in use in the United States and Alaska on March 30 of this year, according to a report issued by the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce. California led with 914 planes, New York was second with 573, and Illinois third with 437.

A summary of the report follows:

Alabama	15	Nevada	8
Arizona	26	New Hampshire	14
Arkansas	46	New Jersey	123
California	914	New Mexico	9
Colorado	33	New York	573
Connecticut	56	North Carolina	73
Delaware	12	North Dakota	32
Dist. of Columbia	53	Ohio	320
Florida	68	North Dakota	32
Georgia	53	Oklahoma	192
Idaho	14	Oregon	54
Illinois	437	Pennsylvania	297
Indiana	136	Rhode Island	26
Iowa	113	South Carolina	22
Kansas	149	South Dakota	42
Kentucky	42	Tennessee	51
Louisiana	66	Texas	293
Maine	15	Utah	19
Maryland	37	Vermont	4
Massachusetts	120	Virginia	49
Michigan	293	Washington	133
Minnesota	147	West Virginia	25
Mississippi	20	Wisconsin	172
Missouri	266	Wyoming	15
Montana	51	Alaska	9
Nebraska	94

California's leadership in the number of planes registered is attributed in a large measure to the fact that air passenger service is widely used on the Pacific coast, due to the favorable flying climate.

QUESTIONS

Questions relating to aviation are answered in this section by Maj. R. W. Schroeder, famous world war flyer, who formerly held the world's altitude record. Inquiries should be addressed to the Aviation Department, Chicago Tribune, Chicago.

What was the longest point to point non stop flight made in an airplane last year?—L. E., Chicago.

Two Italian aviators flew from Rome, Italy, to Touros near Natal in Brazil during the summer of 1928. The distance is about 4,466 miles.

Please tell me how many hours of solo flying a student must have to become an air mail pilot and how many hours before he can take up passengers for profit in his own plane?—S. S., Chicago.

An air mail pilot must hold a transport pilot's license which requires at least 200 hours solo before the examination can be taken. Passengers may be taken up for profit if you hold a commercial license, which may be applied for after fifty hours' solo.

You must be 16 years old before you can get your student's license and the department of commerce will not issue transport pilot licenses to people under 18 years of age.

What material is used for making airplane shock absorbers? Upon what does the efficiency of a wing depend and why is the leading edge veneered?—S. P., Elmwood Park, Ill.

Light planes often take up landing shock by rubber cord in tension or rubber discs in compression. Other types of shock absorbers such as hydraulic are very similar in material and principle to those used on modern automobiles. To be most efficient a wing must be designed to give the maximum amount of lift and the minimum amount of drag. For instance, a rather thick airfoil with considerable upper camber has been found very efficient. The entire surface of the fabric covered wing is treated with "dope" to protect it from the weather and to shrink it tightly onto the spars and ribs of the wing and to make a smooth surface for contact with the air.

Please tell me what preparatory schooling should one have to enter an aviation school? Is four years of high school enough?—J. R., Riverside, Ill.

There are any number of first class pilots who never enjoyed a college education.

Curtiss Flying Service School in Chicago

World's Oldest Flying Service Opens Largest Chicago Airport

To men and women who intend to fly, it is good news to learn that Curtiss Flying Service, world's oldest flying organization, has opened its school at Curtiss Field, Glenview, Illinois, a suburb of Chicago. Here, on over 400 acres, all types of flying courses will be given, ranging from primary dual to the most extensive, exclusive, expensive flying course in the world.

At Chicago, Curtiss will give you what you want and need—with instructors and equipment unexcelled anywhere.

Write, 'phone or call now for complete information.

TRAIN-AIRPLANE COAST TO COAST SERVICE BEGINS

Pacific to Atlantic in 48 Hours.

Five combined air-rail passenger lines between the Atlantic and Pacific will be in operation within the next few weeks. Two of these are already offering service, one flying over the 1,417 mile route from Los Angeles to Kansas City in twelve flying hours. This service makes but two intermediate stops, at Albuquerque, N. M., and Amarillo, Tex. At Kansas City the line connects with any one of the half dozen railroads operating from that city to the east.

This week another air line is scheduled to start meeting westbound New York City trains at Cleveland, taking passengers from Pullmans early in the morning and flying them to Chicago and Kansas City, and to Garden City, Kas., where the passengers board the train again for the balance of the trip to the west coast.

Pacific to Atlantic in 48 Hours.

In the case of the former service passengers arriving at Kansas City in the evening by plane from Los Angeles can board a train for Chicago arriving the following morning. Plane connections are available in Chicago for Detroit where train service will land them in New York 48 hours after leaving Los Angeles.

Starting the first part of July the most ambitious of the air-rail projects will begin with trains taking east coast passengers from New York to Columbus, O. Transfer of passengers from train to plane will be made at a specially built airport adjacent to the tracks with a day flight following across Missouri and Kansas as far as Waynoka, Okla. They will be carried by train all night to Clovis, N. M., where waiting planes will fly them into Los Angeles. This is also a 48 hour coast to coast train-plane service.

Other Lines Start Soon.

Train passengers arriving in St. Louis from the east coast will shortly be able to fly all the way from that city to the Pacific coast over a newly organized southern air line operating by way of Tulsa, Dallas, El Paso and San Diego. This line is expected to start operations in August.

Later this summer or early in the fall equipment on the present Chicago-San Francisco air mail route will be augumented by multi-motored passenger planes which will fly the entire 1,943 mile route. The company is already operating the larger equipment between San Francisco and Salt Lake City and is the only air transport concern which regularly flies passengers at night.

These five transcontinental services will add 10,000 miles a day to the 45,000 total which passenger planes are now flying every twenty-four hours.

The American Air Transport association announces that plans are now being considered which will place tri-motored equipment on the present air mail route extending from New York to Cleveland. With these planes in operation a through coast to coast air passenger service with but three transfers will be available. Actual flying time is estimated at between 35 and 40 hours.

Boeing Plans Nationwide Chain of Flying Schools

The Boeing system, the country's largest commercial air transport operator in point of mileage flown, has completed definite plans for the establishment of its first flying school, of what will probably be a series to be placed at various strategic points, according to a recent announcement made by Boeing officials. It is expected that the first school, which will probably be located on the Pacific coast, will be ready to receive students in approximately three months.

PLAN LAKE FOR SEAPLANES.

Milan, Italy, which is an inland city, is planning to build a lake for seaplane landings. It will be 1,800 feet long by 600 feet wide. Docks will line the shores of the lake.

HEAD OF GLIDER BODY WARNS OF DANGER INVOLVED

Warning against the danger of attempts by amateur aviation enthusiasts to fly home made gliders or motorless planes which are built from numerous "plans" which are being advertised with the increasing interest in this branch of aviation, is sounded by the American Glider association, with headquarters in Los Angeles.

"Only an expert is qualified to construct a safe glider from the best of such plans, and most of them are untried and impractical," says Victor Evans, chairman of the association's technical committee.

"Realizing the danger of fatal accidents to young aviation enthusiasts who attempt to fly gliders built after the numerous plans which are being commercialized by people who see in them an opportunity to make money, the association has appointed a technical committee to perfect a glider of simple construction which can be safely flown by any school boy and its set of plans will be distributed free as soon as it has received official approval."

The American Glider association was recently organized for non profit and as a parent organization for glider clubs all over the United States. Its charter members and officers include Dale Drake, who recently flew his glider 200 miles over the mountain tops of California; Maury Graham, air mail pilot; Hal Mora, Ed Gettins, and Mr. Evans.

don't let your "economy" come too high

De Soto

The man who feels that he cannot afford to buy the Chrysler-built De Soto Six is perhaps the very man who cannot afford not to buy it.

Obviously, if he buys a cheaper six he will do so entirely on the strength of its purchase price.

But purchase price is only one of the three major items entering into the expense of owning a car. There are also the costs of upkeep and of maintenance to be considered. The sum of these three actually represents what it costs you to drive.

De Soto Six is economical of fuel and oil. It will keep on running almost indefinitely with negligible maintenance expense—records of De Sotos that have gone over 40,000 miles prove this.

Consequently, in the course of a few months, your De Soto Six will easily save the difference between its price and that of a car inferior in engineering, design and materials.

This purely dollars-and-cents reason for preferring De Soto Six can be supplemented by the self-evident fact that all the time you are getting more comfort, pleasure, safety and pride of ownership from this Chrysler-built six than a cheaper car could possibly give you.

It will cost you nothing to take a demonstration—and no obligations implied.

distinguish this low-priced "70-B"

Aside from being the most beautiful, the new "70-B" is also the largest and most powerful Willys-Knight ever offered at so little cost. Chicago's motorists have been quick to appreciate its remarkable value.

Beneath the hood of the new style Willys-Knight "70-B" is a big, rugged engine—the patented double sleeve-valve motor, so notable for smoothness, silence, endurance, sustained high speed and economical operation.

The simplicity of the Knight engine results in a high degree of efficiency, and in remarkable freedom from carbon troubles and repairs. There is no complicated valve mechanism of springs, tappets and cams. In each cylinder, two sturdy metal sleeves move smoothly, silently up and down, one within the other, in a protective film of oil, admitting and expelling gasoline vapor through ports in their sides.

These sleeves combine with the dome-shaped cylinder head to form a perfectly sealed combustion chamber, assuring high uniform compression at all times, at all speeds and with any gas.

Other important advantages of the "70-B" include a heavy seven-bearing crankshaft which reduces vibration to a minimum, and an improved frame construction which gives extra strength and rigidity.

A demonstration of the Willys-Knight "70-B" will give you an advanced idea of motor smoothness, silence and effortless power.

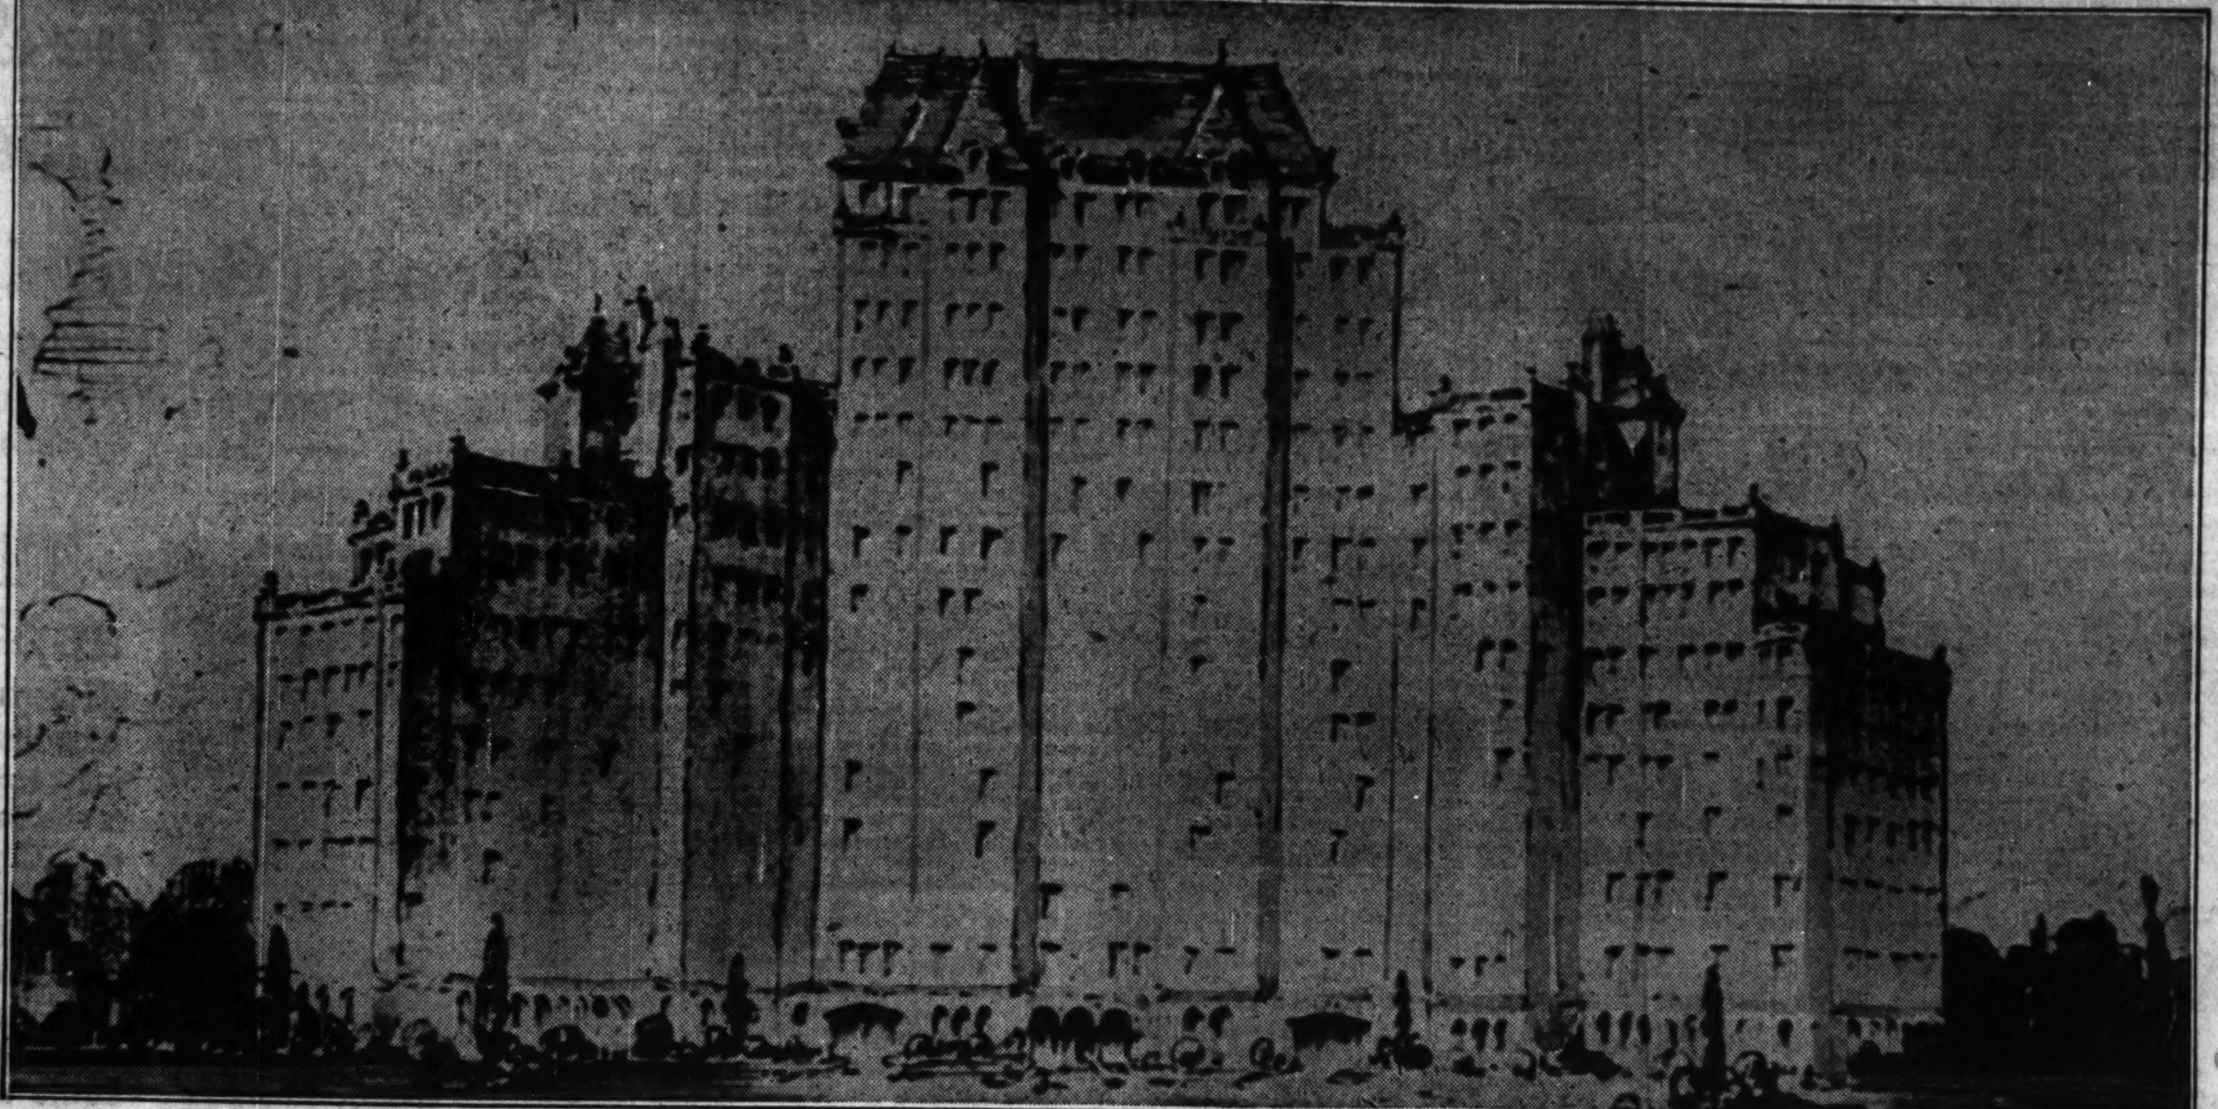
Plan 15 Story Suburban Co-op on Fifty Acre Estate

FLOWERS, FUN AND FRESH AIR FLATS



Above is Glenayre, Chicagoland's first rural skyscraping co-op, designed by McNally & Quinn, to be erected on the south side of Glenview road, in the village of Glenview, about a mile west of the Glenayre station of the Skokie Valley line. It is less than a mile east of Waukegan road. Central street, Evanston, if extended, would be the south boundary of the fifty acre estate of Glenayre. The main section will be fifteen stories tall, with setbacks of fourteen, twelve, nine and seven floors each. Details are given in the adjoining column.

SECOND HENRICI RESTAURANT TO RESEMBLE CLUB

Firm Will Erect 16 Story Building.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

The Henrici company, owner of one of the loop's oldest and best known eating houses, announces that it is starting immediately on its previously discussed plan for a series of restaurants through the country by commencing the construction of a building which will house its second establishment.

Restaurant No. 2, however, will not get away from the loop where the parent of the system got its reputation. For the new building will go up at 209-19 South Wabash avenue on a site just south of Adams street and immediately adjoining the downtown station of the Chicago, North Shore and Milwaukee railway.

The building is to be sixteen stories high, with probably four floors given over to the use of the restaurant. The balance of the building will be devoted to general office purposes.

Will Resemble Club.

The restaurant itself will resemble somewhat a club. For instance, one floor is to be set aside for the use of women patrons. This floor will have dressing rooms, writing rooms, and other conveniences—the idea being to have it serve as a meeting place.

Then there will be a department where those members of the earth's population who pay the bills will find themselves while dining as undisturbed by feminine chatter as by any "orchestral din."

But the main dining room will cater to both men and women and this department, we doubt not, will be the most popular of the various departments. In planning the decorations for the dining rooms, consideration is being given the placement of paintings and etchings by well known artists. And the management hopes in time to unite the culinary and canvas arts in favorable circumstances through the showing of famous loan exhibits.

It is expected that there will be seating accommodations in the various dining rooms for 600 persons. In this connection it is interesting to know that in planning their new restaurants the management sets aside five times the space for production purposes as for seating and sales uses.

Each Café a Unit.

Each restaurant in the Henrici chain is to be a complete unit, with every item used in the dining room and bakery produced on the premises.

Now for a few words about the building which was designed by Loebl, Schlossman & De Muth. It will occupy a lot fronting 80 feet on Wabash avenue, with a depth of 170 feet. The first two floors of the structure will take up the entire lot, but above the second story it will only have a depth of 80 feet to insure plenty of light and air for the tenants.

Each of the upper floors will have 6,000 square feet of floor space. Windows will be placed to permit the easy division of the floors into small offices. The street facade will be finished in face brick, with Bedford stone used in the ornamentation. Construction is to be put under way immediately with the hope of having the edifice ready for its tenants by Jan. 1, 1930.

Perhaps it might be interesting to recall some of the early history regarding the building's site. The property originally belonged to M. O. Walker. Mr. Walker was an early Chicago real estate man who won repute by subdividing the Ashland avenue district into a high class residential neighborhood.

Checks Not Accepted.

This operation broke Mr. Walker and his Wabash avenue property was taken over by the Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance company on a mortgage. Martin O'Brien, founder of the O'Brien Art Gallery and father of William V. O'Brien, present head of the company, entered into negotiations with the insurance company for the purchase of the property.

Mr. O'Brien reached the offices of the sellers with a certified check for $50,000 shortly before noon when the time limit on the transaction expired. And it was found that the insurance company would take only gold in payment.

At this critical moment, B. P. Hutchinson, one of the city's most famous grain speculators, familiarly known as "Old Hutch," arrived at the scene on a dray wagon with $50,000 in gold coin. He took the property from under Mr. O'Brien's nose, held it for a year and a half and then sold it to H. J. Furber and Van H. Higgins for $65,000.

Bought for $650,000.

Two years later the property was sold to Matthew Laflin for $100,000 and some years later the Laflin estate sold it to Joseph N. Field, father of Stanley Field, for $650,000. The Henrici company leased the property from Stanley Field and Arthur B. Jones, trustees for the Joseph N. Field estate for 99 years from May 1, 1924. The rental calls for $32,000 annually for the first ten years and $40,000 annually for eighty-nine years.

The executive committee of the Henrici company consists of William Collins, Lawrence J. O'Toole, and John R. Thompson Jr., C. J. McKenna of Hogan & Farwell, Inc., will have charge of the renting of the new building.

Realtors to Visit Boston Via Dominion

One hundred realtors, their wives, sons and daughters will leave Chicago in a special train next Thursday evening to attend the annual convention of the National Association of Real Estate Boards at Boston. The journey to the city famous for its beans and its brains will be by way of Niagara Falls, Toronto, Quebec, Lakes Champlain and George, and Saratoga.

HENRY G. ZANDER.
[Walinger Photo.]

The Chicago Real Estate board's national association committee, headed by George F. Nixon and including among others former Presidents Henry G. Zander, Joseph K. Brittain, Callistus J. Ennis, John P. Hooker, and Valentine H. Surghnor, has arranged an alternative route for those who prefer a trip down the St. Lawrence through the Thousand islands and Montreal instead of visiting Toronto and Quebec.

The convention train will pull into Boston's new North station on Monday. The convention will last through the week with Chicago taking an unusually active part in the daily programs.

Local Realtors to Talk.

Some of the local realtors scheduled to tell the visiting American and Canadian realtors a few things about real estate are: Henry G. Zander, former president of the Chicago Real Estate board and also former head of the National Association of Real Estate boards; Albert W. Swayne, president of the Chicago Real Estate board; Frank J. O'Brien, Henry A. Babcock, John P. Hooker, Joseph B. Hall, William E. Herren, Mark Levy, Oliver S. Turner, Sydney Middleton, Prof. Lloyd D. Herrold, George P. Ellis, Frank S. Slosson, Irvin A. Blietz, Henry T. Holsman, Pierce W. Jones, and Benjamin F. Bills.

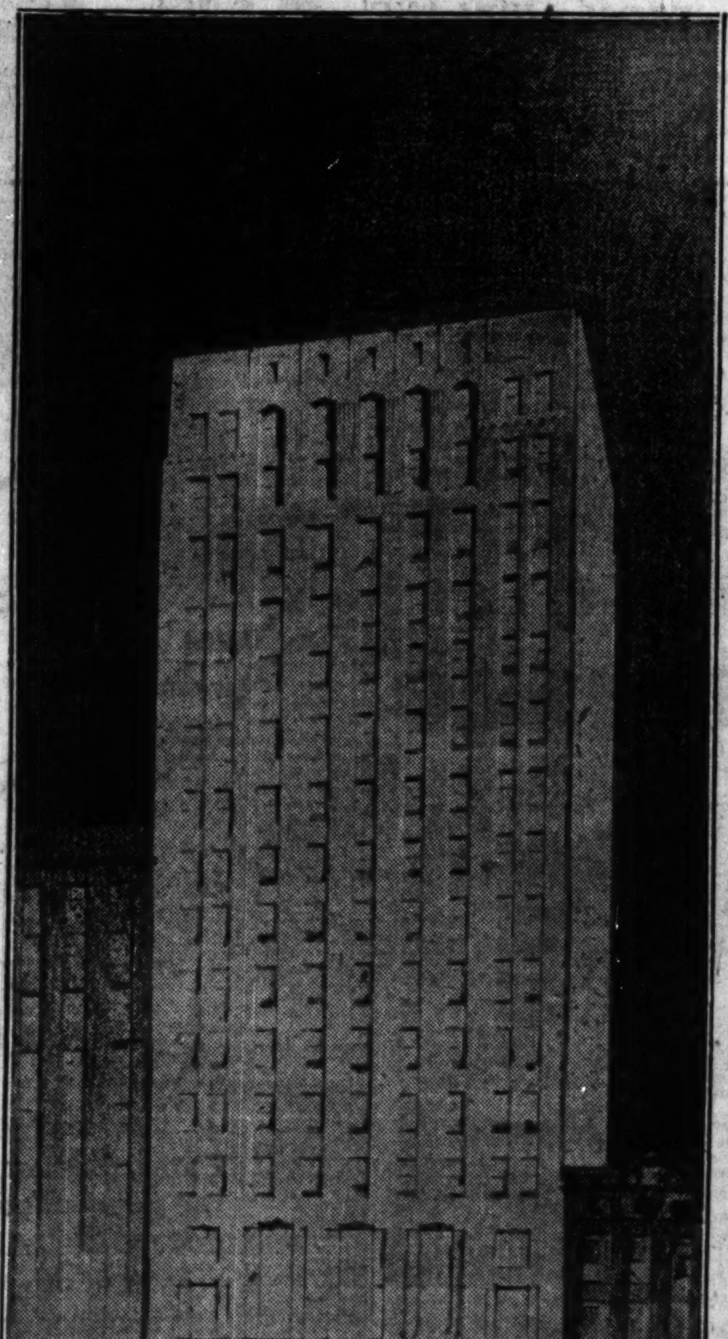
Here is the latest list of passengers on the realtor's special train, with the probability that several more will be added to the roster after this section has gone to press: Mr. and Mrs. Albert W. Swayne, Mr. and Mrs. Henry G. Zander, Mr. and Mrs. Edward S. Judd, Mr. and Mrs. Frank S. Slosson, Mr. and Mrs. John P. Hooker, Mr. and Mrs. Henry T. Holsman, Mr. and Mrs. J. Soule Warterfield, Mr. and Mrs. Mark Levy, Mr. and Mrs. Earl G. Krumrine, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Winters, Mr. and Mrs. Louis T. Orr, Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Dato, Mr. and Mrs. Water Ruediger, Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Babcock, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph B. Hall, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Hoyer, Mr. and Mrs. William Frohman, Mr. and Mrs. Lester W. Porter, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Strauss, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver S. Turner, Mr. and Mrs. Leo G. Varty, Mr. and Mrs. S. S. Carman, Mr. and Mrs. Irvin A. Blietz, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur B. Hall, Mr. and Mrs. Loren L. Whitehead, Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Bauer, Mr. and Mrs. Milo Vale, Mr. and Mrs. Homer L. Bundy, and Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Liebman.

R. E. Editors Cheer.

Others scheduled to set sail for Boston on the good train "Realtor" are: Miss Pearl Janet Davies (and all real estate editors gave three loud cheers when they heard Miss Davies of the National association, was going, for they recalled the unusually efficient service she rendered newspaper men last year at the Louisville convention press room) Miss Katherine A. Baynes, Miss Mary T. Baynes, Miss Harriett Ellen Keeney, and Miss Virginia Keeney.

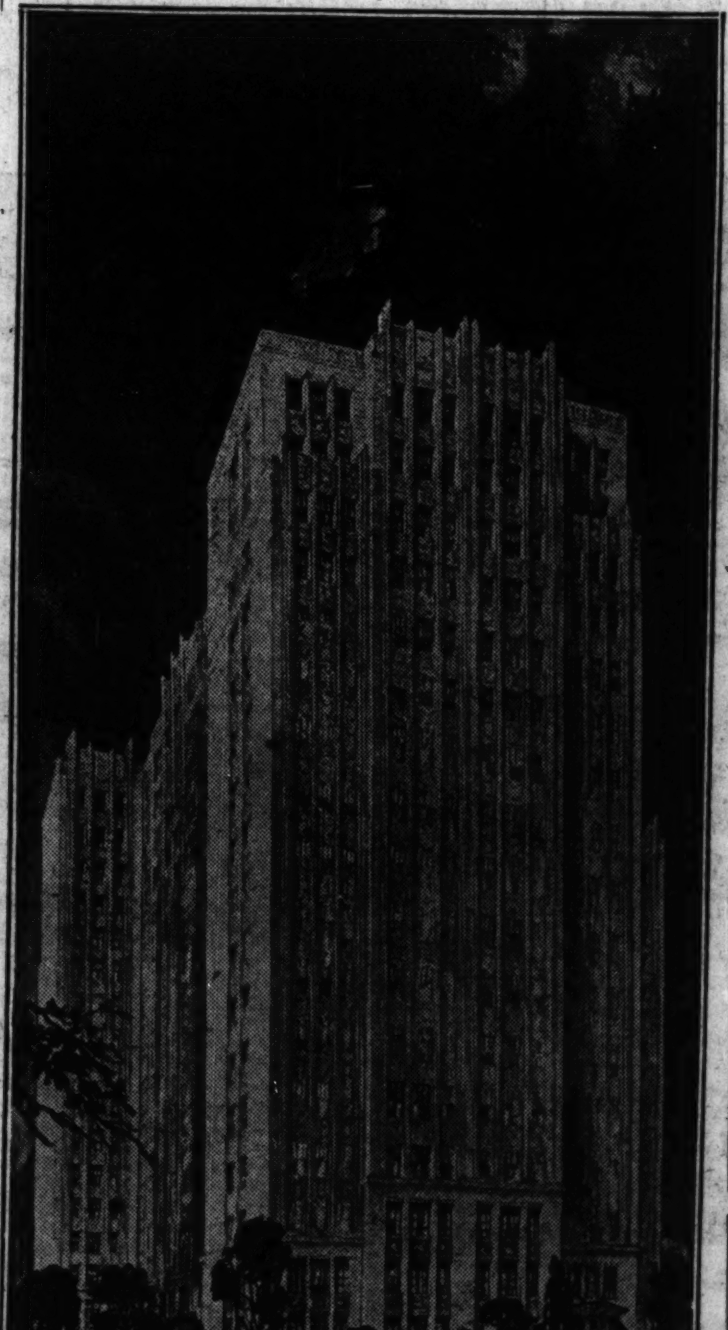
Then there is Senator Harry Beardsley of Wheaton, Hyde W. Perce, Frank J. O'Brien, Ralph Scott, John Griffith, John L. Fischer, B. L. Johnson, Sydney Middleton, J. J. Cullinane, Robert C. Duncan, E. B. Frysinger, Pierce W. Jones, Emil Seeman, John M. Thomson, Louis B. Beardslee, H. Hoffman, Edwin N. Durland, Herbert U. Nelson, A. John Berge, William E. Herren, Arthur J. Mertzke, George P. Ellis, Benjamin F. Bills, Albert F. Keeney, E. H. Mundt, George J. Eckhoff, S. O. Stone, Walter W. Sheldon, and Prof. Lloyd D. Herrold.

HOUSING NOTED CAFE



Picture of sixteen story building which the Henrici company will erect at 209-19 South Wabash avenue. In it will be housed the second of the firm's contemplated series of restaurants throughout the country, the first being the original one at 71 West Randolph street. A part of the building—designed by Loebl, Schlossman & De Muth—will be used for offices.

FOR NORTH EDGEWATER



Leon F. Urbain designed the above structure—a seventeen story apartment building announced for 6230 Kenmore avenue, in North Edgewater. The project will be known as the Kenmore Manor. In it will be 128 flats from three and a half to five rooms. It is stated the enterprise will represent an investment of $1,600,000. Charles Morgan drew this picture.

Carl Geist Purchases Six Flats at 1227 North Shore

Carl Geist bought from Dr. Victor Horning the six apartments at 1227-29 North Shore avenue for an undisclosed consideration. He gave in part payment his residence at 3627 North Herndon. Bruno Martin & Co. were brokers.

TWO WESTERN SUBURBS UNITE ON TOWN PLAN

The villages of Western Springs and La Grange, suburbs west of the city on the Burlington, have forgotten their rivalries to establish a joint town planning organization for which Jacob L. Crane Jr. has been appointed engineer and consultant.

Problems demanding the immediate attention of the body are: The question of Gilbert avenue which divides the two towns and which has been proposed as a link in the road system connecting the forest preserves; several new subdivisions; a civic center for La Grange; the Burlington grade subdivision project; possible revision of the two zoning ordinances, and plans for guiding the subdivision and development of unplatted land.

W. W. Loomis is chairman of the La Grange plan commission, and H. R. Chapin is chairman of the Western Springs plan commission.

Alfred Julian Sells His Foster Avenue Apartments

Plan 17 Story Apartment at 6230 Kenmore

Plans have been announced for a seventeen story apartment building to be erected at 6230 Kenmore avenue, between Granville and Rosemont, in North Edgewater. The structure will be known as the Kenmore Manor Apartments and with the land it is stated will represent an investment of approximately $1,600,000.

Designed by Leon F. Urbain, the structure will be of English Tudor Gothic architecture adapted to Hoover Chicago ideas of what's seemly for a building. It will have 128 flats of three and a half, four and five rooms.

Construction will be of reinforced concrete. The street façade will be of face brick, with cut stone used for ornamentation.

Lineup of Flats.

Taking a look at the inside of the structure, the first floor will contain a large foyer, off which will be a lobby, a parlor and the manager's office. In the back part will be two apartments, storage space, and other service requirements.

As to the apartments those of three and a half rooms will consist of large living room, bedroom, dinette and kitchenette. Those of four rooms will have a large living room, an unusually large dining room, a bed chamber and a regular sized kitchen. And those of five rooms will have all the foregoing, with two bedrooms instead of one. The flats will have the customary lineup of conveniences, including mechanical refrigeration and ventilation, tile baths, etc.

Headed by Urbain.

The structure will be owned by the 6230 Kenmore Building corporation, which is headed by Mr. Urbain. It will occupy a lot facing ninety-seven feet, with a depth of 150. Two old residences now occupy the land and it is stated that they will be razed shortly to permit the start of construction.

The building site is located in a region which for years embraced only single family residences. But since the war many large apartment buildings have made their way into the locality. The Granville station of the Rapid Transit lines is adjacent, as is Broadway.

PLAN BUILDING AT WASHTENAW-DEVON CORNER

Contracts have been awarded and work is scheduled to start within a week on a building for the southwest corner of Devon and Washtenaw avenues, which will involve a reported investment in land and structure of $185,000. Oldefest & Williams are the architects. It will have terra cotta street elevations and will contain seven stores, four flats, and twelve offices. The site fronts 125 feet on Washtenaw and 58 on Devon. The project is sponsored by a syndicate headed by Michael F. Schiavone. The North Town Builders and Finance corporation is the general contractor.

Otto G. Ryden to Address Real Property Institute

Otto G. Ryden, attorney, will talk on "The Mechanics Lien Law and Mortgage Foreclosure" next Wednesday, June 19, at 8 p. m., before the Real Property institute of the Cook county real estate board, at the latter's rooms, 100 North La Salle street. M. M. Oshe will speak at 7 o'clock on "Building Line Conditions and Restrictions." The next meeting of the Real Estate markett of Chicago will be held at 1:30 p. m. on Tuesday.

GLENAYRE TO RISE ON LAND AT GLEN VIEW

To Combine City and Country Life.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

Chicagoland's first skyscraping country coöperative apartment project, a steel and concrete group of half a hundred homes, set down in the middle of a fifty-acre tract in Glenview, surrounded by country clubs and forest preserves, was announced last night. It is to be erected by the Glenayre syndicate, composed of a group of wealthy Chicagoans, on the south side of Glenview road, a mile west of the Glenayre station of the Skokie Valley interurban, just north of the Glenview Golf club and south of the North Shore Golf club.

The fifty owners of these rural sky suites will have, according to the members of the corporation, more than the usual luxuries and comforts of the city apartment and in addition will have practically all of the delights and charm of country life.

For instance, there'll be a nine-hole golf course, tennis courts, a swimming pool and recreation field. A bridle path will surround Glenayre, as the project has been named, leading into the adjoining forest preserves.

Playgrounds and Gardens.

Several acres will be equipped with playground apparatus, sand piles and a wading pool for the youngsters and older children will be provided with an athletic field of their own. Several good sized flower gardens are planned.

A clubhouse is contemplated to contain a lounge, dining rooms, card rooms, billiard rooms, a manager's apartment, offices, locker rooms, showers, etc. Adjacent to Glenayre, on Glenview road, a two story community building will be erected, with a drug store, delicatessen, barber and beauty shop, cleaning shop, etc. On the second floor will be suites for physicians and dentists and apartments for employés.

Now we'll take a look at the Glenayre building itself. We told about the surroundings first because they are what make the project unique. But the structure also will be different from the usual city apartment building. There'll be no courts or light wells. As a member of the corporation expressed it: "There's no problem of light, air, view or privacy. Every room, including bathrooms, kitchens and maid's rooms, has outside windows overlooking the estate and the adjacent golf courses."

Soundproof and Fireproof.

Every one of the half hundred homes will be fireproof and soundproof. These coöperative apartments will vary in size from six to eleven rooms. Thirteen will be duplex. To go more into detail: there'll be eleven suites of six rooms and three baths; eleven of seven rooms and three baths; one of eight rooms and five baths; one of eight room and five baths; one of ten rooms and six baths.

In addition there will be ten duplexes of eight rooms and four baths, one of nine room and five baths and one of eleven rooms and five baths. A number of the homes will have individual sky-garden terraces.

There will be garage accommodations for seventy-five cars in the basement, accessible by means of ramps.

McNally & Quinn are architects and their plans call for a building of French chateau style, of dark brick with Bedford stone trim, and with a red tile roof. All windows throughout will be of plate glass.

Work is to start Aug. 1 with the expectation of having it ready for the tenant-owners by May 1, 1930. Nixon & Lorber, a new corporation formed by interests identified with George F. Nixon & Co., are the sales and management agents for Glenayre. This project, by the way, has been in the course of development for more than two years.

PLAN 12 STORY APARTMENTS ON BELDEN AVENUE

Plans are said to be under way for a twelve story apartment building at 351-53 Belden avenue, on a site 48x104, which will contain sixty suites of two, three and four rooms, with a bungalow on the roof. A ballroom and gymnasium may be provided for tenants.

INTERNAL STRIFE IS STORM CLOUD IN LABOR SKIES

Engineers' Union Locals at Loggerheads.

BY THOMAS WREN.

Another interunion disputation now threatens to upset the tranquility of the Chicago building indusrty.

WILLIAM MALONEY
Edward F. Moore.

It is the controversy between locals 150 and 569 of the International Union of Steam and Operating Engineers. Hoisting engineers to a large extent belong to local 569 and are classed as an important unit in the building industry. They man the excavating steam shovels and direct the engines which hoist materials on large construction projects.

But now to the controversy that is about to develop and prove a vexatious problem to Chicago builders and the Building Trades council.

The complicated situation starts with a ukase issued by Arthur M. Huddell, the international president of the engineers' union. Terms of his edict abolished, according to labor leaders, all elective offices and empowered Huddell to appoint supervisors to replace the office of business agent. Administrations of the supervisors were for a lifelong period or as long as Huddell remained as the chief of the engineers.

150 Out of Work.

Some engineers suggested that Huddell term his appointees dictators instead of supervisors. Local 569 voiced resentment. Huddell then climaxed the turbulent situation by demanding amalgamation of 569 and 40, an independent organization of steam shovelmen, with a membership of approximately 400 engineers.

"When this demand was made 569 had an unemployment list of 150 men," says Edward F. Moore, the president of the engineers' organization. Mr. Moore is also deputy commissioner of public works.

"Most of the shovelmen are not residents of Chicago," he said. "Their amalgamation would have caused our unemployment ranks to increase. These shovelmen generally do railroad construction work and live in box cars along the right of way. Amalgamation meant that these men would have been permitted to enjoy wage and working conditions built up through years of hard work."

Huddell Revokes Charter.

Huddell revoked 569's charter. William E. Maloney resigned as business agent of 569 and became supervisor of local 150, the new local organized in Chicago by the international union. It was pointed out that when Huddell revoked 569's charter his action automatically, according to union rules, deprived the organizations from a voice in the Chicago Building Trades council.

Maloney says he will demand recognition of local 150 by the trades council and also the Building Construction Employers' association. The builders aver the controversy is one of interunion moment and should be adjudicated by the labor unions involved.

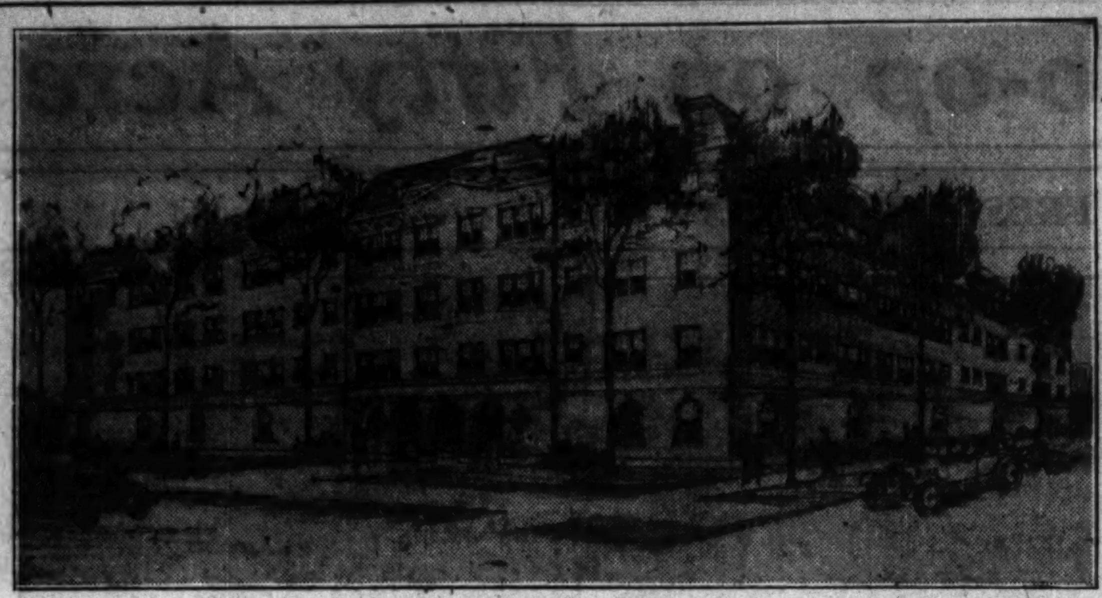
By a unanimous vote the trades council has voted to seat the delegates of 569, despite Huddell's protest. Labor unions are beginning to use injunctions much in the same manner as employing interests. Local 569 has procured a restraining order to prevent Maloney or Huddell from interfering with affairs of the organization.

There are several locals of engineers in Chicago and each is affiliated with Huddell's international. Locally these units are banded into a joint executive board. This central organization has also disregarded Huddell's orders and seated 569's delegates.

$225,000 HOTEL FOR HUMBOLDT PARK DISTRICT

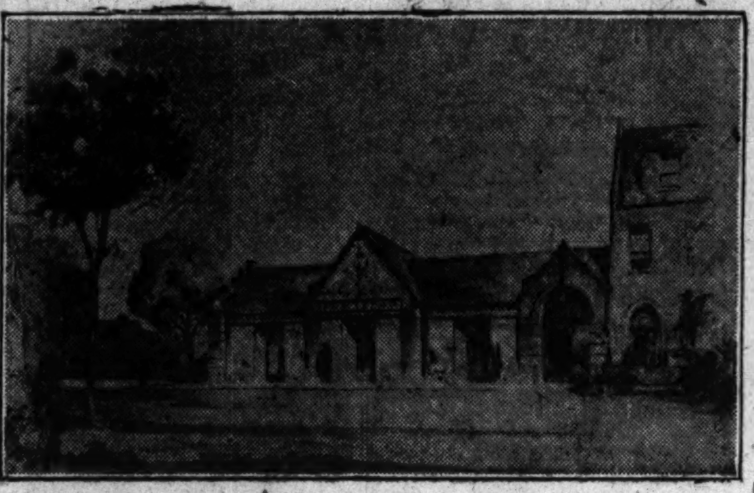
The Eldort Hotel apartments is a new structure announced for the Humboldt Park district. Designed by Raymond Gregori the Eldort will be three stories and basement high, located at 1850-52 Humboldt boulevard. It will contain fifty apartments of one, two, and three rooms—all furnished. The architectural inspiration will be Italian. The front elevation will be of face brick and terra cotta, with a green tile roof. The lot is 50x176 feet. It is stated the investment will be $225,000. Nathan D. Zaritzky has made a loan of $135,000 with the Madison-Kedzie bank on the project. Completion is scheduled for Oct. 1.

UNIVERSITY SUBURB APARTMENTS



Above is a fifty-two apartment building which the Victor C. Carlson organization is erecting at the southwest corner of Sherman avenue and Foster street, Evanston. The building, to be known as the Sherwood, was designed by H. B. McEldowney, architect, and J. A. Scanlan, structural engineer, of the Carlson organization.

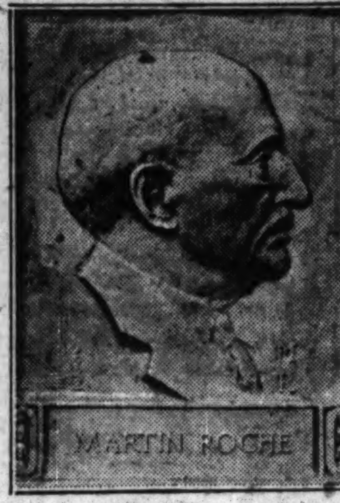
WINNETKA STORES



Here's an interesting suburban building, especially so as it's only one story high. Many one story store buildings are merely taxpayers till the owner can see his way clear to erect a taller structure, and little or no attempt is made to make them architecturally attractive. This building is being built for J. A. Blomdahl at 839 Elm street, Winnetka. W. N. Alderman made the picture.

Here's what Rudolph J. Nedved of Hamilton, Fellows & Nedved, architects, says about the building: "The brick is to be Roman in a rich red color. The ornamental plaster gable is in soft cream, and the Brittany tiles graded from fire-flashed to soft browns, reds, and orange. The ornamental gate is reminiscent of a lodge and is the service entrance for deliveries, in this way leaving the curb free of trucks. An atmosphere of the quiet village garden character was carried out. The texture of materials is that of the homespun, not the satin. The show windows are deep, with a low vaulted entrance. The project costs $38,000."

MARTIN ROCHE



A bronze portrait of the late Martin Roche of Holabird & Roche was presented to the Chicago chapter of the American Institute of Architects at its annual meeting and dinner at the Cliff Dwellers' club by Frank M. Carroll, a nephew of Mr. Roche. Preceding the unveiling by Miss Ellinore Carroll, Mr. Carroll, Judge George A. Carpenter, Frank B. Long, and Dr. J. Wendell Clark delivered memorial adresses.

Following speeches by the retiring president of the chapter, John C. Bollenbacher, and C. Herrick Hammond, president of the A. I. A., the new president of the Chicago chapter, Howard L. Cheney, and other officers were installed. Miss Hila Vanden Bosch gave several piano solos during the evening.

NEW BOUL MICH MEN'S SHOP TO BE MODERNISTIC

Boston and Los Angeles will be called on to supply the modernistic material for making the new Kaskel-Kaskel Dunlap store at the northwest corner of Upper Michigan avenue and East Huron street, told about in this section last Sunday, one of the most elaborate in the country. C. K. B. Nevins, Boston architect, is now on the Pacific coast studying the modernistic examples of shop architecture to be found out there. He will design the new Chicago shop.

In last week's item it was stated that Kaskel & Kaskel had purchased the Dunlap Hat company. This is incorrect. Last January Kaskel & Kaskel and Dunlap were merged, and the retail business is to be conducted as Kaskel & Kaskel, Dunlap. The present Boul Mich store of the Dunlap Hat company will close on July 15.

Kaskel & Kaskel have five stores in this country, have recently signed a lease in the French building, New York, and are looking for a site in Paris.

Service Tool Company Erects Plant on Fulton

Work has started on a factory building for the Service Tool, Die and Manufacturing company at 4627 West Fulton street—in the Kilpatrick, Lake and Fulton district. The structure will contain 15,000 square feet of floor space and together with its site will represent an investment of $60,000 it is stated. The Service company makes dies, tools, gages, jigs, moulds, etc. The Regan Construction company has the general contract. Hart and Whetston were brokers.

Meat Market Firm Leases 17th Shop in Chain of 100

The Alexander Meat Markets company has leased the store at 1422 East 55th street from Morris Bomash for a term of years at an undisclosed rental. This is the company's seventeenth store in its contemplated chain of 100. Allen M. Weber & Co. were brokers.

CARLSON GROUP BUILDING LARGE EVANSTON FLAT

The Sherwood Rising at Sherman and Foster.

Construction is under way on another large apartment house in Evanston. The latest is the Sherwood which is being put up at the southwest corner of Sherman avenue and Foster street—three blocks north of the site of Marshall Field & Co's Evanston branch and adjacent to the Foster street station of the elevated railway.

The Sherwood will be four stories and basement high of fireproof construction. There will be fifty-two apartments of one, two, three, four, and five rooms. In the basement will be a garage for the use of the tenants.

Occupying a site 147 feet on Sherman avenue and 151 feet on Foster street, it is stated the development will represent an investment in land and building of $511,000.

Face Brick on All Sides.

Designed by H. B. McEldowney, architect, and J. A. Scanlan, structural engineer, members of the Victor C. Carlson organization, the structure will be of distinguished appearance. It will be faced on all sides with pressed brick with cut stone used for ornamentation. Plate glass used throughout will add to the appearance of the building.

It is stated that all the rooms in the building will be unusually large for apartments of the size. Interior woodwork will be finished in ivory enamel. Doors will be of birch and there will be other refinements.

The usual array of conveniences—mechanical refrigeration, tile baths, etc.—will be included. And further all floors—with the exception of the kitchens—will be carpeted.

Ready in Fall.

Work on the development is being pushed in the hope of having it completed for fall occupancy. It is stated that already 25 per cent of the apartments in the Sherwood have been leased to professors and instructors at Northwestern university.

The Victor C. Carlson organization is the owner of the property. Financing is through a $300,000 first mortgage loan underwritten by the State Bank of Chicago.

CHICAGOANS EYE DETROIT REALTY FROM AIRPLANE

George F. Nixon & Co. are making use of the airplane to acquaint members of their sales forces with important real estate developments in the various cities of the country that they may the better serve their Chicago clients. The first trip was made recently by members of the Nixon Producers club—consisting of the firm's star salesmen—who took a jaunt to Detroit. After a study of realty conditions at the auto metropolis—both from the air and by motor car—the realty men returned to the city the same day. Other trips to New York, Cleveland, and Milwaukee are scheduled for the near future.

LOGAN SQUARE LEASE.

O. Rhodius Elofson, commercial artist and photographer, has leased the second floor of the John R. Thompson building at 2532 Milwaukee avenue, from John R. Thompson Jr. for five years.

KEWANEE

Will End the Smoke Nuisance

Health Commissioner Arnold Kegel claims that the heavy, black smoke which almost constantly hangs over Chicago, is directly responsible for 6,000 deaths annually.

That's an appalling condition in a modern, progressive and enterprising community, and there is absolutely no occasion for it. Smoke is nothing but unconsumed fuel, and the responsibility rests, not on the kind of coal which is used, but in the heating boilers which don't and can't consume all the poisonous gases.

THE KEWANEE ALL-STEEL (riveted) SMOKELESS FIRE-BOX BOILERS, used in many of the big down-town structures and countless fine apartment buildings, takes no part in the destruction mentioned by Dr. Kegel, because it burns any kind of coal without smoke.

If every great building in this city were equipped with the KEWANEE SMOKELESS BOILER, the whole smoke problem would be solved and there would be no occasion for ordinances or smoke inspectors.

TO THE ABOVE, JUST ADD THESE FACTS:

1. The Kewanee All-steel (riveted) Smokeless Firebox Boiler is constructed of the same materials and in the same way as the giant steamships, the great locomotives and the largest and strongest bridges in the world. 2. That by reason of consuming all the gases from coal, it sends none of your money up the stack in smoke. 3. It necessarily saves you 25 per cent on your fuel cost.

Detailed and illustrated booklets sent on your mere request. Better still, send for our branch manager in your town and let him explain and demonstrate and prove.

HOME BUILDING AND REMODELING

AN ADVENTURE IN CONTENTMENT IS MAPPED HERE

Quaint Norman House at Journey's End.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

[Home Builders Editor.]

It would not be difficult, do you think, to adventure far into that coveted land of contentment in such a home as this?

LOUISE BARGELT.

Love in a Norman cottage—children playing on its grassy lawns. Happiness achieved, grudges and grievances forgotten; peace, serenity, repose, found at last within its plaster finished walls, raftered ceilings, sun drenched rooms, and by the side of its great stone fireplace and book covered shelves and tables.

It is an adventure every one craves, this great little adventure of home owning. Amazing the way to desire to own a home, once it gets hold of you, digs in, entrenches itself and then proceeds to grow and grow till there is no living really with the desire until it has been gratified.

Nor would such an adventure sought for in a home like this one be an expensive adventure, though the dwelling looks as though it must be purchased by wealth, with its steeply sloping roof, its hilly site, its winding flag stone walks and graceful Norman French outlines.

Cost Is Moderate.

No—it is not costly. It could be built for less than $10,000—financed and owned in time by many a young married couple, head over heels in love, fortified by youth and strength and faith in each other and life, and limited only by lack of much ready cash on hand.

Of stucco on hollow tile, with composition roof, it is to be erected in Lincolnshire Country Estates, Crete, Ill. The architect is Harold Gallup, 646 N. Michigan avenue, Chicago.

It is of the Norman French type, though without any effort made to conform in detail to period or style.

Many of the "principles" of the old French Norman dwelling may be successfully applied to an American suburban or city residence, though any transplanting in toto of the structure or its spirit and traditions is scarcely possible.

Designed for a hilly lot, some fifty feet wide, a flagstone walk winds gracefully up to the entrance door with its curving vestibule and old time rounded tower. The door is of sturdy oak construction.

The vestibule leads directly into the living room, with its large stone fireplace, natural ceiling rafters, rough plaster walls and pine plank floor.

There is a clothes closet in the vestibule and one bedroom is on the first floor, with connecting lavatory and toilet. A very convenient arrangement for the mistress of the house with a small child, where there is no servant in the home.

From the floor plan it can be seen that the dining room is two steps above the living room. The kitchen is sizeable, with windows on two sides, good cupboard space, and over the sink, which is of the double drainboard type, is a generous window.

Upstairs there are two bedrooms with ample closet space, a bath with linen closet provided and a special hall closet built directly over the vestibule. The bathroom has its walls and ceiling covered with washable paper.

Overlooks Living Room.

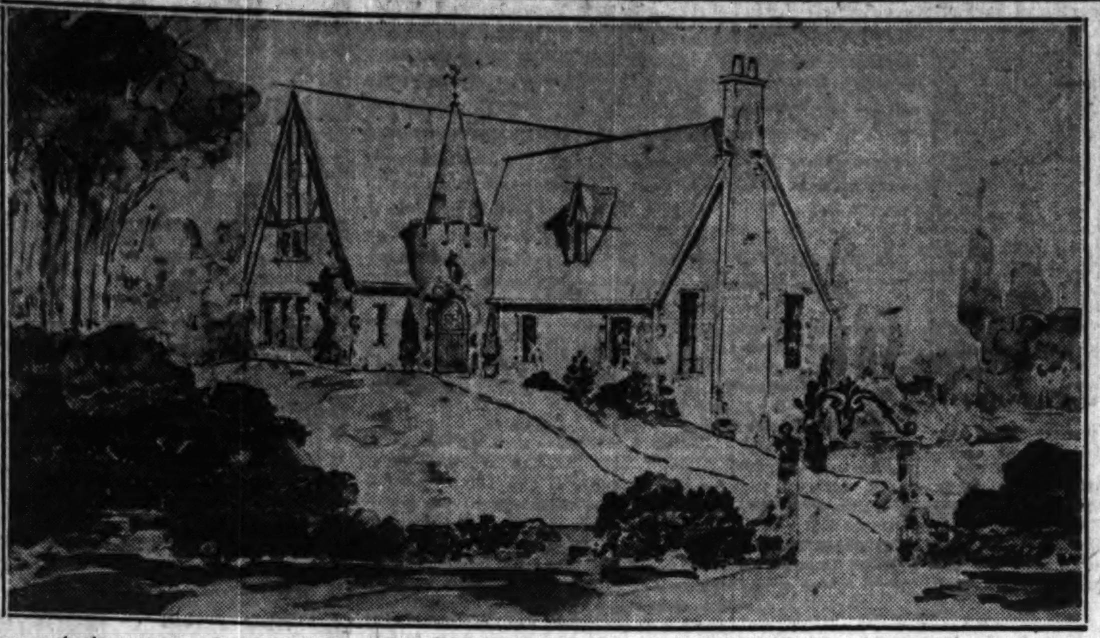
The windows are casement throughout; intimacy expressed through their small panes. For it is admitted that small panes in windows have a distinctive charm and suggest not only domesticity but privacy as well.

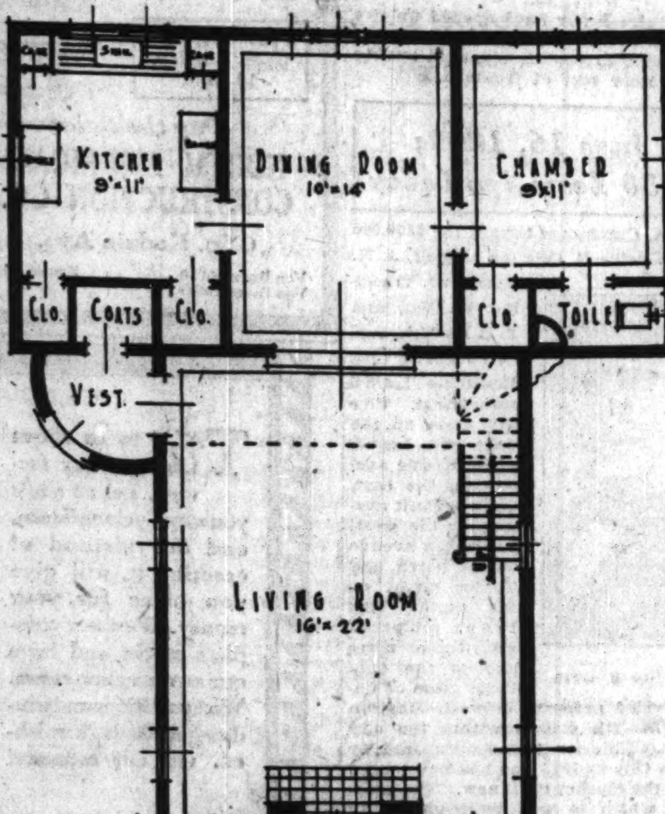
The ornamental iron work above the entrance at the front walk enhances the entourage of the house. A hilly, irregular lot presents more of a landscaping problem than do those of rectangular, level form, but such a lot, when properly landscaped, gives big returns in interest and appeal. Beautiful trees and shrubbery enhance the site.

There is a garage in the basement at the back of the house.

PICTURESQUE HOME OF MODERATE COST



A six room residence of French Norman architecture—adapted to American ideals—which, though it carries an air of expensiveness, actually is of moderate cost. There is a two story living room. This residence is to be erected in the Lincolnshire Country Estates, Crete, Ill. Harry Gallup, 646 North Michigan avenue, is the architect.



Living room is 16x22 feet. Kitchen 9x11. Dining room 10x14. Chamber 9x11.

BREAKFAST NOOK WHICH CONTAINS A CHINA CABINET

The ubiquitous breakfast nook appears again in another guise!

This time we see it, with folding table of course, and benches, with drawers; but in the upper section of the breakfast nook container is a china cabinet which is large enough to house a complete set of dishes and hardware, while the drawers below it offer shelter for silver and linens.

Of selected gumwood are these units, and one may secure them unfinished or with colored lacquer, walnut or mahogany finish. They come in two models, differing only as to size. The table top of one measures 30x48 inches and the all over width is 50½ inches. In the other the table top measures the same, but the all over width is 56½ inches.

How About an Outdoor Nursery for Children?

Have you considered the health points in any out of door nursery for your children this summer? How about a spot fenced in for security and yet affording fresh air and sunshine—and for yourself peace of mind in the knowledge that your children are safe?

AN AUTOMATIC LIGHT THAT LESSENS PERIL FROM DARK STAIRWAY

According to the records of insurance companies—and who knows better than these interests the fatalities which overtake people—the stairway is about the most dangerous place in the house.

How nearly we have all come to stumbling down and breaking a bone or two on a dark basement step? How narrowly have we averted tripping over a stair from the second floor when we were coming down hurriedly in the dusk or dark with bundles in our arms.

Various devices have been invented to furnish home protection and now we see one manufactured which serves as an automatic light control and also as a burglar alarm.

This automatic stairway light switch can be placed under any stairway with a cut off switch in the bedroom or other convenient place. It can be turned on so that when any one attempts to walk on the stairs the light will switch on and a bell can be added if desired to give the alarm.

In this way stairs can be automatically flooded with light. Globes are not left burning in basement or attic or hall ways, with a mounting electric bill as the result. The installation of this switch in cellar or attic affords an automatic contact, making it impossible to forget the lights.

Answers to Questions on Home Owning

Painting Old Woodwork.

Dear Mrs. Bargelt: Can I paint mahogany stained woodwork a light color this summer without having the old stain work through the paint film? I am told that this is a hard thing to do. B. J.

Answer—Proper precautions must be taken in changing from stain to paint. Stain under new coats of paint, even where the stain is old, will frequently "bleed." Mahogany stain will do it more often than golden oak. Bleeding can be prevented by sealing the stain before the paint is applied. Cover the stain finished surface with a material which will keep the turpentine and oil in the paint from reaching the stain. Usually two coats of pure shellac will do this. Then over the shellac apply a coat of good paint and let the work stand for about two weeks. If the stain does not bleed in that time, one can go ahead with the finishing of the job.

Yellow in Dining Room

Dear Mrs. Bargelt: Would yellow woodwork and paper be suitable in a dining room? I love yellow, but am told that such a combination would not be good. D. A.

Answer: Yes, you can use yellow as you suggest—very effectively if you allow a sufficient difference in tone to throw the accents in the proper place.

AUTOMATIC OIL HEATERS SAFE, EXPERT AVERS

Oil heat of the fully automatic type insures safety from fires to an extent little appreciated by the public at large. Quoting John G. Gamber, state fire marshall of Illinois and past president of the National State Fire Marshalls' association, and authority on fire prevention:

"Fully automatic burners actually reduce the fire hazard when compared with coal. No soot or sparks are formed. This eliminates all roof and chimney fire which alone are responsible for more than 75 per cent of all dwelling fires. Also the handling of hot ashes in wooden receptacles is unnecessary.

HOME MODERNIZING.

When modernizing your house you take advantage of the sturdy construction which exists in the structure itself and add to that more feature which are substantial, domern, useful, and decorative.

SUMMER RESORT PLEASURES MAY BE HAD AT HOME

Some Suggestions for Life Al Fresco.

BY HOMER GRANT.

Where attractive landscaping, together with garden and terrace furniture, was once considered chiefly a matter of concern in large estates and spacious country homes, we now see the small city and suburban lot with its colorful lawns and gardens. For proper and artistic landscaping and furnishing of all one's available ground area has been found to pay for itself many times over not only in economic values but in increased joys and comforts.

Under the head of landscaping, with its velvety lawn areas, its trees, shrubbery and flowers, comes also rustic fences, garden benches, tinkling fountains and pretty pools, entrance arches, pergolas, trellis designs, summer houses and garden furniture of many kinds.

Lily pools, for example, are simple and inexpensive to construct and ornamental in the extreme.

Give Privacy and Safety.

Backyard enclosures or complete enclosures of the home give privacy for the elders and safety for the children. They may be simple hedges, picket or lattice fences, wire fences which are enduring, or they may be the more formal types of inclosures such as walls of brick, stone or stucco.

There are also many delightful varieties of sun shade products on the market for terrace and garden decoration and use.

No matter how small the grounds, every spot on which the sun shines may be utilized. Garden umbrellas, metal tables and chairs, concrete ornaments of various sorts; all play their part in making the ensemble a thing of beauty and use.

Furniture for Children.

Children's furniture is also manufactured in outdoor types, that the air and sunshine of summer may be enjoyed to the full. This furniture includes tents of many sizes, couch hammocks, sand box sets and garden sets. No reason waiting until one can take the youngsters to the lake or the sea shore. That time, for various reasons, may be slow in arriving. Right in their own home they can have those health giving, pleasure giving, pieces of summer equipment.

Besides contributing vitally to the usefulness and happiness of the family these pieces of terrace and garden furniture add charm to the appearance of the grounds. Together with proper landscaping they make the house look a true home and give it a real ease in its setting.

The sunny month of June is the month when days come which call one out of doors. And if that out of doors be given a few allurements—and none of these allurements mentioned are prohibitive in cost—one can make of a summer at home a time of delight and health.

Remedy for Dining Room Furniture That's Seedy

Are you dining room chairs and table in that state of delapidation which seems hopeless? Try the effect of staining them black with apple green or sea blue top and see what dignity they achieve.

Pastel Green Gives Good Effect with Maple Floor

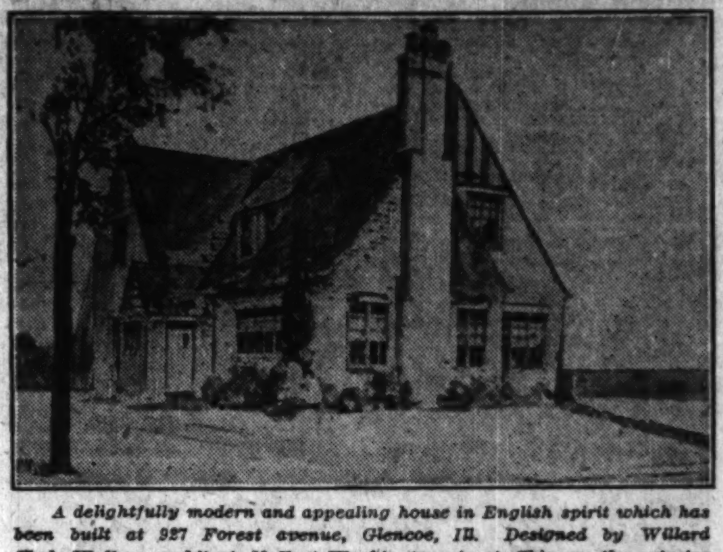
TO BE SEEN AT GLENCOE



A delightfully modern and appealing house in English spirit which has been built at 927 Forest avenue, Glencoe, Ill. Designed by Willard Clyde Walker, architect, 58 East Washington street, Chicago, the exterior is of common brick, set off by hand adzed oak timber work. The residence is insulated throughout.

Shutter Lends Variety to Blank Spaces of Walls

Though the shutter or blind is of little use today to keep out winter cold or summer heat, it lends variety of color and texture to the blank spaces of an exterior wall.

Modernize your home interior with new moldings, built-in book shelves, entrances, and doors, and see what a difference it all does make!

Garden Umbrellas Gaining in Favor of Americans

Garden umbrellas, used for centuries in Europe, have now become popular in this country. They add beauty to a terrace or lawn and solid enjoyment to the dwellers thereon. They are manufactured in a wide variety of designs and fabric patterns, and their shades are so numerous as to offer possibilities of harmony with any home color scheme.

BUY A LOT.

One of the best ways to make a start towards a home is to buy the lot and begin paying for it.

UNIQUE SHINGLE ROOFING PROVES OF MUCH WORTH

A new type of shingle roofing has recently been put on the market which is receiving favorable reception.

It is a tapered single with butt ½ inch thick, giving a shadow line massive appearance on the roof. Cedar shingles are used as a base and they are coated with asphalt to within two inches of end of shingle to increase durability and protect the wood. Crushed rock or slate, imbedded in the asphalt coating, produces handsome nonfading colors and affords fire protection, making the shingle fire resistant.

Six colors of natural slate are produced; dark and light red, purple, dark and light green, and blue black.

This shingle gives a triple coverage over the entire roof and, being semi-rigid, is not affected by rain or wind and will not curl or blow up.

The shingles come in random widths and can be laid in either straight line or staggered shake effect. They possess among other assets a certain insulating value of their own.

Reroofing is a simple matter, and because of the semi-rigidity of this shingle, it is particularly adaptable to this sort of work. The old shingles need not be taken off, merely covered up.

Cedar shingles as a roofing material have demonstrated their practicability by generations of service. Now add to this shingle an asphalt coating which preserves and waterproofs the wood and serves as a base into which crushed rock or slate may be embedded, and one has features combining for permanence, fire protection, and lasting beauty.

Furthermore, this shingle is reasonably priced.

FARM AND GARDEN

RABBIT'S MEAT, FUR TAKE PLACE IN FARM PLAN

A. Weygandt Shows Profit to Be Made.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

Rabbit raising is being put on a utility basis in the middle west. More than one hundred thousand breeders are turning out thousands of dollars' worth of domestic rabbit meat and fur in the United States annually. During the last few years this specialized branch of agriculture has flourished on the Pacific coast. Consumers in Los Angeles, Cal., buy more than a million dollars' worth of rabbit meat in a single year.

The demand for the products produced by this double crop producing animal is growing so fast that the limited number of producers in the middle west cannot supply the demand, according to Arthur Weygandt, secretary of the American Rabbit and Cavy Breeders' association. Producers and packers are seriously going about the development of this intensified enterprise, which fits into the scheme of production on many small farms near large consuming centers. Already domestic rabbit meat is being sold in some of the higher grade meat markets of Chicago.

Bantams and Giants.

Every breed from the beverens, the bantams of the rabbit family, to the Flemish giants are being produced in this country. In the national association's demonstration rabbitry, run by Mr. Weygandt back of his home at 7408 Normal avenue, many of the standard domestic breeds are kept. Throughout the year Mr. Weygandt keeps about 60 rabbits, including the standard chinchilla, heavy chinchilla, blue and white Flemish giants, red and white New Zealands, checkered giants, Dutches, Havanas, Himalayans, American blues, Belgian hares and Angoras. Annually he produces from 250 to 300 fancy rabbits for breeding purposes.

Where rabbit raising is made a regular business and put on a paying commercial basis there should be at least 500 breeding does in a rabbitry. Some rabbit men have 5,000, and in a few cases 7,000 breeding does are kept. But Mr. Weygandt advises beginners to start on a small scale with from 20 to 50 does the first two years, and later gradually enlarge the size of the rabbitry.

Domestic rabbits are not yet raised on a big scale in the Chicago territory. They are produced in large quantities by breeders on the western coast. Breeders who are familiar with conditions in different parts of the country say that rabbits should thrive here better than they do on the western coast. Rabbits can be successfully produced here the year around with each doe producing as many as four litters a year where the young ones are sold for meat.

Mr. Weygandt says that most of the domestic rabbits produced are sold as fryers. They are marketed alive at the age of from eight to nine weeks. Young rabbits are produced at a low cost because they are nursed by the doe until they are sold and are not fed any grain during the first three weeks.

Cost 10 Cents a Pound.

Tests made at the association's demonstration rabbitry where high priced feeds are used [alfalfa at $40 a ton and rolled oats at 3 cents a pound] fryers cost about 10 cents a pound. When they were two months old the rabbits were sold alive at 40 cents a pound. With the fryers weighing about 4 pounds the average gross return was 80 cents each, leaving a profit of 40 cents above feed cost on each rabbit.

Rabbit raising has become so important in this country that the federal government has established experiment stations in the east and in the west where breeding, feeding and other problems are thoroughly studied. At Fontana, Cal., the government maintains a station devoted exclusively to the study of domestic rabbits. From 400 to 500 are kept there. Rabbits are also studied at Saratoga Springs station in New York. Leading midwest breeders are anxious to have the government establish a similar station in the central states where a study can be made of the domestic rabbit under local conditions.

More Breeders Needed.

Mr. Weygandt says that many more breeders are needed in the middle west to supply the potential demand for rabbit meat in the bigger consuming centers, especially Chicago.

He says that there is not a great difference in the meat of the different domestic breeds. Meat of the domestic rabbit is more like chicken meat than wild rabbit meat which is dark when cooked and is objected to by some persons.

The government experts say "relatively few housewives in the eastern part of the United States are acquainted with the delicious flavor of domestic rabbit meat. Most of them have been accustomed to thinking of rabbit in terms of the cottontail, the small game animal that is hunted so extensively. Others have thought of rabbit only in terms of jack rabbit, which is even less attractive than the eastern cottontail."

Domestic rabbits are fried, broiled and roasted. Like chickens they can be cooked in a variety of ways.

Several breeds of rabbits are now raised in this country, according to Mr. Weygandt, who has been raising rabbits for more than twelve years. He says that there are six varieties of the Flemish breed, including the dark steel, light gray, sandy gray, black, white, and blue. It is the largest breed, producing standard sized bucks that weigh 13 pounds and does 15 pounds. Many Flemish giants weigh 16 to 18 pounds each. They produce young rabbits that weigh 3½ to 4 pounds when they are ready to market as fryers.

One Doe's Crop.

A Flemish doe will produce four litters a year, with from 6 to 13 in a litter. A single doe is capable of producing 160 pounds of fryers a year, the equivalent in weight of a good sized hog. If bunnies are kept and sold when mature, the Flemish doe's annual crop of roasting size rabbits would weigh 560 pounds, equivalent to a good sized beef calf.

It is claimed by many breeders that the New Zealand will dress a higher percentage of meat than almost any other domestic rabbit. The New Zealand weighs from 10 to 11 pounds when full grown.

The American blues and whites are considered good commercial rabbits. They also weigh from 10 to 11 pounds when mature.

During the last five or six years chinchilla rabbits have been the most popular, because of the fur they produce. It resembles the valuable fur of the chinchilla lanigera, the little animal of Chile and Bolivia, which is becoming scarce. The original chinchilla rabbit was small, weighing from 4½ to 6 pounds, but by careful breeding and care within the last few years breeders have practically doubled the size. The new heavyweight chinchilla weighs about 10 pounds, making this rabbit not only extremely valuable as a fur producing animal, but also for its meat.

Different Breeds.

Other breeds include the checkered giants, Havanas, Himalayans, English spots, Angora or wool rabbit, and the Dutch, the Jersey of the rabbit family. The Belgian hare is used chiefly as a pet and a show rabbit. There is also the blue and white beverens, champagne de argents or French silver, Polish, and English and French lops, some with ears 22 inches from tip to tip.

Mr. Weygandt points out that the domestic rabbits are far more important in this country today than they were a few years ago before their value as meat producing animals became recognized. He says a large percentage of fur used in making fur coats in this country comes from the backs of the domestic rabbit.

For information on the production of domestic rabbits write to the Agricultural Editor, Chicago Tribune, Tribune Tower, Chicago.

GIANT MEAT PRODUCERS

TRIO OF FLEMISH BLUE DOMESTIC RABBITS—Arthur Weygandt, 7408 Normal avenue, is shown here with three does kept in his back yard rabbitry. They weigh from 16 to 17 pounds each, and represent the largest breed of utility rabbits in the United States.

In his rabbitry Mr. Weygandt also raises many of the other breeds of domestic rabbits, including New Zealands, Checkered giants, Dutches, Havanas, Himalayans, American blues, Belgian hares, and Angoras.

Teachers Use Tribune's Flower Book as Daily Aid to School Children

"Flower Gardening," The Tribune's new booklet, is being used in schools throughout the middle west as an aid to pupils in grade schools and students in high schools and colleges. Teachers are encouraging the growing of flowers around the schools as well as at home.

With a copy of the booklet as a handy reference, beginners in flower gardening are successful in starting seeds or in setting out plants in boxes and beds. School children find the book valuable where they want to become familiar with the color, height, planting time, and blooming time of annuals. "Flower Gardening" also gives various combinations of plants to use in both outdoor and indoor flower boxes.

Teachers and school children may obtain copies of "Flower Gardening" at The Tribune Public Service office, 1 South Dearborn street, or the Tribune Tower lobby, for 15 cents, 18 cents by mail.

8,000 Families to Be at Rock County Picnic

Rock county, Wis., is now classified as a modified accredited area, according to W. A. Duffy, commissioner of agriculture. In that county 61,438 cattle have been tested and 60,321 of them were found to be absolutely free from tuberculosis. The achievement will be celebrated when dairymen meet at Riverside park, Janesville, Wis., on June 27. The committee in charge of the picnic program, which is to start at 10 o'clock, estimates that 8,000 farmers' families will attend the celebration. Rock is among the Wisconsin dairy counties that produce milk for Chicago.

TIPS FOR SADDLE HORSE MEN.

Would you please give me any information you might possess on where I may obtain information as to the care of saddle horses?—G. H.

REPLY.

There is a chapter on the care and training of saddle horses in "The Saddle Horse," a book published by Henry Holt & Co., 1 Park Avenue building, New York City, N. Y. You may also find valuable information in Dr. A. S. Alexander's revised circular, number 61, published by the University of Wisconsin, Madison, Wis. It gives advice on the care of the new born foal. Write for farmers' bulletin number 952, "Breeds of Light Horses," published by the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

CUT DANDELIONS MATURE SEED.

Will dandelion plants go to seed if they are cut with a lawn mower when the blossoms are yellow and after a few days dry out and turn white? I have cut my lawn and the dandelions have turned white, but it does not seem to me that they would ripen without being on the plant.

REPLY.

No doubt many of the seeds would ripen to the point where they would germinate and help in reinfesting the lawn with dandelions. After the plants bloom it is not necessary for them to remain uncut to ripen most of the seeds.

Can you tell me what to use to kill angleworms? I want to use something that will kill them and not poison the birds or injure the grass. W. B. M.

REPLY.

Angleworms or earthworms are valuable creatures in cultivated fields, and gardens but when they cause trouble on lawns or putting greens where the grass is closely clipped, bichloride of mercury can be used to drive them to the surface. They are then easily killed. F. F. Rockwell, an authority on lawns, recommends the application of bichloride of mercury (corrosive sublimate). The chemical is easily scattered over the lawn by mixing one ounce of the bichloride of mercury with six pounds of ordinary sand. Scatter it over the surface of the greensward at the rate of about one-half ounce of the chemical to each one hundred square feet. By copiously watering the lawn after the mixture is applied the chemical is washed into the soil.

Hawthorne Garden Club Holds Flower Exhibition

Several thousand suburbanites have entries in the first annual industrial spring flower show which was opened yesterday at the Western Electric company's gymnasium, 49th avenue and 22d street. All of the exhibits, including the prize winners, will be kept in place from noon today until the close of the show at 6 o'clock this evening, according to G. E. Bell, chairman of the garden committee of the club at

The prize winning exhibits in seven classes were selected by judges from the various community flower and garden clubs in and around Chicago. Club leaders who were officials at the show included Mrs. James H. Burdett, Flossmoor; Mrs. W. E. Conrad, La Grange; Mrs. B. C. Downes, Downers Grove; Mrs. Spencer S. Fuller, Riverside; Mrs. John Golden, Elmhurst; Mrs. C. Grier, Oak Park; Mrs. A. S. McLean, Warrenville; Mrs. A. A. Mertsky, Western Springs; Mrs. C. H. Parsons, Warrenville; Mrs. T. H. Slusser, Norwood Park; Mrs. K. E. Tholin, Downers Grove; and Miss Helen Von Oven, Naperville.

Riverside Club Holds Its First Flower Show

The Garden Lovers' club of Riverside is holding its first annual flower show at the town hall. The exhibits were judged yesterday and the prize winners will be kept on display from 10 o'clock this morning until 6 o'clock this evening, according to A. F. Brownwell.

The community exhibits are featured in the first show. Garden clubs from various suburbs and communities in the Chicago area are competing.

A $250,000 purchase of acres in the southwest part of the city by William H. Britigan, preliminary to the opening of another subdivison by the Britigan organization, was a feature of last week's news. The property, which was conveyed by the Chicago Title and Trust company, comprises sixty acres bounded by 67th street, Western avenue, and 71st and Rockwell streets. It has been held by the former owners for many years, waiting for the city's growth in that direction. The consideration is said to have been $250,000—all cash. The property will be placed on the market under the name of Westwood.

CLAIMS RECORD FOR BUILDINGS ON NORTH HOYNE

A construction record is claimed by Architect A. L. Himelblau for his extensive apartment building project on North Hoyne avenue at Granville, described in this department on Feb. 10. The project involved six buildings containing 89 flats, ranging in size from three and a half to seven rooms.

On Feb. 10 bids were invited. On March 10 construction was started. The first unit was under roof within 35 days after the masonry was started and all the units were under roof by May 15. And June 20 is the date of first occupancy by tenants.

This enterprise is featured by a large recreation area, which includes a playground for children, a tennis court, handball court, stakes for horse shoe tossers, an attractive garden, etc. Some of the unusual conveniences included in the apartments after work was started were electrical clocks and electrical dishwashers.

When completed the great building of the Railway Terminal and Warehouse company at Kingsbury and Indiana streets will be one of the largest warehouse buildings in the world. It will rank second to the great structure of the Furniture Exhibition company in Illinois street, near the lake, and will have a total floor area of 742,700 square feet, or more than an acre. It will serve as a warehouse for the products of the irrigated lands of the far west tributary to the Puget Sound extension of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway which will also use a part of the building as a bonded warehouse in connection with its oriental traffic. The building will have a frontage of 640 feet on Kingsbury and will cost more than $1,000,000. James A. Pugh is president of the company building it. Nimmons & Fellows are architects.

Fiat SHOWER BATH COMPARTMENTS
Meet the most exacting requirements in modernizing Hotels, Residences, Clubs, Apartments, Resorts, Bungalows, Office and Industrial Buildings.
A Fiat Shower Bath Compartment can be carried into the house just like a piece of furniture and can be placed anywhere you choose—in bathroom, bedroom, hall or closet. When installed it makes a complete watertight enclosure—a self-contained unit that positively will not leak and is unaffected by expansion, contraction or shrinkage of the building. It provides an additional bath that is absolutely private and which may be used independently of other bathing facilities.
Only the finest construction is embodied in Fiat Enclosures. The floor or receptor (pre-cast) is of polished terrazzo. The walls can be furnished either of vitreous enamel (just like your bathtub) or of high grade, specially prepared, galvanized steel—finished in various colors of Duco Enamel or with prime coat of paint. The latter permits the walls to be decorated to suit prevailing color schemes.
Whether installed in new or old buildings, Fiat Showers offer the most sanitary and economical kind of installation. No special contrivances are required to make it leakproof—in old buildings, no costly redecorating, tiling, marring of floors or walls is necessary. They are installed on finished floors as easily as on roughed-in flooring and the final, finished appearance is equally pleasing. The result is a maximum of shower bathing facilities in a minimum of space—a modern installation in every sense of the word—attractive, foolproof, leakproof, sanitary, easy to install and maintain—a distinct boon to owners of homes, apartments, hotels, resorts, clubs, etc. Made in many sizes and designs.

LONDON STOCK MART TRADING IS IRREGULAR

Main Price Trend Is Downward.

BY SIDNEY CAVE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
[Copyright: 1929: By The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, June 15.—Business on the London stock exchange has not been quite so good as appearances would suggest. Despite one or two spasmodic outbursts which have received publicity because of their spectacular character there is little real business about, the public apparently hanging back nervously and prices moving irregularly, chiefly downward.

As a large number of speculators are temporarily out of action, the professional element would have had considerable difficulty even under normal circumstances in fostering a broad public buying movement. There are no signs, however, that the bullish move in the Anglo-American section of Rhodesian coppers or oils encountered any serious interference as a result of recent political developments.

The markets generally are now removed sufficiently from the immediate circuit of general election influence to permit conclusions regarding the future development of financial conditions as a result of the change of government.

Fall Into Background.

Financial quarters believe that one effect will be to drive capital into foreign government issues, the foreign section having been noticeable this week for its persistent steadiness. Hitherto popular industrials such as tobaccos, gramophones, Courtaulds, and others now appear to be falling somewhat into the background, speculators insisting that there is nothing much to "go for" at the moment, while there is an additional hesitation pending definite information regarding the government's unemployment and financial plans.

Animation in the mining section, especially Rhodesian copper shares, is still being fanned by American demand, but the inactivity of the public is still acting as a clog to the progress of the markets and as a consequence there is much irregularity as a result of reliance upon professional operations.

No big revivals are at present contemplated, insiders anticipating little additional business until the approach of fall, with sharp movements among selected stocks only likely to provide the main source of excitement and activity.

Exchange Causes Anxiety.

The sterling-dollar exchange is causing real anxiety. This week's rate touched the lowest point of the year, leading bankers and foreign exchange experts confessing themselves considerably puzzled by the sterling's present movements. The persistent weakness of the dollar-sterling rate is associated in authoritative circles here with continental buying, principally to the account of France, of dollars needed for debt payments to the United States. Normal trade requirements at this time of year would usually be insufficient to keep the dollar at such high value in terms of the pound sterling and some improvement is therefore looked for in the near future.

There are no signs in the money market of any exchange operations which would explain the present weakness, although some fears have been expressed concerning new United States tariffs.

A mysterious "unknown buyer" has again been active in London this week purchasing a large portion of the new gold arriving from South Africa, the Bank of England obtaining only about a third of this week's gold consignments. Neither New York nor Berlin appears able to identify the "unknown buyer," one suggestion being that the source of the mystery may be a central European bank engaged in replacing gold formerly held for London and stipulating for the time being that its identity be concealed.

Gold Cancellations.

Upon at least four occasions within the last fortnight arrangements for shipment of gold from London to New York or Germany have been canceled at the eleventh hour. One shipment of £250,000 was canceled by a New York firm at the last minute on Saturday, while in the cases of a consignment ready for shipment to Bremen and another to be taken from London to Cologne, the gold bars were actually packed when the London firm responsible for operations received an order to abandon the transaction. Experts interpret these instances as confirming the theory that both the Federal Reserve bank of New York and the reichsbank have been bringing pressure upon their respective centers to abstain from shipping gold from London.

Uncertainty and nervousness concerning the American exchange situation and outlook are still keeping the discount market on tenterhooks and bill rates have been well maintained, although the supply of money has continued good.

PARIS BOURSE DULL

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, June 15.—The Paris bourse continues to limp along in a highly unsatisfactory manner with the public showing only the slightest amount of interest.

As a result of the situation, professionals have become discouraged and, in view of the public inactivity, began in the middle of the week to liquidate their positions after the rise which followed the termination of the experts' conference. The continued liquidation produced further falls at the end of the week.

The activity in oils has provided the only spot in the week's activities which, by any stretch of the imagination, could be termed bright. Rentes are dull and banking steadily recedes while the balance of the market is listless.

Unions Make Uneven Mark in Business

BY SCRUTATOR.

Labor unions have made several notable successes in bank management in the United States since 1920, although the number of institutions has shrunk from a maximum of forty-one to twenty-eight at last accounts. Two insurance companies with the same sort of backing are strong institutions. But in such producing, manufacturing and distributing activities as have been undertaken, the record of the unions as capitalists has not been so good.

The insurance companies are the Union Coöperative Insurance association, started by the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers in 1924, and the Union Labor Life Insurance company, sponsored by the American Federation of Labor, which began writing policies in 1927, after a capital of $750,000 had been gathered from the affiliated unions.

Carefully Modeled.

Both are carefully modeled on established insurance lines and are said to be in a favorable position due to the fact that a great deal of business can be written through union officials without the payment of commissions. The local unions which maintain benefit and insurance funds are usually too small to keep to a correct actuarial basis, and it is related that many of them have welcomed the larger companies. As a result the two concerns have a much larger proportion of group insurance than is usual.

So far as the department of labor statistics show, three attempts have been made by unions to get into the city retail store field. Shops have been established in Brooklyn, Chicago, and St. Louis, with the avowed intention of making it possible for union men to purchase in one place complete outfits of men's clothing and haberdashery articles bearing the union label.

The bureau of labor statistics stated some months ago that none of these had been operated profitably. Chicago's store had the largest sales, $23,000 in 1927, while the others reported gross business of less than $14,000. Overhead is high on such small turnover. The Chicago store management is said to have plans for more stores to make purchases more easily available.

On Chain Store Plan.

Many local coöperative stores were started some years ago and in 1922 it was estimated that a half million dollars of union funds had been invested in these, mostly by miners' unions in Illinois and Pennsylvania. They were operated on the chain store plan in Illinois. The government reports indicated that they were successful at first, but that most of the unions as such have withdrawn, although some of the stores are still being run with capital furnished by the miners. The system as a whole was felt by impartial observers to be a failure.

Several coöperative bakeries were started under union auspices, notably in Sioux Falls, S. D., Los Angeles and New Haven, Conn. The bureau of labor statistics also found that three laundries had been started, but was without accurate figures on their business. A brick company formed by the Bricklayers, Masons and Plasterers' union at El Paso, Tex., was reported thriving recently with a gross output of $100,000 a year. There have been a number of cigar factories owned by union members, but none belonging to the unions or the locals themselves now exist.

The coal mining venture of the locomotive engineers in West Virginia was unsuccessful. The same organization's model farm project in Florida is admittedly in doubt as a financial proposition. The Amalgamated Clothing Workers several years ago sold $300,000 in stock to finance clothing manufacture in Russia and contributed largely from its own funds for the purpose.

Return Invested Funds.

Several dividends have been paid and the stockholders are now being given back their invested funds. The union regards the project as having been entirely successful.

Among the enterprises started and abandoned were a mail order business of the Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Employés, a glass factory of the National Window Glass Workers' association, some union-owned cigar factories, a creameary, tailor shops in Cleveland and Detroit, a bakery in Minneapolis, a shoe company in New York, a knit goods plant in Brooklyn, and several mines that were for a time operated in Illinois by miners' unions.

The record shows that the insurance companies and the well handled banks are important contributions to the economic structure, and that some of the investment companies have filled a need. But the production and merchandising activities have not gone well as a whole. As one man well informed on union matters remarked yesterday, the union movement toward capitalism has apparently entered a period of quietude, with only few and unimportant projects now in contemplation.

CHICAGO TRIBUNE SURVEY

CHICAGO TO ASK READJUSTING OF FREIGHT RATES

ChargesDiscrimination in Favor of East.

Discrimination against Chicago business by the railroad rate structure in the territory east of the Mississippi and north of the Ohio will be fought by the Chicago Association of Commerce in proceedings before the interstate commerce commission on July 15.

Ancient agreements between the railroads are cited in the brief filed with the commission by the association as depriving the city and its surrounding territory of their natural geographical advantages. The request is made that a time-honored principle of rate making, that rates on manufactured articles from the east to the markets of the midwest are lower than those from the central states to the eastern markets, be abolished.

Charges Business Is Handicapped.

The disparities in rates were established in a period when nearly all the manufacturing industries were in the east and the Chicago territory was predominantly agricultural. Although the section at the lower end of the lakes now rivals the east in manufacturing, the association declares, its manufacturers and wholesalers are still handicapped by this manner of rate making.

Joining with Chicago in this fight for fairer treatment are several commercial organizations in Illinois, Missouri, and Iowa cities.

Besides the difference in the all rail rates favoring the east, the brief of the Association of Commerce points out an even more serious detriment to the water borne traffic from Chicago, created when the railroads owned or controlled the freight carrying ships on the great lakes.

Heavy Increase in Rail-Water Rates.

The association asserts that since Jan. 1, 1900, the all rail rates between Chicago and the east have been advanced 89 per cent, but that joint rail and water routes have been increased from 139 to 175 per cent. As a natural consequence of this additional burden on water transport, it is alleged, the package freight out of Chicago has been reduced 62 per cent.

Another unfortunate effect, the brief states, has been a change in the financial status of the lake shipping companies, those depending on traffic to and from the east having operating losses now where they had good returns on their investments under more favorable rates. In the matter of rail and water charges the Chicagoans have the support of Sheboygan, Manitowoc, and Two Rivers, Wis.

BANK CLEARINGS FOR WEEK SHOW 8.2 PCT. DECLINE

New York, June 15.—Bank clearings this week at all leading cities in the United States, according to Dun's Review, amount to $10,670,476,000, a decline of 8.2 per cent reported as compared with the corresponding week of last year. At New York City, clearings of $7,155,000,000 are 9.2 per cent less than the amount reported a year ago, while the total for the principal centers outside of New York of $3,515,476,000 shows a loss of 6.1 per cent.

Operating Income of Roads Shows Big April Increase

New York, June 15.—(AP)—Net operating income of 183 class 1 railroads for April amounted to $94,204,116, an increase of $23,586,223 over April, 1928. For the first four months of the year it amounted to $353,745,987, an increase of $65,757,685 over the same period last year.

CURB SALES OUTRANK BIG BOARD DUE TO THE INTEREST IN UTILITIES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 15.—For what was believed to be the first time, trading on the New York curb exchange today exceeded in volume trading on the New York stock exchange. Great activity in public utility stocks on the curb and only moderate movements in issues other than copper stocks on the other exchange were responsible.

Sales on the curb totaled 1,287,900 shares on which transactions in Commonwealth & Southern provided 391,900 shares. Sales on the big board totaled 1,262,000 shares. Sales on the exchange for the year to date totaled 500,972,150 shares, the largest for this period in any year, and curb transactions to date total 175,138,224 shares.

The opening transactions on the curb in Commonwealth & Southern totaled 100,000 shares at 25, unchanged from the previous close. This total equaled the previous opening record on the curb made on May 14, 1928, when General Baking B opened with a block of 100,000 shares at 14⅞. The monetary value of the Commonwealth & Southern offering was $2,500,000 against $1,500,000 for the General Baking opening.

Checker Cab came back strong, advancing 4¾ points after selling down to 56½ in the past week on announcement Ford was seeking to enter New York taxi field, already threatened with a price war. Aviation corporation, a subsidiary of which has started air-rail service to the Pacific coast, sold fractionally lower.

FOREIGNERS PAY 80 MILLIONS TO U.S. ON WAR DEBTS

Washington, D. C., June 15.—(AP)—Payments of $80,109,385.95 were received by the treasury today from eleven foreign nations, constituting regular semi-annual installments on the principal of war debts, together with interest for the last six months. Only $858,876.19 of the receipts were in cash, the balance being made up in treasury notes.

The bulk of the payment came from Great Britain and amounted to $66,795,000. Other payments were those of Italy, $5,000,000; Belgium, $4,200,000; Czechoslovakia, $1,500,000; Esthonia, $125,000; Finland, $130,680; Hungary, $28,973.40; Latvia, $45,000; Lithuania, $84,732.55; Poland, $1,500,000; Roumania, $500,000, and Jugoslavia, $200,000.

All of the payments were made in conformity with agreements reached during debt negotiations, and in some cases constituted solely payments of interest and in others solely payments of principal. The United States securities accepted in today's payments have been cancelled and retired.

Gov. Emmerson Signs Bill Exempting Chicago Curb

Springfield, Ill., June 15.—(AP)—Securities listed and traded on the Chicago curb exchange are exempted from the need to qualify under the Illinois blue sky law under a legislative measure signed by Gov. Louis L. Emmerson. The new law grants the curb association, organized only a year ago, the same privilege accorded the Chicago, New York and Boston stock exchanges, whose listed securities automatically qualify under the blue sky statutes. A similar law with the Chicago Board of Trade as its beneficiary was also passed by the assembly which has just adjourned.

Insull Issues Rise in Stock Trading Here

BY GEORGE HAMMOND.

Other than a strong movement confined to a few active shares, Chicago stocks were dull and irregular in yesterday's two hour week-end session.

The automotive list was headed by Auburn Automobile, which finished the day with a 5 point gain. Great Lakes Aircraft sprang into activity and closed 2½ points higher. Perfect Circle was up a point and Allied Motor Industries advanced fractionally. Bendix Aviation was down a fraction.

Insull issues displayed group strength in the public utility division, Commonwealth Edison advancing 5½ and Insull Utility Investment preferred closing 13 points up. The turnover in both issues, however, was light. Butler Bros. gained a point and Minneapolis-Honeywell, manufacturer of heating plant regulators, was 3 points higher. Walgreen common stock purchase warrants became fairly active and finished 5¾ higher. Universal Products lost 4 points.

Grigsby-Grunow led the radio list with an eight point gain. Raytheon was down a point, and Zenith advanced fractionally.

The movement of the market for the week as a whole was upward, with gains of from three to forty points being registered by the active list. The fifty most active issues showed an increase in market value of $13,420,445, or 1.33 per cent. The total value of these stocks at the close yesterday was $1,024,018,331, compared with $1,010,597,886 at the end of the preceding week, a compilation of Lage & Co. states.

A year ago only twenty-one of these issues were listed and traded in, and the market value of these stocks then totaled $368,611,513, compared with $568,859,859 at the close yesterday. This is a gain over the year of $200,248,346, or 54.32 per cent.

The most spectacular issue of the week was Auburn Automobile, which was worked up forty points over the period. Insull Utility preferred advanced 15 points, and Waukesha Motors gained fourteen points.

FORD RAILROAD FAILS TO APPEAR IN FEDERAL CASE

Columbus, O., June 15.—(AP)—The Detroit, Toledo and Ironton Railroad company failed to answer an indictment charging it with defrauding other roads out of lawful rates on coal shipped from Kentucky into Ohio when the case was called in federal court here today.

Assistant United States District Attorney William B. Bartels said he had not been informed why the officials of the road did not appear and that he did not know what procedure will be followed. He said S. P. Ruddiman of Dearborn, Mich., had been notified that the case would be called today.

The district attorney's office said Henry Ford would not be called, although his railroad is involved. The indictment charges that the D., T. & I. contravented the joint rate tariffs by having coal shipped to one destination and actually securing it and delivering it to another, defrauding the Norfolk and Western in particular out of its rightful carrying charges.

Standard Oil Dividends Set Quarterly Record

New York, June 15.—(AP)—Cash dividend payments by companies comprising the Standard Oil group during the second quarter of the year have amounted to $66,047,877, establishing a new high record, despite a reduction in dividends of nearly $7,000,000 by the Standard Oil company of Indiana. Standard Oil of New Jersey's payments were $3,094,371 greater than during the preceding quarter as the result of an increase in the extra dividend from 12½ cents to 25 cents a share.

C. & A. Asks Permit to Discontinue Nine Trains

Springfield, Ill., June 15.—(AP)—Permission to discontinue nine local passenger trains was asked of the Illinois commerce commission today by the receivers for the Chicago and Alton Railroad company. The reason given was the tremendous decrease in local passenger business. Trains to be discontinued are on runs between Bloomington and Chicago; Roodhouse and Springfield; Roodhouse and Louisiana, Mo.; Carlinville and East Hardin, and Jacksonville and Roodhouse.

LABOR IS GIVEN CREDIT FOR ERA OF PROSPERITY

Investment Firm Makes Survey.

BY O. A. MATHER.

Hard and efficient labor on the part of American workers, resulting in both increased earning and spending power, is responsible for the present era of prosperity. As long as this situation continues there is likely to be no decline in national well being. These conclusions are reached in an industrial survey just made by Lawrence Stern & Co., investment bankers.

"The new standard of living, or rather standard of spending, of the American worker is largely a present to himself as a reward for the common sense he has recently exhibited in abstaining from costly strikes and turning in value received for the high wages he has gotten. Industrial harmony is becoming a national habit. Capital and labor realize that peace and partnership pay dividends in wages and profits.

At Low Point.

"This situation undoubtedly is one of the most important factors in our present era of prosperity, as today the strike level is at the lowest point in history, and the continuity of production is being disturbed by relatively few industrial disputes. There is no sign on the horizon that the present cycle will be broken because of industrial strife. Last year was the banner year in the absence of strikes and lockouts, and this year bids fair to equal or break that record.

"With corporation profits gaining and labor accumulating unprecedented wealth, purchasing power has increased, making every worker a potential capitalist, reluctant to jeopardize his earnings by participating in labor controversies. Since 1922 the reduction in labor trouble had been most rapid and pronounced.

Build Credit Balance.

"The prosperity of American labor is no small factor in the investment markets today. With money wages 126 per cent higher than prewar, while only paying 71 per cent more for what they buy, the wage earners are continuing to build up a credit balance which is in a large measure finding its way into the security markets as well as into the channels of commerce.

"More working people own homes, have money in the bank and securities in safe deposit boxes than ever before in the history of the nation; their standards of living are higher. Everybody profits and benefits from this condition. Meanwhile, it is significant to note that while the hours of work have decreased 8 to 10 per cent, per capita productivity is nearly 60 per cent greater than in 1900. This was due to better management and planning, new inventions, modern machinery in the factory and greater skill on the part of the individual worker."

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 15.—Bull traders and pool operators had their innings again today in the week-end stock market session. They staved off a bear drive at prices during the first hour and rallied their followings to absorb the usual week-end profit taking.

The net result of the two hours of trading was that final quotations were irregularly higher. While profit taking resulted in moderate losses in some industrial issues which had featured the advance earlier in the week, gains predominated and were wider than losses. The public utilities, rails, and copper made the best group showings. The volume of trading was moderate, with total transactions of 1,262,900 shares.

Inspires Cheerfulness.

News that President Hoover would sign the farm relief measure and the easier tendency of the money market joined to inspire cheerfulness, as also did the President's estimate of a surplus of more than $100,000,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30. The monthly review of the federal reserve board said that high money rates have not had an adverse effect on business, but have been an influence against overexpansion.

Increased foreign buying of copper is expected next week and there also is the probability that domestic consumers will come into the market for good amounts of the metal. The May railroad earnings statements which will begin to appear next week are expected to make another excellent showing.

Only Adverse News.

About the only adverse piece of news was the development of a new complication in the petroluem industy as the result of the Royal Dutch Shell company filing a complaint with the state department against the Hoover order restricting drilling permits on federal lands.

The star performer again was Adams Express, which soared another 24 points. Detroit Edison mounted eight points, while Anaconda Copper, Auburn Auto, Greene Cananea and United Fruit hopped five points or more. The other utility and copper issues generally followed the leaders, with net gains running up to nearly five points in American Smelting, Andes Copper, Calumet & Arizona,

United Power Gas and Water Corporation

A Public Utility Common Stock
With Highly Interesting Possibilities

LISTED ON THE CHICAGO STOCK EXCHANGE AND CURRENTLY SELLING AROUND $38 PER SHARE

Two hundred million dollars of public utility properties, annual gross earnings of over $22,000,000 and ownership of two of the notably successful public utility systems of this country are represented by United Power Gas and Water Corporation which owns controlling interest in Federal Water Service Corporation and Peoples Light and Power Corporation.

Both of these Corporations are enjoying and, in our opinion, will continue to enjoy substantial growth. While their combined gross business is now in excess of $22,000,000 annually, neither one, we believe, has begun to reveal its real earning power.

Increasing earnings of the constituent companies will be reflected in increasing earnings per share on the Common Stock of United Power Gas and Water Corporation.

For the twelve months ended March 31, 1929, consolidated earnings of the combined properties were equivalent to over $3.18 per share on United Power Gas and Water Corporation Common. Based on the past record of normal growth, earnings for the future are estimated at in excess of $4.00 per share for the calendar year 1930 and at in excess of $6.00 per share for the calendar year 1931.

WHEAT TRADERS DISREGARD FARM RELIEF PROGRESS

Pay More Attention to Strength at Winnipeg.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Wheat traders paid little attention to the fact that the farm relief bill was to be signed by President Hoover during the day, and practically discarded farm relief as a market influence, temporarily at least, and paid more attention to the strength in Winnipeg and to increasing reports that rain was urgently needed in the Canadian northwest. Trade as a whole was small, but prices averaged higher with a range of 1@1¼c, the finish being at net gains of ¼@⅜c. July closed at $1.07⅞@1.08; September, $1.11⅝@1.12¼, and December, $1.17@1.17¼.

More favorable weather over the corn belt led to profit taking and increased pressure from the local element and the finish was ⅝@1c lower with July, 91½@91⅝c; September, 91½c, and December, 86¾. Oats were ⅛c higher to ⅛c lower with July, 44½c; September, 43⅛c, and December, 45⅝@45½c, while rye was ¼@½c lower, July being 83¼c; September, 86½c, and December, 90⅜c.

Grains Lower for week.

While the grain markets fluctuated in a most erratic manner during the last week, prices averaged lower and when it became certain that farm relief was to be a fact, the markets quieted down to some extent, with a majority of traders disposed to go slow on either side until more definite information as to how the various provisions of the bill were officially construed. At the last wheat was 1@1½c lower; corn, ⅝@1⅜c; oats, ¼@⅝c, and rye, 3@3⅜c lower for the week. Provisions were unsettled, with lard 10@12½c lower; ribs, 30@35c higher, and bellies, 45@72½c higher for the week.

While the trade look for erratic fluctuations to continue in wheat, the immediate trend of values is expected to hinge on whether the Canadian northwest receives rain or not over the week-end. Winnipeg was strong from the start, and closed ¾@1¼c higher with the forecast for generally fair and warm, although scattered thunderstorms are expected in some sections. The first reports of actual deterioration in the outlook in the prairie provinces were received during the day.

Foreigners showed little anxiety over the farm bill, and Liverpool wheat closed ⅛d lower, although the dry weather in Canada is attracting considerable attention abroad. Export sales at the seaboard were finally estimated at 500,000 bu, mainly Manitobas. Bulk of the trade here was of a character.

Expect Heavier Corn Movement.

Clear and warm weather over the greater part of the corn belt, with indications that the movement of old corn to terminal markets would increase rather sharply in the immediate future led to free selling by local operators who found support less aggressive, and at the low point prices showed 1@1¼c under the finish of Friday, the close being on a rally due to week-end short covering. Purchases of corn to arrive were 66,000 bu, with more offered slightly above buyers' views. Shipping demand was fair, with sales of 75,000 bu.

Report Russia Slow to Pay Up in Railway Agreement

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, June 15.—An international railroad agreement was closed at Leningrad last week between soviet Russia and Esthonia, Latvia, Lithuania, and Germany, which provided for the monthly settlement of accounts among the signatories. Today Latvia presented its May transit bill of $24,000 to Russia, Lithuania a $34,000 bill, and Germany a $55,000 bill. Representatives of the railroad administrations of the three countries report Russia a slow payer.

WORLD'S GRAIN MARKET NEWS

Now that the farm relief bill passed, expectations of a bull grain market to start immediately were not realized yesterday. In all traders were more uncertain as to what the law really means and have practically decided to await construction and action by the farm board, which is expected to be announced within a week.

There is a nervousnesse in the grain trade, due to uncertainty as to what effect the farm relief bill will have and to droughty conditions in the Canadian northwest, the latter having more influence yesterday than any other factor. Trade sentiment is more divided than ever and the disposition is to go slow on both sides.

The corn trade is a little more bearish as the result of brighter weather and expectations of an improvement in the situation in the country. Traders asserted that no new buying power is in the market, and local traders had it largely to themselves.

CASH·GRAIN NEWS

Foreign demand for cash grain at the seaboard was relatively slow, with sales of 500,000 bu wheat, principally Manitobas. Local handlers sold 11,000 bu wheat, 75,000 bu corn, 60,000 bu oats, and 3,000 bu barley to the domestic trade.

LARD STOCKS INCREASE

Lard stocks in Chicago rather surprised the trade, with an increase of 3,427,146 lbs. since June 1, making the total 97,370,860 lbs., against 93,943,704 lbs two weeks ago, and 107,622,822 lbs. at the middle of June last year, when the increase for the period was 12,500,000 lbs. Stocks of meats were practically unchanged for the past two weeks and are mostly larger than last year.

Trading in bellies was the feature yesterday, changing from May to July at 35c difference, and there was a little difference in October at 15c over September. At the close prices were 5@7½c lower for the day. Lard was rather neglected, with an easier tone and net losses of 5 to 7½c. Liverpool lard was unchanged to 3d lower, the latter on September and October. Exports of lard were 772,125 lbs, and bacon 105,000 lbs. Prices follow:

COTTON TRADE LIGHT

News in cotton yesterday was more in favor of lowering of values. Liverpool cables were weaker and closed 8 points lower, with spot sales 5,000 bales. There was an announcement that textile manufacturers had entered an agreement to curtail production one week per month for the next four months, owing to dull trade conditions. The bullish boll weevil report by the government was considered by the trade as having been fairly discounted and an increased disposition to sell prevaded the trade.

Spinners' takings for the week were estimated at 243,000 bales and the into sight movement 71,000 bales.

At the close prices were around the lowest, with futures in Chicago to 6 points lower, with other markets 2 to 9 points lower. Spots were 5 points lower, New York and New Orleans being 18.80c, and Houston and Galveston 18.65c, with spot sales in Galveston 578 bales and Houston 358 bales. Prices follow:

BRITAIN ASKS WHY AUSTRALIA LIKES U. S. GOODS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 15.—The Federation of British Industries has issued a report of the British economic mission to Australia, which recently returned from a trip of investigation to Great Britain's private continent to discover why one of England's best customers was showing an increasing preference for American goods.

The commission recommends a visit to England by Australian industrialists, with a view to arranging the sale of English products in Australia and the manufacture in England of goods adapted particularly to the Australian market. It also recommends that individual industries investigate the possibilities of investing capital in Australia and establishing factories there to manufacture goods nearer the consumer.

PUBLICITY BAR TO INVESTMENT TRUST LISTINGS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 15.—Inquiries already made indicate that a large number of investment trusts are preparing to file applications for the listing of their securities on the New York stock exchange in accordance with the tentative requirements laid down by the stock list committee of that institution.

No applications have been made as yet, but several are expected to reach the stock list committee within a week or so. The rules drafted by the committee are such as to bar from the stock exchange list most of the investment trusts now in existance or to make it undesirable from their viewpoint to apply for listing. Possibly 20 per cent of the trusts, however, may meet the exchange requirements, it was estimated this week, although not all of them are willing to conform to certain of the rules.

The exchange listing authorities, it is understood, will probably make some changes in the requirements, but they are not expected to alter the rule relating to the disclosure of details of security holdings. Under the tentative requirements laid down trusts that apply for listing must obligate themselves to publish in their annual reports a complete list of securities holdings, except that investments not exceeding 10 per cent of capital and surplus or of cost of securities held may be grouped under "miscellaneous securities" if not held more than one year.

It is this requirement that publicity must be given to securities holdings which most investment trusts find objectionable. From a market standpoint, the publication of such information, many contend, might prove a serious handicap to an investment company.

Low-Priced Stocks?

What possibilities in these low-priced stocks at these prices?

Adv Rumely 35? United Cig. S. 19?
Am. Ag. Chem. 11? Schulte Ret. 20?
Ajax Rubber 6? Radio Keith O. 31?
Ind. Motorcy. 22? Butterick 34?
Cont. Motors 17? American Zinc 28?
Armour A 11? Willys O'd. 21?

Low-priced stocks, on account of the small funds required per share, may even by a few points advance, show very large profits. On the other hand, many low-priced stocks are highly speculative, hence making profit in this field calls for the most careful selection.

Which particular low-priced stocks are attractive now?

These matters are thoroughly analyzed in our latest report. Over twenty low priced stocks are covered—with certain selections pointed out. A few extra copies of this valuable report reserved for distribution free.

Common Sense Is the Best Protection Against Fraud.

Blue sky laws have been evolved to protect the investing public from fraud. Most of these laws differ widely in various states. They contain, however, almost every kind and combination of safeguard that has been devised to protect the savings of the overcredulous and thoughtless. Since the first experimental blue sky act in Kansas in 1911 these laws have been gradually made more effective.

Despite these elaborate legislative measures the activities of fakers still cause losses to the public estimated at hundreds of millions of dollars annually.

And the reason for this is that no species of legislation has yet been invented that will take the place of common sense. No state can or does guarantee the securities that are sold within its borders. Yet intelligent people continually assume that their state's blue sky law is a guarantee of any security offered them.

Furthermore, the law is generally about two jumps behind the abuse. Fakers as a class are very inventive. When a law is passed to check some profitable scheme they readily devise another. Legislation has done much to curtail existing evils, but it cannot anticipate all the schemes that may be concocted by imaginative swindlers.

The New York better business bureau in its report for the year ended April 30, 1929, calls attention to some of the more recent practices that have cost the unsuspecting a lot of money.

New Bag of Tricks.

"The year has witnessed the passing of many of the old devices that have been used to trap the unwary investor," the report states. "The fraud operators have learned that the public is becoming enlightened about their schemes and the authorities have ways to apply the existing laws against them. Taking the place of the tipster sheet system, in the last year, former swindlers have turned their attention to the exploitation of small stock speculators by a device that, if legitimate, might be described as a public pool.

"Such operator builds up a clientele through the medium of extensive mail advertising containing so-called disinterested advice on standard securities, which is given, usually, gratis. At an appropriate time he gets an option at a favorable price on a considerable block of the stock of a corporation whose securities have narrow distribution. He then sends out telegrams urging his followers to purchase this particular stock.

"The concerted buying thus created boosts the market price of the stock and the operator exercises his call and disposes of his stock in the open market at the enhanced price. He handles none of the public's money, but sometimes to disarm suspicion he requests his followers to pay to him a percentage of their profits from his 'advice.'

"It is seldom that profits accrue to these followers, because the effect of the artificially stimulated buying lasts but a brief period and the price of the stock usually finds its proper level when the concerted buying is over.

"This fall in market price is usually expedited by the selling of the stock by the operator when he has exercised his option.

Use Misleading Titles.

"Another tendency evident recently has been misuse of the words 'bank,' 'bank shares' and combination terms such as 'bankshares,' 'bankcorporation,' etc., which convey the impression to the purchaser that the projects are connected with banking institutions.

"In many instances, corporations bearing high sounding banking titles are in no sense banking institutions nor do they have any real claim upon the title except that they may use a portion of the money obtained from the public by the sale of their corporate stock to purchase bank stocks.

"The vendors of these securities know that it is easy to convey the impression, without actually claiming it, that their concerns are under the supervision of state banking departments. The use of such titles also provides the telephone salesmen who vend these securities with an opportunity to trade upon the advances in the market price of bank stocks and to 'high-pressure' prospects into a purchase of the vendor's corporate shares.

"Investigation is under way into the activities of a number of these concerns."

FINANCIAL NOTES

The Harris Trust and Savings Bank and Boatmen's National company, Mississippi Valley company, and First National company, all of St. Louis, are offering $1,000,000 St. Louis county, Missouri, 4½ per cent road and bridge bonds. The bonds are due serially June 1, 1932 to 1949, and are being offered at prices to yield from 4.80 to 4.40 per cent.

Directors of Atlantic and Pacific International corporation have declared an initial dividend of 1¼ per cent on the outstanding class A common stock, payable in additional class A common stock of the corporation on Aug. 1 to holders of record of the outstanding class A common stock at the close of business on July 15. This dividend amounts to 1-80 of a share of class A common stock for each share of the class A common stock outstanding. It is planned to issue bearer script certificates which shall be non-dividend bearing and non-voting for any fractional shares payable by reason of this dividend.

CEMENT RATIO.

The ratio of the operations to capacity of the American Portland cement industry during May was 76.4 per cent.

BUTTER AND EGGS FIRMER

While interest in butter and egg futures on the Chicago Mercantile exchange was not large, the markets showed a firmer undertone, and bullish sentiment was more in evidence. Spot eggs were easier, but had little effect and June storage packed firsts finished unchanged at 30½c while November refrigerators were ⅛c higher at 35⅝c. Sales were 54 cars and receipts 21,508 cases. December butter finished ⅛c higher with December at 44¼c. Sales were 8 cars and receipts 20,113 tubs.

Comparative Position of leading Chain Store Stocks

IT IS generally accepted that sound chain store stocks have made more money for investors than any other form of securities. Invariably the biggest profits have been made by investors who bought before present potentialities and asset position were discounted by the market.

Our Statistical Department has prepared a very interesting analysis showing the ratio of earnings to market prices, ratio of current assets to current liabilities, and ratio of total assets to present market prices, on the following leading chain store companies:

F. & W. Grand
W. T. Grant
Jewel Tea
Kresge
Kroger
McCrory
National Family
Neisner
Penney
Peoples Drug
Walgreen
Woolworth

Electric Bond and Share

Still a Purchase?

OUR five favorites in the public utility field—Electric Investors, American Superpower, Electric Bond & Share, Standard Gas & Electric, and Northern States Power—have all recently established new high records.

Regardless of what these stocks may do temporarily, we expect that over a period of time they will sell considerably higher.

Is Electric Bond & Share behind the other stocks in its group?

Although it has advanced somewhat recently it has not advanced proportionately with such stocks as American Superpower and Electric Investors.

Is a purchase of this stock at current prices likely to prove very profitable?

Our latest issue of bulletin definitely answers this question. It will be sent free.

CARRY SUGAR TO CHICAGO BY LAKE STEAMERS

Arrival from New York last week of a steamer with a cargo of sugar is regarded as a harbinger of further development in waterway transportation. The steamer left Thursday with a return load of 50,000 bushels of corn for Buffalo. Another boat carrying sugar is expected here about July 1.

The steamers are part of a fleet of six owned by the Erie and St. Lawrence Waterway corporation. Julius H. Barnes, head of the United States Food Administration Grain corporation during the war, is interested in the corporation. He has long been an advocate of waterway transportation and is a large exporter of grain.

COTTONSEED OIL.

NEW YORK, June 15.—(AP)—COTTONSEED OIL—Market was inactive and generally featureless. Contracts moved irregularly over narrow limits on a mixed week-end evening up trade, and closed 2 points lower to 5 points net higher. Refiners absorbed moderate liquidation of July, but otherwise there appeared to be a general lack of interest. Sales, 4,900 bbls. Prime crude, nominal; prime summer yellow, spot, 9.50c; July closed 9.56c; September, 9.83c; October, 9.88c; December, 9.96c; January, 9.97c.

SUGAR MELT GAINS.

The total melt of 15 United States sugar refiners from Jan. 1 to June 1 was 2,120,000 long tons, against 1,840,000 tons last year.

The hog market yesterday was slow and weak to lower, prices being mostly 10c lower than Friday with instances of 15c decline being noted. The supply at 11,000 was fairly liberal compared with 6,856 the previous Saturday and 9,300 head of them were shipped direct to packers from country points. The top Saturday was $11.20 compared with $11.35 for last Friday. Bulk of sales ranged from $10.50 @10.85 and packing sows sold around $9.10@9.85, the latter price representing good smooth sows.

New high price levels were established in the cattle market during the last week, the general average advancing 35c at $14.30, highest since November and above any corresponding week since 1920.

Receipts at 39,000 were among the smallest of the year, yet nearly 2,000 steers were reported at $15.00 and above, against a fourth of this number the preceding week and only 158 two weeks ago. Activity featured the market practically throughout the week, eastern buyers taking the same proportion in face of advancing prices. Choice 995¾ to 1,221 lb steers topped the list at $15.40 and 836 lb heifers sold at $15.10.

Dwindling hog receipts and higher markets for fresh port boosted the week's general average price to $10.85 equaling the highest since week ending May 11. The price stands $1.10 above a year ago and exactly $2.00 above the same week in 1927.

The five year average of corresponding weeks is $10.45. Local demand proved the principal support during the week, outsiders taking only 16 per cent of arrivals, against 20 per cent a year ago. Receipts of hogs at the eleven leading markets this week total 544,000, below any corresponding week since 1917, with the exception of 1927.

With demand on eastern account at low ebb, as usual at this time of the year when southern lambs supply the needs of points east, local packers pounded the market sharply lower again last week.

The general average at $15.90 was below any corresponding week in four years, with top prices at $15.80 late in the week being $3.55 under the high point in June of last year. Thus far this year Chicago has received 246,200 western range lambs, including the California season, which compares with 276,500 a year ago.

BOND OFFERINGS FOR WEEK SHOW DECLINE AGAIN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 15.—The total of new bond offerings this week dropped to $52,734,451 as compared with last week's total of $63,057,000 and compared with the previous low figure of $33,355,704 for the week ended May 24. Although state and municipal issues exceeded all other groups in number, the floating of several large public utilities put this group slightly ahead from standpoint of volume.

The largest issue of the week was that of $8,000,000 Southern Public Utilities company 5's which were brought out at 100½. The next largest issue, which was also a public utility issue, was that of $6,800,000 Central Power and Light company 5's, which were marketed at 91, to yield 5.65 per cent.

Of the state and municipal issues offered this week, the largest was the issue of $4,155,000 state of Maryland 4½'s, all of which was reported sold. The city of Albany, N. Y., was the next largest borrower with an issue of $3,224,550 and the city of Asbury next with an issue of $3,000,000 short term bonds.

Bankers are working on several sizeable public utility financings, some of which may be brought out next week. The bond market, however, has shown little improvement this week, so that many corporations are deferring their financing plans in the hope of securing more favorable terms a little later.

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, Jun 15.—(AP)—Cotton gray goods markets were quiet and firm with only light trading in scattered types of goods reported. The week's sales were less than the previous week and below the level of production. Burlaps were quiet after a brief demonstration of strength on better cables from Calcutta. Better demand for tropical worsteds was reported in wool goods markets. Spot raw silks were firmer on a higher Japan market, and prices showed slight advances. Floral prints in bright colors were selling well.

Week's Debits Decline, Reserve Bank Reports

Debits to individual deposit account reported to the Chicago Federal Reserve bank for the week ended June 12, 1929, by 262 banks in 38 leading clearing house cities in the Seventh federal reserve district aggregate $1,525,064,000, a decrease of 12.1 per cent compared with a week ago ($1,734,829,000). Compared with the corresponding week of last year ($1,575,261,000), a decrease of 3.2 per cent was shown.

OPPORTUNITY!

We have vacancies for two men of proven ability and initiative. Preference will be given to men who are now employed.

The work is selling the fastest moving six cylinder car in the entire year of 1928.

Our sales of Pontiac cars has increased over 50% above last year.

Lack of experience will not operate against you. We seek men of character who can measure up to the standard of our sales personnel.

Compensation is generous if you have ability in any line of work and if you will apply that ability in this line—then you can expect larger than usual earnings. Our present staff are all earning big money.

You can do the same right now —with no lost time.

We are reasonably particular in selecting men to become members of our sales force. We will require references.

Apply in person to W. S. Farrant at 235 E. 33rd Street.

CONTINENTAL ILLINOIS IS EXCEPTION IN DULL BANK STOCK MARKET

Trading was continuously dull last week in the Chicago bank stock market, with the exception of Continental Illinois Bank and Trust, which moved up 15 points. The closing market was 842 bid, offered at 846. Chicago Trust developed considerable weakness, being in supply at 875 with best bids at 870 —off 20 points for the week. Central Trust Company of Illinois was also heavy and lost 15 points in setting at 655 but closed slightly higher at 660 to 664, as did First National at 855 to 859. Union Bank was under pressure, 435 being bid with stock offered at 440.

Foreman National ex-rights was in good demand at 970 with limited offerings at 975. The rights were wanted at 74 with offerings at 75. Peoples Trust and Savings was unchanged at 530 to 534. National Bank of the Republic was pushed down 5 points to 243 to 246; so too was State Bank of Chicago at 768 to 773. Northern Trust was 5 points higher, 854 being bid with offerings at 859.

CHICAGO WAGE EARNERS ARE WELL INSURED

Chicago's commercial and industrial workers are the best protected group, as far as life insuranace goes, of any city in the world, according to a statement published by Chicago Commerce, the official journal of the Chicago association of commerce.

More than $750,000,000 in group insurance, or more than 10 per cent of all the group insurance in force in the United States protects Chicago's wage earners, the report states.

Chicago, which in a sense originated the group insurance idea, dates this form of life underwriting back to 1911 when Montgomery Ward & Co., casting about for means to assure the welfare of its employés, inaugurated a blanket policy on its personnel.

Since then practically all of the leading Chicago business institutions have fallen in line, notably the Western Electric company, where more than 30,000 local workers are insured without any cost to themselves. Other institutions protecting the dependents of their employées include the Illinois Bell Telephone company, the Chicago Association of Commerce, the elevated and surface lines; the Rock Island railroad; among the packers, Swift, Armour, Cudahy and Wilson; the University of Chicago, Stewart Warner; among the banks, the Federal Reserve, Central Trust and the First National; the Crane company; the People's Gas Light and Coke company; the Commonwealth Edison company and the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois.

Cerro de Pasco, Commonwealth Power, Consolidated Gas, Engineers Public Service, Inspiration Copper, Phelps Dodge, St. Joseph Lead and United Electric Coal.

The oil shares were inclined to weakness, with Houston Oil and Pan American Petroleum dropping 3¾ and 2⅝ points respectively. But Beacon Oil gained more than a point. In the motor group, Briggs Manufacturing, Eaton Axle, Electric Autolite, Electric Storage Battery, Goodrich, Goodyear and U. S. Rubber advanced a point or two. Timken Roller Bearing was off about a point.

Rail Group Activity.

In the general industrial list, net gains running up to more than four points were established by the Advance Rumely issues, Air Reduction, American Bank Note, American Tobacco B, Bohn Aluminum, A. M. Byers, Curtiss Aero, Drug, Inc., Eastman Kodak, Fleischmann, Foundation, the General Cables issues, National Distillers, Royal Baking Powder preferred, Simmons, U. S. Alcohol, U. S. Realty, and Ward Baking preferred.

On the other hand, net losses of similar extent were incurred by American Car & Foundry, Anchor Cap preferred, Atlas Powder, Armour of Illinois preferred, Du Pont, General Electric, Safeway Stores, Spang-Chalfant and United States Steel.

In the railroad group, Pere Marquette and Pittsburgh & West Virginia jumped 7¾ and 5⅝ points respectively and lesser gains were made by Baltimore & Ohio, Bangor & Aroostook, Canadian Pacific, Northwestern, Rock Island, Erie, New York Central, Norfolk & Southern, Northern Pacific and Reading. But New York & Harlem dropped ten points, while Chesapeake & Ohio and Union Pacific lost more than a point.

Retire in 15 years on your Present living Budget

by investing in safe 6½% First Mortgage Bonds

Follow the definite plan given in the new edition of this famous book, and your financial independence is won. The plan works just as surely whether you are now earning $1,000 or $100,000 a year.

The way is certain—each step plainly indicated and absolutely safe—independent of luck, business genius or speculation.

Every fact has been harvested out of the 48 years' experience of Cochran & McCluer in the first mortgage investment banking business.

The plan is so simple any one can understand it—so definite any one can follow it—and so certain no one can fail.

In addition to the Financial Independence Plan and the unique budget schedule, the book gives suggestions that enable you to enjoy more of the good things of life, both while building your independent fortune and after you have attained it.

We invite the most skeptical to read this plain, straightforward, interesting book. Phone, call or send coupon. We employ no salesmen, therefore none will call.

EXECUTIVES

We recently announced the establishment of the Executive Personnel Advertising Department in our magazine. This department was created at the request of many executives throughout the country and offers a national service to corporations seeking to employ executives and to executives seeking connections fitting their ability. A prominent and nationally known business publication is now able to offer a confidential, centralized, national medium for executive employment.

We announce at this time that the results obtained since the inauguration of this service have been beyond our own expectations.

We request executives and corporations to write us in confidence, submitting their problems. We will do our utmost to assist you.

The Best Buy Among the Oils

WE are convinced that the best buys on the Board today are among the oil stocks. This does not mean that any one could buy a broad list of oil securities and hope to make more than ordinary profits. In fact, it is our firm contention that whereas one oil stock might return an appreciation of only 1%, an entirely different oil might be bought to return an appreciation of 100% to even 200%.

For instance, MARLAND OIL, purchased a year ago, would have amounted to the present a loss of 11.7%.

On the other hand ATLANTIC REFINING would have netted the purchaser 119% profit on any amount placed in the issue.

We did not recommend MARLAND.

We DID recommend ATLANTIC REFINING—repeatedly.

Discrimination pays big dividends. Among all the good, poor and indifferent oil securities, we have once more selected one which we believe has possibilities fully equal to those possessed by ATLANTIC REFINING a year ago. Admittedly, 119% on your money in a year or less is an extremely generous anticipation, but in the case of this new bargain oil recently discovered we feel that all anticipations will be borne out by subsequent developments.

We shall be glad to send you the name of this bargain oil stock upon request and without obligation. Also an interesting book called "MAKING MONEY IN STOCKS". Simply address Investment Research Bureau, Div. 931, Auburn, New York.

WHAT IN THE WORLD IS THE MATTER WITH YOU TWO?
DO YOU FEEL WINGS SPROUTIN' YET TEDDY OLE PAL?
NOPE, I JUST FEEL KINDA FOOLISH!
TEDDY AND JACK, THE MOST TROUBLESOME PAIR AT MRS. NAGG'S BOARDING SCHOOL, DECIDE TO TURN OVER A NEW LEAF, BE MODELS OF DEPORTMENT AND GROW UP TO BE PRESIDENTS OR SOMETHING.
LOOKIT THE KEEN KITE ME AND JACK MADE, MARY. WE DECIDED TO CALL IT A 'AIRYPLANE' AND FLY IT WHEN THE WIND GETS BLOWN, IF WE CAN GET SOME STRING!
I'LL GET SOME STRING.
AW G'WAN WHAT CHA TALKIN' ABOUT?
THAT OUGHTA BE FAIR. I GOT MARY TO GET THE STRING SO YOU OUGHTA HOLD IT AND LET ME HAVE FIRST FLY, AND IF I WASN'T GONNA KEEP OUT OF TROUBLE FROM NOW ON, I'D MAKE YOU DO IT, GET ME?
WHAT'S ALL THIS ARGIMENT ABOUT?- YOU TWO IN TROUBLE AGAIN?
NAW!- WE'RE JUST KIDDIN'!
WHAT CHA MEAN CALLIN' THAT A AIRYPLANE? THAT'S JUST A PLAIN KITE!
WELL, WE'RE JUST MAKIN' BELIEVE IT'S A AIRYPLANE!
"AIRYPLANE"!- HAR!- HAR!- HAR!
IT'S JUST MAKE BELIEVE WE TOLD YA!
HERE COMES THE STRING!
IT'S NOTHIN' BUT A ROTTEN OLE KITE!
I'M GETTIN' DESPERATER EVERY MINUTE!
AW, DON'T PAY NO ATTENTION TO HIM JACK, HE'S JUST JEALOUS!
WISH I WAS AS BIG AS HE IS FOR ABOUT A MINUTE!
AIRYPLANE! APPLESAUCE!
SAY WHEN YOU'RE READY!
O.K. LET GO THAT AIRYPLANE
OOF!
EEK!
UGH!
YA WENT AND DONE THAT ON PURPOSE!
OOH! YOU OUGHT TO BE ASHAMED!
AND EVERYBODY LAUGHED AT ME.— I'M GONNA TELL MY MOTHER!
NO SUPPER AGAIN TO-NIGHT BOYS!
OOH!- LET ME HELP TOO!
LET'S SHAKE AND BE PARTNERS FOR REVENGE. WE'LL THINK UP A SECRET PLOT

WHY IT'S A BRAND NEW LITTLE CALF! IT LOOKS AS IF IT WAS JUST BORN.
I DON'T SEE HIS MOTHER AROUND ANYWHERE.
THAT'S FUNNY! I WONDER IF HE'S BEEN DESERTED. MAYBE WE'D BETTER TAKE HIM HOME AND FEED HIM.
WHAT DOES HE EAT?
HE'S ON A MILK DIET.
KEEP STILL PAL! HE'S A FRIEND OF OURS
I'LL GET SOME WARM MILK.
WHY WON'T HE EAT, UNCLE WALT?
HE WILL. HE ISN'T JUST USED TO US YET. HE'LL COME AROUND.
HE'S CALLING FOR HIS MA.
LET'S TRY SOMETHING DIFFERENT I'LL HOLD HIM AND YOU FEED HIM.

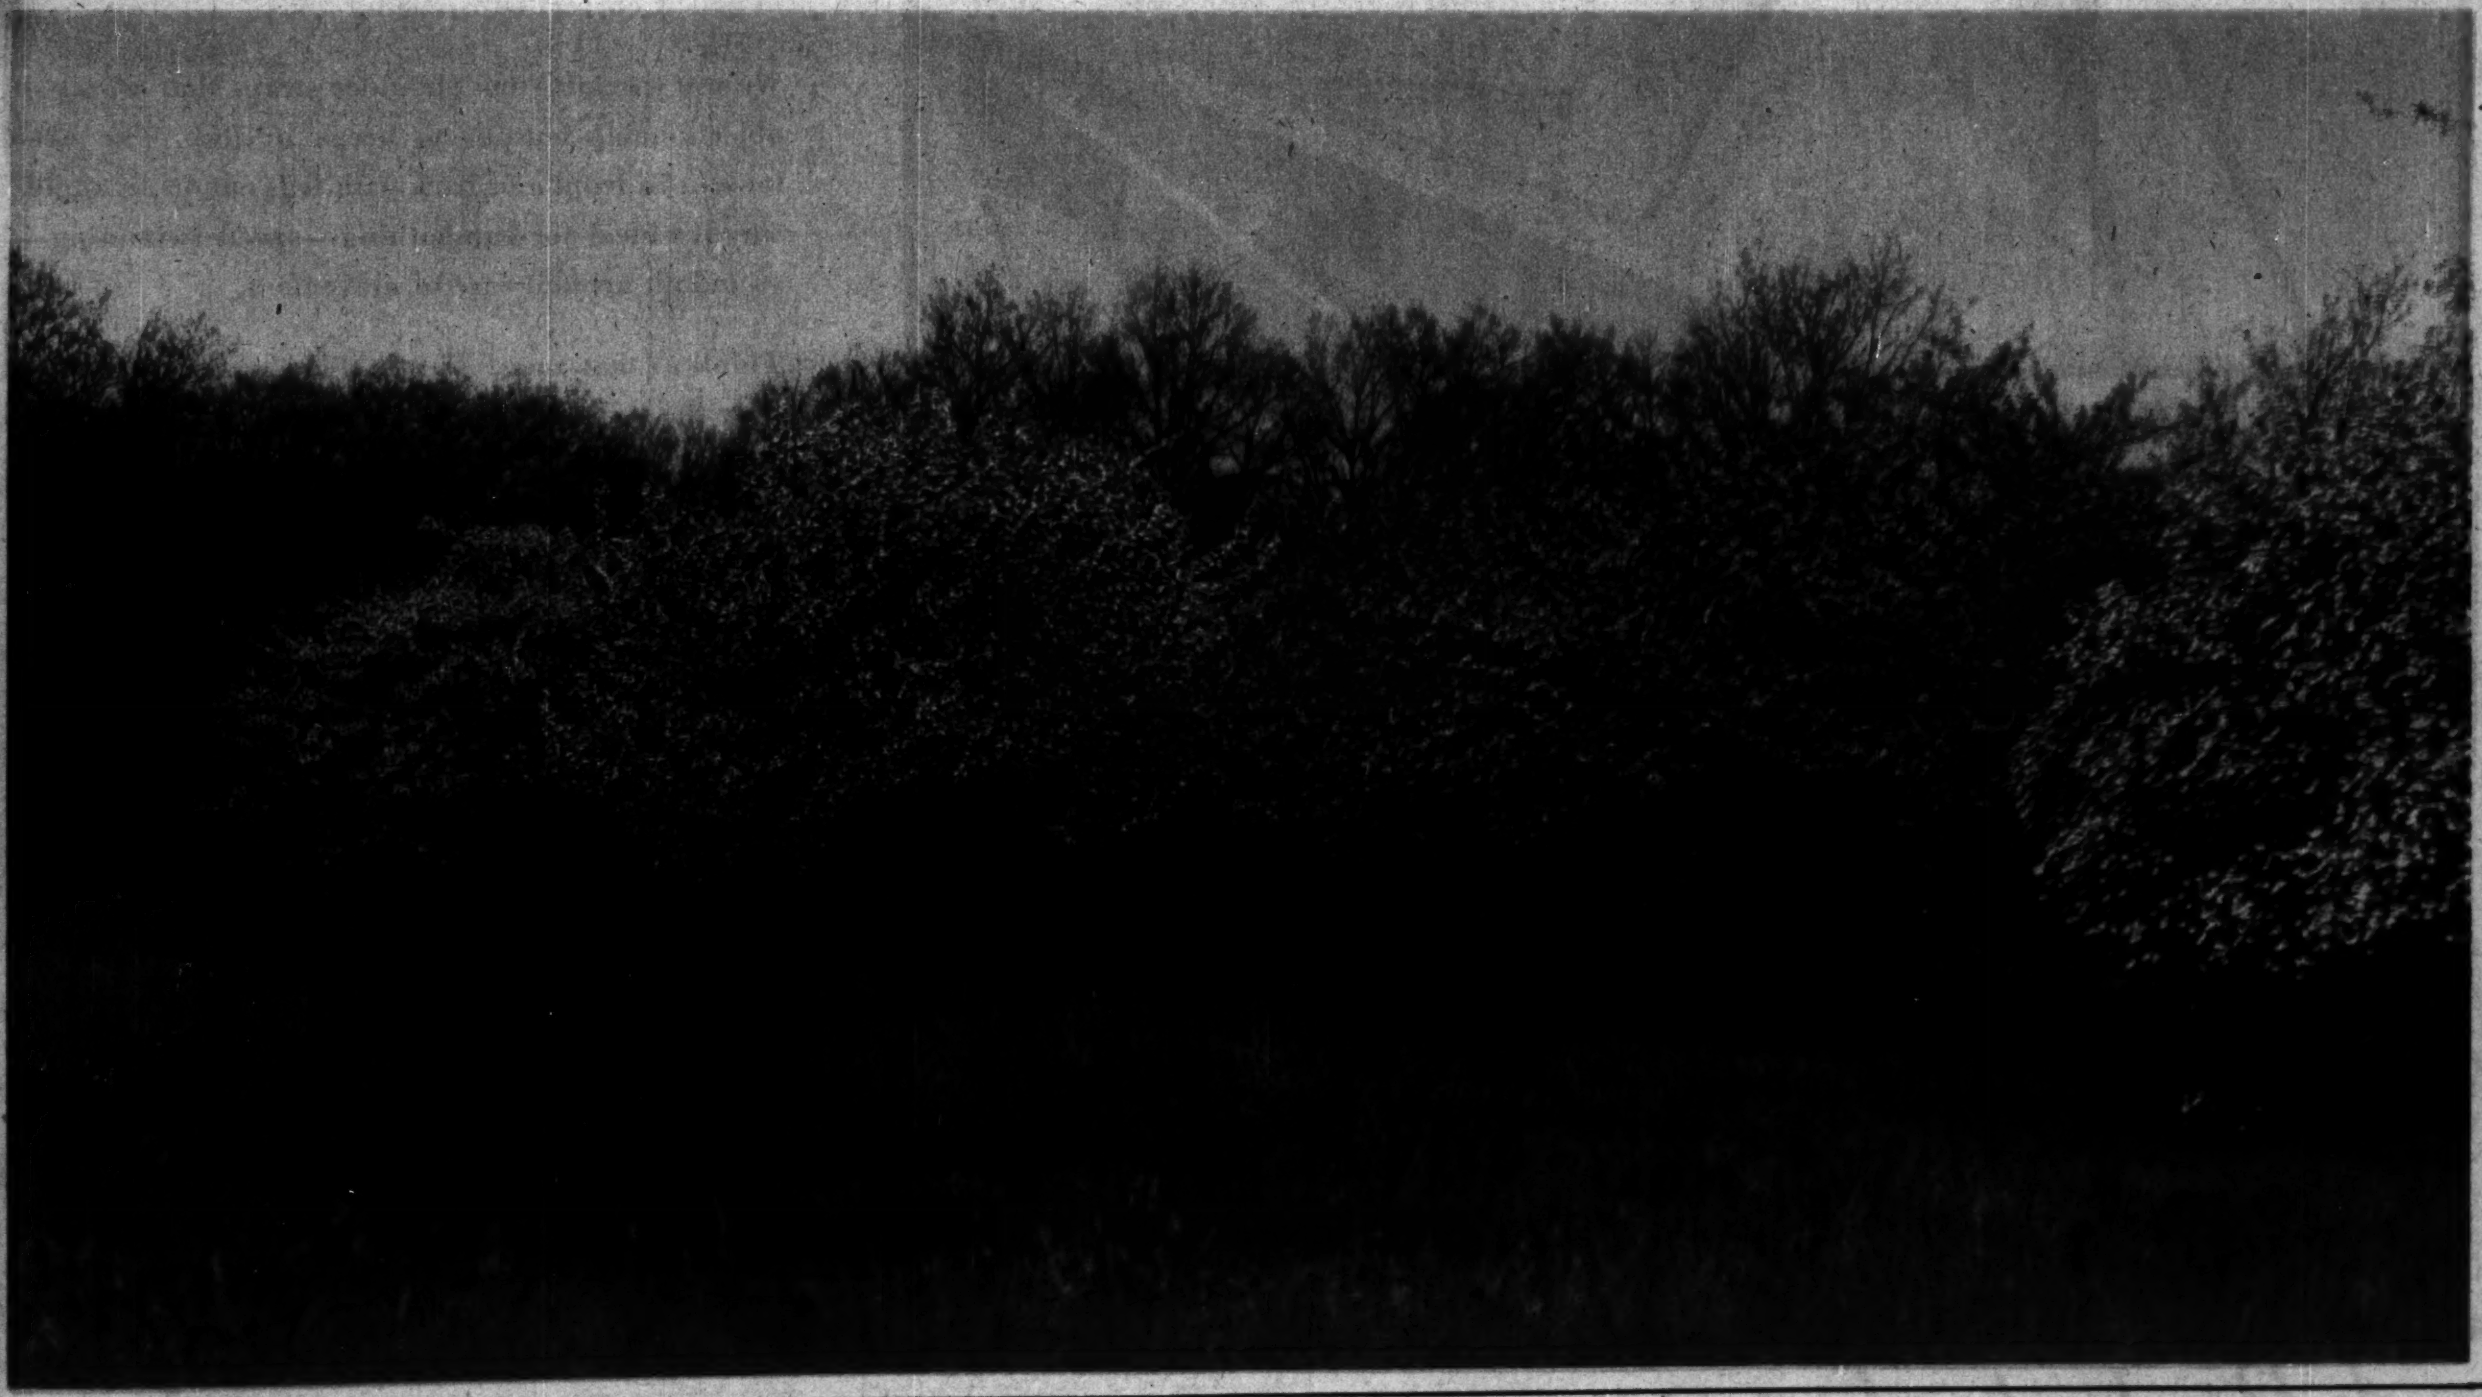
GIRL GRADUATES AT NORTHWESTERN—Seniors today, alumnae tomorrow, these co-eds of the class of '29 were counting the hours of vanishing undergraduate days when they posed for our annual color picture on the Evanston campus.



BLOSSOM TIME IN CHICAGOLAND—The crab-apple tree enhanced the countryside beauty near Wheaton with these pink and white billows of bloom. This tree has come into its own these days in landscaping; not only for its blossoms and the summer-long foliage it bears, but as well for the quaint informality of its twisting, spreading branches.

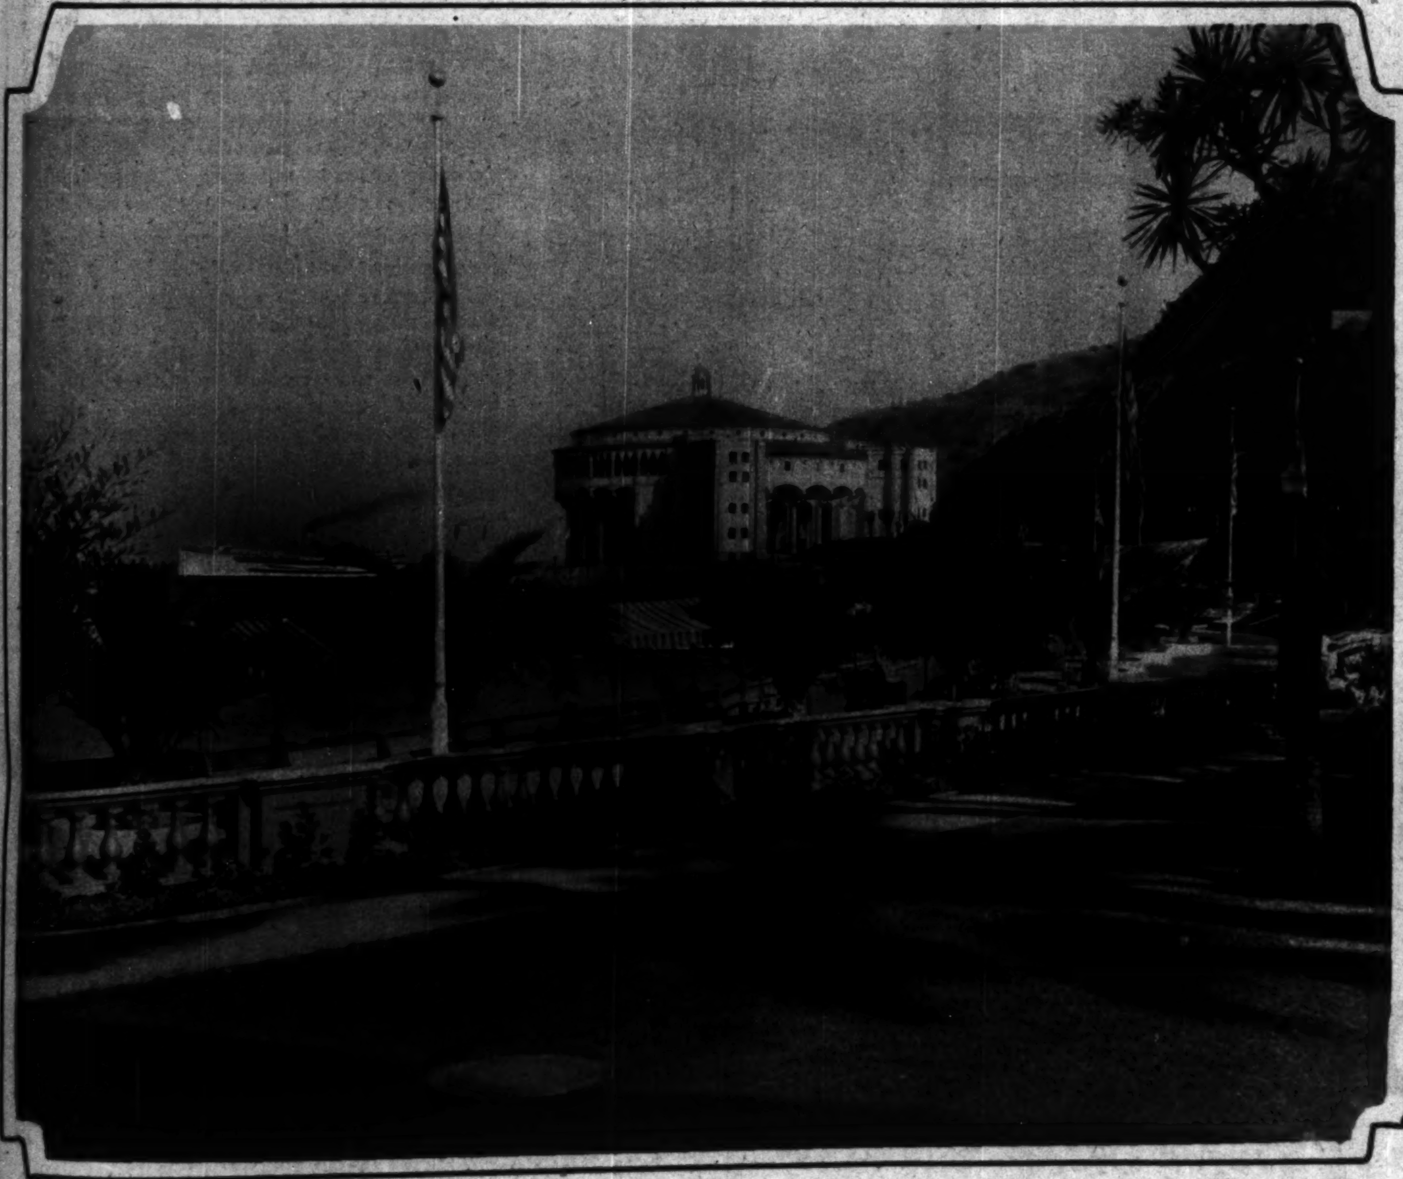
JOHN HERTZ JR. of Chicago, riding as captain of Cornell university's polo team. His father is the Chicago capitalist and sportsman; and his mother, as every horse lover knows, is owner of that Derby celebrity, Reigh Count.



WILLIAM WRIGLEY JR. DEDICATES A $2,000,000 CASINO to the amusement of visitors to his private California domain, Catalina island. Among other facilities for diversion, the Chicagoan's palace of play contains one of the world's largest dance floors.

THOUGH LUNGS BURST, though every fiber burns, sheer will drives rebelling muscle to the finish in that thriller of the track, the 100-yard dash. Scene, London. Ever faster, ever more killing, grows the pace of this perpetual assault of youth on time.

MEXICO'S SUMMER WHITE HOUSE, high, high in the mountains of the state of Guanajuato, will afford President Portes Gil exclusive magnificence in his hot weather retreat. When the president is seized with the fishing fever he has but to cast a line from any window, for water borders the palace on three sides.

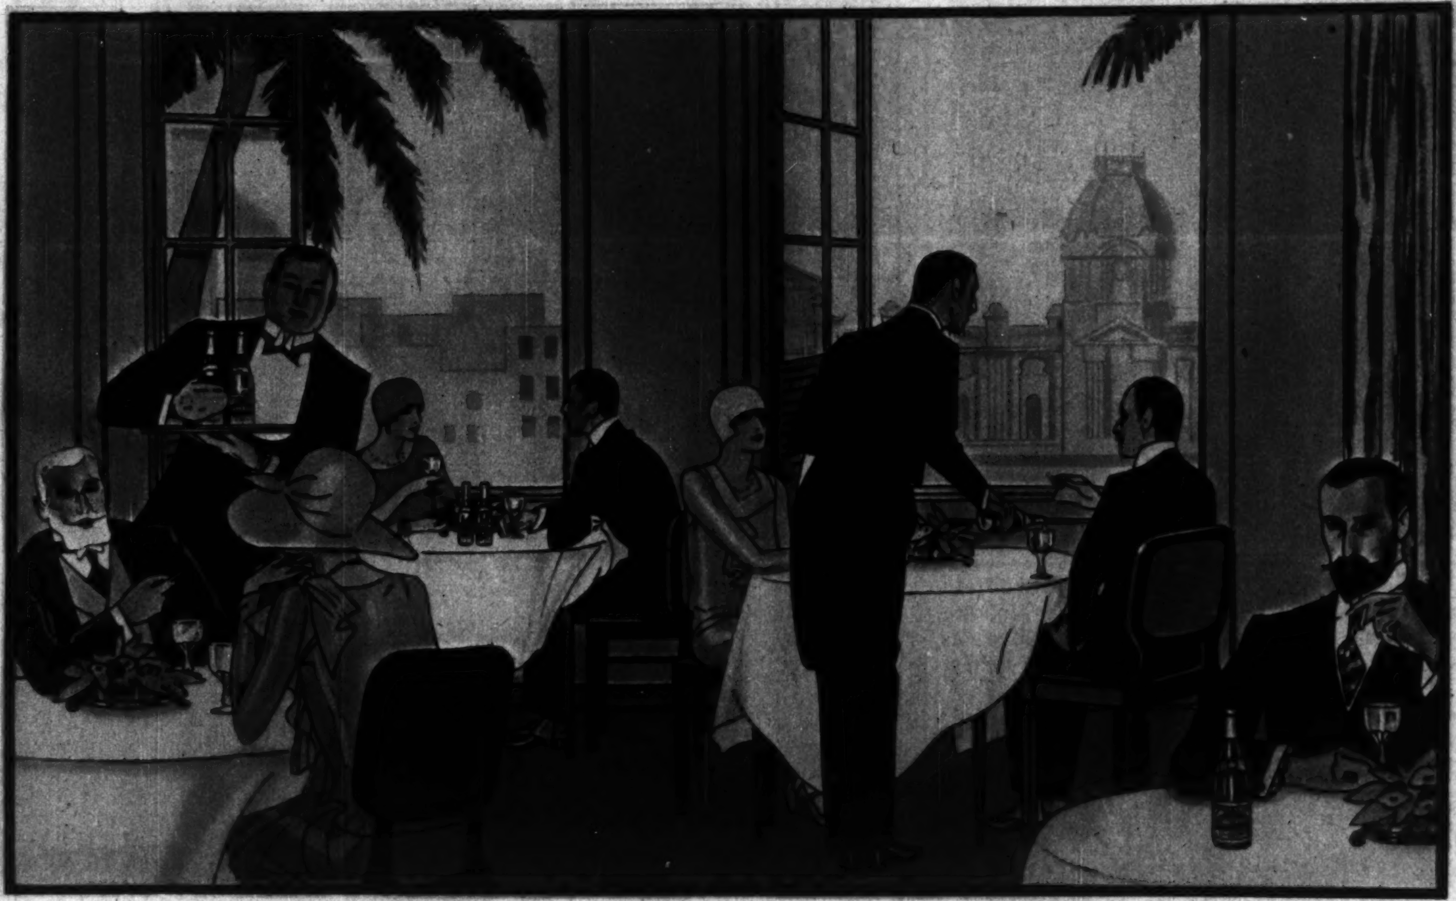
Enjoyed everywhere because of its Unforgettable Flavor



A CAFE IN RIO

FROM East Africa to San Francisco . . . from the dignity of London to the frivolity of continental watering places . . . from Cairo to the West Indies . . . southward from New York to Rio . . . eastward to Europe . . . you'll find "Canada Dry."

It is liked all over the world. The nod of the connoisseur in London is matched by the nod of the connoisseur in New York. A dining-car steward hears the same order that is given to the smoke-room steward . . . "Canada Dry." On New York dinner tables the same crystal-clear beverage fills the glasses as in Shanghai—"Canada Dry"—the champagne of ginger ales!

Its distinction comes from unforgettable quality

Wonderful flavor . . . "dryness" like that of a rare old wine . . . subtle ginger taste . . . and above all an inimitable quality . . . a distinction found in no other beverage . . . have won for "Canada Dry" its universal appeal. In countless homes throughout the United States and Canada, this fine old ginger ale is part of the household.

Basic excellence comes from absolutely pure ingredients. Its subtle ginger taste from high-quality Jamaica ginger. A process of blending and balancing is carried on in accordance with exact proportions. Hourly check-ups prevent variation from those proportions. The delicious sparkle of "Canada Dry" is brought about by a secret method of carbonation. And the result is what you know as a better, finer, purer, mellower beverage!

You know the thrill of drinking "Canada Dry"! The zest it gives to a meal! The gaiety it adds to a party! The pleasure it brings when friends run in! Order it today!

Only New Mix is Fresh whitener Tooth Paste

Nature meant us to keep our teeth white—sparkling—healthy—with a fresh fruit diet. How can a tooth paste do this?

She doesn't have to worry about Tooth Paste... but you do!

She gets her fruit-whitener in the juice of the fresh fruit that forms a large part of her diet. Her teeth are white—sparkling. No worry about tooth paste for her! But you—you who want those same bright sparkling teeth—you who cannot live on fruit alone—what can you do? Science answers the question with the one tooth paste that contains fresh-whitener in the same strength as you get it in fresh fruit. You can see it—it's the cheery red cream that comes out of the separate inner tube. You can taste it—tart, appetizing, delicious. When it has done its whitening, when it has made your smile sparkle, the accompanying white creams do their work of gum protection and teeth guarding—leaving your mouth cool, sweet, fragrant—and your teeth like pearls. No abrasive. No foaming soap—only whiteness and health. Try New Mix for a week. You'll never use any other tooth paste.

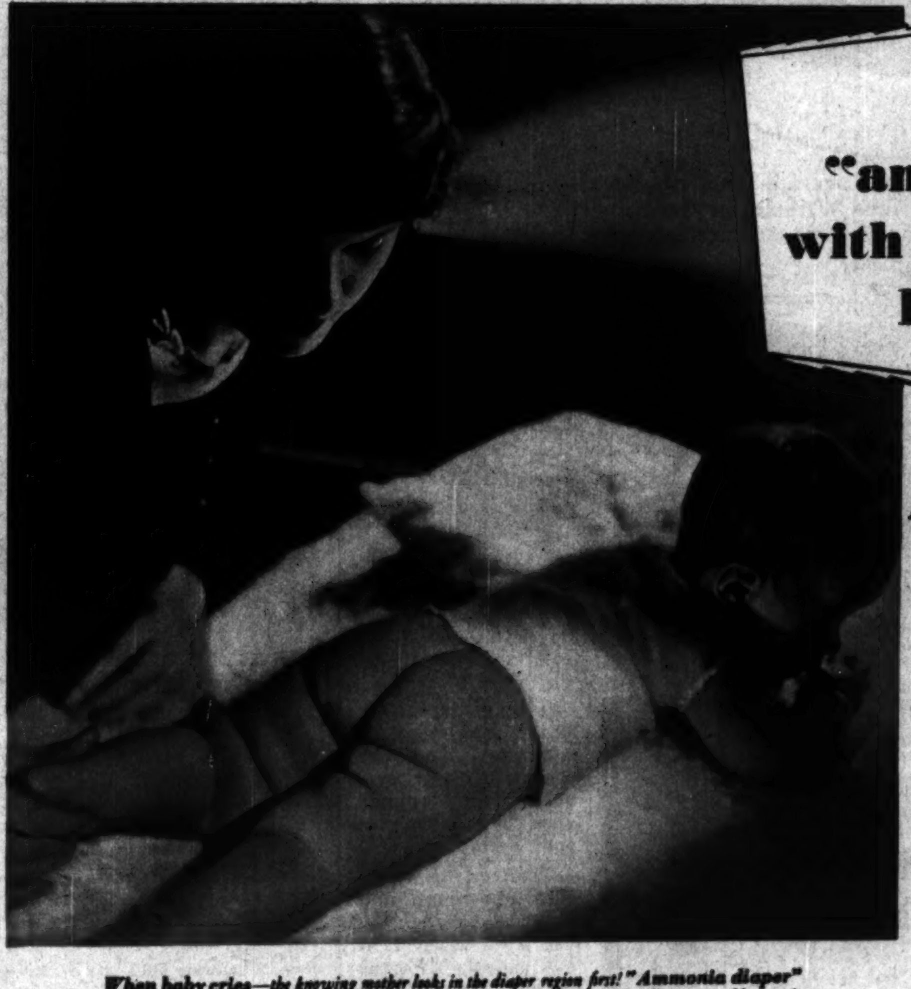
with Mennen Borated
Baby Talcum



When baby cries—the knowing mother looks in the diaper region first! "Ammonia diaper" attacks the child's buttocks, thighs and back—scalding painfully the tender skin tissues. You can't mistake the odor of "ammonia" nor the angry red blotches that appear on baby's body. Give your baby instant relief—and check "ammonia diaper" with Mennen Borated Baby Talcum.

Never neglect "ammonia diaper"—the common cause of baby's discomfort and unhappiness.

The angry redness of baby's skin should be instant warning to the cautious mother. "Ammonia diaper" can be checked! Instant relief can be given to the child—if you will use Mennen—the Borated and Zincated Baby Talcum.

Mennen Barated Powder is scientifically medicated to relieve and prevent the irritation, rawness, and chafing that makes baby's life so unhappy.

Because it is an extra-quality powder it may cost you a little more—but who counts the cost when the health and happiness of the child is at stake?

Note how Mennen Borated, because it is a selected blend of talcs, cools the child's body by just the right evaporation of excess moisture. Note how it lubricates the tender folds of baby's skin—preventing chafiing. Note its softness—its purity! But especially watch its efficacy in "ammonia diaper" cases! Get Mennen Borated from your druggist today!

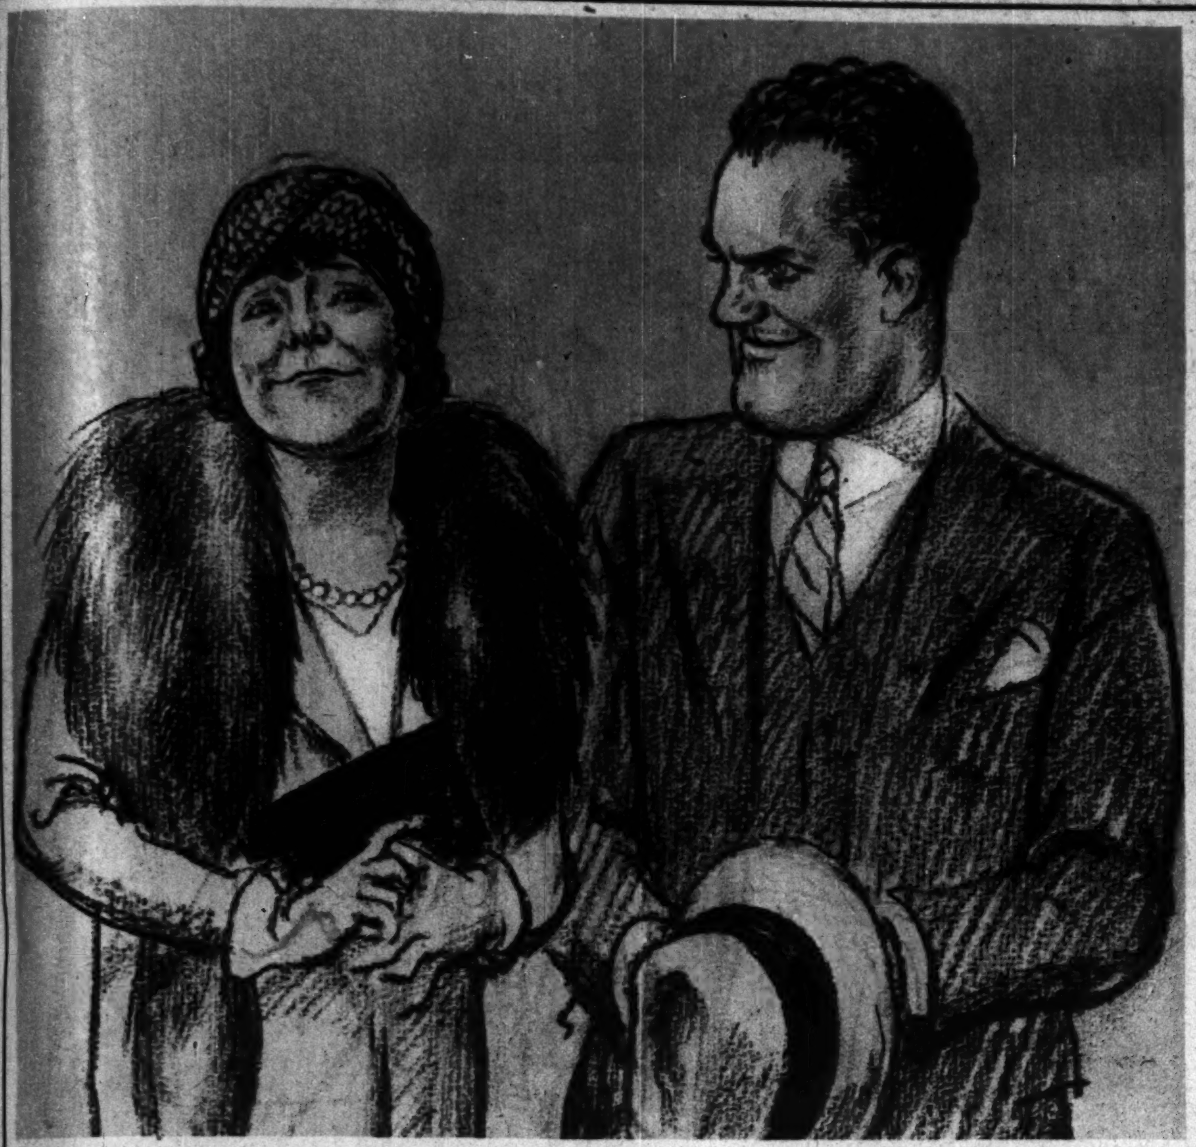
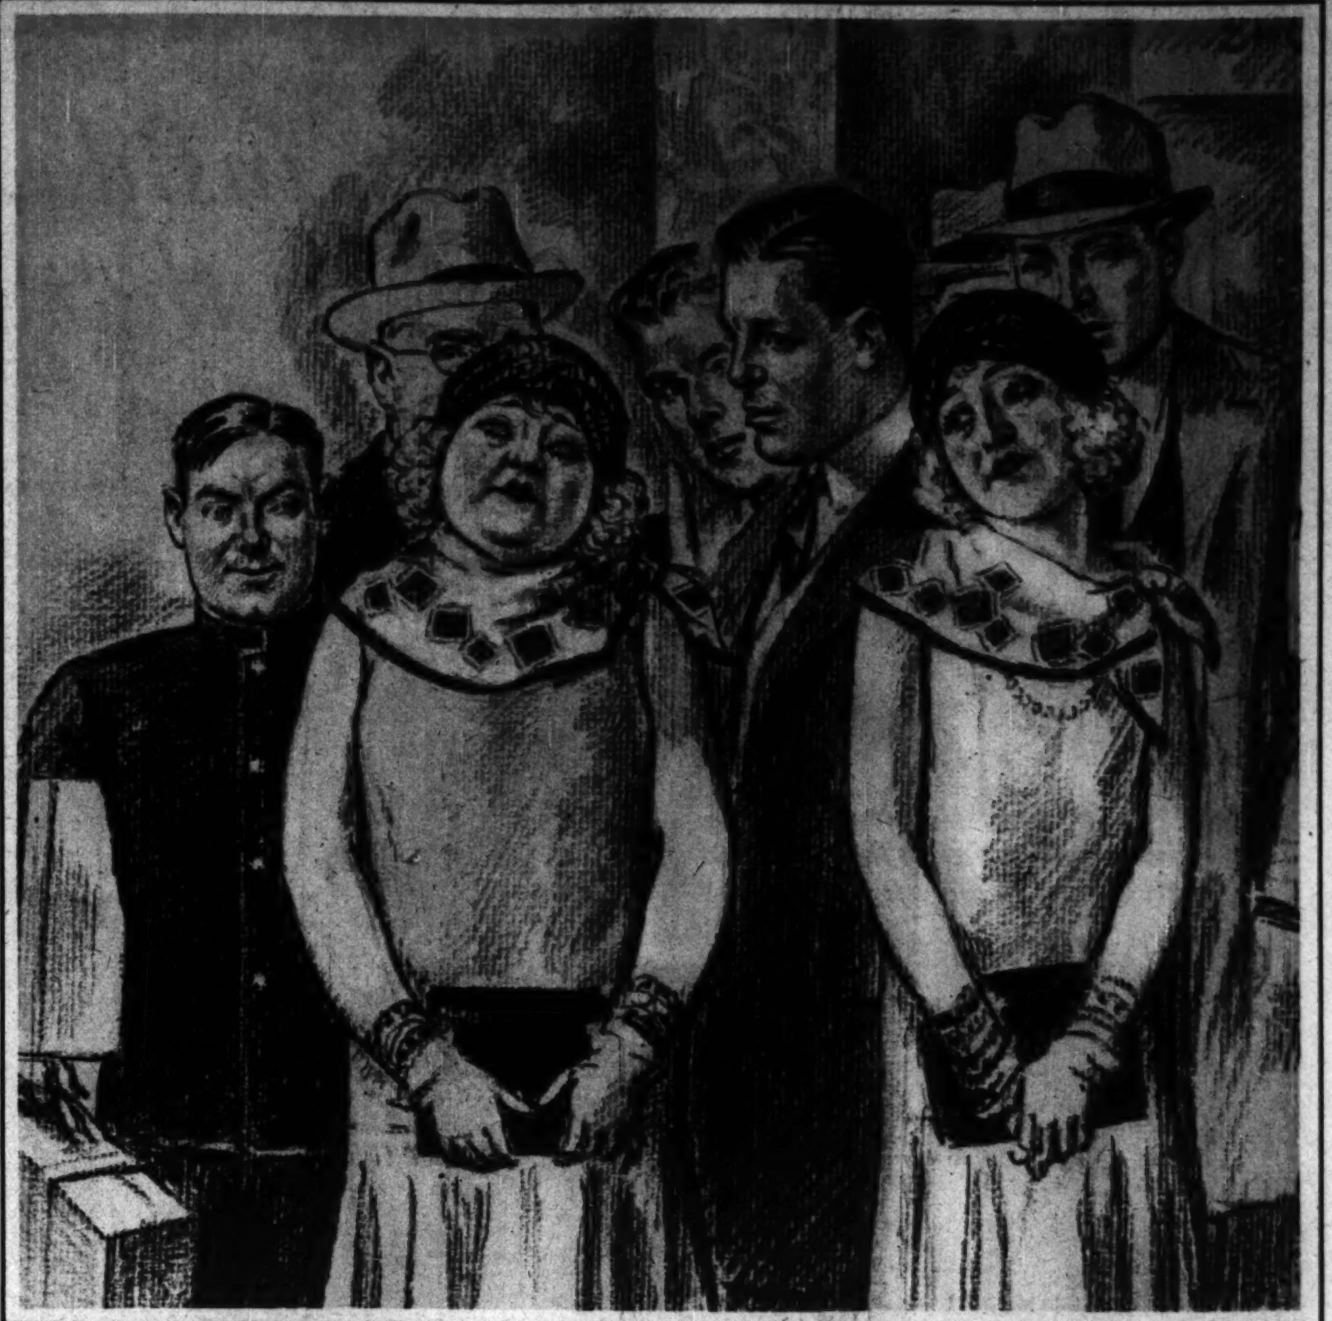
The Traveling Salesman

By W. E. Hill

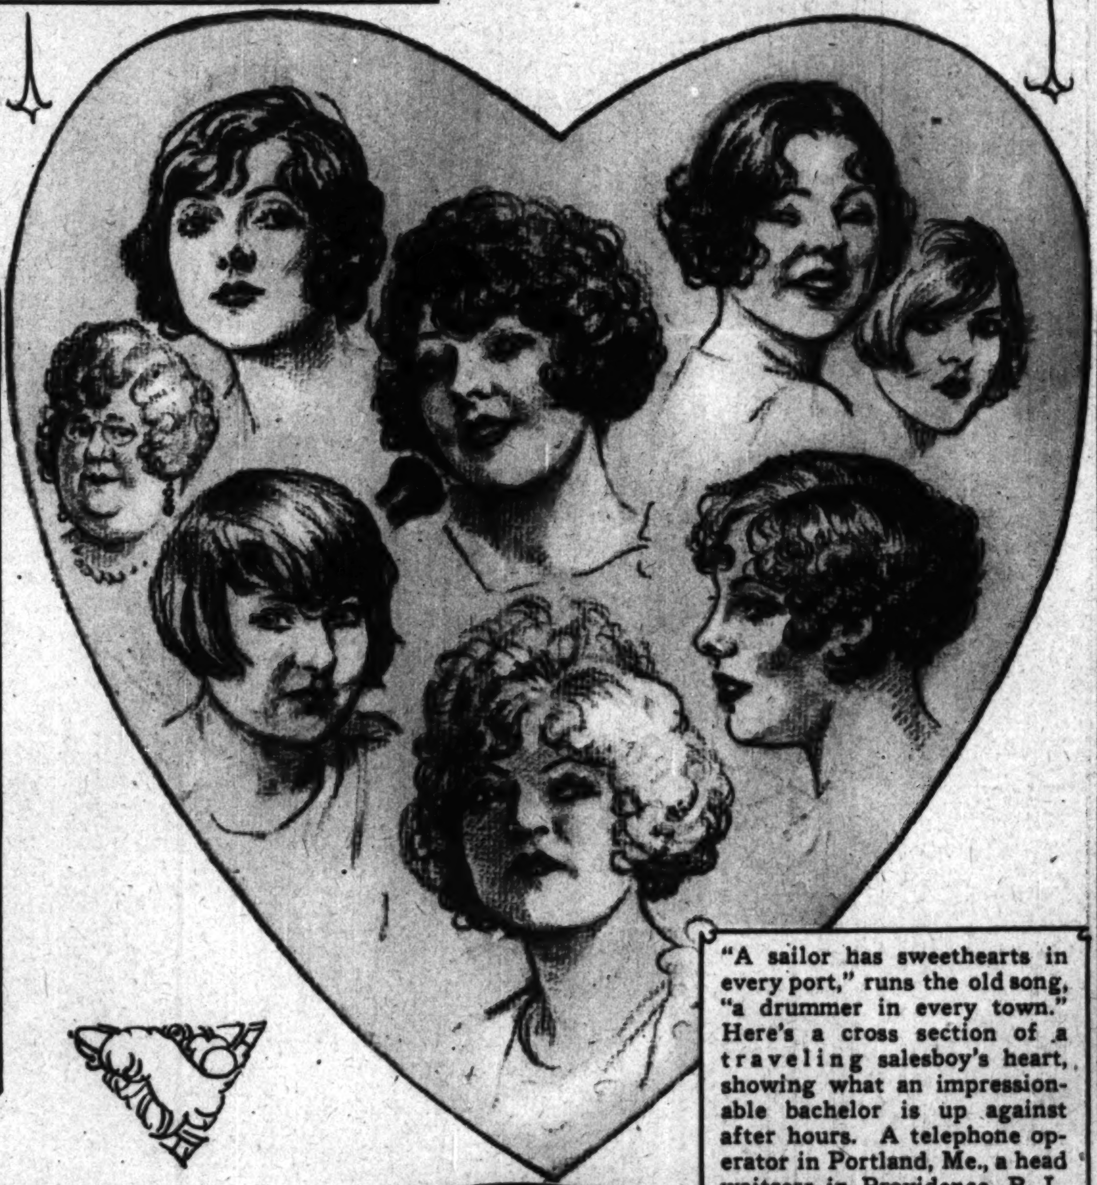
[Copyright: 1929; By The Chicago Tribune.]



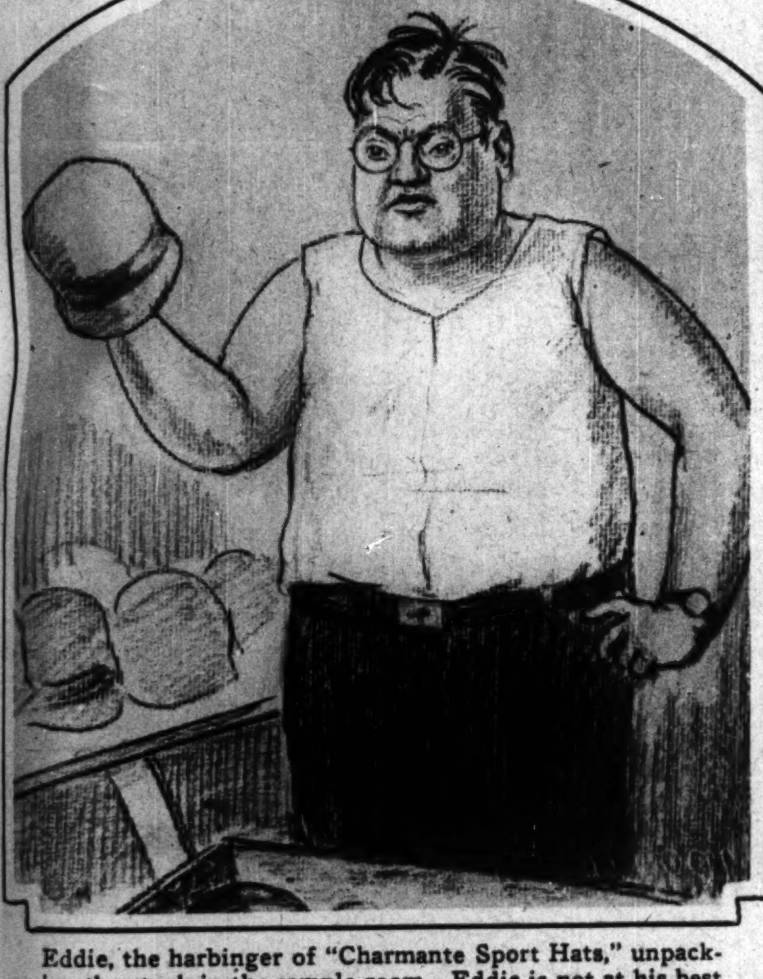
The lady buyer. Just a knight of the road whose specialty is greeting cards for all occasions, being roguish with a lady buyer and making no end of a hit.



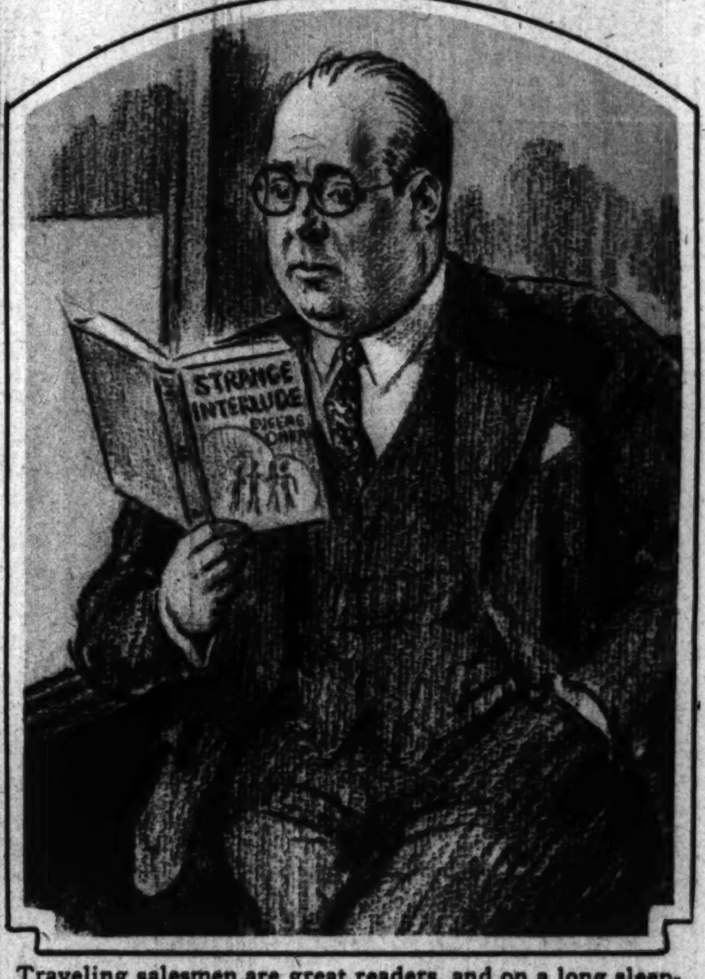
The La Belle twins, Inez and Hazeldelle, from the bill at the Capitol, are registering refined naivete and maidenly reserve (just enough, not too much) all over the lobby of the Commercial House, in case any of the boys would like to invite a couple of timid girls to partake of a light snack in Ye Olde Coffee Shoppe down the street. The boys, however, are headed for a quiet little game in a sample room.



"A sailor has sweethearts in every port," runs the old song, "a drummer in every town." Here's a cross section of a traveling salesboy's heart, showing what an impressionable bachelor is up against after hours. A telephone operator in Portland, Me., a head waitress in Providence, R. I., a landlady's lovely daughter in Campello, Mass., and a five-and-ten belle in Hartford, Conn., are a selected few from the New England territory.



Eddie, the harbinger of "Charmante Sport Hats," unpacking the stock in the sample room. Eddie is not at his best just now, but by the time the first lady buyer arrives he'll be all prettied up like the Prince of Wales, and a faint aroma of toilet water will be noticeable.



Traveling salesmen are great readers, and on a long sleeper jump (unless there is some one to talk to in the smoking compartment) will devour a confessions magazine or a crime story from cover to cover. Here's Mr. Ray McMeal tackling a copy of "Strange Interlude," left behind by a careless traveler.

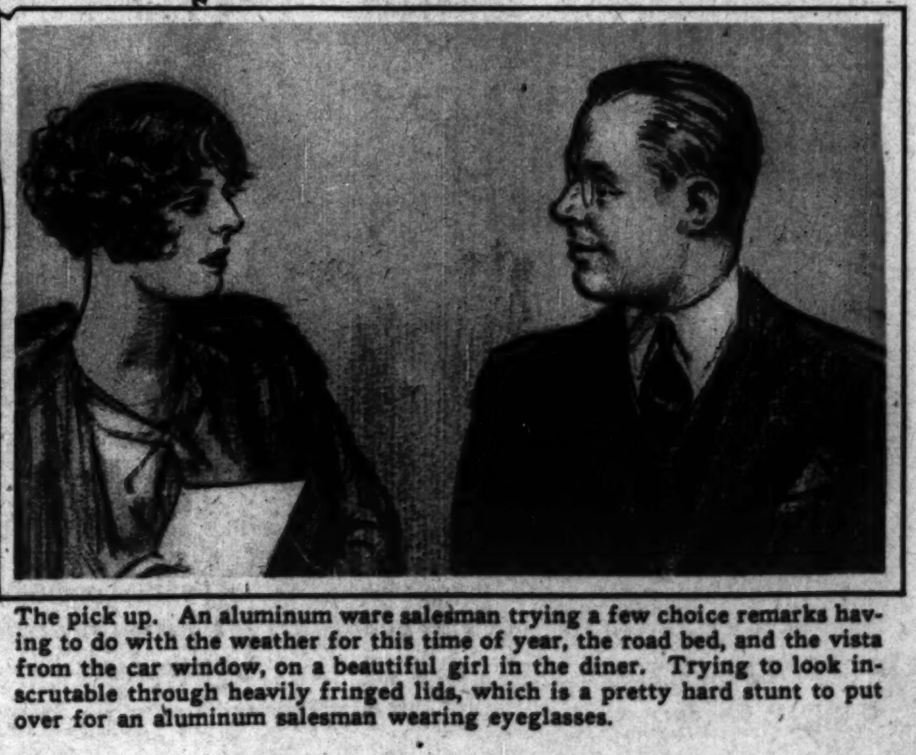
The long distance call. "Honest, Mabel, I haven't had time to write a line, but I've been thinking of you every minute of the time—honest, I've been awful lonesome, sweetheart!"



The pick up. An aluminum ware salesman trying a few choice remarks having to do with the weather for this time of year, the road bed, and the vista from the car window, on a beautiful girl in the diner. Trying to look inscrutable through heavily fringed lids, which is a pretty hard stunt to put over for an aluminum salesman wearing eyeglasses.

Grape-Nuts' crisp kernels encourage chewing—giving teeth and gums the exercise so badly needed in this soft food era.

THAT'S A REASON

Here's inside information on that saying . . .

"There's a Reason"

Grape-Nuts is made from the most wholesom —ripe wheat and malted barley—and brings goodness of both.

THAT'S A REASON

Grape-Nuts is twice baked —to make it crisp, golden-brown, easy to digest.

THAT'S A REASON

To keep health at the peak—Grape-Nuts, with milk or cream, supplies the varied nourishment so many menus lack.

THAT'S A REASON

And flavor . . . there's a reason that easily tops them all! A nut-like, crisp goodness that is different . . . unique. These crunchy, golden kernels spe right up and tell you . . . "In this one dish is a breakfast banque

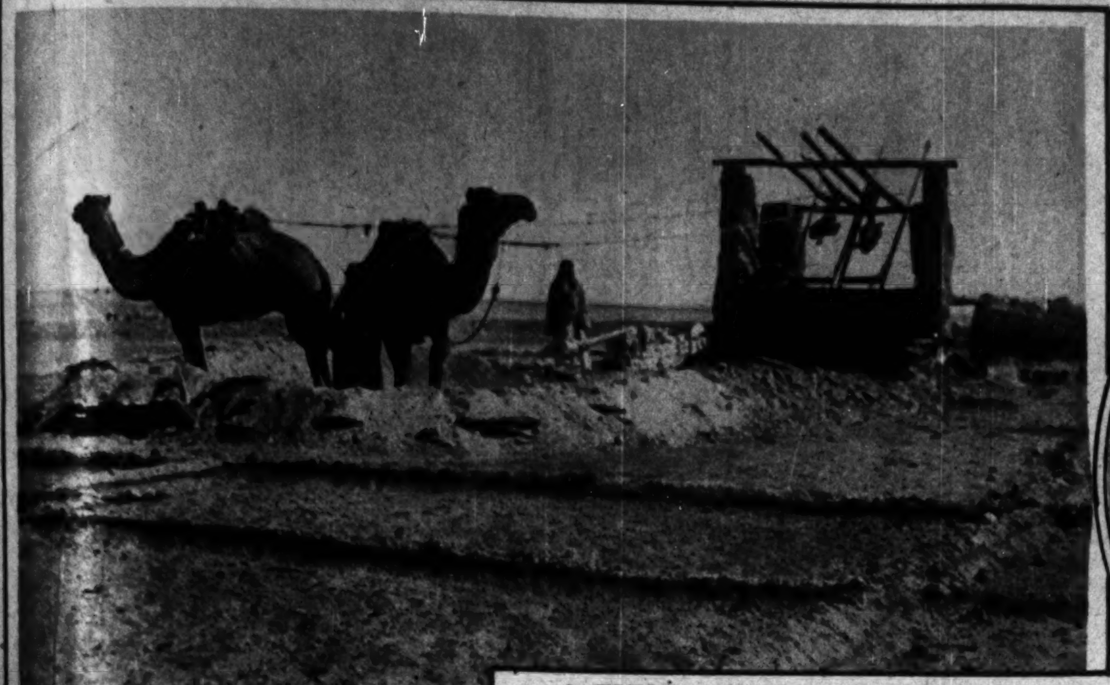
On the Trail of Ancient Man



A FIELD MUSEUM EXPEDITION of Chicago, headed by Henry Field, motor-trekked across the Bedouin infested desert of north Arabia seeking to run down a claim that a prehistoric race inhabited these wastelands. The explorers brought back the rare pictures reproduced on this page. Here the camera shows that today, as for thousands of years, camels, the desert beasts of burden, are employed in drawing water from primitive wells.

A DESERT MADONNA—It is rare luck when a Bedouin woman consents to face the camera. Mother and child appear delighted at meeting the scientists of the western world.

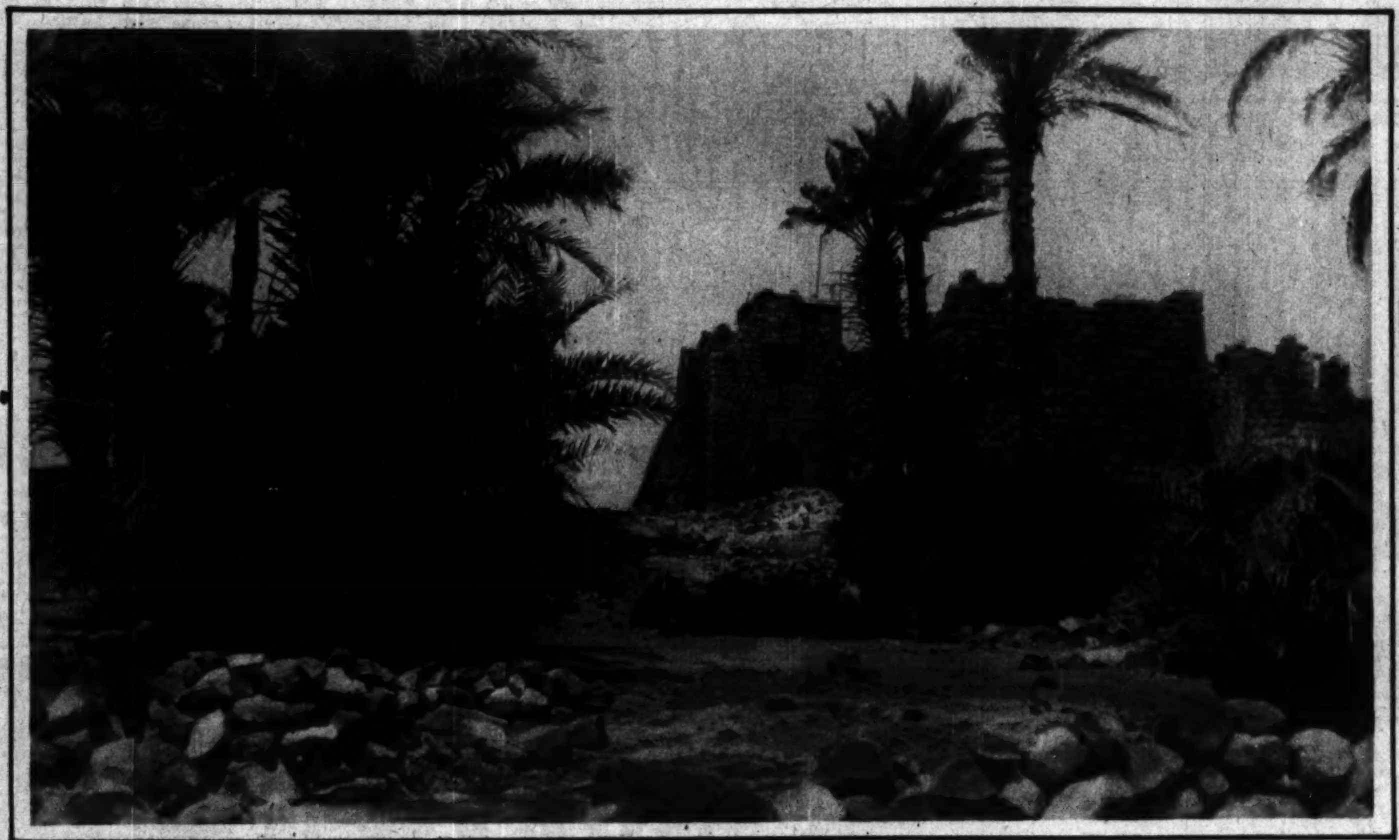
A SHEIK OF ARABY—Mohammed Abu Tayi, one of the most powerful of all the North Arabian chiefs. As any one may see, he is amply dressed to ward off the heat of the desert.



AMID DESERT PALMS the explorers found crumbling Azraq, an ancient Roman fortress built by the legions of the Caesars as a protection against tribesmen who were dangerous even two thousand years ago.

UNDER HIS TENT on the sands the camera caught this bearded tribal chief with two sons who will some day inherit his mantle—or what-is-it?

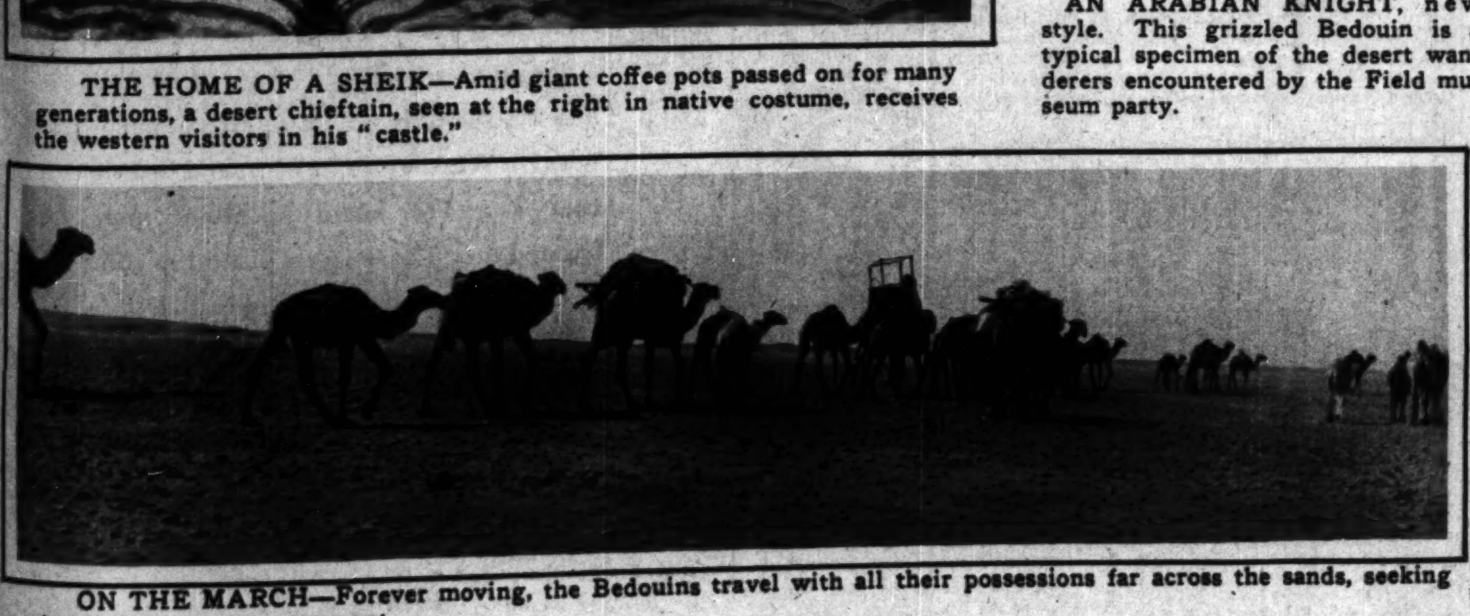
ESCORTED BY THIS IRAK POLICEMAN, the Field expedition made its way across the desert wastes unmolested by the dangerous night marauders.



ON THE MARCH—Forever moving, the Bedouins travel with all their possessions far across the sands, seeking always some new encampment.

LIFTING A LINTEL from the ancient Roman fortress, Qasr Burqa, with the hope that it may reveal a clew to the date of its construction.

LAURA LA PLANTE posed for this pretty picture in her dressing room. The last film to feature this popular actress was "Scandal." See it?

CONSTANCE BENNETT, the latest one to remark that work, not riches, brings happiness, has gone to Hollywood to appear in talking pictures for Pathe. She's the daughter of Richard Bennett—as of course you know.

Creamed magnesia beautifies the skin in the same easy way that milk of magnesia purifies the stomach

Instant Skin Beauty

Sallow, Dingy Skin made Lovely—Coarse Pores become Fine—It corrects oily skin, heals eruptions and dissolves blackheads

The newest discovery in beauty culture is that creamed magnesia is much better for the complexion than any soap or cleansing cream. It beautifies the skin instantly, in the same easy way that milk of magnesia purifies the stomach. This is because skin impurities are acid. Doctors treat acid inside the body with milk of magnesia. And now dermatologists are getting amazing results in banishing complexion faults with creamed magnesia. All you do is anoint your skin with it, massage and rinse with water. It's as simple as washing your face.

It reduces enlarged pores to the finest, smoothest texture almost as if by magic. Being astringent, it drives away the tell-tale signs of age. You will marvel at the effect of your first five-minute facial massage. It rejuvenates the skin so quickly that any woman can look lovely tonight, years younger. It's marvelous how magnesia dissolves blackheads, clears eruptions and corrects oily skin. And because it is so mild, mothers use it instead of soap to bathe infants. It certainly is a blessing as a face wash for fine, sensitive skins that soap easily irritates and coarsens. Being greaseless, it cannot fatten the face or grow hair. It removes makeup and extracts impurities deep-set in the pores better than soap or cold cream. It changes dull, sallow, off-color skin to true-color clearness and fades out freckles better than a bushel of lemons. Test it on those clogged nose pores that stand out so boldly. Let it whiten your neck. It will also keep your hands soft and white. Until recently, creamed magnesia was used only by New York doctors' wives, and nurses. But now the large druggists everywhere find it hard to keep enough on hand to supply the demand. To get genuine creamed magnesia, ask for Denton's Facial Magnesia. Remember, five minutes works wonders. So get your magnesia today and look lovely tonight. It costs almost nothing to try. It's guaranteed!

Foot Troubles Cause Bad Health

They affect the body in many different ways. The feet swell, burn, ache; sharp pains under heels, ball of foot becomes sore and feels as if you are walking on marbles; corns, calluses, ingrown nails and bunions; excessive perspiration with offensive odor, overdeveloped ankles and legs, varicose veins; legs cramp, knees stiffen; pains in hips, small of back, shoulders and neck, poor circulation, with nervous exhaustion and muscular weakness. Do not be discouraged. Regardless of what your condition may be or what you have tried, or whom you have consulted, Dr. Pinkston guarantees to relieve all foot troubles and cure nine-tenths of them regardless of the nature or condition of the ailment.

3 DAYS when Mum means most

Most women have discovered the need of Mum to guard the underarm from all taint.

But protection from the odors of perspiration is only half the story!

Mum performs its most important service on the sanitary napkin!

For Mum is a true deodorant. It neutralizes the most unpleasant odors as fast as they arise. Not the least offensive vapor can penetrate a protective film of Mum. Just spread it lightly on the napkin. You'll be serenely safe—all day. If you rely on anything short of this positive protection you are almost certain to offend.

There are numerous ways Mum can contribute to daintiness of person. But none is so vital as this napkinal use—to neutralize odors which the sheer dresses of today cannot confine. Use Mum at this trying time, and remain your confident self. This snowy cream is quite harmless to the most delicate skin or fabric.

Mum is not expensive; especially in the 60c jars which give you almost three times the quantity of the 35c size. All druggists.

WHERE ARE YOU GOING TO PLAY?

Whether your summer vacation is to be a European trip or a week at a nearby resort, it will save you effort and money to consult the Tribune Resort and Travel Bureau.

Mercolized Wax
Keeps Skin Young

Your skin will always be clear, smooth and healthy, if you care for it with pure Mercolized Wax.

Mercolized Wax retains and even brings back the youthful beauty of your skin. It actually removes the thin veil of faded or discolored outer skin. The Wax cleanses the pores thoroughly and clears away all such blemishes as freckles, pimples, sallowness, or dry, parched skin. The fresh young skin beneath then comes to the surface. It is a clear transparent skin and makes your entire face look years younger.

In youth Nature renews the complexion by peeling off the outer layer of skin in tiny particles, but in time this skin renewing will slow up and your face will become faded and old-looking—unless you use pure Mercolized Wax. Millions of women now using Mercolized Wax would not be without it. You'll like it, too. Mercolized Wax brings out the hidden beauty.

To quickly remove wrinkles and other age-lines, use as a face lotion 1 ounce powdered saxolite and 1 half pint witch hazel. At all drug stores.

The Last Word in Paris Fashions

French Designers Introduce Charming Colors in the Nuptial Gown, and the Robe de Style Is Put on Shelf.

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS.—(Special Correspondence.)—Whenever a daring spirit sets out to alter anything that is tied up in traditions, something is likely to happen, and that something may not be happy for the daring spirit who started it all.

It's not so easy to find any more tradition swathed event than a formal marriage. As for the bride, and what she does and wears, the case is even more so. Feeding Darwin to a Tennessee fundamentalist is about as simple as giving the brides of the world a new sartorial diet. Obviously this has no effect on those brides in a hurry, who dash out to Greenwich, or some other informal marriage resort, to get tied up. What they wear is nobody's business. But the bride who goes to the altar to the tune of Mendelssohn or Wagner has to have herself and her procession dolled up in true traditional form. That is, she did. Lately Paris has managed to introduce some little novelty into the aspect of the marriage pageant without pain to even the most conservative. Some of the smartest brides of the new season have adopted these Paris revised ideas of bridal attire, and the oncoming crop of June brides is going to do the same thing.

One of the foremost revisions of the bridal procession that goes up the path to the altar this spring in Paris is the elimination of the robe de style from any part in the ceremony. Bridesmaids do not wear skirts that are billows of tulle or organdy, as formerly, and no more does the bride. The attendants (I mean, of course, the feminine ones) are wearing slender sylphlike frocks, and so is the bride herself.

Color Is Introduced.

Probably the most daring innovation of the fashionable bridal costume is the introduction of color. Marriage rites are no longer read to fixed black for the groom and pure white for the bride. What the gentleman wears is not the question, however, as every one knows, but the bride blooming in springtime color and forsaking the shadeless fabrics of tradition, gives to her marriage an altogether different air. Golden yellow was the first color called to the altar by fashionable Paris, and this season the wedding dress has in many cases turned a deep and beautiful rose—the maiden's blush translated into satin or crêpe.

To further alter the fashions for weddings, Paris is putting bridesmaids into white for some of the smartest nuptial affairs. If the attendants (again feminine, of course) do not wear white, they are tricked out in some shade that is far away from the usual pastel gamut of tradition.

Bride Carries Hyacinths.

Short sleeves for one bride set Paris talking, but now that every woman has beautifully bronzed arms, even the wedding dress is not exempt from curtailment as to sleeves, for their proper display.

As to orange blossoms, they will grow up to be oranges, so far as the bride is concerned this year. It's camellias, my dears, or hyacinths that keep the tremulous hands of the bride busy during her brief but stupendously important march to the altar, this season. And when fashion draws the bride's veil about her this summer it will, very often, not be a white mist, but something in pink, like the inside of a shell, or ecru, or gold. This, presuming, of course, she has not "heired" a real lace veil from ancestral trunks.

One of the prettiest bridal veils worn here this spring is from Molyneux and is made of ecru tulle with a deep border of white point lace. Some of the smart brides have worn elaborate pearl head dresses to which are attached tulle or lace veils. Short veils that reach only to the knees in back are affected by some of the more youthful brides here, and these are charmingly worn over simple wedding dresses with skirts that extend to the ankles and are even around the hemline.

Miss June, who recently married Lord Inverclyde, and whose marriage was one of the fashionable events of the season, wore a trailing veil of rose tulle attached to a tiny cap of pearls—the real thing, and priceless in value. Her wedding dress and veil are sketched here on our second figure. Not only was the veil rose, but the heavy satin wedding dress was also made in the same rose color of hope.

A Streamline Silhouette.

Worth, who makes more famous wedding dresses than any other dressmaker in the world, created this frock, and gave to it a streamline princess silhouette, with a long skirt, trailing in back and slightly lifted in front. No line could be more becoming to the tall, slender bride than this.

Sleeves for this frock are long and fitted, and the quaint square neckline is outlined with a band of pearl embroidery. A girdle of pearls placed around the waist has two long tassels of pearls at the center front.

A second wedding gown, created by Worth for Miss Black of Montreal, is shown in our sketch. This frock is made of white crêpe satin, with a bloused waist, having long tight sleeves and a V décolletage. A narrow belt outlines the high waistline, and a wide drooping band at the top of the skirt gives the smart fitted hipline from which even brides' frocks are not exempt this summer. The trailing skirt of this frock is flared at the center front, and a charming detail is the petticoat of chiffon, the made of white crêpe satin, with a bloused waist, having border of which is scalloped, and which shows several inches below the scalloped hem of the satin skirt. The veil worn with this frock is of white tulle, and it is held close to the head in back by a band made of rose diamonds and pearls.

Cunning Puff Sleeves.

One of the most distinctive bridesmaid's frocks seen in Paris is shown in our first sketch. This is a Lenief creation and is made of pale sea green and white printed chiffon. There is a long, fitted bodice the V neckline of which is flanked in front by narrow revers. The cunning sleeves with their puffs are a great part of the cachet of this frock.

The skirt has two tiers, which are dipped in irregular points, and which are gathered full at the top, although the skirt lines are kept slender. A pin at the center front of the waistline is used to hold three ribbon streamers, green, black, and white.

This frock and our second bridesmaid frock, shown at the extreme right, illustrate the tendency of such dresses to take on character and avoid the usual banal girlishness of the robe de style. The second dress is made of rose taffeta and narrow bands of tulle and taffeta alternate at the neck and around the flaring tunic on the skirt. An unusul silhouette is achieved in this Martial et Armand frock by the drooping waistline and drooping tiers on the skirt, as well as by the separation of these tiers, and the interspersing of a wide tulle and taffeta band.

This Worth wedding dress, shown next, is made of rose satin, trimmed with pearl embroidery and pearl tassels. A pearl cap holds the veil in place.

Third, Worth gives to this white satin wedding dress a petticoat of white chiffon, which is plainly visible below the skirt.

Paris likes this Martial et Armand frock of pink taffeta for the smart bridesmaid. It is sketched last.

Well Chosen Pieces Give Charm to Dinette

Ultra Modern Patterns in Colorful Woods Are Delightful—Maple and Walnut Sets Please Those Who Prefer the More Subdued Things.

By Edith Weigle.

MANY June brides are going to start their new lives in attractive small apartments where space must be carefully conserved. Instead of a dining room they will have a dinette, which, together with the folding toothbrush, the Pullman kitchen, the collapsible table, and the miraculously disappearing bed, is the rather humorous contribution of the inventive age in which we live, breathe, and do our speeding. Lots of us, if not actually born and brought up in a good full sized dining room, at least entered one three times a day and never thought it necessary to offer up hymns of praise because we could do so. We took it for granted, like the front porch, the lawn, and the garden.

Nowadays, however, about the only front porch you get in the city is the brick or concrete space before a penthouse on the top of a skyscraper, and the lawn and garden come in green boxes. One must adapt oneself to small spaces. Hence the dinette, and since it is found in literally thousands of apartments, let's look at it and see what can be done to make it attractive.

It is usually part of the kitchen, separated from the main part by a low partition, or else it is an alcove off the kitchen or a tiny room between the living room and the kitchen. Often the floor space is unbelievably small. Manufacturers, realizing this, have designed furniture to scale and this fits in, and instead of crowding actually seems to make the room look larger. There are drop leaf tables which take up practically no room when not in use, small but comfortable chairs to match, and cupboards that fit against the wall and provide space for china, glass, silver, and linens. These articles may be assembled by you or purchased in a suite.

At the Furniture Mart.

At the American Furniture Mart the other day I saw such good looking things that I was almost reconciled to the dinette idea. First was an ultra modern set of beautiful oriental walnut with burl overlays. It consisted of a small table that could be extended to a much larger size, four chairs, a buffet, and a side cupboard. These pieces were excellent examples of styles now extremely popular in Germany and France. There they are made of all sorts of unusual and colorful woods: sycamore, white maple, red mahogany, and a combination of woods called primavera. They are often finished in black, and the door pulls, etc., are in metal—silver or gold. The Germans even have entire sets of black ebonized wood, which are relieved by bright tapestry chair seats and by the windows draperies of the room, by the wallpaper, etc.

If you don't believe in going modern, there are charming dinette pieces of walnut, like some I saw, that are neither antique nor ultra modern. One set had an unusually lovely table with slender, tapering fluted legs. There were four chairs, a buffet, and a beautiful cabinet with wooden doors above and below, and a capacious drawer in the center. There were adjustable shelves for the interior so you could arrange them at just the right height of your china and glassware.

Oak is becoming increasingly popular because of its soft color and its sturdy qualities. I am sure any bride would be delighted with a dining room or dinette group I saw composed of a refectory extension table, chairs, buffet, and closed cupboard. The table was charming. The extra parts which formed the extension were cleverly contrived to fit under the top. You pressed a spring and they came out and fitted into place at each end, enlarging the size so that eight people could easily be seated and room to spare.

The cupboard had three shelves behind solid wooden doors and a drawer lined with mahogany. The tapestry covering the chairs, in soft shades of gray, rose, green and blue, made a pleasing note of color.

Paint Your Own Things.

If you wield a mean paint brush, why not invest in table, chairs, and open cupboard of unfinished wood and go to it? You can invent your own color scheme, and it will be twice as effective if you employ two shades, one for trimming. Jolly decalcomania patterns, which may be used in the corners of the table top and on the backs of the chairs, are most inexpensive. [illegible] stencil designs are easy to apply, too. Thin lines of black or gold make a simple but effective finish to painted furniture.

It is astonishing to discover how ridiculously low is the entire price of such a set, counting the paint or lacquer, brushes, turpentine, stencils, and all. And I know of nothing cheerier for a small alcove or breakfast nook. One such that I saw recently had furniture of apple green trimmed in lavender and silver. The organdie ruffled curtains at the window were orchid and were caught back with silver metal ribbon. The open china cupboard was green, lined with lavender, and its shelves were filled with pewter plates, bowls, etc., that carried out the silver theme. It was a most artistic and appealing little nook.

One of the pictures today shows a maple dinette set that fits into small space, is practical and pretty besides. Note the graceful lines of the chairs and table. The latter has drop leaves, which minimize its size when let down. The open cupboard offers space for displaying your favorite bits of china or glass, which create decorative touches in any room. This furniture has the added charm of being delightfully reasonable in price.

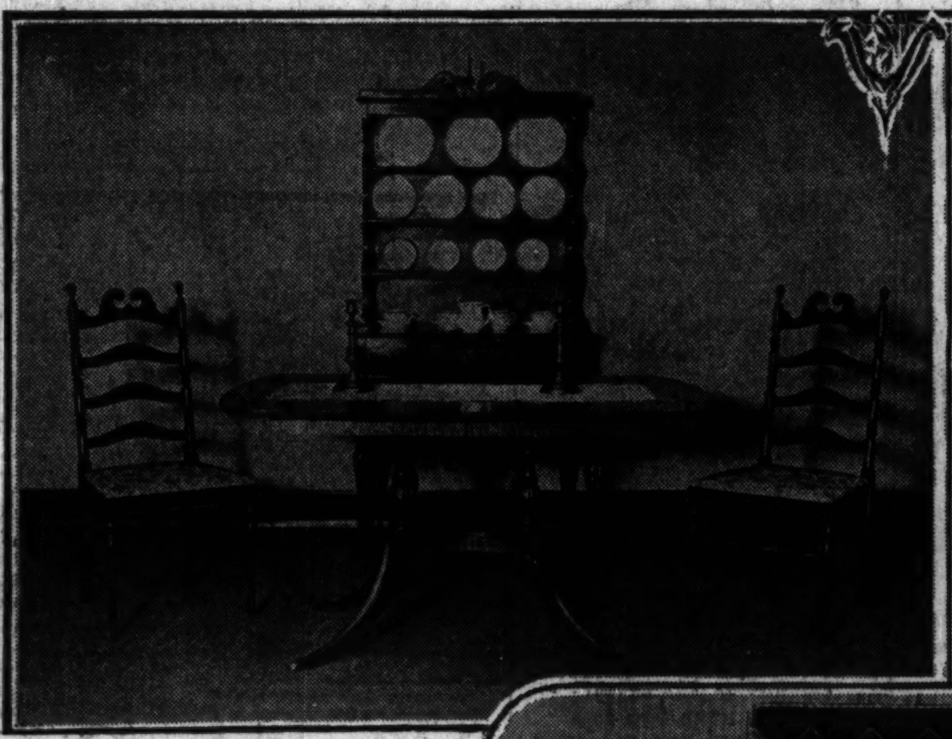
For the Individualist.

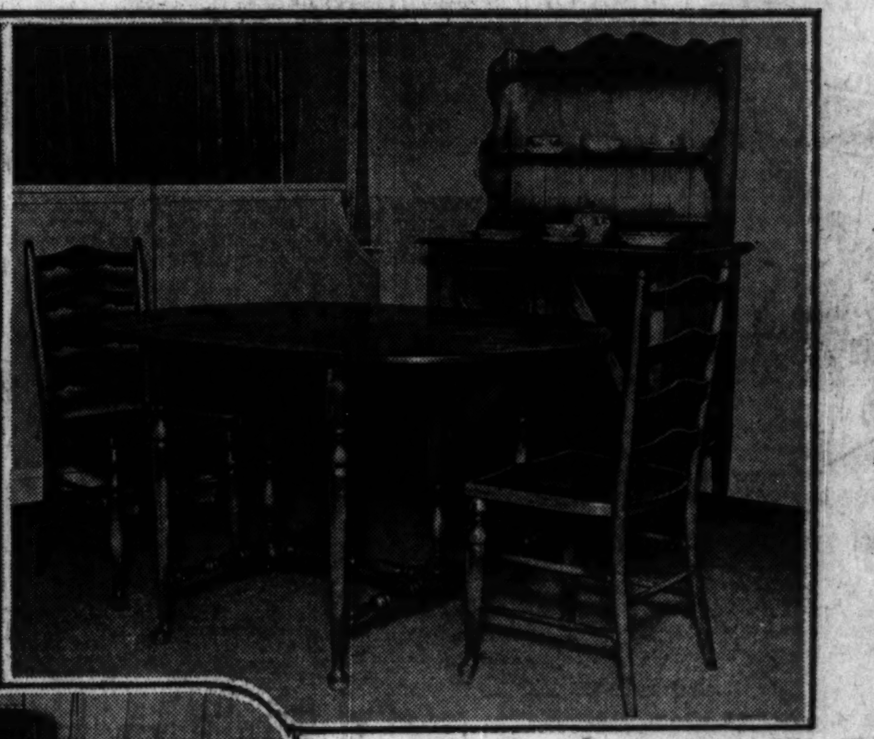
For the person who likes to do her own assembling, who is afraid a set of anything might be too stereotyped, or for one who has pieces of furniture she wants to add to, there is an enormous variety to choose from. The gateleg drop leaf table is, of course, the ideal choice for the dinette. Windsor chairs take up little space and may be had at a wide range of prices. Table and chairs are the bare necessities. Then come extra pieces, such as sideboards, buffets, and cabinets.

Since the dinette is so near the kitchen, I think the buffet, which was intended, of course, for extra serving space in the dining room, may be dispensed with and instead a cabinet may be used. The latter will be much more practical in every way. I saw one extremely lovely one at the Furniture Mart of red mahogany, with drawer pulls of brass in the well known design of the lion's head with ring. It had a broken arched top with three [illegible] finials. The upper doors were glass and latticed and the lower ones were of the solid wood. This was an exceptionally beautiful piece and would be a joy to own.

A lowboy or highboy would be a welcome addition to colonial furniture. These come in the finest woods and are more expensive, but are splendid investments from the viewpoint of good taste and practicability.

The fewer pieces in a small dinette the better, so it is wise to choose these few with care.





THE attractive dinette set pictured above is composed of a graceful Duncan Phyffe table, a side cabinet for china or glass, and four or six chairs. The latter are ladder back with a broken arched top which harmonises with the broken arched top of the cabinet. Chair seats are flowered tapestry. The wood is mahogany. Note the extremely graceful curves of the table legs.

HERE is an inexpensively priced but pretty group of furniture made of maple, having lovely deep golden-red lights in it. The drop leaf table can be put against the wall when not in use. The open cupboard would be sweet filled with Quimper ware or Italian peasant china.

At the left is a dinette set emphasizing the ultra modern note. The wood used is oriental walnut with burl inlay around the table edge and in the front of the cabinet. The cross back chairs are extremely simple and smart.

Sports Clothes We'll See This Summer

Wash Materials Are in the Sunlight of the Tennis Courts and Golf Courses.

BY LOLITA.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—The chances are that if Orlando met Rosalind today he would be astounded—that is to say if the Forest of Arden were a fashionable summer resort. He would be apt to say to the lady, "Here, here, my good girl! Playing tennis in a skirt and stockings! Do you by any chance play the mandolin and use the breast stroke?"

The fact of it is that the tennis season has got to be the moulting season—for superfluous feminine frills. Many girls play in shorts. Some take off skirts and frocks to disclose a romperlike outfit. Other have adopted the new fashion of wearing long trousers.

Was it in Cannes that this last mode started? One does not know more than that we get a great many Cannes resort modes and that the sort of tennis outfit we picture second from the left is given the names of Cannes. It consists of white flannel trousers, a tuck-in blouse—pardon the error, a shirt—of white tub silk with gay red buttons, a red leather belt and a bandeau of red and white silk. The tennis shoes are white and black.

Now, there is only one objection to this costume. What could be the possible alibi for its wearer if she failed to get back from the net to the back line? It's our protest against all these masculine outfits.

These trousers, as you will see, are achieved with the cuffed finish of the every day pair of bifurcated garments. There are numerous middy trousers, many of them in white duck, which will go straight from the beach to the courts. In fact, any young woman who feels that she looks her best in long trousers is going to be humored by the mode. There's an excellent tennis "service" in this respect.

And how about the old fashioned girl who clings to her skirt? Well, she's not so old fashioned, either. She merely does her subtractions elsewhere. For one thing, she usually wears socks, and for another she often affects the suntan line. Witness to both of these facts is provided by our sketch at the extreme left.

Favorite Tone of Yellow.

This frock is construed in that favored medium for the courts, pique, and here it chooses this season's favorite tone of yellow. Of course, it is one piece, but the yoked skirt comforts those who always had their hearts just set upon the jumper. Below the yoke, widely spaced inverted plaits offer almost as much freedom of movement as does any divided garment. The belt is, of course, of self-material.

Putting a round peg in a square hole is what the designer of this model has done so far as armholes are concerned. For these, cut very deep, repeat the square cut of the suntan back. Bows on the shoulders are the final touch.

In a new sense nearly every woman player today does what the sports reporter calls brilliant foot work. We refer to the gay socks now so universally affected. The cuffs of these come in many designs and they now form part of a general harmony in sports accessories. Some times they match the sweater. Sometimes they repeat the design of bandeau and scarf. In the case of this model orange and green striped cuffs correspond with a silk bandeau treated to the same diagonal stripes and colors. For tennis and other active sports great emphasis is laid at present upon the moccasin Oxford, a self-explanatory term.

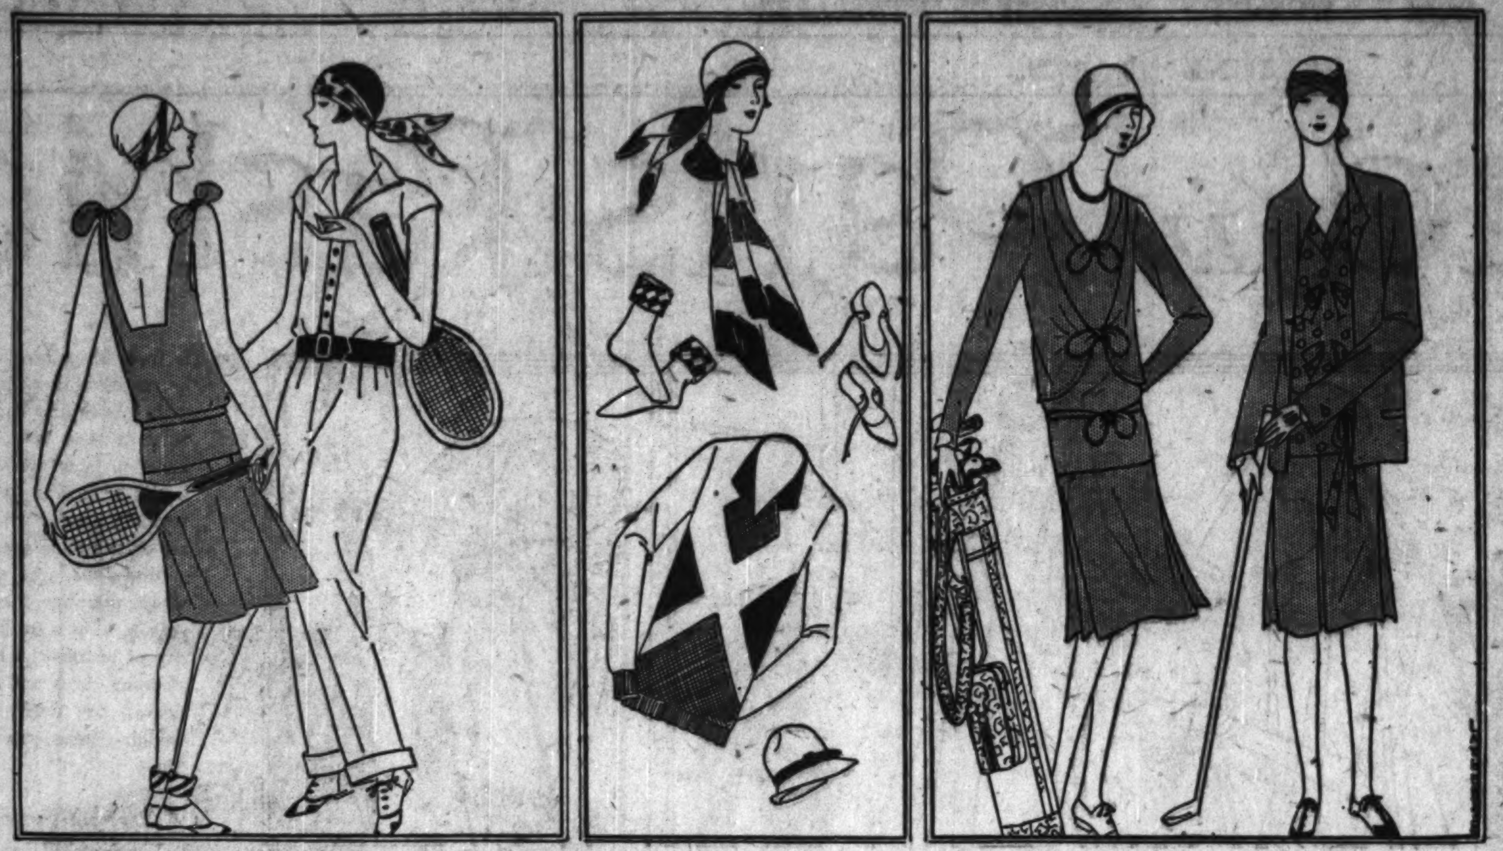
All Types of Skirts.

At this point we reach the "fore" word. The woman golfer goes in occasionally for divided garments. For her the cardigan costume of jersey, lightweight tweed, knitted material, flannel and combinations of material is of outstanding interests. The tuck-in blouse is an accepted part of her costume and often the sweaters chosen to complete knitted costumes also hit below the belt.

There are, of course, all types of separate skirts which go out for a round of golf and among these the flannel scoring so heavily in every province of sports wear has been developed into many new and attractive models. Among these one must mention first of all the flannel skirt lacing down the front emphasized by some of our Fifth avenue shops.



LEFT. That the tennis frock may be "cut" as well as the tennis ball is indicated by this suntan frock of yellow pique with square cut armholes and back. Next, the Cannes tennis costume is shown with white flannel trousers, red belt, white silk tuckin with red buttons and bandeau of red and white silk.

RIGHT. A one piece frock of orange tussah which will do equally well on the links or the country club veranda is followed by a suit of chartreuse green shantung with self-material blouse in white dotted with green.

Sweaters offered the active sportswoman run through their usual gamut of camel's hair, zephyr, lacey weaves, jersey and other knitted materials. Some of them are sleeveless and, as we have just said, some are tuck-in. And of course the suntan idea may drive over both the net and the links. Numerous models with deeply décolleté backs are literally open to all those desiring them.

Among the most charming of the new sweaters, one applicable to either active or spectator sportswear, is Patou's model usually developed in a combination of pastel tints and white. This provides a belted model with a V front accented by a bow disclosing a vestee of white crêpe finished by a boyish turn down collar. The vestee is attached to the bodice of the skirt, which is usually of plaited crêpe. [Flat crêpe is a favorite, by the way, for the separate golfing skirt.]

Knitted Costumes Popular.

One of these costumes which I saw recently seemed to me to express the most charming of all possible selections for the links. It posed the Patou sweater, developed in yellow and white, over a skirt of brown flat crêpe finely plaited all around and related sweater to skirt by a belt of brown leather.

The knitted costumes so popular for golf are well represented by Chanel's ensembles comprising sweater, coat, and skirt. These exploit the loveliest of color combinations in conjunction with the most unusual of patterns. Those who wear them are bound to make a high score sartorially.

There are many days which make intolerable the thought of any golf wear more oppressive than silk crêpe or some wash material. As a result we find the most charming suits of Shantung tussah, linen, and even gingham, which will do equally well for the country club veranda or for "going around." Typical of this group is the green Shantung model at the extreme right. This is accompanied by a self-material blouse in white dotted with the green which is repeated in the lining of the jacket. This blouse, which is sleeveless, is finished with a belt and bows at the front.

For these oppressively warm days on the links the one piece frock of cool material offers another sagacious choice, and how many of these there are available to our personal inclination! Shantung, in both plain and printed varieties—among the latter the coin dot is being minted rapidly—is one of the salient fabrics for such one piece creations. Another favored medium is tub silk. Silk crêpe and linen also have their public.

Feature of Fashion Show.

Second from the left we are showing one of these frocks in orange tussah treated to a bolero which merges successfully with the bow treatment of neckline and belt. This frock is topped by a white felt hat banded in orange and by white buckskin brogues.

There are many crêpe one piece frocks, both plain and patterned, that involve as wrap some type of cardigan. Perhaps the smartest of these is Patou's famous cardigan of angora, so delightful when worn over the crêpe frock. One of such ensembles, worked out in Nile green and white, was a feature of a recent fashion show on 5th avenue.

Scarfs are an accepted part of every golfer's toilette, and these may be had in various shapes. The triangle knotted on the shoulder may be said to have become "the eternal triangle," for it is still worn. Among its successful developments are those of Shantung, with sometimes but a single motif embroidered in the corner. The cravat scarf is another favorite, and this, as well as the triangle and other shapes, is often matched by the bandeau for active sports wear. An example of this is shown in our sketch at the top of the center panel.

Fine lisle stockings are a favorite selection of the smart golfer, and her shoes are brogues in whatever tones blend most harmoniously with her costume. Speaking of stockings, one must refer again to the bare leg model which has been launched so enthusiastically for this summer's wear. This stocking, seamless and shown in various shades, is suggested for many of the summery sports creations not implicating much activity.

For the spectator sports type of shoe linen and raffia are both featured. The former, dyed to any color and perfectly matching the gown, is among the most successful contributions yet made to the cause of dress harmony.

Understanding the Small Child

It Is Unwise to Hold Ideals of Perfection for the Youngster of Pre-School Age, Says Mrs. Bevans.

By Mrs. Gladys Huntington Bevans

EXPECTING too much of little children—the ones we call pre-school children—is probably responsible for more of their unhappiness and apparent misbehavior than any other one thing that we do to them.

Perfection in conduct and manners is the goal aimed at by so many mothers, with the mistaken idea that it is for the child's good. Their idea of this perfection runs something like this, in part:

[a] Correct table manners [like an adults].

Let's consider these ideals of perfection for a moment. Isn't every one of them alien to a child's natural interests and desires?

Why should a little child care whether he holds his spoon and fork just so? Why should he want to stop the fascinating thing he's doing when some one asks him to? What concern can it be of his whether the play he's engaged in makes a noise or whether it doesn't?

How can he be expected naturally to refrain from doing something because it will get his clothes dirty? How can he be expected to be conscious that dirty clothes mean work for his mother?

And how, in the name of all that's interesting and worth investigating in this new world he's born into, can he be expected to not touch, not touch, not touch?

Expecting the Unnatural.

All these things that are expected of him are unnatural, because they possess no importance in his mind and really have no value for him at this time. If they are expected, even exacted from a child, he's going to suffer for it in some way. Either he will be subdued, perhaps cowed, or he will lose the freedom and spontaneity that are his birthright and are necessary to his mental and physical health—or he will rebel and the rebellion may take the form of defiance, willfulness, stubbornness, sulkiness, or more obscure effects.

Most of the parents, nurses, and teachers who are striving for these ideals of perfect conduct are not doing so from any sense of unkindness. Of course, occasionally there are adults who are natural tyrants and who enjoy imposing their will on children. And there are other people whose personal comfort as to noise and dirt and work are of paramount importance, and so they expect the impossible of their children. And there are still others who are nervously unfitted to be the associates and guardians of children at all.

But primarily, the reason why parents expect too much of their children is because they do not understand. They think they are doing what is best for their child—molding him into the kind of a person they want him to be—making a little gentleman of the small boy—and a little lady of the small girl—making really tiny imitations of adults out of these plastic young things.

Let Them Be Children.

That is not what children are or should be at that age. At 2, at 3, at 4 they should be just children. If we try to make anything else of them we're going to meet with failures. O, we may give them charming manners, teach them to curtesy or to be quiet at the right moment, and to keep clean

We may achieve what looks like success, but it will really be failure—dire failure, because it will be contrary to the nature of childhood. It will be something out of its time, out of its place in their development.

If parents with children of this age, who struggle so hard for these surface things, could only understand that they accomplish them only at cost to the child! If they could only understand that the child's essential needs are utterly different from all this! If they could only think of what he should have—not how he should conform to the conventions of a grownup's world. Of course, eventually he will have to conform:

He will have to learn agreeable table manners. He will have to learn to keep clean on occasions. He will have to learn to be quiet at times, etc. Little by little he will learn these things because he will have to do so to take his place comfortably in the world.

Little by Little.

But not all at once. Little by little, gently led, by example and explanation he will learn. But not all at once.

The ideal of perfection in conduct for these little children would probably at first horrify the too expectant parent—but I think would later open his eyes.

Those ideals would be quite the reverse of each ideal listed before. They might run like this:

Don't insist on adult table manners.
Don't expect instant obedience.
Let them be noisy.
Let them get dirty.
Let them touch things.

Why? Because they're new in this world and they've got to discover it. Because they can't fit into it until they learn what they have to fit into. It's strange to them. Each thing that involves just sensation alone is strange and new: roughness, smoothness, coldness, heat, lightness, heaviness, stickiness, slipperyness, wetness, noise, hunger, music—and they must experience it first hand. So they have their hands full, their brains full, their emotions full in learning, for instance, to walk, to talk, to manage the tools that convey their fod to their mouths. So, in investigating this world of theirs, they get noisy, dirty, and too concentrated or too interested to obey instantly.

Here is Real Food Value

Besides having an unusually delightful flavor, an appetizing appearance and a texture of velvety smoothness, this new Kraft product, Velveeta, has exceptional food value. Greater food value in fact than we ever have been able to put into a cheese product before.

Several things contribute to this.

In the first place Velveeta is a secret blend of choice American and fine old Canadian cheddar cheese, and made with the most painstaking care with every safeguard, including pasteurization, for its purity.

But Velveeta is an exceptional product in other respects. Velveeta represents a new idea in cheese making. We extract from the pure whole milk more Vitamins, Lactose (milk sugar), Calcium and other milk minerals in greater quantities than ever was possible by old methods, and these we add in making Velveeta. The result is purely a milk product that looks like cheese, tastes like cheese, but which because of its enhanced food value should be called a super-cheese.

Use Velveeta wherever you would use any cheese. It spreads like butter or will slice when chilled. It melts, dissolves and blends so readily with other foods that for cooking purposes there is no comparison. And however used it is as digestible as milk itself.

By all means try a package of this remarkable product. Its appetite appeal is universal. And it is sure to grace your table often thereafter. Your dealer has it.

3320 — Woman's and miss' dress. Sizes 16 and 18 years and 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3¼ yards of 40 inch material with yard of 27 inch contrasting.

3176—Girl's dress. Sizes 6, 8, 10, 12, and 14 years. Size 8 requires 1⅞ yards of 36 inch material with 2⅝ yards of ribbon.

3450 — Woman's and miss' dress. Sizes 16 and 18 years and 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, and 46 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3⅜ yards of 40 inch material with ½ yard of 40 inch contrasting and 1⅝ yards of ribbon.

HOW TO USE THE PATTERNS

ONE of the modernistic printed silk crêpes could be used for this chic dress, pattern No. 3320, cut with a generously full circular skirt at the front, while the back preserves the straight, slender line so generally becoming. It closes in an entirely new way at the left side, and is trimmed with right side applied bands of plain silk crêpe. The rather wide belt marks the normal waistline. At the neck it is cut in a square outline, so becoming to many.

After the dress is cut out, join the front skirt part to the bodice, notches showing exactly where and how. Then turn in the edges of the applied band and baste and stitch it to the dress, taking care to keep the stitching close to each turned in edge. Always remove the bastings as soon as a certain part is finished, instead of letting them accumulate to the end of the making. Never pull them out so as to injure the fabric—rather cut the thread at close intervals and use a stiletto to remove. Another good plan is to have your ironing board and iron ready, so as to press as you go. After the seams are basted and the dress fitted, either make French seams, or use wrong side seam, overcasting the edges of each seam together.

Finish the neck with a narrow, bias, wrong side facing. The bottom of the dress will look well bound with the dress material.

The long, close fitting sleeves are prettily finished at the hand, being left open up the outside for a little way and cut to flare slightly at the bottom. The sleeves are made close fitting by means of a dart, and are finished with a wrong side facing.

Make the belt of the plain crêpe, and put small, fancy buttons on the dress as pictured. Georgette crêpe in chartreuse green or lipstick red, flat silk crêpe in navy blue, and crêpe Elizabeth in beige will be charming for this design.

Any junior girl will delight in having a dress made, by pattern No. 3176, for it is a chic design suitable for general or afternoon wear, depending on the material used. The long waisted bodice is cut in two pieces and has set-in sleeves. At the wrists the sleeves are gathered into narrow, fitted bands. A straight two piece skirt is gathered at the top and set on to the bodice.

This will be an easy dress to cut and make, and no trimming is needed, other than the bows shown in the sketch. Be sure to allow for a sufficient hem at the bottom of the skirt, and then divide the upper edge into quarters before gathering. Put pins in the middle, back, and front of the bodice edge and pin the skirt to it at each of these places and at the side seams. Of course you will have the skirt seams come at the side seams of the bodice, and the center of each piece will be pinned to the center front and back of the bodice.

Baste and stitch in a wrong side seam, or, if you choose, you may take a right side seam and cover this with a narrow bias strip, stitched close to each edge. If you prefer, the bottom of the skirt may be finished with a binding, and the neck should have the same finish.

Pattern No. 3450 is for a dress that will be especially becoming to the woman who is inclined to be overweight. The wide girdle gives a tight hip effect, while the plaits at either side of the front of the skirt lend a panel effect to the front, and without disturbing the straight line, these plaits ripple at each movement of the wearer. For novelty and chic, a scarf tie completes the youthful neckline with a turn-over collar. The sleeves are full length, close fitting, and finished at the wrists with turned back cuffs. The entire dress will be pretty made of one material and color, although something contrasting could be used with good effect.

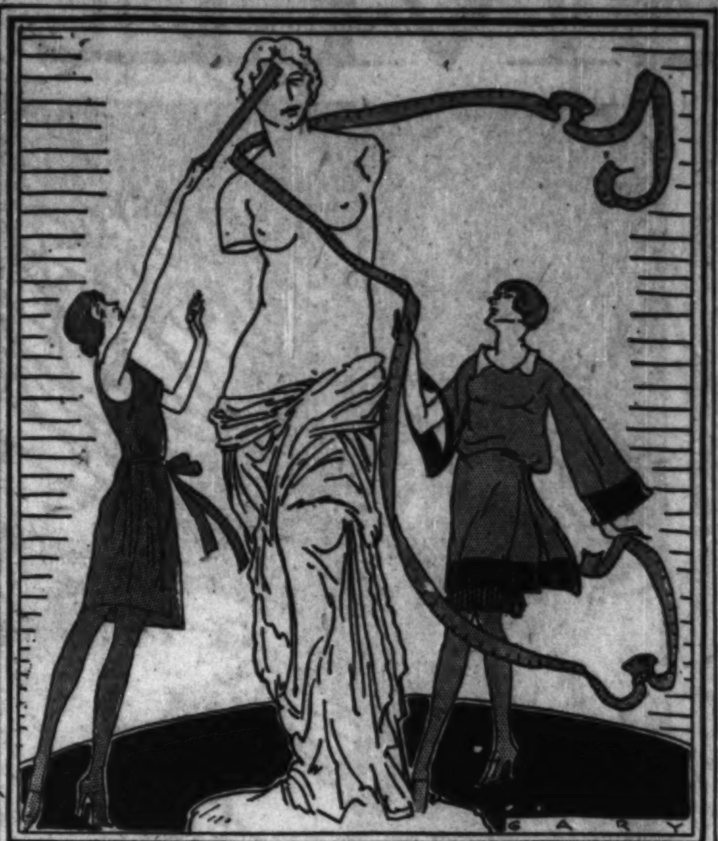
The Venus de Milo of 1929

by Antoinette Donnelly

She's Not the Mature Figure She Was Back in the Buxom 90s, but She's Just as Attractive



If you want to see what your chances would be in a perfect figure contest, you might get out the tape measure and try it out on the following tables:

If you are between the ages of 16 and 24 you come under the age classification of the figure at its most beautiful. We have the word of Dr. Charlotte C. West, author of "Ageless Youth," (Crowell) for it. And these are the measurements she gives:

"The figure should be exactly six times as long as the foot.

"The face from the middle point of the hair line to the point of the chin should be one-tenth of the entire stature.

"The hand from the tip of the middle finger to the end of the palm should be the same length as the face, and so, also, one-tenth the length of the body.

"From the highest point of the forehead to the beginning of the chest should be one-seventh the length of the body.

"The length of the body should be the same as the distance across the body from the middle finger of one hand to the middle finger of the other.

"Correct height," Dr. West says, "is sometimes stated this way:

"7½ times the length of the head.

"10 times the length of the face.

"9 times the length of the hand.

"6 to 7 times the length of the foot.

"Measurement from temple to temple equals the length of the face.

"The arms should be three times the length of the head.

"The legs should be four times the length of the head.

"The shoulders should be two heads wide.

"Perfectly formed legs touch, when standing erect, at the thighs, the knees, the calves, and the ankles."

But what you probably will be more interested in are the measurements Dr. West gives in her book for what she calls the "new" female figure:

Height	5 ft. 5 in.
Shoulders, over arms	42 in.
Bust	34 in.
Waist	26 in.
Hips	38 in.
Ankle	8 in.
Wrist	6 in.
Weight	122 pounds

The "new" female figure differs from the old, for which the well known Venus de Milo was the standard model, in that the latter represented a matured form. Maturity of form is not one of the current popular conceits, as you very well know.

Measurements of Venus.

Venus was 5 feet 4 in height. Her weight we never saw any record of anywhere. Her bust was 34¾ inches; her waist, 28½, and her hips, 36; her ankle 8½, which in inches, at least, doesn't appear to be what you could call gross.

According to measurements obtained from another source, representing an average of 1,000 perfect figures [modern ones], the ideal leg measurements for a girl 5 feet 6 inches high and weighing 133 pounds are:

Thigh	20 inches
Knee	14 inches
Calf	13¼ inches
Ankle	8 inches

The Venus de Milo measurements for the same parts read:

Thigh	19½ inches
Knee	13½ inches
Calf	13½ inches
Ankle	8½ inches

Venus, however, was 5 feet 4. The possessor of the first measurements was 5 feet 6, which would make a difference in appearance, if not in fact.

Prof. Sargent of Harvard has worked out the dimensions of the perfectly formed American woman of the average height of 5 feet 5 inches as:

Weight	130 pounds
	Inches.
Height [standing]	65
Height [sitting]	34
Girth of neck	13
Girth of chest	33
Girth of chest [full]	35½
Girth of waist	25½
Breadth of hips	13½
Girth of hips	35¾
Girth of thigh	21½
Girth of calf	13½
Girth of ankle	8¼
Girth of upper arm	10¾
Girth of forearm	9¼
Girth of wrist	6¼
Breadth of shoulders	15½
Breadth of waist	9¾

Leaning Toward the Mature.

Dr. Charlotte West says that Prof. Sargent's standard is also somewhat heavier, fuller than our present day ideal. Like the Venus, it leans toward the matured form.

Venus' waist spread of 28½ inches seems to be the worst thing we can hold against her, but a lot of women wish at this moment they could boast as refined a waist line as that.

However, our physician authority, Dr. West, comforts us with the knowledge that falling short of physical perfection seems to be a common grief, therefore bearable.

Nevertheless, a symmetrical form holds first place in Dr. West's beauty summary, with the harmonious development of the features as the second cardinal point.

"No one need go through life," says our exponent of "Ageless Youth," "handicapped in either of these respects, for modern science can always come to the relief of an anatomical defect. The law of compensation is fully carried out in our physical organism, but we can make this of value to ourselves only by comparing our physique with the type we most nearly approach. We can soon learn where our chief charm lies, and how to accentuate it; where our chief physical defect lies, and, until we can overcome it, how we can overwhelm it with our good points."

Perfect Beauty Is Rare.

Dr. West quotes a famous artist and illustrator who declares that there are no perfectly beautiful women; that not more than one in ten thousand can be termed beautiful. But after this cold, critical analysis, the artist admits, enthusiastically, to 80 or 90 per cent who are attractive, if not beautiful.

With her scientific medical background, Dr. West, in "Ageless Youth," proceeds to act the humanitarian to women, telling them exactly how they can get into the attractive class or stay there.

Answers to Beauty Queries

What's your beauty ill? Too fat? Too thin? Shy on hair? Oily hair, oily skin, freckles, pimples, or blackheads? Flat-chested or flat-footed? Write to me. I have a tonic, a diet, or a set of exercises for what ails you, and you're welcome to them and to all the advice I can give you. If you wish a personal reply send a stamped, addressed envelope. Address Antoinette Donnelly, The Tribune, Chicago.

J. B.: YOUR SKIN IS ITCHY BEcause it so dry. Soften your bath water with meal mixtures, such as almond meal, or a combination of powdered oatmeal, almond meal and castile soap. After your bath massage your body with olive oil or a good cold cream.

P. C.: NECK TOO FAT? TRY these exercises: Lie flat on the floor on your back and without lifting heels or hands carry your head forward on your chest as far as you can go. This gives an excellent pull on the muscles between the shoulder blades. Repeat a dozen times. Send stamped addressed envelope for other exercises.

Best Parties

Tell us about the nicest party you ever attended and we'll pay $1 for each letter printed. Address Parties, Chicago Tribune.

A Surprise Affair.

The best party I ever attended was a combined wedding and birthday shower given by the bride-to-be's prospective sister-in-law. The entertainment for the evening was a mock wedding. The groom was dressed in an old fashioned cutaway coat and striped trousers, white bosomed shirt, high winged collar, white bow tie, and large white tissue paper chrysanthemum in his button hole, and high silk hat and cane.

The bride was dressed in an old fashioned, long, white dress with tiny waist line. The groom did not remove his hat during the mock ceremony. When the pseudo minister uttered the words "With this ring I thee wed" the groom produced a large brass neckband and placed it around the bride's neck.

The evening's entertainment was enjoyed by all and especially by the real bride-to-be, as it was a complete surprise to her.

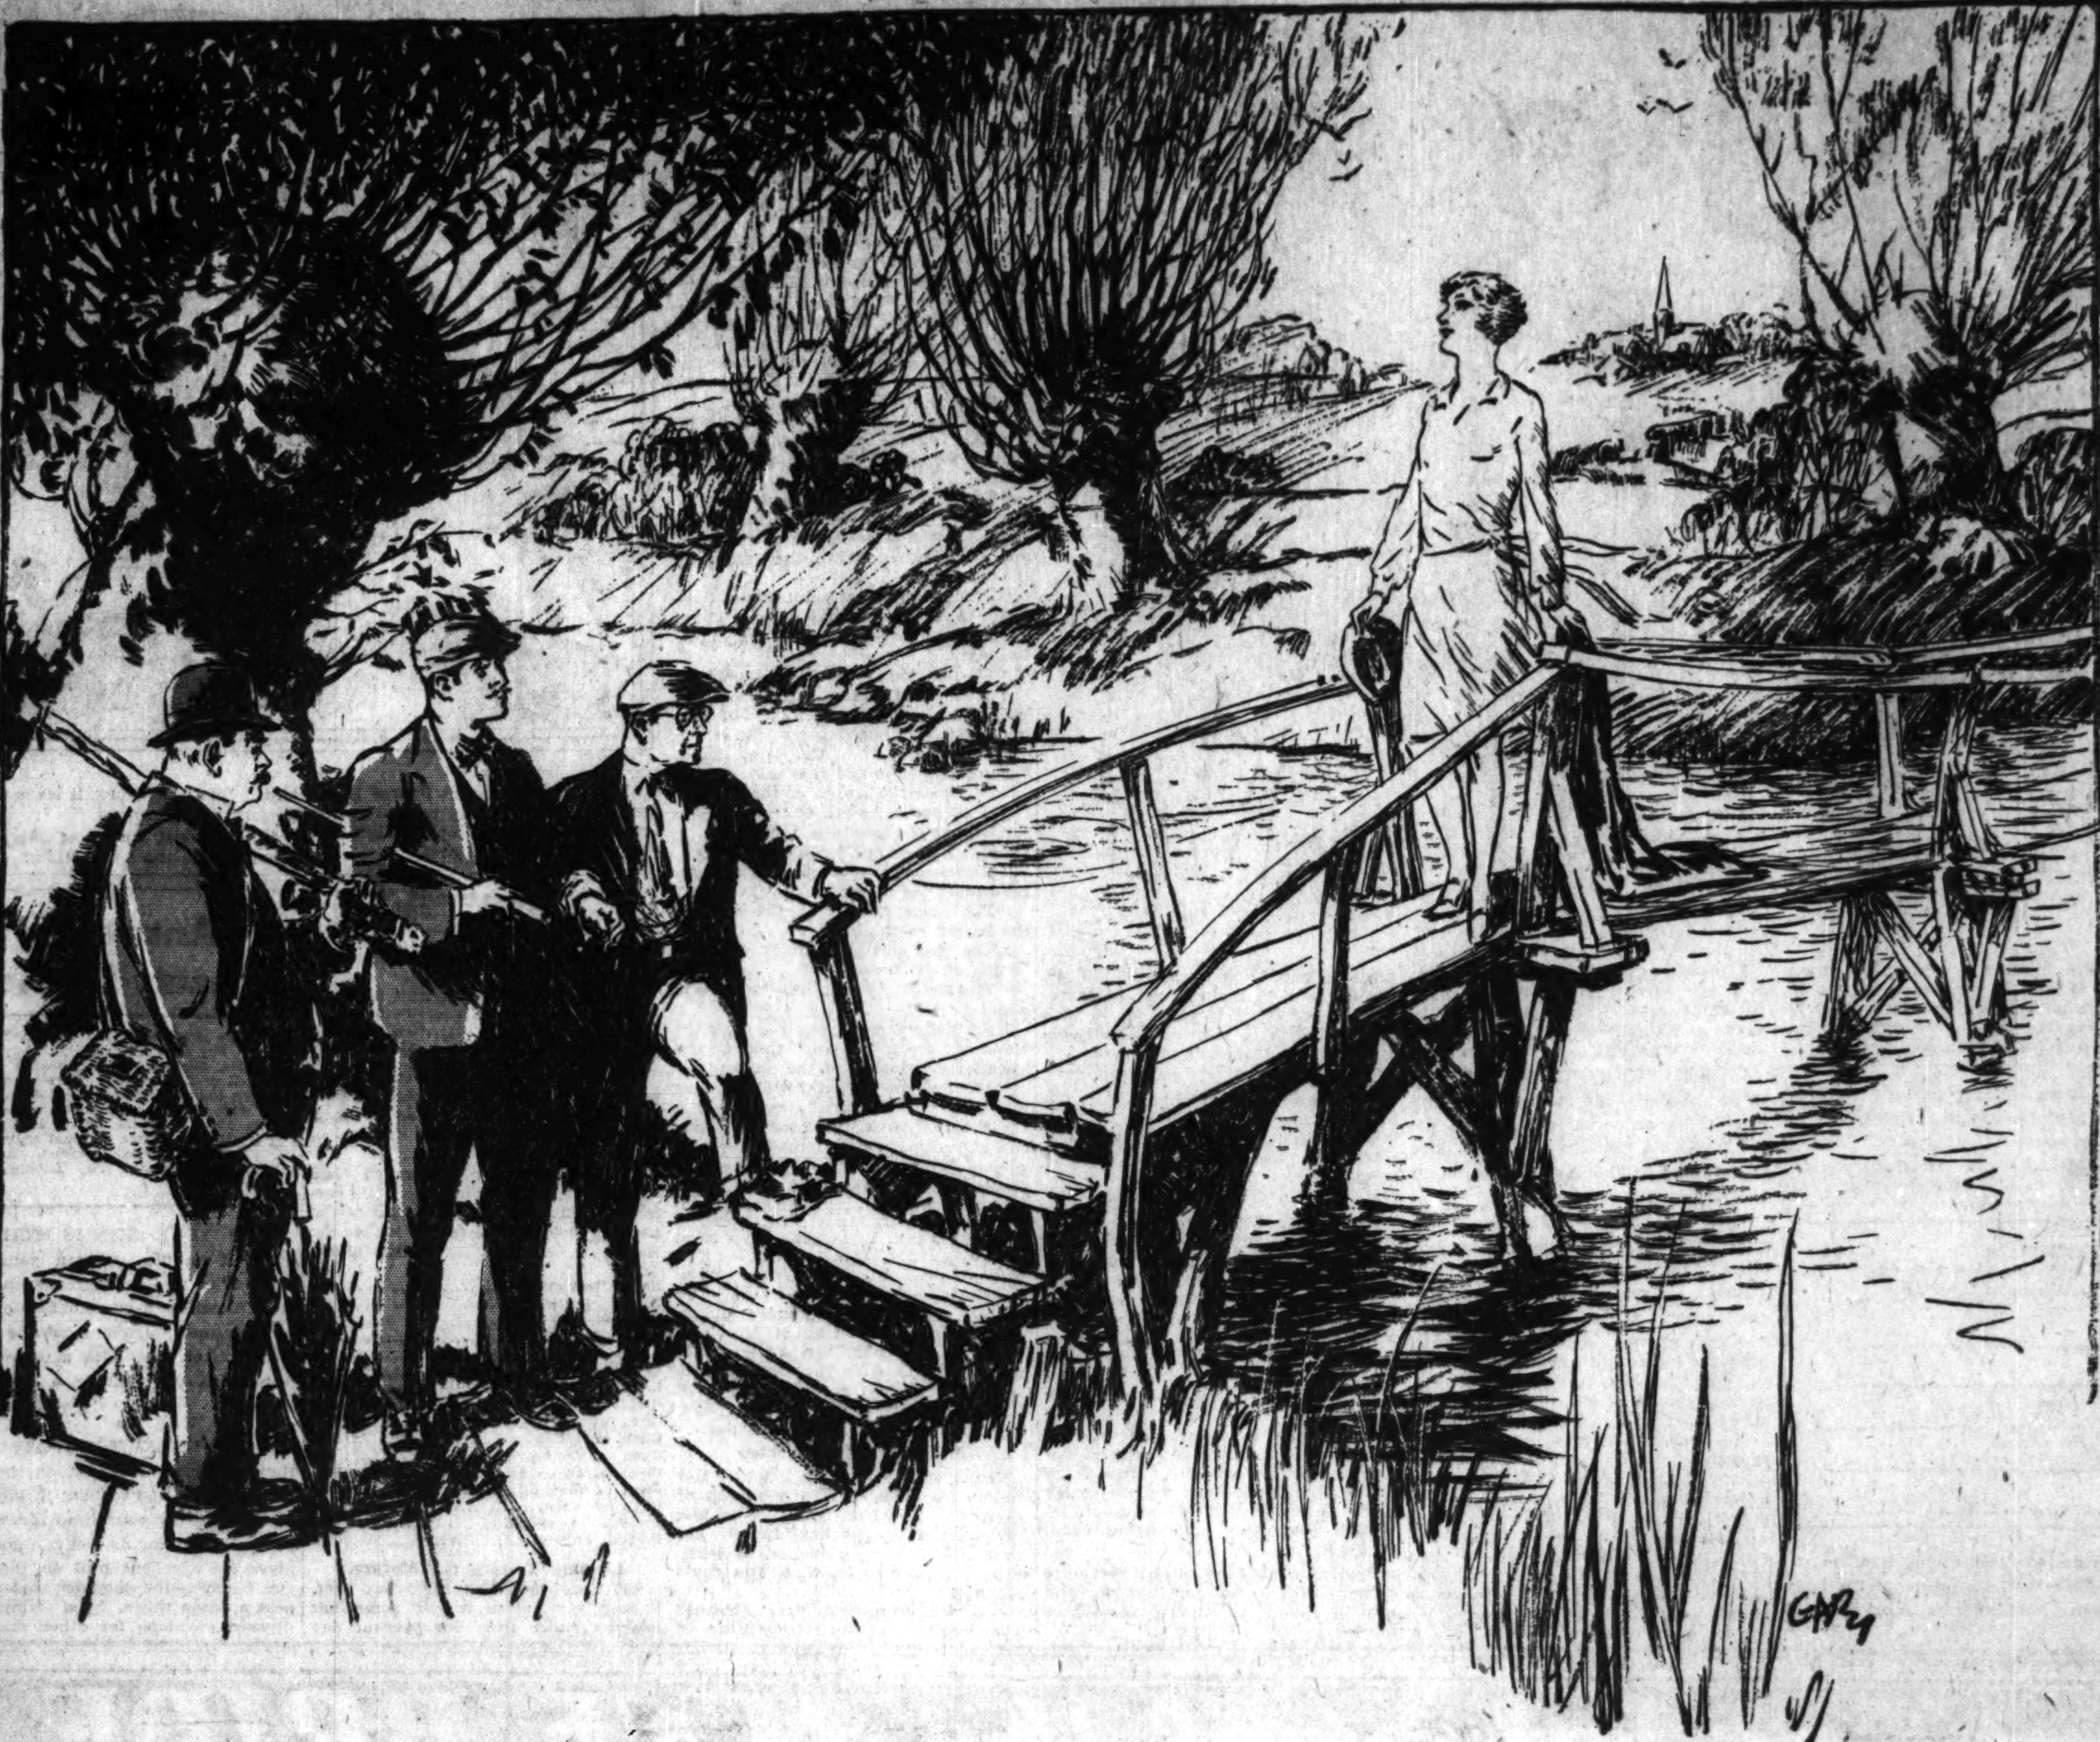
FEMERA

BY Roland Pertwee

The Life of the Beautiful Mayfly Is Fleeting. An Old Bachelor, Watching the Courting of a Lovely Young Girl, Wondered if Her Freedom Were Not Equally Brief.



Her arms, falling to her sides, let the ugly coat slip from her shoulders like a husk.

IN "The Fly Fisher's Entomology," by Alfred Ronalds, one comes upon the following description of the Mayfly under the serial number and heading 28a. The Green Drake.

> This fly, proceeding from a water nympha, lives three or four days as shown; then the female changes to the Gray Drake and the male to the Black Drake. The Green Drake cannot be said to be in season quite three weeks on an average. Its season depends greatly upon the state of the weather, and it will be found earlier upon the slowly running parts of the stream (such as mill dams) than on the rapid places.

Here, one might venture to say, is a bald, unembroidered statement doing less than justice to one of nature's most mysterious and perilous conceits.

For two, or is it three years, the embryo of that fragile life reposes in the educating mud of the river bottom—an infinitesimal egg, changing slowly with the slowly changing seasons—harboring within itself the few secrets that shall sustain it in the tiny span of reckless life awaiting so far ahead—building about itself a little floating balloon that shall rise at the whim of the temperature and open into a canoe upon the water's surface—a fragile craft that in the act of launching its inmate into the empyrean sinks and is forgotten.

And then the splendid, perilous adventure is begun—the sun dance—the water dance—bridal and motherhood—carried out in a rapacious world where everything that flies or swims is a relentless enemy. The hatch that season was late, as well it might have been, with the water whipped by a black east wind that put the shame of March into the month of May.

I had not troubled to put a rod together, for in such weather the fireside offered better company than the river bank. Some few stouter hearted anglers at the Fishing hotel had tried their luck, but, having none, returned early to consume more whisky than was good for them and swap lies about heavy baskets and kindlier seasons.

It is a fisherman's job to notice things, and as I had given the river a miss, my attention directed itself towards my fellow guests.

There is no standard type of fisherman. It is a sport that tugs at the imagination of a hundred different temperaments. One grand old fellow, with a seamed face and nubbly hands, who sat alone with a fly hook for company, seemed to me a pattern fisherman. He was the class of man who would wish a lost fish luck as the loose line drifted back to him. A grand old chap with a grand name—James Julius Bandinel—I liked him better than the two doctors, one fat and globulous, the other thin and parchmenty, who fancied themselves so highly as technicians that I doubted their ability to throw a fly beyond their own shoulder blades. The thin one had a habit of whistling a cold and tuneless air through his front teeth. His stout companion ate enormously. On this account they came to be christened Pig and Whistle. In the baptism of strangers there is little charity.

But there was another whom I disliked more actively. A black crow of a man with high shoulders, pouchy cheeks, and a paunch. His name was Crutchley, so there was no need to give him another. His occupation had something to do with bacon on an extensive scale. He was rude to waiters, had a vast opinion of himself, and suffered from the delusion that people wanted to hear what he had to say. Heaven knows what prompted this fallacy, for his conversation was in the form of continual complaints about this, that, or the other. At the moment he was concerned in accusing the hotel authorities of roguery.

"Booked the rooms on the understanding that I shouldn't come till the Mayfly was up. Roguery—that's what it is—nothing short of it."

THE quiet American, John Fleming Reid, whose time was largely occupied floating dry flies in a tumbler of water and looking at 'em from below, opined that even in England a hotel proprietor couldn't stop an east wind from boling—no, sir.

"Nonsense—rubbish," said Crutchley. "And I'd like to know what the devil you expect to catch in that glass of water."

"Nothing that'll help me lose my temper," was the gentle retort.

"Don't try any pussyfoot stuff on me," Crutchley cawed. "And let me tell you that that business of looking at flies from underneath is absolute waste of time."

"If you say so, it must be," the American answered. "Though on the face of it—or the bas of it—it's kinda logical to get your lures from a similar slant to the one a trout takes." And dropping a green bodied Woodriff into the glass, he held it aloft.

By the mantelpiece, his radiant plus fours forming an efficient fire screen, was a very young man. His respect for his elders was revealed in repeated inquiries to a couple of gray heads as to what it was "going to be," and a claim that he was in the chair. Provoked beyond endurance by unsought hospitality, the elder of the twain observed that his enjoyment of the fire would be increased if the young man would only consent to occupy a chair.

The young man, whose name was Dennis something or another, shook his head.

"I'd sooner stand," said he. "I'm rather tight, as a matter of fact." He emitted a cloud of cigaret smoke, flicked the ash on to the carpet, and added, "In this foul weather what else is there to do?"

Presently, for lack of alcoholic encouragement, he drifted away towards the bar and one of the gentlemen remarked to the other, "There is much to be said in favor of not being twenty-one."

An east wind gives a bitter twist to the kindest tongue.

BEFORE I was fully awake next morning I was aware of a change and, opening my eyes, I saw through the window a limpid bowl of blue across which like a flight of swans drifted those friendly bun-faced clouds that are fashioned in the sky factories of the south.

Ignoring the cup of tea which stood by my elbow, I jumped out of bed, tumbled into my oldest suit and made for the river.

A marvel of young summer was in the air. The slanting rays of the sun were dancing a twinkle-toe where a sandy ait split the sleek waters of the pool into swift and rippling shallows.

Even at that early hour the warmth of the sun had penetrated to the mud at the river bottom, stirring and wakening the insect life that lay hidden there. Tiny and almost invisible ephemeridæ with close shut wings were cruising downstream in numbers. Where the water ran deep in the shadow of the opposite bank an old trout had already begun to take with the delicacy of a lady nibbling at a salted almond. I saw the black nose of him peeking out of a tress of emerald weed. Higher up a couple of youngsters were throwing themselves at the fly like schoolboys at play.

And I said to myself, "Today is the day."

The American, John Fleming Reid, was beside me, his face reflecting the beatific mood of a May morning.

"For thirty seasons I've promised myself the sight of a hatch of Mayfly in an English chalk stream," said he, "and it looks as if the long vigil is over. I've fancied it always as one of the strangest, loveliest and most remorseless works of nature. For what, sir, does it boil down to but the bare perpetuation of a species whose tenure of life in the imago, or perfect stage, is barely long enough to make a scratch on the tablets of memory? Where can one find a parallel for such wanton capriciousness, or any form of existence so beset with adversity?"

That was true enough, for with the instinctive knowledge of all wild things, the forces of destruction were already gathering about the banks of the river. Flights of darting swallows skimmed the water's surface. Fly catchers, their little sharp beaks pricking the sky, fluttered and hovered by the alders. In the reeds and bulrushes upstream a great concourse of sparrows were chattering in noisy anticipation of the feast. Predatory dragon flies with jewelled bodies and wings that buzzed like the blades of a trembler coil zigzagged this way and that from bank to bank.

Together we walked to a narrow plank bridge which spanned the long pool where, with our elbows on the rail, we stood looking down into the mysterious deeps below.

Across the water meadow, a quarter of a mile away, a local, with a chugging engine that wore a gallant plume of steam, had pulled in at the railway halt. I was vaguely aware of one or two passengers alighting, but took no heed of them.

My companion, inspired by the imminent realization of a lifelong hope, was descanting the accumulated wisdom of many books into the unheeding air. Suddenly he broke off his recital and pointed excitedly.

FOLLOWING the line of his forefinger, I saw a small, dark, tapered object rising from the shadowy depths. Up it came, slanting from pressure of the current, and broke the surface a few feet above us. Then, as if by magic, the nymph split and opened and there unfolded from within a perfect insect with an arched body and pale, tall wings of lemon gossamer.

At the touch of the sun she stirred, swelled and quivered expectantly. The black nymph filled and foundered and for a yard or two the newly hatched Mayfly rode the water like a ship in sail. She passed beneath us and we turned to watch her progress. Then, scarcely a dozen feet away, there came a swirl and a plop. But in his eagerness the trout had risen short and by the curl he made had put the fly upon the wing. In the quietness the sound of her wings was like a faint rustle of silk.

It may have been our presence protected her. A swallow, sweeping down from on high, swerved aside and did not strike. A passing dragon fly did not seem to notice. The sparrows were too busy bragging in the reeds to take effective action.

I had lost sight of her for a moment, but when I saw her again she was almost above my head, held there by the puff of an upstream breeze. She had been joined by another of her kind, but darker in color—a male—and together they sported and chased in the air. Dipping, eluding, rising, overtaking—a rare dance they made of it. Presently, tiring of the sport, the dark companion fluttered away and our lemon lady floated down to dap-dap on the surface of the water.

Instinctively we knew the end was near—that the period of palpitating life had reached the last chapter. A lazy chub made an ineffective gobble and left it at that. A trout leaped and an ugly starling scooped her off the top of his nose. One gossamer wing sailed neglected downstream. It was all over. The adventure with its comedy and tragedy had ended. Looking at my companion I saw that the sight had effected him to the edge of silence.

"Too bad," he muttered, "too bad. All those seasons of growth and development and then that."

HAVING nothing to add, I was turning away when, with a fishing basket in one hand, an umbrella and a rod in the other, I beheld a fat, nervous little man coming along the cinder path that crossed the water meadows. A few paces behind him wrapped in a tight fitting black raincoat, walked a girl.

Puffing a bit from the warmth of the day, the little man mounted the steps on to the plank bridge and turned to address his daughter.

And she said in a voice softer than the air, "Yes, father."

So the little man cautiously made the crossing and stood beside us on the river bank to watch, as we watched, the coming of the girl in the somber coat. Half way across she tugged a small hat from her head and shook out her curls. A capricious breeze parted the close fitting black coat and revealed a slender, fragile body that in the sunlight looked transparent. She was wearing a frock of a pale primrose color which, from the pressure of the wind, clung to her form like a skin. Prompted by some divine alchemy of sun and wind, she paused and stretched out her hands. Then, standing there, her face lifted, she drew a deep breath and laughed—laughed for pleasure of the sun. And in that laugh was a reflection—an apotheosis of springtime—of the day—of all green, growing things—running water—bird song—and young life itself.

Her arms, falling to her sides, let the ugly coat slip from her shoulders like a husk, to trail forgotten from a single hand. And it seemed to me that the bridge had vanished—that she had cast aside the nymph and rode on air, held above the water's surface by a breath of hay scented breeze.

The clutch of a hand on my wrist robbed the vision of its unreality. A voice, the voice of John Fleming Reid, husky with amazement, breathed in my ear. "Do you get it, sir—do you get that parallel?"

"Yes," I replied; then, slipping an arm through his, "but since you and I are withered bachelors, the sooner we bring ourselves to earth before a plate of bacon and eggs the better."

Snatching my eyes from the girl, I turned him in the direction of the hotel. Not two yards away was Crutchley, looking more like a crow than ever. With hopping steps and hands extended, their fingers spread like featherless wings, he was bearing down on the new arrivals.

"Drake," he cawed. "Didn't expect you till noon. And the little lady! Well, Phœbe, my dear, got a kiss for an old friend?"

"Don't look," hissed Fleming Reid. "Once is enough at this hour of the day."

Moving swiftly, we almost collided with young Dennis something-or-another, who was standing by one of the breakfast tables on the riverside lawn.

There was no need to inquire what feature of the landscape occupied his attention. The trembling of his voice and a certain added color told us that clearly enough.

WITH an unreasoning sense of indignation I drew up a chair and called for breakfast. Two tables away sat one of the doctors—the meager one, Whistle. He was looking up the river through a pair of binoculars.

Now it is the practice of certain dry fly purists to study the water with glasses and make mental notes of spots where fish are rising, and it would have been much of a piece with the doctor's character so to have employed himself. He belonged to that genre of angler who delights in reducing the sport to a series of scientific formulæ and observances.

But it was not piscine activities that concerned him then. He was wrapt and absorbed in contemplation of the primrose girl who, with her father and the crowlike Crutchley, were approaching along the river path.

The hatch of Mayfly had started in earnest and the plop of rising fish came continuously from the pool. Yet as the girl drifted through the tables on the lawn never an eye deviated towards the river. Even the two veterans followed her progress with bated breath and the color of youth upon their cheeks. Even that pattern to anglers, James Julius Bandinel, trained an eye upon her slender loveliness. Poor Fleming Reid sat like a man transfixed, with a forkful of bacon and egg balanced between heaven and earth. As the girl disappeared into the hotel a sigh escaped like the rush of air from a punctured tire and he muttered devoutly, "No good can come of this."

"Amen," I said.

Anglers are the worst of chaperons, and in the days that followed Phœbe Drake was sorely neglected by those who should have considered her welfare and was greatly affected by others who considered their own. Women are a rarity in fishing hotels and this girl, so fragile, exquisite and fresh, would have been a rarity in any company. Never had I seen any one so defenseless or ephemeral. For my own satisfaction I christened her Femera—spelling it with an F, the better to keep my secret.

I watched her little adventurous day from its sunrise to its setting. A little before her first appearance in our midst she had left the gray walls of a convent school. She had never known her mother—what May fly does? She had been dropped out of sight into this world—to expand, develop, and flower—for what?

AN onlooker sees most of the game and even plays some small part in it if he is of the right complexion. A lonely bachelor sucking at a briar, tidying a flybook in a summer house, is a magnet for confidence, and sometimes what he is not told he overhears—inadvertently. It is hardly fair to lovers to put a seat for two at the back of a summer house. This seat had an air of privacy, being well nigh surrounded by a hedge of yew. Small wonder if young and even mature persons felt secure to unburden their thoughts and desires in such a solitude.

On the first evening following her arrival Femera must needs put herself upon this seat and in loneliness—not perhaps untouched by sentiment—watch the coral clouds of sunset pass through lavender to gray. And presently to that sentimental aside among the bushes came young Dennis what's his name, plague the rascal, with an unconvincing apology for intruding.

"Didn't know any one was here—so sorry and all that—I've kind of marked this place down as my own particular. Yes, I must have spent hours here in the quiet of evenin', thinkin', lookin' at the stars, and smokin' an odd cigaret."

Liar that he was—all dressed up like a dragon fly, too.

But Femera in her ignorance only said, "Have you? Do you?"

Which was encouraging.

"Will you have a cigaret?" he asked, bold as brass.

She told him she didn't know how.

What an incentive is there when some one young, fresh, and lovely doesn't know how! Bold Dennis sat him down beside her.

"Do you like the Yale Blues?" he asked—clumsily, I thought.

I could have done better than that—at forty-four. She didn't know how.

"You're not going to tell me you don't dance?"

She was going to tell him that. It was true. Dancing wasn't encouraged at the convent.

"But still you must have had holidays?"

Yes, but she had spent them with an old aunt at Bath.

Those gray, educating sands—the quickening marl of the river bed. O, what was it all for?

"What a mouse you are!" he laughed.

Mouse—a vile, verminous creature. The fool had no imagination to call her that. Mice don't fly—except bats—and decent men don't liken girls to bats.

He had tossed his cigaret over the hedge—a bad sign. I heard it hiss like a little snake as it touched the river.

"Has any one told you how lovely you are?" he asked suddenly, earnestly.

Femera didn't think they had—at any rate not often enough to satisfy.

"Well, you are," he said. "You're a knockout."

Yes, he used the word "knockout," and now reflect upon the limitless beauties of our language. Would she stand for that, I wondered? and told myself such clumsy casting would put down even an eager yearling. Alas, when youth calls to youth, where is their sensibility?

She repeated the word thoughtfully, and perhaps looked at his hands, for she said, "Are you very strong? You look strong."

I said to myself, "That's done it," and deliberately boggled up a cast that I had all but cleared of a tangle. I was right, too, for he was well away. Forfend I may ever again hear such bragging.

"—amateur middleweight champion at Radley—and got into the varsity boxing finals later. I'd have won, too, only I put out my left thumb. Fought the last three rounds with my left hand behind my back and marked my man more than a bit."

Stags belling in a highland forest—partridges drumming—peacocks strutting up and down—for show!

"Damn this mating business," said I, and made for the hotel.

LIFE is a wretched affair, but it has its compensations. A three and a half pound trout on a light rod—a sparkling May morning—flowers in a wood—a girl like Femera—and confidence.

Are all confidence men tricksters? I was. With what vile deliberation I smoked my pipe in that summer house. Pipe smoke is magnetic—just as cigaret smoke will put shy young things to flight. Presently I became Femera's friend—or uncle—the latter, probably, for while we talked she would sometimes slip an arm through mine and grip it with bewildering enthusiasm. That is a way of nieces. They give the friendliest contact in the world.

There is much to be said in favor of being an uncle. Dear Femera—so grave—so exquisitely gay! Her smile was fresh as primrose on a bank. She had so little to say, but a perilous willingness to listen. She was amazed at the world and the people in it. To her everything was fantastic—thrilling. In that little while the stars shone only for her. What care I took not to frighten her away! The pipes I smoked—the casts I knotted—the tangles I unraveled—all to present an absorption that was utterly unreal.

She ran to me with the tale of her triumphs and disasters. She could only recount—she could not invent. Her talk was a repetition of what others had said. It was thus I came to hear the manner of Dr. Chalmers' proposal.

He was the fat and smug doctor, the one with the body that resembled an overripe pear. He had a mouth like a chub, with thick India rubber lips and eyes which seemed to be at the sides of his face rather than in the middle of it. I think he flattered himself that he could see round a corner. A sickening, greedy person. He had a habit of squinnying his eyes into something intended to be a smile—and he said "Yess, yess," repeatedly.

"You will take a little stroll, Miss Phœbe—yess?"

THEY followed the cinder track and halted at the railway gate. Steel rails and a fascination for the man—they went on and on—his wretched narratives and arguments.

"I am doing very well, yess—very well," said he. "I have a practice, the largest in my district. Hard work and ability go a long way in the medical profession—O, yess. But to achieve absolute success one needs a social background—a social partner—some one to whip in the patients with a smile, with an engagement of manner. I've been too busy up to now to form that partnership—a mistake, yess, I agree. But wise men remedy their mistakes—as I mean to do."

She asked him "how," and he made a place for her in his arms.

An engine screamed a warning and she ran—why? To encourage pursuit? No, not that. She had instinct enough to know that that kind of fish only rises once—it does not follow downstream. It lies with open mouth just beneath the surface and sucks in the passing fly as it drifts along.

I said, "I never knew before why engines scream in an open countryside."

"But I am sure he meant to be very kind," said Femera.

"Even kindness can kill," I said, and asked where was Dennis.

She colored, but it was not a happy color; rather it was resentful.

"He—I don't know—I don't care—he's horrid, anyway. He seemed to want to kiss me—and I let him. After that he didn't want to any more."

The dragon fly had passed on.

It was through no fault of mine I overhead the proposal of John Fleming Reid. He knew my habits well enough to have avoided that seat had he cared to do so. I suppose he didn't care. Love takes men that way sometimes. A fluent talker, he was, in the ordinary run, but sentiment had robbed him of his dictionary and left him the mere copper coinage of the language to go a-courting with. I liked him so well that I wished he had been a younger man.

In heart and spirit he was a noble lover, but Anno Domini—the march of onward years—had borne him beyond the zone of true romance. Because of the liking I had for him I would leave out this part of the narrative but for one thing—his sudden surprising and beautiful realization of his own ineligibility.

A commuter he was, passing daily to and from Stamford, Connecticut, and a hair brush factory in Harlem. The "home" he offered her he called the "farm," but when questioned he must needs admit that there were neither pigs nor chickens, nor any fields nor meadows, but a convenient street car which ran on rails had a halting place before the front gates, and there was an electric stove in the kitchenette and labor saving devices and ever such marvelous plumbing. And Stamford was a little, quiet growing city, with swarms of automobiles, so that on Saturday mornings it would sometimes take you five minutes to cross the road.

And he caught an early train for New York and got back by half after seven, and what was to prevent a loving wife meeting him in the car? And for any one who liked that kind of thing, nothing in the world was more fascinating than a hair brush factory. Why the bristles used came from Maryland hogs and—and——

SUDDENLY he broke off and I heard him clap a hand to his forehead and cry out, "Don't heed a word of it, little lady; forget it all. For a few crazy minutes I fancied I was young again—young enough to have a right to speak—but I've sat here listening to every loveless word I've said, and they brand me for what I am—greedy, predatory, selfish—like the rest of 'em. From the bottom of my heart I wish you something better and ask your pardon."

A few moments later he was whipping the stream with a savage cutting action of the wrist that put down every fish within a radius of twenty yards.

"Darned fool," I heard him say. "Darned old fool!"

I blew a puff of smoke through the crazy timbers of the summer house and Femera came to me.

"Did you hear?" she said.

I nodded.

"Yes, and it taught me a great lesson."

"But what does it mean?" she asked.

"It means," said I, "the age of chivalry is not dead. It means, my dear, that you should step along and put a young arm round an old neck and kiss an angry red cheek and say, 'What a darling you are, Mr. Reid.'"

"Does it?" said she. "I will, if you say so—I'd like to."

"Then go," said I, and pointed sternly.

Presently she came back. "I did it, but you were wrong," she said. "It made him cry."

"Then I was right," said I. "O Femera, most sweet and innocent of children, learn to be grateful to any man who will protect you against himself, for they are rare."

And what of Crutchley, that black crow of a man? What of the villain of the piece, you will be asking? His turn is coming, never fear. Crows do not hurry themselves. Watch how slowly they seem to fly—watch their

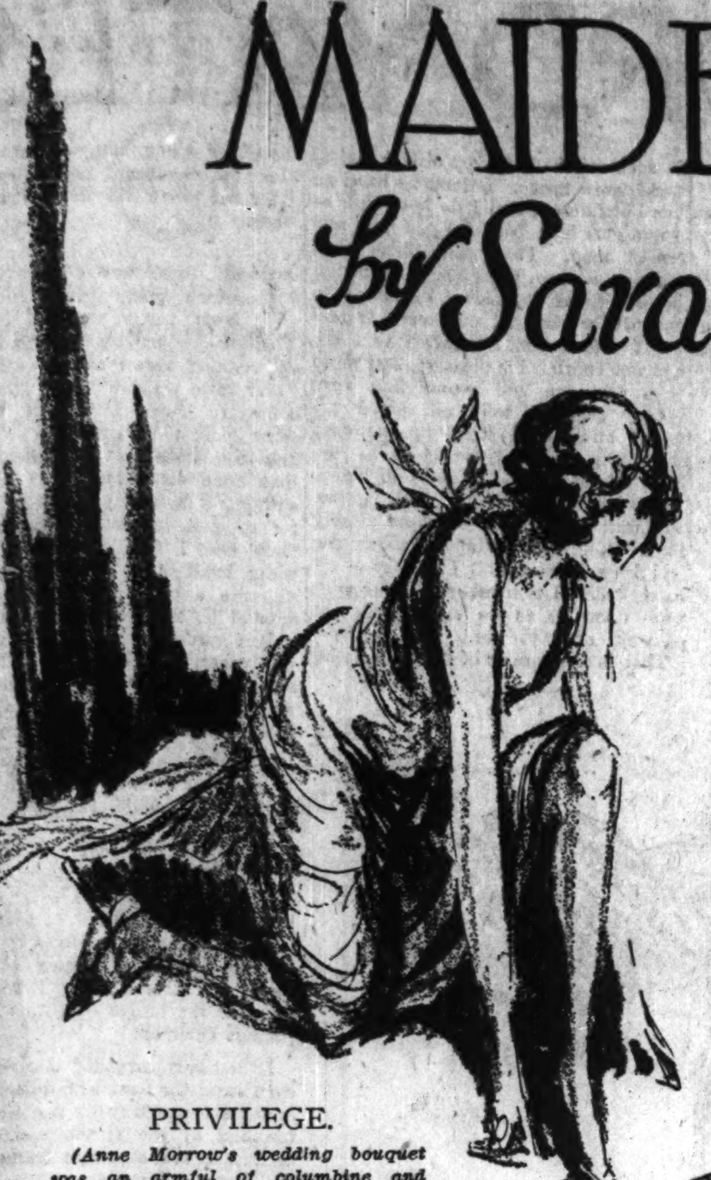
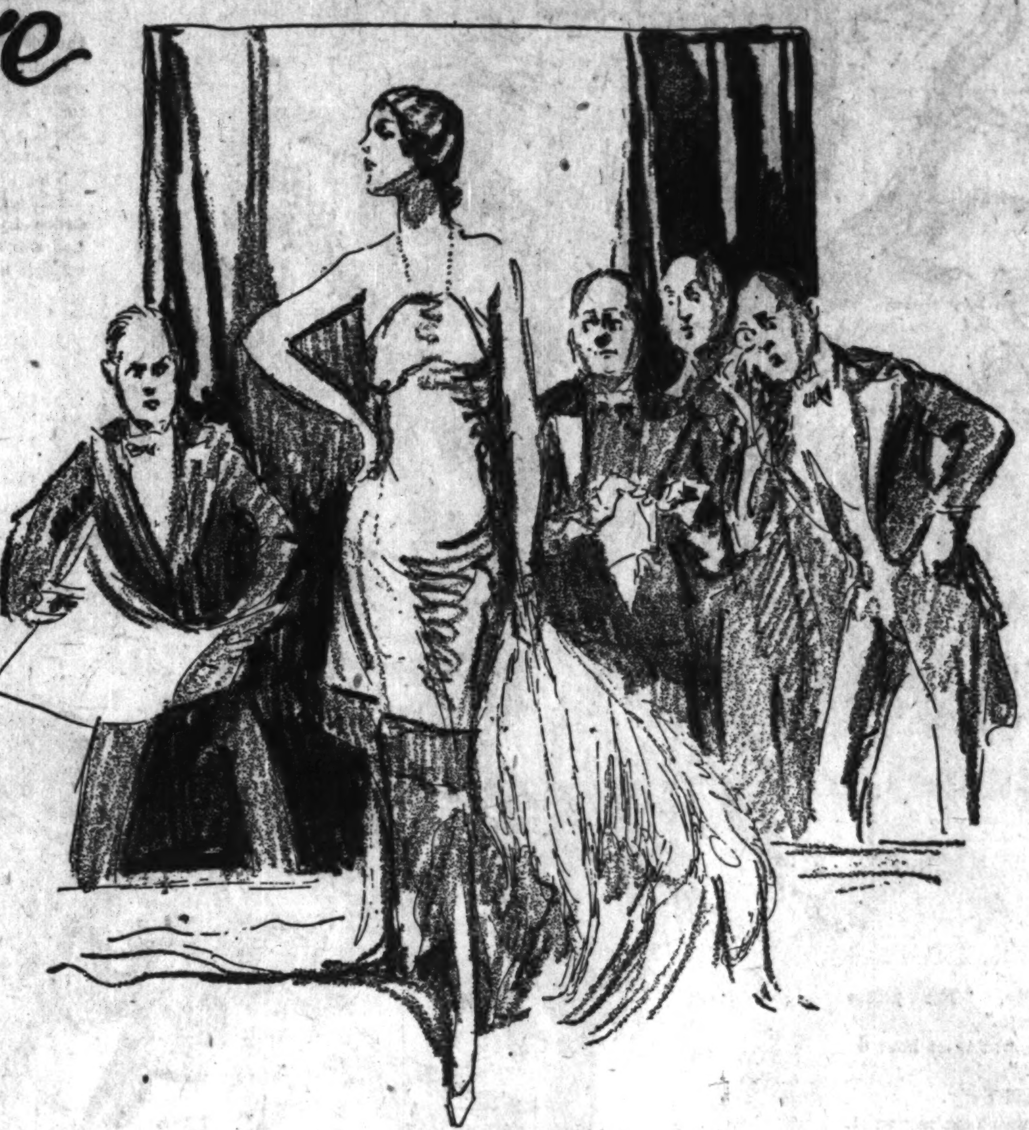
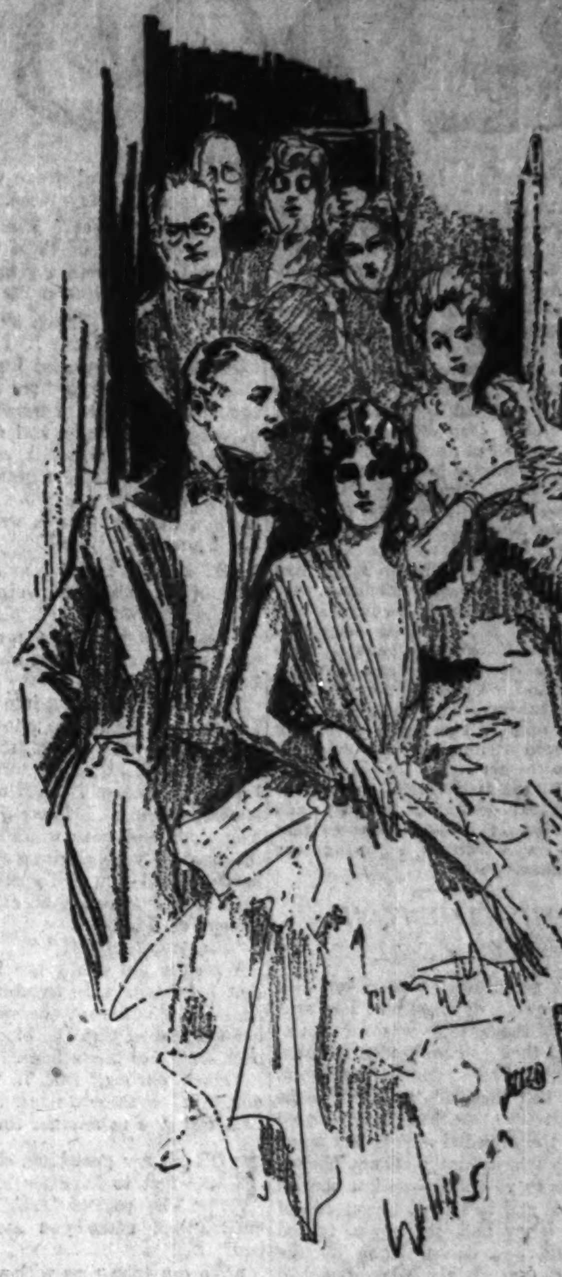
MAIDEN MEDITATIONS

by Sara Moore







PRIVILEGE.

No pageantry attends importance.
What cathedral set
With lilies, candles, splendor
Adds a dot of substance
To the marriage bond itself?
They should crown kings
And bury potentates
With ritual and honor. . . .
Brides are at their best
Set in a garden scene
And under open skies. . . .

The little people must have glamoured things.
The lesser people are elaborate.

Small souls need strong conventions, form, routine.
Simplicity! The privilege of those Who lead.

THE MARRIED FLAPPER'S NOTES ON MEN.

John swears he loves me for my soul sincere;
He cherishes, he claims, my mind and heart,
My loyalty, my nerve, and qualities
That mark me from the herd as one apart.
Yet when I wear a hat of blue or black
I notice that he scolds of that and this,
Though in a brown one, with a dash of rouge,
Not anything I do he finds amiss.
An added earring or a powdered nose,
A spot of perfume or a satin heel
Arrest his eyes that skip, unseeing, o'er—
The many things I say, think, do, or feel. . . .

THE READYMADE LADY.

O, I'm so good that the cherubim
Are moved to jealousy;
I'm sweet and nice and conventional
—And that's my tragedy,
For I, alas, am the youngest born
Of a goodly family
And all of my brothers and maiden aunts
Keep busy bossing me.

I am well brought up. You can see just why—
(The youngest of the lot).
Three elder sisters look out for me
And crab the lightest plot.
I can't get by a single thing—
They're always on the spot.

BLOOD ROYAL by DORNFORD YATES

In Foregoing Installments:

WILLIAM CHANDOS and his friend, George Hanbury, attended by their servants, Bell and Rowley, all of England, are spending a summer on the continent. They rescue Duke Paul of Reichtenburg, heir to the throne of the dying Prince Nicholas, from a kidnaper, Maj. Grieg. Grieg is a henchman of Duke Johann, cousin of Paul, who covets the crown. The kidnaping had been engineered by Johann to clear the way for a coup d'état. The Englishmen take Paul to Anger, castle of the Grand Duchess Leonie, the duke's fiancée. Leonie travels with them to Vigil, capital of Reichtenburg, to match wits with Johann. Their forces are strengthened there by the Countess Dresden of Salm and Baron Sully, lord president of the council. Chandos, who has fallen in love with Leonie, is surprised to find her betraying deep feeling for him. Grieg and a band of thugs trap and assail Chandos and Hanbury in a cabaret. Chandos throws Grieg over the balcony, with the result that both the major's legs are broken, and the intended victims escape. Anger is burned to the ground by Johann's underlings. With the assistance of Grimm, the royal sergeant-footman, Hanbury and Rowley discover a secret passage that leads to a wardrobe adjoining the prince's chamber.

INSTALLMENT XI.

At Close Grips.

BELL and Rowley had spoken with the grand duchess, who had said that the prince was no worse, and then had proceeded as usual to take up Duke Paul. The grand duchess had decided to visit some shops, but the duke had flatly refused to enter the crowded streets and when Bell, who was driving, had not obeyed his orders to go about, had lost control of himself and had tried to get out of the car. They had, thereupon, turned round and had driven along by the river and through the park, but had found these quarters deserted except for nursemaids and children, as was only to be expected at that time of day.

There was nothing to be said, so we told them the plans we had made and set them to packing our clothes, but the stars in their courses seemed to be fighting against us, for the only explanation of the duke's demeanor was that his nerve was broken and that he feared the people whom he was hoping to rule.

Here I may say that by now we had all four taken to carrying arms, this by no sort of arrangement but because first one occasion and then another had seemed to demand the precaution and, once it was taken, I suppose we saw no good reason to lay it aside.

It was midday and we were to lunch at one.

Now, happy as I was to be going to see my lady, I had no sooner accepted her invitation than I began to doubt the wisdom of visiting her at all.

On the face of it, such a visit was harmless enough, but the time was out of joint, and the measures which we had taken in the hope of setting it right were highly irregular. Though there was nothing to show it, both George and I were marked men and the constant use of our car by so great a personage must have occasioned comment. Johann, who knew the truth, was out for blood. If he could turn our acquaintance to her embarrassment—link her name, for instance, to some scandal which he had trumped up—he would do so in a moment of time.

I had an uneasy feeling that by lunching with the grand duchess we were playing the enemy's game.

By my desire, therefore, we made our way into the town and sat for a quarter of an hour beneath the awning of a café in one of the principal streets. At the end of that time we rose and stepped into a taxi which was crawling by the side of the curb, shouting the address of our flat for such as had ears to hear; but when we had turned two corners we told the driver to take us to the bridge of St. Anne. This was an aged structure, crooked and roofed, and could not be used except for foot passengers, of whom I fully expected that we should meet very few. In fact, we met none at all and, since the Lessing strasse lay but a stone's throw away from the farther end of the bridge, I had a good hope that we had covered our tracks.

Luncheon was over and the grand duchess and I were walking in the pleasant garden under the tall trees. The countess and Hanbury were sitting upon the terrace, and George was talking lightly and making her laugh.

"What is your name?" said my lady. "Your Christian name? Mr. Hanbury calls you 'Bill,' but I do not like that."

"My names are 'Richard William,' Leonie."

"Richard," said she. "You are named for an English king."

"O, no," said I. "It's a very common name."

"I do not find it common," she said.

I folded my arms.

"I kiss the lips that said that, Leonie."

She turned a glowing face.

"They are yours, Richard."

"I know," said I. "I cannot believe it. Why do you love me, my dear?"

"No man can see himself, Richard. If you could, you would understand."

"I have a looking glass."

"Which tells you nothing," she said. "If you met yourself in the street, you would not know who it was."

The thing was too hard for me and I let it go.

She was, as ever, most smartly yet simply dressed. And, unless I am much mistaken, she was wearing the little slippers that I had cleaned so gladly the day that I fell in love.

"I am mad about you," I said uncertainly. "I have lived last night over again a thousand times."

She cupped her sweet face in her hands.

"So have I, Richard. I asked you to lunch because I—O, my darling, I had to see you again."

The blood was coming into my head and I forced my eyes away from her perilous beauty and strove with all my might to steady my voice.

"I cannot go on," I said thickly. "I cannot speak of these things and not hold you against my heart. I am sorry, but I—I have never loved any one before, and I cannot go on."

"Nor I, Richard, nor I. I have never loved any one else, and I never shall. It was always my terrible fear that I should fall in love. I used to pray to be delivered, morning and night. And now—O, my dear, what shall I do? We may be speaking together for—for almost the very last time. I cannot explain, but my part is written down and I must play it out."

"So is mine now," I muttered, and did not know my own voice. "I will play it faithfully."

"Say that you love me, Richard. Say you will always love me, whatever I have to do."

With my nails biting into my palms, I addressed the foliage above.

"I love you," I said shakily. "I dare not look at your beauty, because I love you so much. But that does not matter, because I know it so well. Your hair and your white throat and the light in your glorious eyes. From head to heel you are peerless, and I shall have eyes to see no other woman so long as I live."

"Richard, Richard!"

With the tail of my eye I could see that her hands were trembling against her cheeks and that she was pressing her temples so that the blood had run back from her finger nails.

"Hush, darling," said I. "We must not talk of these things. The good God will give us another time."

FOR all my preaching, she was the the first to have herself in hand.

"The passage," she said presently, "will make you a very hard bed."

"We can take rugs with us," said I. "Besides, I have lain in worse places and done very well."

"At least," she said, "it will not be for long. A day or two at the most. And you will be safe there, and—and I rather dread the business and I shall be very glad to know that you are so near."

"I shall be in the wardrobe," said I. "If——"

"No, no," she cried. "No, no." She caught my arm. "Whatever happens, you must not leave the passage. A stranger in the royal apartments would be shot down like a dog. You——"

Here came a step on the gravel, and we turned to see Mme. Dresden hastening over the grass.

"What is it, Marya?"

"Sully is here," said the countess.

"So soon?" breathed the grand duchess. A hand went up to her throat. Then, "Come," she said, and led the way to the house.

I was as certain as she that Sully was come to say that the end was at hand, and, to tell the truth, I was confounded, for I am not a man that can move quickly but like to be able to follow some preconceived plan. Such a plan I had made already, and I think it is here convenient to set it out.

Any change in the prince's condition was telephoned to Sully by Grimm. When the latter had reason to think that the prince was sinking, before apprising Sully he was in future to telephone to Rowley and Bell, who would be awaiting his message by day and night. Upon receipt of this call Rowley and Bell would instantly turn out the Rolls, take up the grand duchess and the countess and then Duke Paul, and bring the three to the passage as swiftly as ever they could. There Sully would meet them, for his house, it appeared, was but eight minutes' walk from the fosse, and there George and I would be ready to take them in.

The fault in this plan is as evident as it was gross. Like a fool, I had taken it for granted that the prince would live until midnight, or at least until we had taken the Salzburg train.

"I HAVE come from the palace," said Sully. "The prince is not sinking, but he is very weak. He tried to give me some directions, but the strain was too great. I went there by arrangement, your highness. As you know, I now go by arrangement three times in the day." He paused there, in evident distress. "Had I waited to be summoned, madam, I should have waited in vain. Grimm's telephone is not working. He has been unable to use it since ten o'clock."

For a moment there was dead silence. Then Hanbury spoke.

"Grimm can use another line."

"If he leaves the apartments," said Sully, "he fears that he may not get back. There are sentries everywhere."

"But he has to leave for his food."

Sully shook his head.

"No. The royal apartments are like an ordinary flat. Grimm and the four footmen sleep and eat next to the prince. They always have. A lift goes down to the kitchens. For the last three days neither Grimm nor his son have been out of the royal apartments."

"What of the others?" said I. "The other footmen, I mean?"

Sully shrugged his shoulders.

"They are untrustworthy. Grimm has reason to think that one at least was aware that the telephone was to be cut. He would dismiss them in an instant, but they are kept so busy that they cannot be spared."

The countess put in her oar, but I was trying to think and I do not know what she said.

The loss of the telephone was serious, but, once we were in the passage, one of us could act as a runner to carry the news. What was, to my mind, far more grave was that three out of five of the men who were in the holy of holies were taking their cue from Johann.

Sully was speaking.

"If we are not to be advised, madam, we stand no chance. I cannot dwell at the palace, and even if I could——"

"Are the footmen powdered?" said I.

They all stared at me.

"Yes," said Sully. "The prince always keeps his state."

"Tell me," said I, "at what hour do you go there again?"

"At 6 o'clock," said Sully.

I glanced at the watch on my wrist.

"In three and a half hours time. Can you go there before?"

"I would rather not," said Sully. "I have no doubt that my visits are reported to the Duke Johann. I do not wish him to find them irregular."

"Then must we hope," said I, "that the prince's condition will not change before 6 o'clock. At that hour give Grimm these orders. First, he is to sack the three footmen he does not trust; return them to ordinary duty or, if they have no other, send them away. This he is to do then and there. Let them change their clothes and be gone by 7 o'clock. And, when they are gone, he will go at once to the wardrobe, open the door to the passage and speak to George."

Sully put a hand to his head.

"But I have told you, Chandos, that Grimm says they cannot be spared. The apartments are spacious, and the men are on their feet from——"

"I will replace them," said I. "All three—at 7 o'clock."

THERE was an electric silence. Then I heard a sound which sent my heart into my mouth.

It was the clear, peremptory call which Duke Paul had sounded at Anger against my will—a call not meant for cities, but used to clear the way on the open road.

It was the horn of our car.

I turned to the grand duchess.

"I hear the servants," I said. "They were not told to come here, and they would never have done so without good cause. I beg that you will excuse us and please induce Baron Sully to do as I say."

She was very calm, but I saw the alarm in her eyes.

"You should have left Vigil this morning."

"O, no," said I smiling. "You won't forget Grimm's orders? At 7 o'clock."

My darling looked me full in the eyes.

"I shall forget nothing," she said.

The next instant I was gone.

I followed George out of the hall and closed the front door.

As I did so the car came to rest by the pavement beyond the gate.

Two men, standing on the pavement, were watching it curiously; then they glanced at each other and turned to the steps.

"Not a moment to lose, sir," said Rowley as though he were speaking to Bell.

As we passed through the gate——

"Excuse me, sirs," said one of the plain clothes police, "but if I may ask your indulgence——"

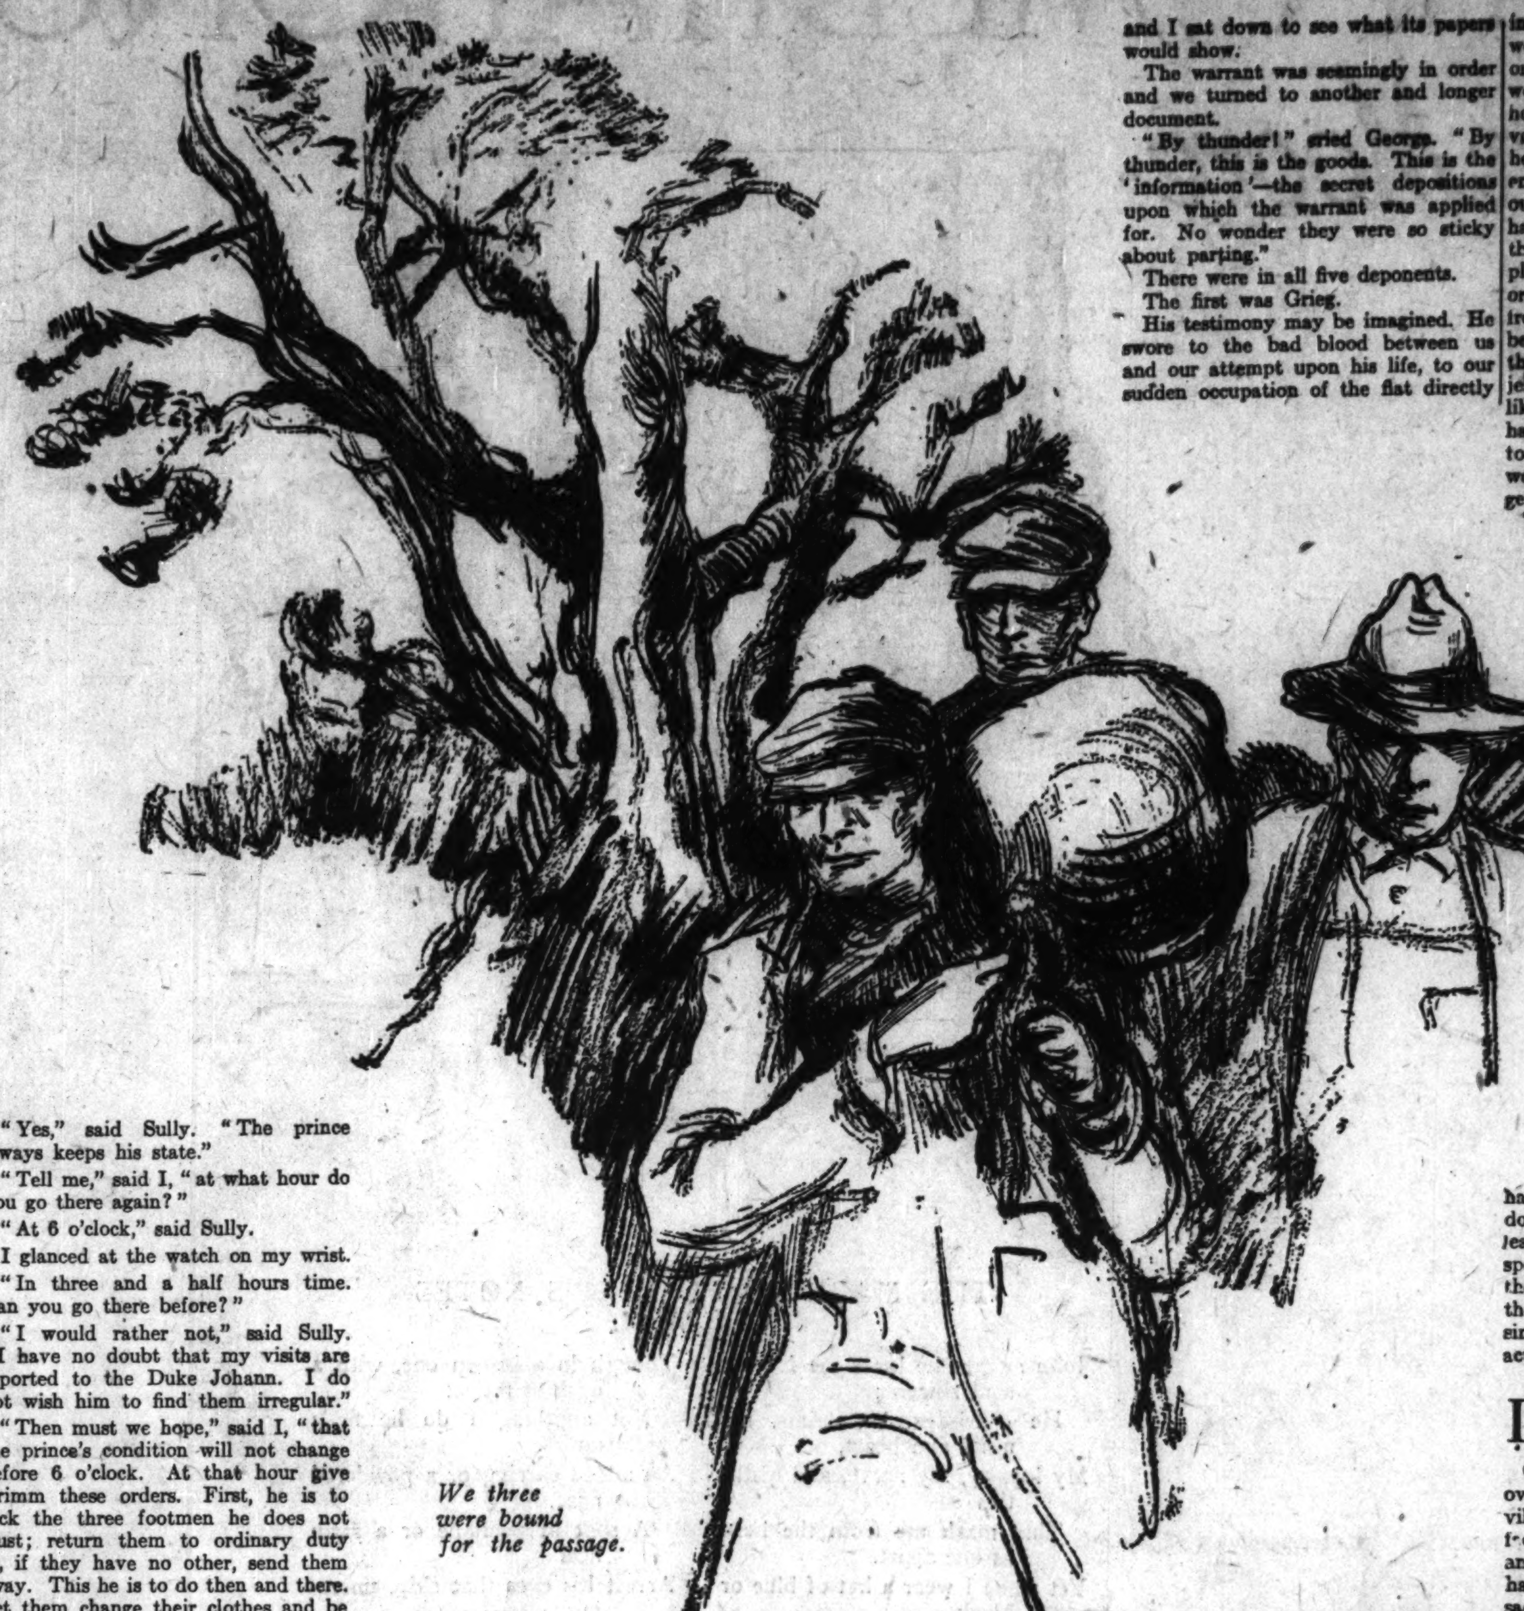
"Another time," said George.

He brushed the fellow aside and vaulted into the car.

Another car was turned violently into the quiet street.

"That's them, sir," said Rowley. "Quick!"

As I flung myself forward the two men fell upon me as dogs on a rat.



We three were bound for the passage.

There was no time to repulse them; there was no time for Rowley to come to my aid. The police car was thirty yards off; already its brakes were in action, and I saw its near door open and policemen ready to drop.

By a tremendous effort I reached the side of the car.

Rowley's arms went about me and George caught hold of my wrists.

"Let her go, Bell," he said.

There never was seen such an exit.

Gathering speed, we swept up the Lessing strasse, three men within the car and three without. I had one foot on the step and so had one of the police; his fellow had none. Their full weight was upon me and between them and George and Rowley I was like to be torn in two. Behind us came yells and whistles and the storming of gears.

As we swung round the first corner the two police tightened their grip. They were holding to me for safety and I do not know that I blame them, for we were traveling fast.

George Hanbury was speaking.

"Where are you going, Bell?"

"Into the country, sir. The town isn't safe."

"By the Austrian road?"

"Yes, sir. It's the only one I know."

"Well, turn to the left as soon as ever you can. Swing her round as sharp as you dare."

"Very good, sir."

AN instant later the great car reeled to the left and the three of us swung inboard because of the pace. As we did so Rowley lifted and George caught hold of the man whose arms were about my neck.

Why I was not broken in pieces I do not know, for the two police clung to my body as though they were drowning men. With them like leeches upon me, I was dragged, like a sack of provender, over the side of the car and even then they would not let go, but George and Rowley had fairly to tear them off me before I could move.

"Are you all right, Bill?" said George.

I was sound enough and only short of some skin, but my clothes were in a bad way, for my coat was split to glory and my shirt was hanging in tatters about my breast.

I then crawled on to the seat but, when the police would have risen, George bade them stay on the floor.

Five minutes later we were clear of the town.

For the next six miles Bell drove as hard as he could while Rowley watched our prisoners and George and I studied the map. Then, where the road was lonely, we turned to the left and set ourselves to the business of baffling pursuit. This was easy, for the country was not at all open and there were plenty of roads.

After perhaps forty minutes, high up among the mountains we found an excellent lair, where a thicket harbored a quarry which had been long disused. From the head of the quarry a man who was looking out could see the road for some distance on either side and, though such precaution seemed needless, we set Bell there as a sentry, for one so narrow escape was enough for that afternoon and I had no wish again to see my plans crumble before my eyes.

I will not dwell upon the matter, but so long as I live I shall hear the police car coming and the scream of its brakes. It was only its driver's error that saved us both. Had he turned in in front of our car we should have been trapped. Had he but run alongside the police could have boarded our car and won their match. But, as I have shown, he did neither and, as the saying is, a miss is as good as a mile.

HANBURY took out tobacco and started to fill a pipe. Then he looked at our prisoners, who were leaning disgustedly against a boulder, watching Rowley lash together their ankles as though they were to be entered for a three-legged race.

"You were asking my indulgence," said George, "and I cut you short. What was it you wanted to say?"

The two looked at one another helplessly.

"Go on," said George pleasantly. "You were only doing your duty, and we've no quarrel with you."

To point this assurance, I offered the two cigarets but, though they seemed greatly relieved and bowed their appreciation as well as they could, they were plainly reluctant to give us the information we sought.

"I think," said George, "you owe us an explanation. You did your best to arrest us and, before we leave the country, we should like to know what we've done."

The two regarded one another.

Then——

"You are leaving the country, sir?" said the one who had spoken to George.

"Well, you don't think we're going back? Tonight we shall cross the frontier and be in Salzburg by dawn."

Upon this false declaration the fellows opened their mouths.

We were to have been arrested for breaking and entering Grieg's flat.

When we asked why we were suspected, they swore that they did not know, but, after a little, admitted that I was charged with the felony and George with being accessory after the fact.

"I was out of Vigil," said I, "as your masters very well know."

Professional pride will out.

"You were there until midnight, sir, and you left the opera house at half past nine."

I stared at the speaker.

"That's perfectly true," said I. "Who told you that?"

"Do not ask any more, sir," said the other. "I am sure that you had good reason for all you did, but the warrant was all in order and, if I may say so, I think you are wise to be gone. You have given offense in high quarters and——"

"Let me see the warrant," said George.

At once both protested that the warrant had been held by their chief, who had gone to our flat to take us, because he had reason to think that we should be there.

George Hanbury fingered his chin.

"I think," said he, "that you have a duplicate. You see, your chief wasn't with you and, without a warrant——"

He nodded to Rowley, who started to search their pockets in a highly professional way.

"It is hopeless," said one. "Give it to him."

"A blue envelope passed and George and I sat down to see what its papers would show.

The warrant was seemingly in order and we turned to another and longer document.

"By thunder!" cried George. "By thunder, this is the goods. This is the 'information'—the secret depositions upon which the warrant was applied for. No wonder they were so sticky about parting."

There were in all five deponents.

The first was Grieg.

His testimony may be imagined. He swore to the bad blood between us and our attempt upon his life, to our sudden occupation of the flat directly below him and our undoubted desire to do him grave injury.

The second was Grieg's servant.

He swore that our ways were suspicious and that we kept strange hours; that on the night in question he had been out by permission from nine until twelve; that, though it was not discovered until the morning, he had no doubt that the crime had in fact been committed between those hours, for that he was a light sleeper, yet had heard no sound in the night; that George Hanbury had volunteered that he heard some movement at three, in the hope, no doubt, of diverting suspicion from us.

The third and fourth were detectives, who swore little more than they they knew us by sight and that our ways were peculiar and not at all those of tourists seeking amusement abroad.

He swore that we were desperate men and that we carried arms. He had seen us do violence and had heard us threaten Grieg. He had seen us in the stalls of the theater on Wednesday night and had particularly noticed that after the first act of "Tosca" I had gone out of the house and had not reappeared.

Such was the deposition of his highness Duke Paul of Riechtenburg.

IT is said of Henry II., king of England, that, when he saw signed against him his own son's name, John, Count of Mortain, he turned his face to the wall.

We were not thus moved and, though we were at once dumfounded and most deeply provoked, I am glad to think that the more we considered the outrage the less consideration it seemed to deserve.

At first, in our haste, we were ready to return to Vigil and lay the papers before the grand duchess herself. But presently reason prevailed and we remembered that, after all, Duke Paul was no more to us than a chess board king that we were seeking to move to his proper place.

"Speaking for myself," said George, "this entirely beastly young man can go to hell. I'm helping a pretty lady to—God save her—her heart's desire. I suppose she's in her right mind, but let that go. And if her heart's desire is to cherish a third class viper—well, we must expect to be bitten whenever we give it the chance."

It was, of course, for my sake that George took the matter so well; for, whatever may be your reason for taking up the cudgels in another's behalf, if he himself turns upon you, it is only human to wash your hands of the business and let him fare as he deserves; but George was the soul of loyalty, and, since it was my furrow he was plowing, nothing but my hesitation would have made him look back.

His parable of the viper was, I fear, much to the point, but it must be remembered that Duke Paul had little or no idea that we were doing our utmost to place him upon the throne; that does not excuse his misconduct, but as, some two hours later, we picked our way through the mountains towards the town we had left, I could not help feeling that to judge such a youth too harshly was easy enough.

The duke was evil and the blood in his veins was bad. Little wonder that in such soil honesty languished and ill weeds grew apace. I think he liked no one but himself, and I do not think he would ever have been familiar with any honest man. The grand duchess he valued, as one treasures a beautiful horse. Us he disliked of instinct. He envied our car and our servants and our freedom from worldly care. We had not courted his pleasure, and more than once we had shown him very plainly that we were not under his orders and would stand no nonsense from him. Before these whips he had been helpless as the shorn lamb before the wind. Finally, he had grown jealous. The grand duchess plainly liked us, and when at Barabbas she had been missing and I had gone off to seek her, I remember that his eyes were upon us as we came forth together to enter the car.

That in this matter of the warrant he had been Johann's catspaw I had no doubt; and, though I have never learned the truth, I fancy Duke Paul spoke freely before his servants, and if these were not faithful or did not hold their tongues, I suppose the rest was simple to a man that was ready and active behind the scenes.

IT was now near six o'clock and we were approaching Vigil from a quarter we did not know.

George and Bell and I were wearing overalls which we had bought in a village and fouled in a ditch. Our faces and hands were filthy with oil and grease, and no one. I think, would have known us but for the car. In sacks we had food enough to last us two or three days.

We three were bound for the passage—to keep our appointment with Grimm at seven o'clock. Rowley was to set us down on the skirts of the town and then withdraw to the country and lay up the car; when this was done he would return on foot and make his way to the passage as soon as he could.

A farmer we had found was willing to care for the car, and, though we were reluctant to abandon our magic carpet—for that is what she had proved—our brush with the police had, so to speak, put her in balk. She had only to be seen in Vigil to be immediately chased, and since secrecy was of the essence of the course we were trying to steer, to use her would have been madness, no matter how sore our need.

Now I was far from easy about the walk we must take to reach the fosse. For one thing, we had no map or plan of the streets and, while it is simple enough to find some prominent feature of any town, the skirts of Vigil were ample and we had no time to spare, yet dared to ask the way of no man lest such a question should bear us evil fruit; for another, it was broad daylight. Still, the engagement had been made and I feared that if we did not keep it Grimm would think we had failed him and shut the door.

My forebodings were justified.

For a full hour we wandered, afraid to loiter, afraid to show undue haste, afraid to consult together, afraid to go different ways and, when at last I glanced through an open house door to look clean through the building and see beyond it the trees of the palace gardens, I could hardly believe my eyes.

At once I told George, who was slouching along, fuming, some two or three paces ahead, and five minutes later we were all looking into the fosse.

THE fosse was a natural gorge which many years before had been partly revetted by man. To judge by the ear, water was steadily coursing down all its length, and water side bushes and plants had come to such luxuriance that at some points the walls were hidden and the fosse was so full of green that none could have told its depth without a sounding rod. As a matter of fact it was some thirty feet deep and I think it was something wider, but I cannot be sure. Upon one side ran a pleasant, quiet road with, beyond it, the wall which fenced the palace gardens from curious gaze; on the other, the backs of old houses stood up in some disarray and I think an artist would have found half a dozen pictures in the little I was able to remark.

Three bridges were spanning the fosse that I could see, all of them weatherbeaten and very elegant, with their piers thick covered with moss and lichen on all their stones. The last of the three was marked by a pretty pulpit which rose from its parapet and was meant, I suppose, for a bridgeward in days gone by and; since George had mentioned this feature, I knew that this was the bridge beneath which the passage emerged.

It had been arranged that we should each enter the fosse at a different place and make our way to the passage by the bed of the stream and, perhaps because I was the most fearful, I was the first to disappear.

As luck would have it, there were not many people in sight, but those that were there were of a dangerous kind, for they were about no business but that of strolling and staring and generally taking their ease.

I walked down the road slowly.

Now and again there were little breaks in the wall which was guarding the fosse, and from each of these a path or a rude flight of steps went down very sharp. I afterwards found that these ways led down to old troughs in which the poor women of Vigil had used to wash clothes.

There was no time to be lost; indeed, every moment I was expecting some impatient clock declare the hour, so I laid the sack I was bearing upon the wall and, in taking my seat beside it, struck it as though by accident into the fosse below.

The ruse was slight enough and, for all I know, may have been needless, but it gave me a certain courage and I started without more ado to recover my bread and cheese.

A moment later I was hastening along the bed of the busy water, while the bushes which flourished about it hid me from view.

As the clocks of Vigil were striking 7 o'clock I swung myself into the niche, and we were all three in the passage before two minutes were past.

. . . . . .

Twenty-five minutes later Rowley was fighting his way into a scarlet coat, while Grimm's son was teaching Bell to powder my hair.

Hands Artists Rave About

Whenever New York artists or photographers want an exquisite pair of hands for "close up" reproduction they call in Annette Grandin. She has hands of rare beauty that can stand "close up" reproduction because they are so delicately white and smooth.

"The secret," Miss Grandin says, "lies not in any special care, or in the use of fancy lotions, but simply in a skin bleach of my own making. I get three ounces of Orchard White at the corner druggist and mix it with the juice of two lemons. This makes a full quarter pint of a remarkable, and at the same time, perfectly harmless bleach. I rub a little into my hands—also my neck and face—every night and this keeps my skin not only clear and white, but soft and smooth."

The TRIBUNE COOK BOOK

The Crawfish Makes a Delicious Appetizer and Is an Answer to the Quest for Something Novel

All recipes have been scientifically tested by Miss Eddington with current market materials and are indorsed by her.

BY JANE EDDINGTON.

IN this day when there is a greater desire for table novelties, edible and unedible, than of yore—much greater desire and search for them—perhaps it will be worth while to exploit the crayfish or crawfish appetizer. It rather pleases me to find that when I did so years ago what I wrote then seems interesting to me now, therefore I am going to repeat much of what I wrote then about the crawfish making one of the most recherché of hors d'oeuvres. Not once in those days did I serve this appetizer to guests without their seeming greatly pleased and entertained.

Though eaten ceremoniously, and from the "bush," crawfish have also been enjoyed in most unceremonious fashions—from picnic bags or even from a heap on the grass. This "fish" is full of charm in its red and handsome state, when it looks just like a minute lobster. Because it is so highly decorative it has played a great place in cosmopolitan cookery of the past.

A Crawfish Bush.

In the old cookbooks which have colored plates, or even the black ones only, there are pictures of "a crayfish or crawfish bush." In the "Picayune Creole Cookbook" it is called "A Crawfish Bush," with the French name "Buisson d'Ecrevisse." The ingredients are 100 fine crawfish, celery tips, asparagus tips, parsley tips. The description is this: "This is a celebrated Creole hors d'oeuvre, as also a very handsome and graceful table garnish. Boil the crawfish according to recipe. Take a glass fruit or cake stand and place in the center of the table. Set a goblet upon it. Fit the goblet with celery tips and parsley tips, and hang a number of crawfish gracefully around the goblet from the rim or outer edges. Continue hanging the dish with celery, asparagus and parsley tips, and hanging the crawfish around the edges of the fruit stand, and in and out amid the greenery. The effect of the red amid the green is pretty, presenting the appearance of a beautiful bush of red and green. The crawfish are served from the bush." In another book there is a picture of a frame made for a crawfish bush.

Not every bush was made just like this and we may have a different idea today as to what is handsome and graceful, but plain boiled crawfish on a dainty plate of butter plate size without any greenery at all seem to me to have interest and charm.

A Few Commercial Facts.

In the book "Fish Cookery," by Spencer and Cobb, the latter long in government food work, there is a half page devoted to "Fresh Water Crawfish" which reads: "The crawfish or crayfish is found in many of the fresh water streams of this country, though as yet in but few states has it given rise to a commercial fishery. It is especially abundant in Oregon, Washington, Wisconsin, Missouri, and Louisiana, where it forms an important article of commerce in each. It looks like a miniature lobster minus the cutting claws. At the present time [1921] the chief markets for its sale are San Francisco, Portland, Ore.; New York City, and New Orleans.

"In the east it is used principally by hotels and restaurants for making soups and bisque of crawfish, and for garnishing fish dishes and lobster salads. On the Pacific coast, however, it is prepared and eaten in the same manner as the lobster. Many of them are packed alive in baskets and shipped to distant markets. Before cooking it should be taken in the hand and the wing, which is in the middle of the tail, torn off, which will at the same time pull out a little black intestine which is very bitter."

To Test Crawfish.

In the market crawfish are always alive, as far as my experience goes, and they should be very much alive, while to handle each one in the way it says in the above is not always done, though it is no more than preparing shrimp to cook. In buying crawfish we should try to get those exceedingly much alive, with vigorous tail and great energy, although I have found that when he is being prepared for the pot this crustacean will manifest enough objection to your dealings with him to show that he is "live," and so of worth as food.

Now is the season for the crawfish, although in such a state as Wisconsin he is said to be in season from frost to frost, and from that state he is sent out to adjoining states to market. For this reason anybody that wants to serve crawfish in a city like Chicago, where they were formerly much served, can readily order them. I have purchased them when they were put into a box like those in which live baby chickens are bought, with holes punched in it for them so that the curious crawler can breathe. He goes backward, you know, and so always delights children.

Or he may be carried home in a stout bag with breathing holes torn out. I have seen salesmen do them up in quite a tight parcel then punch holes in it with a lead pencil, but crawfish not only need air but space to live in, and even in buying them by the dozen instead of by the half bushel it is better to buy more than you need to make your service. I have rejected as many as three from a dozen sometimes because they were feeble, and then again none at all.

Preparing Crawfish.

Crawfish must be washed and even brushed with extreme thoroughness, since they bring along, from bog or mud or sand, dead grass and débris of other sorts. You must grasp the creature in handling him so that he cannot reach your fingers, because his claws are strong enough to pinch painfully. Grasp each little fellow firmly between the thumb and finger, around the middle of his neck or carapace, and hold him under running water, twisting or turning him in all directions. If you find his tail jerks violently when he is so treated there can be no question but he is vigorous.

A surer way, perhaps, to discover his vigor is to drop him on his back in a small pan of water. If he turns himself over as easily as a rolling log he will make dainty and altogether safe eating. If he cannot turn over in half a minute reject him, even if he can still crawl. After washing each one, drop into a deep pail. We emphasize the "deep" because a strong crawfish will crawl over the edge of a pan with high sides, fall a considerable distance and still be able to make a lively backward way across the kitchen floor.

We have been describing a rather fastidious treatment of this delicacy, but when we buy him at the expense he comes when bought by the dozen we should devote this care to him. When cooked as soon as caught it is another matter, but nice handling of foods is never unjustifiable.

To Boil Crawfish.

Crawfish are best if cooked in what is almost a boiling brine. The boiling liquid takes their lives instantly, unless so many are dropped in at one time to cool the liquid perceptibly. Twenty minutes is about the right cooking time, although most of the recipes we can find for this cooking do not allow that long. The direction "cook until red" is not good because they change color in a second or so after they are in the boiling liquid.

To get that indescribable excellence which makes them epicurean it is necessary to add much to the cooking liquid besides the abundant salt, or such things as a flavoring bouquet with onion, parsley, chili peppers or cayenne and sometimes a little vinegar. In New Orleans they formerly used wine or sometimes it was whisky.

How to Eat Them.

In the cook's terms the crawfish consists of a head and tail, though not zoölogically. To get out the meat the trick is to hold the crawfish in the left hand, head to left and with the right hand pull off the tail and draw out its meat at the same time. It takes a little practice to get the knack. The camper who catches his crawfish boils it in heavily salted water, then eats it in about the same primitive manner that lobster was once eaten—namely: he dips the cleared meat in vinegar or in vinegar, pepper, and salt. We always advise omitting vinegar from any appetizer.

When served alone as a hors d'œuvre a quarter of lemon is served with it often or a little container of mayonnaise dressing.

Crawfish Garnish.

If you go to Mrs. Beeton you can find recipes for boiling crawfish with the note: "This fish is frequently used for garnishing boiled turkey, boiled fowl, calf's head, turbot, and all kinds of boiled fish." She also gives recipes for potted crawfish and crawfish soup. The latter seems to be the soup the thrifty Germans serve under the name "Krebs-Suppe."

In a French book on the cooking of fish the first statement about this—in French the "ecrevisse"—is that it is employed advantageously in every sort of fish garniture. And it tells how to use it in a sauce that is used to garnish a number of fancy fish preparations. It also recommends the crawfish for croquettes. It gives five recipes for its preparation, and allows only ten or twelve minutes for the boiling of it. By the way, in some German directions it says never dump a great number of fish in the boiling liquid at one time, but put them in gradually, for humanitarian reasons.

Fancy Cooking.

In a book on how to cook shellfish there are ten ways given for cooking crawfish and most of them are quite fancy, with wine and exceptional sauces. In a collection of high class menus, which were actually those served on state occasions, one in French has for an hors d'œuvre crawfish "gourmet," which was probably first boiled, with many seasonings. In grand menus on the Atlantic and Pacific coast crawfish bisque is common, and there are other ways of introducing it into menus of fancy items.

A Frenchman, and cook, who tried many years ago to enlarge our American dietary, says of crawfish: "These are found in most of the lakes, brooks and rivers. In some places they are called river crabs or fresh water crabs. They resemble the lobster, and are often taken for young lobsters. Besides being a beautiful ornament, and much used to decorate dishes, they are excellent to eat and very light. They are dressed and served like lobsters and crabs. Fishermen are sure to find a ready market for them, though they are, as yet, very little known."

One of our latest and largest cook books gives just two lines to crawfish, saying that they are cooked like lobster. Yet in an English cooking dictionary of one hundred years ago there are sixteen recipes for cooking crawfish. This business of getting people to eat crawfish as a most delicate thing seems to have had many ups and downs.

Two Varieties.

In an English food dictionary of some fifty years back are given the two forms of the English term, the French name and then the German or "bachkrebs," and it says: "There are two species of crayfish or crawfish familiar to this country, the one diminutive, found in rivers, and the larger, caught in the sea. On the latter it is not necessary to make much comment, except perhaps to observe that the flesh is much coarser than that of the lobster, and that it is by no means a favorite in England, although it is eaten freely in France and other parts of the European continent, where it is palmed off for lobster.

"The river crayfish is the idol of the artistic cook; he uses it upon every available occasion, not always because of its quaint form and pretty color, but quite as often for the flesh of the tail, which lends itself to so many decorative purposes. In Europe and America the flesh is highly esteemed by all classes. Our British rivers unfortunately provide but few, no attempt having been made to cultivate them; in America the case is different, for some rivers there abound with them. Our deficiency is, however, made up by importations from France and Germany, basketfuls being sent over. . ."

Thirty-three recipes is what the editor of this dictionary gathered from cooking experts for the cooking of crawfish, but we can but think he was mistaken, for that day even, in their being highly esteemed in America "by all classes." And we can but wonder what the humble eaters of crawfish in the New Orleans region would say to directions like this in the account of how to boil them: "It is advisable to fold the tail and tie it around with a piece of thin string or thread, so that the shock may not cause the crayfish to injure itself or others. Death is instantaneous." I wonder who knows this for sure.

FEMERA - - By Roland Pertwee

stately gait as they hobble across the plow. They have no need for haste.

The Mayfly was up and Crutchley was having his money's worth. Plenty of time for other matters later.

It is not the habit of ephemeridæ to protect their young. That foolish, puffing parent of Femera's was less use to her than a man with a briar pipe in a summer house.

The Mayfly season is very short—pitifully so. Presently it was all over and men put up their rods and wrote labels and consulted time tables. The hatch had ended and only Femera remained—a primrose girl balanced between earth and sky. Easy prey.

Crutchley—that black crow of a man—gobbled her up. He was not the kind to ask—he grabbed. Tucked her under his wing, he did, and carried her off.

Thank heaven I was not there to witness it. I had picked up a hint from John Fleming Reid's sudden insight of himself. Something might be written in praise of flight. In each other's company Reid and I packed our traps and bolted, but before we left she, Femera, treated us both alike, which made it easier and harder.

And before we left I had a word with her, although there was little enough of hope to encourage me.

"Femera," I said, "there is one star that shines over the pathways of oblivion to which has been given the name, Exception That Proves the Rule. Nothing is inevitable, least of all a promise. It may be that your eyes will not light on that star until you stand at the altar steps, but, even so, have no fear. Turn and run and follow it."

Then I kissed her good-by, wrapped up my head in a copy of the Times, and the train divided us.

Presently John Fleming Reid said, "I only pray we may never know."

And silently I echoed that prayer, for wilful ignorance is the refuge of cowards.

BUT two years later he came to know for, having stumbled upon his address scrawled on the pages of a flybook, maliciously I wrote to him. Here is what I said:

"Dear J. F. R.: A spring morning—the first of its kind this year—took me to Kensington Gardens and directed my footsteps to Perambulator Walk. Here you may find, at this season, a practical, cheerful company of starchy nurses, crowing youngsters and all that paraphernalia of hoops, bottles and care with which outcasts like ourselves are unfamiliar.

"A lonely and isolated figure, I sat and watched the pleasant pageant of future England trundle by. Presently there approached a very unimportant looking pram, propelled by a young woman beside whom marched a young man with his arm about her waist. There was little enough in their outfit to command attention, and my eyes dwelt upon them half pityingly. Of the man I remember little save his youth and an expression of pride and happiness that was intolerable to behold. But of the girl—it was Femera, my friend, but not the Femera we had learned to love by the banks of a chalk stream. It was the mere subimago we had known, light winged and lovely, but no more than a shadow of the perfected loveliness that now passed before me.

"I did not speak to her for, in that complete world of three, of which she was the center, I doubt if a memory of me would have survived. Like a summer cloud she passed and vanished into the misty sunlight where the path ran out into trees.

"And so, old Jeremiah, there was a happy ending after all, and despite your ghoulish prognostications. Yes, I said 'your,' because it was your idea and your sinister imagination that strove to find a parallel in nature. There is no parallel in nature, unless it is a certain stupidity shared among bachelors which makes them talk and act after the fashion of fools.

"I am sending by this mail a new fly of my own creation. I call it the Femera and have proved its ability to upset the calculations of the canniest fish in the river. Its wings are of a pale primrose and——"

Marriage and the Modern Girl

by Doris Blake

Reg. U S Pat. Off.

Spokesman for Many Young Men Says It's Not the High Cost of Living That Is Keeping Them from the Altar

THAT a young man desirous of becoming a husband, householder, and respected member of his community is confronted with a far more serious girl problem than his ancestors by one or two generations, may not be news at all to young men.

It may be to the modern girl, by virtue of her independence of thought as well as her economic independence. It may not occur to her that the reason the young man doesn't suggest a honeymoon trip is that he isn't ready to adjust himself to the economically independent woman. She may be all for a fifty-fifty union, but unless he has an unusually adjustable nature the old Adam sets up a wall of resistance at thought of the other pay envelope.

E. A. Hungerford, spokesman for countless numbers of young men of marriageable age by virtue of his duties as secretary of the head bureau of the Young Men's Christian association, has some definite opinions on why marriage is postponed. And girls constitute a good round ninety per cent of them, I should say.

With unqualified frankness, he says: "The cause of late marriages in this era is the modern young woman. The men would be ready if there was a sufficient supply of the right kind of girls. There are plenty of men and there is enough money. What this nation needs is a greater quantity of quality young women."

A fairer attitude toward money matters characterizes the "quality young women." The other kind are dominated by materialistic influences. They want to start their married careers, according to Mr. Hungerford's observations, with economic resources equal to or better than their present home that their parents have been working for twenty or more years to establish.

Apropos the much lauded frankness of our young women, why, Mr. Hungerford asks, don't the girls in business and industry, competing against their future husbands, get a few practical ideas on this marriage score and talk sense—frankly? Why can't they let young men know they are willing to join economic as well as other marital forces with them in the great adventure?

Old Adage Is True.

No doubt some of the young moderns would describe Mr. Hungerford's stout conviction that two can live as cheaply as one as "quaint." Nevertheless, based on first hand observations and a great deal of study the Y secretary insists that "two cannot only live cheaper together than separately, but also happier—if they are two people of sterling qualities."

It is the woman, he repeats, who is responsible for the prejudice men have against marrying a girl who is in business and would like to continue in it for awhile after marriage. Their lack of frankness regarding the subject leaves the young man up in the air.

That the young man is in dire need of help in this matter is admitted. He is seriously in need of education along the lines of modern economic requirements. He has to learn to adjust himself to the new place in the sun now occupied by the modern woman. The girl's honesty, no doubt, our spokesman for his sex believes, would be of incalculable aid. For the average young man, it isn't an easy pill to have to swallow—the concession to women of their right to earn a part of the family income. But it is a fact that must be faced in a practical manner and with the girl's help, so much the better and easier.

Young men of marriageable age are urged strongly by Mr. Hungerford to recognize frankly this great need of adjustment to the economically independent woman. Life must be shaped to the times in which it is lived. And the times unquestionably call for practical common sense on this double family income.

Facts Must Be Faced.

"Men must concede to women the right to earn a part of the family income, if the family is to survive as an institution of society. It means, too, that women are to have more to say as to how the family income is to be spent. And since this represents the shortest route to matrimonial bliss in the second quarter of the twentieth century, for mere man to refuse to yield the point is suicidal."

Mr. Hungerford does not offer $50 a week as a minimum marrying wage. He says that an income of fifty a week is ample for daring the adventure of marriage, for paying the normal expenses of two young people with possibly another to come, for realizing a good deal of happiness. The statement is based on a study of living condition in the metropolis, which are said to be as expensive as any locality in the United States.

The average minimum cost per week of maintaining a fair American standard of living for the family of an office worker, including wife and one child, as estimated for New York in 1926 by the National [illegible] Conference Board, is $30.10, [illegible] as follows: $8.31 for shelter, $10.[illegible] food, $4.05 for clothing, and $[illegible] dries. (Industrial workers' [illegible] are similar, and the prices today [illegible] practically the same as in 1926.)

How One Couple Did It.

The fifty dollar a week income does not have to be the man's alone. If the girl earns a part of the income the man's pay can be less. In fact, if the combined incomes total $50, Mr. Hungerford believes the amount sufficient for the right sort of couple. Even without renting a room and without the $500 nest egg, they would have survived free from debt.

And what this enterprising young couple have done others can do equally well.

Mr. Hungerford is a stanch upholder of early marriage, and he flouts the argument that the cost of living is the barrier.

"It is true," he says, "that it takes $1.60 today to buy what could be bought, on the average, in 1909, for 93 cents. But the cost of living is less today than it was in 1920. It has changed very little in the last eight years. Wages, on the other hand, have increased since 1909 at a greater rate than the cost of living. The high cost of living argument is a fallacy."

To prove his point, Mr. Hungerford takes the case of a young couple well known to him, the man 22, the girl 21, who have had over a year of successful married life from an economic point of view. The man was getting $200 a month. The girl had $500 in cash at the time of their marriage. The boy had nothing saved. They lived in a suburb, and as expensive a one as is likely to be found anywhere. Their budget worked out like this: Food, $48.15 a month; shelter (second floor of an attractive two family house with four rooms, one of which they rented for $25, total rent being $60). Clothes, $19.72 a month; operating expenses, including light, heat, telephone, carfare, and miscellaneous items, $24.70. To worthy causes, $11.25; advancement, including vacation, recreation, books, magazines, medical costs, etc., were $11.15 a month. The average amount saved was $50.03 a month.

Savings were thus disposed of: Building and loan association, $10 a month; a $6,000 life insurance policy, $12 a month; savings bank account, $10; monthly payment on furniture, $15. (The girl put her $500 into furniture, the balance bought on the installment plan.) This left $3.03 a month balance in the bank checking account.

The couple saved over twenty-five per cent of their total income. In other words, Mr. Hungerford pointed out, they could have got by on $[illegible] a month. And they are a happy [illegible]

A FRIEND IN NEED

by Sally Joy Brown

When Overhauling Your Summer Things, Have a Heart, and Remember Those to Whom the Season Holds Little Joy.

I want to be the medium through which the friends in deed and the friends in need may be brought together. It may be you have some discarded article which has not outgrown its usefulness that will make some less fortunate one happy and you would gladly give it. Write to me and I shall be happy to be of service to you. Please write on one side of the paper.

When information is wanted by mail a stamped, addressed envelope should accompany the request. Please do not send article to The Tribune, but write for the address of the applicant and send direct.

SUMMER time, playtime—isn't it splendid to feel that they are here, with golf, tennis, camping, swimming, and perhaps a little vacation trip as well! You're no doubt now overhauling your sport equipment, replacing old golf clubs, tennis rackets, bathing suits, and getting yourself ready for a time of play.

But that gives you the chance to give others, too, their chance at summer happiness—people who can't have it unless you help. If you're getting new swimming suits and out-of-door clothing for the children wont' you consider the need of Mrs. N.? Her letter follows:

"I wonder if any of your readers would have any children's clothing to give. I am a widow and support four children in institutions, and I find it very hard to get clothes for them. I have three girls—9, 8, and 5. There is also a boy, 11. My girls are going to camp and have nothing to take with them, as I lost everything when I lost my home. Some little sweaters would be appreciated. MRS. L. N."

Needs Riding Habit.

Here's an unusual chance to help a courageous girl if you've outgrown and are discarding your riding habit.

"My father and mother are very poor people, and I would love to make them happy by bringing them a salary, so they could buy the clothing they need, but I can't unless I receive your help. I have a position offered for the summer months taking care of and renting horses to people. I need a riding suit and boots and can't buy them. I would appreciate it if somebody who didn't need theirs would help me out. I wear a size 18 in a suit and a size 6 in boots.
"MISS T. H."

A Bike Would Help.

And this boy has the right spirit—and can help his family a lot if you'll help him:

"I am writing to ask you if you will let your readers know through your column that I need a bicycle to get to work. Perhaps there is some one who may have one he does not use and would let me have. My father is sick and I go to work early and sell lunches from 6 until 8:30 and then hurry to school. I am 12 and would like a two-wheel bike. C. V."

Suitcases in Demand.

And suitcases—there's one of the greatest needs of all:

"I am badly in need of a suitcase, as we are going to see my husband's mother, who is 80 years old. We have saved all that we can, but I can't afford the price of one.
"MRS. J. N. H."

Then there's the great army of those who'd like to play tennis or golf, and those who ask for camping equipment, and the invalids, who'd improve rapidly if they had a wheel chair so they could get out in the summer time. And we must not forget the babies—gocarts and carriages are in demand.

This is the season for health building. Who knows what success you might make possible with a simple gift that will let some ambitious boy or girl get strength and energy building exercise this summer? Everything is acceptable and will be appreciated that will help people who cannot afford to buy these things to enjoy the out-of-doors.

Think over what you have and can give, then please write to me immediately, so the person receiving your gift can have the benefit and pleasure of a full season's use of it!

A Pitiful Case.

"Being crippled and also a victim of tuberculosis, you will see that I am unable to do any kind of work. I am in need of clothing—a suit, size 36, shirts, 15½—and anything else in this size you can get for me.
"W. S."

In this utterly hopeless condition, W. S. is unable to provide even his necessities. Won't you help him a bit by giving the clothing you are about to discard?

Mother's Request.

"I have two small children, one 2 years old, the other 14 months, and I am expecting a baby in August. Owing to unemployment we have not been able to provide anything for the expected baby and I would appreciate it so much if your readers could help me. A baby buggy, crib, and clothing for the new baby, a suit, size 38, and shoes, size 8½ for my husband, and dresses, size 50 or 52, and shoes, size 7 EE for me, are what we need.
"MRS. A. O."

Can you help this expectant mother in her preparations for the new arrival? The tiny garments your baby has outgrown and clothing which you, yourself, are discarding would help a great deal to lessen the worry of both Mrs. A. C. and her husband.

A Pet for Some One.

"I have a part fox terrier puppy I am trying to find a home for. It is 2 months old and would make a lovely pet for some one. MRS. G. S."

Are you in the market for a pet? Here's one, bright and cunning, which you may have by writing me for it. Please do not telephone.

Widow Needs Clothing.

"I wonder if any of your readers would have any cast off clothing in size 44? I am a widow and trying to rear three children and although I have been able, by economizing and saving, to clothe them I cannot buy anything for myself. MRS. C."

This unselfish mother whose thoughts are first of her children, deserves, at least, the garments you will no longer wear. If you have any in her size, still in good condition, won't you think of her when disposing of them?

A Question of Taste.

By Eleanor Jewett.

My Aunt Frances has asked me to luncheon,
She's giving a party for mother and for me.
I shall wear a party dress and a party ribbon,
But I'll have to say, "No, thank you," to cambric tea.

If the butler asks me, "Will you have a little?"
"No" is what I'll answer him, because I really won't.
I hope no one will notice it and ask me for a reason,
For some things I like to say, and some things I don't.

When my Aunt Frances asks me to luncheon
I may be most mortified at what she thinks of me;
But I just can't help it, if any should offer,
I shall have to say, "No, thank you," to the cambric tea.

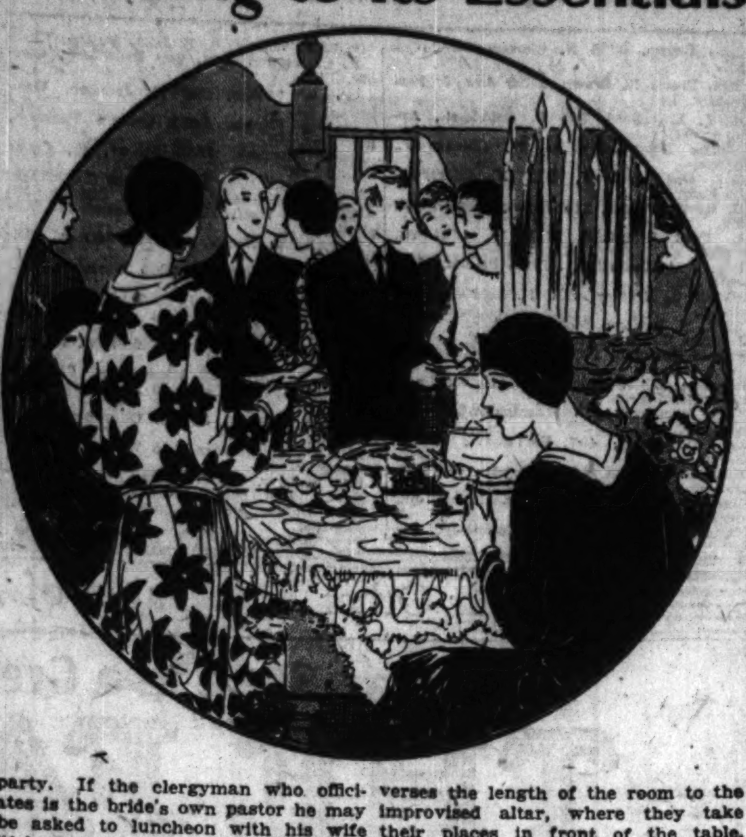
Reducing a Wedding to Its Essentials

The Happiest Occasions Are Sometimes the Simplest, and a Home Ceremony May Be Everything That Is Charming



(It is the aim of this department to serve as a practical guide in those every day problems of etiquette which baffles us all at times. Self-addressed, stamped envelopes must accompany each request for information. Send your letters to Miss Helen Bartlett, Sunday Department, Chicago Tribune.).

By Helen Bartlett.

THE most simple and for various reasons almost the most popular wedding in this era of informal social life is the small family wedding. Two young persons of about equal incomes may agree on it as the most practical from a financial standpoint. Perhaps the bride, even though young, has a divorce certificate tucked in her desk and must needs forego the fluffy accoutrements permissible only at a first wedding; perhaps a near relative of one or the other is so ill as to make a large wedding a display of irreverence, or perhaps—and this, the usual reason, we find, both bride and groom prefer the simple wedding because of a temperamental dislike for ceremony.

The young woman who 300 days of the year manages a striving business & is "office wife" to a captain of industry, sometimes just can't picture herself in the rôle of a blushing bride enveloped in tulle and satin and orange blossoms. And she can't picture herself, if she did go in for it, wearing all this for the edification of a hundred or more guests. The unpretentious and unsentimental wedding for hers, she says.

Doing Away with Crowds.

These young people whose wedding arrangements are unelaborate insist that their wedding concerns only themselves and their immediate families. They may be married either at church or home, but the party consists only of bride, groom, best man, the bride's family and the groom's family, not forgetting, of couse, the indispensable clergyman.

If they are married at chuch no music or decorations are necessary; if at home there need be no music, but the house is dressed up for the occasion with flowers in some profusion. The bride, if the wedding takes place at church, will probably wear a street dress, one which will be suitable to wear when she starts on her wedding trip, and the men will wear business suits. Bride and groom and their families, in inconspicuous but nevertheless smart every day clothes, go quietly to the church. The men place top coats and hats in a rear pew and the little group moves up the aisle casually. The guests find places in pews, the groom and best man step up to the altar, with father and the bride walking just after them. After father has given his daughter away he steps back to his place beside his wife.

When the ceremony is over every one comes quietly out again and proceeds usually to a quiet meal of some sort, perhaps luncheon at the bride's home. Here a few intimate friends and more relatives may join the party. If the clergyman who officiates is the bride's own pastor he may be asked to luncheon with his wife (if he has one), but if the party wanders into the nearest church, one with which they have no spiritual or social affiliations, this will not be necessary.

An Informal Luncheon.

The luncheon will be most informal in character. The ghastly sentimental outbursts by uncles and god parents can be dispensed with, and except for drinking the bride's health the meal will be like any other luncheon at which good friends and clan members gather.

If the family wedding of the girl's choice is to be at home the procedure is no more complicated. The room in which the ceremony is to be performed should be selected with a discriminating eye. There should be plenty of space for guests and for a casual aisle down the room for the wedding party. Besides, and most important, there should be a focal point for an imprevised chancel.

The room, we'll say, is a fairly large living room. The focal point can be nothing more ethereal than a fireplace, or a wall space on which hangs a tapestry that will provide good background. If a fireplace, it is banked with flowers. Before it, or before the hanging, is placed a console table with vases containing white flowers at either end, or perhaps tall, rather elaborate candlesticks containing thick, creamy white tapers. On the floor before it are a small rug and a kneeling cushion.

Guests are received at the door by some member of the bride's family and take their places casually in the room where the ceremony is to take place. Incidentally, at home weddings, guests always stand.

Simplicity Is the Keynote.

A few minutes before the appointed time the bride's mother slips into the room and stands chatting with the grooms' parents, well up in the front of the room. Presently the clergyman comes in, wearing his robes, followed by the groom and best man. Then the bride and her father appear.

There is no music. The bride probably wears a soft, lacy afternoon dress, as does her mother, but hers may be white or any pastel shade she fancies, and at her waist or on her shoulder she wears a pretty cluster of flowers. The little group quietly traverses the length of the room to the improvised altar, where they take their places in front of the table, facing the clergyman.

The service takes but a few moments; after it is over the clergyman slips out, under the auspices of some male member of the bride's family, and changes into street clothes, after which he comes back to join the guests.

In the meantime the bride and groom have turned round to face the room and standing just where they were married, receive the good wishes of friends. Everything is quietly gay, an air of happiness pervades the room and only a rejected suitor could fail to have a good time.

Soon groups are being subtly steered into the dining room, where they find a slightly more elaborate than usual tea, presided over by the bride's sister, her best friend, or a servant. At one end may be found tea, at the other coffee or chocolate.

A Twilight Tea.

This is a twilight tea; curtains are drawn, lighted white tapers in impressive candelabra adorn the table and the only other illumination is provided by a few soft side lights. The table is beautiful—a delight to both esthete and eater. Plates of sandwiches, hot rolls, pastries, small cakes and such delectables are to be seen. There may be a large cake which the bride herself cuts, or the wedding cake may be found in small white boxes stacked in the hall as one goes out.

According to tradition, there should be wine with which to drink the bride's health, but the times being what they are, tradition may not be upheld. In any event, this glorified tea is a glorious occasion, in a quiet way.

After tea the bride changes her gown and departs, or if she isn't leaving until late that evening, she and her new husband remain to dine quietly with the family after the guests have taken leave.

So ends a day which has been, both in theory and fact, a happy one. Because the bride and her family were sensible enough to make the wedding no more pretentious that was fitting to their quiet tastes and their means, they have, to borrow a catch phrase, taken the hospital out of hospitality and given a delightful party which, after all, is what a wedding should be.

These Charming Bridesmaids' Hats Are of Horsehair Braid in the Popular Chartreuse Shade

IN last Sunday's CHICAGO TRIBUNE there was an article on a bridal veil and gown. The hat shown today is one of the bridesmaids' hats worn at the same wedding.

There were three bridesmaids and a maid of honor. The bridesmaids' gowns and hats were in the new soft shade called chartreuse green, that attractive color that was so popular a few seasons ago, but was then called love bird green.

The dresses of the bridesmaids and maid of honor were of taffeta, bouffant style, the hem of the skirt coming to the floor in the back, the front hemline being ankle length. The maid of honor's gown was in a deeper shade of green, as was her hat.

> What is your sewing problem? Do you have trouble in following a pattern? Do you find difficulty in making a skirt hang evenly or making a sleeve that doesn't twist? If there is anything you would like to know about these or other problems of needlework, write to Clotilde, The Tribune, Chicago, inclosing a stamped, addressed envelope if a personal reply is desired.

The hats were of fine horsehair braid, the crowns close and skull fitting, while the brims were slightly mushroom in shape, measuring six inches wide. The sides and front are left wide, while the back of brim is brought up against the crown and laid in two folds or plaits coming out to both sides of the brim, across these plaits or folds.

Sew cream white gardenias as close as you can place them. Sometimes six will do and again it will take eight or nine to fill in the space. It is always a wise plan to sew a frame or shirring wire the color of the hat in the facing, as this keeps the wide brim from getting floppy. Sew this wire two inches in from the outer edge of the hat, use white wire and paint it with a dye the color desired.

In all the different wedding outfits the smart idea is to have the gowns all the same style and color. Also, the hats are made and trimmed alike, but the maid of honor is always in a deeper shade. Deep violet shading down to orchid is seen, deep Indian orange shading down to jonquil yellow is also effective.

A word about the bouquet. The bride's bouquet at this wedding was a small colonial one of gardenias and orange blossoms, the stems and buds of the orange blossoms falling into a shower. The bouquet carried by the maid of honor was of large yellow roses. The bridesmaids' bouquets were a smaller rose in pink with a mixture of blue delphinium. This latter flower belongs to the larkspur family.

If one wishes to economize on the bridal bouquet, a colonial one of sweet peas with a mixture of lilies of the valley works up most attractively.

What's in Your Name?

Numerology is a science of extremely ancient origin, coming down through Greek, Chinese, and Jewish sources. Pythagoras made use of it. According to it, each letter in the alphabet has a number, each number a special meaning. A person's character, talents, and history can be read from his original name and birthdate. One's name should be harmonious to one's birthdate. If not, it should be changed to bring about better self-expression.

Numerology is based on the theory of the effect upon the owner that a chord of music would, freeing and stimulating. If in another vibration than the person, whose type of vibration is shown by the birthdate, then hearing his name called constantly is like hearing a discord—one may become used to it so that it is not felt consciously; but it has a jarring, constricting effect on the owner's nerves just the same. In such a case the name—the first name—should be changed to something in the right rate. This has a beneficent effect upon the person.

If your first name begins with one of the letters of the alphabet whose numerological significance is analyzed below you will possess the qualities revealed for that letter. If that letter appears anywhere in your first or middle name these characteristics will be yours, in some degree, their strength varying with the distance of the letter from the beginning of the name and, of course, modified by certain other characteristics in the name.

Does your first name or that of any of your friends commence with the letter A? If so, the following traits are descriptive of you or him or her:

Creative power, energy, and originality, with some inventive ability. On the whole a happy disposition, simplicity, lack of affection. The qualities of leadership and pioneering; the choice of the field of these, whether it be in that of ideas, action, or the emotional or art world, depending upon other letters in the name.

The owner of such a name is apt to live in unsettled conditions, due to his liking to push out into new ventures. He likes glory, does not always wait to finish what he has commenced, or if he does finish does not always succeed as well in so doing. The possessor of such a name prefers to work with some one, though he must always lead or direct at the same time. Is witty and critical. If the spiritual side is at all developed, he or she has a very deep insight into this side of life. If a rather negative person the owner of the name is apt to be inflicted with a large amount of jealousy. He must be careful at times, when very much interested in achieving something, of using too much force and so defeating the very end pursued. When angry he becomes haughty. He should be out of doors a good deal, as the lungs are sometimes easily affected.

If the first name pivots on the letter A the qualities described above are almost as strong in the person as if the letter were the first one. If an A is found anywhere in the first or middle name the characteristics are present to some degree in the person, their strength decreasing as the letter is found further and further from the beginning of the first name.

B Indicates Spirituality.

If your name, or that of any of your friends, commences with a B, these traits are yours or his or hers. See if this analysis helps you at all to understand yourself or them better:

You are very inventive—especially in a situation or difficulty are you able to find some way out. You are maternal and spiritually minded. Great sensitiveness and a liking to stay in one place is characteristic of you—though you may like travel also, this depending on other factors in your name—as is gentleness and quick attractions. You are interested in the opposite sex and apt to fall in love easily—so far as you will let yourself. A mediator by nature, hating strife, but willing to fight valiantly and fiercely for others. Your manner is agreeable and gallant, your brain a quick one, and your eye very accurate about any deviation from line.

High ideals belong to you and you are sometimes a dreamer. You like to follow rather than lead, and are not very talkative—can convey much to people without speech. You may sometimes fall into conceit. The adjusting of difficulties and diplomatic ways are particularly your forte. And the tendency to take every one under your wing.

C Means Wide Vision.

Does your first name, or the first name of any one of your friends, commence with the letter C?

If so, the one to whom such a name belongs has wide vision, sees over large spaces mentally, and sometimes exaggerates. He is a good mimic, and something of an actor. He has usually a pleasant voice, either tenor or soprano, depending, of course, on whether man or woman. He should take care of his throat, however — it tires easily or is easily affected. Much energy is his—he often overdoes and so wastes it, however.

He possesses a real love for humanity, and is very helpful spiritually to his friends.

His difficulty lies in the fact that he scatters his forces too much. It is hard for him to keep money—everything, in fact—money, ideas, feelings—pour into him and out again almost immediately. He will make many sacrifices during his life.

He is discriminating, and anything that interests him he likes to investigate thoroughly. Often he is critical and analytical to a disadvantage. Is sometimes very discontented and then tears down the very thing he has perhaps with much difficulty built up. It is hard to convince him in matters. He has a likable manner, and gets on well with children.

D Suggests Discrimination.

Does your first name, or that of any of your friends, commence with the letter D?

Then you are both social and domestic, discriminating, keen, and discerning. You have especially practical discrimination. You definitely need praise and encouragement. Are usually talented and can paint or model to some extent, though you may not be aware of these talents. There is a good intellect and much tenacity in love affairs. You need urging to get started, and you feel disappointments keenly. You should eat often and only a little at a time—always something before going to bed. You can deal successfully with large corporations, and have a gift for handling real estate, farms, any kind of ground. You enjoy investing and saving. Are very industrious. Travel by water has an especial appeal to you.

At times you may be too blunt, and are sometimes given to opposing things and so standing in your own light. Have a strong degree of temper. This will be modified—in its control at least—by other factors in your name.

E for Impulsiveness.

Does your first name commence with the letter E? Does the name of any of your friends? See if the following qualities do not fit you, or him, or her:

Are you not versatile in mind, and especially good at anything pertaining to words? Do you not learn easily anything your interest centers itself upon? Do you not believe in strict justice and fairness? You will also find yourself, or him, or her, quick, impulsive, nervous, energetic, hopeful, and charitable. Many E's in a name show a changeable disposition and the habit of living or acting by impulse.

You are apt to be troubled by a sluggish liver. Your temperament is a nervous one, but you appear cool, especially in emergencies. And you enjoy the latter.

A strong love of beauty is in you, and an inclination to exaggerate, as in those whose names commence with the letter C. Executive ability is very strong, and the ability to doctor and nurse others. You simply cannot be driven to do anything, but are strongly persuaded by sympathy. Both art and science interest you.

To be successful you must cultivate firmness in everything.

With many E's, or even several, in your name you are apt to be overgenerous or overkind. This may be a real weakness.

F Connotes Imagination.

Is F the first letter of your first name? Is it the first letter of the name of any of your friends? See if the following characteristics are not descriptive of him or her or you:

A dislike of loud or sudden noises. An inclination to be proud spirited, and yet in need of praise. An artistic nature, and love of luxury. A need for a real home. Brilliant imagination, and much dislike of criticism.

You will find yourself or your friend hard to discipline. And you are very firm in your opinions. It is almost impossible for you to take advice.

You are apt to be lucky, and you like to speculate. You love harmony, and you cannot live in confusion and at the same time succeed in what you are doing. In love you are quite successful, and in mining of any sort. You should be careful of your heart, and of your hearing. Excitement or physical strain is definitely bad for you. Your voice is usually a baritone or a contralto, according to your sex, of course.

Beware of being oversensitive. Perseverance is characteristic of you—do not let it become stubbornness, however.

G Is Eccentric.

Is G the first letter of your first name? Or that of any of your friends?

Then you are somewhat eccentric. You have great patience however, in carrying out any work you undertake. You are not apt to become wealthy, for you give more than you receive. You feel you must pay in full for everything of any kind that is given you, and if possible you overpay. You are very philosophical, and have the strongest determination to overcome obstacles. Can go in either direction—very high or very low. A musical education should be given you, or you should acquire one—an education in all the fine arts, in fact.

You recuperative powers are excellent, and you are pretty certain to live to a very good age.

It is your instinct to always conceal any emotion that is deeply felt. This makes you reserved, though you will seem jolly and perhaps frank. And you have some gift for handling crowds, for the theater, and for politics. You can develop very unusual mental power if you will.

Be careful to live as naturally as possible, obeying the natural laws of health in eating and exercising.

Carelessness.

"Dear Miss Blake: My girl friend broke two appointments with me in one week. Should I be angry at her?
"NEVA."

We may overlook one disappointment, but when it occurs a second time it shows carelessness or unreliability.

Color and Gayety for the Summer Home

Utility, Comfort and Restful Beauty Can Be Achieved Without An Extravagant Expenditure

By WillElla de Campi

AFTER a strenuous winter spent in the city, it is with great relief and happiness that we turn our thoughts to the furnishing and decorating of summer homes, where our requirements may be satisfied in the manner which we most desire. Actual "camping out" is enjoyed by comparatively few people. Most of us seek relaxation which has a more comfortable and more beautiful environment than a mere tent, and we attain, if possible, a little house wherein we may carry out our ideas of gay decorations and carefree days.

Many of us, who are obliged to remain in large cities throughout the summer, find it convenient to have a "week-end house" to which we may escape on Saturdays and Sundays. But whether we expect to spend the entire summer, or merely a few days at a time, we plan to have our little country houses charmingly informal. We manage usually to dispense with servants (for we all know the difficulties of inducing them to leave their city life and resort to simplicity in order to have as much free time as possible for rest and play).

Utility holds an important place in the scheme of things for small country houses. There should be no unnecessary rooms or furnishings. Color and gayety are of almost equal importance. And these three qualities, combined with comfort, bring the most satisfactory results in summer homes—results which are bound to express a very definite and greatly-to-be-appreciated beauty.

The desired effect of restful beauty does not necessarily mean large expenditure. There are many beautifully patterned and colored fabrics to be used for hangings and covers which may be bought at surprisingly low cost. And department stores are full of well made, well designed, inexpensive furniture which needs only a coat of paint to transform it into pleasing ensembles for summer. Equally appropriate for furnishing the small summer house are reproductions of American colonial and French provincial furniture which may be used in conjunction with gay materials and colorful rugs. Wicker, reed, etc., are always suitable, of course.

Today's first illustration shows part of a delightful living room. It is only a small room, measuring thirteen feet by thirteen feet, as shown in the floor plan, figure 2. A group of windows at one side of the room looks out over the water where dashing speed boats, fairylike sail boats and mysterious looking ships, with twinkling lights in the evening, pass in review every day. Because of this lovely view, glass curtains are dispensed with. There are long draperies at each end of the group made of French chintz with a luscious conception of an old English floral pattern on a cool mauve ground. This material costs only 69 cents a yard and may be had with a background of blue, green or parchment, instead of the mauve used here. The same chintz covers a large comfortable sofa, which is placed in front of the windows. Small tables at each end hold turquoise pottery lamps. Their parchment shades are banded in turquoise and decorated with a floral border at the bottom.

In the wall opposite the window group there is an open fireplace, a necessary feature in a summer home, for evenings and early mornings in the country are usually quite cool. Book shelves are built in at each side. Comfortable chairs are placed at each side of the hearth. One is of stick reed, enameled in French gray and turquoise. Its boxed cushions are upholstered in blue and mauve plaid linen. The other is a simple Coxwell, covered in chintz to match the draperies. Each chair is supplemented by an inexpensive wrought iron reading lamp with parchment shade and by a small stand for smoking accessories.

Against the wall behind one chair is a console table, painted leaf green, which holds current magazines and papers. In the center of the opposite wall space is a secretary desk with a radio in its upper section. This piece is painted leaf green, as is the woodwork. The walls are French gray. On the floor, which is painted deep purple, there is a woven rush rug, imported from Japan. This is oval, bordered in green and black, is of heavy, durable quality and costs only $25.

Adjoining the living room is a small dining room, which is hardly more than an alcove. Here, too, the walls are French gray and the floor deep purple. Woodwork is black with a line of jade green.

It is a pleasant idea, in a country house dining room, to have an oblong table placed against the window sill instead of in the center of the room. Almost invariably, on entering a tearoom or restaurant, we seek a table by the window as first choice. There is no reason why we should not have this same enjoyment in our own homes. Where the windows give upon an entrancing view like this one such a placement is particularly desirable, because then, in addition to enjoying a good meal, we may at the same time be entertained by an interesting and ever-changing scene. In event of extra guests the table may be moved out from the window so that it can accommodate two more chairs, which are placed at each side of the door leading into the kitchen when not in use.

Furniture in this room is painted black with jade green trims. At each end of the group of windows there are sill length curtains of plain mauve linen, finished with a narrow binding of jade green. The table cloths and napkins used here are of black and white checked linen, which makes a striking background for jade green china with a fine black edge.

Red, white and blue is the color scheme employed in the main bedroom! That may sound rather startling, but in reality the room has a delightfully cool, restful atmosphere because the colors are not used in their strongest force. Walls are painted a creamy white and the woodwork is French blue. A chest of drawers with mirror hanging above, night stand and twin beds are painted to match the woodwork.

At the windows there are cream-colored handkerchief linen glass curtains which may be drawn back. Floor length draperies show a pattern reproduced from an old toile de Jouy, in soft raspberry red on a cream ground. This material is used for bed covers, too, boxed to fit and finished with a narrow fringe in cream and red. The material costs 69 cents a yard.

A chaise longue in one corner of the room is done in raspberry red rep, piped with French blue, and there are extra cushions of the toile and of plain blue rep piped with red. Lamp shades of cream colored parchment are banded in red and blue. There are deep blue wool chenille rugs on the floor.

Because it is intended for fleeting friends and is not lived in by one person for any length of time, the country house guest room may be even brighter and gayer than any other room. Fascinating notes of startling color help to create a strong "first impression" by which a guest is sure to remember the visit pleasantly, to the gratification of her hostess. In the charming little guest room, a portion of which is shown in figure 3, a color scheme of magenta, blue and lemon yellow is used. Walls are painted pale blue, and the ceiling, done to match, is decorated with a few gold stars. The furniture is walnut. Bed covers are of magenta organdy trimmed with ruffles finished with a narrow binding of lemon yellow. Curtains at the windows match these bed covers, and are caught back just above the sill. There are roller shades of glazed chintz, with small flowers in yellow, blue and magenta, on an eggplant colored ground.

Placed before one of the double windows, so that there is plenty of light for dressing, is the cleverly improvised dressing table illustrated. It is made of two little commodes, connected by means of a plate glass shelf. Blue glass lamps have lemon yellow plaited book linen shades. The little bench is upholstered in magenta rep. A novel idea for a standing mirror is shown. A large picture frame of sapphire blue leather, decorated with gold, is fitted with a mirror and placed in the center of the glass shelf.

Pet Economies

Tell us about your pet economy or an odd economy of some one you know and we'll pay you $1 if we print your letter. Address Economy, Sunday Tribune.

It Didn't Save.

I had a neighbor whose "Pet Economy" lasted fifteen years, during which time she thought she saved $30 but eventually she found that it did not pay.

Every Friday as soon as the mail carrier delivered our town paper, she would call for it and not return it until every member of her family had read it. Often we never saw it again.

A few weeks ago during the slippery weather my usual Friday caller arrived on time, but on her return home she slipped and fell and was under a doctor's care for two weeks. One day when I called on her I noticed a copy of the paper on a chair beside her bed, and she having noticed my surprised look said: "My husband subscribed for the paper, as he knows how much we enjoy it."

Prize Winners in the Game of State Capitals

TODAY THE TRIBUNE presents the second prize winner, who receives $500, and 221 other winners in the "Game of State Capitals," for which prizes totaling $10,000 will be distributed among 673 contestants.

For sixteen weeks THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE printed a series of three pictures, each a puzzle illustrating the name of some state capital. Simple rules of the game required only that the contestant clip the pictures, identify the capitals, and write a fifty word letter naming his or her favorite state and giving the reasons for choice. Accuracy first, then neatness were the prime factors considered in selecting the winners.

The simplicity of the game, its educational value and opportunity afforded for ingenious and artistic arrangement of the pictures drew many thousands of entries. These represented every state of the Union, Canada, Mexico and distant foreign lands. Myriad entries and the skill displayed in thousands of them made the task of the judges a colossal job.

Heading the second group of prize winners, which is announced today, is John Whyte, 903 Park avenue, Beloit, Wis., who wins the second prize of $500. The $250 prizes announced today go to August F. Ewert, 106 Van Buren street, Dundee, Ill., and Mrs. Sadie Nilsen, 603 East Lake street, Minneapolis, Minn. Three winners of $100 prizes, seven $50 prize winners, and other lucky entrants complete a total of 222 awards announced today.

Sore, Aching Feet

Tender feet—tired, aching, burning and swollen feet! The minute you put them into a "Tiz" bath you can feel the pain being drawn out and glorious comfort being restored.

"Tiz" draws out the poisons and acids that cause your feet to ache, swell and burn. It also takes the soreness out of corns, calluses and bunions. Get a box of "Tiz" at any drug or department store and have real foot comfort at last. Costs only a few cents.

Bathe Them in "TIZ"

All Outdoors Is Calling; Where Are You Going This Summer?

MOUNTAINS, WOODS, AND WATERS SING THEIR ANNUAL SIREN SONG OF REST AND RECREATION

LOOK OUT, FISH! ANGLERS' ARMY DIGS ITS WORMS

8,000,000 Soon Will Hit the Trail.

BY BOB BECKER.

When Izaak Walton, "the common father of all anglers," published his "Compleat Angler" in the year 1653 little did he dream that in the summer of 1929 upwards of 8,000,000 fishermen of all ages and all degrees of servitude would attempt to fool the fish population of the United States and Canada. If old Izaak Walton could have foreseen this development of his pet hobby he probably would have written a dozen books on fishing instead of his one.

Yes, sir, as soon as summer comes the rod an line army, which does considerable hibernating during the winter months, is up and 'at' 'em, and then the finny tribes of lakes, streams, millponds, and brooks are in for a battle. Eight million or more fishermen can't be wrong. In fact, they are usually "right" in their choice of bait or lures, and then comes the fun, because the fisherman gets a thrill, complete diversion and absolute enjoyment out of the uncertainty of fishing as well as the fight which a game fish gives him.

A Cosmopolitan Sport.

Of late the list of converts to the gentle art of angling has shown that this sport is a cosmopolitan one. Included in the list you'll find every kind of a "fish hunter," from the comfortable cane pole perch and bluegill angler to the aristocratic ultra-purist fly fisherman.

Unconsciously leading this army of rod and line enthusiasts is President Hoover, who is an ardent disciple of Izaak Walton. The President will leave his desk many weeks this summer in order to try his hand at fooling the trout.

Former President Coolidge also was a "fishing President." He was smitten by fishing fever, spent hours learning to fly cast for trout, and apparently never will get over the desire or the thrill of a fighting trout on the end of a line.

North Woods a Magnet.

But glancing at the rank and file of the millions of Waltonians in the United States, it is apparent that you don't have to be President to enjoy fishing.

That great trio of fish growing states—Michigan, Wisconsin, and Minnesota—all unusually favored because they have within their boundaries literally thousands of lakes, rivers, and large and small trout streams, annually play host to crowds of fishermen who seek the north woods for black bass, pickerel, walleyed pike, trout, pan fishes, and the famous muskellunge. Illinois fishermen and vacationists predominate around the waters of these states. Closer to Chicago is the northern Illinois lake region, which also is a magnet to the fishing vacationist.

Muskie Lures 'Em to Wisconsin.

In Wisconsin the muskie is [for many hard working fishermen] the big show. Fishing parties come from as far south as the gulf, as well as from the east and west to take on the leaping, tackle smashing muskie, and comfortable lodges, cabins in the woods, and summer camps are available in the lake regions to take care of these visitors. Many of these family fishing parties take golf clubs along with their fishing tackle, because the day of the golfing fishermen has arrived. When the fish won't bite these disciples of Izaak Walton leave their fishing boats, pick up their clubs and turn to the old Scotch game for consolation.

Up in Ontario, Quebec, and other Canadian provinces with vast stretches of wilderness you'll find the canoeing and camping fisherman whose battle cry is: "We want the forest primeval and the rough stuff."

Land of Hard Boiled Fish.

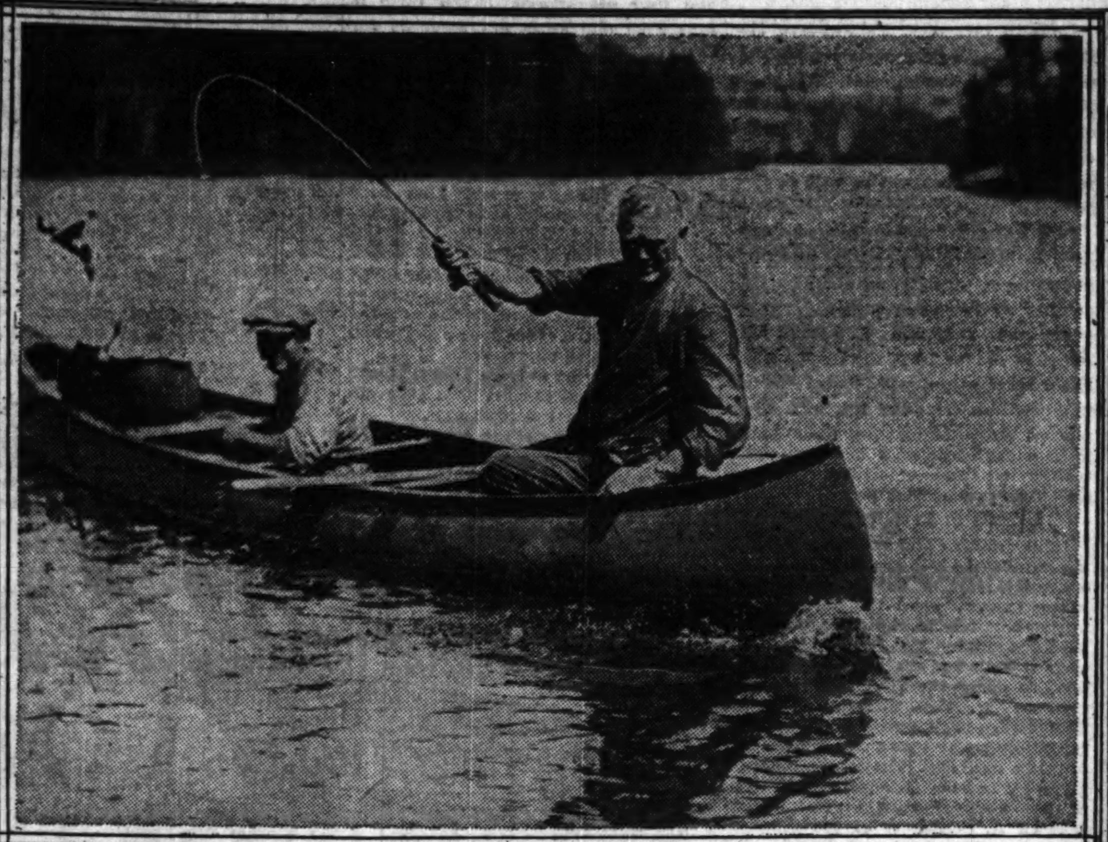
They take grub, duffel, and canoe and then penetrate the most isolated lake and river areas where the waters are full of unsophisticated fish so ferocious (if you believe the stories of these explorers) that they all but chew the bottom out of an ordinary canoe. Naturally, these dyed in the wool fishermen are in a separate class, whose badge is the bewhiskered chin, because these boys like to rough it, portage canoes, let their beards grow, and cook over open fires.

It's a growing "class," too. We know of one section along the Canadian-American boundary which in one summer handled close to 2,000 of these Waltonians, who paddled far into the "bush" in order to fish lonely, isolated lakes and streams.

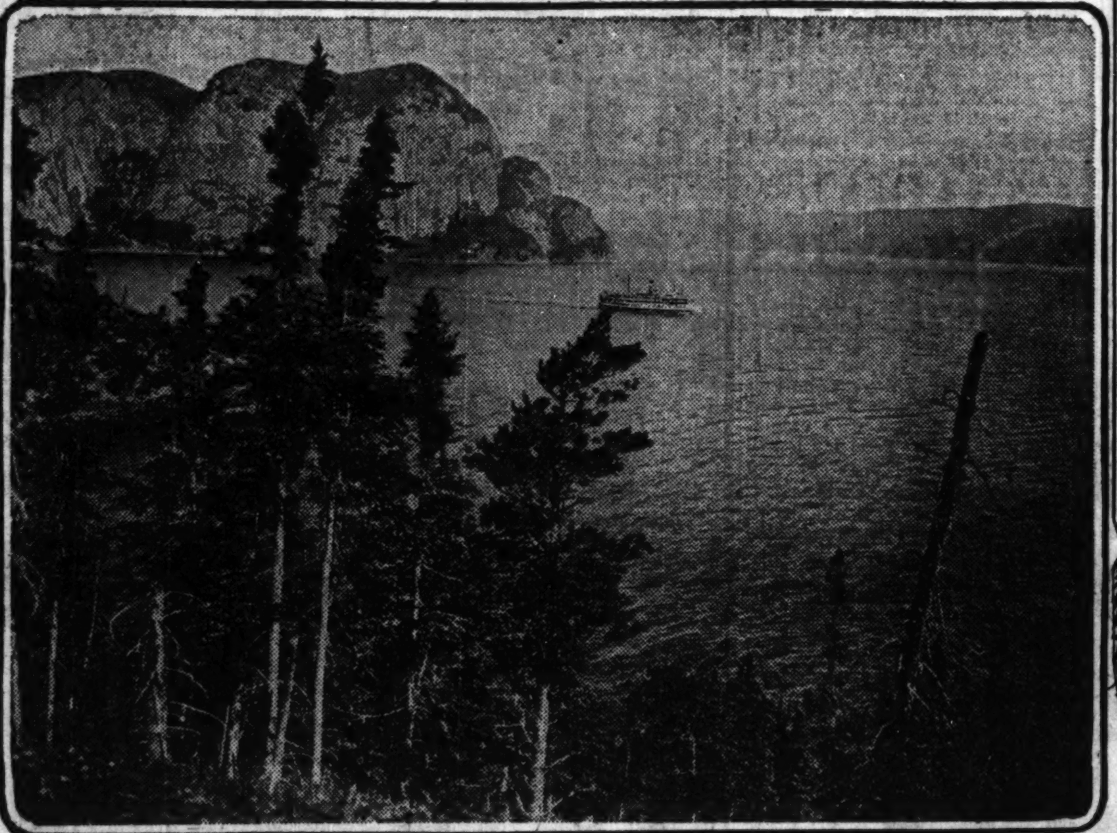
Thousands Go West for Trout.

In the last few years thousands of fishermen have stampeded into the west to stage a few trout rodeos. The land of beautiful scenery, mountains, valleys, dude ranches, and horseback riding is also the native home of many of our trout, and the devotees of the rod and line haven't been slow to take over much of the west for their sport.

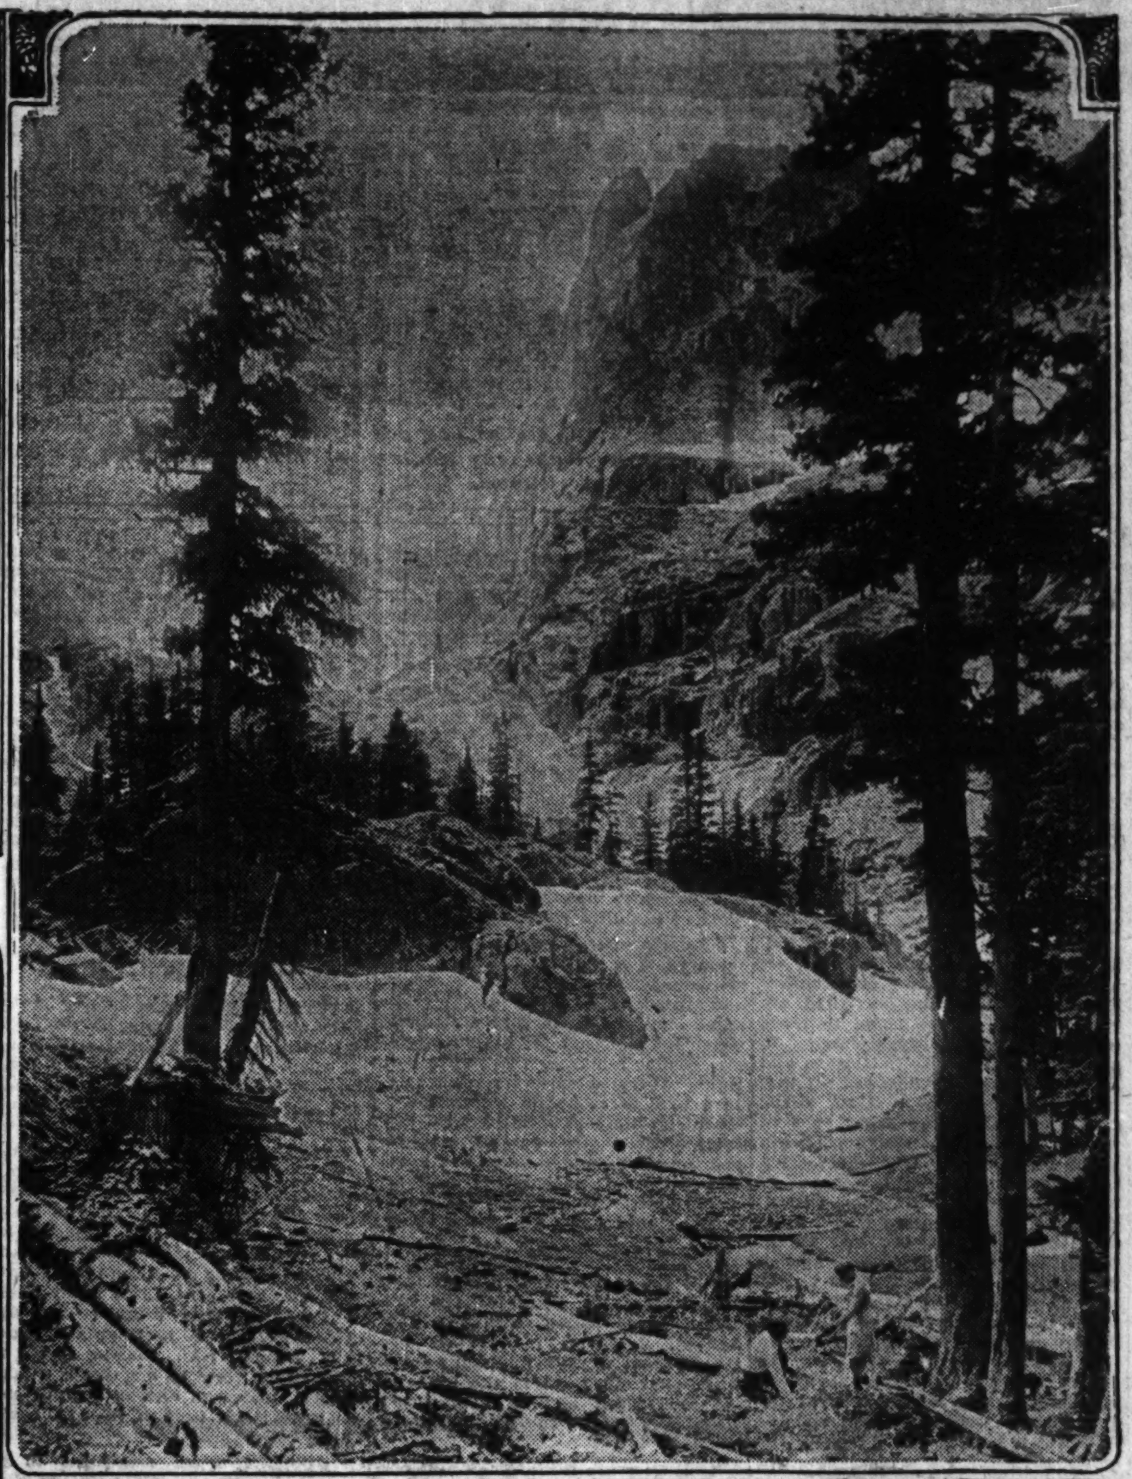
These vacationists pick their spots in and around the national parks, in the Tetons, the Big Horn mountains, and other ranges and valleys of the Rockies, and many a husky trout gets into the frying pans of these vacationing fishermen. How many nobody knows. But, irrespective of statistics, it is a known fact that after trains and automobiles unload hundreds of fishermen take to horses in order to reach distant streams which are alive with rainbow, brook, cutthroat, and Dolly Varden trout.



HOW TO KEEP FROM GROWING OLD—An arched rod and water splashing in the air tell the story of the scrap to land a muskalonge. The scene of this battle is Lake of the Woods, Canada.



A FRENCH-CANADIAN FJORD—Cape Trinity on the Saguenay river in Quebec reveals the grandeur of the rugged Laurentians.



…… where the pines, austere and tall,
Sing in the wind that sweeps across the West.

Far trails await me, valleys vast and still,
Vistas undreamed-of, canon-guarded streams,
Lowland and range, fair meadow, flower-girt hill,
Forests enchanted, filled with magic dreams.
—From "Make Me No Grave," by Henry Herbert Knibbs.

Wild flowers bloom above the snow along the Odessa Lake trail in Rocky Mountain National park.

A PORTAGE IN TROUTLAND—Two seekers after speckled beauty carry their canoe across a small bridge on the Pine river east of Three Lakes, Wisconsin, where the government is establishing a new national forest.

Automobile 'Roughing It' Days Over; Millions to Go on Tour

BY PUTNEY HAIGHT.

The summer of 1929 will see 44,000,000 American motorists on the road for vacations and shorter holidays. At least this is the estimate of the American Automobile association, a parent organization to some 1,100 motor clubs of the country. The association's estimate of 40,000,000 last summer was checked during the season and found to be conservative. This year there are more cars, more roads, and more tourist accommodations. An increase in the vacation movement, therefore, is a reasonable expectation.

Where do tourists come from, where do they go? What inspires such a staggering volume of vacation traffic? How do these tourists live on the road and what does it cost to journey? Twenty years ago it was a distinction to be among the southerners who migrated north in summer or the northerners who migrated south in winter, or who went from Atlantic seaboard cities to the ocean beaches or from the midwest to the Pacific coast. Today millions are doing it.

Automobile a Gypsy Maker.

The automobile is responsible for this tremendous intra-American running about. It has developed a nation of part time gypsies—vast hordes of adventurers who pour out upon the country's highways for short or long outings, units of which penetrate into the most remote and obscure regions or who swarm to park areas, strange cities, wondrous scenes of natural beauty, or man made attractions.

They come from the farm and the factory, from the cottonfields and northern pineries, from the great cities and the diminutive hamlets—from just everywhere. Their paths cross as they travel to the mountains, the plains, the forests, the seashores, and the inland lakes.

In the development of this great confusion of counter and cross-counter traffic, time has changed the traveling conditions. A decade ago the motor travelers were for the most part subjected to what is known as "roughing it." Today the motorist travels just as he likes—in luxury, in convenience, or as a free camper.

Hotels and Camps Spring Up.

Hundreds of luxurious hotels have sprung up to meet the demand. Hundreds of thousands of dwellings have been transformed into "tourist houses." Thousands of permanent overnight camps have been established. The roadsides are crowded with untold numbers of refreshment establishments. Certainly the bodily comforts are more completely at hand on motor routes today than they were on the railroad routes two decades ago.

It is because of this vast growth of roadside accommodations for travelers that the number of travelers is increasing so rapidly. It is reasonable to believe that as long as the accommodations improve the number of tourists will increase.

From all indications fully one-third of the population of the United States, as well as a good percentage of Canadians, will have been abroad in the land in automobiles before the last day of September, and between the first of July and the middle of September 30,000,000 tourists will be busily at it.

Ride Down Sectional Barriers.

The great rush has been characterized in the past by an irresistible push outward to the seacoasts and to the northern forests by those who dwell in the interior of the country, and a tremendous push inward to the inland lakes, river country, and mountains by those who dwell on the outer fringes of the continent.

The summer holiday season becomes one great interchange of travel. State boundaries mean nothing to a motorist; sectional barriers melt away and natural barriers flatten out under the magic of gasoline and rubber. The "daown east Yankee" pals with the Georgia "cracker" and the eastern dandy fraternizes with the cowboy. Gasoline and rubber, as levelers of humanity, need not bow too low to death.

All this travel has produced a startling and almost incredible intimacy between the populations of widely separated regions, with the result that a new national consciousness exists.

Tolerance Gains Apace.

It is developing tolerance and understanding at a rate hitherto uncomprehended. It has utterly destroyed the significance of such terms as "poh whites" and "damned Yanks" in regions where once these items helped to fan sectional hatreds.

Never before has the opportunity for comfort and convenience in outdoor travel approached that in store for motorists this year. Today the tourists' camps have as much to offer (and at a lower price) as the better hotels provided ten years ago. The accommodations of these establishments are more nearly fitted to the requirements than were the tavern entertainments of those days.

HARK, DISCIPLES OF WALTON! THE MASTER SPEAKS

"And now I shall show you how to bait your hook with a worm so as shall prevent you from much trouble, and the loss of many a hook, too, when you fish for a trout with a running line.

"Suppose it to be a big lob-worm: put your hook into him somewhat above the middle, and out again a little below the middle: having so done, draw your worm above the arming of the book; but not that, at the entering of your hook, it must not be at the head end of the worm, but at the tail end of him, that the point of your hook may come out toward the head end; and having drawn him above the arming of your hook, then put the point of your hook again into the very head of the worm till it come near to the place where the point of the hook first came out, and then draw back that part of the worm that was above the shank or arming of your hook, and so fish with it."—Izaak Walton.

Rapid City Will Initiate "Trout Day" on July 4

Rapid City, S. D., where President Coolidge had his executive offices during the summer of 1926, is to stage its first annual trout day on July 4, under the auspices of Elks lodge No. 1,187. There will be a big commercial district parade and a trout fry.

HOOVER HELPS SAVE REDWOODS FROM WOODMAN

President Hoover is an out-of-doors man and a fisherman. He loves the great forests of Oregon and the Pacific northwest, the redwood groves that cling to the coast range in northern California, the remote canyons and lakes.

In older fishing days he and Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur used to sit on a log in front of their fishing shack on the upper Klamath river, a place to be found only on horseback or afoot over a narrow mountain trail. They would talk over the problems of the west, the way to save the forest and the meadows, and yet use them. Dr. Wilbur now has the whole problem of conservation under his hands as secretary of the interior.

Mr. Hoover, just before his election, when the eyes of the nation were turned on his every move, led a party of writers and cameramen into the redwood country one night, and camped with them in the open under a grove of trees thousands of years old. It made a tremendous impression on easterners and columns were written on the beauties of these trees and the crime of cutting them down for shingles and logs.

One man in a day may undo the work of mother nature for 3,000 years. It was Mr. Hoover's purpose to call attention to this, and the movement for saving the redwoods has gained new impetus.

U.S. to Grow New Forests in North Country

Bigger and better vacations as well as bigger and better trees are in prospect for outdoor fans who seek out the wooded spots of Michigan and Wisconsin as a result of Uncle Sam's activity in establishing national forests in these states. The government already has taken steps to purchase large tracts of cutover land in these states in order to convert them into national forests where reforestation will be practiced and where campers, fishermen, canoeists and other vacationists may enjoy outdoor life.

Three Tracts in Wisconsin.

Three units of land and timber have been approved for northern Wisconsin. They are officially described as the Oneida, Flambeau and Moquah purchase units. The Oneida tract will be known as the Argonne national forest and is to comprise thousands of acres of wild country east of Three Lakes. Within the new forest are several fine trout streams and lakes.

The Flambeau unit will be established in the eastern half of Price county, another attractive river, lake and timber country. The Moquah forest unit is west of Ashland.

Areas to Be Reforested.

The forestry service of the United States will administer these new forests, provide them with fire protection, open up roads through sections which hitherto have been impenetrable, clean up and reforest treeless acreage, and otherwise make them attractive to outdoor fans.

Across the boundary line in the upper peninsula of Michigan the government has approved another group of national forests which are to be developed into tree growing and recreational establishments under the supervision of the forestry service.

Nippersink Lodge to Be Scene of Legion Outing

Nippersink lodge at Genoa City, Wis., has been selected for the annual outing of the Advertising Men's post of the American Legion next Friday, Saturday and Sunday. Practically the entire facilities of the lodge will be turned over to the Legionnaires on those days. William Carroll, commander of the post, will be in charge of the program.

NATURE'S FEAST BEFORE YOU IN VACATION TIME

Country Opens Its Playground Gates.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

Where are you going this summer? In this edition THE TRIBUNE presents a picture of summerland in which you may find the gateway to your particular paradise.

The United States becomes a vast playground now, offering everything from the gypsy camp by the roadside to the great resort hotels. You may go to an old fashioned farm and help milk and pitch hay, or you may enter into the life of the wild west on a dude ranch in the high mountains. You may angle for sunfish in a quiet little lake near home, or go after the golden trout in the high Sierras. The ocean, the great lakes, the north woods at our door and the mountains calling just beyond—which will it be?

Woods and Waters Beckon.

Our deepest inheritance is a love for the woods and waters where human life first became conscious. This is what spring fever means. It is the voice of the eternal primitive. How is this to be answered this year?

Thoreau built a cabin on the edge of a pond near his native village and found happiness among his bean rows. Marquette came out from the schools and culture of France to a new continent, launched a frail canoe in unknown waters, discovered the Mississippi and the Chicago portage, and died on the bare ground in savage solitude, happily.

In point of geologic time it is only a few minutes or hours since we have huddled into cities, roofed in the blue and buried the grass under stone and steel, turned to books and ledgers, machines and art, for inspiration. The long years upon the earth, in communion with storms and sunsets, meadow larks, and seas forlorn, may not be forgotten so soon.

All Outdoors Before You.

The perfume blown from a thousand hills comes to us now, the peace of calm nights under the stars, the smell of the campfire and noonday sap, the wind in the pines, the touch of green and growing things, the placidity of animals, the upland trail and the sun again. All these things are needed in varying degree, and all are to be found.

It is this instinct that has led us to set aside forever as public recreation grounds the parks and reserves that dot the maps of all the states. The covered wagon, the fur trader, and Indian have gone, but the prairie and the home of the beaver still wait for the traveler. The old frontier is no more, but there are places on the maps still marrked "unexplored," and blue lines for singing rivers where a human voice is rarely heard. The old forest is still there, in patches at least, its life proceeding in unhurried fashion, the trees that sheltered prehistoric man waiting to shelter you.

Vacationing Made Easy.

The travel industry has become an art and many hands are stretched out to help the vacation seeker. You may have every detail of your journey arranged by a railroad or steamship agent. They will rent a cottage for you and have everything ready for your convenience. You may live at a dude ranch with all the comforts of a good hotel.

Hundreds of these ranches dot the western ranges. Guides are available for short or long trips into the mountains. Or you may step off a train in the great north woods and find canoes and guides ready to take you out into the wilderness for a month.

If you prefer a less strenuous life, with a little golf and bridge, with lectures and music, there are many resorts that cater to these tastes. The motor traveler, carrying his own hotel on trailer or running boards, has the whole United States to wander in, with every community offering groves of shelter. If you are in a great hurry to get away, airplane lines now form a spider web of traffic radiating out of Chicago.

Pine Forests and Rivers.

Our Presidents naturally crave solitude during their vacation time, and it is interesting to note that Calvin Coolidge came west for his last two presidential summers, to the Black Hills of South Dakota and to the Brule river of Wisconsin, where he lived on a cedar shaded island by the thoroughfare which the Indians and fur traders traveled in the days when there were no roads or motor cars or airplanes. The Brule is waiting, also many other river paths through virgin forests bordering Lake Superior, for this is the country of canoe travel. Here is a little description of a canoe journey on the Brule by this writer:

"This river is the only path in a pathless forest. It is guarded by hills that are crowned with pines, like soldiers barring the way. On either side is a half mile of semi swamp. This serves to absorb the rain water before it gets to the river and as a result Winnebijou's fair face is never soiled by dirty water. She feeds from deep and pure springs, some flowing in gently and others boiling up from the very bottom of the river.

"There are the Blue springs, where the rocks have an indigo color and a big spring nearby where the sand moves in the way the mud boils in the devil's kitchen at Yellowstone and Lassen parks. There are magnesia springs, iron springs, all sorts of waters coming up to feed the Brule, mingling in one stream that is as clear and cold as snow water.

"The stream is dark, narrow and silent in places. It moves along thickly grown banks lined by willows, high bush cranberry and dogwood. Glimpses into the woods show a thick and tangled underbrush. There are spruce trees one hundred feet high, old gray cedars, balsam, tamarack, lodgepole and other varieties of pine.

"There is a musical chorus to accompany the traveler. It comes from the low humming and drumming of the insect life that darts and drifts over the water and the bushes. The shrill, long drawn cry of the tree toad is heard. Orioles, crested warblers, cedar wax wings, scarlet tanagers add bright touches of color to this dark forest.

Little Lakes, Big Trout.

"The miles glide away and the river widens. It seems to be ending always in pockets of pine and cedar, in little lakes. It threads through rocks over foaming water and comes out lazily on a new clear stretch of quiet water. In this clear water, when the shadows are right, one can see big trout nudging in the gravel at the bottom of deep holes. The river breaks from one lake to another through noisy frolicsome rapids.

"At evening a bullfrog calls out his hoarse challenging bellow from a swamp. The sun slants through the cedars. At the upper end of a long stretch of water something reddish brown with flicking white tail is seen feeding from the bottom of the river. The canoe approaches noiselessly. It is a doe feeding on the saline river grass. She buries her head in the water and comes up snorting and shaking off the water, with a mouthful of the pigeon grass. She sees the boat but goes on feeding for another minute or two and then with a great splashing bounds off into the forest."

On to the Black Hills!

The Black Hills offer something new. The friendly prairie ends in the bad lands, fantastic rock and send formations where the casual visitor may find fossils of prehistoric monsters and where scientific expeditions are uncovering the story of the first evidences of life after the glacial ages. The Black Hills block the western horizon. They are mountains covered with dark spruce, the summits within the timber line. Here are state and federal parks to be explored. To a Green mountain boy, like Calvin Coolidge, they seemed a homelike place. Here is the impression of this writer after a few weeks in these hills:

"Mountains are living things and your hills are old and wise and gentle. Yesterday I saw a water ouzel. To one who has given love to the high Sierras, this was like a message from home. The same little gray bird, with her plaintive, worrying, warning cry, dodging the spray from a little waterfall, curtseying from a momentary resting place on a wet rock. And last Sunday I saw a mariposa lily. It was not quite the true type of the high mountain lily, with its golden pansy heart.

Lonely Trails That Call.

"There is a unique, unspoiled quality about these hills. There are lonely, unmarked trails that call. There are tangled canons, where the story of the earth crust formation is written on high, rocky walls. There are tumbling streams, with trout not too wise and not too innocent, where the fly fisherman may enjoy his perfect day. There are open valleys, where the pines lead the way like battalions of soldiers, guarding the hills, sweeting the noon day with sap odor, singing in their highest branches the music that sounds like a waterfall or a sighing. There are painted sunsets and dawns that come with soft and lovely step. There are birds of many songs and flowers of many colors.

"Beyond, at the edge of the hills, there is the wide green range that gives a sense of peace. The plains and foothills, with their soft green and patches of color, their isolation and quiet character, give an added something to these hills that cannot be found elsewhere.

Where the West Is Real.

"It is the true west, the last west, telling the story of the adventure of our race. Its gentle slopes have the color of the Marin hills in spring. After many gray days in the cities the Black Hills offer an intimate, healing touch, with the inspiration of wide and open views."

C. C. O'Harra, president of the South Dakota State School of Mines, writes of the bad lands:

"Do you know that aside from their picturesque topography they tell a marvelous nature story? A story of strange climate, strange geography, and strange animals; of jungles and marshes and tranquil rivers; of fierce contests for food and life, and supremacy; of a varied series of events through ages and ages of time showing the working out of well laid plans with no human being to help or interfere?

In the Parks Country.

"There is in this country," writes Enos A. Mills, father of the Colorado parks, a "splendid array of nature's masterpieces to lure and reward the traveler. In mountain peaks there are Grand Teton, Long's peak, Mount Whitney, and Mount Ranier [Tacoma]; in cañons, the vast Grand cañon and the brilliantly colored Yellowstone; in trees, the unrivaled sequoias and many matchless primeval forests; in rivers, few on earth are enriched with scenes equal to those between which rolls the Columbia; in petrified forests, those in Arizona and Yellowstone are unsurpassed; in natural bridges, those in Utah easily arch above the other great ones of the earth; in desert attractions, Death valley offers a rare display of colors, strangeness, silence, and mirages; in waterfalls, we have Niagara, Yellowstone and Yosemite; in glaciers, there are those of the Glacier and Mount Ranier national parks and of Alaska; in medicinal springs, there is an array of flowing, life-extending fountains; in wild flowers, the mountain flowers of the west are loveliest; in wild animals, we have the bear, the beaver and the mountain sheep; in bird music, that which is sung by the thrushes, the cañon wren, and the solitaire silences with melodious sweetness.

"In these varied attractions of our many natural parks we have ample playgrounds for all the world and the opportunity for a travel industry many times as productive as our gold and silver mines—and more lasting, too, than they."

Amid the High Sierras.

Joaquin Miller was the poet of the Sierras, but John Muir described this playground in a way to charm nature lover and scientist. He called it the Range of Light and writes:

"After ten years spent in the heart of it, rejoicing and wondering, bathing in its glorious floods of light, seeing the sunbursts of morning among the icy peaks, the nooday radiance of the trees and rocks and snow, the flush of the alpenglow, and a thousand dashing waterfalls with their marvelous abundance of irised spray, it still seems to me above all others the Range of Light, the most divinely beautiful of all mountain chains I have ever seen.

"The Sierra is about 500 miles long, 70 miles wide and from 7,000 to nearly 15,000 feet high. In general views no marks of man is visible on it, nor anything to suggest the richness of the life it cherishes, or the depth and grandeur of its sculpture. No great valley or lake is seen, or river, or group of well marked feature of any kind, standing out in distinct pictures.

Glaciers Above the Meadows.

"Even the summit peaks, so clear and high in the sky, seem comparatively smooth and featureless. Nevertheless, glaciers are still at work in the shadows of the peaks, and thousands of lakes and meadows shine and bloom beneath them, and the whole range is furrowed with cañons to a depth of from 2,000 to 5,000 feet, in which once moved majestic glaciers and in which now flow and sing a band of beautiful rivers.

"Though of such stupendous depth, these famous cañons are not raw, gloomy, jagged walled gorges, savage and inaccessible. With rough passages here and there they still make delightful pathways for the mountaineer, conducting from the fertile lowlands to the highest icy mountain, as a kind of mountain street full of charming life and light, graded and sculptured by the ancient glaciers, and presenting a rich variety of novel and attractive scenery, the most attractive that has yet been discovered in the mountain ranges of the world.

"Try the Mountain Passes."

"To the timid traveler fresh from the sedimentary levels of the lowlands, these Sierra highways [the passes], however picturesque and grand, seem terribly forbidding—cold, dead, gloomy gashes in the bones of the mountains, and of all Nature's ways the ones to be cautiously avoided.

"Yet they are full of the finest and most telling examples of Nature's love; and though hard to travel, none are safer. For they lead through regions that lie far above the ordinary haunts of the devil and of the pestilence that walks in darkness. True, there are innumerable places where a careless step may be the last step; and a rock falling from the cliffs may crush without warning, like lightning from the sky, but what then? Accidents in the mountains are less common than in the lowlands, and these mountain mansions are decent, delightful, even divine places to die in, compared with the doleful chambers of civilization.

"Few places in the world are more dangerous than home. Fear not, therefore, to try the mountain passes. They will kill care, save you from deadly apathy, set you free and call forth every faculty into vigorous enthusiastic action."

Record of a Walking Trip.

Excerpts from a record made by this writer during a walking trip in July in the High Sierras give an idea of what may be found in such a method and place of travel:

"This is the end of my first week out and I am feeling fine and getting used to the pack. I forget it now as I trudge along. This altitude is between 9,000 and 10,000. Here is real solitude, fine, cool air, and a silence so deep that it seems to belong to another world.

"After three hours of downhill walking I reached Simpson meadows [on the Middle Fork of King's river]. It is a large meadow, two or three miles long, a half mile or three-quarters wide, filled with flowers, great trees, high ferns and shut in by mile high cliffs. The river flows along the edge of the meadow, a perfect fishing stream in appearance. I caught in half an hour more than enough trout for supper, taking two with a single cast on flies.

All Alone in Valley of Beauty.

"Have come 25 miles since Thursday, and will rest here until Monday. Think of all the vacation hunters, and no one here to share this with me. Nothing but the birds, and the big tree groves, flowers and sunshine, and the river rushing by.

"I have never seen such a profusion of wild flowers, of all colors, growing waist high in places. Humming birds dart over them. As they suspend in the face of a flower their tiny wings sound like the motor of an airplane. Coming down the trail, about 1,00 feet above here, I saw many lilies of Mariposa, true white ones with golden hearts. A long, arched back little animal with foxlike head, a mink, came close to my camp, which is made under an ancient pair of cedar trees with needles thick to rest upon.

"Found two old magazines in a camp left here two years ago by the builders of the Muir trail. Probably no one has been here for a year. Down the river, according to my map, is the Gorge of Despair and Deadman's gulch. That way leads to Tehepite valley, a pocket edition of Yosemite, but my trail leads toward Grouse meadows and the golden trout."

INDIAN WHOOPEE TO MARK OPENING OF YELLOWSTONE

West Prepares Welcome at Gallatin Gateway.

Gallatin Gateway, Yellowstone National Park, June 15.—The 58th season of Yellowstone National park, playground of more than a quarter of a million persons every year, will open on Thursday. This year the formal ceremonies will be held at Gallatin Gateway.

Indians in their tribal costumes, cowboys in full western regalia, and high government officials will join in welcoming visitors to the park.

Led by Chieftain Crowler, fifty mounted braves from the nearby Flathead reservation will travel to the new Gallatin Gateway inn with their pipe of peace, signalizing their desire to have the white man share the spectacular beauties of Gallatin canyon and Yellowstone with them.

Indians to Perform Dances.

Indian dances and initiation of visiting dignitaries into the tribe will form a colorful part of the Flatheads' program. Later, when the motor buses begin their trip to the park, they will pass through the gigantic tepee, erected adjacent to the inn, as the Indians speed them on their way.

Roger W. Toll, superintendent of Yellowstone park, will officiate as master of ceremonies and will deliver the opening address. Responses will be given by Horace M. Albright, director of the national park service; President H. A. Scandrett of the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific railroad, and other notables gathered at the Gateway for the festivities.

Governors, Senators Invited.

Among those who have been invited are Governors Erickson of Montana, Emerson of Wyoming, and Baldridge of Idaho. Invitations also have been sent to the members of congress from those states, including United States Senators Borah of Idaho, and Walsh and Wheeler of Montana. Many other westerners who are contributing to the popularity of Yellowstone and the northwest as a vacation playground are expected to be present.

The cowboy band from Terry, Mont., will be on hand to provide a program of martial and patriotic airs.

Immediately upon the conclusion of the ceremonies, the motor buses will start on their 85 mile thrill trip to Yellowstone park—and the season of 1929 will be officially on.

THIRD CLASS CABIN VOYAGING BECOMES POPULAR PASTIME

Thousands of teachers, students, musicians, club women and business men are sailing for Europe this summer by third class cabins. This is a fad which was begun by writers and college boys and is becoming more popular every year. The tourist third cabins are well above the water line and the outside rooms have portholes. Cabins are arranged for two, three and four passengers. Each table is numbered and seats are reserved for each passenger. The ship's orchestra plays during meals and many entertainments are arranged for the cabin.

HEREVER YOU O THERE'LL BE PLENTY OF GOLF

sort Courses Spring Up from Coast to Coast.

BY HARLAND ROHM.

olf, in fact only a game and a s of recreation, has become a bol of carefree days. To say a "plays golf every day" is the valent of saying he's on a perpet- vacation, and while that millennium yond most of us in a work-a-day ld, the fact remains that "golf" "vacation" are synonyms.

r have vacation resort owners d to see the trend. As necessary a summer [or winter] resort as e a fishhook is a golf course and the credit of the business sense of men who provide playgrounds for world, they've delivered the goods the last few years by building golf es, even at vacation spots where g, bathing, the dancing pavilion d sometimes the casino are the chief actions. A set of golf clubs in a ationist's baggage is as important white flannels and a check book.

5,320 Courses in U. S.

The best guess made from the sta- s of golf associations is that e are about 8,700 golf courses in world, of which 5,320 or there- ts are in the United States. Per- a third are private courses nd cities and villages, devoted to weary business man's week-end rcise, while the others are daily courses, a lot of them near re- s or owned by hotels.

No definite statistics are available, an indication of how widespread the vacation end of golf is in the ision between 18 hole and 9 hole rses. Few private clubs have less n 18 holes, while the majority of rses near small towns and summer rts are 9 holes. The division in United States is about 2,000 18 e courses and more than 3,000 9 hole rses, most of which are vacationists' grounds.

Golf Invades North Woods.

A few years ago the vacation places the north emphasized the fishing, woods and the lakes. Now fair- ys have been blasted through the ds, coves of the lakes used for er hazards and the other pleasures loafing gently have been subordi- ted to whaling a ball down fair- ys of soft turf and tapping it tly on the putting green.

Each section boasts of the beauty its courses and it is chiefly a mat- of the individual golfers choice of at kind of scenery he prefers as a kground for his golf. The south era vistas of palms and the sea, southwest a background of its ge and fantastic cacti and weirdly orn red rocks, the Rocky mountains old out the lure of golf in the shadow of towering peaks, the north ountry of the United States presents e attractions of courses cut through eet smelling pine woods, while anada challenges the world and the lfer by combining the crisp air of e mountains, snow covered peaks d a nineteenth hole where dry osers are as out of place as ptero- actyl in a canary's cage.

Cana Becomes Land of Links.

Cana, whose vacationist business has increased tremendously since good uor has become a rarity in Ameri- n living rooms, in particular has reased its golf facilities with rses which would rank as good ywhere. More than 500 courses of- r the vacationist places to test his e, and the golf architects have ed their backgrounds well.

From the second oldest golf course the American continent, the Que- e Golf club organized in 1874, west- rd to Langara in Vancouver, the acationist can find golf. Its back- ound varies from the prairies to the woods in the French-Canadian provinces of the east and to the rugged snow capped peaks of the Rockies.

For the better golfers, doubtless a few will take their vacations to compete in the Canadian amateur championship at Jasper Park from Aug. 19 to 24, or the Canadian open at Kanawaki, at Montreal from July 25 to 27. But the vacation hotels offer tournaments for the less skillful, such as the Silver Totem pole at Banff.

Play in Sight of Rockies.

To the Chicagoland vacationist, accustomed to the rolling hills and deciduous trees of the middle west, a more delightful contrast in golf than the course at Lake Louise would be hard to find. In place of gently rolling hills with a humid summer sun, the middle westerner there plays in the crystal air of a mile above sea level.

The Fairholme range of the Rockies, a dozen rugged peaks biting into the air at 10,000 feet and more above sea level, is always in sight, while the Bow river swirls by and often snatches a golf ball of the unwary player where its white waters have been used as hazards. Nor does the hot sulphur water plunge after the game suffer in comparison with the commonplace white tiled shower.

But those words of praise take nothing from vacation spots nearer at hand, for these nearer places also offer their attractions. For instance, the northern Michigan peninsula has eighteen golf courses, each an easy day's jaunt from the other. Wisconsin's woods have golf courses scattered all over, and links dot the lake country of Minnesota. Once a golfing vacationist had to ask if the resort at which he contemplated spending his two weeks had a golf course—now he takes it for granted. Vacation means golf, just as surely as golf means vacation.

Just Like Mother Used to Make

Southwest Is Storehouse of Nature and History

To John Muir the American southwest stood for the greatest treasure store of natural wonders on the known globe. It holds as rare a place in the hearts of the historian, the archaeologist and the travelers. For it is at once the last frontier and the home of an ageless antiquity.

BATTLE SHRINES DOT VALLEY OF THE SHENANDOAH

There are three principal gateways to the Shenandoah valley of Virginia—Harpers Ferry, Martinsburg, and Shenandoah Junction, W. Va. The valley begins at Harpers Ferry, passes through the northeastern tip of West Virginia and extends southwest across the western part of Virginia to its narrow terminal at Natural Bridge, a distance of approximately 175 miles.

It has an average width of twenty miles, its eastern wall being formed by the Blue Ridge mountains. To the west lie the Shenandoah or North mountains of the Allegheny range. Nearly midway the valley is divided practically in two for about 50 miles by the Massanutten mountains, an abruptly rising range that runs parallel to the Blue Ridge and Alleghenies.

The broad floor of the valley, protected by the mountain chains, seems to have been created by nature as a passageway between the north and the south. Long before the advent of the white man the Indians used this natural highway in their wars.

A trip to the Shenandoah valley would not be complete if it were not entered through Harper's Ferry, the main gateway. This point is easily reached from all the principal cities of the east and west. The town of Harper's Ferry nestles on a narrow tongue of land at the foot of Bolivar heights, West Virginia, a wedge-shaped promontory that separates Maryland and Virginia. Overlooking the scene is the towering mountain in Maryland known as Maryland heights, and immediately opposite rises the wooded slope of Loudoun heights in Virginia.

Winchester [Old Frederick town] next claims the interest of the visitor. This is the largest city in the valley. During the civil war Winchester was deemed by both sides as being an important point to control, and is said to have been invested not less than seventy-two times by the contending armies.

At the southwest corner of Braddock and Picadilly streets is the former headquarters of Gen. Phil. Sheridan, from which he started on that memorable ride to Cedar Creek.

MOTOR CAMPERS NOWADAYS LIVE THE LIFE O' RILEY

Tenting and Touring Takes Rank as Major Sport.

It makes but little difference where you go on a vacation, the Rocky mountains, the national parks, the Canadian playgrounds, the lake regions of the Mississippi valley or the Great Smokies of North Carolina — practically every corner of the United States has its quota of campers. Enjoyment of America's outdoors has increased tenfold in recent years, through the sport of camping and we are rapidly becoming a nation of tent dwellers thanks to the increased use of the automobile and the ingenuity of the manufacturers of camping equipment.

A decade ago camping as such was pretty much a boy's pastime or else the rough sport of the hardened "professional' outdoorsman, the man who boasted of living on a snack of tea, bacon, flour and salt while crashing through the woods, and who at night rolled up in a blanket to sleep on anything from rocks to pine stumps.

It's Another Story Now.

Today it's a different story. Mother, father, the children and even the family dog think no more of camping via either the automobile and the snappy touring tent or in the permanent camp than they do of going on any sort of a vacation. If there are any doubts about this being the age of the simple life beneath canvas one has only to inspect the equipment of more than 5,000,000 motor campers who are guiding their family gas buggies over North American highways.

The motor campers reached the 5,000,000 figure several years ago. These gypsies of the road have done more exploring than any one group of outdoors fans and many a vacation this summer will be a camping and touring expedition.

Makes Living From Campers.

So great has become this desire of the vacationist to go camping that national parks, towns and owners of resorts, lake front property and river frontage, tack up their shingles along the highways to advise motoring campers where they can drive their tent stakes, pitch their canvas shelter and stay for one day or two weeks. While in the California Sierras a few years ago we encountered a truck farmer at 8,900 feet who made a business of raising and selling fresh vegetables to the campers in a big valley so numerous were the tent dwellers during the summer months.

Tenting Made Comfortable.

Although the motor campers are the most numerous, there are also canoe campers, permanent campers, fishing campers and pack train campers, to say nothing of thousands of boy and girl campers. The hundreds of boys' and girls' camps in the country "catch 'em young" and teach young America the fun and science of living outdoors so that thousands of youngsters are growing up to clamor for the outdoors, an open fire and a canvas roof over their heads.

One of the big reasons why the tent dwellers army is increasing every day is the number of accessories available to make camping easy and enjoyable. Father has no trouble in inducing mother and the children to tackle the tenting game when they can have air beds as soft as a feather bed, comfortable cots with mattresses, efficient little gasoline stoves with ovens attached, high roomy tents which are mosquito proof, small ice boxes to keep food fresh and cool, and dozens of other neat arrangements to make camping a real joy with a minimum of work.

In fact, today the enterprising tent dweller can take along in his car almost anything from a gas stove to a bathtub if he wants de luxe camping.

A Rare Vacation Playground at MINAKI Canada

THERE may be other vacation spots as restful—and with as much to do and see—but Minaki, in the Lake of the Woods region of Canada, gets "under the skin" and holds you.

It isn't so much the variety of sports Minaki offers—golf, tennis, swimming, motor boating, canoeing, fishing, hiking, etc.—as it is the sweet, invigorating air sweeping down from the pine and balsam great north woods—the unusual velvety, exhilarating feel of the water when in swimming and above all the comfortable friendliness of Minaki Lodge—pleasantly informal. Your fellow guests are the kind you like to know—and you enjoy them.

There are many who go back to Minaki year after year to enjoy the luxury of simplicity that is so hard to find. Accommodations at Minaki Lodge are modern and up-to-date, meals are unsurpassable—yet with it all, rates are exceptionally low. Open June 15th to September 15th. Plan now to spend your vacation at Minaki. For details and interesting, well-illustrated booklet, apply to

A Great Liner . . .
The Aquitania

A Ship with a Personality

"If you possibly can, cross in the Aquitania," people say. And they are not thinking only of her two flower-filled garden-lounges overhanging the sea; or the deft, cheerful service of her perfectly trained English staff; or the fact that the Aquitania's famous à la carte service is available without any extra charge.

They are thinking rather of the special charm that differentiates the Aquitania, that something which wins the loyal devotion of so many people and which is difficult to define. Something that gives vitality to her days and animation to her evenings . . . . making the six-day voyage from New York to Cherbourg or Southampton the "pleasantest distance" between two worlds.

"If you possibly can, cross in the Aquitania."

LAKE AND RIVER BEACHES CROWD WEST MICHIGAN

Bathing, Boating, Fishing in This Playground.

West Michigan's broad, clean beaches, and its woods and wild flowers make an ideal summerland for the youngsters. They have more hours for healthful outdoor play here because the soil is sandy. Half an hour after a rain they can continue their romping outdoors, for the dampness has vanished. Then, too, it is claimed that the ultra-violet rays of the sun—so helpful in filling little bodies with health—exert their full effect in west Michigan's crystal clear air.

Grownups, too, are offered a new lease on life in this 25,000 square mile summerland. More than 3,000 lakes and streams provide bathing, fishing, and boating. Many of these lakes have a unique location. They string along the shore of Lake Michigan just behind the sand dunes, which possibly helped to form them many centuries ago.

Lakes Large and Small.

Some lakes are large, extending miles inland, and serving as landlocked harbors. Some are small and have only tiny connections with the big lake. Each vies with all the others in attractiveness. Travelers exclaim with delight when they see Glen lake. Here, they say, is one of the loveliest bodies of water in the world.

The inner lakes vastly increase the frontage for those who seek homes at the water's edge, and who are as happy on a sheltered shore as on Lake Michigan. They enhance, too, the attractiveness of the locale for the big lake, as they offer many pleasures such as sailing, fishing, and quiet water swimming that are not always available on Lake Michigan.

Many Inland Resorts.

Development of good roads through every part of western Michigan has led to the discovery by recreation seekers of hundreds of inland lakes that were until a few years ago practically unknown except to local fishermen and hunters. These are found in every county and near every highway. With their discovery has come popularity and the rapid building of cottage colonies and resorts.

Many scenic forests furnish cover for wild life—deer, black bear, beaver, partridges, porcupines, red foxes.

Western Michigan, however, has more than the attractions of nature. It has attractions developed by man. Those who enjoy golf will find sixty-three golf links waiting to test their skill. Even farm resorts have them.

Trails for Riders and Hikers.

Woodland and lake shore trails promise delightful hours of hiking or horseback riding. A 21,000 mile good road system takes the motorist to quaint Indian villages, famous parks and orchards, historic forts and other points of interest.

Dancing pavilions, amusement devices, sports of all sorts, theaters, music, a full social life—these are available for those who desire them. But they may be avoided by those who seek seclusion, quiet, and rest. The visitor to west Michigan may choose his own form of recreation. Modern hotels everywhere provide for his comfort.

STEAMER LINES TO EUROPE URGE EARLY BOOKINGS

Ships Always Full on Summer Trips.

As is always the case at this time of the year, the trans-Atlantic steamship lines' sailings are all crowded and have been practically sold out for several months. Many people do not appreciate the large amount of travel to Europe during the summer vacation season. One of the principal problems of the steamship lines is to devise ways and means of scattering this travel throughout the year and relieving, to some extent, the summer sailings.

Considerable progress has been made in this direction. Whereas a few years ago the heavy travel season started about the middle of June and ended the middle of July, the season now starts late in May and runs through the entire month of July. Many large corporations who employ thousands of people are coöperating by insisting that all their employés do not take their vacations in the summer, only allowing a certain percentage to go then, and the balance to go in the spring and fall.

Many experienced travelers will not sail during the summer season, and the steamship lines are finding an increased demand for accommodations during April and May, and then again during August and September. The weather in Europe during the spring and fall seasons is ideal, and so far as travel over the ocean is concerned, storms are unusual during these seasons of the year.

Travel is a commodity, the price of which is governed by supply and demand. During the fall and winter seasons there is not so much demand for steamship accommodations, hence the prices are considerably lower. The same applies to hotel rates and travel in general in Europe.

To the many persons who find it impossible to get away before the summer season, is pointed out the advisability of booking early, and by "booking early" the companies mean before Christmas. Trans-Atlantic steam ship berthing books are opened usually in October or November for the following season, and immediately there is a large demand for accommodations in June and July.

MICHIGAN IDEAL SUMMER STATE, GOVERNOR SAYS

Fills the Bill for Health and Recreation Hunter.

BY FRED W. GREEN.

[Governor of Michigan.]

Lansing, Mich., June 15.—[Special.]—An ideal summer resort state should have a healthful climate, good roads, many parks, and camping grounds situated upon lakes and streams, an accessible supply of wholesome food, and, in addition, the accessories necessary to keep in repair means of transportation.

The country through which the tourist passes should be shaded by the pine, the oak, and the maple; the lakes upon whose banks the tourist camps should be well stocked with game bass, pike, perch, and other desirable fish and the rivers and brooks with rainbow and brown trout.

The day has passed when a great majority of tourists are looking for inconvenience in order to enjoy their summer outing. The world is moving; people do not stay long in one locality and consequently the state that has been farsighted enough to make all the plans necessary for comfort and enjoyment is the one that is looked on with favor by the tourist.

Michigan Fills the Bill.

Michigan combines all of the advantages that are necessary in order to make her an ideal state for those seeking health and recreation.

Here, in the heart of the great lakes region, is Michigan, a state made up of two peninsulas; a state that has the greatest shore line of any in the Union; whose 1,624 miles of lake front look out upon the beautiful waters of Erie, Huron, Michigan, and Superior; a timbered state with sufficient rainfall during the summer to keep the forests and fields green; a state with 10,000 lakes and thousands of miles of rivers, brooks, and streams.

Michigan was one of the first states in the Union to adopt a park system. In addition to Mackinac park on Mackinac island, which is world-famed, the state has 67 other parks with a watre frontage of 63.7 miles. Twenty-three of these parks have 27.8 miles of water front on the great lakes; twenty-eight parks have 24 miles of water front on inland lakes, and fifteen parks have 11.8 miles of water front on rivers and streams.

25,000 Acres of Parks.

There are over 25,000 acres of parks in Michigan's state owned parks. A great many of these parks are supervised by the state and here tourists are made welcome and comfortable. Boats for fishing and proper attire for bathing are available. Refreshments and many of the conveniences necessary for the traveling public are supplied.

There are 81,015 miles of wagon road of which 3,382 miles are hard surfaced, being either cement, asphalt, or brick, and 3,687 miles of graveled roads. These highways make it possible for the tourist to reach any part of the peninsula state in comfort. Most of the trunk lines and a great many of the other roads are properly policed and a state trooper is at your service should anything happen while on your journey.

The three state owned ferry boats crossing the Straits of Mackinac, which divide the upper peninsula from the lower, have a capacity of 50 to 60 automobiles each and leave on their journey back and forth every 60 minutes.

Waters Supplied with Fish.

From the 17 state operated fish hatcheries, 150 million to 200 million fish are annually placed in the lakes and streams of the state to await the fly or bait of the disciples of Izaak Walton.

Vegetables and fresh fruits in season are always available. Here and there along the well kept highways are villages containing hotels and stopping places where the tourist can recuperate for his onward journey.

FISHERMEN'S PLANE TO START SERVICE TO RHINELANDER JULY 12

Starting on July 12, fishing fans who make regular trips to the lakes and streams around Rhinelander, Wis., will be able to travel by airplane. A four passenger Fairchild cabin plane will leave each Friday at 4 p. m., arriving at Rhinelander in time for dinner. Returning, the plane will depart on Monday morning at 7 o'clock and be back in Chicago some three hours later. Ralph Renwick, a Chicago contractor, has chartered the plane and hopes to fill it for each trip.

EAST MICHIGAN'S RESORTS AWAIT RECORD THRONGS

Forest and Lakes Lure Rest Seekers.

Bay City, June 15.—[Special.]—Early reports from resorts, chambers of commerce, and automobile clubs of East Michigan indicate that the tourist and resort traffic this year will be heavier than ever before. In 1928 a million motor cars carried 3,000,000 visitors to this territory from all parts of the country and from abroad.

East Michigan has a shore line on three lakes, Erie, St. Clair, and Huron, thousands of lakes and streams and in addition the Huron national forest of 616,000 acres.

Highways run through the forest and along the lakes. There are thousands of miles of good roads to camps, cottages, hotels, and quiet retreats of all sorts.

The whole section is a motion picture of scenic harmonies and possesses in addition attractions for the historian, archaeologist, naturalist, mammalogist, ichthyologist, ornithologist, botanist, hunter, vacationist, and seeker after health and happiness. There are found in east Michigan 361 varieties of birds, 247 different wild flowers, 77 species of trees, and 101 varieties of fish.

In one part of east Michigan is the

The visitors may choose unhesitatingly the type of vacation grounds they desire. Wherever they go they will find thoroughly established resorts and resort sections. Hundreds of golf courses offer many thrills, some even with deer as part of the interested gallery. Others have hazards constructed thousands of years ago by the mound builders on areas later littered by arrowheads of Chippewas and Sioux.

One of the merits of the east Michigan region is its large area, extending from the Ohio state line to Mackinac island. There are places where wild life utters its shrill challenge and sections where one piece bathing suits are worn throughout the summer as house dresses. There are sports for all comers and places for the families in khaki—the motor campers.

Michigan's largest lake, Houghton, 85 miles around its rim, is in east Michigan.

And at the end of it all is Mackinac island, famous as a midwest summer resort long before railroads penetrated the region.

Remember ONLY the MOTOR COACH

—takes you OVER the mountains—NOT under or through them.
—travels leisurely down the "Main Streets," NOT "thundering through."
—enters each city the FRONT WAY, NOT by way of the drab industrial districts.
—travels through the forests and smiling green fields, along rivers, over hills, NOT the conventional landscape of freight yards and round houses.
—takes you to scenic glories that can be reached in NO OTHER way.

If you've never taken a HOGLE SPEARS motor tour there is in life an ecstasy that you have missed. Truly there's nothing quite so good, none so interesting and there's nothing finer.

Wherever you want to go MORE for your MONEY thru—

HOGLE-SPEARS

East—West—anywhere from coast to coast—Hogle-Spears will take you there in the world's finest motor coaches at big savings and give you far more for your money than you could possibly obtain by setting out upon your journey unadvised. Go as an independent traveler, or with a congenial tour-group if you choose; either way you'll gain by consulting Hogle-Spears before departing.

Hogle-Spears tours are unquestionably the most enjoyable form of vacation travel. For, as each luxuriously cushioned mile of mountain, woodland, desert or prairie trail unwinds before you, the well-informed conductor points out the sights of special significance, thereby making your trip a glorious succession of interest-filled hours. Never a dull moment—never an impatient longing to reach your destination—but always a desire to make the trip again or travel elsewhere with Hogle-Spears. And Hogle-Spears arrange for your hotel accommodations, get you the biggest value that your hotel allowance will buy; take care of your luggage; in fact, when you travel with Hogle-Spears, you needn't have a thought upon your mind excepting enjoyment of your trip. Look on the map at the left. See where the Hogle-Spears-Greyhound Coaches go. Fit your travel or vacation plans to suit these all-inclusive routes. Then, come in—let us tell you all about our superior travel service. We'll show you, in a very definite way, how we give you more for your travel dollars on just a fare from point to point, or on a complete vacation tour.

DOWN EAST

2 Weeks—A Circle Tour Through the "Switzerland of America"—$185

You have no idea what the East holds in store until you make this trip. Compare this wonderful tour with what you have done in the past. The whole plan is a revelation; something new and delightful, that will exceed your fondest expectations. Every previous vacation tour is made to count. This tour offers all the joys of a trip to Switzerland, without crossing the seas.

The itinerary includes a delightful sail across LAKE ERIE on one of those large lake liners. Then you board a HOGLE-SPEARS motor coach, the finest, most luxurious and easiest riding car on wheels. You motor all through the East. You will see the much talked-about THOUSAND ISLANDS, enjoy that journey along the scenic ST. LAWRENCE RIVER and through the picturesque ADIRONDACKS and along the shores of LAKE PLACID and SARANAC LAKE. You'll visit John Brown's Grave and WILMINGTON NOTCH, the "Royal Gorge of the East." You'll be thrilled with your visit to wonderful AUSABLE CHASM—your sail across LAKE CHAMPLAIN and your two full days in the GREEN and WHITE MOUNTAINS. You'll love old colonial PORTSMOUTH and be amazed with your visit to OLD CAPE ANNE, where you'll have an entire morning to visit quaint GLOUCESTER, one of the principal sights of "New England," before you explore SALEM, the "witch city," and queer MARBLEHEAD, the brine-drenched town by the sea.

You'll love historic BOSTON, and you'll gaze up in open-eyed wonder at the beautiful scenery along the MILLER'S RIVER TRAIL. What a delightful time you'll have in historic DEERFIELD and how you'll enjoy the tobacco plantations on the CONNECTICUT. You'll see silent, old-fashioned NORTHAMPTON, too, the home of Calvin Coolidge and Smith College; and you'll travel right into the BERKSHIRE HILLS over that scenic MILL RIVER TRAIL.

MONUMENTAL MOUNTAINS, the HUDSON RIVER, SLEEPY HOLLOW and your journey over the STORM KING HIGHWAY to NEW YORK CITY will be experiences you'll never forget. And in fascinating New York you'll have three wonderful nights and two full days before resuming your homeward journey. The POCONOS, lovely DELAWARE WATER GAP, the FIVE FINGER LAKES DISTRICT and picturesque WATKINS GLEN lie along your return route. Then comes the grand climax, the illumination of NIAGARA FALLS.

Truly, there's nothing finer in vacation suggestions. You'll ride in America's finest motor coaches—palatial land yachts . . . a typical palace on wheels—15 glorious days of idling through the East."

HOGLE-SPEARS operate on these tours positively the finest motor coaches in America, equipped with every modern convenience for safety and comfort—lavatories, ice water, electric fans, high back seats. Comfort, rest, thrills. Every day is a wonderful day. Positively no other two week vacation trip its equal.

15 Wonderful Days—$175

For years you've talked about making a trip to old QUEBEC. You've seen pictures of boats "shooting" the Rapids of the St. Lawrence—pictures of the Thousand Islands—you've read much about the famous shrine of St. Anne de Beaupre—history has told you a great deal about Montreal and of these quaint ox-carts, homes and the habitant.

Make these dreams come true. Travel with HOGLE-SPEARS by motor to NIAGARA FALLS, through the GREAT GORGE and by steamer across LAKE ONTARIO, then down the storied ST. LAWRENCE through the THOUSAND ISLANDS and Rapids to fascinating old world QUEBEC.

With HOGLE-SPEARS you see this foreign land in an entirely different way. You go sightseeing in Quebec in one of those quaint old caleches. You motor through Quebec to ST. ANNE DE BEAUPRE and then all the way through the "land of the habitant" to MONTREAL. Then follows a sail down LAKES CHAMPLAIN and GEORGE and down the HUDSON RIVER to NEW YORK CITY. Returning by motor, you visit PHILADELPHIA, cross the ALLEGHENIES, and visit PITTSBURGH. This tour is a new way to see old French Canada, but a night from home.

WASHINGTON

10 Interesting Days—$84

Volumes have been written about this great city and still the story remains untold. It must be seen; it must be understood; it must be felt by contact to realize its greatness. It is an inspiration. It is the soul of America, the spirit of sacrifice, the vision of the future.

Who has not sung its praise? What, then, could be more lovely than a vacation trip to Washington? That is just what HOGLE-SPEARS offer you. A delightful 10 day vacation trip, including PITTSBURGH, the scenic ALLEGHENIES, a visit to the BATTLEFIELDS OF GETTYSBURG, Alexandria and Mt. Vernon, Frederick, the BLUE RIDGE and CUMBERLAND MOUNTAINS.

CIRCLE TOUR EAST

New York : Philadelphia : Washington

14 Glorious Days—$115.00

If you are seeking the maximum of enjoyment and scenery at a minimum of expense, then join with thousands of others who are pleasure bent and make this Circle Tour with HOGLE-SPEARS. What a vacation trip it really is. What wondrous sights you'll see. You'll travel in an escorted party, conducted by an experienced conductor. No tickets to buy. No hotel reservations to make. No sightseeing trips to arrange. No baggage worries. Everything is handled for you by travel experts.

Every minute will be an interesting one. You'll see DETROIT, CLEVELAND and PITTSBURGH. You'll love the beautiful mountain scenery of the ALLEGHENIES. You'll be thrilled with your visit to the BATTLEFIELDS OF GETTYSBURG, and you'll always remember that you stood on the very same ground that heard Lincoln's famous address. You'll see Frederick, "green-walled" by the hills of Maryland, and you'll have two full days to explore imposing WASHINGTON, Alexandria and Mt. Vernon. Next comes historic old PHILADELPHIA and then three wonderful days and four even more wonderful nights in fascinating and alluring NEW YORK CITY. Then we become sailors. Up the storied HUDSON RIVER we sail and on to NIAGARA FALLS, where you'll spend a day, with visits to the Whirlpool and the Rapids. Then comes the grand climax—a delightful sail across LAKE ERIE on one of those great lake liners.

What a rare treat and opportunity it is to do and see so much in just two weeks' time at such a low cost. And what a delightful trip it is. Talk to your friends. Get others to join you. You'll find that nearly every one plans some time to make this delightful trip. Book early though, for last season we were booked to capacity during July and August and were forced to turn away hundreds of "last minute" reservations.

"LAND OF THE SKY"

15 Days—$185

HOGLE-SPEARS announce another NEW travel creation. A two week vacation tour to the "Land of the Sky," through the Land of Pocahontas, the Blue Ridge Mountains of Virginia and over the "Trail of the Lonesome Pine," including the Endless Caverns, Chimney Rock and that world wonder—the Natural Bridge. Write for special folder.

NIAGARA FALLS AND THE IRISH HILLS

6 Days—$50

Niagara's attractions have been written about, travelogued, filmed and painted . . . but Niagara is a show place you must personally visit to understand why it is one of the most talked-about wonders of the world. Nothing else like it—truly, one of the world's greatest travel attractions. Enjoy it this summer by taking this wonderful tour with HOGLE-SPEARS.

Circle Cruise of Lake Erie

You'll love the IRISH HILLS—you'll enjoy your visit to DETROIT and be fascinated with your trip to BELLE ISLAND and through the great Ford Factory. You'll more than enjoy your Circle Cruise of LAKE ERIE—yes, you're going to love every minute of this wonderful tour, and expectations will get the best of you as you arrive in NIAGARA FALLS.

Two Full Days at Niagara

You have two full days at Niagara, and you'll be treated to one of the most beautiful sights that science has been able to perfect—the illumination of the Falls. Yes, your night in Niagara will be one of the biggest thrills in your life. The memory will linger long after your vacation is over. Nothing in the wide world is so stupendous, so awe-inspiring and withal so beautiful and colorful as this superb natural drama at night.

Yours, too, will be the indescribable thrill of traveling down wide, clean streets, through residential sections, over sylvan highways and through beautiful green fields—it's the thrill of the open road. Then, a trip that tops them all—a cruise of the Great Lakes . . . all combined in one amazing week of travel adventure.

What an easy, delightful, restful way to travel. What wondrous sights you'll see. And what a tale you will have to tell the folks back home. Plan to go this year—it's reasonable—it's delightful—it's comfortable.

NEW YORK CIRCLE AND NIAGARA FALLS

8 Delightful Days—$80

If you have but a week to spare, here's an ideal eight day vacation suggestion—a Circle Tour East to NEW YORK CITY. New York, Oh, what magic in the name. The most alluring spot in all America, the most fascinating. Yea, there is sheer ecstasy in just being alive when one is in New York.

You've always wanted to see New York. To walk up and down Fifth Avenue and to stand at the corner of 42d and Broadway, the "Crossroads of the World." Haven't you? Then, here's your opportunity for a delightful vacation trip with that visit to New York you've always dreamed about.

Will it be interesting? Of course it will—just think of it—you'll motor across the States of Indiana and Ohio, visit PITTSBURGH. You'll travel OVER the famous ALLEGHENIES, viewing some of the most beautiful mountain scenery in the East. You'll visit historic PHILADELPHIA, "do" NEW YORK, and then return through the DELAWARE WATER GAP, one of the wonders of the world and which is lovely enough to have defied description by some of our best travelers. Then you'll have a day at NIAGARA FALLS with visits to the Whirlpool and Rapids and a delightful evening sail across LAKE ERIE to DETROIT, returning by motor through the celebrated IRISH HILLS.

Truly there is nothing finer for a one week suggestion—eight full days of sightseeing all the time—Seeing America from an Arm Chair. No hotel reservations to make—no sightseeing trips to arrange—no transportation to buy—no time is spent ill-advisedly. No precious moments are wasted. Everything is arranged for you in advance by HOGLE-SPEARS travel experts. Just think of it—eight full days for only $80.

NEW TETON PARK LIES IN HEART OF DUDE RANCH LAND

Tenderfeet to Ride Its Trails This Year.

BY T. JOE CAHILL.
[Executive Secretary, Dude Ranch Association.]

"Saddle up for the Teton Mountain country!"

That will be the rallying cry for thousands of amateur cowboys and cowgirls in the west this summer.

A new national park has been created, right in the heart of Dude Ranch land. It is called the Grand Teton National park of Wyoming, and includes some of the most ruggedly beautiful scenery in the world. The new park is made to order for that type of vacation seeker who has made the modern dude ranch such a popular feature of the Rock Mountain west.

What a Dude Ranch Is.

There are several hundred dude ranches in Wyoming and Montana, within easy pack train traveling distance of the new park. These ranches get their name from the fact that they furnish recreation for those outdoor lovers who are generally known as "dudes" in western parlance, in distinction from the old-time "tenderfeet."

Horseback riding is one of the principal features of dude ranch life. Every dude ranch organizes pack train trips, all the foodstuffs, tents, and other supplies being carried on pack horses, under the guidance of real cowboys. Thus the dude, at nominal expense and with no trouble to himself, is taken into remote regions which would cost him a small fortune to see if he hired his own guides and outfit.

Horse Only Means of Travel.

The new Grand Teton park is too rugged for anything but horseback travel. Consequently it is expected that the dude ranch visitors will be the first to penetrate its depths and enjoy its scenic wonders—at least until roads can be built, which will not be for several seasons. But there are trails in plenty, and the government is going to see to it that these trails are improved and new ones built, and that this summer's visitors to the new park will not want for anything within reason.

Sam Woodring, chief ranger of Yellowstone, has been appointed superintendent of the new national park. The rules governing the new park are practically the same as those applying to other national parks, providing for the protection of natural features and curiosities and the prevention of forest fires. All hunting is forbidden, but there is plenty of trout fishing, which is free.

In Jackson Hole Country.

The historic Jackson Hole country is the setting for the new national park. Within the park boundaries are the three great peaks of the Tetons, including Mount Moran, with the Grand Teton rising above all. These peaks were a landmark for the trappers who penetrated the Jackson Hole country in early days. They can be seen for hundreds of miles about the surrounding country and were guides for the covered wagon travelers who came soon after Kit Carson, Jim Bridger, and other trailmakers had blazed the way.

In later years the Jackson Hole country became a cattle raising center. In fact, it is almost the "last stand" of the cattleman today.

Several years ago hunters began flocking to the Jackson Hole country, where great herds of elk still survive. It was only natural for them to put up at the cattle ranches.

Dude Ranches Get a Start.

This led to the gradual development of the dude ranch of today. The ranch owners put up more buildings and ceased to limit their guests to hunters. Now many women and children are to be found on dude ranches. In many instances they outnumber the men and they are just as enthusiastic as the men about horseback riding and pack train trips.

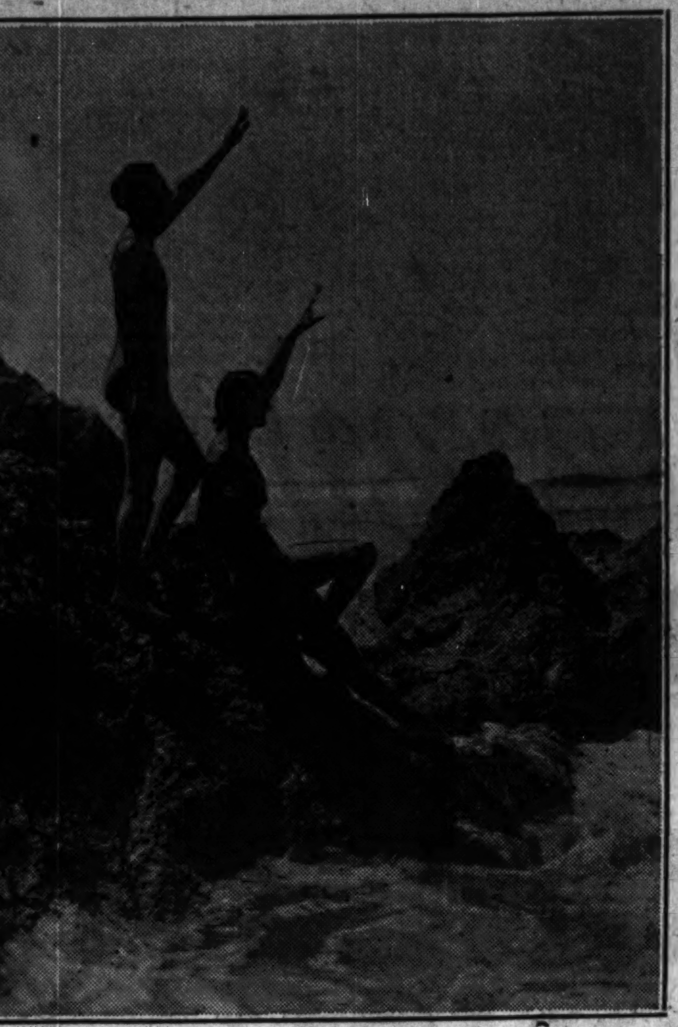
The ranchers keep right on with their cattle business when the "dude season" is on. This gives the visitor a chance to observe the work at the roundup and in the branding corral. In fact, if he so desires, a dude can take part in the actual work of the ranch. Thus he becomes an amateur cowboy, and it is surprising how many dudes develop proficiency in riding, roping, branding, and doing real cowboy work.

Rodeos are staged at many of the dude ranches two or three times a season and the more proficient riders demonstrate how good they are at staying on bucking horses. Everybody wears cowboy togs, not so much for show as owing to the fact that they are the most comfortable and practical.

Meals at a dude ranch are usually served at a central building. The guests sleep in cabins or tent houses. Mountain climbing, swimming, boating, archery, tennis and dancing are some of the amusements besides hunting, trout fishing and horseback riding.

In the Jackson Hole country, adjoining the new park, are dozens of dude ranches, the property valuation running as high as $300,000 on a single ranch. Surrounding the park, within a radius of 300 miles, are countless other dude ranches. There are upwards of 150 members of the newly formed Dude Rancher's association in Montana and Wyoming, and more are coming in right along.

Splashed by the Blue Pacific



The workaday world is far removed from this vacation land where the sunlit Pacific dashes against the rugged shore near La Jolla, Cal. Old Sol holds full sway in the setting, and here we have two of his worshipers.

CALLS NATURE FRESHENER OF MIND AND BODY

"The earth is the great reservoir of physical forces, and whilst no scientist has yet been able to discover how intimate or how perfect is the connection between the mental and the physical, there exists, no doubt, a correlation between the processes by which the body and the soul are kept healthy and vigorous by draughts on the great reserves of nature.

"One grows tired of books and cloyed with all manner of art. Then comes a hunger and a thirst for nature. Real thought gathering is like berry gathering—one must go to the wild vines for the racy flavored fruit. Art and nature are really the antipodes of each other—one is original, the other second hand. When we go from the library or the studio to the woods or fields, we go to get back what art has robbed us of—the freshness of nature. The suggestions of nature come—out of the mysterious, invisible generator; but art merely reflects its suggestions back upon nature."—Maurice Thompson.

Enjoy All Your Vacation In Cool
COLORADO

Pikes Peak Thru Gateway to Garden of the Gods

Gunnison
Seven Falls
Lariat Trail

AN ENTIRE summer will be too short to see and "do" all Colorado, but even in a short time you can have a wonderful vacation in any one of the several sections of this vast wonderland on the very tip of the continent.

Better plan on staying as long as possible, because you will hate to leave when the time comes, tho you will go home refreshed and exhilarated by the cool days and nights, and you'll carry with you an unforgettable memory of a perfect vacation.

You'll find just the place you want and can afford among the many camps, cabins, lodges, "dude" ranches, and hotels of the cities and resorts of Colorado. You may select a sequestered and inexpensive mountain retreat or a sumptuous hotel of the most luxurious appointments for your vacation rest and recreation.

Or you may prefer to tour thru the incomparable scenery by rail, by auto lines or in your own car.

You may choose to enjoy a thoro survey of the Pikes Peak Region with its motor highways to the summits of Pikes Peak and Cheyenne Mountain, the Garden of the Gods, the famous mineral springs, the Corley Highway over famous Cripple Creek "Short Line," the highway over the old Indian trail up Ute Pass to the innumerable scenic beauties and delightful resorts "back in the hills."

You may elect to thrill to varied scenes of a trip over the Sangre de Cristo and San Juan Ranges, thru fertile San Luis Valley and San Isabel National Forest, to the romance of the past in the cliff dwellings of Mesa Verde National Park.

From there, over Chief Ouray Highway, to Colorado River Canon, Grand Mesa and across the Continental Divide, past the highest peaks in the state and down the east slope thru the Arkansas River valley.

You will want to see Arapahoe Glacier and the other great moving masses of eternal snow and ice in the Glacier Region.

You may seek the natural grandeur of Poudre River Canon, Cameron Pass, Rocky Mountain National Park, Estes Park, the Fall River Road, Berthoud Pass, Denver's Mountain Parks, including the auto road up Mount Evans.

Or you may look to the new country of the northwest and other wide areas where scenic marvels, natural mineral and hot springs and many other attractions hold endless interest for you.

Wherever you go in Colorado you'll find no end of fun and inspiration to fill every waking hour. You'll enjoy the hikes, the horseback rides, the golf, tennis and other games, the fishing, the boating, the swimming, the picnics, the camp fire parties on calm moonlight nights, the camping out, if you like, and the more adventurous sports of mountain scaling and climbing tours.

Or you'll find many delightful companions for dancing, cards and other pastimes more in line with complete rest—but you'll be surprised at the energy you will absorb in the cool, crisp, dry air.

You can not have too much time for a vacation in Colorado. You can see much even in a short time.

Fill in and mail the attached coupon immediately and you will receive attractive and informative booklets about Colorado summer resorts.

ALL COST TOUR IDEA IS GAINING IN POPULARITY

Traveler Pays Lump Sum and Enjoys the Ride.

A new type of vacation travel is being presented in the all expense tour offered for the coming season by many of the leading travel bureaus. All expense tours of this type might be described as "packages of travel," for every item of cost which one encounters is included in the price of the tours. The prospective traveler pays all of his bills in one lump sum—the price of the tour he buys.

The growth of the all expense tour idea has been stimulated by the method of travel bureaus in merchandising their wares. Tourist agents and banks now sell all expense trips to Europe, Canada, the Atlantic coast, the Pacific coast, Bermuda, Hawaii—in fact, all popular vacation points in the world.

Capable couriers manage every detail, take care of tickets, baggage, and everything else. Reservations are made weeks ahead and all is planned in advance, so that escorted parties travel everywhere with a minimum of delay and inconvenience.

Many tours use special trains, which run on sightseeing schedule rather than on "mail" schedule. They pass through the scenic regions by daylight and stop only at the important points en route.

Escorted all expense tours offered by the various travel bureaus go under the names of house party tours, land cruises, club tours, tour adventures, colonial tours, and others.

One bureau, in outlining the advantages of this type of travel, lists the following points:

Land Travel by Special Trains through the wonderland west and historic east. Special trains, equipped for comfort, carry the tours. America's greatest railroads coöperate to make your journey pleasant.

Leisurely Sightseeing by Motor—Sightseeing programs are carefully arranged and are enjoyed in luxurious motors which visit all the chief points of interest.

Expertly Planned Programs—Travel wise experts plan your itinerary to enable you to get the most out of your trip. All reservations are made in advance.

Leading Hotels—Tours use leading hotels. Thus you are assured rooms with bath and attentive service.

Personally Conducted Parties—Tours are a particularly pleasant method of travel for women without escort. Tour conductors serve in that capacity.

No Baggage Worries—Couriers look after your baggage, transfer it from place to place, and have it in your hotel room at each stop, ready for your use.

The all expense tourist also travels with a congenial group of people, to whom he is introduced by hosts and hostesses aboard special trains. Receptions, teas, and entertainments enable members of the party to become acquainted quickly.

APPLE RIVER CANYON, DEEP AND COOL, ONE OF ILLINOIS' BEAUTY SPOTS

One of the beauty spots of Illinois is the cañon of Apple river, 138 miles northwest of Chicago, in Jo Daviess county. Gray-buff cliffs tower on each side of the cañon, which is five miles long. The cliffs range from 50 to 150 feet in height, shadowing the gorge floor, which in some places is only ten rods and at its greatest less than a quarter of a mile wide.

The river, small and cool, slips quietly along, deep and dark at the foot of the cliffs and noisy along the shoals. Apple river is the home of many a small-mouthed black bass and other fish. The wolf, the fox, the mink, and the raccoon still live in the cañon. More than 60 varieties of trees and 500 species of plants cover the valley, the slopes, and, here and there, the rocks.

GREAT HAWAIIAN VOLCANOES DRAW TOURIST THRONGS

Hawaii National park, which contains three celebrated volcanoes, may easily be reached by steamer from the port of Honolulu.

"The Hawaiian volcanoes," writes T. A. Jaggar Jr., director of the Hawaiian volcano observatory, "are truly a national asset, wholly unique of their kind, the most famous in the world of science and the most continuously, variously, and harmlessly active volcanoes on earth. Kilauea crater has been nearly continuously active, with a lake or lakes of molten lava, for a century.

"Mauna Loa is the largest active volcano in the world, with eruptions about once a decade, and has poured out more lava during the last century than any other volcano on the globe.

Haleakala is a mountain mass 10,000 feet high, with a tremendous crater rift in its summit eight miles in diameter and 2,000 feet deep, containing many lava cones. Haleakala erupted less than 200 years ago. The crater at sunrise is the grandest volcanic spectacle on earth."

The lava at Kilauea draws visitors from all over the world. It is a lake of molten lava a thousand feet long, with fountains fifty feet high boiling in it and waves splashing fiery liquid against its banks. It may be viewed from automobiles which go almost to the brink.

The national park areas include fine forests and tropical jungles. There are trails marked by signboards for horseback trips to the mountain tops, and rest houses are found along the way.

Ioa valley penetrates the mountains back of Waikulu. It is five miles long, two miles wide and near its head is 4,000 feet deep. It is filled with dense tropical growth and through it flows the Waikula river.

The tourist trip to Haleakala includes automobile service from Waikula to Iao valley and to Olinda, and saddle horses and guides from there to the summit.

The temperature of the coastal regions of the islands ranges during the year from 55 to 85 degrees. The northwest trade winds blow almost continuously. In the high altitudes the temperature may fall to freezing point.

Swimming, surf riding, game fishing, yachting, golf, polo, baseball, cricket, tennis, motoring, hunting, horse racing, horseback riding, and mountain climbing are among the diversions offered.

Come with us to the COLORADO ROCKIES
Enjoy a Vacation de Luxe

Inspiring Scenery Invigorating Atmosphere
Genial Companions A Fortnight of Delight

Far from smoke and typewriters—far from the din of traffic and the blurring rush of the sandwich shop—there's Vacationland! Colorado, rugged country of great mountains and forests, invites you!

Here you can really find peace and health. You will come back tanned and rested, with a glow in your cheek and a gleam in your eye. You'll have an appetite like a growing boy's, yet lose every pound of superfluous flesh. And you'll have the time of your life.

Perhaps it will be the burro ride at Colorado Springs that will make you forget you ever had a care in the world. Maybe it will be the trip up Lariat Trail, or the one to Rainbow Lake. By moonlight, "The Garden of the Gods" may carry you away into an enchanted paradise. But wait until one night just at sunset, when you will have the supreme thrill of the trip. On a mountainside, with the sunset glowing in the sky, with balsam and spruce weaving a spell about you, you will sit around a huge bed of coals, and satisfy your "growing-boy" appetite with thick broiled steaks, potatoes baked in their jackets, and brown, bubbling coffee.

Two weeks of sheer joy of living—at a cost so reasonable that you will be amazed.

The round trip rail fare is $43.05. The Rocky Mountain Limited leaves La Salle St. Station at 10:30 in the morning, and you are eating luncheon in Denver or Colorado Springs the next day. Or you may leave on the Colorado Express at 11:30 p. m., and arrive in Colorado early the second morning. No time wasted on the road—something to do every minute after you arrive. Colorado is a natural playground; man has added other attractions—golf courses, tennis courts, wonderful automobile roads.

You owe yourself this vacation. The Rock Island Lines offer a variety of personally conducted and independent all-expense tours from $125 up—including railroad fare and pullman, meals, hotel rooms, motor trips, etc. Fill out the coupon at left, and we will send you complete information on these tours. Do not delay. You will be the loser, if you do. Colorado and health are waiting for you!

NATIONAL PARKS GET READY FOR BANNER SEASON

Their Popularity Grows Year by Year.

Three million visitors are expected in the national parks this summer. The popularity of these great playgrounds of the people increases every year. When the park borders are crossed there is no fear of fences or preserves. You may live the kind of life you choose, taking a room at a luxurious hotel, living in a tent colony, or going it alone by the roadside, at some remote lake side or on the banks of a fishing stream. There is plenty of room away from the auto trails for all.

There are only a few restrictions in the parks. These relate to firearms and fires. Guns are not allowed and fires must be watched carefully. The fishing is open to all. There are innumerable trails over the high passes, and places that only a few penetrate each year. You may travel for days, weeks, months in these parks. The trails are well marked and there are forest rangers at intervals ready to be of service.

Each Park Has a Personality.

Each park has a distinct personabity and it is worth while to study these before deciding which one to visit. If you want glaciers, dangerous climbing, high and rugged passes, visit Glacier park or the new Jasper park in the Canadian Rockies. If you want an old and beautiful valley, with mild temperature and a chair by the riverside where you can look at the greatest rocks on this continent, go to Yosemite.

The Yellowstone, with its mud baths, its faithful geysers, and gorgeously colored grand canon, gives another picture. In Lassen park in northern California you may live close to a volcano that may rumble at any time and shoot fire and ashes for two miles into the sky.

The Giant Forest of the Sequoia national park contains the oldest living thing in the world, trees like General Sherman that measure twenty-five to thirty-six feet through from side to side. These trees are older than human history.

Take Your Choice of These.

Here are the main parks with their distinctive characteristics:

Rocky Mountain, in north middle Colorado.—This is a snowy range in the heart of the Rockies, showing records of the glacial period and with a few glaciers left. At the center is Long's peak, 14,250 feet high, which may be climbed without great danger. Good roads run through the reserve from Grand lake to Estes park.

Glacier, in northwestern Montana.—A mountain region of Alpine grandeur, 250 glacier fed lakes, 60 small glaciers, precipices thousands of feet deep.

Mesa Verde, in southwestern Colorado.—Notable prehistorical cliff dwellings. It holds the ruins of a civilization that passed out of existence many centuries ago.

Crater Lake, in southwestern Oregon.—A lake of deepest blue made when the top of Mount Mazama was blown out or swallowed in some gigantic upheaval of the past. Noted for its trout fishing.

Mount Rainier (Tacoma), west central Washington.—Largest accessible single peak glacier system—14 glaciers—48 square miles of glacier, fifty to five hundred feet thick. Sub-Alpine flower beds.

General Grant, middle eastern California.—Created to preserve the General Grant tree, 35 feet in diameter.

Sequoia, middle eastern California.—The Big Tree national park with 12,000 sequoias, mountain ranges, and mile deep cañons.

Yosemite, middle eastern California.—Old valley of world famous beauty. The Merced river cuts down from the High Sierras over Nevada falls and flows tranquilly through a wide meadow with big tree groves bordering it. From the open places one gets a view of El Capitan or the Half Dome, mile high rocks. Yosemite falls, Waterwheel falls in the Tuolumne river, many lakes and streams for trout fishing.

Yellowstone, northwestern Wyoming.—Geysers, boiling springs, mud volcanoes, petrified forests, lakes, streams, and waterfalls. Lots of room here and a wilderness where one may meet bear on the roadside and see moose on a far away meadow.

Zion National Monument, at southern edge of Utah.—A land of mountain wonders, natural bridges, cliff dwellers' homes.

SAVANNA HEADLANDS RETAIN BEAUTY OF PRIMEVAL ILLINOIS

Within the boundaries of Illinois and only a six hour drive from Chicago is a wild section of country—the Savanna headlands—containing many reminders of the Illinois Indians and retaining all the scenic beauty which awed the Indian into reverence.

The Savanna headlands are near the town of Savanna and border on Jo Daviess county with its famous Apple River canyon. Look it up on your map. It is easily accessible by motor. Plan to visit the rocky bluffs, the wooded flood plains and the many islands.

SUPERIOR FOREST PRESERVE A JOY TO OUTDOORSMEN

North and west of the rugged, rockbound shores of Lake Superior and east of the Rainy river watershed lies a vast wilderness region dotted with countless lakes, streams and waterfalls. The southern half of this fisherman's, camper's and canoeist's paradise is the Superior National forest, comprising more than a million and a quarter acres. The northern half lies in the Quetico Provincial park of Ontario, Canada.

These great adjoining preserves of timber, water and wild life represent the last great stand of untouched wilderness in the Mississippi valley. Because of the thousands of lakes and streams, making it possible for the canoeist to travel like the fur traders and explorers of the old days, the area is unlike any other wilderness playground in the country. In fact, the Superior and Quetico reserves would be impenetrable were it not for the water routes which traverse the wilderness.

The exploring vacationist can spend weeks and months paddling over historic water routes in this boundary playground, yet never dip a paddle in the same lake when he works his way out to civilization.

Theodore Roosevelt set aside the Superior National forest as a national playground when he was President. Canada met the "let us play" idea by establishing the Quetico park alongside of the United States playground, thus setting aside another preserve comprising millions of acres.

Today thousands of outdoorsmen and conservationists have their eyes on this region because of the battle being waged to save it from despoliation. The fight has finally reached congress because the Superior-Quetico council, the Izaak Walton league, the state of Minnesota and dozens of other organizations in both Canada and the United States propose to bring Canada and Uncle Sam together on plans to preserve the forest and park forever.

"the big one" doesn't get away!

Oregon is the fly-fishing state of the Union. The real value of a vacation is to help one forget the cares, problems and routines of business and to obtain new vigor of mind and body for the tasks of the coming year. Such a vacation may be found in Oregon, the center of the great Pacific Coast Empire—the most beautiful, the most enchanting region in the United States—where many great future developments, in commerce, industry and foreign trade are anticipated.

ROCKIES A NIGHT AND DAY RIDE OUT OF CHICAGOLAND

Trains Bring Peaks Close to Prairie Dwellers.

Colorado is the nearest mountain vacation land to the dwellers in the central states. Step on a train in Chicago any evening and the next afternoon the earth is rolling and heaving into the great bulk of the Rocky mountains, with the western horizon a line of snowy ranges. The air is lighter and the wind that sweeps down from the high hills is cool and dry.

The Pike's Peak region was the first part of Colorado to become well known to the outsider. The city of Colorado Springs is the immediate gateway to all this region. Close by nestles Manitou and roads lead in all directions into the mountains and up to their tops.

Choice of Many Sights.

The visitor may stay at a hotel in either Colorado Springs or Manitou and enjoy the motor trips he chooses with equal convenience from both places. He may proceed up the narrow defiles of Williams canyon to the beautiful Cave of the Winds, or in another direction through Ute pass to Rainbow falls. Crystal park, eight miles from Manitou and 1,500 feet above it with its high flung switch backs and sweeping views is a ride to be long remembered.

The two Cheyenne canyons, made famous by the Seven falls and the Pillars of Hercules, skirt the mountain of the same name that is almost as high as Pike's Peak. A short way off is the Garden of the Gods, that great field of red sandstone which wind and weather have carved into remarkable shapes.

A few years ago one of the trips was on the famous "Short Line" railway to Cripple Creek, but recently the rails were taken up and, under an arrangement with the government, the roadbed has been converted into a scenic automobile highway to the gold mining towns of Cripple Creek and Victor.

Two Ways Up Pike's Peak.

"There are two routes up Pike's Peak—the spectacular cog road which takes a visitor in ease and comfort to the observatory at the top, and the highway which mounts the other side by a series of daring loops.

Denver, the capital of Colorado, lies 75 miles north of Colorado Springs. The mountain parks lying outside the city limits are an attraction. On Lookout mountain rests the body of Buffalo Bill with the historic museum nearby, housing relics of early life in the west.

Denver also serves as a gateway to a vacation land to the north known as Rocky Mountain National park and Estes park.

In Rocky Mountain Park.

Rocky Mountain National park extends twenty-five miles north and south and fifteen miles east and west, embracing 400 square miles of territory.

From the northwest corner to the middle of its southern boundary the snow capped giants forming the Continental divide rear their grim, rocky crests in an irregular line which forms the backbone of this park and is its commanding feature, ever present, ever changing, and ever awe inspiring. Here are fifty-one peaks with summits more than 10,000 feet high, unnumbered canyons, about 200 lakes, many unnamed, waterfalls, glaciers, forests and wild flowers.

There is probably no mountain range more majestic than the main range of the Rockies as seen from almost any part of the park. One of the most striking features is the accessibility of these mountain tops.

One may mount a horse after early breakfast in the valley, ride up Flattop to enjoy one of the great views of the world, and be back for late luncheon; or cross the Continental divide from the hotels of one side to the hotels of the other side of the park, between early breakfast and late dinner.

From early dawn, with its delicate tints of rose and amethyst, to later afternoon, with its golden sunshine and lengthening purple shadows, the range presents an ever-changing panorama. On a peak, perhaps, settles momentarily a gray snow-cloud; in a canyon breaks a brief-lived shower, sunshot with silvery rain as it quickly clears away; while over all the fleece flecked sapphire sky and dazzling sunlight hold sway.

At midday all nature rests and in its brighter light the range seems to cower and grow small, only to reassert itself in full power and majesty as day ends with a sunset of such splendor as only the Rockies may boast.

Meadows Among the Hills.

It is in nearer and more intimate aspects, however, that the beauties of the park reveal themselves. In the lower levels are widespread undulating meadows, dotted with evergreens and interspersed with the hills and ridges which thrust themselves forward in all directions from the main range to the west, and from the lesser range to the east.

Thus diversified, the landscape becomes a scenic kaleidoscope, no matter how short a distance one may wander.

Unless the visitor deliberately chooses to do otherwise, he will find his footsteps leading unconsciously to the heights, and as he climbs and gets his first views of the surrounding country his desire to scale the more lofty crests grows in proportion as he ascends, until finally he becomes obsessed with a desire to climb that noble mountain of the rampart range, Long's peak, from whose summit the whole world seems to lie at one's feet.

The climate of Rocky Mountain National park needs no extensive description. Due to the altitude, which varies from 7,500 to 14,255 feet, the air is light, very dry, and has a wonderfully stimulating effect, especially on those accustomed to the lower levels. The sunshine is genial, warm, bright, and almost constant during the summer months.

LAKE SHIPS TAKE CANOE ROUTE OF EARLY EXPLORERS

Many Historic Scenes on Quebec Voyage.

From the Navy pier in Chicago you may set out on an expedition this summer that follows the way taken by the French explorers who came west in canoes and frail ships to discover the great lakes and the rivers of the interior.

This way of travel is by big oil burning liners and is like embarking on an ocean voyage. Mackinac island is the first port of call. It has associations which reach back more than two centuries. A glance at history shows that on Aug. 7, 1679, La Salle and 34 adventurers from France sailed out on Lake Erie on the ship "The Griffin," which was built in a little creek near where Buffalo now stands. La Salle had been sent by Gov. Gen. Frontenac of New France to explore the Mississippi river.

Go Over La Salle's Route.

On the fourth day out he entered the straits of Detroit, passed through into Lake Huron and eventually reached St. Ignace at the Straits of Mackinac. How "The Griffin" was lost and La Salle's adventures in the Mississippi valley will make interesting reading in preparation for this voyage today.

From Mackinac you go eastward over La Salle's route, passing the Thirty Thousand islands en route to Parry sound and Georgian bay, and the highlands of Ontario.

From Niagara another journey to the sea is begun. Lewiston, N. Y., is a point of embarkation. This was called "The Mountains" by La Salle and Hennepin when they explored the territory in 1678. The first stop is Toronto, and then a diagonal journey across Lake Ontario to Rochester. The next stop in foreign soil is at Kingston, Ont., which was founded by the French under Frontenac. La Salle was its first commandant. His stone fortress, built to hold off the Iroquois, is still preserved.

Soon after leaving Kingston the St. Lawrence river is entered. The length of the river from Kingston to Point des Monts is 688 miles. The famous Thousand islands, numbering exactly 1,692, extend fifty miles from the lake. At Prescott, Ont., a transfer is made to a river steamer built for running the rapids. It is the building of canals around these rapids that constitutes the link in the St. Lawrence to the sea deep waterway project.

Through the Lachine Rapids.

The steamer is carried by force of the current at 20 miles an hour through these rapids. At Lachine Rapids, the last of the chain, the channel is narrow and winding. The boat plunges among the white foam pools, and is carried through spray along the edge of treacherous rocks.

Soon after leaving the rapids the traveler arrives at the placid waters in front of Montreal. From here the big steamers go on to Quebec, Murray Bay and the Saguenay river. This river is known as the deepest in the world. It runs from Lake St. John into the St. Lawrence at Tadoussac.

Another summer journey on the great lakes goes west from Mackinac and Sault Ste. Marie, into the sky blue waters of Lake Superior, touching at Port Arthur and Fort William, Duluth and Superior.

U. S. WELCOMED TO WISCONSIN BY GOV. KOHLER

State Endowed by Nature as Great Playground.

BY WALTER J. KOHLER.
[Governor of Wisconsin.]

Madison, Wis., June 15.—[Special.]—Wisconsin has been endowed by nature with attractions which fit it to be the playground and vacation center for millions of people.

With great areas of woodland, thousands of beautiful lakes, and a topography that is endlessly varied, the state has a remarkable scenic interest and offers unsurpassed opportunities for outdoor life and sports of all kinds.

While devotees of winter pastimes find the natural conditions and the cold but bracing winter climate of Wisconsin alluring, it is particularly during the summer months, when conditions of travel are at their best and when vacations are ordinarily easiest to arrange, that Wisconsin highways teem with motor traffic from all parts of the country and even from abroad.

More Visitors Every Year.

Then the numerous resorts are frequented by annually increasing numbers of vacationists for whom the woods and waters of the state provide wholesome recreation.

There are thousands of lakes in the state, together with streams that are almost countless. Many of the waters are famed for the fishing they afford. Some of the principal railroad lines regularly run fishermen's specials into Wisconsin during the season and are heavily patronized.

Last year the state had the distinction of being selected by President Coolidge as the place where he chose to spend the summer months.

An excellent and steadily improving system of well marked highways facilitates travel by motor to all parts of the state.

Many Vacation Resorts.

Well equipped camping grounds and good information service are everywhere at the disposal of tourists.

Summer camps, cottages, and resorts in large numbers provide adequate and comfortable quarters adjacent to the most attractive lakes and recreational centers, and every facility in the way of guides, boats, and other vacation requirements will be found available.

Wisconsin has many good hotels, as well as shopping facilities and means of entertainment.

The people of Wisconsin are keenly conscious of the vacation attractions which the state affords, and they not only make use of them for their own enjoyment and health but cordially welcome the participation of those who come from elsewhere to make a tour or enjoy a vacation.

THERE'S MORE TO BE SEEN THAN ROCK AT STARVED ROCK PARK

When the thousands of motorists who tour Illinois in quest of its picturesque scenery see Starved Rock and gaze at Lover's Leap, they often leave off there and overlook the many garden spots that are close at hand.

West of the present park and extending for two miles to the vicinity of Little Rock, is a series of rough canyons similar to those in the park. These wild and rugged canyons, perhaps just a bit off the main line of travel, should be viewed on a visit to Starved Rock. Nearby are the oldest rocks exposed in Illinois. Also near is Deer Park canyon with several small but beautiful side canyons.

Not so far away is Bailey's falls. Here is the Vermilion river with its steep cliffs and small streams tumbling over to the earth below. Bailey's falls is formed by great masses of heavy limestone detached from the cliffs and fallen in confusion into Vermilion gorge.

Can You Build a Fire in Rain? Hints That Help

"It is a good test of one's resourcefulness to make a fire out of doors in rainy weather. The best way to go about it depends upon local conditions. Dry fuel and a place to build a fire can often be found under big, uptilted logs, shelving rocks, and similar natural shelters, or in the core of an old stump. In default of these, look for a dead softwood tree that leans to the south. The wood and the bark on the under side—chop off some, split it fine, and build your fire under the shelter of the trunk."—Horace Kephart, authority on camping.

Atlantic City Board Walk Will Have Special Lighting

The Atlantic City board walk will have a special lighting display during the summer season in commemoration of the diamond jubilee of the city's charter and the opening of a great city auditorium. Illuminated insigna of various states and colored arches of jeweled lights are to be among the features.

Trip Abroad and Back Can Be Made in Three Weeks

A trip to Europe can be made in three weeks. The faster boats land passengers on the other side in six days. You can spend a week sightseeing and return by the end of the third week. Tourist third cabin fare is $200 for the round trip. It is best to take grips instead of trunks.

PORTLAND, ORE., GATE TO PACIFIC COAST HIGHWAYS

Motor Routes Skirt Ocean and Snowy Mountains.

Portland, Ore., is a key city for highway and railroad travel on the Pacific coast. It is reached by four transcontinental highways which connect with all the western railway systems.

Within the last ten years $110,000,000 has been spent on highways in Oregon. There are 900 miles of paved road and 2,300 miles of macadamized and graveled roads, which are kept oiled. In addition there are 1,250 miles of marked roads in good condition.

Oregon's national park is unique. Crater lake is the attraction, a lake of deepest blue lying in the crater of an extinct volcano, 6,000 feet above sea level, filled with sporty fish. This may be reached by automobile over good roads.

Mount Hood Home of Glaciers.

In the national forest of the state is Mount Hood, 11,225 feet high, its peak always snow covered and with eight living glaciers clinging to its sides. There is an excellent automobile road to the snow line at 6,000 feet, and the mountain is circled by the Mount Hood Loop road.

Other attractions are the Three Sisters, near Bend, Ore., and the Josephine caves or marble halls of Oregon, in Josephine county, near the River Rogue. This is reached by the Redwood highway through California and Oregon. This highway is along the sea for part of its route, and passes through great groves of redwoods hundreds of feet high and thousands of years old.

The Roosevelt highway borders the sea for 300 miles in Oregon, and the Wallowa lake and mountains in eastern Oregon are reached by a wonderful piece of road construction. The famous Columbia river highway is completely paved from The Dalles to the Pacific ocean, and winds along the river at the base of high hills from which eleven streams tumble in spray for hundreds of feet.

Snowy Peaks Along Highway.

From The Dalles, 100 miles east of Portland, there is another north and south highway passing through the central portion of the state to Bend and Klamath Falls, thence connecting at Ashland with the Pacific highway. Along this route there are eleven snow capped peaks, like sentinels in a row, overlooking both eastern and western Oregon. From each one of the snowy crests can be seen an entirely different country. On the east are the wheat fields and the cattle ranges and the deserts of the old west, and on the west the beautiful valleys of the Ronds, Willamette, Rogue, and Umpqua rivers.

The great Pacific highway which extends from Vancouver, B. C., to Tia Juana, Mexico, 1,660 miles paved like a city street, with the exception of about sixty miles in northern California, the longest paved highway in the world, cuts at right angles the Columbia River highway at Portland.

The straits of Juan de Fuca, the shores of Puget sound, and the valleys of the Cowlitz, Columbia, Willamette, Umpqua, Rogue and Klamath rivers, one after another are spread out before the eyes of the motorists as he passes from one city to another, through three western states and one western province of Canada.

Portland a City of 350,000.

Portland has grown into a city of 350,000 people with fine business blocks and public buildings high enough for utility and not too high to exclude the sun, with stately cathedrals and churches, modern hospitals, institutions of higher education, nine spacious high schools, 77 public schools, 55 parks, and 24 playgrounds, and 763 miles of improved streets.

These are the physical aspects of the city of Portland, combined with a residential section where lawns are always vividly green, with millions of roses not only in gardens but lining the parking strips of the streets.

Portland has more golf courses and more golf champions than any city its size in the world, and perhaps a greater percentage of homes electrically lighted and equipped with gas and electrical labor saving devices than any other city.

A Sight for City Wearied Eyes

HOW TO FOLLOW OBSCURE TRAILS IN WILDERNESS

Except in occasional obscure places, trails in common use are clearly evident by the slight depression worn in the ground. But sometimes in rocky places, meadows, or forests where the ground is thickly strewn with litter, or when the ground is covered with snow, the path underfoot is not distinguishable. To provide against such a contingency trails are generally indicated by a continuous series of easily recognized marks within sight of each other.

In the forest the marks are blazes on trees close to the trail, a blaze being a cut through the bark exposing a surface of the lighter colored sapwood. Blazes are cut in various shapes, many trails being marked by those having the form of the letter T. In rocky places trails are usually indicated by several rocks piled one on top of the other, commonly known as "ducs," "monuments," or "cairns." In meadows stakes or ducs are sometimes set along the trail if the trail is not marked where it leaves the meadow.

Foreign Customs Speed U. S. Passengers Ashore

Eastbound tourist third cabin passengers are subjected to no unusual delay in landing from ships in Europe or Canada. Examination of passengers by European immigration officials takes place on board the ship immediately on arrival and the baggage is examined in the customs shed on the landing.

THE short corridor shown above unites two of the most famous restaurants on this continent—the Terrace Garden and the Boston Oyster House in the Morrison Hotel. Located so close together, the impressive difference between them is all the more remarkable.

A Contrast in Types

The brilliant dance music and picturesque entertainments of the former offer a marked contrast to the delightful tranquillity of the latter, which has helped to make Chicago history for half a century. They illustrate the flexibility with which the hotel service meets the varied needs of its immense clientele.

1,944 Rooms, Each with Bath

Every room at the Morrison Hotel is outside, with bath, circulating ice water, bed-head reading lamp, telephone, and Servidor. A housekeeper is on duty on every floor, and all guests enjoy the privilege of garage service. Offices, theaters, stores and railroads are grouped closer than to any other hotel.

Rooms, $2.50 Up

The extremely low rate scale is due to the high value of the subleases at this central location. They pay all the ground rent and the guests enjoy the saving.

7 day CRUISE on each of the Big 3

"Where Youth and Pleasure Meet"

A SPIRIT of youth and gaiety pervades the giant liners, "Noronic", "Hamonic", and "Huronic", plying weekly from Detroit to Duluth and back. Of course many older people take these trips too, but youth is a matter of how young and how well you feel.

Great Huron and greater Superior stretch before your ship's cleaving bow. You step ashore at Sarnia, Canada, for a day's outing, visit the "Soo" with its celebrated locks, Port Arthur, Fort William and outbound journey's end, Duluth. You will enjoy the 35 mile drive through the beautiful residential districts of this city perched upon a rock. There is an all day picnic among the pine forests of Chippewa Park near Port Arthur. And golf at a choice of sporty courses is merely a matter of bringing your clubs along.

Dancing nightly and often informally on deck in the afternoon to excellent music; long tramps around the decks to give an appetite for wonderful meals; hundreds of gulls gracefully banking, side slipping and nose diving in the wake; the atmosphere of an ocean liner—all these and more make for the happiest and most unusual seven day holiday in your experience.

Sailings from Brush Street Dock, Detroit, 11 p.m., Monday, Wednesday and Friday.

STRANGE HISTORY OF GLACIER PARK WRITTEN IN ROCK

Beauties Due to Upheaval of Ocean Floor.

Straddling the backbone of the continent in northwestern Montana and southern Alberta is the international playground of Glacier and Waterton Lakes national parks. Here peak after peak, named and unnamed, rears its sawtooth edges to the clouds. Three score glaciers are slowly and silently grinding away; three hundred lakes in valley and in mountain pocket give back to the sky its blue; half a thousand waterfalls cascade from everlasting snow, and myriads of wild flowers carpet each valley and forest glade.

The rocks tell an almost incredible story. The twisted, tilted, and sometimes folded rocky layers of which the mountains are composed and which, in Glacier park, lie from a mile to two miles above sea level, were once the bed of an ocean. This portion of the earth's crust was lifted in the course of perhaps thousands of years by some tremendous pressure from within and faulting occurred.

Erosion Brings Out Colors.

The rising mountains split lengthwise along their crests, and the western edge rose thousands of feet higher than the eastern edge. Under continued pressure the western edge overlapped the eastern edge for several miles, producing the outstanding geological phenomena known as the Lewis Overthrust fault. Then, during perhaps some thousands of years, the higher and younger strata eroded until only the most ancient and colorful shales, limestones, and sandstones remained.

With this story of the rock formation in mind the characteristics of the landscape will immediately be plain to the visitor. East of the continental divide precipices of great height and a wild, extraordinarily diversified country are to be found, while on the west the country falls away gradually.

The region is an unspoiled wilderness, and yet, within these mountains, in perfect harmony with the beauty wrought by nature, there are modern stopping places which serve not only as centers from which the parks may be explored in sections but as focal points for an attractive social life. At each of the principal scenic centers in Glacier park, and now in Waterton Lakes park, there are comfortable hotels, linked into a chain by motor highways, launch routes on the lakes, and easy trails over the mountain passes.

Roads and Boats Link Hotels.

From Glacier Park hotel an excellent motor road skirts the main range of the Rockies in a northern direction, linking that hotel with the various east side scenic centers, either direct or by branch roads. On St. Mary lake a launch connects the Going-to-the-Sun chalets with the St. Mary chalets, which are on the highway. On Waterton lake another launch plies between the Prince of Wales hotel and the mountain fastnesses at the American end of the lake.

Auxiliary to these motor and launch routes are hundreds of miles of well built and maintained mountain trails for horseback riders and hikers. Longer trails connect all the chalet groups and the camps in the parks to the hotel system. It is possible to "do" the parks entirely by trail, either on horseback or afoot, but larger number of visitors combine the several methods of travel, using the automobile between the hotels and the trails, either in the saddle or afoot, for the shorter distances.

Three Boats Ferry Autos Across Mackinac Straits

Michigan is well prepared to handle the great army of motorists that will cross the Straits of Mackinac this touring season by addition of a new automobile deck on the steamer Straits of Mackinac, the newest boat of the fleet plying across the straits. Three boats are now in use ferrying automobiles across the straits. It is expected 150,000 cars will be carried across this year.

Ferryboat Put in Service for Door County's Visitors

A novel ferryboat has gone into service in Lake Michigan designed to transfer automobiles and passengers across a dangerous passage known as Death's Door, between the upper end of Door county, in Wisconsin, and Washington island. The boat carries eight automobiles, 100 passengers, and the United States mail.

HIGHWAY SCOUTS COMPILE TOURING DATA OF ALL U. S.

Washington, D. C., June 15.—America's motor touring army will be moved with greater dispatch as a result of a conference of road scouts now under way here. The meeting, always held at the beginning of the summer touring season, is under auspices of the national touring bureau of the American Automobile association and is primarily for the purpose of developing accurate road information from the far reaches of the United States.

These road scouts are continually on the roads of the nation, logging highways, reporting detours and generally acting as the vanguard of motordom. They travel in specially built and equipped automobiles and at all times respond to the call of motorists for assistance or information.

"The Beautiful Country" Borders Winnipeg River

Minaki, the Indian name for "The Beautiful Country," lies along the Winnipeg river between Lake of the Woods and Winnipeg. It was a post along the old Canoe Express route of the fur trading days. La Verandrye and Mackenzie passed that way, and all the pathfinders who braved the privation and perils of an unknown land to hunt for the western sea.

Skillful Trout Fisherman Doesn't Need Barb Hook

If you have a good split bamboo fly rod you can land just as many trout with a barbless hook as with a barbed hook if you keep the bend in your rod, not allowing the line to slacken. The barbless hook can be removed from the mouths of the little fish and they live. It is the barb that tears their mouths and kills them.

MILES OF PARKS LURE TOURIST IN CANADIAN WEST

Mountains and Streams Offer Many Diversions.

Four thousand miles of parks are inclosed in the southern part of the Canadian Rockies. The hotels and bungalow camps which form the starting point for the summer tourist in these regions are now ready for business. There are more than six hundred peaks to expore, an ocean of mountains that takes a train twenty-four hours to traverse. The combination of mountain, lake, and stream meets every mood, whether it be for hunting, fishing, wandering on foot from one camp to another, motoring, taking the baths at Banff or Radium Hot Springs, golfing, or canoeing.

During the summer season there are signs of real life always evident to the visitor. Picturesque guides pass, trailing strings of ponies already saddled or driving them ahead with whoops, while one of the Scarlet and Gold, a Mountie in dress parade uniform, lounges on his horse or dismounts with easy grace to walk with jingling spurs, erect and well trained.

Guides Whittle Out Animals.

At Golden the Swiss guides whittle amazingly lifelike animals from wood while waiting to conduct a party of mountain climbers around Banff or Lake Louise. Indian days at Banff bring the Stoneys up from the reservation. Members of the Trail Riders of the Canadian Rockies gather every summer for a week on horses investigating new districts. The Calgary stampede in July and the Banff Scottish festival in August are important occurrences, too, but the most important of all is that which appeals to the visitor himself.

Canadian golf this season faces the greatest year in its history, with the springing up of new clubs in every community in the dominion and British and American golf moguls beckoning to Canadian champions, some of whom have already listened to the call and have become interested, if not in the actual competition, in important ventures connected with the game. There are close to 500 clubs in Canada. Among the leading ones is the Banff Springs hotel course in the Canadian Rockies.

This beautiful 18 hole course for a long time received only casual attention. The fairways became baked and the animals in Rocky Mountain park, of which Banff is the headquarters, particularly the elk, neglected to replace the divots they so enthusiastically pawed out of the greens.

Finally the wails of the visiting golfers must have been heard, for Stanley Thompson, one of the famous Thompson brothers and a prominent golf architect, was commissioned to plan a new course. Trees were cut, rock blasted and carloads of soil brought by freight trains from Calgary for the fairways. Greens, bunkers, and tees were entirely rebuilt and today the Banff course is being whipped into shape. It is not at its best yet, but one would never realize it, and when it has been carefully developed it will be one of the finest courses on the continent.

Mountain Air Deceptive.

The first tee is but a short distance from the hotel and here one may choose one of three tees, according to his ability. Of course, the fact that the course is about a mile above sea level exhilarates the golfer and will tend to influence him to use the longest of tees, which makes the course about 6,650 yards long. The visitor may play the entire course before awakening to the fact that the mountain air is deceptive with respect to distances.

The fine air, the abundance of trees, and the unsurpassed view of the Fairholme range, with the Bow valley and river give it a novel distinction.

CONSERVATION MOVE IS REAL PATRIOTISM, GEN. DAWES ASSERTS

"The conservation movement in the United States today constitutes this country's finest demonstration of pure idealism — of unselfish patriotism. Those who adhere to it solely for the love of the out-of-doors, who comprehend their duty only in terms of planting a tree, purifying a stream, protecting a bird's nest, or otherwise making the out-of-doors a little cleaner, a little more beautiful, and a little more alive with the pulse of nature, have justification enough for their work and reward enough in their accomplishments. On economic grounds alone we may call upon the self interest of our people and justify all the time and the energy that is expended in a conservative movement"—Charles G. Dawes, United States ambassador to Great Britain.

RAILROADS OFFER EXCURSION RATES ON JOURNEY EAST

Costs of Sightseeing Expeditions Reduced.

Low round trip summer excursion fares to New York, Long Island, Philadelphia, Washington, Baltimore, and the New Jersey seashore resorts, including Atlantic City, have been announced by eastern railroads. The cost of summer vacations to the east is now greatly reduced.

The Atlantic seaboard from the lower end of Chesapeake bay to New York is crowded with attractions for the vacationist. This district also contains much of historical interest for the sightseer in revolutionary and civil war scenes.

The lower summer fares have a return limit of 30 days, ample time for the vacationist. Stopovers are permitted at all principal points en route. All the most interesting cities of the east are thus opened to the tourist.

Much to See in New York.

Thousands are expected to take the opportunity to visit New York at reduced fares, drawn by its historical significance and present interest as well. New York's sky line, parks, theaters and art galleries attract larger numbers of summer visitors each year.

Those who like outdoor sports will visit Long island. Water sports abound in Long Island sound and the numerous bays surrounding this famous sunrise land. Deep sea fishing is especially popular around Montauk point.

Golfers will enjoy the eighty-six well known courses on Long island, and tennis fans will see some of the ranking tournaments of the year on the courts there.

Stopover at Washington.

The vacationists may stop over at Washington on the way to the east to see the capital's buildings and the boulevards, monuments and memorials. Sightseeing is made easy in Washington by the wide thoroughfares which extend throughout the city and to Mount Vernon, Georgetown, Arlington, and many outlying places of interest. Washington, too, is only a short distance from the Virginia tidewater country at Norfolk, and from Virginia Beach, one of the Atlantic coast's popular seaside resorts.

The low summer rates should attract many interested in revolutionary or civil war history to the region around Baltimore. Gettysburg battlefield is only a short distance from that city. Much of the charm of colonial days still lingers at Baltimore.

Historical interest, too, takes many visitors to Philadelphia, where relics of the nation's birth stand surrounded by modern skyscrapers. Independence hall, the cradle of American liberty, and the rows of old red brick mansions with small paned windows are unchanged from the days of Franklin, the Declaration of Independence and the Continental congress. Valley Forge can be visited conveniently by sightseeing bus from Philadelphia.

And Then to Atlantic City!

But the climax of the eastern trip for many tourists will undoubtedly be Atlantic City, the most famous ocean resort in America. Here vacationists will find every form of outdoor sport: golf, riding, yachting, fishing, aviation, trapshooting, and swimming.

The seven mile Boardwalk and the cool sea breeze will provide adequate entertainment for many. For the rest, besides outdor sports, there are music, dancing, and theaters. Radiating from Atlantic City is a continuous line of attractive resorts along the Jersey coast.

Outdoors Called Man's Aid in Battle to Stave Off Age

"The man who builds a machine may know the craftsman's satisfaction with a job well done, but in some mystic way a man who plants a tree becomes a kind of partner with God, in a creative act, because you cannot build trees; all you can do is preside at the mystery of their growth; and we know that a people that respects its out-of-doors keeps contact with that eternally young spirit of nature which helps us as nothing else can help to preserve in us the spirit of youth in that fight against age, that all of us have to make from our birth."—Glenn Frank, president of the University of Wisconsin.

CONSTRUCT DRIVE THROUGH "PINES" OF OGLE COUNTY

Oregon, Ill., June 15. — Motorists driving to "The Pines," Illinois' newest public park a few miles west of Oregon, will find newly built roads and also will be permitted to inspect practically all the scenic beauties of the resort which has long been one of the attractions of Ogle county, but which has been privately controlled in the past.

The construction of drives and bridges has been turned over to the state highway department, and a topographical map has been prepared which shows the location of the streams, bluffs, roads and all natural attractions. Construction has commenced on a two-way drive which has its entrance sixty rods east of Pine creek bridge on the south side of the resort. Winding through the park in such a way that motorists may view the major portion of the principal trees and most attractive views, the drive will connect at the summit of the hill with the road coming in from the east entrance. There will be sufficient width at all points for two cars.

The white pine forest is the last in the middle west of any considerable size. There are about 500 acres of this timbered tract. The white pine is nearly extinct in Illinois, and, but for the recent purchase by the legislature of the Ogle county forest, the owners might have razed the site for agriculture. As it is, the retreat is now to be preserved for all time, free to the public.

Trip of a Lifetime.. in 2 vacation weeks
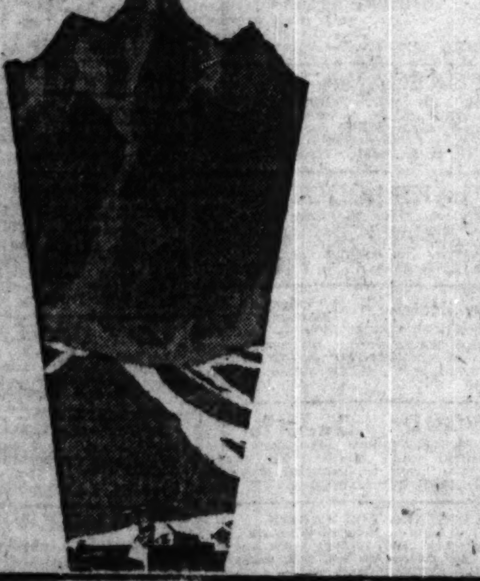
at minimum cost



Now ... you may have a full week, perhaps ten or eleven days, in Southern California and be back home on the dot.

A trip to Southern California offers the greatest variety of any one summer vacation trip on this continent! Here everything is so refreshingly novel that a stay from a week to several months will repay you for years to come.

Have this clearly in mind. You can arrange to leave the Central and Midwest, for example, on Friday night and arrive in Southern California Monday, the day your vacation actually begins! If your time will be limited, read the following itinerary of what you can see and do here in only seven days:

FIRST DAY—All-day sightseeing trip, visiting San Gabriel Mission, Huntington Estate, Pasadena, Glendale, Universal City, Mulholland Skyline Drive, picturesque Topango Canyon to the Pacific. Surf bathing at Santa Monica.

SECOND DAY—Trip through California's orange kingdom—Riverside, San Bernardino, Redlands.

THIRD DAY—Ocean sail to Catalina, California's Magic Isle—viewing Submarine Gardens.

FOURTH DAY—To San Diego via Long Beach and other seaside cities, Coronado and the Silver Strand. Tia Juana and Agua Caliente, Mexico's Monte Carlo.

FIFTH DAY — Sightseeing tour of San Diego. Return to Los Angeles via San Juan Capistrano Mission, Santa Ana, and Santa Fe Springs oil fields.

SIXTH DAY—Tour Hollywood and Beverly Hills. Then to mile-high Mt. Lowe for dinner and spectacular night view.

SEVENTH DAY—Santa Barbara, via Ventura. Swim at Montecito (millionaire colony), Santa Barbara Mission.

NOTE: Wide variety of evening diversion—Hollywood Bowl "Symphonies Under the Stars," Pilgrimage Play (America's Oberammergau), Los Angeles and Hollywood theatres and cafes, Hollywood hills for night view of Los Angeles. Most anything you may desire.

Compare such a vacation in Southern California with what you have done in past years. The whole plan is a revelation; it will exceed your expectations. Low round trip fares May 15 until Oct. 31.

And, surely this is a summer land as well as a wonder land, for the air is keen and dry; humidity is rarely even apparent. Rain, thunder and lightning are practically unknown in summer. Nights are bracingly cool, due to prevailing winds that sweep in over thousands of miles of Pacific Ocean. You need light wraps. Ten nights out of eleven you'll sleep under blankets!

No one realizes what Southern California has in store for them until they are here. From the 270 miles of ocean beaches to the summer snow peaks of the High Sierra every intriguing entertainment is yours to command. The orange groves, billion dollar oil fields of Los Angeles County (whose agricultural output yearly approximates $95,000,000), the Old Spanish Missions, nearby mile-high mountains, the finest swimming and aquatic sports, motoring on 5000 miles of boulevards, everything the vacationist can yearn for. And, while here, you may see the entire Pacific Coast at small extra expense.

Los Angeles, metropolis of the Pacific Coast, will delight you with its great hotels, fine shops, theatres and cafes. Hollywood is part of Los Angeles. Here is "movie headquarters"—and Hollywood Bowl with its "Symphonies under the Stars."

Plan to come—then write immediately for a special two weeks itinerary and understand how much can be added to your trip if time permits. Also mark the coupon for "Southern California through the Camera," a new and valuable book containing 73 large gravure pictures.

BUS LINES CARRY TRAVELERS DOWN EAST IN COMFORT

Circle Coach Tours Start from Chicago.

One comfortable way to see the eastern mountains and cities of the United States is by motor bus circle tours which leave Chicago at stated intervals during the summer.

These big parlor car coaches make boat connections from Detroit to Buffalo and then cut north along Lake Ontario, taking in a leisurely fashion a view of the Adirondacks, the Green and White mountains, the Berkshire hills, and returning via New York through the Alleghenies. These are mountains that can be crossed.

Through New York State.

In New York state the route lies along the Erie canal and through rolling farm and fruit country to Oswego and the Thousand Islands. A stop is made at Alexandria bay for a motor launch ramble through the islands. From here the St. Lawrence river is followed to Ogdensburg, then inland to Potsdam and the Adirondacks. The rout through the mountains takes in the wilder sections and touches Paul Smith's, scene of a presidential vacation, Saranac lake, and Lake Placid.

The Ausable river is followed through the Adirondacks and the highest pass is reached at Wilmington Notch, a maze of gray rocks, deep woods and high cliffs. The Ausable chasm is compared by travelers with the Grand canyon of the Yellowstone in its colorations and formations. Rainbow falls, Horseshoe falls, and Pulpit rock are seen here, also Table rock, which rises 200 feet above the level of the water, and the Sentinel, where boats are ready for a trip through the rapids.

Visit Scenes of Nation's Birth.

Lake Champlain is the next point of interest. From here on through New England the tours touch all the places of historic significance, from the time of Indian wars to the battles of the revolution. The Green Mountain boys played their part in history. The White mountains of New Hampshire offer the famous Franconia Notch, the Indian Head, and the Old Man of the Mountain, made memorable by Hawthorne's story, "The Great Stone Face."

Bretton Woods, Mount Washington, and the Crawford Notch lead to Portsmouth, and then the cars wind down to the ocean, passing through Rye, Salisbury beach, and Ipswich to old Cape Ann and Gloucester, home port of the fishing fleets that go out to the Grand Banks. Salem and Marblehead, the birthplace of Hawthorne, the "House of Seven Gables," the church in which Roger Williams preached, and the customs house where the "Scarlet Letter" was written, give the traveler to these parts plenty to read and think about.

From Boston to New York.

Some time is given to Boston, Cambridge, Lexington and Concord, with their literary and historic memories. Miller's river trail, the Deerfield valley, the Mill River trail, and the romantic scenes of the Berkshires about which Bryant and Longfellow wrote, are also viewed. Then comes the Hudson river country, Sleepy Hollow, West Point, and New York City, where a stopover is arranged.

The way home is across New Jersey and Pennsylvania to Binghampton. The coach climbs Schooley's mountain, 1,200 feet, and rolls on to Delaware Water Gap, the gateway to the Pocono mountains. This is a two mile gorge through which the Delaware river passes from the north to the south side of Blue Ridge. The gap is walled by cliffs a thousand feet high. Newton battlefield, Watkins' Glen, and Niagara Falls are features of the homeward trip along this route.

IT'S EASY SAILING TO ALASKA NOW ON AMERICAN VESSELS

A voyage to Alaska and a journey through the interior may be made in comfort now. Two American steamship lines have regular sailings between Seattle and Skagway, with intermediate stops on the southeastern coast of Alaska; and also sailings to Cordova, Valdez, Seward, Anchorage, Kodiak and Nome. The best time for the trip is from now until Sept. 10.

ESCORTED TOURS SIMPLIFY TRAVEL THROUGH EUROPE

It is no longer necessary to travel to Europe twice in order to see it once. Under the escorted tour system travelers do not need to go and learn by experience what to do and what not to do. It is all laid out for them in advance. The rough spots are eliminated. So are fussing with foreign customs and other formalities. There is a competent tour manager to look after these things.

The itineraries of the escorted tours are flexible. They are laid out to cover certain territories and move along at a leisurely pace so that the travelers are not rushed and are enabled to devote the maximum amount of time to the places and things they want to see.

An escorted tour also means that steamship arrangements are taken care of, and that passports and visas are handled expeditiously. The most attractive and comfortable hotels en route are selected. No service is too small or too great. It is almost like cutting a huge pathway around the world and all travelers have to do is—go.

Grand Canyon Explored for First Time in 1869

The Grand Canyon of the Colorado river was first reported to the civilized world by Spanish explorers in 1540. It was first described in 1851 by the Sitgreaves expedition. No exploration of the canyon was made until 1869, when Maj. J. W. Powell, who afterwards founded the United States geological survey, made a perilous passage with a party of nine men in four small boats.

The Changeless Wonder of the CAPES . . .

WHEN Cartier's tiny ship hove to beneath the stupendous mountains of rock that guard the mouth of the Saguenay River, unbroken mystery lay beyond. Even today there hangs over these giants, which men have called Trinity and Eternity, the impenetrable secret of the north. Like the northern lights, that shoot green and silver at night above their black heads, there is something unexplained in their eternal majesty.

Your luxurious steamer passes near on unfathomed waters on its trip from Montreal and Quebec. You will have seen fashionable Murray Bay and quaint Tadoussac. The Saguenay by moonlight remains as the climax of your cruise.

IMPORTANT — Our ships sail from the head of the Great Lakes down the St. Lawrence River, through the Saguenay Canyon, nearly 2000 miles of beauty and grandeur. The river varies from roaring rapids to a vast expanse of blue water 18 miles wide. Steamers may be boarded at Lewiston, Rochester, Duluth or Detroit in the U. S. A., or at Queenston, Toronto, Montreal or Quebec in Canada.

SOUTH AMERICA NEW FIELD FOR SUMMER JAUNT

Air Lines Open Interior to Yankee Travelers.

With improved steamship service ready for the summer tourist and air passenger service taking the place of several ancient and tedious travel routes into the interior, South America offers a new and attractive field of exploration.

Here one finds an older and more leisurely civilization, an old world point of view on things cultural and moral, with the pioneer western spirit in government and business. It is a safe country in which to travel, as the days of the revolutions have long passed.

As in the United States there are many varieties of climate to be found, although this is the beginning of winter on the southern hemisphere. The west coast is much like California, and Chile has a mountain and lake country unsurpassed in loveliness.

Old Spain Still Lives There.

From the sea coast on the west one ascends in a few hours to the high interior capitals, where the atmosphere of old Spain is found in plazas, narrow streets, and cathedrals. Farther inland is the main range of the Andes, a country of gloomy gorges, towering peaks and an occasional pleasant valley through which a trout stream flows. This is snowbound during much of their winter.

There is plenty to see, however, either on the west or east coast, for Quito, Lima, Santiago, and other cities on the west side of the range are rich in historical interest and present colorful scenes of Indian life in the heart of busy commercial centers.

Down the east coast there are the great capitals of Rio de Janeiro and Buenos Aires to visit, and the great coffee center of Brazil. The world's greatest rivers flow through the jungles out of the Andes into the Atlantic.

Good Auto Roads in Brazil.

Brazil has a live motor club and thousands of miles of good motor roads. Modern hotels are available along all the tourist routes, and there is good railroad service in most of the states. Argentina has a capital that boasts of a wonderful park system and subways. Horse racing is one of the main sports in these countries and millions of dollars have been spent in club houses and grounds for the jockey clubs.

The recent goodwill trip of President Hoover and his party has greatly stimulated interest in these countries south of the equator. Trade experts have expressed the opinion that within the next few years South America will develop into one of the best customers that Uncle Sam has.

SALMON, TROUT AND GAME PLENTIFUL IN LAND OF EVANGELINE

Newfoundland and Nova Scotia are vast natural playgrounds, accessible now even to the two weeks' vacationist. Visits to Halifax, St. John's, and Grand Pre, the home of Longfellow's "Evangeline," may be included in a trip that has for its goal a try at the salmon and trout for which the waters of this northern country are famous. Here also is the home of the Newfoundland fisherman.

No passports are required for this trip and guides may be engaged who will make the most of a few days in the streams. And there are camping sites where one may decide to stay all summer.

Varieties of game in the forests of Newfoundland and Nova Scotia include moose, deer, wildcat, fox, and grouse, partridges, snipe, ducks, geese. In New Foundland in addition there are rabbits, arctic hare, and caribou.

The game laws are designed more as protection against the pot hunter and the ruthless slaughter of wild life than as oppressive measures aimed against the sportsman. They are, in fact, most encouraging to the tourist sportsman. The tourist whose stay will be brief may obtain a day to day fishing license for $2.10 a day. The charge for two weeks' license is $10.50, and for the season $26.

The open season for inland salmon and trout is from Jan. 15 to Sept. 15. Rod, hook, and line are the only lawful implements to be used. Bag limits are large.

The open season for partridge, snipe, wild duck and, other birds is from Sept. 20 to Jan. 1. There is at present no closed season on wild geese, but there is a temporary closed season on moose and caribou. Rabbits and hares may be shot between Sept. 20 and Jan. 1.

HERE'S A PATH TO ADVENTURE—THE CODY ROAD

90 Mile Motor Trail Into Buffalo Bill Country.

William F. Cody, the Buffalo Bill of frontier fame, has been commemorated in many ways but the Cody road, named after him, is becoming the best known reminder of his life.

The Cody road is the famous scenic motor highway which starts at Cody, Wyo., and ends at the Colonial hotel on Yellowstone lake—a 90 mile trail of scenic splendor with a thrill around every curve.

One goes to Cody and, breakfast over, boards a twelve passenger touring car, whirls down the double hairpin turns, crosses the bridge over the Shoshone river, spirals up the opposite slope to the old frontier town which was Buffalo Bill's home and, turning west, heads for the mountains—the Shoshone river along side. Beyond the stream is the historic plateau where the Crows and the Blackfeet fought it out. The way ahead is seemingly blocked by two great mountains.

Along the Canyon's Side.

But the Shoshone finds a tortuous way through at the bottom of a tremendous canyon along the side of which the Cody road runs on a shelf hewn out of the solid granite. It passes close beside the roaring river, then rises hundreds of feet above the stream, down and up and across the bridge, through twin tunnels bored through the rock, in and out for five miles of thrills, and up the great hill to the top of the government irrigation dam. There a stop is made while one catches his breath and inspects this gigantic concrete barrier behind which the water is piled up to within a few feet of the crest. Three hundred feet below is the river, a tiny ribbon of water.

Then on—more tunnels, more canyon with almost perpendicular walls. The road winds around the shore of a great lake and enters the ranch country. The canyon walls give way to lower and remote cliffs.

40 Miles Through Forest.

On and on runs the Cody road—into the dude ranch region and for forty miles through the vast Shoshone national forest. There's a stop for luncheon at Sylvan Pass lodge and then the traveler is whirled away again through the jack pines into Yellowstone park and up the seven mile hill to the snow on Sylvan pass where the road crosses the Absaroka range.

Automobile Tourist Urged to Travel Early in Day

Although thousands of miles of paved highway afford a diversity of routes to the main vacation areas, the American Automobile association warns that every indication points to congestion, and, for this reason, suggestion is made that the motorist who wants to travel safely and rapidly this year should start in the early morning and get the major part of the day's distance out of the way while roads are carrying minimum loads.

Campers Warned to Use Care in Starting Fires

"Too much emphasis cannot be laid on the necessity of selecting safe places for cooking fires or camp fires. The danger of causing a disastrous forest fire is constantly present unless every possible precaution for prevention is taken. Usually a sandy or gravelly spot is conveniently at hand, and if not, it often can be made by scraping away the surface covering of pine needles or leaves from an area several feet in diameter. But if the forest floor is thick and does not expose a surface free from roots or leaf mold it is unsafe, as a fire will often smolder for hours or even days under the surface before coming to a blaze."—Raymond H. Bailey.

WINGS OVER TO EUROPE

In modern life the race is to the swift... and so the new giant twin fliers

BREMEN AND EUROPA

have been built to meet the pace of the modern world. A great speed to Europe... 120 hours... but not a headlong rush. The liners cleave the waves at an even sureness... while you savor five days given to luxurious leisure and various gaiety. You may rest in the unbroken quiet of the residential sections... or dine and dance in moonlit cafes with no fear of curfew ringing. By day you play golf and tennis on huge airplane decks... swim in beautiful pools... shop in boulevard promenades... then go to the theater. Before it's too late, wire or phone your reservations... first sailing July 27th.

If you're sailing earlier you'll find life modern, gay and comfortable on the COLUMBUS, July 3rd, and the BERLIN, July 23rd. If you prefer the longer leisure of golden days at sea go on the splendid Cabin liners, at lower rates. Sailings every week.

Around Pacific Cruise

CAN you imagine Japan in chrysanthemum time? Solemn Shinto priests, incense rising to the stars, and, just as Hokusai would picture, a temple with carvings red and gold. Then down the Yellow Sea to the ports of China. Here an old sage, who looks like Confucius himself, is spinning romantic tales of the glories of his people. There a fakir holds you spellbound for long minutes. Perhaps if he is in a good humor, he will make a plant grow before your eyes, or casually stick pins in his neck or swallow a dagger.

You sail along to the Philippines—to French Indo-China—visiting the great Emerald Buddha in Siam—amazing Singapore, the Gibraltar of the East—wealthy Java—Australia, the United States of the Southern Seas—New Zealand—Fiji and Samoa—Hawaii, with her crests of misty jade. Twenty-five thousand miles of land and ocean pageantry without a change of steamer.

The San Francisco Chamber of Commerce will act as host on this comprehensive, expertly planned cruise, which combines a voyage of international good-will with a happy, recreational vacation. The members of the cruise will be the type of people you will enjoy traveling with; and will have interests congenial to your own.

The cruise steamer is the 22,000-ton Malolo of the Matson Line, sailing from San Francisco on September 21st, returning December 20th. Rates are as low as $1,500. Descriptive literature containing map, illustrations, deck plan, cost, and complete information now ready. Call or write

VACATIONIST NOW MAY DO HIS SIGHT SEEING FROM AIR

Flying Lines Plan Scenic Tours for Summer.

BY ROBERT WOOD.

Summer vacationists in search of diversion will find a number of air passenger lines leading to northern and western resort sections. Several air operators are making a direct bid for the patronage of the vacation traveler through specially conducted journeys and short tours over scenic regions.

Much has been done in the last year to improve airplane passenger service. Through refinement of interior fittings of cabin planes and modern terminal facilities for passengers the air lines have endeavored to impress the traveling public with the safety, reliability and comfort of flying.

Two Air Lines to North.

Air travel between Chicago and the lake regions to the north is little developed so far, but two operators will start a limited service to northern Wisconsin and upper Michigan this summer with a view to expanding the service next year. Resorts like Mackinac on the Lake Michigan shore and others situated on the numerous small lakes throughout Wisconsin may be easily reached by seaplane and amphibian.

The Curtiss Flying service and the Northwest Airways provide the only air travel to this region at present. The Curtiss company has two amphibians, one an Ireland open place plane and the other a Sikorsky twin motored flying boat, equipped to carry eight passengers. The craft are used frequently in carrying passengers from Chicago to Lake Geneva and in local taxi hops. The Northwest Airways maintains a daily service for passengers from Chicago to Green Bay, Wis. Passengers are carried with the mail in single motored cabin planes with room for six or seven persons.

Air-Rail Service to Black Hills.

The Black Hills of South Dakota may be reached by air and rail. Six hours is cut from the traveling time between this region and Chicago by a plane and train hookup between the Chicago and North Western railroad and the Rapid City air lines which fly daily between Huron, S. D., and Rapid City, the gateway to the hills, a distance of some 350 miles.

No air lines lead directly to Yellowstone or Glacier parks, although it is possible to journey most of the way from Chicago to these national playgrounds. From Chicago to Salt Lake City the vacationist may travel either by train or by the Boeing Air Transport. The latter service is irregular, however. Passengers are carried in the regular mail planes, but when the mail is heavy passenger service is suspended.

Flying Service to Parks.

At Salt Lake City the National Parks Airways fly passengers to Pocatello, Idaho, Butte, Mont., and northward to Helena and Great Falls. Passengers bound for the Yellowstone are discharged at Butte. Here also they may make train connections for Glacier National park.

From Salt Lake City the passenger may also reach San Francisco or Los Angeles. The Boeing Air Transport operates trimotored planes daily to the Golden Gate and the Western Air Express flies southwest through Las Vegas to Los Angeles. Almost any point on the Pacific coast may be reached by airplane. The Western Air Express, Boeing and Maddux planes fly up and down the entire coast from Vancouver, B. C., to Ensenada, Mexico.

Twenty-four hour plane and train service is provided between Chicago and Los Angeles. Night trains leaving Chicago between 6 and 8 p. m. make connections in Kansas City with the Western Air Express plane leaving there at 8:30 a. m. for Los Angeles. The 1,300 mile flight requires twelve hours. Twelve passenger Fokker Super F-10 planes, powered with three motors, are used in the service.

A sightseeing air line is operated daily around the rim of the Grand Canyon by the Scenic Airways. A five hour flight is made with both single and trimotored cabin planes carrying six and twelve passengers, respectively.

The Maddux Air Lines, flying on the Pacific coast, have announced plans to conduct five special tours this summer throughout the west. A fleet of transport planes will make a fifteen day cruise, stopping at the Grand Canyon, the national parks, and other points of interest.

EVERLASTING SPRING OF BERMUDA 45 HOUR RIDE FROM NEW YORK

Forty-five hours out of New York lies the island of Bermuda, a place of perpetual spring, where prohibition and automobiles are unknown. Riding, driving and bicycling are the old fashioned attractions still in vogue and life moves with an unhurried serenity.

There are eight fine golf courses on the island. One of the most popular is the Riddell's Bay Golf and Country club in Warwick parish. It overlooks the islands in Great sound. The clubhouse is an 18th century English estate, recently remodeled and modernized. Another fine course is the Mid-Ocean Golf club at Tucker's Town, an 18 hole course bordered by ocean and sound.

Tennis ranks next to golf in popularity. First class courts are maintained at all the larger hotels. The roads are attractive for horseback riding, driving and pedaling on English bicycles, which may be rented. There is no danger from automobiles or motorcycles. The roads wind through pleasant valleys dotted with white coral cottages, along the cliffs or by the surf that rolls on beaches of pink or white coral sand.

This is a natural home for water sports, and the fisherman has 296 varieties of fish to angle for, including the angel fish, which displays iridescent shades of blue and green and orange and gold; the parrot fish, squirrel fish and cow fish.

Several of Great Sequoias Older than the Pyramids

Several of the trees now growing in maturity in the Sequoia national park were vigorous youngsters before the pyramids were built on the Egyptian desert and before Babylon reached its prime. Hundreds of these trees were thriving before the heroic age of ancient Greece. Thousands were lusty youths through all the ages of Greek art and Roman wars. Tens of thousands were flourishing trees when Christ was born in Bethlehem.

HERE IS RECIPE FOR ARMY BREAD, GOOD CAMP FARE

"Army bread—It keeps fresh longer than yeast bread, does not dry up in a week, nor mould, and is more wholesome than biscuit. It is best to eat cold.

"1 quart flour.

"1 teaspoonful salt.

"1 tablespoonful sugar.

"2 heaped teaspoonfuls baking powder.

"Mix the dry ingredients thoroughly. Then stir in enough cold water (about 1½ pints) to make a thick batter that will pour out level. Mix rapidly with spoon until smooth and pour at once into bake pan. Bake about 45 minutes, or until no dough adheres to a sliver. Above quantity makes a 1½ pound loaf."—Horace Kephart.

SHOWERS NEVER BOTHERED IZAAK IN HIS ANGLING

"But turn out of the way a little—towards yon honeysuckle hedge; there we'll sit and sing, whilst this shower falls so gently upon the teeming earth, and gives yet a sweeter smell to the lovely flowers that adorn these verdant meadows.

"Look! Under that beech tree I sat down, when I was last this way a-fishing. And the birds in the adjoining grove seemed to live in a hollow tree, near to the brow of that primrose hill. There I sat viewing the silver streams glide gently toward their center, the tempestuous sea; yet sometimes opposed by rugged roots and pebblestones, which broke their waves and turned them into foam."—Izaak Walton.

West Michigan

The Playground of a Nation

. . . Playground of the nation's CHILDREN

Turn your youngsters loose this summer in West Michigan. Watch how quickly they grow ruddy-cheeked and robust as they romp on wide, safe, sunlit beaches and play among the many wildflowers. Here, too, the sandy sub-soil means more outdoor play hours, because the ground dries quickly after a rain.

Unsurpassed surf bathing, boating, fishing, dancing, horseback riding, golf and other sports also make West Michigan a play paradise for the grown-ups. Pure, balsam-scented air—water washed by breezes from three Great Lakes—gives it the most delightful and exhilarating summertime climate in all America. Modern hotels everywhere provide for your comfort and pleasure. Write for FREE copy of West Michigan Vacation Directory—tells where to go, what to see, and rates.

JUNE 16, 1929.

U. of Wisconsin an Embowered Question Mark

Educationally, It Tries Anything Once.

By James O'Donnell Bennett.

THE University of Wisconsin is a large and insistent question mark in a summer resort setting.

It is wholly satisfied with few things in this changing world, and sometimes least of all with itself, or with contemporaneous educational methods.

DR. GLENN FRANK.

It dearly loves an experiment and will try anything once. It is so solicitous about the preservation of its freedom that it has among conservatives a reputation for being radical. Any menace that may inhere in that reputation is considerably assuaged by the fact that the radicals say that no university whose president receives $18,000 a year, rides in an automobile provided by the state, and lives rent free in a charming villa in a lovely glade can be vividly radical.

The fantastic Upton Sinclair once summed up the case for the radicals when he paid the University of Wisconsin this doubtful compliment: "Wisconsin is the most liberal of American universities—bad as it is."

But to what extent, if any, $18,000, a free villa, a free car, and the delicate task of luring nearly four and a half millions a year from a largely bucolic and wholly thrifty legislature could make the president of the university of Wisconsin stultify himself came to rather a dramatic showdown in the winter of 1927 when President Glenn Frank had been living but two years in the villa in the glade. As secretary of the League of Wisconsin Municipalities, Prof. Ford MacGregor of Wisconsin's faculty issued a bulletin on the state's income taxes. Former Gov. and now United States Senator Blaine wrote President Frank letters in which he charged that the bulletin was "a hodgepodge of lies, half truths, and misinformation," and he intimated that Prof. MacGregor should either retract his statements or resign from the faculty.

A Showdown on Freedom.

Glenn Frank promptly replied in sentences which for vigor without venom may justly be acclaimed as chaste. Thus:

"Any member of the university faculty is, and must remain, as free to agree with or dissent from any political or economic policy of the state of Wisconsin as he is free to agree with or dissent from a religious rite in Liberia.

"And as long as I am president of the University of Wisconsin, complete and unqualified academic freedom will not only be accorded to the members of its faculty but will be vigorously defended regardless of the pressure, the power, or the prestige that may accompany any challenge of the inalienable right of scholarship.

"This complete freedom of thought and expression will be accorded alike to teachers who entertain conservative opinions and to teachers who entertain radical opinions.

"The fact that I may think, that a state official may think, or that a citizen may think a teacher's opinions wrong headed or even dangerous will not alter this policy. For the whole of human history presents unanswerable proof that only through open and unhampered clash of contrary opinions can truth be found."

A year and a half has passed. Glenn Frank is still dwelling in the villa, and in May the legislature was giving sympathetic consideration to his request for nine millions for the coming biennium.

But the man has not been, as some feared he would be when he came to Wisconsin from the editorship of the mildly radicalized Century magazine, an insensate clamorer in freedom's blessed if somewhat wearing cause.

The Case of Mrs. Russell.

In February, 1928, Mrs. Bertrand Russell came to Madison to lecture on companionate marriage and other enkindling topics. There was prompt protest against allowing her to speak in any of the university's halls. That protest President Frank sustained. Then there was clamorous accusation by some newspapers and some citizens and students that the university's priceless freedom was being imperiled, and the famous bronze tablet beneath the portico of old Bascom hall, administrative center of the university, came into the play. It was erected by the class of 1910 and is supposed to epitomize as no other official utterance does this school's ideal of academic freedom. It reads:

> Whatever may be the limitations which trammel inquiry elsewhere, we believe that the great state university of Wisconsin should ever encourage that continual and fearless sifting and winnowing by which alone the truth can be found. (Taken from a report of the Board of Regents in 1894.)

When permission to speak on the campus had been refused Dora Russell, her followers hung a black plaque over that bronze pledge to freedom.

Glenn Frank kept his head. Ever a bubbling well of epigram and apothegm, he now emitted some of his best.

Hottentots and the Price of Cheese.

"Free speech at the University of Wisconsin is no more endangered," he said, "by denial of permission to Mrs. Bertrand Russell to speak in a

No. 10--The Murder of Big Jim Colosimo in His Notorious Cafe. Who Killed Him, and Why?

Clews a Maze of Vice, Booze, Theft, Enmity

By Philip Kinsley.

BIG JIM COLOSIMO was shot and killed in his restaurant at 2126 Wabash avenue on the afternoon of May 11, 1920. His murderer walked away from the scene and has never been caught. His identity is not known. Here is a mystery leading into many dark paths.

There were several men, and perhaps women, who had a motive to kill Colosimo, who in his day was a night life figure almost immune to the law. His life had been spent in the old tenderloin, and he was a dealer in some things illicit. He knew the ways of the Black Hand, and was said to have been marked as a traitor. He had been married only three weeks to a beautiful young singer, who had had other suitors. His discarded wife had shown venom. There were many possibilities here. The police failed to unravel the tangled skein.

At the time Colosimo was killed, Jimmy Vinci was on trial for his part in the murder of Mossy Enright, notorious labor leader. This murder was said to have been plotted in Colosimo's café and a defense fund was being raised for Vinci and the other Italians who were to be tried later. A few weeks before this Eddie Coleman, another dominant labor figure, had been killed. These labor feuds may have entered into the Colosimo case, but an examination of the evidence leads into more promising trails.

Notables at Funeral.

Three judges and nine aldermen were among Colosimo's pallbearers. Bathhouse John Coughlin and Pat O'Malley were among the chief mourners. Michael Rosenberg was there, Congressman John W. Rainey, and Michael L. Igoe. Big Jim was a political figure of consequence, and his murder made a big stir. Diamond Joe Esposito and Tony D'Andrea, both marked later for death by assassination, were also there, with Ike Bloom, Johnny Torrio, George Silver, and many other well known characters.

The other side of Colosimo's life was shown by the presence of Titta Ruffo, Francisco Daddi and Maestro Giacome Spadoni of the Chicago Grand opera. Colosimo put good music, with women and wine, as the great pleasures of life.

"Do you suspect any one?" his bride, the former Dale Winter, was asked as she wept in her home at 3156 Vernon avenue.

"I should say I suspect everybody," she answered. "That is the terrible thing—to suspect everybody—those near me—people I have heard about vaguely."

And that is the way the investigation went. There were a bewildering number of clews, a maze of Black Hand, booze, women, labor, stolen bonds, old enmities.

THE KILLING

The murder itself afforded little to work on. It occurred at 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon, when no one but a few employés were in the restaurant. The place did not awaken until night ordinarily, and Big Jim, who was there often until 5 o'clock in the morning, was just arriving for the night's work when he was shot by a man who had supposedly been hiding in the checkroom. There is no accurate description of the murderer. Joseph Gabriel, a porter, had noticed a young man in a gray coat pacing up and down in front of the restaurant that afternoon. When the porter went home at 4 o'clock the man was still there. He was described as follows:

Height, 5 feet 8 inches; weight, 145 pounds; age, about 24; slim in figure, face round and smooth, with rosy cheeks; hair dark; wore light gray, close fitting top coat, trousers with deep cuffs and a dark, soft black hat.

Many suspects were brought before Gabriel, but he did not identify any one.

Joseph Gavilla, a waiter, remembered a party of four, two men and two women, who had been in the restaurant drinking earlier in the afternoon. There was an order blank left on the table with empty bottles, on which some one had written in pencil: "So long, vampire," and "Saturday evening." Another man had been in the place alone. He had been served with an apricot brandy and had left before the murder.

Frank Camilla, the bookkeeper, was in the office. He had not noticed anything unusual. When Colosimo arrived he spoke to Camilla, tried to get Rocco de Stefano, his attorney, on the phone, and then walked to the rear of the café, where he spoke to his chef. He returned to the front part of the café, which was deserted. As he reached the lobby two shots were fired. One broke the glass in front of the cashier's booth. The other struck Colosimo behind the right ear, penetrating the brain. He fell with his head near the door.

No Attempt at Robbery.

The assassin might have walked out unobserved, as there was no immediate outcry, or he might have gone out through the basement and the alley. No one noticed him. Camilla heard the shots and came in with the chef. Colosimo was dead when they reached him. There was a revolver in his pocket, but it had not been used. The fact that he had been shot with a revolver instead of a sawed off shotgun may be significant. It was no robbery, as Big Jim's diamond cuff buttons and other ornaments, his watch and money were untouched.

There were two notes found in the restaurant. One was addressed to Colosimo and read:

"Deaths are dancing with deaths."

A note with the same sentence in it had been sent to one of the assistant prosecutors in the Enright murder case.

On a pad in a drawer was found a note written by Colosimo, as follows:

"Swan—I made out the regular statement. You will fill in the rest as you see fit. Tell the day man to look after the drug store and see that he finds out where to find the stuff and refill. Don't keep over thirteen men. If you've got more, ask some one to lay off. [Signed] Bank.

"P. S. Anything you make over $50 belongs to me. Mickey is off."

This is supposed to refer to the routine business of getting drug store whisky. "Mickey" is one of the names of Mike the Greek Potsin, Colosimo's partner. It was reported that he had quarreled with Colosimo because Big Jim spent too much time and money over Dale Winter, his bride. Potsin denied this. When found in the restaurant after the shooting he was weeping. He said he had been down at the market buying supplies.

"I didn't think the dirty rat would do a thing like that," was one remark he made that afternoon, which was never amplified.

Victim's Fortune Disappears.

More than a year later Potsin, still manager of the restaurant under an arrangement with the heirs, said that Colosimo's fortune, which was given as only $81,945 in the Probate court, was much greater, only they could not find it. He said that one night when he was going home in a car with Colosimo the latter gave him a box to carry and later opened it to show him 250 bills of $1,000 denomination.

There was supposed to be another cache somewhere of diamonds and securities, but it could not be found. A reward of $15,000 was offered for information leading to this fortune, and the walls and secret places of the Colosimo house and café were tapped and explored in vain. If there was such a fund, Colosimo, as "The Bank," probably was holding it for others, or it was stolen.

Potsin's idea at this time was that Colosimo was holding a fortune secret from his first wife, Mrs. Victoria Colosimo, from whom he was divorced on March 31, 1920, and who was reported as not satisfied with the financial settlement. She was sought by the police immediately after the murder. She was reported to have arrived in town that day from Salt Lake City, but this was not true, as the first word from her came from Los Angeles on May 15, when she sent a wire to Attorney De Stefano asking if she was needed in Chicago.

Ex-Wife Threatens, but Subsides.

It was May 20 before the ex-wife of Big Jim arrived in Chicago. She was ready to fight for a share of the estate.

"Jim is dead and I won't smirch his name," she is quoted in an interview at that time. "Until he met Dale Winter he was good to me. I am an Italian. Jim was an Italian. I know Italian ways. I will be protected. I will have my own. I made that man. It was my money that started him in business and my work that made the restaurant a success. I'll fight and drive that Winter girl to the ends of the earth." She did neither. She subsided.

Mrs. Colosimo's only explanation of the murder was that Frank Razzini might know about it. Razzini had threatened Colosimo, who had been active in the prosecution of Razzini for the shooting of Joseph Branci several years before. He had been sent to an insane asylum, and had escaped.

Arthur Rockhill, a New York theatrical man, told the police that eight hours after Colosimo had been slain he was walking on South State street and noticed an intoxicated man sitting on a rubbish box. The man asked for a match, addressing him as "Tony." A revolver dropped from his pocket.

"Be careful, that might go off," said Rockhill.

"It did go off," said the man. "I got that Dago, I got him today, the big stiff."

A photograph of Razzini was shown to Rockhill and was partially identified, but this lead seems to have ended here.

COLOSIMO'S HISTORY

In seeking possible clews to the murder of Colosimo it is necessary to look at his career, following glimpses of the lines of motive.

"One by one the roses fall," said Pat O'Malley, the wise old saloonkeeper and politician, when he heard of Colosimo's death.

"Jim was a nightly visitor here (Clark and Polk) in the old days when he was working for the city. He used to tell of his early struggle to make a living when he came to Chicago. His first job was as a street cleaner. Then he got to be foreman of a gang of street sweepers in the First ward. Across the street from here there used to be a bakery in the basement. Jim would tell how he 'kipped' in the rear of the bakery when he didn't have the price of a flop."

A tiger lily of the old tenderloin swamp might be a more appropriate simile for Colosimo, one of the swarming family of old Papa Luigi, transplanted from Calabria to an alien soil and flourishing mightily. Bootblack, newsboy, white wing, city inspector, he was quick to take advantage of the ways to wealth and power that lie in the alliance between politics and vice.

The old Twenty-second street levee was a booming place in those days, when Colosimo donned the flashy clothes of a boss and began to wear violent ties and jewelry. It is said that when he was killed he wore diamond studded garters. Diamonds were a safe investment and satisfying to the soul. Like Big Jim, they betrayed no secrets.

Twenty years before his death he met the woman who was to share his life and his secrets and help him make a fortune. She was Victoria Morosco. Soon after his marriage Colosimo left the white wings and opened a resort. It was only one of hundreds in the red light district of that day, but it grew and lasted long beyond prohibition. Now the doors are closed and dusty. The new broom of the city has swept a wide, clean path in the district. Automobile shops take the place of the old swinging doors and the nearby houses where women tapped softly at the window.

A Power in Politics.

Colosimo branched out in two directions. He grew in political power, although never holding office, and lasted through several administrations, reform waves, and civic crusades, as a sort of liaison agent between resort keepers and the politicians. At the same time his café changed its character and became noted for good food and music. He was a born host, and the flavor of wickedness found in his place only whetted the curiosity and the appetite. The crooks must behave in his place, which was softly lighted, well managed by such men as Johnny Torrio and Abie Arends, and dreaming in music of the grand opera scores. The professor at the piano was replaced by a fine orchestra and "Izzy the Rat" had to give up his seat for such men as Tita Ruffo, the opera singer.

Colosimo's place was not large. It was intimate, done in rose and gold, with tables and chairs wedged close together. Originally it was only one room, but with the 1 o'clock closing hour, one of the first signs of the new moral wave, Colosimo opened another room. At closing time the service bar was closed and the patrons moved into the other room, where drinks were served at all hours.

A glimpse behind the curtains of this gay place is given in the suit for $5,000 damages filed in 1919 by Marie Kerrigan, former cigaret girl in the café, against Colosimo and Mike the Greek Potsin.

There were two waiters there, she alleged, Scarlet the Italian and Napoli the Bald, who had a "ferocious nature." One night while she was in the women's room Napoli the Bald forced his way in and struck and abused her. She reported it to Mike the Greek, and he, in turn, she says, struck her and kicked her and dragged her into the kitchen.

"It was only through an act of Providence," she alleges, "that I became rescued from the hands of Mike the Greek and the baleful influence of James Colosimo."

A Black Hand Angle.

After Colosimo's murder Miss Kerrigan again came forward, as the recipient of a Black Hand letter from Pittsburgh, which was turned over to the police as pointing, perhaps, to enemies of the dead man. The Black Hand angle was investigated, but, as usual, led to a wall of mystery.

One of Colosimo's friends told this story:

"Two or three times in the last six months Jim told me that a mob of extortionists was trying to get money from him. He said he would not give in to them because they would milk him to death.

"Several years ago a gang of Black Handers used to frequent his place. Jim knew what their game was, but so long as they did not molest his friends he let them alone. They demanded $2,000 from an Italian who was a friend of Colosimo. Big Jim told them to lay off. They threatened to blow up the man's home. The night they were going to get the $2,000, as they supposed, another gang

HOW BIG JIM MET HIS DEATH

THE RULES

Today The Tribune presents the last of ten famous Mystery Cases, for the best solution of which The Tribune will pay $10,000.00 in Cash Prizes.

Each of these stories presents a Famous Mystery Crime which actually occurred, but which never has been solved.

$1,000 in Cash Prizes will be awarded for the best solutions to each of these mysteries: First prize, $500.00; second prize, $200.00; third prize, $100.00; fourth prize, $50.00, and fifth to tenth prizes, $25.00 each.

You don't have to be a professional writer. Just read the story. Figure out who committed the crime and write a short letter telling who in your opinion did it and why you think so. Address your letter in answer to this story, "Mystery No. 10," Chicago Tribune, Postoffice Box 1539, Chicago, Ill.

Make your letter simple. It is WHAT you say that will count—not HOW you say it. Logic, brevity, neatness and originality of deduction will count.

The $10,000.00 in Cash Prizes will be paid exclusively to Tribune readers. Every one is eligible except employes of The Tribune and their families. Solutions must be in by midnight ten days after the date of The Tribune in which the story appears. The names of winners will be published as soon thereafter as possible.

You do not have to subscribe to The Tribune. The Tribune may be examined at its offices or at public libraries without charge.

The judges will be a committee appointed by The Chicago Tribune, and their decision in all matters will be final. In case of ties, duplicate awards will be given.

By Mae Tinee.

GOOD MORNING!

Those to whom the talkers are anathema will, and those who regard them otherwise should be interested to learn that "The Woman from Hell" is a good picture whose only sound is its musical synchronization.

The film is one of those unexpectedly excellent and appealing productions that have a habit of appearing when least looked for. Its merits have not been bruited abroad in a world which, at present, is giving most of its attention and superlatives to altalkers. No. It's just a so-called "program" movie. One, however, I take pleasure in informing you, that will send you away from the theater satisfied that you have had your money's worth.

Adapted from Stage Play.

The picture has been adapted from the stage play: "From Hell Came a Lady." "Hell" is a concession at a tawdry oceanside amusement park. The lady referred to is a "come on." Attired in glittering Satanic costume (how do we know so well what devils wear?) she poses seductively in a smoky, cavernous, yawning dragon's mouth of a doorway, while Alf, the barker, yaps his line, pointing to the invitation printed on a canvas banner over the girl's head, which reads:

CATCH THE DEVIL'S SWEETHEART
AND GET A KISS.

Here, however, is not where you first discover the Woman from Hell. No. When your eyes first light on her she sits outside the joint on a bench overlooking the ocean, and a lighthouse about five miles out that throws its light across the water toward her. She is smoking a cigaret, doggedly, unhappily, and looks "as lovely as a dream and as lonesome as Sunday." (You know how lovely Mary Astor CAN look?)

Yearningly her eyes contemplate the lighthouse and its light. She pays no attention to the buzzer that calls her back to do her stuff—lure morons into a chase and the concession. When Alf—with whom, you gather, she lives—comes after her, well—she goes with him, but her heart is far from being in her work.

(I'm rather ahead of my story.)

Young Man to the Rescue.

Before meeting the Woman from Hell, you have met the Young Man from the Lighthouse—a naive, Norwegian appearing chap with a mouth and chin that will make him popular with the ladies. He and his cantankerous, tippling old father tend the light. Jim Coakley has visited the resort and seen the Woman, and, while she gazes longingly to sea his eyes linger as longingly on the bright lights of the shore. He, too, is lonely—inarticulately hungry for something, some one. . . .

He goes ashore; and it falls to his lot to rescue the Woman from the mauling hands of a moron!

"Some souls by instinct to each other turn—" and so it is with the Woman from Hell and the Young Man from the Lighthouse.

"Marry me!" he begs.

How she wants to! At first, though, she refuses, shrinking from the thought of possibly harming the life of the clean young fellow who wants her so madly and whose simple life she craves to share. But his pleas and her desire overcome her scruples and bidding farewell to the astonished and rather amused Alf, who assures her she'll soon be back, she goes away with her Jim to his lighthouse.

Complicated Days.

But the simple life proves to be not so simple. There is Jim's jealousy to contend with. Also, there is Jim's father! AND there is Alf, who is crazy for the girl, and who, finding his predictions of a speedy return unfulfilled, takes matters into his own hands after a fashion that precipitates a remarkably dramatic and thrilling climax.

You will find "The Woman from Hell" finely staged, photographed and directed, and convincingly acted. Miss Astor, Robert Armstrong, and James Bradbury Sr. win the laurels. Dean Jagger is likeable, but a bit dull as Jim Coakley. Roy D'Arcy as the pursuer for a kiss who wins a haymaker for his pains, is realistic if not pretty. The film has action and suspense, and is satisfying as to detail. The director, a former assistant to F. W. Murnau, apparently sat at the feet of his superior and absorbed knowledge.

Item: This trip Mary Astor is a blonde—and a stunning one.

Bits aBOUTem.

AN IMPRESSIVE CAST will support Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks in their first co-starring production, "The Taming of the Shrew." Hortensio will be played by Geoffrey Wardwell, English Shakespearian actor; Edwin Maxwell, who is credited with the success of "The Doctor's Dilemma," is cast as Baptista, father of Katherine; Dorothy Jordan of the Theater Guild casts as Bianca; Joseph Cawthorne, Broadway favorite, will portray Gremio and Clyde Cook will play the faithful Grumio. Rehearsals are now under way.

Everything but Full Moon for Ravinia Debut

Mr. Eckstein and Manon Can't Budge Nature.

By Edward Moore.

It would be a good plan to make no engagements during a series of evenings beginning next Saturday, for that is the time when Ravinia is due to begin its eighteenth season. There is scant need of looking further for entertainment.

Ravinia means exquisite opera in a setting where Nature has done her loveliest, where trees and flowers and grass set the background and high ranking artists and equally high ranking composers make the picture. Mr. Eckstein has overlooked only one thing this year. His arrangements with the powers of nature were not able to decree a full moon for the opening of Ravinia, but he got it fixed so that the moon is full on the night before. So it only remains for him to keep the clouds out of the sky on Saturday night, and by the end of the first act of "Manon Lescaut" the moon will be out. And if there is anything to make Ravinia a bit more heavenly than it was before, it is the moon shining through the trees.

An Entrancing Prospect.

Opera under such circumstances is an entrancing prospect. For opera, importation though it may be, combines about as many sources of entertainment as can be found in the presentation of music. There is an unending source of amusement in the accusation that opera is a hybrid art, the word "hybrid" implying something of a bar sinister and consequently something rather ignoble. Just as though a good many other arts were not hybrids, too, as though every song were not a hybrid of poet and composer, every play a hybrid of dramatist and actor, every public performance of every kind a hybrid of the arts of the creator and the interpreter.

Calling opera hybrid has its points of weakness as an argument. The only valid argument is whether opera works as a source of entertainment. In that case the answer depends upon two points, the one the opera itself, the other the manner of performance. So think of "Manon Lescaut," into which Puccini lavishly poured the whole of his musical nature, of "Marouf," the last smile of French music before the war, as they call it in Paris. These are operas with personality, spontaneously diffusing radiance. And they are only the first two of the Ravinia season.

Standard Is High.

As to the performance, one need only think of the performances of the last few years and then survey the names of the company that will be there this summer, Bori and Rethberg and Gall and Macbeth and Claussen and Martinelli and Johnson and Chamlee and the rest. There is no need of printing them all here. Besides, they can be found in Mr. Eckstein's prospectus. It is a good list.

There is only one trouble with opera at Ravinia, and that trouble is the same that applies to opera in all America. It is that audiences think, or think they think that they would rather have opera in a language they cannot understand. For this shadow of a shade of thought they evolve various fantastic reasons. It is not the fault of the producers. The audiences control the box offices, and conditions will not be changed until enough ticket buyers decide that it is better to understand than not to understand.

Preparing for the Opening.

They are busy out at Ravinia just now. Artists are arriving, rehearsals are going on, the staff of employés from box office to back stage is industriously engaged in cleaning up the windows and sweeping up the floor and polishing the handle of the big front door, all in preparation for the opening. With such things the public is not greatly concerned. Only the results when the opening becomes a fact are important to those who go to the performances. Still, it is remembered that Sir Joseph Porter, K. C. B., found the procedure a valuable one; at least it is related that he polished up the handle so carefullee that later he became ruler of the queen's navee. Translated into terms of opera, there is at least a trace of an idea in the way that Mr. Eckstein has operated Ravinia and made it the bewitching place that it is.

"Manon Lescaut," by Puccini, will open Ravinia's doors. It will be sung by Lucrezia Bori, returning after a season's absence; Giovanni Martinelli, Desire Defrere, Louis D'Angelo, Ina Bourskaya, José Mojica, and conducted by Gennaro Papi.

Musical College Commencement.

The Chicago Musical college will hold its sixty-third annual commencement concert and exercises at the Auditorium on Wednesday evening. The Chicago Musical college symphony orchestra of eighty-five players directed by Leon Sametini will play orchestral numbers and furnish the accompaniments of the evening. Artist students who are also prize winners will appear as soloists, also Rudolph Ganz, Edward Collins, and Moissaye Boguslawski of the faculty will appear in a three piano number, the last on the program.

Diplomas and degrees will be conferred by Herbert Witherspoon, president of the college. At this time the degree of doctor of music will be conferred upon Henri Verbrugghen, conductor of the Minneapolis symphony orchestra, also upon W. Otto Meissner, a noted musician, composer, and educator.

Apollo Club to Give "Elijah."

The Apollo Musical club sends word of its plans for next season. Its first concert will be "Elijah" in November with Theodore Harrison in the name part. The annual "Messiah" performance will take place at the new Civic Opera house Dec. 27. Here the Marshall Field Choral society and the Sunday Evening club choir have been invited to participate with the Apollo club, and, otherwise departing from traditions, there will be twelve soloists instead of four. The reason stated is that each soloist is required to sing in at least three styles in the course of the performance, and each will be chosen for a pronounced ability to sing one solo.

In April a work new to Chicago will be given. It is "Mirtil in Arcadia," with text by Louise Ayres Garnett and music by Henry Hadley. Edgar Nelson will be the conductor and Robert Birch the organist throughout the season.

Mary Refuses to Sing.

Herbert M. Johnson, business manager of the Civic Opera company, now in Europe, transmits the information that the projected performance of Franke Harling's "A Light from St. Agnes" in Paris is off as far as Mary Garden is concerned, Miss Garden having refused to sing it. He adds that it is now promised by Jeanne Gordon, formerly a Metropolitan artist. Howard Preston, basso of the Civic Opera company, is in Paris to sing the part first done by Baklanoff.

Elsewhere in Mr. Johnson's European news is the fact that Giorgio Polacco's symphony programs at La Scala, Milan, contained the Mozart "Don Giovanni" overture, Beethoven's Third Symphony, some selections from Pizzetti's "La Pisanella," Ibert's "Escales," and Wagner's "Tannhäuser" overture, also that Vanni-Marcoux is appearing at the Paris opera in "Boris Godunoff," "Monna Vanna," and "Don Quichotte."

Musical Bits.

The International Harvester Choral society announces a concert Tuesday night at the Goodman theater under the direction of Richard B. De Young and assisted by the Little Symphony orchestra, whose conductor is George Dasch. The first part of the program will consist of choral numbers with piano and orchestra compositions. In the second part there will be a performance of Goring-Thomas' "The Swan and the Skylark." Here the soloists will be Helen Hedges, soprano; Alvene Resseguie, contralto; Eugene F. Dressler, tenor; and Lewis Wareham, baritone.

The Chicago College of Music will hold its thirty-fourth annual commencement exercises at Orchestra hall Wednesday evening. Forty-five members of the Chicago Symphony orchestra will furnish accompaniments under the direction of Karl Reckzeh.

Betty Dando, Chicago soprano, was declared the winner of the finals in the student class of last week's contest by the National Federation of Music Clubs in Boston.

Cave Thompson, blind pianist, will give a recital at Kimball hall on Tuesday evening. He is featuring d'Albert's "Klavierstuecke," Schumann's Sonata in G minor, and briefer works by Schubert, Scriabin, Moszkowski, Brahms, and Chopin.

If you wander as far east as Atlantic City, you will find that opera in English is being presented at the steel pier of that community on Sunday afternoons. A week ago Leoncavallo's "Pagliacci" was sung by members of the American Opera company; Humperdinck's "Hansel and Gretel" is to go on today by members of the San Carlo company; next Sunday it will be Gluck's "Orpheus" and the week after Rossini's "The Barber of Seville." These, it is said, will be done by members of the Chicago Civic and New York Metropolitan companies, though their names are not appended to the announcement.

The Lancet, England's revered medical magazine, has been telling about the effects of music upon blood pressure, the result of experiments upon eighty patients in a hospital in Middlesex. Talking machines and radio were used. Unfortunately the physicians in charge do not appear to have been musicians, so the results of the investigation are hardly definite. One learns that there was some change in some blood pressures by the use of some music, and that is about all.

With details enough to be able to tell something about it, the idea has great possibilities. One would like to know, for instance, what is the result on the person who confronts Bach's Chaconne for unaccompanied violin for the fifty-fourth time in one season, or the difference in the reactions of those who think that Liszt's Sonata in B minor is great music and those who consider it an unmitigated bore, or what happens to the arteries of the auditor of the Civic Opera company during a performance of opera in English.

All Right for Undertaker.

A Scottish country woman was taking her son to school for the first time and, impressing the schoolmaster with the necessity of the boy's getting a thoroughly good education, finished up saying:

"Be sure he learns Latin."

"But my dear lady," said the schoolmaster, "Latin is a dead language."

"So much the better," replied the woman.

"Ye ken, he's going to be an undertaker."

THE ARMCHAIR PLAYGOER

PUBLISHED.

The winning play of the 1928 Drama League-Longmans, Green playwriting contest is "Harvest," by Oakley Stout. It is published with an introduction by Harold A. Ehrensperger, editor of the Little Theater Monthly.

"Harvest" is a three act drama with only four characters, a farmer, his wife, his daughter, and his hired man. The scene is Minnesota. The theme is the unconscious rebellion of a woman against the drudgery of farm life and the overwhelming power of the soil itself. A friendly, vagrant farm hand whom her husband hires brings what is, to her, beauty into her barren life.

She thinks he would make an ideal husband for her daughter, June, but when she realizes that June loves another, she comes to an awakening of her own emotional life, which has lain dormant for years because of the harsh, unrelenting brutishness of her husband. She discovers that she loves this man herself.

It is a sordid, bleak tale of the earth, earthy. There is not a spark of humor to lighten the gloom. But Mr. Ehrensperger sees in it the type of drama that makes the future of the American play more certain. He says: "Longer perspective on the situations such as are set forth here may introduce comedy into this material. Here, at least, is good drama, well written, honest and simple, the kind that justifies playwriting contests and the whole popular playwriting urge that is sweeping America today."

$10,000 Cash for Solutions of Mysteries: The Colosimo Case

By Philip Kinsley.

waited for them under the Rock Island subway, a few blocks from the saloon. Three of the Camorra were killed. From that night Colosimo was a marked man. For a long time he had a bodyguard, and he was always cautious."

* *

His Matrimonial Tangle.

Colosimo's matrimonial affairs gained much prominence just before his death. Following the example of noted men in other lines of endeavor, he had decided in middle age to take a young and pretty wife, putting aside the woman who had worked with him so long.

Three years before Dale Winter had come to work in his place as an entertainer. She was brought there by Arthur Fabbri, a violinist, who had worked with her in other cafés and had found her in the loop without a job. Colosimo was attracted to her at once, had a music teacher engaged for her, and featured her so that she soon became the toast of the place, and was showered with gifts of jewels and money. Fabbri, her former companion, was forgotten, and the police looked for him and other unsuccessful suitors as part of the field that must be investigated after the killing.

Dale Winter was the big romance of life for Colosimo. When her whiteness glowed in the night lights his olive hued face took on a new look. She was as fresh as the morning. Her charm of manner lured many new customers. Morris Gest and Florenz Ziegfeld came to hear her sing, and she was tempted to forsake the café for the theater. Big Jim's interest in her became a matter of gossip.

Joseph Morosco, brother of the first Mrs. Colosimo, tells of what was going on at home during this period. He was taken into custody soon after the shooting, as well as another brother, Johnny, but they were not held long.

"Whenever they had a quarrel Jim would say to me 'Joe, go down to the house and talk to that sister of yours.'

"These rows became more frequent of late, and I was running out to the house quite often. I think I was the first one to suggest to my sister that she get a divorce. She said she had been trying to get him to agree to a divorce, but he wouldn't let her have one. I suppose they couldn't agree on the money end of it."

Mrs. Nicholas Nardi, a sister, explained;

"While they were struggling they were happy, but when money came it brought only unhappiness. They were happy until about four years ago, when my sister told me she believed her husband was not true to her. They continued living together until last January, when my sister came to my home crying and told me he was living with another woman.

"She took her jewelry, worth $45,000, and her private banking account, about $30,000, and went away. I haven't heard from her since.

Divorced and Remarried.

Colosimo filed a divorce bill, charging desertion, on Feb. 3 and the decree was granted by Judge McGoorty on March 31 by default.

West Baden in April. Pretty Dale Winter and Big Jim have just been married. Dale Winter was in one of the gambling rooms playing keno. Big Jim stepped to the door and crooked his finger at her. She left the table and ran to him laughing.

"See," she said, "I'm married now and Jim is the boss."

Their arms went about each other and they went for a horseback ride.

"Little Mrs. Big Jim," they sang at the café when the honeymooners returned from their brief weeks of happiness.

And then there was the crumpled figure of the widow on the divan at home.

"I was afraid it would happen," she said, but could give no light. "I have refused to know things," was her explanation. If murder and black hand campaigns were plotted at the back tables, she kept her own white ignorance.

"All I cared about what Jim was when he was with me."

She recovered from her grief, sang in the café again, then went on the road in "Irene." In November, 1924, she was married to an actor in San Francisco.

As the first Mrs. Colosimo's divorce stood and as the second wife had been wedded to him beyond the Illinois law, neither one came in for inheritance from him, except the jewels he had given them. Papa Luigi and his brood came into control of the restaurant, which flourished for a while under the memory of Colosimo, but finally passed out. The hand of political finesse, the great host, had been removed.

A BOOTLEG ANGLE

It may be significant that just before his death Colosimo had attempted to get in touch with his lawyer, Mr. De Stefano. What did he have on his mind? The lawyer was not able to clear it up. One theory that looked good was discussed several months later. This was that Colosimo was holding a large sum of money in a liquor deal between wholesale bootleggers, and that a gunman was hired to take this money away from him. The man suspected of the killing was traced to a Buffalo train an hour and a half after the shooting. The taxi driver was found who drove him to Colosimo's. Later he was said to have bought a valuable home in Brooklyn. He was arrested and Gabriel, the porter, the only one who could identify the man seen at the café, was taken east to look over this suspect. He could not identify him. De Stefano said Gabriel had been intimidated, that he did not dare identify any one. This may be the reason why the murder has gone unsolved. It may be far from the truth.

"There seems to be an impression among those not of Italian blood that the Italians have an unwritten law that they must not give up a murderer to justice," De Stefano said at the time of his failure. "That is not true. But it is a fact that the witnesses to a murder believe in an unwritten code that if they testify they will be slain. No Italian dares testify against a criminal. The criminals who prey on Italians have influence in high places. Witness the kidnaping of election judges in Italian districts. The men who kidnaped them were as well known as the men who were kidnaped. Were they identified? No. No one dared. The people feared the sawed off shotgun in the dark, the bomb when they were asleep. The witnesses are not protected. They are at the mercy of desperadoes of the type that murdered Jim Colosimo."

This and That Thing About the Theater

MISS MINNIE DUPREE, a well-known of the American stage through many years, will tomorrow night replace Miss Helen Lowell as the mother in "The Nut-Farm." Her classification has always been that of a good actress. She used to act with Richard Mansfield; she was N. C. Goodwin's leading-woman in "In Mizzouri"; she was David Warfield's when "The Music-Master" was new; and she had many a rôle wherein she made good, including one of the waifs in "Two Little Vagabonds."

Mr. Gest says that he will in the Autumn put on a song-and-dance piece called "Aha!" It is something by Montague Glass, the Potash-Perlmutter man, and Dimitri Tiomkin, a music-maker from Russia.

¶ ¶ ¶

"Street-Scene," which is scheduled for September 1 in the Garrick, has had more than two hundred performances in New-York, and is not, from all accounts, finding the Pulitzer prize a deterrent to continuing popularity—a circumstance due, perhaps, to the fact that a play may be good and still get the prize, or to the other fact that theater-goers don't care a rap what the Pulitzer committee of prize-namers thinks or says about any play.

¶ ¶ ¶

Frank McIntyre, on his way to Boston today in his capacity as the star of "Boom-Boom," expects to be cast in the Autumn in Kalman's operetta named "The Duchess of Chicago." The Messrs. Shubert planned to stage this piece in the season that may be said to have ended May 31: that, anyway, is the date regarded as the end of 1928-'29 by THE TRIBUNE.

¶ ¶ ¶

Somebody thinks that Elinor Glyn's "Three Weeks" contains just what is required for the libretto of a song-and-dance play; and the Messrs. Shubert list the notion in their prospectus for next season.

¶ ¶ ¶

Having said, one day last week, that he would not stage another revue, Mr. Ziegfeld, on the next day last week, said that he planned a new issue of the Follies.

¶ ¶ ¶

Ernest Truex, who has been in London so long that Americans who encounter him there say they cannot penetrate his accent, is to return in the Autumn to act in "Many Waters," a play by Monckton Hoffe.

¶ ¶ ¶

"Sisters of the Chorus" is the title of an impending new piece.

"Wild Birds," which some years ago had what used to be termed a succes d'estime (meaning that nobody paid to see it, but that some of the reporters liked it), is to be revived, it is said, in the notion that the popular taste has caught up with the dramatist's art. The dramatist is named Dan Totheroh, and is a Californian.

"Broadway Nights," whereof Doctor Rockwell is the principal jester, is to be submitted this week in Cleveland, a place where shows in kind are not customarily tried out.

¶ ¶ ¶

Miss Jane Cowl's success in Boston in "Jenny" is so marked that her management has taken a New-York theater for her use late in September. The play is by Margaret Ayer [Mrs. Cecil] Barnes and Edward Sheldon.

¶ ¶ ¶

"Show-Boat," one of the outstanding successes of recent years, was taken off last night in Boston. Expectation is that Mr. Ziegfeld will somehow arrange to put it into Chicago next season, and to keep it here a long time.

"The Million-Pound Deposit," one of E. Phillips Oppenheim's many fictions, is to be fashioned into a play.

Miss Barrymore, it is announced, is to act the title-rôle in a play to be made from Julia Peterkin's novel named "Scarlet Sister Mary"; and now the antiquarians are looking up the data to ascertain if any member of the Barrymore-Drew clan has ever appeared in blackface. The stage-version is by Daniel Reed, whoever Daniel Reed may be. . . . However, Miss Barrymore is not to have the new rôle until about the end of 1929; and she is to tour meanwhile in the two plays wherein she has been acting in New-York—"The Kingdom of God" and "The Love-Duel."

"Three Cheers!" is not to be among next season's shows. Mr. Dillingham, who prepared it for Fred Stone and then gave it into the care of Will Rogers, explains that the latter performer made it so much his own that it would be hopeless without him.

AMONG THOSE IN THE NEW SHOW

JACK PEARL MISS GRACE BRINKLEY

THEY'RE in "Pleasure-Bound," which until last night was a New-York-enticement: its allure is transferred to Chicago, where it will be exhibited tomorrow night in the Grand Opera-House. . . . As to Mr. Pearl, he has since 1923 been a cutup of increasing popularity in this city, where his most recent appearance was in the Spring of 1928 in the Winter Garden show named "Artists and Models." He has been favorably compared by some of the reporters to the late Sam Bernard. Miss Brinkley was here late last Summer in the Greenwich Village Follies, in the performances of which she made known the possession of good-looks and a delightful singing-voice.

Plays and Such of Ten Years Ago in Chicago Theaters

SUBJOINED are news of and comments on plays and shows printed in THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE of June 15, 1919—the date most nearly corresponding to today. The excerpts are verbatim, and not rewrites or summarizations.

Donald Brian and Wallace Eddinger will be co-starred next season in a musical play entitled "Buddies," the work—except the music—of George V. Hobart. Accordingly, they must be added to the list of stars whose activities figured in these columns a week ago. Also omitted therefrom was William Hodge, who will be seen next season in a brand new William Hodge play.

"Buddies" was meant to be utilization of the sentiments that had been stirred up by the war; and it eventually served just that purpose.

Miss Peggy Wood has gone temporarily over to the pictures as Will Rogers' leading-woman, and will be seen with him in a series of films based on the Billy Fortune stories of Saturday-Evening Post fame. In the Fall, presumably, she will return to these parts to play the leading rôle in the comedy which she and Samuel Merwin have been fashioning.

Whatever happened to Miss Woods and Mr. Rogers in films is not in the knowledge of the present writer. She continues to be active in the Theater, whereof he is now a millionaire. . . . Nor is it remembered that a great opus came from the combined pens of Miss Wood and Mr. Merwin.

Twenty Years Ago

GOING back through the files to twenty years ago, or to the corresponding Sunday of 1909, the interests of theater-goers were catered to in THE TRIBUNE of June 13 by the paragraphs that follow.

Those who attend the first performance of "Florodora" at the Sans-Souci Theater this evening will find that playhouse transformed into a Summer garden-spot replete with all the features of a roof-garden except the roof. Smoking will be permitted in all parts of the theater. The revival of the ever-melodious "Florodora" will be made with Miss Edna Wallace Hopper in the rôle of Lady Holyrood, a part which she created and played during the 500 nights' run at the New-York Casino. Jack Henderson, the comedian of the company, will be seen as Tweedlepunch; and William Stewart, as Frank Abercoed, will sing "In the Shade of the Sheltering Palm" ballad. In addition to the double sextet in the famous "Tell Me, Pretty Maiden" number, there will be a chorus of fifty.

The venture with operetta in the Sans-Souci didn't prosper, although 1909 was a good Summer for shows in Chicago.

"The Dollar-Mark," George Broadhurst's new play looked on as one of the surest things for next season on account of its phenomenal run in Los Angeles, will be shown for the first time in New-York City in August. A Chicago production of the play is planned for the same night, provided indefinite booking can be secured at a local theater.

"The Dollar-Mark" was really a notable success in Los Angeles: so much so that all the other play-producers were envious of William A. Brady for having obtained the rights to put it on elsewhere. It turned out to be a revision of an older piece, "The War of Wealth," and also to be a bad play.

New in Manhattan.

"Borrowed Love," by Bide Dudley, will be the sole new play of the week in New-York, with Miss Mary Fowler, Richard Gordon, and Barry O'Neill acting three of the four characters. . . . There will be a new revue, "Keep It Clean," prepared by Will Morrissey, and a new Negro show, "Hot Chocolates"; and a revision of the most recent issue of the Grand-Street Follies, which the critics found a bit esoteric.

Mary Ellis Makes Good as Becky Sharpe

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—So far as the June drama is concerned there is one young woman whom it has made supremely happy. Her name is Mary Ellis and she has just finished a week playing the name part in "Becky Sharpe" in the Players' club revival.

The Players' club, you probably recall, though a most respectably dry organization, does miss a lot of revenue that it used to collect from its bar such times as drinking strangers would wander into Gramercy Park and accept hospitality at its hands. So once a year it now organizes one of these grand old-time revivals and restages a classic.

The "Becky Sharpe" revival was made with as much seriousness and care as though it were a brand new production and there was long debate as to whether or not Mrs. Fiske could be induced to once more take up the rôle of Becky which she so perfectly made her own in the old days.

Mrs. Fiske Opens the Gate.

Mrs. Fiske's decision that, though she loved the players devotedly, it would not be a kindness either to them or to herself to play Becky again, gave Miss Ellis her chance. I don't think she leaped at it, but with Basil Sidney, in whose judgment she places much confidence, agreeing to play Rawdon, she was mightily pleased to accept the assignment.

Her success was modest but definite. She is not a player of vast experience, but she is possessed of genuine talent, a not too assertive confidence, and a light and pleasant personal charm.

Any comparison of her performance with that of our mistress of comediennes would be unfair to both. Mrs. Fiske was the embodiment of histrionic authority and consummate grace, playing a rôle to which she was peculiarly suited by temperament.

A brilliant, brittle, intelligent and ruthless Becky. Miss Ellis was a youthful, happy, ambitious, tricky young creature of gay moods and artful dodges. Her conspiracies were spontaneously the creation of circumstances rather than of deliberate planning, or seemed so. And there was evident excuse for the physical allure of her.

Young Reviewers Rave Over Her.

So Miss Ellis came off with much praise. The younger reviewers who had never seen Mrs. Fiske raved over her, and the ancients admitted that she was certainly this and that and even thus and so, to considerable perfection. I would not be surprised if some day Miss Ellis and Mr. Sidney did not consider a revival and tour of "Becky Sharpe." Certainly they will have offers.

Dudley Digges staged the revival and made a fine job of the ball in Brussels that is so dramatically broken up by the booming of Napoleon's cannon and the cast included all the prominent players who have escaped Hollywood and the talkies. Jimmy Powers made his annual reëntry in makeup as Sir Pitt, Cissy Loftus had a swell time playing Miss Crawley, Moffat Johnston was the Steyne, Patricia Collinge the Amelia, and there must have been a half hundred others equally prominent.

But it really was Mary Ellis' week, for she was the fresh interest in the proceedings. She is still growing professionally, this daughter of the arts whose training for the drama came through a successful debut at the Metropolitan, a whirlwind success in "Rose-Marie," a tempestuous season at the Neighborhood, a forsaking of opera and an embracing of drama for better or worse with Mr. Sidney as a co-star. This season they played an amusing but thin little thing by A. A. Milne called "Meet the Prince" and played it weeks longer than any one else could have kept it alive.

Mantle Wrestles with Bronchitis.

Sometimes it pays to be obedient and sometimes doubts arise. I came home from the performance of "Becky Sharpe" lifted in spirit but depressed in body. My head ached, my bones ached, my muscles ached, my throat ached. I thought I had a touch of double pneumonia, plus a slight attack of mastoiditis.

Remembering that I had been told for an embarrassing number of years that if I would merely use the simple sense with which the Lord fortifies even the most humble of humans and give up—just for a day—that nature would set me right again, I voluntarily went to bed, putting all my work schedules aside for 24 hours. That was Tuesday. Wednesday the doctor said it was acute bronchitis. And I'm still in bed. I can play with a portable typewriter balanced on a pair of friendly kneecaps, they tell me, but I can't move about until there has been no sign of fever for twenty-four hours.

So much for obedience and tractability. I am quite sure that if I had continued going I would have felt terrible for a day or two, and made everybody around me a little miserable, but there I would have been, on my feet and useful. I can't convince anybody of that.

The doctor is one of those "nature knows best" guys. Doesn't believe much in medicines, unless everything seems to be going all right. Then he may allow you a teentsy-weentsy bit of something or other just to satisfy your old fashioned theories that what the doctor is for is to give you mysterious drugs that only he and the druggist know about.

Doctor Lays Down the Law.

"In cases of this kind," he'll say, looking as profound and serious as a man can without whiskers, "about the best thing is to keep quiet and give nature a chance."

"But look how slow she is," I protest. "What nature needs is a boost. Four or five days in bed for a little old bronchitis! Silly."

"Nature has been working more or less automatically for a good many years," he says.

"So has the observatory at Greenwich," I say, "but look how differently time flies from year to year. I can remember when the years were ever and ever so much longer than they have been recently. There was a time when even the hours dragged. But nowadays a man around—well, say around 49—even say around 50—can work himself into a panic listening to the ticks of a clock, they come so fast and there is so much to be done."

"You stay where you are until I see you again," he says. "And I think you've read enough for today."

Evolves Curtsy from Black Bottom.

Well, most of the drama is off-stage stuff these days, anyway. This is my nine year old daughter's graduation day in her Sunday school and she has been piously and thoughtfully preparing for the ceremonies all day by trying to fit the steps some one taught her when the Charleston was a popular dance into a new routine that some one else has informed her is known as the Black Bottom. She has no idea of using the dance in the church, she assures me, but it kinda gets you used to that old curtsy.

It seems you have to curtsy when you receive your diploma, which further relieves you of the stigma of having once been an infant and on that old baby rôle, and makes a junior of you. And you have to curtsy again when you receive a regular Bible with your name printed on it.

She seemed a bit doubtful as to whether she was cheating or not in accepting the Bible, inasmuch as she did not really believe Jesus was strong enough to move the rock away from the mouth of the tomb. But I cleared that thought for her by telling her weakly that probably as her faith grew her understanding would grow with it, and, anyway, she had better ask about it another time when father was not having his bronchitis. Then, she could ask mother.

Not an Unqualified Success.

It recalled the family story of my own admission to a Sunday school of a different denomination from that in which my family had been reared. I wanted to go, as I recall it, because the mother of the boy with the most neighborhood influence, and certainly the best ball and bat, taught a class. My mother gave her consent, saying sotto voce, I assume, that it certainly would not do me any harm even if it did me no good. . . . The minister and several committees called on mother the week following.

I suppose there is danger of accepting a child's religious training too casually. And yet I have seen many that have been persistently directed to their apparent undoing. Certainly to little success in the matter of satisfaction to either director or child.

FULL MEASURE! That's what Clicquot Club gives. Clicquot Club Pale Dry comes in bottles 1/3 larger than the scanty 12 oz. "pint."

Take no chances on getting small bottle ginger ale. Always ask for Clicquot Club Pale Dry. Get full measure and a "dry" ginger ale with the mellow flavor that only ageing can give.

A "dry" ginger ale that is aged six months

First the flavor elements of Clicquot Club are blended and aged. Then the bottled ginger ale is aged again! That brings the final perfection of flavor. And makes it more healthful too.

Clicquot Club is double-carbonated! It contains the finest, purest Jamaica ginger, pure table sugar, mellow syrups made from pure fruit juices, and pure water from deep rock springs.

Clicquot Club Pale Dry reaches you in clean new bottles—full 16 oz. pints that are far more economical and convenient than "baby" pints or ordinary near-quarts. Whether you buy in pairs, half dozens, or the economical Party Package (12 full pints), remember that Clicquot gives 1/3 more!

For a mellow beverage that delights your taste, use Clicquot Club Pale Dry—alone, or in recipe drinks. Good both ways! Do try Clicquot Club—today. At all dealers. ▼ ▼ ▼

Peacock Struts; Pajamas Chase, but Bird Wins

By Rosalind Shaffer.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., June 15.—[Special Correspondence.]—Hollywood's comedian and comediennes thrive on humor out of as well as in working hours. Official stage comedy has become so much of a rule about studios than one harrassed producer is wont to inquire of his guffawing aides, "Have you got that in the script?"

Recently early risers in Beverly Hills got a look-see at perhaps the greatest comedy performance ever given by Charley Mack of Black Crows fame. In preface to the eary morning comedy act, it must be told that when Mack is up late making night shots at the studio he finds it impossible to go to sleep, and is prone to wake his wife and take her down town where they walk about window shopping till the stores open. One morning, the first store to open was a bird and animal shop, which opened at 7.

Mack Buys a Peacock.

Mack saw a peacock with an eight foot tail spread. Nothing had struck him quite that way before and Mack bought the peacock. He could not help but think what a fine effect the bird would make strutting about his elegant and expensive new garden.

Unversed in the ways of peacocks, Charley, had a terrible fight the first night the peacock graced his estate. He heard a loud squawk of "help" emanating, so he thought, from the room of his wife.

Mack grabbed a light robe, his unloaded revolver and a pair of flappy slippers and rushed into his wife's room at 4 a. m. "Charley Darling," said, she, the peacock is loose and yelling so loudly, I think the neighbors will be annoyed."

"I'm sure of it," answered he, "for I'm annoyed already myself."

"Go down like a good boy and get him in," she said, which Mr. Mack tried to do, only to have the peacock squawk the louder and fly over the fence into the neighbor's yard. Pursuing the bird from bush to bush. Mack got close enough once to pull out a few tail feathers. A neighbor had plowed up quite an expanse to make a new lawn and in running through this, Mack lost first one slipper, then another.

Chases Bird a Mile.

Finnally Mack and the bird both enraged and yelling got nearly a mile from home, going as fast as legs and wings could take them towards the center of the business district of Beverly Hills. Our modern John Gilpin was hailed by the milkman, who, yelled, "Hey, why don't you try shaking salt on his tail?" at which Mack, seeing it was nearly 6 o'clock and neighbors beginning to be about, hurried his barefeet homeward. A day or two later some neighbor who had heard of screendom's highest salaried comedian and his bird chase related the peacock and Mack had a carpenter hurriedly build a bird house that has no exit.

Fazenda a Mirth Provoker.

Louise Fazenda is another mirth-provoker, who seems to live in a whirl off stage. Charlie Murray, her old teammate of Sennett days, has a favorite gag or two that he loves to put over on Louise. Murray will watch with uncanny accuracy for Louise in a crowd and when he is about twenty feet from her and going in the other direction so she can't stop him will holler, "You're going to have to quit entertaining those sailors in our parlor so late at night."

Louise then gets scandalized looks from bystanders and she says herself she cannot help feeling abashed. Sam Hardy also embarrassed Louise this week. Seeing her coming out of a bank Hardy yelled at her from across the street, "You and the rest of these extra girls are going to have to quit telephoning to me all the time. You make a nuisance out of yourself."

Louise plays, plenty gags herself. She is something of a ventsiloquist and can affect a deep masculine booming voice that will convulse a roomful, while it perplexes the ones that Louise wants to tease.

Sweetness and Light, British Talkie Ideal

Yankee Producers Must Please Purist Censors.

By Waverley L. Root.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 8.—If American producers of talking pictures want their films to be shown in Great Britain, they will have to make them with one eye upon the sensibilities of the British censor.

He has said as much in his annual report, pointing out, perhaps with a chuckle up his sleeve, that since cutting a synchronized sound film spoils the whole reel, the makers will have to keep their films within the narrow range which pleases the censorial mind.

Britain has not reached the depth of the state of Pennsylvania, where it is forbidden to show a lady sewing on baby clothes on the screen, but in certain respects the censorship here is more onerous than in any American state. The British censor frowns upon any light treatment of royalty, upon disrespect to the police, upon a light treatment of any subject deemed serious. The British mind prefers to approach every situation from the angle that has been decided upon as appropriate, and the British censor protects his compatriots from the blighting influence of new viewpoints.

Regard Arts as Soporifics.

Unfortunately censorship in Britain does not stop with the deletion of scenes which for one reason or another would be considered objectionable almost everywhere. It is a common belief on this side of the water that the arts are soporifics; that all stories, particularly those vivified on the stage or screen, should be heavily sugar coated. Above all, all the characters should throb with the loftiest sentiments, and even the villains should turn out to be, when their better nature triumphs, ladies and gentlemen at heart.

The censors, sharing in this general view, and somehow believing that it falls within their duties to guard their charges from expending 50 cents for an evening of general unpleasantness, have the habit now and then of barring a picture on the ground of sordidness.

Fortunately the censorial standards are exceedingly erratic. As a matter of fact many of his rules are transgressed again and again, for even a censor has to look at a moving picture as a whole and in the process he cannot help being affected by the context, even if he fails to understand that isolated incidents are not to be criticized without considering them together with the context.

Must Strike Censor's Level.

Now, however, he is asking for the scripts of talking pictures, and we may expect to find that spectacle, so familiar in America, of a gentleman focusing the whole of his attention on a single speech and insisting that that speech contaminates the entire film. If it is insisted that speeches be cut, we will either have sudden appalling gaps in the sound sequence or certain pictures will be lost to the public entirely because of one or two lines. If this happens often, the producers will be forced to make their pictures with an eye on the mental level of the censor, which will once more flood the market with the puerile type of picture the movies have lately been breaking away from.

I suspect that the censor has made a cut in "The Broadway Melody," for there is a sudden moment in the middle of the picture where the sound stops and the characters are left foolishly gesturing and moving their lips. It may have been a stoppage of the machine, but it is more likely that the censor cut out some offending lines, leaving them for the lipreaders only, like the rich profanity in Wings, which certainly would have been cut if the censor had been able to read it.

However, the British censor has left in The Broadway Melody a tribute to his knowledge of American slang. The words, "You dirty bums!" bring a gasp of astonishment from the audience. The majority of the audiences do not know that the American meaning of the word "bum" is comparatively innocuous, it would spoil their enjoyment if they did.

Object to Crime Films.

Despite letters addressed to the trade in 1917 and again in 1925, the British board of film censors mournfully points out, there is again a "marked revival in the production of films dealing with crime in a way which is considered detrimental to the public interest." There is also, it appears, "a tendency to produce incidents of prolonged and gross brutality which cannot be considered wholesome." Wholesomeness, sweetness and light have been protected in the British empire during 1928 by the rejection of eight of the 1,947 films submitted. It is safe to say that the censors must have found themselves able to compromise with crime, brutality and the usual immoral features that bring down censorial wrath, for reports in the press have revealed that pictures refused licenses for political reasons must make up most if not all of the eight films from which the British public has been protected. The British empire, in the view of the censors, has not sufficient strength to survive the showing of half a dozen pictures depicting revolutionary scenes and the overthrowing of monarchies in other countries. It seems to be their opinion that Oliver Cromwell was led to the beheading of Charles I after seeing a moving picture depicting the assassination of Julius Cæsar.

Besides the eight films utterly beyond the pale, thirt[illegible] being revised in certain particulars to meet the requirements of the board. The rest were passed—1,578 films for universal exhibition and 330 for adult exhibition. This distinction means nothing. Both types of films are shown in general theaters open to everybody.

Bark Is Worse Than Bite.

The figures show that the censor's bark is worse than his bite. He has heavily inclusive rules but is unable or fails to enforce many of them. The unfortunate part of the situation is that when he turns thumbs down unexpectedly on some film he probably does considerable injustice to a producer whose picture is no worse than many which have been allowed to pass. There is certainly talk in some of the pictures passed much worse than the singing of the negro spiritual, "Nobody knows de trouble I've seen, nobody knows but Jesus," which was manhandled because the censor has a hard and fast rule against the use of the word Jesus on the screen, irrespective of the reverence or irreverence of its use.

The London screen is, and has been for some time past, almost monopolized by films in which crime is the sole feature and raison d'etre of the story—as in "The Drag Net," for instance, now running in general release at a score of London houses.

305 Receive Alterations.

Of the films passed during the year, exceptions were taken to 345, of which 305 were passed after alterations. The reasons for the censorial objections included scenes touching on the white slave traffic, both realistic and comic treatments of hanging, vamp scenes, dope scenes, the breaking of a bottle on a man's head, deliberate preparation for suicide, cruelty to animals, fights between women and girls, brutal fights between men, torture scenes, the showing of methods of crime with sufficient detail to make imitation possible, indecorous bathroom scenes, impolite references to royalty, comic treatment of incidents connected with death, conflicts between the armed forces of a state and its populace, scenes showing police firing on an unarmed mob, painful scenes of lunacy and references to well known and public characters.

Any one who has attended London cinemas regularly could supply an endless list of films, including some of these scenes which have escaped the erratic attention of the censor. Vamping may be seen in "The Man Who Laughs" and in about any other picture in town; girls are seen fighting in "The Broadway Melody," torture in considerable detail appears in "Ivan the Terrible," which is also impolite to royalty.

Edicts Are Eccentric.

It may be seen that the edicts of the British censor are as eccentric as those of the various state boards in America.

Perhaps the most startling reason for not licensing a film in England was offered in connection with "The Phantom of the Opera." This film, which was announced all over the world with a ballyhoo which actually succeded in convincing most of the people who saw it, contrary to the evidence of the film itself, that it merited all the superlatives lavished upon it, was escorted to England with commensurate pomp. Some publicity agent succeeded in getting an escort of soldiers to bring the films from the dock to the theater. News reel pictures were taken of the escort, with its large signs on which the name of the film was printed. Not until the news reel advertising the appearance of the picture was shown did the gentlemen responsible for the escort realize, according to their own account, that they had been furnishing advertising for the film company. In indignation at the film company for exploiting their stupidity, they demanded that the film be suppressed. As a result, England has thus far been spared "The Phantom of the Opera."

TO BE IN IT

ROBERT WILLIAMS

He's putting on and is to act in "After Dark," due a week from tonight in the Woods. . . . Mr. Williams was the tenacious young attorney in the first weeks of the Chicago run of "The Trial of Mary Dugan," last autumn, in the Adelphi.

Voice of the Fan

If you would like your letters printed in this column, please write on ONE SIDE of the paper ONLY. If you want a personal answer send stamped, self-addressed envelope—PLEASE.

Just Poetic License.

Dear Miss Tinée: I was much surprised, when I saw "The Lady of the Pavements," that the picture was of the period of 1868; how come that a song written in 1928 by Berlin, "The Song of Songs for Me," is sung by Lupe Velez in a picture supposedly of that age? Some slip there somewhere; these things ought to be taken into consideration.

MRS. SAM FRANK.

Editor's Note: O, just a bit of poetic license.

Likes William Haines.

Dear Mae Tinée: I've never written to you before, but I do read your likes and dislikes, and I follow them very, very closely. I just want to tell you about some of my likes. May I please?

William Haines and Joan Crawford are "gorgeous." Little Davy Lee is "superb," and Lupe Velez is "most beautiful."

May I look forward to seeing this little missive in next SUNDAY'S TRIB?

Sincerely, ETTA.

Editor's Note: Here you are, and the pleasure is ours.

My Most Embarrassing Moment

The Tribune will pay $1 for every letter published on "The Most Embarrassing Moment of My Life." Address Embarrassing Moments, Chicago Tribune. Write on one side of the paper. No manuscripts returned.

It Was Somebody Else.

One noon on my way to work I walked past a jewelry store where one window was filled with diamond rings. There was a young man standing there looking at them, whom I supposed to be one of my acquaintances, and as I walked past I said, "Thinking of buying one?" When he turned around quickly and said, "What?" I saw it was a young man I had never seen before. I begged his pardon and hurried out of sight. When I turned the corner I looked back and he was standing there watching me. It certainly was one of my most embarrassing moments. M. C.

Covered Up.

My most embarrassing moment came when I was about twelve years old. My sister had a beau who often bribed me with money or candy to make myself scarce. This particular night which I so well remember he had given me a dime. Bidding them good night I had gone to my room. There was a register in the ceiling of the parlor and as my room was directly above I often threw myself flat on the floor and put my ear to this communicating link. On this particular night the dime slipped through my fingers and fell to the floor beneath. There were no low murmurs then but a hearty outburst of anger and I fled to bed and covered my head in shame. O. D.

Upside Down.

A lens from my bifocals had fallen out without breaking. These were my reading glasses for special occasions. My thrifty husband volunteered to save me the time and expense of a trip to the optician. But upon attempting to use the glasses in presiding at my club meeting I found that my mechanically inclined husband had replaced the lens all right, except that it was upside down.

R. C. S.

Learned to Dance.

I was once visiting a friend in a large city, and we were invited to a party. My friend was inclined to be a bit mischievous and enjoyed seeing a fellow in an embarrassing situation; so he picked me as the victim of his little joke.

Pretty girls were plentiful and they danced gracefully. I had never danced a step in my life—and my friend knew it, too,—so I was content to sit in any easy chair and look on. She came up and introduced to me a very charming young lady, who happened to be none other than the daughter of the governor of the state. She said that she had been told I was an excellent dancer, and said she would like to dance with me. I embarrassingly explained to her that I could not dance. She and my friend insisted that now was as good a time as any to learn so they finally got me on the floor. I was so embarrassed that I do not ever know to this day how I managed to get through that set, but I have since learned to dance well.

WHISPERING—WHAT?

BILLIE DOVE is seen here telling Antonio Moreno summat that she would not, we take it, care to tell anybody else. But Mr. Moreno does not appear happy over the disclosure. Wonder why? You'll find out the reason when you see the pair in "Careers," which is over at the Chicago theater.

Best Movies

If you will tell us what movie, in your opinion, rates above all the others you've seen, and why this particular movie is deserving of praise, we'll pay $1 for your letter if we print it. Address Best Movies, Chicago Tribune.

An Unusual Film.

I have never derived so much pleasure in viewing a movie as I did the picture, "In Old Arizona." The film is typically western, and includes all the details of a remarkable picture.

Warner Baxter as the "Cisco Kid," and Dorothy Burgess as Tonia Maria display a brilliant piece of acting throughout the play, as does also Edmund Lowe—the hard boiled army sergeant.

The scenes which reveal the ruse employed by the "Cisco Kid" to end the life of his faithless sweetheart are most amusing. Vitaphone accompaniment greatly aids the production, giving it a more vivid and realistic touch. A. Y. S.

"On Edge All Evening."

The movie that in my opinion surpasses and rates above all others is "The Last Warning," starring Laura La Plante. I have attended many other weird pictures and plays, such as "The Terror," "The Phantom of the Opera," and "The Bat," and I think I do no injustice to the other pictures by saying "The Last Warning" is the best. It keeps one sitting on the edge of the seat all through it.

U. of Wisconsin an Embowered Question Mark

Educationally, It Tries Anything Once.

By James O'Donnell Bennett.

university hall than the Hottentot alphabet affects the selling price of Wisconsin cheese.

"A certain observance of good table manners is not an infringement on the freedom of eating.

"By the same token, the discussion and advocacy of free sexual relations both before and after marriage is an enterprise that good taste and a sense of propriety suggest should be staged elsewhere than before a mixed audience in a co-educational institution.

"Since coming to the University of Wisconsin I have done everything within my power to fortify the tradition of freedom that is one of its chief glories. I have given formal approval of the use of the university platform for discussions that have flooded my desk with protests from political, religious, and economic groups throughout the state.

"Trotsky, or his American equivalent, and J. P. Morgan would be equally welcome to the university platform to discuss bolshevism and big business. Advocates of public or private ownership of natural resources and public utilities, pro-leaguers or anti-leaguers, pro-religionists or anti-religionists—all are welcome.

"But no argument that I have yet seen convinces me that liberalism is inconsistent with at least a minimum sense of propriety."

With that, freedom ceased shrieking and clamor simmered down. Mrs. Russell was allowed to speak in a Unitarian church, whereupon the trustees who gave that permission did not find life wholly a bed of roses.

The La Follette Touch.

The tradition that within the limits of decency you can say anything and question everything at the University of Wisconsin received many an enlivening touch during the governorship of the elder La Follette. Although he was the twentieth governor of Wisconsin he was the first man born in the state and the first alumnus of the university to be elected to the governorship. The school was very dear to him and—for better or worse—he infused it with a great deal of his own trumpeting ideology. He and the late Charles Richard Van Hise, who was president of the university for fifteen years and whose saying, "The state of Wisconsin is the campus of the University of Wisconsin," is still a fundamental of the institution's policy in relation to the people of the state, worked zealously together in behalf of the school. Throughout the land the university was more and more regarded—as was La Follette himself by his followers—as a valiant tribune of the people. It had, among the emancipated, the fame of being untrammeled by o'ercautious regents and meddling legislators, and that fame drew to it aggressively questioning students from all parts of the Union.

"Learning," said President Frank, harking back to those days, "came out of the cloister, and politics sought to subject its procedures to laboratory tests. Forces that had been gathering for a decade or more came to a flowering in a renascent politics and a renascent education. In short, an honest attempt was made in Wisconsin to drive the power of the state and the knowledge of the university abreast."

Old Wars and New.

Thus the demesne of the university became, and it still is, good fighting ground. Such, too, it was ninety-seven years ago this summer.

Wandering among the tulip beds which strew the knolls of the campus with crimson and gold, I came upon a boulder to which is affixed a bronze tablet bearing these words:

> Black Hawk, Sauk chief, retreated through these grounds July 21, 1832, pursued by militia and United States regulars. Placed by the class of 1888, U. W., June 17, 1918.

The tablet is typical of the university's spirit. A good running fight is a divertissement which it could not leave untableted without disloyalty to its code.

The Summer Resort Setting.

But the campus shows no battle scars today. It is a radiant garden. Its 700 acres overlook Lake Mendota which is twenty-five miles in circumference and the largest of the five lakes lorded over by the dome of the state capitol. The others are Monona, Wingra, Waubesa and Kegonsa. In the course of nearly eighty years, dating from North hall which was begun in 1850, more than a hundred buildings have been plumped down almost helter-skelter amid the steep and richly wooded knolls of the campus. Thus the harmonious grouping of structures and the creation of noble vistas have been attained only in front of Bascom hall, where a broad green terrace descends from College hill for a distance of two city blocks to the residential part of Madison. This tree sentineled slope is commanded by Adolph Alexander Wienman's statue of Lincoln. It is a replica of the statue in Hodgenville, Lincoln's birth town in Kentucky and its note is the note of majestic repose. The massive stone exedra half circling the statue is deeply carved with Lincoln's words: "Let us have faith that right makes might, and in that faith dare to do our duty." In the far distance rises the dome of the capitol.

Trials of Early Presidents.

That vista is impressive, but elsewhere the campus still unfolds to the attentive eye traces of the early and difficult problems with which most of our state universities had to contend. The wilderness enveloped them and they could build only for the immediate need and on a meagre scale. Large parts of the enormous grants of timberlands which were bestowed upon them in the early part of the nineteenth century had to be sold at a sacrifice in order to get the institutions under way. Sometimes those grants were grossly mismanaged and became the source of legislative scandal. The early university presidents were almost invariably men of sound scholarship but they were obliged to devote a large part of their energies to fighting the schemes of devious politicians and the shortsightedness of meddling regents of whom the best that could be said was that they meant well.

The marvel is that within less than a century the state universities of Illinois, Wisconsin, Iowa, Indiana and Michigan have thrown off their provincial trammels and have become institutions of world fame.

The Professor Follows the Aborigine.

Take your stand upon Observatory hill amid the glades and tulip beds of Wisconsin's campus and you obtain dramatic proof of the amazing brevity of the educational annals of the central west. Here and there the lawns rise in lines which still faintly suggest designs of man's fashioning. These elevations are, indeed, Indian "effigy mounds." One represents a bird and, before walks and driveways blurred its outlines, it had a wingspread of 133 feet. Another represents a turtle and is considered remarkable among the many turtle mounds in southern Wisconsin in that it has two tails. Some of these earthworks are believed to have been built by the Winnebagoes about five hundred years ago.

Below the heights on which you are standing, and on the Lake Mendota shore of the campus, there was once an Indian village.

The dramatic significance of these traces of effigies and of burial mounds is that, while they abruptly mark the end of aboriginal culture—such as it was—in this area, the university towers and quadrangles and classic façades which now sentinel them mark with equal abruptness the beginning of the new, resplendent, and searching culture of our age. So far as the area of this campus is concerned, no event in human history intervened between the departure of the aborigine and the coming of the professor.

The university was opened in 1849 and it was only a few months before that the last deer was killed on College hill.

"An Adventure in Education."

Amid these scenes, so compactly eloquent of the past and the present, there is being worked out under President Frank's sympathetic eyes a remarkable experiment which may decisively affect the future of university teaching throughout the land. It is the experiment of conducting with a special group of teachers and a special group of students "a college within a college," and its general purpose may most readily be made known by quotation of Dr. Frank's definition of what he considers ideal education.

"Ideal education," he says, "would provide a group of students, who have been brought together by a common love of knowledge, with the opportunity of gathering around teachers whose learning and experience they absorb by suggestion rather than by rule and method. Each student will then set forth on the high adventure of putting that learning and those suggestions into effect after his own way.

"This must be done, I think, by the student's bending first to the conquest of a cultural background during his freshman and sophomore years and then to the development of a general technique for finding his way about in the modern social order. I do not think this can be done by turning students loose to take a series of separate and uncoördinated studies.

Major Perils in Current Methods.

"The student in the average university is today in danger of falling victim to either of two perils—the peril of suicidal smattering or the peril of suicidal specialization. Hence, the challenge to educators is to devise means of insuring to students the advantages, first, of broad cultural backgrounds and, later, of intensive specialization. College curricula must be shaken up and put together anew in a pattern that will present a larger synthesis of existing knowledge."

Now that, tersely put, is the large "adventure in education," as President Frank calls it, which is being lived by 200 students and 18 teachers who work together in Adams hall on the Lake Mendota side of Wisconsin's campus. It has been under way for two years. Two years more must pass before its value can be ascertained, for then the group of students who have spent the first two years of their university life in this "Experimental college"—for such is its far from felicitous name—will have rounded out their four years in the university and will fairly be subject to appraisal.

Meanwhile it is no exaggeration to say that every university president and every thoughtful educator in the country is watching the adventure in Adams hall with interest and eagerly awaits results.

What, then, is happening there?

For two years the 200 young students have been studying the large outlines and the multitudinous detail of two sharply contrasted civilizations.

The Glory That Was Greece.

They gave their first year to the examination of Greek civilization as it flourished in the sixth, fifth, and fourth centuries before the Christian era, concentrating their attention especially upon the age of Pericles, who finished his work as statesman and as fosterer of the arts in the year 429 B. C. This resplendent age in the annals of human culture was studied as being highly illustrative of a civilization which managed to function without the influences of modern science and modern invention but which, nevertheless, thought out and expressed with incomparable beauty and clearness ideas which to this day are vital and productive. This period, together with the influences which led up to its fine flowering and the influences which it has diffused through twenty-three subsequent centuries, was examined in its every aspect.

The dramas of Æschylus, Euripides, and Sophocles which were part of the glory of the fifth century, the comedies of Aristophanes which illumine with their keen satirical light various social problems which confronted Athens in the fifth and fourth centuries, the writings of Plato which preserved for mankind the wisdom of Socrates, the orations of Demosthenes and of his rival Æschines which unfold the bitter trials which Athens faced in the fourth century, the art of Phidias as expressed in the Parthenon, which the city dedicated in 438 B. C., the political and aesthetic dicta of Plato's pupil and Alexander the Great's teacher, Aristotle—all were studied by the young men in Adams hall not under but with masters of those subjects.

The students did their own digging. And having dug, they brought their treasures to the masters and with them began the task of appraisal.

Concentrating on One Problem.

In the words of President Frank, the freshman thus has spent his year "not on five or six uncorrelated subjects but on one closely correlated theme and on a single problem dealing with a pre-scientific civilization. He took that civilization to pieces to see how it worked or how in certain essentials it failed to work. Immature though his mind may have been, we flung at the boy the challenge of solving an intricate social problem."

In the second year of study in the Experimental college comes abrupt contrast. Now the theme is the problems and perplexities which confront men living under a civilization that has been tremendously influenced by science and invention. Part of the student's work is the preparation of a critical essay on any one of the great scientific theories, such as the atomic theory, the nebular hypothesis, organic evolution, the cell theory, the kinetic theory, and behaviorism. He is to dig into the question of whether psychology is truly a laboratory science and—quoting further from a page of last February's suggestions to sophomores—he is to consider what prevents the development of psychology as a laboratory science.

Constantly the pages of suggestions are peppered with "Why?" and "How?" and "What?" Thus:

* *

Putting It Up to the Student.

"What evil conditions which you are aware of in this country could be changed for the better by the application of scientific methods, and how would you go about applying them?"

"What evil conditions of which you are aware in our civilization could not, in your opinion, be changed for the better by the methods of science? Why not? Base your answer upon an analysis of the concepts and methods of science."

One of the initial papers of the second year's study in the Experimental college is thus outlined:

"Write a paper on the significant contrasts between the civilization of the fifth century Athens and that in the modern America, basing your discussion on your own readings, experience and observation."

Here another topic, requiring extensive reading and close correlation, is sketched and it takes the student from Pericles to Mark Hanna:

"A constitutional system—Athenian or American—is administered by men and women moved by various ideas and forces. Each system offers its prizes and penalties, has its boundaries and highways; in short, its opportunities or denials of opportunity for careers in politics. Discuss the possibility and conception of a political career as viewed by Pericles for fifth century Athens, by Henry Adams for post-civil war America, and by yourself for your own generation. For Adams you may substitute, if you prefer, Thayer's "John Hay," Croly's "Mark Hanna," or Browne's "Altgeld."

No Easy Textbook Erudition.

Topic after topic, and all of them away off the easy routine of textbook erudition, is sketched by the eighteen masters in Adams hall for investigation and discussion by their 200 students, and the treatment of the topics involves an enormous amount of reading and much independent thinking. In the preparation of his paper on "Was There An American People in 1760?" the student is to examine, among other volumes, Franklin's autobiography, the journals of Winthrop, Whitefield and Woolman, the diary of Sewall, the letters of Crevecoeur, Byrd's "Voyage to Eden," Barrett Wendell's life of Cotton Mather, and Bradford's "History of Plymouth People and Colony."

Another time he is asked, "What new elements were introduced into American life in the 19th century immigration?" He is not to be lectured at by pundits in order that he may give a second hand answer to that question. He is to dig, and think, and then write, and finally be ready to engage with the masters in discussion of the subject which he has been investigating.

For the preparation of that paper alone the reading recommended by the masters includes Carl Schurz's "Memoirs," Faust's "The German Element in the United States," Jacob Reis' "The Melting Pot," Mary Antin's "The Promised Land," Ludwig Lewisohn's, "Upstream," Panunzio's "The Soul of an Immigrant," and Pumpelly's "Reminiscences."

So it goes throughout the curriculum of the Experimental college. Every phase of life as it had to be lived and blundered through and made a success of 2,300 years ago is subjected to scrutiny for a year and then a year is given to equally searching examination of life as we of the present are living it and blundering through it and making, according to our lights, a success of it.

A Rebel in Charge.

To take charge of the working out of this scheme of "a college within a college" and to guide this "adventure in education," President Frank summoned to the University of Wisconsin Dr. Alexander Meiklejohn. This scholar and administrator was born in England fifty-seven years ago but his career as a disturber of the accepted order of things in the world of education has been distinctly American, for he arrived on these shores when he was a boy of eight years. At the age of twenty-nine he was a dean in Brown university. From 1912 until 1923 he was president of Amherst college. After giving a dozen years to rattling the dry bones in that institution he left it partly because the dry bones among the school's governing body wished to preserve their peace of mind and partly because he wished to preserve his self respect. He came gladly to Wisconsin's campus where the governing body likes no sound better than the rattling of dry bones, and for two years he has been head of the "college within a college."

He believes that the scheme is succeeding, but he insists that no man can be certain of its success until two years hence, when the young men now working with him and his associates shall have completed their four years in the university. Then there will be opportunity for comparison and contrast.

A School of Self-Discipline.

The two years of work in the Experimental college mean, in their large aspects, that the student has been disciplining himself and—under the guidance and stimulation of devoted scholars with whom he may confer at any and all hours daily—has been instructing himself and, to a degree, lecturing to his teachers. These two years having passed, he will come under the traditional discipline and instruction of the university. The question which the Experimental college has to answer is this: "Can we deliver to the university for the last two years of traditional training a man who will get more out of those two years as a result of his two years with us? Can we deliver a more ardent investigator and a more independent thinker?"

President Frank believes that the Experimental college not only can do that but can be the trainer of a more competent citizen of the republic.

"The two years," he says, "of grueling experience, in the Experimental college, of facing and trying to understand and unravel complicated social situations and contrasts should give these students a much needed technique in meeting similar situations which they are sure to face as soon as they leave college and take up the duties of citizenship. Those duties they will then take up not with a cafeteria education—some of this and some of that—but with a correlated education which ought to help them to understand the meaning of twentieth century American civilization. Education ought not to be thought of in the terms of grade points and credits, but in the terms of horizons."

Tossing Away Traditions.

In describing the methods of the faculty of the Experimental college, Dr. Meiklejohn said:

"We make no records of attendance. Three things we of the faculty swore to:

"First, that we wouldn't deliver a lecture.

"Second, that we wouldn't have a classroom.

"Third, that we wouldn't have a text book.

"Our major principle is that the student is to do his own work and his own reading. Then we of the faculty come in as guides along the way. We are not routinely telling students things but giving them leads by following which they will be able to make the treasures of the ages tell them things.

"We eighteen men of the faculty give two-thirds of our time to the experimental college and the rest of it to the whole university. That we do, so that we shall not become aloof from nor superior to the life of the university as a whole.

"Each member of the faculty in the experimental college takes personal direction of twelve students and keeps them for six weeks. Then the groups are broken up and each twelve is assigned to another teacher. Each student writes one paper a week on a given topic and has a conference on it with his adviser—and that is where most of our teaching comes in. In addition to these individual conferences, each adviser gets his group together once a week and they have a general conference on the theme and the assigned readings for the week.

Intimate Faculty-Student Contacts.

"At no time in our association with our students are we marking or grading them. But we are getting into direct personal acquaintance with them and we are estimating them. They are, so to speak, growing up with us."

"But," I asked, "does not this amazing truthfulness on your part, and this absence of routine discipline, subject you to the wiles of the leg-puller and the seeker after soft snaps?"

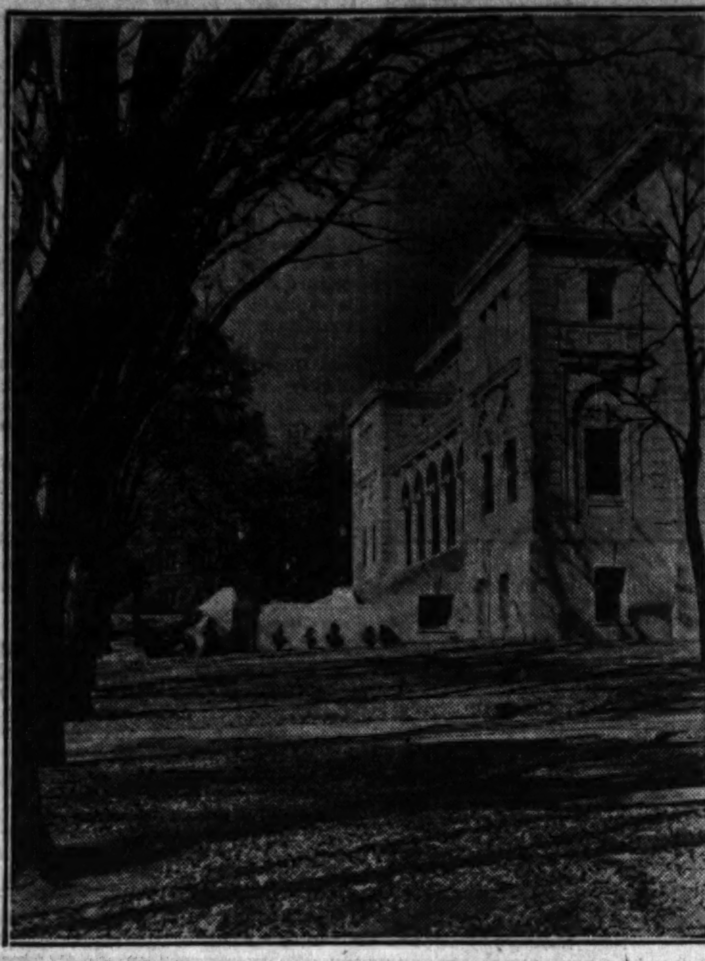
"No," replied Alexander Meiklejohn, "if we think a student is wasting his time we tell him so every day. We tell him that this is no place for him. You must take account of the fact that the only game a young American has is trying to beat you when you are trying to make him do something. Here the relation between teacher and pupil is different. Here it is the normal relation."

"Define for me, please," said I, "what that normal relation is."

"The only normal relation between teacher and pupil," he replied, "is that the pupil should be trying to do something and that the teacher should be trying to help."

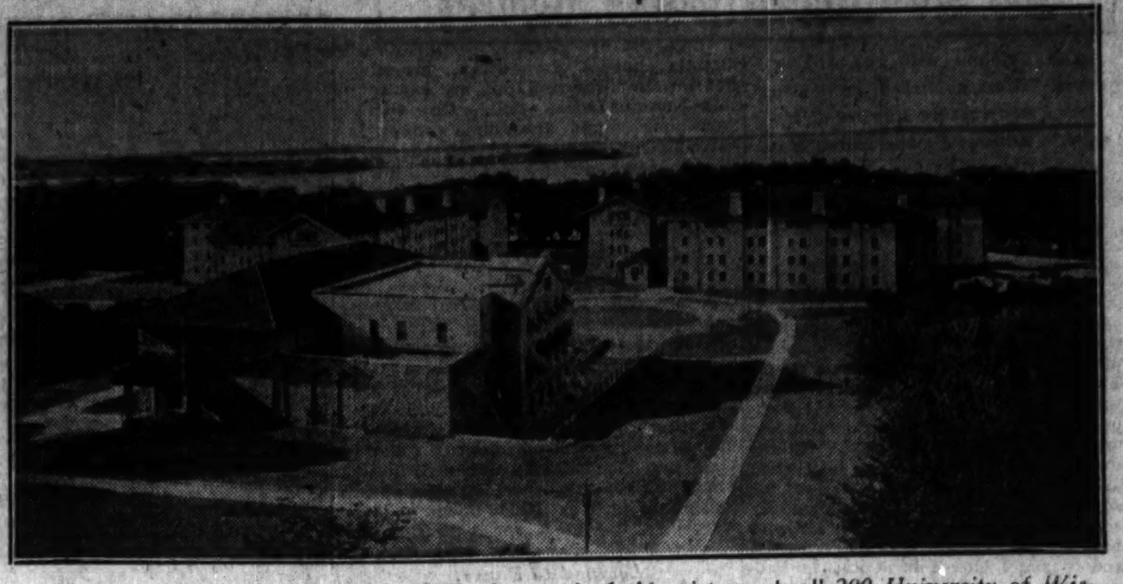
When I heard those words the conviction sank deep into me that two years hence the Experimental college of the University of Wisconsin will be a proved success and that it will usher in a new era in American education.

"THE LIVING ROOM"



THE newly completed Memorial Union building on the campus of the University of Wisconsin is called "the living room of the student body." It is dedicated to "the men and women of the university who served in our country's wars" and was erected and equipped at a cost of $1,250,000 contributed by more than 18,000 students, alumni, faculty members, and friends of the great state school at Madison. One of its civilizing features is a spacious and richly decorated dining room in which the students may dine like gentlemen instead of fighting their way to food in the unsavory type of campus cafeterias which breed bad table manners in some of the state universities of the central west. In Wisconsin's Memorial Union the prices are cheap but the service is excellent and the spaciousness and tone of the place are positively baronial.

SEAT OF EDUCATIONAL EXPERIMENT



IN Adams hall, to the left and in the background of this picture, dwell 200 University of Wisconsin students who are enrolled in the newly founded Experimental college of the University. They form a group of freshmen and sophomores who are working under the guidance of Dr. Alexander Meiklejohn and seventeen other revolutionary American educators. The aim of Dr. Meiklejohn and his collegues is to teach students by showing them how to teach themselves. They keep no attendance records, give no lectures and have no classrooms. But their offices are in the same structure with the living quarters of their students and they are fellow students with their pupils rather than task masters. They outline extensive reading courses for the boys, direct them to the high points in ancient and modern civilizations, and they say, "Now, men, read, think, analyze, and then come and lecture to us on your investigations. We will listen and perhaps as we talk matters over together we both shall grow wiser."

Flag Upside Down.

Last June on a trip from Alaska to Seattle the sea was so calm and the weather so perfect that some of the passengers almost wished for something to happen. It was the seventy-seventh voyage of the Yukon, a comfortable boat beautifully furnished. We were crossing the Gulf of Alaska always dreaded by poor sailors. After most of us had stayed in our cabins the first few hours awaiting a rough sea and experiencing none we came out on the decks. At first we noticed nothing but the glassy blue water, the mountains in the distance, and the occasional spouting of porpoises. Then as we neared the light house at Cape Spencer we noticed the flag was upside down.

Few of us were up on such points of flag signaling so we asked the captain what it meant. He told us it was a distress message, and in all his years on the sea it was the first time he had seen the flag so displayed.

A life boat was lowered to meet a motor boat coming from the cape. One of the keepers while adjusting something on the roof had fallen headlong on the rocks a distance of many feet. As the boat drew near it was impossible to tell whether he was native or white. He sat up straight in the boat, a blanket over his head to protect him from the wind and sun and to help check the blood. We wondered how a person could be so covered with blood and yet be able to sit up, for we did not realize that such a position kept him from bleeding more freely. After he was helped up the side of the Yukon by the sailors he walked back to a cabin and then collapsed. The stewardess gave first aid and radio messages were sent to Juneau so that his arrival would be expected at the hospital.

Late that night the ambulance met the boat at Juneau and the unfortunate man, still unconscious, was taken off. Later, we heard that he made a remarkable recovery.

The Thrill of Flying.

My greatest longing had been to go up in the air. I lived in a small town and airplanes weren't very common. When an airplane came to our town one day I teased dad to let me go up. Instead of the usual answer, "Nothing doing," he said, "We'll see." That afternoon we went out to the field with my heart beating fast. When we asked about tickets we found that there would be too many ahead of us to permit our flying that day. As the plane was due to stay until noon the third day, I hoped that we could go the next day. The next day dawned dark and rainy. No flying that day.

The third day, however, dawned with the sun taking the dew off the ground. At the time that the weather was just right for flying we arrived at the field. My sister was to go with me, and we both held our tickets excitedly while the plane was taking up the three before us. Finally it came to the ground for us.

I shall never forget the thrill that I experienced as we rose from the ground.

Made By Such Famous Makers as Englander, Howell, Atlas and Others

These samples were secured from the Furniture Exposition held in Chicago. This furniture represents the cream of the manufacturers output—and the prices are astonishingly low. You will find pieces for the sun parlor, porch or lawn. One of the largest assortments of Summer Furniture Samples ever assembled in any store for sale purposes—all advanced styles.

IMPORTANT NOTE
Because there are only one or two samples of each piece, it is impossible to advertise specific values. Some slightly soiled. Scores of styles from which to select. Be here early for best selections.

Former Kaiser's Wealth Climbs to $120,000,000

BERLIN.—(AP)—In the midst of the discussion of Germany's reparations problem, Rudolf Martin, writing in Westermann's monthly, a widely read periodical, emphasizes that in the five years just past the wealth of the German people has increased as perhaps never before in a similar period.

Just before the world war there were, he says, 15,547 mark millionaires in Germany. In 1923, after the inflation period, the number had dwindled to 3,917. But in 1928 that number had been doubled and he predicted that if no catastrophe occurs, the millionaires would be as numerous in 1933 as they were before the war.

These conclusions followed a survey of big individual fortunes which revealed the former emperor, Wilhelm Hohenzollern, as what he was in 1914, the wealthiest man in the fatherland. Not being allowed to reside in his own country, he maintains a Hohenzollern family administration in Berlin to manage his fortune.

Worth Hundred Million.

The ex-kaiser's wealth today is placed at 430,000,000 marks [about $103,200,000] of which roughly 200 million marks is represented by landed property. This category includes 81 castles, situated in Pomerania, Saxony, Silesia, West Prussia and Schleswig-Holstein.

That was the nominal real estate value in 1925, when the final settlement was made by the Prussian state with the Hohenzollerns. But since much of the royal domains consists of well-matured woodland and wood had gone up tremendously in price in the last few years, it is estimated that the estates, if sold today, would fetch at least 500,000,000 marks, or $120,000,000.

Of the rest of the Hohenzollern family, the ex-Crown Prince William alone is a big land owner in his own right. He possesses besides other realty the 25,000 acre estate of Oels in Silesia, estimated to be worth $6,720,000.

Stinnes Fortune Scattered.

After the ex-kaiser came the late Hugo Stinnes, whose wealth, estimated at 400,000,000 marks, is, however, now scattered. His place is taken by Frau Bertha Krupp von Bohlen and Halbach, whose fortune is said to have again reached pre-war figures of more than $72,000,000.

The prince of Thurn and Taxis is worth $48,000,000, while fortunes of around $24,000,000 are those of Prince Hohenlohe-Oehringen, Prince Fuerstenberg, and Prince Henkel von Donnersmarck.

As for the industrial magnates, Fritz Thyssen is said to be worth today as much as his father was before the war. His annual income is estimated at 3,000,000 marks (about $720,000), which is about the highest personal cash income in Germany. Another big income is that of Dr. Carl Bosch, president of the German Dye trust; 2,000,000 marks annually, equivalent to $480,000.

The brothers, Carl and Arthur von Weinberg, who are also in the chemical industry and whose racing stables are probably the finest in Germany, enjoy similar incomes, as does Dr. Karl Duisberg, an industrial magnate of Leverkusen. Carl Friedrich von Siemens, head of the famous Siemens concern, and Dr. Fritz Bluethgen, president of the Artificial Silk trust, are each credited with having $360,000 a year.

Honeymooners at Hot Springs

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HOT SPRINGS, Va., June 15.—Still more honeymooners were added to the colony with the arrival of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ravenall, the latter the erstwhile Nancie Turner Benoist, who were married in Washington last week. They arrived by motor from the capital. Mrs. Ravenall is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Benoist of St. Louis and Washington.

Arrivals at the Homestead include F. C. Moore and D. P. Moore of Chicago, Mr. and Mrs. C. R. King, Mr. and Mrs. William E. Smith of Asheville, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Violette of Louisville, Mr. and Mrs. John J. Jackson of Pittsburgh, Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Cowenhaven, Mr. and Mrs. P. M. Jeffreys, and Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Root of Washington.

Baron and Baroness Rosenkrantz were the tea guests of Miss Alice V. Payne, who has arrived for her annual visit. Capt. and Mrs. F. W. Smith arrived this week from Havana, Mrs. Smith departing almost immediately for a short stay in the north.

A Dollar for Your Dreams

Have you ever had a dream which later came true? If you'll mail us an account of your prophetic dream we'll pay $1 for every dream published. Address "Dreams," Chicago Tribune.

And She Married Him.

I was living with my aunt while attending the University of Missoula, Mont. One morning at the breakfast table my aunt told me that she had dreamed that night that I was mingling with a large number of people at what seemed to be a party. A tall, dark man, whom she had never seen, was paying attention to me to the exclusion of all others. That was all she could remember, but she said it was either a part of the dream or a premonition that I was going to marry that man. She described him in detail. I laughed, because I didn't believe in dreams and at that time I was in love with a boy my aunt knew well. "I prefer blondes, you know, Aunt Lil," I said.

I was unexpectedly invited to a fraternity dance three days later. Between studies and social activities I completely forgot Aunt Lil's dream. At the dance though, I met a tall, dark man and we were immediately attracted to each other. He called on me the next evening and my aunt answered the door. She came running up to my room where I was finishing dressing and exclaimed excitedly, "That's the man I dreamed of!"

I thought it ridiculous then, but now that I bear his name I respect Aunt Lil's dream. L. T.

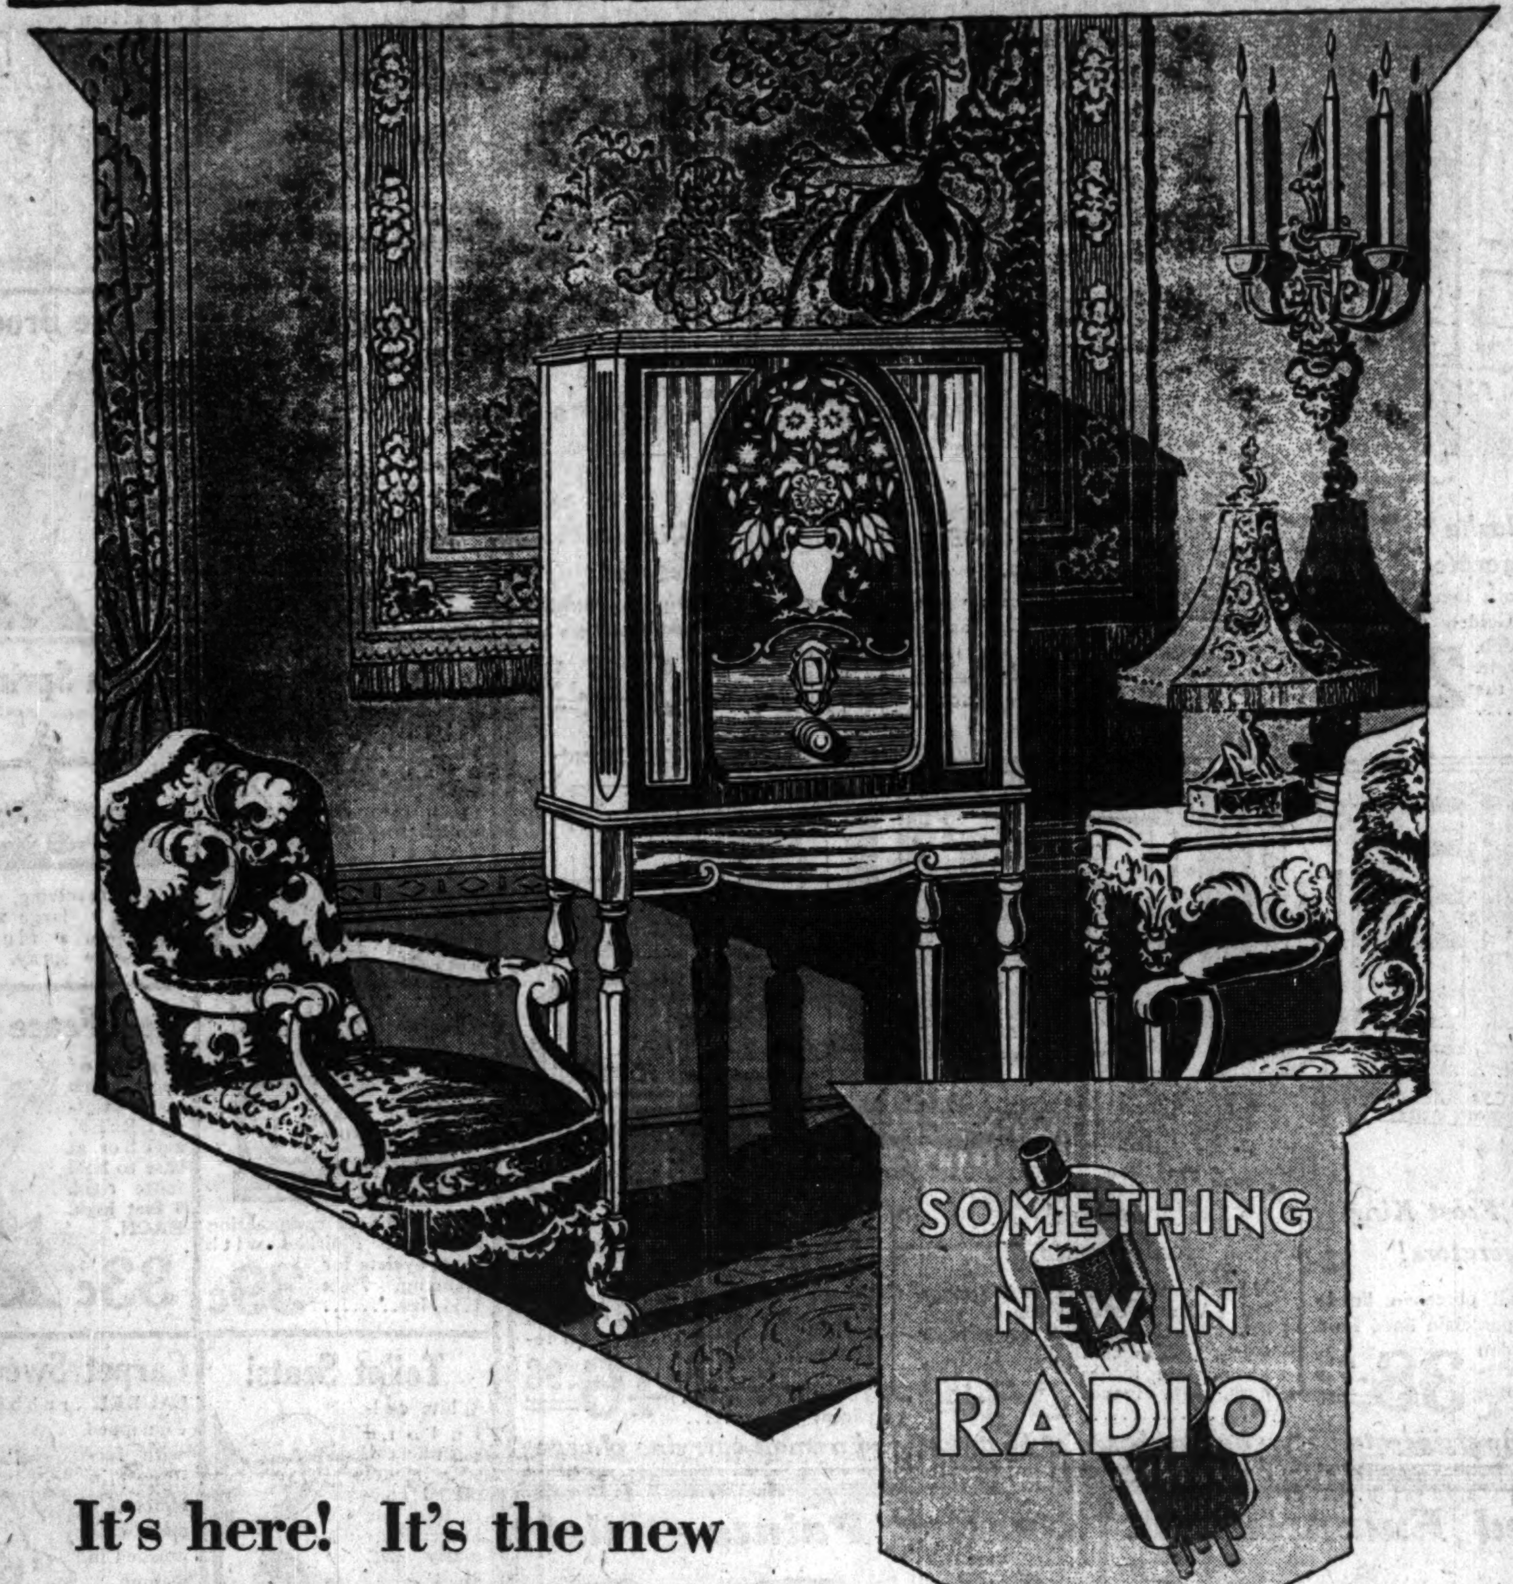
EVERYTHING · ELECTRICAL



It's here! It's the new SCREEN GRID RADIO . . .

It's the great step forward in radio

LET'S forget the mechanical details for a moment.

For, after all, what do mechanical details matter, when you've found the perfect radio!

You know the tone we've all been seeking — that vividness which seems to bring the performers themselves into the room with you . . . when you close your eyes . . . lie back . . . and listen . . . This radio has it!

You know the way you've pictured your ideal radio blending with the "setting" of your home . . . just as though some master-craftsman had especially planned and executed it all for you . . . This radio does it! . . . But how difficult to do justice to this new Graybar Screen Grid . . . in print and picture! Pictures can only hint, words can only whisper, the reality!

A Graybar Radio dealer can show you . . . he can tell you how the Screen Grid tube does what two tubes used to do . . . how it has brought about hair-line selectivity . . . tone as rich and colorful as a tapestry . . . giant power to reach out for far-away stations — and all at a lower cost than ever.

. . . For no more than $179 you may have the 4-tube two-tone walnut veneer cabinet model 550 with dynamic speaker behind the grille, as shown above. And the compact table model 500, at left, is only . . . $110

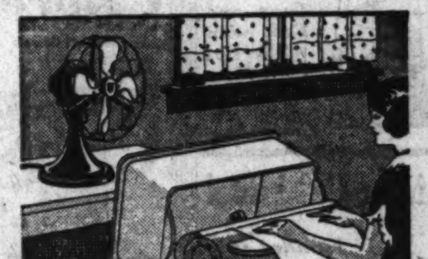
Summer's a "Stimulating" season, too!

What if it is too hot to attempt golf or tennis? There's still the Graybar Stimulator! This remarkable health motor gives you all the benefits of all out-door exercise—right in the cool privacy of your home! (And when you do have your golf or tennis, let the Stimulator limber you up—before and after.) It keeps you slim. It keeps you "fit". It relieves "muscle-bound" conditions. It soothes and stimulates . . . at the same time! Simple in construction . . . yet it has varying gradations of massage. Costs mighty little, too. Note the handy table—or you may have a beautiful cabinet. There's a lot more to discover about it at your dealer's. $59.50 Stand $4.50 extra



Weather-man, please note!

No heat prostrations here! Not with a good Graybar Fan sending its blessed breeze into every corner of the room! How it stirs up and refreshes the "logey" air! How it puts pep into folks who are "heat fatigued"! How it revivifies drooping spirits! (Together with the Graybar Ironer, it successfully takes the last remaining terrors out of ironing!)

Endorsed by leading babies

"My Mamma says she never knew my clothes could be washed so quickly"!—JUNIOR (aged eight months). "The Whirl-dry makes my little dresses so white—even after I've made mud-pies"!—PEGGY MARIE (aged two years). (A word to mothers: This little washer sets on a table or drain board! Washes, rinses and dries 'most anything. Quick! Thorough! Handy!) $64.50

What "makes it go"

Household wheels will run smoother, housework will go faster, home will be more comfortable—for a few more electrical convenience outlets. But they must be the right ones in the right place . . . That's easy. Any reliable electrical contractor will tell you how best to utilize the 'round-the-clock service of your light and power company.

POLO MATCH AT ONWENTSIA
[TRIBUNE Photos.]

Society Turns to Horse Show on North Shore

Lake Forest Exhibition This Week-End.

By Mildred Jaklon.

LAKE FOREST is the gay place these days, although its inhabitants will tell you that they don't do a thing, not a thing; that nothing happens, absolutely nothing, and that life is most unexciting. And yet there is a succession of parties and events of various interesting kinds that belies that statement, and it is no wonder that the pleasant village to the northward appears so frequently in the social news.

The Lake Forest horse show, to be given to raise funds for Alice Home hospital, is to be on Saturday and Sunday at Onwentsia. This year the affair is to be an all-day one, beginning at 10:30 o'clock in the morning, with the afternoon show starting at 2 o'clock. In keeping with Lake Foresters' hunting tendencies, this year's show is to be exclusively for hunting and jumping classes.

New Horses to Be Seen.

There are a number of new horses to be entered in this year's show, the owners of which include Laurance H. Armour, Donald Douglas, Mrs. Howard Linn, and W. McCormick Blair. Mr. Blair is president of the horse show association, and others who are managing the various aspects of the show include Vaughan C. Spalding, who is chairman of the boxholders' committee; Austin H. Niblack, chairman of the ring committee; Mrs. Samuel J. Walker, who is arranging for the decoration of the boxes; Mrs. J. Andrews King, chairman of the reception committee; Charles F. Glore, chairman of the stabling committee, and Donald B. Douglas, advertising chairman.

A prize has been put up by the enlisted men at Fort Sheridan for the grand championship for hunters and jumpers in all the shows of the Lake Shore circuit for this season. The Lake Forest show, the South Shore Country club, Milwaukee, Oconomowoc, and Fort Sheridan are included in this group.

* *

Wheaton Show During Week-End.

The Wheaton polo farm show at Col. William J. Sutherland's polo farm is to take place on Saturday and Sunday also.

Another interesting event of the week is the benefit bridge party to take place on Tuesday at the William E. Clow Jr. residence in Lake Forest for the benefit of Orphans of the Storm, the stray animal refuge maintained out west of Lake Forest by Mrs. Frederick McLaughlin, Miss Mildred FitzHugh, Mrs. R. R. McCormick, and Mrs. William E. Swift.

MRS. BERNARD F. ROGERS JR., MRS. CHARLES GLORE, and FRANCES GLORE.

POLO enthusiasts are saying that this is to be the most important season that aristocratic sport has yet enjoyed in this part of the world. There are to be local, sectional and national tournaments following in rapid succession at the various clubs around Chicago throughout the summer. Mrs. William Mitchell Blair, whose husband is captain of the Onwentsia team, Mrs. Charles Glore, and Mrs. Bernard F. Rogers Jr. are among the smart young matrons who often look on at the matches.

MRS. WILLIAM MITCHELL BLAIR, BILLY BLAIR, and BOBBY BLAIR.

Country Clubs Background for Gayety

By Mme. X.

IT WAS, I think, James Russell Lowell who wrote those ineffable words, "What so rare as a day in June? Then, if ever, come perfect days." It is just possible that had he lived in and about Chicago he might have writ that rare as "raw," once in a while.

Gentle June has so far had a tendency to smite us with one hand and pet us with the other. The South Shore Country club's big event last Tuesday with which the members opened their annual horse show was rather on the side of the word "raw" than Lowell's "rare." In spite of which a gay time was had by all—later in the evening.

On this varied climatic background social life is going pleasantly along, much of it being spent out of doors at country or town clubs. The Saddle and Cycle club is enjoying the height of its season. So is the South Shore Country club.

Much talk is going on at all of the fashionable and gay gathering places hereabouts on the subject of the increased restrictions being placed by the prohibition authorities over the enjoyment of liquor. It is fast becoming rather impossible to imbibe anywhere outside of the innermost recesses of one's own home. Volstead, Jones, Yellowley et al. are closing in on the convivially inclined and are shutting them off from much of their accustomed pleasures. This is in spite of the most violent protests that ever attended the enforcement of a national law.

That we shall be better off if this is ever entirely accomplished seems pretty certain. But the methods employed are of such a nature as to make the cure seem to many of us worse than the disease. The writer thinks that if such a pamphlet as that lately issued by Dr. Arthur Dean Bevan, "Alcohol from the Standpoint of Modern Scientific Medicine," could be spread abroad in such a way that most people would read it, it would do more to restrict drinking than all the laws that could possibly be enacted. I do not agree entirely with his standpoint, but what he has to say as to the effects of alcohol is valuable. It is a clear statement of facts, and also a terrible arraignment of the men of his profession.

Better Led than Driven.

We mortals can much better be led than driven to the right path. That's a psychological fact. No number of sawed off shot guns are half as effective as the still small voice, or just a simple inner conviction as to what is the truth. There is no incentive to any line of conduct so strong as persecution. It makes more ardent advocates than any entreaties. The Anti-Saloon league and other professional prohibitionists are all wrong in their manner of tackling the question.

A sane, unimpassioned, persistent presentment of the case against alcohol would be far more efficacious than anything at present employed by today's fanatics. Vivacious pictures of the lining of an ulcered stomach, of a liver atrophied by liquor, of the inevitable and unpretty destruction of the bodily tissues spread out on sign boards along roadsides and at every vantage point would be far more potent and not half so costly in life and money as the present system of violence and clamor. If every time that you were about to lift a bottle or glass containing alcohol to your lips you could see a picture of a man or woman in the last stages of delirium tremens, or even just simply vomiting nauseously, it would give a nasty taste to the fluid.

Dr. Bevan says that alcohol has absolutely no medical value, and indicates that even a small quantity is harmful. All that it does is to destroy for a time the critical faculty and thereby make its users for a brief spell less hampered by the consciousness of drawbacks. This is called happiness. My words sound like a tract for prohibition. Really this is a plea to arrive at the goal by a better route than the bloodstained way now being taken, a way that breeds hatred, suspicion and all uncharitableness. The conductor of this pillar of polite piffle does not drink alcoholic beverages, partly because her medico charges ten dollars a visit and partly because several years of abstinence have cured her of the taste, but if anything could make her resume the custom it would be the present law and its enforcement. It is directed by people who have little real understanding of human nature. And, after all, it is with human nature that we are dealing today.

Two High Spots.

As we announced last week and as every society col. in town has been proclaiming for some time, Ravinia's open air opera and the Lake Forest horse show both are on the calendars of our socially prominent folk for this coming week, or, to be exact, at its close. Both will be the summer's highest spots, the first in the realm of

Park Ridge Girls' School Aids Dependents

Summer to See Building of Its Seventh Cottage

By Roberta Nangle.

THE Park Ridge School for Girls, that institution so carefully fostered by women's clubs with the help of a number of public spirited citizens, is growing apace and increasing the scope of its work. The school provides a home for dependent—not delinquent girls of the state—and resembles a boarding school more than the average charitable institution.

It is operated on the cottage plan, housing 20 girls in each of 6 cottages, with a house mother in charge. This summer an attractive new cottage is to be erected, the funds for which have been bequeathed to the school by William Tuttle in memory of his daughter, Florence. The late Mrs. William R. Lane, one of the past presidents of the board, left sufficient money for the physical upkeep of the cottage, which will be ready in the fall for 15 or 20 children who are awaiting admission to the school.

A new addition to the school building is also to be built some time this year. The school is open all the year round.

The new board of directors includes Mrs. Charles Ware, president; Mrs. J. Russell Adams, Mrs. Edwin M. Aschcraft Jr., Mrs. O. J. Buck, Mrs. Edward B. Butler, Mrs. Stanley Clague, Miss Grace Dixon, Mrs. Stanley Zaring, Mrs. W. W. Emery, Mrs. George D. Forrest, Dr. W. M. Friend, Mrs. H. W. Hartough, Mrs. Edwin Carey Howes, Mrs. John Kales, Miss Mabel Linn, Mrs. John B. Lord, Mrs. Thomas R. Lyon, Mrs. Bentley G. McCloud, Mrs. Cyrus McCormick Jr., Mrs. George B. Kibben, Mrs. Duane McNabb, Mrs. Edwin McNeal, Mrs. Leopold Metzenberg, Mrs. W. H. Nicholls, Mrs. James A. Odell, Mrs. George Olmsted, Miss Emily Otis, Mrs. Elliott Phelps, Mrs. Mason Phelps, Mrs. Martin A. Ryerson, Mrs. S. L. Rathje, Mrs. Alfred E. Shibley, Mrs. Henry Solomon, Mrs. Frank Sommer, Miss Winifred Smith, Mrs. Paul Steinbrecher, Mrs. Robert Stuart, Mrs. Lee Sturgis, Mrs. G. M. Spangler, Mrs. F. Tuckerman, and Harry A. Wheeler.

Mrs. Truman W. Brophy, Mrs. Frank Jerome, Mrs. E. M. Kemp, Mrs. Francis T. Simmons, and Mrs. W. H. Winslow are honorary members.

MRS. BERTRAND W. EVANS was recently elected president of the Brownson Circle, which meets weekly during the club season at the Rogers Park Woman's club.

Miss Faye Brown is a member of the committee in charge of a card party to be given on Wednesday by the Mutual Admiration society in the Lyon & Healy concert hall. The party is the first of a series to be held for the benefit of the scholarship fund for the Medill School of Journalism.

Mrs. Herbert F. Goldstein is chairman of the Chicago Woman's Aid committee for assisting the blind, which is to give its annual picnic for the blind on Tuesday at Jackson park.

CLUB NOTES

The closing luncheon of the season of the Pioneer Woman's organization of the northwest side will be held on Wednesday at 12:30 p. m. at the Hotel La Salle.

The art committee of the Chicago Cook County Federation of Women's organizations will sponsor an outing to the dunes of Indiana on Tuesday, leaving by special train from the Randolph street station of the Illinois Central railroad at 9 a. m. Luncheon will be served at Tremont. The tour is open to the public. Mrs. George Farley is in charge of reservations.

The Chicago and North Western Railway Woman's club will elect national and local officers at the annual board and club meeting to be held on Wednesday at the passenger terminal.

The Les Trois Guerres Woman's Aid club will hold its monthly meeting today at the Morrison hotel. Luncheon at 12:30 o'clock will be followed by cards.

The Pennsylvania Colony of the Illinois Colony club will hold its regular monthly meeting and card party on Wednesday at 12:30 p. m. at the Cook County Democratic club at Wacker drive and Wells street.

The Edlas circle will give a luncheon and card party on Thursday at the Stevens hotel. Mrs. Leda Algreen is in charge of arrangements.

The Virginia Colony club will give a card party on Friday afternoon at 6344 Broadway for the benefit of the Illinois Colony Home for the Aged.

The South Shore Woman's club will give a card party on Thursday at the clubhouse at 7526 Yates avenue.

The installation luncheon of the Beth Jacob B'nai Bezalel sisterhood will be held tomorrow at 12:30 at the Madison Park hotel.

CLUB ETHICS - - - - -

By Maude Swalm Evans

THE members of the district board were holding an informal meeting after the closing of the club.

The chairman, usually good natured, showed signs of irritation as she tossed a letter across the table.

"See if you can ferret anything out of that," she asked the treasurer. "Does she want me to make a nominating address, or to give her club a personal statue? I do wish our club members would write legibly."

"It's too deep for me," decided the treasurer after a careful study, and she passed the letter along to the secretary.

"O, it's from Mrs. Sombra," discovered the secretary. "I met her on the street the other day and she was objecting because she hadn't been sent some personal stationery with her name and address printed thereon."

"That's it. That's what she's written. I see it now," said the chairman, rescanning the letter. "And I've wasted half an hour over it. She's not entitled to the stationery. What she should have is a typewriter."

"No wonder there's an 'own your own typewriter' drive on for presidents and committee chairmen," commented the secretary. "I'd extend it to all club members who write letters, if I had my way."

"I've a couple of friends I'd like to include," observed the treasurer. "They both write reams and I have to guess my way through it all."

"Isn't it rather a difficult task to learn to run a typewriter?" inquired the hostess.

"Not by the Columbus method," vouchsafed the secretary. "All you have to do is to discover and land, using one finger or more, as you please. It's not so speedy as the touch method, but the results are just as readable."

"Either method is good for your spelling," noted the treasurer. "You can't slur your letters when you're not sure of them, or dot your e's."

"And if the committee chairmen would use typewriters we wouldn't have so many hesitation reports," decided the chairman. "You know, the kind where the reader stops every little while and explains that she just can't decipher her own writing when it's cold."

Question.

"How much influence has the president over the finances of an organization? CLUB MEMBER."

Reply.

It is up to each club to say how and by whom its funds shall be spent. A president has only such powers as are delegated to her by the organization.

Races Keep Turf Fans Busy Flying Channel

By May Birkhead.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

[Copyright: 1929: By The Chicago Tribune.]

PARIS, June 15.—With the opening of the summer races at picturesque Chantilly, the turf is absorbing the interest of Paris throughout June.

The week just closed, called Derby week in France as well as in England, kept the turf enthusiasts traveling over the channel in airplanes to be on hand at all events.

The great Prix de Diane, which opened at Chantilly, until recent years was a very much mundane affair in keeping with the old time tradition of exclusiveness. With the multiplication of motors, however, and the widespread popular interest in racing, French Oaks, as this race is often called, has lately sacrifice something of its fashionable character and sartorial perfection.

Smart Attendance.

This season, however, superb weather and a promising field brought out a noticeably well dressed attendance, giving the Prix de Diane something of its old time flavor. This may have been helped by the choice of names bestowed on several fillies. For example, two were named after celebrated beauties—Mme. Recamier and Pauline Borghese.

Several Chicagoans took part in the Chantilly opening. Mrs. Honore Palmer, becomingly dressed in the lightest gray, one of the most fashionable colors of the season, was present with her husband and son. Mrs. Harry Shearson was with the party of Joseph Leiter, who afterwards entertained Mrs. Mariolla Burns Hahner and Mrs. Waller Borden at dinner at the Ritz. Potter Palmer is arriving this week with his wife and debutante daughter, Bertha, to spend the summer here.

Mrs. Waller Borden has since left with her daughter, Betty, for a motor trip through Germany, Austria Hungary, Italy, and Switzerland, returning to Paris July 6 and sailing home July 5 on the Leviathan.

Scandinavia Popular.

In their traveling Chicagoans seem to show a preferences this year for Scandinavia. Frederic Clay Bartlett with his son has been here for the last week, and is now going to Norway and Sweden by way of Holland and Germany, studying modern architecture. Mrs. Philip B. Maher, who is the eldest daughter of Prof. Albert Michelson, and her two children are in Italy with Mrs. Michelson and will reach Paris this week before sailing.

Mrs. Walter F. Dillingham, formerly Louise Gaylord, niece of the late John J. Mitchell, has been here for some weeks with her daughter and is now going to Switzerland and Venice, reaching Biarritz in July, where she is remaining for the summer season. Miss Eliza Campbell, in Paris for her annual spring visit, is on her way to Norway and Sweden.

Mr. and Mrs. Forsythe Sherfesee, formerly Mrs. Arthur Ryerson, have just returned to their Paris apartment after a three weeks' visit at Baden Baden, and a motor trip through Germany, where they visited the Baron and Baroness Krupp von Bohlen at their villa in Essen. They are sailing June 22 to spend the summer on their Long Island estate.

NEWS OF CHICAGO SOCIETY

art and the second in that of sports.

As was recited here last Sunday, Ravinia opens next Saturday evening with Puccini's "Manon Lescaut." Lucrezia Bori will appear in the title rôle, assisted by Giovanni Martinelli and a fine cast. On Friday and Saturday the Lake Forest horse show holds its two afternoon sessions on the Onwentsia club grounds. Funds derived from the sale of tickets will go to the Lake Forest hospital, Alice Home. William McCormick Blair is president of the association, Joseph T. Bowen Jr. is vice president, Earle H. Reynolds is treasurer, and Laurence Armour is secretary. There will be twenty-four classes and it promises to be a gay affair.

It is safe to prophesy that all of Lake Forest's bridge playing dames will turn out on Tuesday afternoon when a charity bridge will be held at the William E. Clow Jr.'s stunning new house, a structure on Green Bay road that has been the center of much attention ever since its building began more than a year ago. It is the exquisite essence of the latest and best that modern art and architecture can evolve.

The object to which the ticket money will be devoted is Mrs. Frederic McLaughlin's charity, "Orphans of the Storm," a haven for forlorn and homeless dogs, that is situated west of Deerfield. Imagine a world without these faithful friends of man, yet there are those who grudge these appealing animals even the most elementary care and consideration. No human being ever gives us the entire loyalty and love that we get from dogs.

Guernsey Field Day.

Another outdoor event takes place next Thursday when those two well known breeders of fine cattle, the Mesdames Chauncey McCormick and R. R. McCormick, are holding a "Guernsey field day" at St. James farm, the Chauncey McCormick estate between Naperville and Wheaton. For all farmers in this region and for all who love to see successful achievement, it will be a great occasion and a fine show. The invitations are addressed to include all the Illinois Guernsey breeders and those interested in Guernsey cattle, and the hostesses promise "the biggest day in Illinois Guernsey history." On the reverse side of the invitation is a map showing the various routes of approach to the place where the affair will be held. The cattle will be judged by experts. E. W. Sass is president of the association and H. C. Horneman is secretary of it.

Mrs. R. R. McCormick's farm, Cantigny, lies quite near Mrs. Chauncey McCormick's and both are easily accessible either from Roosevelt road or Lake street.

The Fort Sheridan horse show is billed for Friday and Saturday, July 12 and 13. But more of this later. Suffice it to say that this is one of the big events in the season both from the point of view of the lover of fine horses and from the outlook of the socially inclined. The funds derived from the sale of tickets will be divided between the Army Relief society (one of our most appealing enterprises) and for the needs of the women and children at Fort Sheridan. Brig. Gen. C. H. Conrad is at the head of the committee getting up the affair.

News of Chicagoans Abroad.

News of our wandering fellow citizens comes to this col. from different parts of the globe. Robert Hall McCormick and his sister, Miss Elizabeth McCormick, have been having a delightful voyage down the eastern shore of the Adriatic in his picturesque yacht, the San Marco. The boat itself is what is called in that part of the seafaring world a trabacolo, being an ancient type of ship suited to the needs of that formerly much traversed inland sea. Mrs. Fabbri of Boston was also of the party. They stopped at most of the strange old ports on that long and rockbound coast. Some of them date back to Grecian times; others are a part of today's complicated history.

On the trip the party met no one they had ever seen before. It is seldom that one can say that nowadays when the whole world travels so constantly up and down the earth's surface.

No one of our Chicago élite has had a more interesting experience than Miss Maroussa Russell, daughter of the E. A. Russells of Lake Forest and Chicago. She was presented recently at the court of St. James, not by the United States ambassador, but by John Masaryk, the [illegible] representative there. He [illegible] cousin, a daughter of [illegible] Crane, and the introduction [illegible] more intimate nature than [illegible] erally accorded to young [illegible] women. She did not have [illegible] of the reception room as [illegible] custom at the end of the [illegible] but was admitted to the [illegible] circle, which sits behind the [illegible] and from there looks on at all [illegible] other formal curtsies and bows. [illegible] more of an honor to be presented [illegible] this way than in the usual [illegible] It was an interesting and [illegible] experience.

Why is it that we hear of so [illegible] American women being presented [illegible] the English court but seldom or [illegible] of an American man seeking or [illegible] accorded this honor? Is it [illegible] for women, or do American men [illegible] care for the enterprise?

Suffered from the Cold.

Another well known and [illegible] Chicagoan is either on her way [illegible] to this country or already arrived; [illegible] is Mrs. Bryan Lathrop. She [illegible] she will never again spend a winter [illegible] Florence. She suffered so [illegible] from the cold there this past [illegible] that she will not place herself in a [illegible] tion to repeat the experience she [illegible] during those long, cold months. [illegible] had to put on her warmest [illegible] furs, fur boots, and so forth, to [illegible] her bedroom and descend to [illegible] salons and dining rooms on the [illegible] floor. She was ill most of the [illegible] and had no relief from [illegible] until late in the spring.

Samuel Insull, who returned [illegible] week, said much the same thing [illegible] a motor trip he took in Spain. [illegible] was glad to cut it short and hurry [illegible] to Paris and thence to England. [illegible] continent is no place for Americans who are not vigorously well and [illegible] to endure discomforts unknown to [illegible] dwellers in this luxurious country where few of us ever experience [illegible] cold or the more rugged conditions of life known to American travelers [illegible] the other side of the Atlantic.

If an invalid, for instance, [illegible] good, pure milk and what is popularly known here as a "bland diet," he can't get it in southern Europe. They have no such things as cereals or certified or pasteurized milk. According to [illegible] standards one can't even get a good cup of coffee. It is not to be had on the other side of the Atlantic. [illegible] "cures" I suppose that special diets can be procured, but not on the main traveled highways of picturesque Europe.

Mr. and Mrs. Forsythe Sherfesee, who have been taking the cure at Baden-Baden, Germany, have now returned to their apartment in Paris, whence Mr. Sherfesee, after seeing Mrs. Sherfesee on board a ship on June 22 en route to this country, will go to England for a fortnight's stay. On arriving in her native land Mrs. Sherfesee plans to come to Chicago.

Capital Goes In for Its Summer Fun Al Fresco

Roof Gardens, Swimming Pools Popular.

By Maxine Davis.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 15.—[Special.]—Washington is making preparations for "a continental summer." With the recess of congress always, apparently, "manana," official society is exercising its ingenuity to make the capital an amusing and a comfortable city.

The town has suddenly developed unusual outdoor diversions and comforts. Several roof gardens have opened; hotels have set dining rooms out in their own gardens, and the Carlton hotel garden, with rose tinted tablecloths, splashing fountains, and gay umbrellas, has become popular.

"Plage Deauville" is an innovation at Wardman Park hotel, where many congressmen and senators reside. Those who elect—or are elected—to remain in Washington are finding this a diverting reminiscence of the Riviera. A dance floor is built by the edge of the pool and flanked by gayly painted tables. The younger set swim, sip tea, and return to the water. The oldsters dine, dance, and watch the swimmers for entertainment.

Tearooms have suddenly moved out of doors. A dozen country clubs have enjoyed a rush of popularity, and the seaside resorts within motoring distance have become smart.

Entertain Out of Doors.

The most fashionable hostesses are entertaining al fresco. Mrs. Borden Harriman is a popular woman, with her attractive gardens in the heart of the city, where a Kentucky cardinal sings all day. Friendship, the McLean place, is gay, and those hostesses who, like Mrs. John B. Henderson, boast a swimming pool in their back yards are extremely busy entertaining their friends.

Mrs. Hoover joined in the outdoor mode and had the last two of her congressional tea parties on the lawn. And Mrs. "Jimmy" Curtis, one of the capital's most popular hostesses, has her beautiful old garden subtly illuminated for evening functions.

And Now the Children.

No one is neglected in these days of "personality" advertising. Rumor from New York reports that Paulina Longworth, famous daughter of the speaker of the house and Alice Roosevelt Longworth, is being besought to tell the mothers of the country and their children the kind of cereal that is making her the healthy, intelligent child she is!

It would be no especial shock if she did. Her mother set the fashion in this type of advertising by being the first woman of consequence to indorse a certain cold cream. Indeed, it was only after "Princess Alice" told the world and his wife what made her skin a thing of beauty and a joy forever that Mrs. Harriman informed a palpitating public what sort of beds she preferred, or Miss Mara Fredericka Devereaux admitted the kind of silver preferred by a bride elect!

News of the Embassies.

The British ambassador is trying his dry policy out on the Vice President. Yesterday he issued invitations to a dinner honoring the Vice President, Mr. Curtis, and—for the sake of harmony, it is understood—Mr. and Mrs. Edward Everett Gann!

The British embassy and its head, Sir Esme Howard, are on every tongue at present. Especially are staff members of other embassies and legations indignant. However, Britain's headquarters will not suffer the loss of visitors some of the less prominent ones might, for it dominates diplomatic society.

Diplomatic and official circles were interested in the announcement that the French embassy is to have a new $1,000,000 home. It will be located on historic 16th street, across from the present embassy, on a high site covering an entire city block. It will house not only the ambassador, the offices, but also some of the staff. The architect will be that distinguished Franco-American, Paul Philippe Cret of Philadelphia, who collaborated with Paul Kelsey in designing the Pan-American Union, one of the nation's architectural gems.

Cosmos Club in Limelight.

The Cosmos club is becoming the administration rendezvous. This historic club, housed in the beautiful old Dolly Madison mansion on Lafayette square, almost within hailing distance of the White House, haunt of artists, scientists and savants, was an exclusive institution to which officialdom sought admission a century ago.

During the Wilson régime it was practically administration headquarters, many of its leaders being men whose careers entitled them to membership. Its qualifications are achievements in arts, sciences, or letters. The late Franklin K. Lane, Herbert Hoover, Newton D. Baker, and others of their ilk, made the cool, pleasant rooms of the Cosmos club their meeting place.

When the Harding administration was ushered in, the watchword was business, and the Metropolitan club succeeded the Cosmos club as the meeting place of the current powers. It was natural to discuss taxation, protection and related topics in a club famous since its foundation for the wealth of its membership.

Now, with Mr. Hoover a member of the Cosmos club these many years, it has returned to prominence. Ray Lyman Wilbur, Julius Klein and others of engineering, economic or social turns of mind may be seen chatting in groups at all hours, still referring affectionately to the President as the "chief," and planning governmental projects.

Envoys Enliven Society.

The United States foreign service does not seem to be involved in the vacationless summer. A round dozen of our envoys to Central and South American countries are in the country at present, a few from Europe, and one, Hoffman Philip, minister to Persia, is here from Asia.

All have come to Washington, many are staying here, and their presence is the excuse for a round of entertainments.

George T. Summerlin, minister to Honduras, is at the famous little bachelor club at 1718 H street, all of whose original members have resigned to join the ranks of Benedicks. U. Grant-Smith, minister to Uruguay, is another bachelor envoy in town . . . excessively popular.

WEDDED

MRS. MASON B. ALDRICH.

Mr. and Mrs. Elias Breed of 4512 Dover street announce the marriage of their daughter, Julia Elizabeth, to Charles N. Crittenton, son of Mrs. C. R. D. Crittenton of Evanston. After a trip to Colorado Mr. and Mrs. Crittenton will reside in Evanston.

WEDDINGS AND ENGAGEMENTS

No wedding or engagement announcement will be published in The Tribune unless it bears the signature, address, and telephone number of a parent of either the bride or bridegroom. Announcements should reach the society editor not later than the Wednesday morning preceding the Sunday they are to be published.

Dr. Charles Edgar Boynton of Oak Park announces the approaching marriage of his daughter, Georgeanna Gerts, to Joseph Franklin Hobbins, to take place on Wednesday evening, June 26, at Unity church in Oak Park. The ceremony will be followed by a reception at Unity church house.

Mr. and Mrs. Hans Hansen of Lake Bluff announce the approaching marriage of their daughter, Edith Ann, to Charles G. Kuharske, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Kuharske of Lake Bluff, to take place next Saturday at the First Presbyterian church of Lake Forest. A reception will follow the ceremony at the residence of the bride's parents.

Announcement is made by Mr. and Mrs. Amiel Wolkow of 3740 Eastwood avenue of the marriage of their daughter, May, to Jack I. LeVant, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Le Vant, of 5240 Sheridan road.

Mr. and Mrs. Leopold Aronson of 526 Addison street announce the marriage of their daughter, Hortense Joan, to Dr. Leon J. Goodman on June 4.

Mr. and Mrs. William H. McCoy of Oklahoma City announce the approaching marriage of their daughter, Thelma Clara, to Roger Vincent Pearce, son of Mrs. Maude M. Pearce of 7051 Oglesby avenue, to take place on Tuesday in Oklahoma City. Miss McCoy is a graduate of Northwestern university and a member of Alpha Chi Omega sorority. Mr. Pearce was graduated from the University of Illinois, where he was a member of Delta Alpha Epsilon fraternity.

The marriage of Miss Eloise Jamieson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Jamieson of Dolton, Ill., to Paul H. Rinker, son of Mrs. Grace Rinker of 1284 Early avenue, took place yesterday. Mr. Rinker is a member of Chi Psi from the University of Illinois.

Ready to serve in a minute...

this Breakfast Fruit Juice

...healthful, tart-sweet, tempting

In Five Minutes—This Perfect Fruit Punch

To one pint of Welch's add the juice of one orange and two lemons and dissolve a cup of sugar in it. Then add two pints of water and serve cold.—Enough for twenty punch cups.

Good Morning, Appetite! How it clamors to be satisfied, just at the sight of this colorful and tempting fruit juice!

Good Morning, Energy—abounding in the juice of luscious Concords!

Good Morning, Health—so definitely aided by the vitamins, the mineral salts and the anti-acid properties of this joyous breakfast fruit!

For those late to prepare breakfast—and who isn't, once in a while?—it's ready the moment you are. Simply pour and serve. This good juice can be placed on the table instantly for immediate enjoyment.

Tomorrow, serve Welch's as your breakfast fruit—to all the family. A pint serves five; more if diluted with water or crushed ice, and some prefer it so.

Order Welch's by the bottle or case from your nearest dealer, or at the fountain ask for straight Welch's or a Welch-ade.

Summer Spas Lure Society from Gotham

New York Neglected as Newport Hegira Starts.

By Nancy Randolph.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

NEW YORK, June 15.—[Special.]—Belmont's spring season went out in a blaze of glory last week-end and, with the scene shiftnig to Aqueduct this week, society is beginning to give the equine royalty less attention than in past days of the spring. Until August and the Saratoga season the notables will pay more attention to getting settled for the summer than to picking their choices in flat racing and steeplechases.

Newport has opened already and and Southampton, always considerably slower in getting under way, will burst into its annual shower of luncheons, teas and garden parties within the next several days.

In the meantime, this poor town of ours comes in for much neglect. Nothing, I can assure you, is more woeful than New York in summer. With most of the theaters beginning—and thankfully at that—to darken their doors after a far from decent season, and Fifth avenue looking most deserted of an evening, interest is shifting entirely to the summer resorts. The St. Regis roof still continues hopelessly crowded at luncheon, as does the Persian garden at the Ritz, but only a few are taking the trouble to spend an evening dining at the casino in the park. Tony Biddle has been counting on his huge following to make the Central park hostelry the summer social center—but no one can ever make a social center of New York in summer. It just can't be done. The number of notables departing next week on outgoing boats makes it seem that society will desert us en masse this year.

Collegians Coming Home.

Within the next couple of weeks the lads and lassies will be back from school and college, and as soon as that somewhat rowdy movement takes place all our notable families will remove for the summer and town will be left once more to those true New Yorkers who find a charm—and an undeniable one—in strolling up the avenue at dusk and dining in solitary splendor in the huge dining room of the Gotham, or far up the drive at Claremont.

As I said last week, Newport has thrown wide its doors to newcomers. There are to be dozens of new families ensconced in homes of their own along the cliffs, and many anxious heart is beating in matronly bosoms over the possible results of the summer. Not that there are many newcomers who are socially impossible, but that Newport is a citadel hard to conquer, no matter how good one's credentials.

Cheer for Faint Heart.

The faint hearted ones may take good cheer from the fact that the Oliver Harrimans are to be at the Rhode Island spa this year. The white haired Mrs. Harriman has not been a Newporter for many years—not since the days when the late Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish and the late Mrs. Herman Oelrichs were queens of the resort, and not, as they are now, only part of the Newport tradition.

The Harrimans for many years have summered in Westchester, and the move to Newport this year is more on account of their son, Jack, and his wife, Nancy, the erstwhile Mrs. Louis de l'Aigle Munds, than because Mrs. Harriman is anxious to appear once more in the most glorified of American social sets.

Jack Harriman, an easy going, genial chap, is not too bothered about Newport, but Nancy wants her summer of gayety in the midst of choicest circles, and once given the entre that her mother-in-law can bestow, she will take care of the rest herself. No merrier person than young Mrs. Jack Harriman exists.

As far as the newcomers are concerned, they will find Mrs. Harriman Sr. a great help. Like Mrs. B. T. Wilson, Mrs. Ollie Harriman has a fondness for new faces. She will do all she can to smooth the path of many who would otherwise find the hardness of a shoulder turned towards them more often than the warmth of a smile.

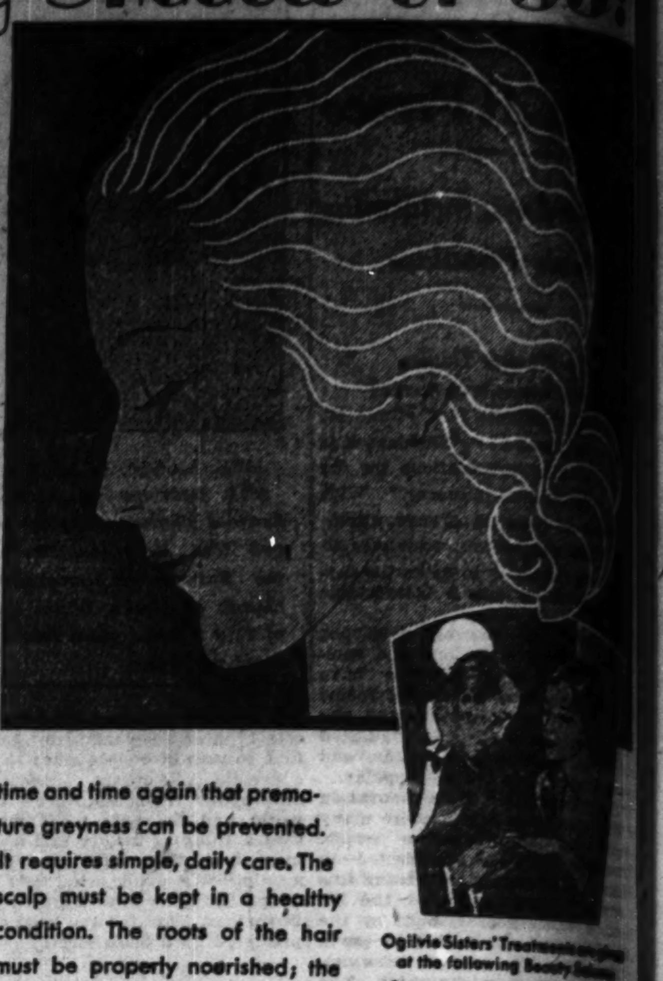
The Grey Shadow of 35



Will You Escape It—Or Will It Mar Your Happiness?

TODAY you are young and happy. You have beauty to spare—and love—and young shoulders that bear their burdens lightly. But what of the years ahead? Will your happiness decrease; your beauty be lost? What of your hair—and its appearance, five—ten—fifteen years from now?

Even now your hair may be verging on greyness. It may be too oily or too dry—its vitality waning. It may be losing its color—a drab shadow of dustiness stealing over it. All these are danger signals—fore-runners of The Grey Shadow—conditions which, if not overcome, will surely lead to greyness, regardless of age.

Yet, Ogilvie Sisters have proven time and time again that premature greyness can be prevented. It requires simple, daily care. The scalp must be kept in a healthy condition. The roots of the hair must be properly noerished; the color cells thoroughly stimulated; the flow of oil glands regulated.

or, rather, to Lake Forest, where she will make one or two visits before rejoining her husband at their country place near Cooperstown, on Otsego lake, N. Y.

She has not been in this part of the world since her marriage in November, 1927. Her many friends here will be delighted to hear that she and her husband are planning a two months' sojourn in Chicago next winter. She always adds to the gayety of nations wherever she may be, and those who have met her in Europe this spring say that, in spite of the serious illness which attacked her last summer she seems today as well and as full of spirits as ever.

Apropos of foreign travel I have to correct an erroneous announcement I made recently when I stated that the Silas Strawns were going to attend the International Association of Commerce meeting at Stockholm. It does not meet at the Swedish capital this year; it is at Amsterdam, the Dutch metropolis, that it will collect its members and hold its sessions this summer, and it is to that interesting city that the Strawns will hie themselves.

An Error Acknowledged.

While I am apologizing for incorrect statements, and that is a job that this column is quite willing to undertake, truth and accuracy being ever our aim, I would like here to state that when I wrote about our former fellow citizen, the late Lyman J. Gage, and his life at Point Loma I was quite misinformed as to his present wife's having connection with the famous Theosophical institute which has its beautiful headquarters on that great promontory that sticks out with such majesty into the Pacific ocean. It is just another lesson not to take hearsay as truth, and one that your scribe is gradually acquiring.

My informant neglected to tell me that it was Mr. Gage's second wife who was connected with the institute. He was, it appears, married three times, and it was this second wife who was, according to my source of knowledge, a friend and follower of Mrs. Tingley. He,- himself, as was reported by me, had no connection with the Theosophists, nor, according to Mr. Fussell, who makes the protest, did he ever give anything to it beyond a contribution of $25 to a fund for something connected with the children who are taught at the institute. I don't think that I mentioned any gifts from him, but am not sure, as so fugitive is this light and frivolous chronicle of current events that its creator keeps none of it. By Monday morning her only copy is on its way to South Africa, to an ex-Chicagoan who professes to read it.

To continue with this endeavor to correct any false impressions unwittingly conveyed by the X. family's peripatetic pillar of polite piffle, let me emphasize the fact that, while Mr. Gage set his house almost at the gates of Point Loma institute, he did so only and entirely because the location was a beautiful one, and because he had elected when he left Chicago to seek the simple, undisturbed life, which he found on this southwesternmost point on this northern continent. In so doing he showed that good sense which guided him through his long and successful life.

Nor was the third Mrs. Gage ever at any time second in command at this institute of which Mrs. Katherine Tingley has long been head. Mr. Fussell in terms of well merited bitterness calls upon the W. G. N. to correct the false impressions that may have been created by us.

Where It Started.

And furthermore, we who conduct this column do earnestly entreat any newspapers in that part of the country who deem it worth while to communicate this information to its readers to the end that no more false information may be given hapless newspaper folk who sojourn for a short time in that part of southern California and mayhap send in stuff to their newspapers. It's a bad thing for us journalistic hirelings when we are convicted of inaccuracy by our bosses and we don't like or mean to run such risks. But when we are told things that seem to be current information by many and sundry we are not always in a position to seek complete verification at headquarters owing to the swift arrival and passing of an infinite variety of so-called news, which we have to pass rapidly on, or lose our jobs.

I wish that a theosophist could be a reporter for, say, just a week. If he or she sought exact verification of every casual presentation of what seemed like news—well, he or she wouldn't have much time for either eating or slumber.

Just the same, the X. family hates to appear untrustworthy and here and now takes a vow never again to retail anything in the least interesting to its readers unless it is handed to us signed and sealed and sworn to by some one in high authority. We may lose readers, and we have some important ones; we may even lose our job, and it is a good one; we may lose our temper, and it is a bad one; but so help us by everything that is noble and good, we never will again talk about a theosophist, which vow keeps us from telling you just what is said out in the Ojai valley [pronounced O'High] about another theosophist, Krishna Murti, and his shiny new automobile. He's not of the same branch of theosophists as the school at Point Loma. Mrs. Annie Besant is a follower of his. By the way, if you are uncertain as to where to put the accent on Mrs. Besant's name, remember that she said at the beginning of her career in the eighties of the last century that she'd make it very unpleasant for any one who rhymed it with pleasant. I've forgotten just how the rhyme went, but it left an indelible impression on one youthful mind. So don't pronounce it Besant, with the accent on the "Bes," and mumbling the "ant." Better speak it as B'sant.

Off to California.

A large and representative throng of Chicagoans are summering in southern California. Mrs. Joseph G. Coleman departed last Tuesday for Santa Barbara. Her splendid work for the new Passavant hospital, to which she has devoted herself daily for the last four or five months, earned her the right to as perfect a holiday as that lovely region can provide for weary mortals. She will be at the Miramar for the next three months.

Her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Strobel, are going there in a fortnight or so and will be

Educators of Religious Field Meet at Quincy

THE annual convention of the Illinois council of religious education will be held Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday at Quincy, Ill. This organization was formerly called Sunday School association and represents thirty-one Protestant denominations, 6,044 church or Bible schools, and an enrollment of 938,024 pupils. The governing body is interdenominational and composed of an equal number of ministers and laymen. In addition to the Sunday school work, the activities of the council embrace day and vacation Bible schools and centers of leadership training.

The Quincy meeting will be an intensive training school for three days, taught by men and women well known in their respective fields in the best and most modern methods. An attendance of 1,500 is expected.

Among those that appear on the program are the following: Prof. H. Augustine Smith, Boston, Mass., music; the Rev. J. S. Armentrout, Philadelphia, Pa., young people's director, Presbyterian church; Hazel V. Orton, Chicago, children's work, Methodist Episcopal church; the Rev. F. E. Davison, Oak Park, adult work, Disciple church; Dr. Paul H. Vieth, Chicago, international council religious education; Roy Burkhart, Chicago, international young people's specialist; Dr. Arlo Brown, Chattanooga, Tenn., religious education; W. E. Pickering, Springfield, Ill., president Illinois council of religious education.

More than 100 school children have already enrolled for vacation school at the Moody Bible institute, 123 Institute place, which begins to hold its daily session July 11. Last year 125 children, representing 22 nationalities, attended and from present indications many more will be enrolled this year before the opening day. In charge of classes for boys and girls of all ages are the students of the institute who are preparing in a four year Christian education course, specialists in departmental work; games, hand work, Bible drills, stories, singing, and outings for children from four to fourteen are provided. The school will continue until July 26.

A solemn novena in honor of Our Mother of Perpetual Help is being held at St. Michael's Catholic church, Cleveland and Eugenie streets, which began last Friday and will close on Saturday. There will be services in German in the afternoon at 3 o'clock and in English at 7:30 p. m. The sermons will be preached by the Rev. F. J. Lorenz, C. SS. R.

At Elmhurst, Ill., the conference of the north Illinois district of the Evangelical Synod of North America will be held on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday in Elmhurst college. This conference comprises 135 churches and contributes to the maintenance of the following institutions within its borders: Elmhurst college, Elmhurst; Orphans' home and Home for the Aged, Bensenville; Pastors' home, Bensenville: Deaconess' home, Lincoln; Deaconess' home, Chicago; Uhlich's Orphan home, Chicago. The merger of the Evangelical synod with allied church bodies will be up for discussion. The Rev. H. J. Schick, S. T. D., of Chicago, is president.

His Eminence George Cardinal Mundelein will dedicate St. Simon's church and school, 5157 South California avenue, this morning at 10:30 o'clock, assisted by the Rt. Rev. Msgr. W. O'Brien, St. John's Catholic church; the Rt. Rev. Msgr. William Foley, St. Ambrose church; and the Rt. Rev. Msgr. J. Dettmer, St. Anthony's church. Solemn high mass will be celebrated by the Rev. Bonaventure Sovinski, O. F. M., St. Mary's church, Lemont, Ill. The dedication sermon will be preached by the Rev. John Kostik, C. PP. S., St. John's Catholic church, Whiting, Ill. The seating capacity of the church is 1,020 and the property is valued at $200,000. The parish was organized on Oct. 1, 1926, the Rev. Edward Sendek, pastor.

This evening at 8 o'clock at Grace Evangelical Community church, Logan square and Wrightwood avenue, the Rev. J. Alfred Nansen, pastor, the "Happy Sunday Evening Services" will come to a close for the season with special request numbers by the church orchestra, under the direction of W. H. Wilton. Mrs. Mary Gorman Parker will be at the organ and will also accompany the vested choirs in special selections.

The 548 Presbyterian churches of Illinois will be represented through presbyterial commissioners, an equal number of elders and ministers, at the eighth annual conference of Illinois Presbyterians to be held at Edgewater Presbyterian church, Bryn Mawr avenue at Kenmore, from Monday evening to Friday noon. It comprises the synod of Illinois, the Women's Synodical society, and the educational and inspirational conference. In response to the action of the Presbyterian general assembly, obedience to law and the necessity of church people taking a conspicuous part in the movement to bring about a better observance and enforcement of the law, will be the keynote of the conference. Among the speakers on the program will be Frank J. Loesch, an elder of the Fourth church and recently named by President Hoover as a member of the national law enforcement commission.

The Rev. Lester E. Bond, pastor of the First Presbyterian church at Itasca, Ill., has hit upon a novel idea of conducting a special golfers' service at 8 o'clock in the morning every Sunday and he says he is greatly surprised at the generous attendance. To accommodate the caddies at 7:30 o'clock Sunday school is conducted.

This new program was inaugurated because Itasca is located in the midst of no less than six golf courses and the Sunday golfers were not willing to give up the sport to attend church at the regular hours for service. It also interfered with the attendance of local residents, especially the caddy boys. Best of all, these services do not interfere with the regular Sunday school and morning worship services.

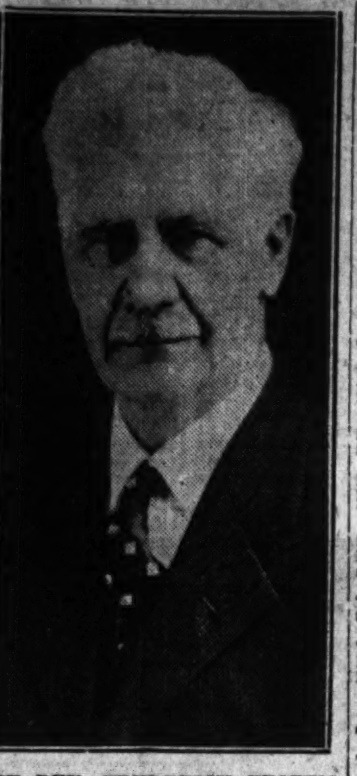
The Rev. Charles Tupper Baillie, who has recently accepted the call to the pulpit of the Fullerton Avenue Presbyterian church, will preach his first sermon at the church this morning. A reception by the women's organizations of Fullerton to the new pastor and his family will be given this evening at 6:30 in the church parlors. The Rev. Mr. Baillie is a graduate of Union Theological seminary, New York City.

NEWS OF CHURCHES



THE REV. FREDERICK PFOTENHAUER, D.D.
[Dodge Photo.]

Dr. Frederick Pfotenhauer is president of the Evangelical Lutheran synod of Missouri, Ohio and other states, and has held this position since 1911. There is every expectation that he will be reelected at the 34th triennial convention of the synod to be held beginning Wednesday and continuing until June 29, at the Concordia Teachers' college, River Forest, Ill.

In April, 1847, eighty-two years ago, the Missouri synod was organized at Chicago, in the First St. Paul's Lutheran church, La Salle and Goethe streets, of which the Rev. Henry Kowert, is pastor at present. There were twelve congregations with twenty-two ministers, and two candidates for the ministry. Today there are 1,606,745 adult members, 3,917 churches 4,167 pastors and 181,576 pupils in Lutheran schools. Nearly 1,000 delegates representing Lutheran churches over the world will attend the thirty-fourth triennial convention in River Forest.

Dr. Pfotenhauer, born in Germany, came to America and finished his theological education in Concordia college, Indiana, and Concordia seminary, Missouri, and was ordained to the Lutheran ministry in 1880. He has served in the pastorate and as traveling missionary until he was elected to his present position in 1911. Dr. Pfotenhauer resides in Chicago.

The Presbyterian general assembly also sent down overtures to its churches for a vote on the proposition of organic union of all Protestant evangelical churches. Other prominent speakers will be: Dr. Hugh T. Kerr of Pittsburgh, Pa.; the Rev. Cady H. Allen, missionary from Persia; Mrs. Andrew Todd Taylor and Miss B. Marie Preston, Chicago, of the Presbyterian foreign and national boards; Dr. John Timothy Stone of the Fourth church and the Presbyterian Theological seminary. All the meetings will be held in the new four-story, half million dollar community house. Dr. Asa J. Ferry, the pastor, is chairman of the Chicago committee and host of the conference. Each noon there will be a luncheon for the whole group at the Edgewater Beach hotel, and at the one on Thursday. Frank J. Loesch will speak on "The Church and Crime."

Arthur Burrage Farwell, president of the Chicago Law and Order league and secretary of the Hyde Park Protective association, will speak at the Belden Avenue Baptist church, Belden avenue and Halsted street, this morning at 11 o'clock. He says, "I have seen Chicago grow in population ten times and in territory six times, and believe here is to be not only the largest, richest, most influential city in the world but eventually the most righteous. I have that faith in the Chicago spirit."

Tomorrow morning at 10:30 in the Immanuel Baptist church building, 2320 South Michigan avenue, the Baptist Ministers' conference will meet for the last time this season until Sept. 9. The devotions will be led by the Rev. Cecil Osborne, the new pastor of the Lorimer-Memorial Baptist church. The Rev. Prof. Morton S. Enslin of the department of the New Testament, Crozer Theological seminary, Chester, Pa., will be the speaker of the morning. Dr. U. M. McGuire is the president.

◆

The Rev. F. J. Tromp, who has just been elected rector of Calvary Episcopal church, 3164 West Monroe street, will be the guest of honor at a reception in the Calvary parish house this afternoon from 4 to 7. Father Tromp takes up his duties at Calvary July 1, succeeding the late Rev. Henry R. Neely, who had served the parish for thirteen years until his death two weeks ago.

The Rev. Walter Wietzke, the pastor, will preach his first sermon in the new Grace Evangelical Lutheran church, South Marshfield avenue and West 61st street, this morning at 9:30 in German and at 10:30 in English. The evening service at 8 o'clock will be a memorial dedication and an organ recital by Mr. Jellema. The new building, with the organ, art glass and furnishings represents an approximate value of $60,000.

◆

Three Chicago rectors and a former Chicagoan will receive higher degrees from the Western Theological seminary at the fourty-fourth annual commencement exercises Tuesday at St. Mark's Episcopal church, Evanston. The Rev. Kenneth Owen Crosby, chaplain St. Stephen's college, New York, for fourteen years head of Lawrence hall, Chicago, and the Rev. J. H. Dennis, rector of the Church of the Holy Apostles, Chicago, will receive the degree of doctor of sacred theology. The Rev. F. E. Bernard, rector of All Saints' church, Ravenswood, and the Rev. William A. Simms, rector of St. Mark's, Chicago, will receive the degree of master of sacred theology. Among those who will receive bachelor degrees will be the Rev. Wilfred H. Ziegler, rector of the Church of the Redeemer, Elgin, who served as a missionary in Alaska and was also a chaplain of the 14th division, United States army, during the world war. The Rev. A. E. Knickerbocker, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal church, Minneapolis, Minn., member of the national Episcopal council, an alumnus of Western seminary, will deliver the commencement address and will be awarded the degree of D. D. Annual luncheon for alumni, trustees, faculty and students will follow the commencement exercises, at which Dr. Frederick C. Grant, dean and president of the seminary, will preside.

Dr. Ernest Fremont Tittle of the First Methodist Episcopal church, Evanston, will be the speaker at the 85th annual commencement service, Tuesday, of Ohio Wesleyan university, Delaware, O. Dr. Tittle graduated from Ohio Wesleyan twenty-three years ago. Baccalaureate exercises will be held today and Alumni day comes tomorrow.

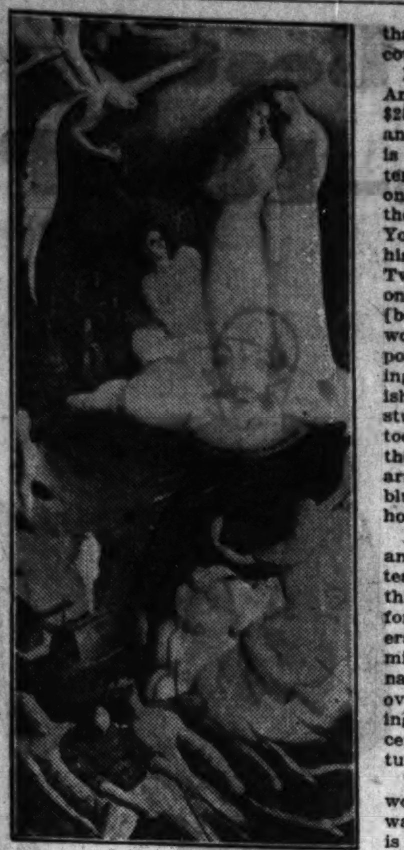
Students' Work Shown at Institute

Art in All Forms Represents the Year's Labors

By Eleanor Jewett.



"COMPOSITION," by Theodore Roszak, winner of the Anna Louise Raymond Traveling fellowship of $1,500 in the 1929 Annual Traveling Scholarship competition of the Art institute art school. This panel is an interesting feature of the Art institute school exhibit, which opened last Tuesday in the east wing galleries of the museum. It will continue to July 7.

THERE is a great deal that is interesting in the current show of students' work in the east wing galleries of the Art institute. The exhibition has been arranged slightly differently this year and we first see the work of the lower school instead of being presented at the door with the results of the most mature competition offered the school—the annual Traveling Fellowships competition. Those, for the nonce, have been relegated to an inner gallery.

The narrow entrance hall is given up to etchings and drawings. There are a few excellent portrait heads and two or three amusing studies of dogs. The first large room is decorated with innumerable colorful scraps of design. The antics of geometrical cubes and cones reduced to the common level of frail humanity make very clever fun on one side of the room. The dancing figures are certainly worthy of the smiles they engender. The "corner-crossing" is another trap for laughter. On tables pleasantly spaced over the floor are many curious and gay conceptions—ornaments, book ends, pen stands. This work is spoken of as three dimensional art and it is being stressed in the lower school.

In further rooms are large canvases, chiefly figure work. A blind musician with his fiddle is painted several times and a chambermaid, who in one canvas looks like 17 and in the next looks like her own mother, is a second popular model. There are plentiful studies of the nude, but among them one can walk unafraid. They are practically all without charm and practically all composed of strict straightforward painting, sentiment and beauty banished to heaven knows where.

The one almost delightful study of a back is by a Japanese student who painted it in four days—the usual time allotted to this type of problem is two weeks—and he painted it under the influence of Boris Anisfeld who has lately been instructing in the advanced classes—there is more than a hint of his master in the background and in the warm flesh tints. If Sui [the student artist] had restrained the pinkish glow of the legs the painting would be an unqualified success. As it is, the color grates.

As an aside, it may be of interest to know that Boris Anisfeld will be with the Art institute school next winter as an instructor.

Fantasies and Landscapes.

In addition to the life work there are examples of imaginative composition on a large scale. A field of gold fish is one of the more successful efforts. In another huge panel music is making some weird passes. The allegory or romance is none too clear but there is something in the wind, you feel sure, with regard to the notes that flow from the keyboard and are supported by angelic means in the ether. A third pastoral is well arranged and pleasingly presented. The coloring of all three is fresh and vivid and vital. This illustrates another development in the teaching ideas that govern the school.

The landscapes offered by students in de Forrest Schook's classes are charming. There are several which are exquisitely painted. The idea is a new one and this is its first time on exhibition. From the material at hand it would seen a valuable addition to the curriculum. In the last long hall are adorable silhouettes of children and animals and grownups. The "Dollie's Calendar" is particularly delicious. "Little Orphan Annie" is cunning and funny at the same time.

A Mystifying Panel.

All of this leaves us without a word concerning the competition compositions. Each year important traveling scholarships are offered to the students and awarded in accordance with merit. The subject this year was anything that would gracefully decorate a certain empty wall in Gunsaulus hall leading down into the Hutchinson Wing of the Art institute. As a result we are presented with four panels. The one rewarded with first prize is by Theodore Roszak. What is the meaning back of it?

The panel is a crowded arrangement of figures and objects with not the slightest thread of reason or necessity holding them together. Who are that man and woman in stiff, white marble garments balanced on a cloud? Is that head near them a pictured wind? What are the angel heads below them, streaked in heavy lines and being directed by a vision in green? Why are little active boats darting like frenzied water beetles on the calm water below—indeed, why is there water in the picture at all? Are those brown [illegible] things houses or forts? Is the idea (it has been suggested) an allegory to the fame of the 1933 Chicago Fair? And if it is, then how—and why?

But more than all these questions, is it not incredible that a student should after years of study achieve such a hybrid—and is it not more incredible that his effort should be rewarded with the biggest prize in the power of the jury to give? If such quackeries are going to be approved, of course poor art will flourish. There is no necessity for anything fine when such flapdoodle succeeds.

Second Prize Well Awarded.

The second prize was given to Jack Wolfe. It is the W. M. R. French Traveling Fellowship of $1,000. Mr. Wolfe has achieved a restrained and lovely composition in the Japanese manner. He has balanced his composition perfectly and supplied it with gracious curves. In the top portion of the panel there are sky and gray water and boats. A strip of land and buildings stretch along one side; on the other is a tree. Interest comes easily from this to the human group, women and a child, that place themselves naturally in the foreground. The red and green balls that amuse the child catch the color motif and heighten the exquisite quality of the gray that really is the atmosphere of the picture. This panel is of value—that is, it is if anything but vulgarity counts today.

Merlin Pollock was awarded the American Traveling scholarship of $250. His composition is ungainly and, like Roszak's, meaningless. There is a man with bad legs dressed in a terrible suit, holding a naked cherub on his shoulder [cupid? possibly]. By the man's side walks a naked woman. You feel he might at least have shared his coat, poorly as it is cut, with her. Two doves are perched on a branch on her side of the panel. Below them [below the clothed man and unclothed woman] is a sad picnic party composed of two young and strained looking persons. The youth wears a rakish hat, the kind that is sat on by stunt clowns in vaudeville, and a suit too short in the sleeves [and besides there is something wrong with his arms], and the girl is in woe-begone blue with a grief-smitten face. The horrors, the horrors, she has endured!

A trifle of fruit, a banana, a lemon, an orange, and a bottle offer mute testimony that, queer as it may seem, this is a picnic. You could easily be forgiven if you thought it a mourners' feast. Such wan creatures, such misery ridden humans, such extraordinary persons, the feeling of fate looms over them portenteously, there is nothing you cannot imagine about them except why nothing better than they turned up in the competition.

This leaves the fourth panel, the work of Hubert Bailey, which was rewarded with honorable mention. It is a stiff arrangement in the Egyptian manner, quite dull, quite bloodless.

Many and varied are the conclusions that might be drawn from this group of prize paintings. The most cheerful is that while there is life there is hope and possibly next year we shall see a saner distribution of awards. [This excepts the Jack Wolfe award, one with which we agree.]

News of Exhibits.

There opened last Monday at the O'Brien art galleries a slight exhibit made up of paintings by Marjorie Phillips. Her work, for the most part, is modern in tendency. Her palette is low. She paints with such prim effort to cancel all reasonable life that she succeeds in achieving canvas after canvas of monotonous mood. The "Poppies" is the most charming of her pictures. It is delicate in color and skilfully painted. A tiny Alpinish effect "Snow in the South" has a fascination peculiarly Swiss. It makes one think of châlets and cuckoo clocks and carved bears.

The Hoosier Salon Patrons association gallery announces an exhibition for the month of June of the prize paintings from the last Hoosier Salon and a group of small oils and water colors. The gallery is open from 9 to 5 every day except Saturday when it closes at 1 o'clock.

William Jacobs of Hull house is holding an exhibit of his paintings of scenes in Maxwell street at Saul Kogen's studio, 155 North Carl street, from June 12 to June 26. The exhibit may be seen in the evening. Mr. Jacobs introduces himself with the information that he exhibited in the international water color exhibit at the Art institute last month.

NEWS OF CHICAGO SOCIETY

at the Biltmore. Mr. and Mrs. James Ward Thorne are spending the summer at their beautiful new residence that, perched high above the town, looks out over a matchless expanse of mountains and sea. The Alister McCormicks, also, are enjoying the delights of their newly finished abode which is perched on a mountainside overlooking lovely Montecito valley. The Joseph T. Ryersons are occupying the beautiful Ryerson villa, El Cerrito, [meaning "Little Hill"] that also has a wide view over mountains, valley and sea. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wesley Dempster, long time summer residents of Santa Barbara, are also part of the Chicago colony.

Others are Dr. and Mrs. Horace Gray, the Orville Babcocks, and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Meeker. The latter are occupying their daughter, Mrs. Lloyd's, house in Montecito. The Grays are in their own home there. An ex-Chicago couple, Mr. and Mrs. Ellicott Evans, have a delightful house in Montecito. It used to be the abode of the late Mrs. Robert Louis Stevenson, widow of the famous writer. Mrs. Evans, while keeping its charm and character, has made it into one of the most comfortable, as well as attractive houses out there, a dwelling with wide terraces, a luxurious interior and a wonderful outlook.

The Land of Gardens.

To the inhabitant of our sterner, more northerly part of the country, one of the great delights of California is the quick response gardens out there make to any attempt to develop and embellish them. Almost overnight the expert gardener sees flowers and shrubs blossom and grow to life size. To be sure, the residents there know naught of our shy, coy, elusive, exquisite springs. But then, we do not know their luxuriant growth and the radiance with which their gardens spring overnight into fullest foliage.

One of the charming effects that I noted there, last spring, was the masses of cineraria growing under the shade of apple trees or palms. Masses of them, purple and crimson, grew almost riotously in quiet corners and gave a tone of splendor to otherwise unnoticeable nooks.

Mrs. Arthur Meeker sends me an interesting clipping concerning Kenmore, in which charming historic monument she is much interested. It tells of a letter written by Martha Washington and franked on the envelope by George Washington, which Mrs. Creighton Withers of Port Hope, Canada, offers to lend Kenmore for five years, with the possibility that it may ultimately become a part of the collection being assembled there. I suppose that there were no such things as postage stamps in that day. Or perhaps the custom of free postage, or franking, now enjoyed by congressmen and officials, was used by George Washington and others in high place. It would be something to know and would cast a light on the customs of that time.

Why Kōnjola Is Making New Friends

THIS new medicine is highly recommended by nearly every one who has taken it. Our customers are strongly endorsing it, thus Konjola is making new friends and keeping old ones.

It contains 32 ingredients—22 of them juices of natural plants. These have a beneficial effect upon the digestive and eliminative organs. Taken immediately after meals, it helps digest the food, thus assisting nature so the body may derive the fullest benefit from every meal.

Konjola sales have been phenomenal, due entirely to merit. Five carloads have been sold in Chicago since February 15th, yet this medicine is not a cure-all—not a chemical—not alcoholic. It is keeping thousands of people feeling like their real selves. Sold at all Walgreen and Economical Drug Stores.

The Konjola representative is explaining the merits of this new medicine to large crowds daily at the Walgreen Store, State and Washington. Other Konjola representatives may be seen at the following stores:

ORDER HEARING ON COMPLETING DEVON AVENUE

Proposed as Route Across County.

Residents of the northwest side have virtually won a six-year fight for the improvement of Devon avenue as a major traffic artery from Lake Michigan to the western boundary of Cook county. The project was advanced last week by an announcement that the Chicago plan commission will end a disagreement by approving plans for the project drawn by engineers of the board of local improvements. Immediately Michael J. Faherty, president of the board of improvements, ordered proceedings started toward a hearing on the proposal. The hearing is expected to be held within two weeks.

Following a conference between officials of the plan commission and members of the Greater Devon Avenue association, James Simpson, president of the commission, informed Mr. Faherty that his executive committee would approve the plans and that it would be advisable to start proceedings at once so that no time might be lost. Mr. Faherty had refused to hold a public hearing until the commission had voiced its approval of the plans.

Through Route Across County.

When this part of Devon avenue is opened and paved, a through highway from the lake to the county line will be provided. There is little fear of opposition to the improvement, according to George J. Eckhoff, president of the Devon association, since most of the landowners in the district have expressed themselves in favor of it and have contributed funds to carry on negotiations.

The commission had withheld its approval of the project because the plan drawn jointly by engineers for the local board and engineers engaged by the Devon group provided for making a slight detour to the north in order to make use of existing streets rather than for cutting across private property on a straight line with Devon avenue east and west of this point.

However, following arguments of engineers, including Hugh E. Young, engineer of the plan commission, officials of that body agreed that it was advisable to make the detour rather than follow a straight line.

Mr. Eckhoff told the commission that the detour is desirable in order to take advantage of existing underground improvements, and so as not to damage property by condemnation any more than necessary.

Avoids Triple Intersection.

By opening the street on the section line, he continued, a triple intersection would be created at the corner of Northwest highway, Harlem avenue, and the proposed Devon avenue. The detour would place the intersection of Devon and Harlem avenues a block north of Northwest highway at this point and would avoid so dangerous an intersection.

William Zelosky, another property owner, interjected that landowners of the district were so interested in getting the improvement through according to the present plan that they had contributed $2,500 to make their own survey.

Mr. Young then told the commission that $40,000 would be saved in condemnation costs by making the detour. He also agreed that avoiding of the triple intersection would be a good thing. Another point in favor of the detour made by Mr. Young was that a better crossing under the Chicago and North Western tracks immediately west of Harlem avenue could be obtained if Devon avenue approached the tracks from the northeast rather from the east. The railroad has agreed to build a subway when the improvement is made.

Although it is ordinarily unwise to deviate from section line streets and make a detour, this case is a logical exception, Mr. Young continued. It has been estimated that condemnation of property required would amount to $366,000, he concluded.

Ald. T. J. Bowler [41st] pronounced the proposed improvement the greatest initiated on the northwest side.

Other members of the Devon association who attended the conference were Henry Rasmussen, Paul J. Paulenske, Harry Brown, W. J. Vavre, H. R. Berry, Fred J. Gillick, and George F. Koesler. These men are preparing to organize their forces and appear in a body at the hearing.

WILMETTE MINISTER CLOSES WORK TODAY; GOING TO U. OF I. POST

THE REV. W. E. McCORMACK.
[J. D. Toloff Photo.]

The Rev. William E. McCormack, director of religious education at Wilmette Congregational church, will preach his last sermon there today before leaving to take up his duties with the Pilgrim foundation at the University of Illinois.

The Rev. Mr. McCormack came to the Wilmette church in 1925 from Eliot church, Newton, Mass. For a time after the departure of Dr. Stephen A. Lloyd from the church he was in complete charge. His new work will be with Congregational students at the university.

Last Sunday was Children's day at the church. An informal presentation of the church school's work was made and students were promoted into higher classes.

Party Chairman

MRS. WILLIAM FROHMAN.
[Bloom Photo.]

The North Shore auxiliary of the Marks Nathan Jewish Orphan home will hold a June breakfast and bridge party at the Edgewater Beach hotel tomorrow. Mrs. William Frohman is chairman, assisted by Mrs. Adolph Roth and Mrs. Andrew Roth. Mrs. H. R. Schiff is president of the organization.

GARDEN CLUBS OF NORTH SHORE TO ATTEND LECTURE

Members of north shore garden clubs will attend an illustrated lecture on "The Making of a Garden" to be given by Mrs. Linn White in the auditorium of National Kindergarten and Elementary college Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock.

Following Mrs. White's lecture there will be a luncheon at the Vista del Lago and a tour of the gardens of the district. Mrs. M. Landon Hoyt of Winnetka is general chairman of arrangements and Mrs. Frederick Scott of Hubbards Woods is in charge of the garden tour. Mrs. Harry G. Phillips is arranging the luncheon.

The program is sponsored by several members of the college board for the benefit of the building fund. Mrs. Herman Fabry of Evanston is in charge of the ticket sale and Mrs. Florence S. Capron, also of Evanston, is handling publicity.

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

BY FRED PASLEY.

DR. DAVID H. DANEK, our well known rummy authority of East Oak street, has resumed his summer golf schedule in a serious way at his favorite links, and says it sure is wonderful to be knee deep in June in the rough or out these days. Dave is rapidly acquiring that schoolboy complexion, says Helen, his valued helpmeet.

* *

Elmer [Chubby] Leis, bowler and baseball player of north shore fame, has crossed the Rubicon and burned his bridges and we are able to announce he will play ball with the Norwood Park team this season. Chubby says local boys don't have a chance to play on the Wilmette nine, so he does not consider himself a traitor. His only regret is that he fears there will be no games between the two teams this year. Otherwise, Chubby declares he will fight it out on the afore mentioned lines if it takes all summer.

* *

PROF. FRANK RIDGWAY, dean of agriculture in THE TRIBUNE faculty and popular resident of Evanston, cradle of the W. C. T. U., was attacked by a rabbit last Sunday and chewed on the finger. Frank says he is off prohibition.

* *

Harry E. Byram, fellow townsman, has barred the venerable red flannel shirt from the wardrobes of section hands on his railroad—the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific. "We found they were too often mistaken for danger signals," said Harry, wiping away a sentimental tear.

* *

Mrs. J. L. Sullivan, who has been riding the elevated daily for years, says she would like to compliment the Chicago Rapid Transit company as to guard No. 1239 of the Wilson avenue express. He speaks and calls the stations clearer than any guard she has ever heard. We'll seize him and have Quin Ryan put him on the air at W-G-N, Mrs. Sullivan.

* *

S. D. ROSEN reports he has met quite a few of the boys the last week and found them hale. Maurice Dorne has been fishing in northern Wisconsin.

* *

An interesting debate was held at Progressive lodge, we learn through Bro. Zoch, the negative being upheld by George Loach, the organist, and the affirmative by Samuel Anderson, carpenter. The theme was, "Resolved—How to Miter a Moulding to 45 Degrees." Sam was acclaimed winner by a city square.

* *

AL ELROD is said to imagine himself another Walter Hagen since he made two birdies and a par in succession at the Acacia Country club.

* *

E. B. Weismantel writes us from Waukegan that his seven children, the oldest of whom is now 33 and the youngest, Leo, in this year's graduation class of the Waukegan High school, have never once had a tardy mark on their report cards. Leo has never missed a day at school. We know all will agree with Mr. Weismantel that the mother of a family with such a record "is worthy of mention," as he modestly puts it. We'll go farther. We think there should be citations for such mothers. "For," as Mr. Weismantel concludes his letter, "in accomplishing this she no doubt had to sleep many a night with one eye open."

PRESBYTERIANS WILL OPEN STATE MEETING FRIDAY

The eighth annual conference of Illinois Presbyterians will be held at the Edgewater Presbyterian church, 1020 Bryn Mawr avenue, opening tomorrow and closing next Friday noon. The Rev. Asa J. Ferry, D. D., pastor of the church, is general chairman of the Chicago committee.

Included in the conference will be the annual meeting of the Illinois synod and the Illinois Woman's Synodical society as well.

Miss Elsie G. Rodgers, associate director of children's work in Philadelphia, will conduct a course in children's church school work.

Girls at Senn Corner Honors in Scholarship

Thomas Henderson, chatauqua lecturer, will give the address at the Senn High school commencement June 27, David M. Davidson, principal, announced last week. A total of 430 students will be presented diplomas by Mr. Davidson at the program, which will begin at 8 o'clock in the evening in the school auditorium, 5900 Glenwood avenue.

Mr. Henderson's subject will be "Playing the Game Through." In addition to his address and remarks by the principal, the exercises will include a program of musical numbers by the graduating students.

Girls in the 1929 class are by far the superior students, the four averages revealed. The ten highest records were all made by girls and only five boys are included among the thirty best records. Miss Eleanor Ginsberg with a four year average of 96.87 per cent is the valedictorian of the class, and Miss Clara Friend and Miss Ruth Walliser are tied for second place with a 96.03 per cent average. The median average for the entire class is 84.27 per cent and 269 students have a record above 88 per cent, the requirement for entrance to the University of Chicago.

The list of students who averaged 92 per cent or better includes: Miss Lorin Ludwig, Miss Harriet Davis, Miss Helen Neuffer, Miss Jane Wallbrun, Miss Alpha Albert, Miss Anna Braecklein, Miss Helen Kuhn, Frederick Matson, Miss Catherine Woods, George Westfall, Ernest Streisinger, Edward Hess, Miss Sylvia Phillips, Miss Ruth McHart, Miss L. Elizabeth Haynie, Miss Edith Sandstrom, Arthur Nelson, Miss Dorothy Blumenstock, Miss Eunice Neuneman.

Miss Rose Anderson, Miss Violet Schwartz, Miss Ernegene Cole, Miss Hazel Shepherd, Miss Helen M. Fantus, Miss Nancy Kockenderfer, Miss Olive Morgan, Miss Kalita Kirkendall, Earle Wood, Milton Geller, Harold Stickler, Miss Dorothy Straeter, Miss Dorothy Nordblad, and Miss Margaret Burg.

The senior prom was held last night at the Country club of Evanston and other commencement week activities will be held this week, officers of the class said.

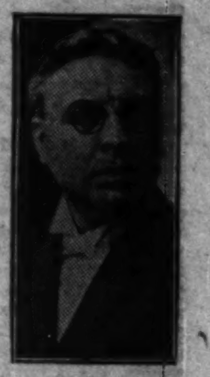
OLD ST. PAUL'S LORE RUNS BACK TO VILLAGE ERA

Born of Demand for German Sermons.

BY ONEY FRED SWEET.



THE REV. JACOB PISTER.

A man had died in one of the little frame structures along the bank of the Chicago river. It was winter in the year of 1843. The man who had died had been a religious man and his family searched far and wide through the cold for a minister who might, at the funeral, say words of comfort and faith in the language which they understood.

The search for a German speaking minister was discouraging to the sorrowing family, but at last a man who represented himself as such was found. Those who attended the service were far from pleased with the sermon. Its lack of impressiveness caused them to be filled with the desire to found a Christian church. They launched a church, gave it the name of St. Paul's, and the first meeting place was in a grocery store at Lake and Franklin streets.

St. Paul's! How rich the fruition of that desire on the part of the handful of pioneers was destined to be! Could those nine members of that first congregation but visit "Chicago's cathedral among Evangelical churches" at Orchard street, Kemper place, and Fullerton parkway today! St. Paul's, with its towering spire, where so many thousands of Chicago's children have been baptized, where so many couples have been married, where so many weary pilgrims have received churchly honors in connection with the last rites at which noted pastors have officiated.

Refuge for Newcomers.

Through more than eighty-five years, St. Paul's Evangelical church has played a sublime part in the history of the city with which it has grown. All through Chicago's various periods, civic leaders have been among its membership. Since the beginning it has been a place of refuge and aid to persons coming from abroad who were not yet familiar with the spirit and the complexion of the new land.

Today, as in the past, it places an emphasis on charity. In essentials, unity; in nonessentials, liberty; in all things, charity. At 3730 North California avenue there is the new Uhlich Orphan home, dedicated in 1928, and another precious child of the mother church is the Churchly Home for the Aged.

There was but one decoration in that simple first church building. On one of the walls there was placed the picture of the crucified Savior. Two of Chicago's prominent citizens of an early day—W. B. Ogden and W. L. Newberry—had provided the lot at Ohio and La Salle streets. They had imposed one condition. It was that the church be built without delay.

Work Rushed in Snowy Winter.

Immense trees stood in a swamp at the corner donated. The winter of 1843-'44 was cold with plenty of snow, but work on the first place of worship for St. Paul's was pushed by eager hands. What a contrast when considering the church on Fullerton parkway today with its more than a hundred memorials in windows, ecclesiastical art and wood carvings, and a church property valued, with its institutions, at $1,500,000!

The first little church was practically without a spiritual head for three years. In 1846 came the Rev. August Selle to be its first ordained minister. The second leader was Dr. Joseph Fischer, who remained until 1851. Then came the Rev. Joseph Hartmann, whose pastorate at St. Paul's is recalled as having been most illustrious, and whose fame as a teacher was not only established in the United States but in Europe as well.

Those were years of great development while Pastor Hartmann was in charge. The church erected as beautiful a temple of worship as was possible at the time. Some of the most prominent families in the city became members.

The structure was reduced to ashes during the great Chicago fire. "St.

30,000 MEMBERS SOUGHT IN DRIVE TO REDUCE TAXES

New Organization Opens Campaign This Week.

A campaign to enlist approximately 30,000 north side taxpayers into the Citizens' Tax Reduction association will be launched this week among the civic and business organizations of that district, Earl G. Gubbins, president of the Cook county real estate board and treasurer of the tax reduction group, announced yesterday.

Although definite arrangements for the membership drive have not been completed, Mr. Gubbins said he plans to get the help of officers in the community associations in conducting massmeetings to discuss tax reduction.

Seek Fund to Work.

At these meetings the local tax situation will be outlined for the prospective members of the new association. Tentative plans for reducing taxes and doing away with alleged irregularities in local government will be discussed. Subscriptions of $1 a year as a membership fee, which the association is soliciting, will be used partly to conduct a reform campaign among the governing bodies of the county and partly to aid in the expansion of the new society, according to Mr. Gubbins.

The association, organized recently as a "not for profit" corporation, the sole aims of which will be to equalize and reduce taxes, has the following officers: President, Justus Chancellor; vice president and secretary, William T. Gridley; treasurer, Mr. Gubbins; assistant secretary, T. L. Newman, and directors: George W. Dixon, E. E. Grant, F. E. Erstman, Si Mayer, J. Scott Mattews, and William J. Tomkins.

Program Is Outlined.

Four salients are contained in the association's program, according to Mr. Gubbins. First, is the elimination by legislation of the 400 tax raising or tax spending bodies in Cook county; second, compulsory restitution of tax money illegally used, by suing the bondsmen or bonding companies of office holders found guilty of malfeasance in office; third, organizing the members of the Citizens' Tax Reduction association into a political force whose votes (estimated at 300,000, or three to a household) would constitute the balance of power in local elections, and fourth, if necessary, to enjoin by legal process unjust or inequitable tax rates and the infliction of taxation without referendums where they are required.

In explaining the need for a fund of $100,000 to be acquired from fees of 100,000 members, paying $1 each, Mr. Gubbins said that sum has been estimated as being necessary to begin efficiently the campaign which the association has outlined. Of every $1 subscribed, he pointed out, it is estimated that 25 cents will be required for operating expenses and the remaining 75 cents will be expended to further the program of the organization.

Phi Tau Fraternity to Hold Its Final Dance Saturday

Phi Tau fraternity will hold its final dance of the season Saturday evening at the Edgewater Athletic club, Sherwin avenue and the lake. Edward B. Immel is chairman of the committee, assisted by S. Robert Wauwolf, Anthony Ficht Jr., George McCann, William Ness, and Harry Dodd. The fraternity is composed of young men living on the north and northwest sides.

Ashland-Irving District to Have Family Party

The Ashland-Irving Improvement association is sponsoring a community party to be given Wednesday at 3918 North Ashland avenue, Felix Coune, president of the asociation, announced last week. All business men and property owners of the district and members of their families have been invited to attend the party.

UNLUCKY SALESGIRLS! IMPORTED $29 SUIT TO CUSTOMER FOR $5

The Tribune will pay $2 for each story of the best bargain obtained in a neighborhood store, printed in the Metropolitan section. Address Bargains, Metropolitan section, The Tribune. Make them short and snappy, writing on only one side of the paper, and print your name and address plainly.

$5 SUIT WEARS WELL.

Chicago, June 9.—Two years ago I chanced to be in a neighborhood dress shop when the proprietor offered to dispose of an imported linen suit for $5. It was the last of summer stock and was badly soiled. The salesgirls were clamoring for it, but fortunately it fitted me well and I was given preference. The original price was $29,.50. I have worn the suit two seasons already and expect it to give me service for several more.

MRS. D. GOULD,
1436 Birchwood avenue.

A GOOD LUCK DRESS.

Chicago, June 10.—I bought four yards of print, that regularly sells for 25 cents, for 10 cents a yard at a sale in the neighborhood some time ago. I made an attractive picnic dress that I am proud to wear, for it never fails to win me many compliments every time I don it. I call it my good luck bargain dress.

INGRID P. MULLEN,
3412 North Halsted street.

WE THINK IT'S PRETTY GOOD.

Chicago, June 10.—I bought a felt hat at a neighborhood sale several years ago for $1. I wore it for two years then cleaned it with naphtha and sold it for 75 cents. What do you think of that for a bargain?

DEGREES GIVEN TO CLASS OF 100 AT NATIONAL

One hundred students received degrees and diplomas last Wednesday at the 43d annual commencement of the National Kindergarten and Elementary college in Evanston. Forty-five students were granted degrees of Bachelor of Education and 35 received the kindergarten elementary diploma.

The Rev. George Craig Stewart of St. Luke's Episcopal church, Evanston, delivered the commencement address and President Edna Dean Baker of the college made the awards.

Diplomas were granted to the following north side and north shore students: Bernice Abrahamson, Winnetka; Rosalie Budinger, Wilmette; Leila Carlson, 1420 Elmdale avenue; Alfreda Chalberg, Evanston; Nettie Grimson, Highland Park; Ruth Hanson, Wilmette; Louise Henrekson, Wilmette; Olga Mangel, Winnetka.

Margaret Mangold, Evanston; Lorraine Smith, Evanston; Armida Stewart, Evanston; Paula Stoerk, Wilmette; Marguerite Sullivan, Highland Park; Jeanne Weiss, 181 Lake Shore drive; and Elizabeth Wheeler, 1522 Cullom avenue.

Bachelor of Education degrees were granted to: Anne De Blois, 2104 Sunnyside avenue; Bertha Farrington, 4516 Malden street; Florence Johnson, 2217 Burling street; Katherine Tufts, Winnetka; Margaret Sweeney, Highland Park, and Esther Christie, Kenilworth.

SEEK FACTS ON STREET WIDENING IN RAVENSWOOD

The Ravenswood Improvement association at its meeting Monday night appointed W. T. Klenze to make a prompt investigation of all the plans for the widening and paving of North Ashland avenue and to report to the membership at the next meeting. The decision to study the improvement plans has been precipitated by numerous reports that the street was not to be completely repaved and also that additional assessments were to be levied.

Everett W. Miles, president of the association, which is beginning its twenty-ninth year of activity in the Ravenswood district, declared that he had been reliably informed that the old asphalt pavement in the center of the street was not to be replaced, and that the new roadway on each side of the old pavement was to be filled in only. He said that with the heavy traffic that passes over the street the pavement will soon be in a poorer condition than at present.

Mr. Klenze was instructed to appoint a committee to assist him in obtaining the correct facts on the improvement.

The association also adopted a resolution demanding that a policeman be stationed at Montrose and Greenview avenues between the hours of 8 and 10 a. m. and 5 and 7 p. m. Automobile, motor coach, and street car traffic at this intersection makes the crossing extremely dangerous for children attending the Stockton Junior High school and the Ravenswood Elementary school, Benjamin F. Herbert, secretary of the organization, declared.

NEW MONUMENT OF ODD FELLOWS TO BE DEDICATED

The Rosehill Cemetery association, I. O. O. F., will dedicate a new monument at the Odd Fellows' plot in Rosehill cemetery this afternoon. A. L. Yantis, past grand master of the grand lodge of Illinois, will be the speaker and the Drum and Bugle corps of Square post No. 232 of the American Legion will furnish the music. The association was formed in 1865 to provide a burial place for transient Odd Fellows who die in Chicago. A monument dedicated in 1868 was destroyed several years ago and the new one, 46 feet high and of Vermont granite, will replace it.

Plan to Improve Street Lights on Lincoln Avenue

Street lights on the east side of Lincoln avenue between Fullerton parkway and Montana street will be revamped during the next few weeks, it was decided at the latest meeting of the Central Northtown Business Men's association, Harry Miller, secretary, announced last week.

Teams Pushing Campaign for New Members.

Frank W. Schauler has been reëlected president of the Northern Athletic club, it was announced at a banquet recently given for new members of the club at the Three Links Temple hall, 4740 North Western avenue. All other officers of the organization, which was formed a year ago, were also reëlected. The officers include: Vice president, Albert S. Dieden; treasurer, Elmer A. Sukow; secretary, Matt F. Kannen, and director, Dr. Hector G. Lareau. Members of the board of governors are: E. T. Behrens, Dr. L. A. English, H. G. Fleischhauer, R. R. Hauselein, Emil Heidkamp, Fred Hoff, C. A. Larson, Lorne D. Milne, J. S. Olson, J. P. O'Shaughnessy, H. L. Patterson, O. E. Schmidt, D. E. Stille and Dr. C. C. West.

Membership Grows to 400.

Under the direction of the officers the Northern Athletic club has grown in one year to a membership of more than 400 and plans are now being made for the erection of a thirteen story club house at the northwest corner of Lawrence avenue and North Oakley street.

The recent meeting was one of a series being held in connection with the second membership drive, which has been in progress for three weeks.

Dr. English's Team Leads.

The team captained by Dr. English is at present in the lead. His team, called the Athletics, announced twenty-nine new recruits at the meeting. The other teams in the running, which are named after major league baseball teams, and their captains, are: Red Sox, Carl Lueders, captain; Pirates, E. H. Rahn, captain; Cardinals, Matt Prost, captain; Giants, G. H. Cuny, captain; Tigers, Herman Kenaga, captain; White Sox, R. R. Burreson, captain; Reds, James Berney, captain; Senators, R. J. Hauselein, captain, and the Yanks, Dr. G. H. Bergbom, captain.

LITTLE FORT, OUT OF CRIB, NAMED SELF WAUKEGAN

Word Is Taken from Pottawatomie Language.

Young as we are as a nation, we are old enough to have forgotten our beginnings in many cases. Day after day we tread some historic spot, time after time we repeat the name of the particular town or locality where we live nor remember what events occured there, what heroic deeds or strange twists of fate caused it to be named this instead of that. In the next few weeks the Metropolitan section of The Tribune will present a series of sketches explaining the origin of many of the names now used without remembrance of why or wherefore.

Herewith is an explanation of how Waukegan was named, of particular interest at this time in connection with the pageant of Old Waukegan Days held yesterday.

Because a big village resented the slur on its size inherent in its name, Little Fort, an old trading post some thirty-five miles north of Chicago, became Waukegan.

That was 79 years ago, and the donor of the new name was the late Henry W. Blodgett, for many years a federal judge and a United States member of the committee on arbitration on the fur seals in the Bering sea in 1893.

Waukegan is the Pottawattomie Indian name for trading post, and, as all trading posts were forts, it was the translation of the old name without the objectionable diminutive.

Story Told in Autobiography.

In his autobiography, Blodgett, who was one of the early settlers of the village, tells how the question came up. The village was organized under the state in 1849, but there was some business to be done about a charter.

"I was intrusted with the drafting of the charter," he relates, "to get it put through the legislature. There had been a great deal of discussion among the people as to the name of the town. As the town grew the people were annoyed at the word 'Little.' They had got too big for that name.

"We had a couple of massmeetings of the citizens to consider and discuss a change of name. We found at these meetings that almost every fellow wanted us to adopt the name of the town from which he came."

So Blodgett and Elisha P. Ferry, later first mayor of Waukegan when it became a city and afterward governor of Washington, got together on the matter. Neither of them had a pet name of his own, and they wanted to find one that would be suitable to all.

Consulted John Kinzie.

Blodgett went down to Chicago to see John Kinzie, an authority on Indian dialects, and also made two visits to Solomon Juneau of Milwaukee. From both of them he learned that the closest literal translation in the Pottawatomie language would be Waukegance. The "ce," however, add the disliked "little" to the connotation and didn't help euphony, and it was therefore dropped.

So nothing more was said of the name and a paragraph was added to the charter admitting a "vote upon changing the name from Little Fort to Waukegan, thus leaving them no alternative except remaining Little Fort or taking Waukegan."

Waukegan grew speedily and in 1859 was large enough to become incorporated as a city. Yesterday townsfolk and citizens of Lake county joined in celebrating the 90th anniversary of the county, the 80th of the village, and the 70th of the city.

SHUN BUSINESS TO KEEP TREES ON RIDGE BLVD.

Another request for the rezoning of Ridge boulevard between Howard street and Devon avenue for business purposes was refused at a recent meeting of the Ridge Avenue park board in the field house of Indian Boundary park, Rockwell street and Lunt avenue. A permit had been requested for the construction of a driveway from Ridge boulevard to an automobile service station.

A committee of seven property owners presented a petition to the board signed by more than 50 per cent of the residents on the street asking that the permit be refused. The members of the committee were Frank Silberman, William Petrie, J. P. Sampson, E. L. Hickey, M. J. Smith, G. W. Dingman and N. A. Akerson.

F. C. Kellogg, president of the park board, said that if the district was rezoned for business purposes it would mean that the street must be widened and repaved for heavier traffic. This would necessitate cutting down the shade trees in the parkway, he pointed out. Other members of the park board are: R. R. Trimmer, William Klender, H. G. Sigmund, J. P. Smith, N. J. Zender and R. L. McCann.

H. P. Harrison to Head New Trier Parent-Teachers

McIntosh, Kenilworth; junior class chairman, Mrs. John P. Barden, Winnetka; and sophomore class president, Mrs. Fred A. Sager, Glencoe.

Choir Gives Entertainment.

A musical entertainment entitled "An Evening at the Broadcasting Station" was presented by the choir of St. Mark's church Friday evening in the church auditorium, Rockwell street and Glenlake avenue.

Preston Nolan Speaks.

"Kiwanis, an Adventure in Altruism," was the topic of an address given by Preston Nolan at the latest meeting of the North Shore Kiwanis club in the Chelsea hotel, 920 Wilson avenue.

Light Hearts of Childhood Delight Photographers

Pung's expectancy and Barbara Werner's unconcern this week wo for Adeline Sylvester, 6330 North Hermitage avenue, the first prize o $5 in The Tribune's spring picture contest for amateur photographers o the north side. Shirley Holt, 1328 Chestnut street, Waukegan, chose difficult spot for a small miss to use a frail spade, but she smiled s sweetly that she won the second prize of $3 for Miss India Harrah of th same address. R. A. Rymer, 6224 North Mozart street, won the thir prize of $2 with a picture of day-dreaming H. R. Rymer Jr., of the same address.

SNAP 'EM AT PLAY AND WIN CASH PRIZE IN TRIBUNE CONTEST

Try your hand at a playtime picture and win a prize in The Tribune's photo contest. Playtime for Sally Ann under the hose, or playtime for father with a fishing rod, Jane and John playing cowboy and Indian, or baby sister finding out that grass is ticklish for the first time—catch them with a camera and send them in.

The Tribune will pay $5 for the best playtime picture taken by an amateur.

It will pay $3 for the second best and $2 for the third. All pictures must be taken in the Chicago area.

Address entries to Photo Contest, Metropolitan section of The Tribune. The name and address of the photographer should be printed plainly on the back of the print as well as the names of all persons in the picture.

The contest is open only to amateurs and the editor will be final judge. Theme, treatment, and clearness of the print all will be taken into consideration. No pictures will be returned.

Optimists to Picnic.

The annual picnic of the Uptown Optimist club will be held July 14, it was announced at the latest meeting of the club in the Chelsea hotel, 920 Wilson avenue.

Lake View's Children

Mrs. Belle Chase Webb, a member of the class of 1880 at Lake View High school, will attend the alumni dinner and dance next Saturday evening.

Miss Charlotte Metz, who received her diploma nearly fifty years later than Mrs. Webb, is chairman of the committee on decorations.

LAKE VIEW HIGH ALUMNI TO HOLD THIRTIETH DINNER

Star of 1929 Class to Receive Plaque.

The thirtieth anniversary of the formation of the Lake View High School Alumni association will be celebrated with a dinner and dance next Saturday evening in the auditorium of the school, Ashland and Irving Park boulevard. Representatives of nearly every class from Mrs. Belle Chase Webb, a graduate of the first class from Lake View High school in 1880, up to members of the 1929 class are expected to attend the anniversary dinner.

The graduates of the present class will be special guests. Joseph Chesire is chairman of the committee in charge of arrangements for the dinner and dance and Joseph Murphy of the class of 1916, president of the association, will be toastmaster. Miss Fourtha Post is in charge of reservations, Miss Charlotte Metz is decorations chairman and Miss Helen Swanson is handing the publicity.

Plaque to Be Awarded.

During the evening the association will award the bronze scholarship plaque to the June graduate with the highest scholastic standing in his class. New officers of the association who will be elected at a meeting Tuesday evening at the home of Oscar W. Brecher, 516 Briar place, will be announced at the banquet. Mr. Brecher, a member of the class of 1889 and second president of the association, is one of the most active members of the organization.

Lake View High school counts many prominent persons among its alumni, including Janet Gaynor, film star; Wendell Hall, radio artist and announcer; Fritz Lieber, Shakespearean actor; Ruth Stonehouse, actress; Genevieve Forbes Herrick, former writer for THE TRIBUNE; Eugene Dressler, well known singer and a past president of the association; and Homer Vanderblue, professor of economics at Harvard university for many years.

Officers of Association.

In addition to Mr. Murphy, other officers of the association are: First vice president, Wilfrid Pilgrim; second vice president, Miss Dorothy Pinckney; treasurer, Robert Lindahl; corresponding secretaries, Miss Florence Morrison and Miss Gladys Townsley, and registrar, Mrs. M. M. Spensley. Members of the board of directors are Miss Henrietta Wagner, Miss Helen Hansen, Paul Gruschow, Russell Flint, Donald La Motte, Miss Lydia Kraemer, Oliver Starke, Miss Lois Coyne, E. J. Lund, Eugene Claussen, Herbert Mueller, and Miss Ruth Eisenman.

Kiwanis Song Composers Give Program for Club

"Composers Day" was celebrated at the meeting of the Lake View Kiwanis club, Wednesday, in the Webster hotel, 2150 Lincoln Park West. Many new club songs were written by the members and submitted to the entire membership, which voted on the merits of the selections, picking the best three. A program was also given by the Lake View orchestra to complete the musical entertainment.

Among the guests who have been invited to attend the outing are: Senator Charles S. Deneen of Illinois; Col. Nobel B. Judah, retiring ambassador to Cuba; United States Marshal H. C. W. Laubenheimer, State's Attorney John A. Swanson, Ald. E. I. Frankhauser [49th], Ald. John A. Massen [48th], United States District Attorney George E. Q. Johnson, Edward R. Litsinger, Roy Juul, and James Kearns.

Building of Parking Lot in Lincoln Park Started

Construction of the new 300 car parking lot in the Lincoln park extension, near Waveland avenue, has been started, John R. Basiger, director of public relations in the Lincoln park district, announced yesterday. The parking area is being built of concrete and is the first of eight similar parking lots to be built in the extension.

Kesser Maariv Dance.

The Young People's auxiliary of Kesser Maariv will give its final dance of the season on June 29 at the Rogers Park hotel, Sheridan road and Pratt boulevard, Miss Bee Dubin, chairman of the entertainment committee, announced last week. George E. Sankstone is president of the auxiliary.

Israel Sisterhood Party.

The Congregation Israel sisterhood will hold a luncheon for its outgoing officers next Wednesday. Mrs. R. Hoefeld, 1131 Laurel avenue, Winnetka, is in charge of reservations.

OLD ST. PAUL'S LORE RUNS BACK TO VILLAGE ERA

Born of Demand for Sermons in German.

Paul's is burning!" was a phrase that swept over the city. But another beautiful church was built on the site.

In 1885 the Rev. Mr. Hauptmann closed his pastorate of thirty-five faithful years, and the Rev. R. A. John was called.

Pastor John proved to be not only a strong pulpit orator but the possessor of remarkable literary and administrative ability. He attracted many people to the services and united them for the purpose of carrying out his building plans, thereby giving the congregation what many have termed one of the most beautiful ecclesiastical structures in the city. During his ministry he officiated at 8,420 baptisms, 5,621 wedding ceremonies and conducted the burial rites for 8,988 weary pilgrims in life's travelings.

Early settlers were moving away from the enlarging business district. Hundreds had moved into the Lincoln park sections and Lake View. After a careful search, building lots were obtained in 1897 at Orchard and Kemper place and the following year the present fine structure was built. Arthur Woltersdorf was the architect.

Present Pastor Since 1926.

After fourteen years of joint service, or thirty-nine years of continuous service, Pastor John accepted the position as pastor emeritus from his congregation. The Rev. Jacob Pister, who had been associate pastor for fifteen years, was installed as pastor in 1926 and since then has directed the activities of the church and its various organizations.

The neighborhood of St. Paul's has undergone many changes in the last ten years. Today its representatives live in all sections of the city from Park Ridge to South Chicago. Until the present time it has not been a neighborhood church but a metropolitan church drawing from all parts of the city. In keeping with the neighborhood church idea, plans are being formulated for the building of a community house on ground owned by the church on Fullerton parkway.

The names of members throughout the years have been the names of persons prominent in the leadership of Chicago through its various periods. Among the members today are the families of W. A. Wieboldt, Carl Buehler, Arthur C. Lueder, Judge Herbert G. Immenhausen, the Wielands, Louis J. Meahl, Max L. Teich, Carl C. Roessler, Carl and Emil Eitel, Ludwig Plate, and John C. Philp.

Otto F. Closius Heads Council.

The church council is composed of Otto F. Closius, president; Herbert G. Immenhausen, vice president; Joseph G. Weiskopf, secretary; Francis F. Buchholz, financial secretary; John Benfield, assistant financial secretary; August W. Klinke, treasurer; Dr. George Apfelbach, chairman of the department of music; Louis G. Thoene, chairman of the committee on grievances; Charles Christmann, chairman of the committee on finance; Cornelius Jensen, chairman of the committee on building; Charles W. Kicherer, chairman of the committee on religious education; Otto F. Niethammer, chairman of committee to assist pastor.

The association of ushers includes Arthur A. Anderson, William Belzer, George W. Dye, Adolph Eiserer, Edward Ernst, William Flemming, Carl Fliessbach, Dr. Albert Jourdan, Roland G. Lueder, Louis H. Meahl, Harold F. Pfister, Dr. Waldo Poehner, Frank J. Ruck, Adolf Sauter, Walter H. Schubel, Leo Schuessler, Eric Stenbeck, Erhard Thiel, Arthur Wieth, Edward W. White, and Alfred W. Yentsch.

Pastor Pister is the son of the late Dr. Jacob Pister, former general president of the synod. He came to Chicago from the pastorate of the Evangelical church of Columbus, O., the largest church of the denomination in that state.

WHO SAID IT? When, Where and Why

Following are the answers to quotations previously published:

Quotation—I should worry.

Answer—These words are attributed to former President William Howard Taft, who is supposed to have said them when his administration was criticized by former President Theodore Roosevelt, who had been Mr. Taft's personal and political friend. "I should worry" afterward became a favorite slang expression and is in general use today.—James Conwell, 6202 Lakewood avenue, Chicago.

Quotation—One more such victory and we shall be ruined.

Answer—Pyrrhus (318-272 B. C.), king of the little country of Epirus, northwest of Greece, was a kinsman of the family of Alexander the Great and was ambitious to imitate the great general's career. Tarentum, a Greek city in lower Italy, at war with Rome, invited him to fight their battles and he accepted with alacrity. Pyrrhus sailed for Tarentum in 280 B. C. with about 25,000 soldiers and a number of elephants. In the spring of that year the Greek and Roman armies met at Heraclea and Pyrrhus won the victory, chiefly with his cavalry and the elephants, which caused confusion in the Roman ranks.

The war was renewed in the spring of 279, when Pyrrhus invaled Apulia. At Asculum the king of Epirus, supported by the Tarentines, Samnites, Lucanians, and Bruttians, met the allied forces of Rome, Latium, and Etruria. The battle lasted two days, but Pyrrhus finally won. Congratulated on his triumph, he looked over the field where 3,500 of his men lay dead, and replied: "Another such victory and we are undone."

From this incident has come our expression "Pyrrhic victory," meaning a victory won at too great price. —Judson L. Rose, 1730 West Adams street, Chicago.

NOTE—Authorities differ as to what Pyrrhus actually said, whether it was "We are undone," "We shall be ruined," "I am lost," or "I shall have to return alone to Epirus"; but the meaning is the same.

Quotation—Reduce taxation before taxation reduces us.

Answer—This was said by Horatio Seymour, a civil war governor of New York, in 1868, when he was running for President on the Democratic ticket against Gen. U. S. Grant. The words were spoken during one of Seymour's speeches in New York.—Chester Schleff, P. O. Box 131, Gary, Ind.

INDIANS INVITED TO DEDICATION OF TOTEM POLE

Vice President Curtis, Educators Bidden.

The "last of the Mohicans" will become the first of the Haida Indians Thursday afternoon when Clifton Hall, a descendant of the Mohican tribe, leads his classmates of Alcott school in the pageant dedicating the Alaskan Indian totem pole, Kwa Ma Rolas. The ceremony will take place at the large pole, which was erected last week on a site by the outer drive in Lincoln park near the bird sanctuary.

Clifton Hall portrays the "Steel-Headed Man" of the Kwa Ma Rolas, the tribe whose family history the totem pole tells. His sister, Violet, will represent a dancing girl of the ancient Haida tribe. Children of the upper grades at Alcott school will portray leading characters in the pageant representing figures carved upon the forty foot totem pole, a recent gift to the park by J. L. Kraft.

Vice President Curtis Invited.

Vice President Curtis, a descendant of the Kaws, is included among the representatives of prominent tribes who have been invited to smoke the pipe of peace at the Indian ceremony.

Marion Gridley, "Little Moonbeam," an adopted princess of the Omaha tribe and secretary of the Indian council in Chicago, will be present in her elaborate ceremonial costume of white doeskin to do honor to the North Alaskan Indian tribe.

Representatives of the Mohicans, Pottawatomies, the Fox, the Sioux, and delegates from the Indian reservations of surrounding states have been invited to Thursday's ceremonies, to join with the city and state officers in the "pot latch."

Educators and Officials Invited.

Among the prominent guests who have been invited to the Indian festival are: H. Wallace Caldwell, president of the board of education; William J. Bogan, superintendent of schools; Dr. William Duncan Strong of the Field museum; Dr. Fay Cooper Cole, Dr. Frederic Woodward, acting president of the University of Chicago; Dr. Walter Dill Scott, president of Northwestern university; archaeologists from the state universities of Illinois, Wisconsin, Michigan, Indiana, Missouri, Ohio and Iowa; Ray Lyman Wilbur, secretary of the interior; Miss Jane Addams, Representative Ruth Hanna McCormick of Illinois, Commissioner of Police William S. Russell, Cardinal Mundelein, the Rev. John Timothy Stone, Bishop Charles P. Anderson, Dr. Louis L. Mann, Frank F. Winans, Col. Carl Gray, Gov. L. L. Emmerson, and Mayor William Hale Thompson.

Hold Hearing Friday on Three North Side Projects

A public hearing on three north side improvements will be conducted by the board of local improvements at the city hall next Friday morning. The board desires to pave Marcey street between Clay and Willow streets and Austin avenue between Michigan avenue and North Water street. Approval of property owners will be sought by the board for laying sidewalks along Peterson road between Ravenswood avenue and the north branch of the Chicago river.

St. Jerome's School Gives Diplomas to 45 Seniors

Mount Holyoke Grad

MISS ALICE B. ALLEN.

Miss Alice B. Allen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Allen of 241 Waldron drive, Glencoe, was graduated last Tuesday from Mount Holyoke college, South Hadley, Mass. Miss Allen specialized in geology and music, was captain of the sophomore volley ball team, and head of the sport in her senior year, and active in many undergraduate affairs, including community government, the junior show, senior prom, and vocational committee.

EVANSTON GIRL GETS MASS. TECH DEGREE, HONORS

Graduate of a select girls' college, conductor at one time of a dude ranch, and now one of the few girls to receive a degree at Massachusetts Institude of Technology, Miss Katherine Woodsley Carman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Carman, 933 Michigan avenue, Evanston, received her degree of bachelor of science in geology and geological engineering with honors last Tuesday at the Boston school.

Miss Carman attended Wellesley after her graduation from Evanston Township High school in 1923 and the summer after she received the degree of bachelor of arts managed a dude ranch in Colorado. It is not known whether the geological conformations of the Rockies interested her in the ranch or the ranch in the Rockies and rocks.

But her plans are now to go on working toward a doctorate in micro-paleontology and advanced geology at M. I. T. She has been doing research work with Dr. Joseph A. Cushman for a volume to be published by them in this country and in Europe.

300 STUDENTS TO ATTEND CATHOLIC CONVENTION HERE

Discuss Religion as a Social Force.

More than 300 delegates from Catholic colleges and high schools in the United States and Canada will arrive in the city this morning to attend the national student spiritual leadership convention, which convenes this afternoon for a three day meeting at Loyola university. The conference is being held under the auspices of the United Sodalities of the United States.

According to Bertram J. Steggert, registrar of the university, the meeting is the first national religious convention for men students held under Catholic auspices. The purpose of the conference is to consider ways and means of making religion a dynamic force in the lives and social relationships of the students, he said.

Keating to Welcome Delegates.

John E. Keating, a member of this year's graduating class and one of the university debaters on the team which recently completed a 3,000 mile tour of eastern universities and colleges, will give the address of welcome. Mr. Keating is prefect of the Sodality of Loyola university.

Other talks will be given by William Conley, also a member of the university debating team, and Charles E. Stinning, president of the Student association. Various subjects will be introduced by the leaders and then will be given over to open discussion by the delegates.

Discuss Social Problems.

Among the subjects for discussion are: Social phases of religion, education, leisure and recreation and social obligations.

Among the delegates are students from schools and colleges in Montreal, New Orleans, San Francisco, Seattle, New York, and Boston. The sessions will be held in the gymnasium and auditorium.

Mothers' Club of Dewey School Elects Officers

New officers for the Dewey School Mothers' club of Evanston are: President, Mrs. Earl D. Rogge, 1524 Grove street; first vice president, Mrs. Frederick C. Shafer; second vice president, Mrs. J. Warren Thompson; recording secretary, Mrs. P. L. Harned; corresponding secretary, Mrs. H. Dayton Merrill; treasurer, Mrs. George Walsh Jr.

Frank C. Doyle Selected to Manage Chase Park

Frank C. Doyle has been selected manager of Chase park, Leland and Ashland avenues, the commissioners of Lincoln park announce. Mr. Doyle has been a resident of the district for many years, and was selected because of his intimate knowledge of the neighborhood, and his ability as an athletic director, the commissioners state. He succeeds Otto Dodge. Mr. Doyle is planning many athletic events and other entertainment for the children, women and business men of the district and urges all residents of the community to make use of the park facilities which include a gymnasium, auditorium, horse shoe and tennis courts, and running track.

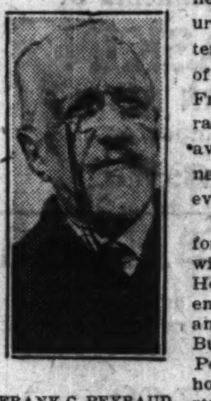
MACDOWELL SOCIETY SPONSORS BENEFIT WOODLAND FESTIVAL

The North Shore MacDowell society is sponsoring a woodland fête to be held in the natural amphitheater at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Peyraud, 1230 Judson avenue, Ravinia, next Tuesday evening.



FRANK C. PEYRAUD. [P. & A. Photo.]

The program for the evening will include Hans Hess, cellist; Clarence Eidam, piano, and Estrid Buck, mezzo. Mr. Peyraud, whose home is also a studio for himself and his wife, will draw an original woodland sketch for the assemblage.

Proceeds from the entertainment will go to MacDowell Peterboro colony in the New Hampshire woods, which is sponsored as a study center and retreat for artists, musicians, poets, and sculptors. Mrs. Dwight C. Orcutt, 185 Green Bay road, Hubbard Woods, is in charge of reservations.

BUSINESS MEN OF MONTROSE WILL DISCUSS TAXES

Members of the Montrose District Business association will meet at 4332 North Kedzie avenue on Wednesday to hear Harry S. Cutmore speak on "Taxation and Revaluation." Others scheduled to talk are Ald. Joseph C. Ross [40th], who will speak on policies he will endorse during his term of office, former Ald. Chris Jensen [40th] and Harry Moran, assistant to Mr. Cutmore. The public is invited to attend.

The association, which was formed about three years ago, now has approximately 300 members. It serves the community bounded by Crawford avenue on the west, by Berteau avenue on the south, by the river on the east, and by Wilson avenue on the north. Officers are: President, B. A. Rooney; vice president, James Byrne; secretary, A. W. Ormsby, and treasurer, P. H. Kramer.

EVANSTON WAR MEMORIAL TO BE READY JULY 4

Dedication Scheduled for Independence Day

Dedication of the flag staff war memorial, the gift of the Fort Dearborn chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution to Evanston, first scheduled for Memorial day, will take place on the Fourth of July according to present plans.

MRS. WILBUR HELM. [Moffett Photo.]

The delay was caused in casting of the model made by Stephen Beames, Evanston sculptor, which has taken longer than was expected. Even now the staff will be ready only shortly before the time of dedication.

Mrs. Frank L. Richardston, Mrs. Wilbur Helm and Mrs. Warren Williams are co-chairman of the Fort Dearborn chapter's war memboral committee and Mrs. Gair Tourtellot is the new regent.

Bears Name of War Dead.

The memorial takes the form of an ornamental flag pole base with a frieze of the soldiers of various wars carved out around the drum. Names of Evanston soldiers who have died in service will be inscribed on the shaft. They are:

Civil war—Alfred L. Bailey, George Gamble, Walter T. Kennicott, Capt. Alphonso C. Linn, Eugene A. Lyford, Henry G. Meacham, William Pratt, James Roseman, Capt. Charles H. Shepley, William E. Smith, Edgar E. Wead.

Spanish-American war—Frederick O. Brown, William C. Bryant, Frank W. Foster, Robert B. Gushwa.

World war—Ernest Adams, Merrill Blanchard, Oscar Bloomquist, Oliver B. Cunningham, Paul B. Dale, Russell J. Dills, Max Doris Durowicz, William Eastman Jr., Alvin Fingal, Hugh Fulton, Thomas H. Garnett, Wayman Guinn, John B. Guthrie, Warren C. Hauser, Louis C. Heppner, Edward Hines Jr., Frank J. Hoeynck, William Johnson, Thomas King.

Paul K. Le Baron, Andrew Letzer, Lother B. Long, Albert E. Lowe, Hugh A. McKenna, Edgar W. Newman, Frank B. Parkhurst, Morton Peterson, William S. Petit, Carl O. Rosequist, John A. Schaefer, Frank L. Seery, Enoch M. Severin, Jouett F. Singleton, Jacob Slaate, Arvid Sternquist, Lawrence Tower, Thomas B. Van Every, Horace E. Wood.

Includes Names of Two Nurses.

The names of two nurses who died in action, Miss Helen Wood and Miss Frances Poole, will be inscribed on the shaft also.

The memorial will be placed in Patriots' park, formerly Bell park, at the foot of Sheridan road and Davis street. The name of the park was changed a month ago by the city council on the petition of the D. A. R. chapter.

EPISCOPAL LAYMEN NAME JOHN D. ALLEN PRESIDENT OF CLUB

Announcement is made of the election of John D. Allen of Wilmette as president of the Church Club of Chicago, Episcopal laymen's organization. The club is composed largely of prominent business men of the city and suburbs. Mr. Allen, who is vice president of Brink's Express, has served as vice president of the club during the last year.

JOHN D. ALLEN. [Moffett Photo.]

The Church club promotes social activities among Episcopal laymen of the city and assists Bishop Charles P. Anderson in church affairs. Each year during Lent it sponsors noonday services at the Garrick theater at which nationally known leaders speak. The club also publishes the Diocese, official magazine of the Episcopal church in Chicago.

Mr. Allen is a vestryman of the Church of the Holy Comforter, Kenilworth.

BELLEAU WOOD TO BE REFOUGHT BY MARINE VETS

Anniversary Dinner to Be Held Tomorrow.

Marines of the Chicago area will be guests tomorrow night of Marine post, No. 273, of the American Legion, at a dinner in commemoration of June 17, 1918, which date found the marine units engaged in holding and consolidating Belleau wood against heavy attacks of the Germans after seventeen days of struggle in wresting it from the enemy. The Marine post banquet will be held in the club rooms at the Auditorium hotel at 6:30 o'clock. The meeting and entertainment will follow about 8 o'clock.

Thomas T. McEvoy is commander of Marine post; Edward P. Dowling, senior vice commander; Emil L. Schraps, junior vice commander; Arthur V. Gislander, sergeant-at-arms; William A. Scheurer, finance officer; Richard J. Stone, adjutant. Past commanders are Robert F. Burns, C. Wayland Brooks, and Roy W. Chase.

The ninth district, American Legion, will hold its June meeting under the auspices of Albany Park post, No. 124, on Thursday evening. The meeting will be in the hall, formerly called the Hollywood barn. The address is 4825 North Kedzie avenue.

Brig. Gen. Abel Davis will be the speaker at a meeting of Advertising Men's post, No. 38, to be held in Hotel Sherman tomorrow noon. His message will be on "Americanism."

Peoples Gas post, No. 336, is having its semi-annual roundup on June 18, at 8 p. m., in the Peoples Gas building. More than 100 members are cooperating to make it truly a roundup of old and new members. Chairman Ralph J. Hoberg has secured good entertainment, refreshments will be served and several attendance prizes will be given. Delegates to the department convention will be elected.

"Is there no balm in Gilead?" Is there no physician there?" Fort Dearborn post, No. 268, after reviewing the success of its spring activities, answers "yes." There was that childrens' party at which seventy-five youngsters, including thirty-one handicapped children from Christopher school, played the harmonica. There was the happiness of the seventy Boy Scouts at their party. There was the trip to Normal last Sunday, when W. C. Wakefield, commander of the post, and Mrs. Wakefield, president of the auxiliary, with members of both organizations, saught the smiles of happy boys and girls. Dearborn post auxiliary, in keeping with Flag day, has purchased a beautiful "Old Glory," and will have it dedicated at its first meeting with Mrs. George Kellogg, national defense chairman, officiating.

Chicago Labor post, No. 745, will hold its next meeting at its clubhouse, 4856 Jackson boulevard, at 8:30 o'clock tomorrow night, according to announcement from Commander James Murphy.

The new regime will take over command of Voiture 220 of the Forty and Eight, Friday evening at the Hotel La Salle when the newly elected officials of the local voiture are formally inducted into office as follows:

C. E. Taylor, of Chicago Stock Yards post, No. 333, chef de gare.

George Sugarman of Rogers Park post, No. 208; A. L. Brodie of James G. Brophy post, No. 195; Robert E. Casey of Chicago Police post, No. 207, and Lisle Hart of North Shore post, No. 21, chefs de train.

John R. Caldow of Harold A. Taylor post, No. 47, commissaire intendant.

C. J. Hughes, of Chicago Loop post, No. 144, correspondent.

Lane Presents Huge Athletic Show Tuesday

More than 6,000 boys will assemble at Soldiers' field Tuesday afternoon to participate in the Lane Technical High school biennial field day. The spectacle, which is the largest athletic demonstration of its kind given by students in the Chicago schools, will be even greater than the 1927 festival, Max Strass, director of physical education at Lane Tech, said yesterday, and thousands of students and other spectators are expected to witness the mass drills and track events.

Students of the north side high school have been drilling for weeks in preparation for the field day and during the last two weeks gymnasium classes have been combined for exercises at Seward park, Elm and Sedgwick streets. Boys of the several branches of Lane Tech, including Sheldon, Franklin, and Stanley schools, have joined with the several thousand students in the main building in an effort to make the field day one of the greatest events presented by students.

Track Teams to Compete.

In addition to the drills which the Lane students will give, the program will also include the finals of the elementary and junior high schools' track competition. Members of the physical education staff who compose the training staff assisting Mr. Strass are: R. G. Umbright, C. R. Barnickol, P. S. Moore, C. L. Siebert, O. F. Kahle, A. O. Diete, G. S. Larrance, R. E. Pegel, Dr. E. B. Koch, Dr. Theodore Shopin, Joseph Paupa, and K. W. Abell.

The program of twenty events will start at 1:30 o'clock with the salute to the colors, followed by the review of all participating junior and elementary school athletes. The various drills by the Lane students, including wand and club drills, buck vaulting, human pyramids and free exercises, will alternate with the track events. The mass drill in which all of the 6,000 students will take part will be held at 3:45 o'clock. Mr. Strass will direct this drill, the sixteenth event of the afternoon's program.

Mass singing and antics by a group of clowns will provide a break in the athletic schedule. Addresses will be made by H. Wallace Caldwell, president of the board of education, and William J. Bogan, superintendent of schools. The final event will be a military parade and review under the direction of Lieut. Col. E. S. Pearsall and Sgt. W. W. Brewer. The Lane Technical High school band will be assisted in providing music for the drills by the Biesse band, under the direction of Fred Biesse.

Council Manages Business.

The business end of the field day has been handled by the student council of Lane Tech, of which Wilfred Davies is president. Sam Sourika is vice president of the governing body, Jack Petruda is secretary, and Mr. Strass, Grant Beebe, principal, L. J. Schloerb compose the faculty advisory board.

Fifty judges have been appointed to review the contests. Honorary judges include Edwin C. Delaporte, director of physical education in the Chicago public schools; E. L. Wheeler, director of athletics in the Lincoln park district; Walter Wright, superintendent of municipal playgrounds; V. K. Brown, superintendent of recreation in the south parks district, and August Zapp, the first physical education director at the Lane Technical High school.

Among the guests who have been invited to witness the demonstration are: Mayor William Hale Thompson, members of the board of education, the south park commissioners, principals of all Chicago high schools and members of the city council committee on schools.

Carnival in Rogers Park Yields $2,000 for Charity

More than $2,000, the proceeds of the carnival sponsored by the Rogers Park Lions' club, will be used in continuing the club's work among the blind and in other branches of charitable activities, Edward Schmidt, secretary of the club, said yesterday.

SUMMER TO BE BEST IN RADIO, EXPERT CLAIMS

High Power Conquers Old Bugaboo—Static.

CINCINNATI, O.—Summer is faced this year by radio manufacturers and broadcasters with more optimism than ever before in the history of the industry, according to Powel Crosley, radio expert. Summer radio as a separate entity is no more.

That "summer radio," as a separate and fearful factor in the radio industry is no more, is due more, perhaps, to the attitude of the radio listeners rather than to that of the manufacturers and broadcasters.

"Previous to last summer it was the custom of manufacturers to shut down their plants following the Christmas rush and not to begin operations again until time to prepare for the fall business," Mr. Crosley said. "With the coming of hot weather broadcasters revised their programs and cut expensive features to the bone. They made little or no effort to retain the better commercial accounts and thus materially contributed to the slump.

Fans Play Part.

"On the other hand, owners of radio receivers continued to use them through the summer months and in so doing found that better apparatus brought about better summer reception. As improved receivers were brought out each fall and the purchasers continued to use them during the following summer, it was noticed that reception was better. Listeners also brought about increases in power and thus struck a hard blow to summer static. Always quick to realize the advantages to them of a few extra watts in a station's power, they sent letters of praise to the broadcasters who added this power and neglected those who did not. As a result the more progressive of the broadcasters added even more power, and static became less disturbing.

Many New Listeners.

"Last summer was the most successful in radio history, both from a business and from a broadcasting angle. Some say that the season had a false stimulus due to the national political conventions and campaign and that business and broadcasting will fall off in 1929. This is not true, the stimulus given radio by the exceptional features of last summer will continue. These features brought hundreds, yea, thousands of new listeners into the radio field and taught them that summer radio is just as interesting as winter radio. Accordingly, these new converts will be at the loud speaker this summer listening to the good musical and other features just as they sat and listened to the politicians in 1932."

GOVERNMENT TO HANDLE PROGRAM IN AUSTRALIA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SYDNEY, New South Wales, June 15.—A new radio broadcasting scheme provides for the commonwealth government assuming control throughout Australia. Companies desiring to broadcast were invited to tender programs. The government accepted today the tender of the Fuller Vaudeville company, which has an extensive circuit in the capital cities but his hitherto not engaged in broadcasting. Tenders rejected included companies operating pioneer services, 2-FC of Sydney and 3-LO of Melbourne.

The government will receive all license fees, paying the agreed price for programs, and royalties fees. The technical operation of the stations will be by the Amalgamated Wireless company.

Inside the Loud Speaker

BY QUIN RYAN.

The Dempsey-Firpo fight took place on Friday evening, Sept. 14, 1923. Although it lasted only one round and fifty-seven seconds, it was one of the most thrilling of Dempsey's encounters. It was the first time that the mauler was knocked from his feet in the ring. We undertake to present it in radio broadcast lingo this morning.

Firpo was the Argentinian giant who came to America obsessed with the idea of capturing the heavyweight boxing crown. A series of preliminary fights demonstrated his ability as a worthy foe, and Tex Rickard matched him with the champion.

Now, let the announcer tell you the story.

ANNOUNCER—Good evening, ladies and gentlemen. This is W-G-N broadcasting direct from the Polo grounds in New York City.

We're down here next to the ring that Tex Rickard has set up near what corresponds to second base when the Giants are at home playing baseball in this big playground. It's after 10 o'clock here in New York and only the ring with its battery of Kleig lights playing over it, is illuminated. Ninety thousand fight fans are accommodated here in the semi-darkness, and they've been screaming and shouting for hours as one preliminary fight after another went its weary way.

Now the jam in the ring is subsiding, and Announcer Joe Humphries, the man with the megaphone voice, is waving his hat for silence. He's introducing Firpo, the "Wild Bull of the Pampas," Joe calls him, and the crowd shouts—listen to them! Now, Humphries is waving Jack Dempsey, the champion, to his feet, and the crowd goes mad once more. In a few moments the big fight will be under way. It's just a minute or two after 10 o'clock here in New York City.

Watch the ring, now—that's where all the excitement. The photographer and the camp followers are clearing out—only Firpo and Lavelle and Vega, his Argentinian friends, remain in one corner and Dempsey and Jack Kearns and Barney Dempsey are in the champion's angle of the arena. Johnny Gallagher, the referee, is summoning the men to the center of the ring for their instructions. It's to be fifteen rounds to a judges' decision, for a purse of $500,000 at least. The heavyweight boxing championship of the world is at stake. Johnny is motioning with his hands as he talks. Now, they're going back to their corners—in Dempsey's corner Kearns is rubbing the champion's chest and together they are staring across the ring at Firpo, whose might right hand is now incased in the red leather of a boxing glove.

It will be just a few moments more now. There's the whistle! That means seconds out of the ring. Kearns is outside the ropes, and across the ring Lavelle and Vega are giving Firpo last minute advice in Spanish. Now, they're out!

[Gong.]

There's the bell! Round one!

Both men are out of their seats and in the center of the ring, and Dempsey is letting go with both hands—rights to the heart and lefts to the head. Firpo is swinging his arms like a pair of flails. This is not a boxing match—it's a fight! Zowie! Dempsey crashed Luis that time with a stiff left to the mouth! Now Firpo is swinging that great right hand, but Dempsey is dodging and ducking and weaving in under it and using his guard. It's sock and get socked all the way through! Dempsey is lathering Firpo with right handers to the heart. And there's a sock on the chin, and Firpo is down! The Argentinian is on the mat! Johnny Gallagher jumps in and his arm swings down once, twice, but Firpo is up and after Dempsey like a mad bull, like the Wild Bull of the Pampas that he is, his two arms waving before him like the sails on a windmill.

Dempsey drives home another punch to the heart, but Firpo is coming right back for more. O! Look out for that right hand, Jack! Luis just swung one from his back that nearly grazed Dempsey's chin—the champ got out of the way just in time. Now they're in a clinch, but that won't last long. Owww! Firpo crashed through Jack's defense with a right hander to the heart. Jack is scowling! It hurt! Now Dempsey is tearing in once more, the same course; rights to the body and that Dempsey left hook to the head!

Firpo is banging away with that right hand. He's fighting his own kind of a fight — slug and get slugged. He drives a right hander to Dempsey's head—Oww! There's Dempsey's left, a hook from the elbow, and Firpo is crumpling up again—he's down! Firpo is down for the second time in this mad first round! Gallagher is counting off the seconds—from Firpo's corner come mad shouts in Spanish for him to wait for the count of nine, bu the Mad Bull just shakes himself and rises to his feet. Once again the sluggish brain gets that right arm set for a killing blow, and he rushes after Dempsey—the bristling black hair is wet and sweaty now, but still he keeps on—he's not hurt! Ow! He drives that right against Dempsey's head, but the champion ducks and sends home a right to the Bull's heart—Luis felt that one! His mouth is twisted! Whuup! Dempsey's left again—that hook!—to the jaw! Firpo's on the mat again! Dempsey has knocked Firpo down again.

But not for long! The challenger is starting to his feet—Johnny Gallagher hasn't counted off three seconds and Firpo is starting to his feet. He's mad! He's rushing after Dempsey, beating the air. Heaven help Jack if he gets in the way of those arms! He's got him! Dempsey is down! Firpo put that right over. A smash at the base of the brain! Jack Dempsey is on the mat! For the first time in his championship career, he's been knocked down. But he's conscious! He's waiting for the count. Gallagher is tolling off the seconds. Firpo has retired to one side of the ring, waiting for the champion to get up. The crowd has gone mad! Four . . . Five . . . Six . . . Dempsey is getting up, he's getting to his feet. He's been regaining his strength by that rest on the mat. Now he's on his feet, and Firpo steps out again. Jack is crouching down, waiting for the big Argentinian! There's a right! Dempsey shoots a right to the heart! And now—Oww! That left again! FIRPO IS DOWN! Dempsey has knocked Firpo down again! The Argentinian is on the mat! He's not bounding up like a rubber ball this time—he's waiting for the count—one, two, three, four, five, six, seven, eight, nine. He's on his feet! Now he's gritting his teeth and charging forward again! All he knows is to charge! The arms are waving again, and—Gee! Dempsey felt that one! Firpo shook the champion to his toes with that right hander to the head. Jack is socking right back, but backing away—Firpo is bearing down on the champion—now he's got Jack over against the ropes. That right hand is beating down like a club—punch, punch, punch, and Dempsey drives back, and Whuup!

Ow! Firpo has knocked Dempsey out of the ring! A right hand to the head! He's landed in the laps of the newspaper men! Hear that din! Johnny Gallagher is so surprised that he hasn't started to count! Now Dempsey is crawling back into the ring. Clambering over the heads of the newspaper men. He's back in the ring, still on the mat, he's going to take the count. Three, says Referee Gallagher, four . . . five . . . six . . . seven—Dempsey is getting up. . . . Jack is groggy—as Firpo comes forward, he grabs those big arms and he's holding—Jack Dempsey is holding on! Now they're breaking and Dempsey is backing away, his arms dropping at his side—and Firpo is driving home that great right hand! Jack Kearns is yelling at Dempsey to bring up his guard. Now they're clinching! Away again, and they're slugging! Dempsey has gone into a clinch. Firpo has him groggy! It may be all over! Dempsey is still holding on.

[Gong!] There's the bell. That's the end of round one! Whew! What a scrap! Science has been tossed to the winds—they're just two cavemen in their fighting. We've been told all about that right hand of Firpo's—and it certainly is a sledge hammer. Listen to that mob. Ninety thousand of them on their feet and cheering madly. There's the whistle. The fighters sit there, waiting for round two.

[Gong!]. There's the bell. Round two. Dempsey is out of his corner in a flash. That one minute rest has been enough, Dempsey is himself again! He's crouching, waiting for the first of those rights that Firpo deals out— the only punch that he carries—Oww! Dempsey has pushed the right away, and he's landing a bunch of lefts and rights to the body and head. Dempsey is still the champion by a long shot! Firpo is swinging his arms, but Dempsey is getting in under them with murderous rights to the stomach, that are making Luis twitch with agony. Ohhh! Dempsey landed a pair of lefts to the head! Luis managed to sneak over that right hand, but it's barely touched Dempsey's head—the champ is dodging and ducking and weaving and twisting about as only he knows how! Whuup! There's another left to Firpo's mouth! Blood is dribbling down the Argentinian's unshaven chin! And they continue to slug! Ow! Dempsey drove two lefts into Firpo's body.

The challenger is down. Firpo is on the mat again! Those lefts seemed to bury themselves in his vitals. Now he's twisting there on the mat—he's coming up again—bleeding and groggy—yes! He's groggy! Now he's on his feet, and Dempsey is fighting his kind of fight. They're slugging each other with everything they've got. Kearns is yelling to Jack to keep his guard high—Firpo gets through a right hand again — but Dempsey brushes it away — the 'steam's gone out of it, I guess—Dempsey is tearing in—rights and lefts to the body and head—Firpo can't hold on—he can only hit with that right—he tries again—but Dempsey is in there first with the punch. There's the right! Look out, Luis! Dempsey cracked Firpo with a hard right hander to the chin, and Firpo's arms fly up in the air in instinctive protection—two lefts to the body! Firpo is going down—he's on the mat!—he's lying on his face—it looks like the end this time—slowly Referee Gallagher is counting off the seconds . . . two . . . three . . . four . . . five . . . Firpo's body is twitching and now he rolls over on his back. His face is twisted with pain, claret trickles from his mouth, his eyes are closed. His arms—that mighty right arm—are lying at his side—powerless . . . still the count—seven . . . eight . . . the crowd is silent—nine . . . ten!

Jack Dempsey is still champion of the world! He has knocked out Luis Angel Firpo!

EVANSTON WOMEN HAVE FIRST PLAY DAY ON THURSDAY

Evanston women and girls interested in summer sports will participate next Thursday in the season's first play day sponsored by the bureau of recreation, according to an announcement made by Miss Josephine Cox Dillman, director of women's activities.

Boltwood park will be turned over to them for tennis, volley ball, baseball, and special games, and refreshments will be served after the play. Thursday evenings throughout the season will be held open for the play day events at Boltwood.

On Wednesday official opening for all school and city playgrounds will be held under the bureau of recreation. There are thirteen of them, six owned by the city and the rest owned by the schools. Instructors and supervisors for each have been selected by the bureau.

Talks on Cashing Ability.

Franklyn Q. Doyle spoke on "Cash In on Your Ability," at the meeting of the Uptown Lions club Thursday noon in the Sheridan Plaza hotel, Sheridan road and Wilson avenue.

TWO NEW RADIO PROGRAMS ADDED TO TRIB STATION

One Is Daily and One Is Weekly Feature.

Two new radio programs, one daily and one weekly, both of a reminiscent nature, were announced this week by Henry Selinger, program director of W-G-N, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE station.

Beginning Saturday, and continuing every Saturday evening, the W-G-N players, under the direction of Harry W. Spingold, are reviving old time plays in a series called "Old Time First Nights."

"The Count of Monte Cristo," in which James O'Neill, father of Eugene O'Neill, starred; "The Two Orphans," "Richelieu," "Lena Rivers," and other famous productions of thirty and forty years ago will be included in the répertoire of the W-G-N players.

"Way Back When."

By way of novelty, Old First Nighter will attend each of the plays with his daughter, and will re-create for her and for radio listeners the various theaters as they appeared when O'Neill, Joseph Jefferson, and others of the old school strode the boards in their premieres. Jean Conover is adapting the plays to radio presentation. The curtain rises every Saturday at 8.

At once new and old, "Way Back When," a combination of spoken reminiscences and old fashioned music, is the other W-G-N feature introduced this week. It is broadcast every evening at 10:10, the time at which the Hungry Five went on the air previous to their vacation.

Old Time Tunes.

"In the Good Old Summer Time," "Little Annie Rooney," "On a Bicycle Built for Two," and similar tunes from pre-automobile days help to recaller the 'way-back-whens of W-G-N listeners.

Meanwhile, resting up in Wisconsin before they begin their new amusement park engagement, Louie's Hungry Five have forgotten "Ach! Du Lieber Augustin" and "Schnapps Waltz" and are concentrating on fishing, pretzels, and near beer.

EVANSTON FORCES REGISTRATION OF VEHICLE DRIVERS

Taxicab drivers and operators of other public vehicles in Evanston must register with the police department within the next month, according to an order issued by Chief of Police William O. Freeman last week.

The action is the result of a letter printed in the Metropolitan section several weeks ago from a young woman resident of the city complaining of drunken taxi drivers. At that time efforts were made to pass an ordinance requiring registration but were abandoned when it was found that such a measure was already incorporated in the city code but had fallen into disuse.

Under the ordinance police are given strict regulatory power over vehicles for public hire. No driver will be permitted to operate his vehicle without personal registration, and registration may be revoked by the police on sufficient provocation.

Another innovation in the police department is the painting of all traffic markings in bright yellow, replacing the white lines. This is being done partly to harmonize with the new yellow traffic signals and partly because yellow is less easily soiled and has a higher visibility, according to police authorities. The crew of workmen are being supervised by Policeman Elmer Reiter.

MUSIC BREEZES

The breeziness of a bus-top—the gayety of pretty girls at the prom—the crispness of dawn—all have been turned into music by that wizard, Goldkette. Through your loudspeaker comes the spirit of the New Music. Your fingers tingle as you listen. You want to laugh with the tunes. Notes race. Notes scamper. Notes make a crooked design. The trumpets sputter little notes. The trombones bellow large, organ-like notes. The director grins with delight as the clarinets hurry through two octaves and half way back. Three times today Jean Goldkette and his W-G-N Dance Orchestra reach their dancing climax: 1:30, 2:25, and 11 P. M.

BLUE NOTES

Three whispering voices and a deep guitar. Tom, Dick and Harry sing old songs, new songs or any songs that are rich with music. Smooth and round—quick and dexterous—each measure punctuated with the resonant voice of the guitar. Tom, Dick and Harry make all their own arrangements, and they know how to sing them. Hear the three snappy artists at 5:30 and 11 P. M.

KIDS

Listen, kids. The composers who have great names now were children once. They ran around and broke windows and made their mothers nervous, just like you. Besides, they didn't forget it. Once when Mr. Tschaikowski remembered he had been a child, he wrote a group of pieces to a Nutcracker! Can you imagine? A Nutcracker! Mr. Gaston du Moulin, who was little once, too, leads the W-G-N Symphony Orchestra as they play it. 5:45 P. M.

"Courteous and Efficient Service"

is a new method of operating the detector tube by which greater current can be applied to it, and stronger speech and music handled, without choking or distortion.

Majestic Power Detection removes the "Bottle-neck" in Radio Reception . . .

NOW music can sweep gloriously through the radio, unhindered and undistorted . . . complete, satisfying, true! Gone is the "throttling" action of old style detection . . . the choked, fuzzy effect on medium and low notes that prevented absolute realism. In Majestic Radio, power detection has opened up the "bottle-neck."

Adhering to proved tubes and proved circuits, Majestic presents yet another remarkable development in its Automatic Equal Sensitivity Control. Maximum range and power at the low waves . . . at the high waves . . . without need of touching other than tuning knob while finding stations.

The Cleaners of Chicago have reduced their prices! In many cases the reduction amounts to almost 50%. The low prices are attractive, of course, but the wise woman inquires further. What about the service and quality of work . . . will they, too, be reduced?

With production costs remaining the same, it is obvious that there must be a limit to such reduction of prices, or quality will have to be sacrificed. The average cleaner is no philanthropist. If his prices are so low that he can't make a legitimate profit, he is forced to lower his standards of workmanship.

The Star Cleaners and Dyers have reduced their prices . . . over 35%! A substantial drop, but still allowing us to maintain the high standard of quality cleaning and service for which we are known.

Our prices are now unusually reasonable, and you can send your things to the Star with utter confidence. We have been in business for over 20 years and are catering to thousands of satisfied customers. We must and will maintain our high quality of work.

ORDER HEARING ON COMPLETING DEVON AVENUE

Proposed as Route Across County.

Residents of the northwest side have virtually won a six-year fight for the improvement of Devon avenue as a major traffic artery from Lake Michigan to the western boundary of Cook county. The project was advanced last week by an announcement that the Chicago plan commission will end a disagreement by approving plans for the project drawn by engineers of the board of local improvements. Immediately Michael J. Faherty, president of the board of improvements, ordered proceedings started toward a hearing on the proposal. The hearing is expected to be held within two weeks.

Following a conference between officials of the plan commission and members of the Greater Devon Avenue association, James Simpson, president of the commission, informed Mr. Faherty that his executive committee would approve the plans and that it would be advisable to start proceedings at once so that no time might be lost. Mr. Faherty had refused to hold a public hearing until the commission had voiced its approval of the plans.

Through Route Across County.

When this part of Devon avenue is opened and paved, a through highway from the lake to the county line will be provided. There is little fear of opposition to the improvement, according to George J. Eckhoff, president of the Devon association, since most of the landowners in the district have expressed themselves in favor of it and have contributed funds to carry on negotiations.

The commission had withheld its approval of the project because the plan drawn jointly by engineers for the local board and engineers engaged by the Devon group provided for making a slight detour to the north in order to make use of existing streets rather than for cutting across private property on a straight line with Devon avenue east and west of this point.

However, following arguments of engineers, including Hugh E. Young, engineer of the plan commission, officials of that body agreed that it was advisable to make the detour rather than follow a straight line.

Mr. Eckhoff told the commission that the detour is desirable in order to take advantage of existing underground improvements, and so as not to damage property by condemnation any more than necessary.

Avoids Triple Intersection.

By opening the street on the section line, he continued, a triple intersection would be created at the corner of Northwest highway, Harlem avenue, and the proposed Devon avenue. The detour would place the intersection of Devon and Harlem avenues a block north of Northwest highway at this point and would avoid so dangerous an intersection.

William Zelosky, another property owner, interjected that landowners of the district were so interested in getting the improvement through according to the present plan that they had contributed $2,500 to make their own survey.

Mr. Young then told the commission that $40,000 would be saved in condemnation costs by making the detour. He also agreed that avoiding of the triple intersection would be a good thing. Another point in favor of the detour made by Mr. Young was that a better crossing under the Chicago and North Western tracks immediately west of Harlem avenue could be obtained if Devon avenue approached the tracks from the northeast rather from the east. The railroad has agreed to build a subway when the improvement is made.

Although it is ordinarily unwise to deviate from section line streets and make a detour, this case is a logical exception, Mr. Young continued. It has been estimated that condemnation of property required would amount to $395,000, he concluded.

Ald. T. J. Bowler [41st] pronounced the proposed improvement the greatest initiated on the northwest side.

Other members of the Devon association who attended the conference were Henry Rasmussen, Paul J. Pauleske, Harry Brown, W. J. Vavre, H. R. Berry, Fred J. Gillick, and George F. Koesler. These men are preparing to organize their forces and appear in a body at the hearing.

ELMHURST GLEE CLUB EMBARKS ON LAST TOUR

The Elmhurst College Glee club, under the directorship of Dean John Minnema of the school of music, left Friday on its last tour of the season which is also the longest, covering a period of two weeks.

Traveling in two large double-deck buses, the thirty men will give their first concert at Lincoln, Ill. Going to Pekin, Ill., for their second stop, the following cities will be visited in succession: Waterloo, Ia.; St. Louis, Mo.; Little Rock, Ark.; Okeene, Okla.; Inman, Kas.; Colorado Springs, Colo.; Denver, Colo.; Herndon, Kas.; St. Joe, Mo.; Hubbard, Ia.; and Fredericksburg, Ia.

TRINITY HIGH SCHOOL PRESENTS DIPLOMAS TO SWEET GIRL GRADUATES

Seniors of Trinity High school, River Forest, presented a charming picture as they marched, attired in white and laden with flowers sent by relatives and friends, into the auditorium to receive their diplomas June 6. The pictures show two sections of the academic procession. The class included seventy-one members. The Rt. Rev. Bernard James Sheil, auxiliary bishop of Chicago, delivered the address to the graduates and conferred the honors. He is shown, wearing biretta, in the picture at the right.

START CAMPAIGN TO SIGN PLEDGES ON OBEYING LAW

The Ministers' union of Oak Park and River Forest has indorsed the law obeying pledge signing campaign as set forth by the Young People's Civic council. The object of the campaign is to gain 100,000 pledges of law observance by July 4.

Several of the churches of Oak Park have already sent out the pledges. Mrs. M. Simpson of the Young People's Civic council has made pleas in these churches. The pledge reads as follows:

"Believing, with the President, that the duty of citizens to support the law is co-equal with the duty of their government to enforce it, I solemnly covenant to obey the laws of my country so far as known to me, without reservation and without exception. In making this pledge, however, I am not surrendering my right to protest against such laws as I may disapprove, or to seek their amendment or repeal by constitutional means."

A massmeeting will be held on July 2.

Onahan P.-T. Body to Give Party for Eighth Graders

The last meeting of the season will be held Tuesday by the Parent-Teacher association of Onahan school. The seventh grade mothers will serve refreshments. A graduation party is being planned for the afternoon of June 25, at which the mothers of the 8-B class will be hostesses. The president of the association is Mrs. John Richards and the principal of the school Miss Mary I. Reynolds.

Berwyn Commerce Body Reopens Member Drive

The membership campaign of the Berwyn chamber of commerce is now in progress, Arthur A. R. Nelson, chairman of the membership committee, said yesterday. The drive, which was inaugurated some time ago, was temporarily slowed up owing to outside activities.

PHI BETA KAPPA AT U. OF C. NAMES 13 WEST SIDERS

Thirteen west side students in the University of Chicago have been elected, with forty-two others, to membership in Phi Beta Kappa, national scholarship fraternity, according to an announcement made at the university last week.

They are:

Van V. Alderman, 3929 North Keeler avenue.
Lester Asher, 3247 Douglas boulevard.
Jacob Cohen, 2047 West Division street.
Miss Clara Grusalski, 2418 North Spaulding avenue.
Miss Mary E. Hersog, 125 South Catherine avenue, La Grange.
Charles S. Saltzman, 923 North Sacramento boulevard.
Arnold B. Schlachet, 5430 West Monroe street.
Bernard Weinberg, 5512 West Van Buren street.
Miss Belle H. Lieberman, 1212 South Harding avenue.
Frank H. Detweiler, Aurora, Ill.
Lawrence S. Jacobson, 1455 North Ashland avenue.
Donald B. McGuiness, 824 North Grove avenue, Oak Park.
James M. Stitckney, La Grange.

The fifty-five students who won the coveted key of the society included juniors who have maintained an average of "A minus" or higher, some seniors whose averages are slightly less than "A minus," and five elected "in recognition of clear evidence of intellectual service, leadership, and scholarly attainments."

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

BY FRED PASLEY.

"YOU will always find Otto Berz on his toes except when he goes over his horse's head," advises T. W. Barker truthfully, speaking of our popular undertaker and president of the West Town Chamber of Commerce. "Still," he adds, referring to Otto's cropper at his Michigan summer home, "Otto is well upholstered, so a sudden contact with terra firma was not as jarring as might have been." Well, anyway, Otto, nature loves a fat man.

We are glad to announce that Mr. and Mrs. Bernard H. Superfine are in their new home at 32 North Lorel avenue and are receiving the congratulations of their many friends on its appointments. Mr. Superfine is with the Madison and Kedzie State bank and his fellow workers were guests at the Superfine house warming.

An interesting debate was held at Progressive lodge, we learn through Brother Zoch, George Loach, the organist, upholding the negative and Samuel Anderson, the carpenter, the affirmative. The theme was, "Resolved—How to Miter a Molding to 45 Degrees," and Sam was acclaimed winner by a city square.

Ben Graham, superintendent of the Jefferson park district, says Gladstone park is the finest on the northwest side of our village. "Yes, sir," Ben declared, "we've got a wonderful bed of flowers in the park, which no one expected us to have. We put it in just before Decoration day. We've got benches there, too, which we let people sit on and enjoy the moonlight."

Al Dillon has definitely retired as a civic uplifter in semi-pro baseball to enter the brawn industry at 30 South Michigan avenue, we are reliably informed by Tommy Wren. Al was a pitcher of note with the West Ends, the Joliet Standards, Buck's Colts, and St. Patrick's. His new factory is known as the Illinois Olympian club.

NEIGHBOR A. G. TRAYE, who runs the Park Ridge speakeasy when he isn't hoeing in his garden, deposes that a bunch of radishes, which have a retail value of about a nickel, when raised in one's own backyard at an expense of not less than $3 in time, thought, and manual labor, become as pearls beyond price with a flavor incomparable. Righto, A. G.

Incidentally, Prof. Frank Ridgway, dean of agriculture in THE TRIBUNE faculty and popular resident of Evanston, cradle of the W. C. T. U., was attacked by a rabbit last Sunday and chewed on the finger. Frank says he is off prohibition.

O. Rhodius Elofson, secretary of the Logan Square Kiwanis, and proprietor of the well known photograph gallery, has moved from 2602 to 2532 Milwaukee avenue, where he is again prepared to receive the grownups and greet the children with "Shee the birdie."

IF the warm weather continues, says the optimistic Joe Gubbins, the wading pools for kiddies at each of the parks in the northwest district will be opened. Which will be pretty nice.

Again referring to the advantages of the western over the north side suburbs, Col. Lillian K. Shattuck of Glen Ellyn asserts there has never been a time in the history of Al Chase's home town when so many different kinds of birds have visited the yards and gardens. She reports a scarlet tanager, a Baltimore oriole, and a wild canary, while children of the C. O. M. club on an outing saw 35 different species.

HARRY E. BYRAM, fellow townsman, has barred the venerable red flannel shirt from the wardrobes of section hands on his road, the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific. "We found they were too often mistaken for danger signals," said Harry, wiping away a sentimental tear.

Several students from the west side and the west suburbs were graduated last Wednesday from National Kindergarten and Elementary college in Evanston.

Among those receiving the degree of bachelor of education were Miss Dorothy Beatty of Hinsdale and Miss Miss Helen Christeson of Oak Park.

Kindergarten-elementary diplomas were given to Miss Jane Allen of La Grange; Miss Alberta Campbell, 1239 North Austin boulevard; Miss Francis Lawton of Hinsdale, Miss Ethel B. Wright of La Grange, Miss Virginia Zoelle of Elmhurst, and Miss Marie Redmond, 120 North Lotus avenue.

GLEE CLUBS OF HARRISON HIGH GIVE OPERETTA

The glee clubs of Harrison High school presented "The Crimson Star," on operetta, on June 8. Other performances were given previously. Students taking part included Miss Beulah Jelinek, Miss Florence Gustafson, Joseph Belman, Max Terry, Miss Julia Brown, Miss Mildred Moss, Harold Bergman, Jack Besserer, Miss Bessie Balaban, Miss Georgianna Roucek, Frank Hnatek, Edward Nadle, Miss Sarah Berkovitz, Miss Helen Baccash, William Abramchick, Milton Kodash, Leslie Liss, Hyman Adler, and Miss Edith Leifer. Miss Celia Campbell, Harrison, music teacher, directed, assisted by Miss Milada Krametbauer. Miss Elizabeth Pestinek and Miss Bernice Weisler were prompters.

Students Issue 42 Page Paper at York High

An edition of 24 pages, the largest known high school newspaper, was issued last Wednesday by the students of York Community High school, Elmhurst. Eight pages were devoted to a sepia picture section, containing photos of the school and campus, the various classes and the outstanding events of the year.

The remainder of the paper was divided into two sections, the news section and the sport section. The news section contained editorials, advice to the freshmen, faculty opinions on different topics, and a complete club and organization program for the last year.

The sport section consisted of the year in sports, the feature page contained society, literary review, aviation, radio, motion picture and scientific notes. The contributors' page was also in this section, with articles written by the students.

This special edition represents the work of over one hundred students. More than 1,000 pounds of paper and several gallons of ink were used in making the 5,000 copies.

The advertising was entirely sold out in one week by J. W. Bragsted Jr., who was also the publisher of the paper. During the year he sold enough advertising to keep "York-Hi" out of debt and has financed a new office for the paper.

DENY FORGERY CHARGE IN MOVE FOR REZONING

Property owners on Pine avenue between Chicago avenue and Huron street will appear before the city council committee on buildings and zoning tomorrow morning to repudiate charges that a petition to rezone their block contains forged names and was completed by means of other "irregularities," as was charged by a resident of the block recently.

The petition now in the hands of the committee contains the names of 84 per cent of the property owners in the block, and asks that the zoning classification be changed to permit the construction of apartment houses between a line 125 feet north of Huron street and a line 125 feet south of Chicago avenue. Present zoning permits the construction of residences only.

Property owners under the leadership of Charles Post, a resident at 741 North Pine avenue for 40 years; Ebbert E. Russell, 736 North Pine avenue, and Dr. R. W. Chilcote, 724 North Pine avenue, will ask the committee to approve the zoning change. Ald. J. H. Taylor [37th] will also be on hand to lend his support.

J. M. Gubbins, 725 North Pine avenue, told the committee at the previous hearing that he could bring in property owners whose names appear on the petition but who know nothing about it. He charged that the name of Dr. Harry V. Shaw, 709 North Pine avenue, appeared, but that Dr. Shaw had made the statement that he had not signed it.

Mr. Post yesterday produced an affidavit signed by Dr. Shaw saying that his signature on the petition is authentic.

Seek Members for Branch of Tax Reduction Group

A drive to form a Portage Park-Belmont Park branch of the Citizens' Tax Reduction association has begun, and members are being solicited in these northwest side communities. The association seeks to bring mass pressure to bear against tax increases and inequalities, and stands for consolidation of Cook county taxing bodies.

Beach Picnic to Be Held by Chicago Cycle Club

The Chicago Cycle club of 1243 South Homan avenue has chartered a special train for an excursion trip to Tremont, Ind., and Waverley Beach next Sunday. Games, races and bathing will be the order of the day. The train will leave the Illinois Central station at Roosevelt road and Michigan avenue at 9 a. m.

KINDERGARTNERS PORTRAY MOTHER GOOSE CHARACTERS

MUSIC IS MADE LARGE ITEM IN CHURCH SERVICE

Moreland Lutheran Has 3 Choruses.

BY ONEY FRED SWEET.

THE REV. G. M. RUNDHAUG.

Music has been made a most attractive feature of the services at the Moreland Lutheran church, Lotus avenue and Huron street. For many years there has been a senior chorus and a junior chorus and, during this last year there has been launched a male chorus. The musical organizations are under the direction of David Nyvall Jr. The organist is Mrs. Thelma Michelsson.

The last program before the vacation season will be given by the senior chorus of the church next Sunday night. This chorus is heard at all of the Sunday morning services and on Sunday nights once a month. Its selections include many of the compositions of F. Melius Christiansen, director of the famous St. Olaf Lutheran choir.

The juvenile chorus, made up of boys and girls between the ages of seven and thirteen, sings only on special occasions.

The new Moreland Lutheran church is entered by a flight of stone steps, where a Gothic doorway, set as a jewel in a field of ashlar, is flanked by pylons of brick and stone and surmounted by the delicate tracery of a Gothic window. This delicate Gothic tracery is repeated in the windows of the main auditorium and again in the windows of the transepts, and are recalled in the upper part of a well designed tower.

Tower Is Connecting Link.

The tower is located on the Huron street frontage and forms a connection between the church and the parish house. The manse and the parish house have been designed in keeping with the main church, but the detail has been subdued in order to further emphasize the graceful dignity of the main structure.

The chancel is finished in Caen stone. The altar is of dark oak and is surmounted by a window in which the Good Shepherd is depicted in art glass. Between the trusses and wood beams of the roof has been introduced an acoustical ceiling which has proved its purpose in the absence of echoes. In the transepts to the left are located the choir and the organ console. The opposite transept is arranged for the visiting choir.

The new church building is the second the congregation has erected. The first place of worship at Lawler avenue and Ferdinand street, made possible through heroic sacrifice, served for many years. It was the realization of the hopes of a little handful of folk who, back in 1886, first met in their homes, then in a room in a public school, then in a store building.

Difficult to Find Site.

For a long period it was realized that a new building was needed, but the neighborhood had developed and there was scarcely any vacant property in the vicinity. Not until 1927 could satisfactory ground be purchased. In March of that year a campaign for funds was started with more than a hundred willing workers in the field, the result being that $118,000 was subscribed.

On Sunday, June 19, 1927, the ground breaking service was held. On Oct. 9, the corner stone was laid, the Rt. Rev. Dr. H. G. Stub being present to perform that sacred rite. He was assisted by the pastor—the Rev. Grant Milo Rundhaugh—Dr. Martin Anderson, and the Rev. Jesse Thorson. Fifteen hundred persons were in attendance.

On Palm Sunday, 1928, the doors were opened, the Rev. Mr. Rundhaug taking for his sermon text: "I have hallowed this house, which thou hast built, to put my name there forever; and mine eyes and my heart shall be there perpetually." Dedication of the church took place on Sunday, April 29, 1928. This occasion was attended by the Rt. Rev. Dr. J. A. Aasgaard, president of the synod, also the Rt. Rev. O. J. Preus, president of the eastern district, together with most of the pastors from the Chicago circuit. It was called "The church with the Christlike aim."

Pastor Installed in 1919.

Rejoicing with the congregation was the pastor, the Rev. Mr. Rundhaug, who was installed in 1919 and who, therefore, has been with the church for the last ten years. During that period the church has doubled in membership. He has seen the new church built. To him have come calls from some of the largest churches in the synod but he has chosen to remain with his faithful workers in the Austin neighborhood.

The Rev. Mr. Rundhaug is a graduate of St. Olaf college, Northfield, Minn., also of the United Lutheran seminary of St. Paul, Minn. He was ordained as a minister in 1916 and before coming to Chicago, served at Alexandria, Minn.

The congregation stands high in the synod for having contributed more than its share in funds during the last eight years.

The church has had seven pastors during its existence. The Rev. Marcus Nilsen served from 1886-'89; the Rev. O. O. Wold, 1891-'92; the Rev. John Olsen, 1892-'94; the Rev. O. J. Norby, 1894-'99; the Rev. O. K. Espeseth, 1899-1907; the Rev. T. C. Thompson, 1908-'19.

Officers of the church are the Rev. G. M. Rundhaug, pastor; John A.

GERMAN-FRENCH HERO OF '76 GAVE NAME TO DE KALB

City First Was Known as Buena Vista.

Young as we are as a nation, we are old enough to have forgotten our beginnings in many cases. Day after day we tread some historic spot, time after time we repeat the name of the particular town or locality where we live nor remember what events occurred there, what heroic deeds or twists of fate caused it to be named this instead of that. In the next few weeks the Metropolitan section of The Tribune will present a series of sketches explaining the origin of many of the names now used without remembrance of why or wherefore. Herewith is an explanation of how De Kalb and De Kalb county were named.

Along with no fewer than fifteen towns and about as many counties in the United States, the City of De Kalb, in De Kalb county, was named for Baron De Kalb, a distinguished French officer, who came to this country with Lafayette, and, assisting the American colonies in the revolutionary war, was mortally wounded at the battle of Camden.

Baron Johann De Kalb was born at Huttendorf, Bavaria, in 1721. He entered the French army as a lieutenant in 1743 and became a captain in 1747 and a brigadier general in 1761. In 1768 he was sent by France on a secret mission to England's American colonies and in 1777 accompanied Lafayette to the United States and offered his services to congress. In September, 1777, he received a commission as major general and until the spring of 1780 served in New Jersey and Maryland.

Prayed for Soldier's Death.

In April, 1780, De Kalb was sent to join the southern army as second in command to Gates. Wounded at the battle of Camden, he died three days later. When a British officer sympathized with him in his last moments De Kalb said:

"I thank you for your generous sympathy, but I die the death I have always prayed for—the death of a soldier fighting for the rights of man, and though I fight no more in this world, I trust I may still be of some service to the cause of freedom.

De Kalb's name was chosen for the Illinois county when, in the winter of 1836-37, a bill was passed in the state legislature to create a county from the west half of the county of Kane, providing a majority of the legal voters in Kane should, on a given day, vote for such a new county. History records that before "the guns of the glorious Fourth came booming over the land in 1837, De Kalb was a sister in the sisterhood of counties in the great state of Illinois."

First Reserved for Indians.

Until the spring of 1835 very few white people had trod the soil of what constitutes De Kalb county. It was the home of the Indian, and the Indian agent in Chicago, backed by companies of United States troops, was authorized to drive off whites who should encroach on their land. In 1835, however, it having been noised about that the Indians were about to remove west of the Mississippi river, no further attempt was made to restrain the immigration of the whites and they poured into the county in great numbers.

Tradition has it that a company of mounted troops, engaged in assembling the Indians preparatory to their removal, camped for the night on the present site of the city of De Kalb.

The town of De Kalb, first called Buena Vista, did not progress much until the arrival of the railroad in 1853. As late as 1850, Russell Huntley, representing a company of capitalists, was offering half of the land upon which De Kalb now stands to any man who would pay $1.25 to enter it. For nearly twenty years Mr. Huntley kept a tavern at the place.

Station for Grain Wagons.

The tavern was the stopping place for teamsters from west of the Mississippi on their way to Chicago with grain. Often the proceeds of the load did not pay the expense of hauling to market. The arrival of the railroad revolutionized the business affairs of the county and a flourishing village was speedily built. Houses, we are told, sprang up as if by magic. Farmers, it is said, hardly recognized it, from one monthly visit to another.

The financial crash of 1857 impeded the town's progress for a time, but its citizens lost none of their enterprise, courage and enthusiasm. The community gave 223 of its male citizens to the Union cause during the civil war.

Early in its history, the town became known for its barbed wire factories. The invention and manufacture of the product needed on the prairie farms added much to the growth of the place. Since then have come the agricultural implement, piano, shoe, glove, nail and creamery package factories. It is the seat of the Northern Illinois State Normal school.

PETER REINBERG SCHOOL PUPILS MARK FLAG DAY

Flag day was celebrated at the Peter Reinberg school, 3425 North Major avenue, on Friday with extensive exercises. At 8:45 o'clock an outdoor flag raising took place and at 1:15 o'clock a program consisting of 10 numbers was given. These included a salute to the flag by the patrol boys; "Stars and Stripes Forever," by the Rhythm band; "Parade of the Wooden Soldiers," by room 206; "Ten Rag Babies," by room 105; "Three Pigs," by room 105; a demonstration by the piano class of the school; an act by the Harmonica club, and a game presented by the kindergarten.

An exhibit of art and handwork done by children of the school was on display Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. This included the work of all classes. The principal is Miss Marie A. Rohrer.

CAMERAS SNAP JOYS OF CHILDHOOD

BUYS CASTING ROD FOR $2.69; MAKES PROFIT OF $22.31

The Tribune will pay $2 for each story of a best bargain obtained in a neighborhood store printed in the Metropolitan section. Address Bargains, Metropolitan section, The Tribune. Make them short and snappy, writing on only one side of the paper, and print your name and address plainly.

Chicago, June 11.—Last summer I purchased a casting rod for $2.69 at a neighborhood sporting goods store. I went with a friend on a fishing trip to Long Lake, Wis., and the friend developed such a strong affection for my rod that he offered me $25 for it. The transaction took place in record time. My profit was $22.31. I'll tell the world that was some bargain.

ROBERT G. MURBACH,
3418 Hirsch street.

47 CENT HAT ADMIRED.

Chicago, June 9.—I bought a soiled pink hat made of silk straw braid for 47 cents at a neighborhood store two years ago. After it was cleaned it looked even prettier than I had hoped so it made its debut at a party, where it was much admired. The next year I dyed it purple and trimmed it with little white flowers. If compliments are any criterion for bargains, then this was my best one.

MRS. R. J. DRYSCH,
2940 North Mansfield avenue.

WATCHES MONTHLY SALES.

Chicago, June 10.—Two months ago I was shopping in a department store on Madison street near Crawford avenue and chanced upon the best bargain I ever got in hosiery. Black silk stockings regularly selling for $1.75 were on sale for 19 cents a pair. They have worn remarkably well—not even a run in them so far. It pays to watch out for end-of-the-month sales in neighborhood stores; they offer some exceptional bargains.

SNAP 'EM AT PLAY AND WIN CASH PRIZE IN TRIBUNE CONTEST

Try your hand at a playtime picture and win a prize in The Tribune's photo contest. Playtime for Sally Ann under the hose, or playtime for father with a fishing rod, Jane and John playing cowboy and Indian, or baby sister finding out that grass is ticklish for the first time—catch them with a camera and send them in.

The Tribune will pay $5 for the best playtime picture taken by an amateur.

It will pay $3 for the second best and $2 for the third. All pictures must be taken in the Chicago area.

Address entries to Photo Contest, Metropolitan section of The Tribune. The name and address of the photographer should be printed plainly on the back of the print as well as the names of all persons in the picture.

The contest is open only to amateurs and the editor will be final judge. Theme, treatment, and clearness of the print all will be taken into consideration. No pictures will be returned.

HEARING FRIDAY ON N. WEST SIDE PAVING PROJECTS

13 Improvements to Be Considered.

Approval of thirteen improvements for the new sections of the northwest side will be sought by the board of local improvements at a public hearing in the city hall next Friday morning. Seven street paving projects, four water supply pipe installations, and the paving of two alleys will be taken up.

The largest of the paving projects is one discussed at a previous hearing, but deferred until Friday because of a difference of opinion among property owners. The project includes paving of Neenah avenue between Addison street and Belmont avenue, and Cornelia avenue, Roscoe street and School street between Narragansett avenue and the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul, and Pacific railroad. It would cost $146,000.

Other Projects Listed.

Other paving projects, up for hearing for the first time, are as follows:

Neva avenue between Addison street and Belmont avenue.

A system including Nordica avenue, between Addison street and Belmont avenue, and Newport avenue and Roscoe street between Sayre and Nordica avenues.

A system including Lemont avenue between Hiawatha and Sauganash avenues, Keene avenue between Granville and Sauganash avenues, Granville avenue between Lemont avenue and the alley west of Keene avenue, and Sauganash avenue between the alley east of Lemont avenue and Keene avenue.

A system including Kostner avenue between Peterson road and Sauganash avenue, and Sauganash avenue between Kilbourn avenue and the Chicago and North Western railroad.

Sauganash avenue between Keene avenue and Devon avenue, and Keating avenue between Sauganash and Devon avenues.

Two Water Pipe Plans.

The board desires to install water supply pipes in Ridgeway avenue between Devon and Granville avenues, Osanam avenue between Devon and Oliphant avenues, Palatine avenue between Odell and Oriole avenues, and Spokane avenue between Leoti and Ionia avenues.

The board also desires to pave the alley in the block bounded by Nevada and Altgeld streets and Kenton and Kilpatrick avenues, and the alley in the block bounded by Navarre, Neola, Nettleton avenues and Northwest highway.

OLYMPIA AVENUE SUBWAY PUT IN ELEVATION PACT

C. & N. W. Agrees to Pedestrian Underpass.

Before approving the contract ordinance with the Chicago & North Western railway last Tuesday providing for elevation of the road's tracks between Foster avenue and the western city limits of Park Ridge, the city council committee on track elevation inserted an amendment binding the railroad to construct a pedestrian subway at Olympia avenue.

The ordiance was submitted to the city council last Friday and was ordered published and deferred. It will be passed at the next council meeting unless some unforeseen objection arises.

Through the efforts of Edison Park residents and Ald. T. J. Bowler [41st] the last minute change was brought about just before the committee reported out the ordinance.

Business Men Back Plan.

Erling H. Lunde appeared on behalf of the United Edison Park Improvement association to make the request for the additional passage under the tracks at Olympia avenue. He presented resolutions adopted by his group and by the Kiwanis Club of Edison Park recommending this amendment to the ordinance.

Mr. Lunde pointed out that the nearest crossing under the tracks west of Olympia avenue would be at Oliphant avenue, and the nearest crossing east would be at Devon avenue. There is a school directly north of the tracks at Olympia avenue, he said, and the children must be given some means of getting across the tracks.

A small park which has been a community center for the district lies immediately south of the tracks, he continued, and if no subway were provided it would be difficult to gain access to the park for the many neighborhood functions held there.

To Get Owner's Consent.

Engineers for the railroad argued that a subway under the tracks at Olympia avenue would lead directly onto private property. They agreed, however, to construct the subway if the property owner would agree. Mr. Lunde and Ald. Bowler declared they could obtain his consent since only about 12 feet would be needed to provide sufficient space for sidewalks.

Another controversy ironed out recently was in the case of the Devon avenue subway. Devon avenue has not yet been cut through this district, but negotiations are now in progress to have it opened and paved. The railroad agreed to construct a 66 foot subway when and where the street is cut through, but the city argued that as Devon avenue would be a section line street it is planned to make it at least 100 feet wide.

Project to Cost $2,500,000.

An agreement was finally reached and written into the ordinance providing that the railroad construct a subway of whatever size is deemed desirable at Devon, and that the city pay the difference between the cost of the subway built and the cost of one 66 feet wide.

As finally drawn and approved by the committee, the ordinance provides for an expenditure of approximately $2,500,000 by the railroad. The tracks will be elevated between Foster and the Western city limits of Park Ridge by 1933. Traffic subways are to be cut through at Bryn Mawr avenue, Nagle avenue, Newark avenue, Raven street, Newal street, Harlem avenue, Oliphant avenue, Oshkosh avenue, Ozark avenue, and Devon avenue. Pedestrian subways will be provided at Ardmore and Olympia avenue.

MAIN STATE BANK FORMALLY OPENS WITH RECEPTION

The new Main State bank, 2654 West North avenue, was formally opened yesterday with an all day reception. The bank, which has a capital and surplus totaling $250,000, will serve the Humboldt and West North avenue districts.

Josef Rusnak, owner of the Rusnak Furniture stores, is president of the new bank; L. Shirley Tark is a vice president, and Emil Herzog is vice president and cashier.

The board of directors includes H. M. Ellinwood, P. A. Gross, T. Golightly, Hobart Johnson, Harry Koenig, Leo Oppenheimer, Joseph Pearl, Louis Porter, William Rusnak, J. L. Schnadig, Max Siegel, and Harry Wechter.

THE CHUCKLE COLUMN

High school students, send in your best laughs to the Chuckle Editor of The Tribune. Two dollars will be paid for each jingle, joke, or verse printed in the Metropolitan section. Address your contributions to the Chuckle Editor, Metropolitan section, The Tribune. Write on one side of the paper only and print your name and address plainly.

The teacher was giving a drill in the meaning of words and their opposites. "Now tell me," she began, "what is the opposite of misery?"

"Happiness," said the class in unison.

"Gladness."

"And the opposite of woe?"

"Giddap!" shouted the enthusiastic class.

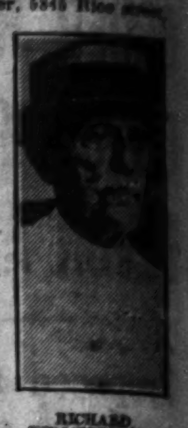
WED 60 YEARS, CELEBRATE AT PARTY TODAY



RICHARD KIESEWETTER.

MRS. RICHARD KIESEWETTER.

Sixty years ago today Mr. and Mrs. Richard Kiesewetter, 5845 Rice street, were married in Chicago. Today they will celebrate their wedding anniversary with their children, grandchildren and great grandchildren.

Mr. and Mrs. Kiesewetter have been Chicagoans for even more than sixty years. Mr. Kiesewetter came to Chicago from Germany in 1861, making the trip in a sailing vessel that required twelve weeks to cross the Atlantic. A year later his wife crossed to the United States.

At the celebration today Mr. Kiesewetter will tune up his violin, a family possession with the date 1864 scratched on it. Among those who will be at the party will be the couple's four living children, seven grandchildren and four great grandchildren.

GIRL SOLDIERS TO PARADE FOR SCHOOL BOARD

Park Ridge Pupils to Give Dances of Nations.

Pupils at the Park Ridge school for girls will be dancers of all nations during the first part of an entertainment at the school next Friday night and will conclude the performance as soldiers.

The 125 girls at the school, ranging in age from 6 to 16, take military training. Miss Ruby K. Badger, superintendent, says they take more pride in their ability to execute a creditable "right dress" than in their ability to dance, and justly so, she adds, since the Park Ridge school is the only one in the Chicago district offering military training for girls.

Directors to See Performance.

The "Pageant of Dances" and military exhibition will be given as a feature of the annual meeting of the school's board of directors. The following girls will take part both in the dances and military drills:

Shah of Old Cathay—Marjorie Webster.

Jester—Lily Relic.

Court ladies—Velma Weeks, Lavergne Meyer, Vivian Adams, Lillian Sixberry, Mary Weeks.

Fairies—Ingrid Lingrin, Marjorie Spiker, Lorna Dratger, Mae Maas, Jean Roehl, Eleanor Carlyle, Lillian Baltz, Louise Weeks.

Indians—Lorraine Evensen, Erma Pahr, Marjorie Carlyle, Frances Cain, Alice McClellen, Rosemary Burns, June Botsford.

Dutch dancers—Elizabeth Baldwin, Mary Kartel, Marion Bick, Mary Bruschauk, Louise Szemes, Violet McCormack, Helen Beckman, Dorothy Baltz, Dorothy Malone, Letty Draper, Eleanor Kay, Bernice Rubin, Artie Belle Warner, Helen Cooper, Vivian Draeger, Ellen Markarian, Grace Woods.

French villagers—Myrtle Frazier, Ida Mae Hart, Vera Hugger, Margaret Meinberg, Mary Babb, Vera Nordrum, Ruth Raynor, Ella Relic.

St. Patrick's dance—Annie Brew, Beatrice Sisantz, Martha Dagdigian, Charlotte Fletcher, Marie Jock, Helen Lewis, Mildred Lionberg, Selma Malone, Rose Roehl, Lena Ruby, June Seterlund, Catherine Stienstra, Ida Stowe, Catherine Warner, Irma Loomis.

Balloon dancers—Eleanor Banczy, Sylvia Barabas, Margaret Bartholis, Ida Bennett, Theresa Blank, Grace Clark, Lillian Hartwick, Julia Henry, Thelma Kittilsen, Ruth Krone, Gertrude Scott, Libby Mensik, Ada McClellen, Margaret Pahr, Ruth Potter, Frances Royse, Audrey Van Dam, Eleanor Weeks, Flora Rosberg, Phyllis Abraham, Dorothy Simmons, Florence Marcus.

Gypsy solo dancer—Eleanor Banczy.

Russian dancers—Helen Harsch, Luella Ballard, Lily Garonson, Evelyn Reeland.

Flowers of Japan—Victoria Matasek, Mary Lewis, Georgia Miller, Mota Clare Stocks, Florence Tordoff, Helen Davis.

Sailors' hornpipe — Elsa Anderson, Mary Burian, Elinor Evensen, Winifred Golden, Marguerite Green, Clara Jock, Edlyn Landau, Pearl Robinson, Clara Ruby, Grace Sheldon, Evelyn Sievers, Ida Szemes, Gwendolyn Tordoff, Loretta Wordel.

Prior to the entertainment the board will make a tour of inspection of the school, which is supported partly by counties of northern Illinois and partly by donations from individuals. It is attended by girls left dependent through the breaking up of families. Miss Badger stresses the fact that none of the girls are delinquents.

Scorn Can Openers.

The board will view the grounds and buildings and partake of a meal prepared by girls of the household arts classes, trained, according to Miss Badger, to minimize the importance of the can opener and to prepare themselves to feed hungry husbands with wholesome food. Members of the board will like it, too, she is confident.

Following the meal the five cottages in which the girls live will be inspected, and Mr. and Mrs. Director will be defied to find any dust. From twenty to twenty-five girls live in a cottage under the supervision of a house mother, and everybody is responsible for some task.

School work ranging from first grade to third year high school studies is offered. There are specified times for study and play and Miss Badger makes it clear that the girls indulge in plenty of the latter. When the studies are over in the afternoon everybody is outside engaged in one game or another during nine months of the year, and during the summer months she is outside practically all the time. The institution is in reality a school during these nine months only, since it is a summer camp during the other three.

Baseball Is Favorite Sport.

Baseball, tennis and swimming are the sports indulged in by the girls. The national game is the favorite, however, Miss Badger says, and is so well liked, she adds, that "I can't keep them from playing it if I want to."

If the weather permits, members of the board will be treated to swimming exhibitions in the outdoor pool in the grounds; otherwise they will be invited to witness some gymnastics in the school gymnasium.

The school vegetable gardens, already yielding their yearly crop of vitamins, will also be inspected by the directors, who will learn from their luncheon what can be done with a garden at a girls' school. All gardening is done under the direction of the institution's farmer, however, Miss Badger says, and the girls are permitted to take part in the work only in a small way. Weeding and a little hoeing are the extent of their farming activity.

RESOLUTION ASKS ELECTRIFICATION OF SUBURB LINES

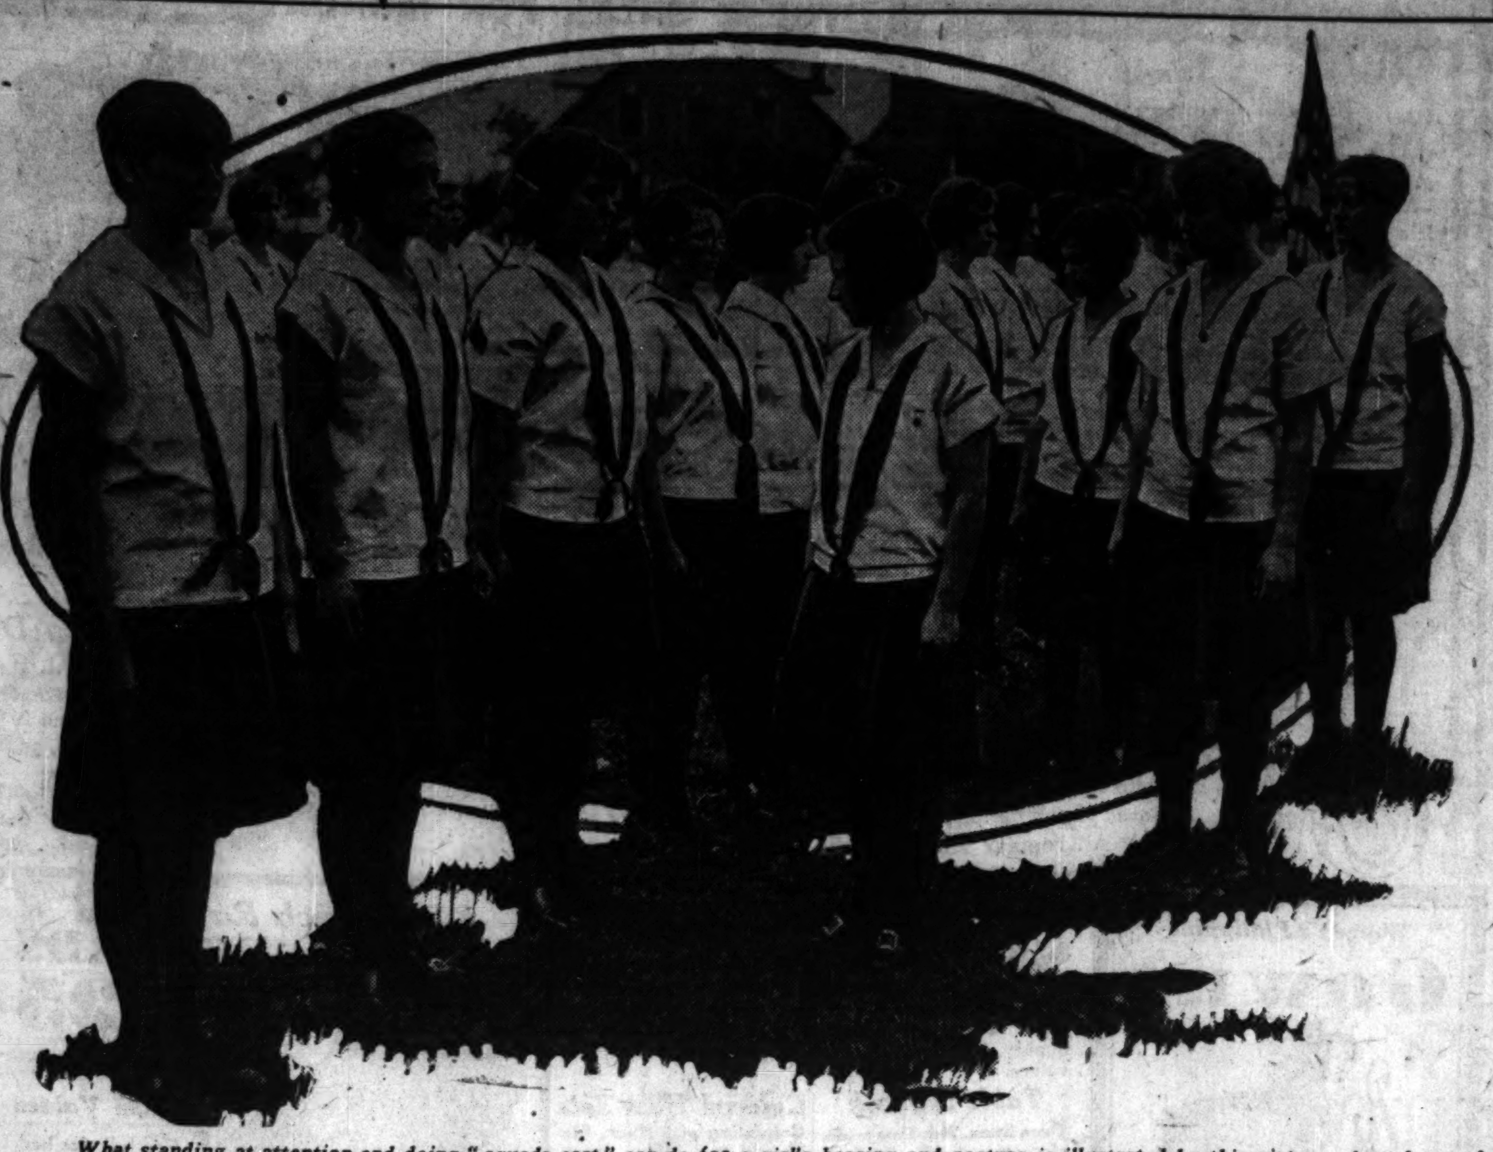
The Northwest Federation of Improvement Clubs will vote Thursday on a resolution to be presented by the executive committee, urging the electrification of the Chicago and North Western, and the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific northwest side lines at least to the city limits.

Delegates from each of the affiliated groups will be present at the meeting. O. W. Holmes will preside. John Klier is secretary.

The executive committe will also present resolutions opposing legislative efforts to raise the school tax rate, and condemning the present proposals at Springfield for consolidation of park systems.

The federation, Mr. Holmes declares, is in favor of consolidating the administration of all northwest parks, but objects to merging with the Lincoln park and west park systems.

UNDER THE INSPECTING OFFICERS' PIERCING EYE



What standing at attention and doing "squads east" can do for a girl's bearing and posture is illustrated by this picture of students of Park Ridge School for Girls, the only educational institution in this section offering military training for the fair sex. The inspecting officers, left to right: Maj. Gwen Tordoff, Capt. Luella Ballard, Capt. Clara Jack, Capt. Helen Davis, and Capt. Marian Burian.

GARDEN GROUPS HOLD CONTESTS AND MAKE TOURS

Many Clubs Engaged in Special Studies.

Garden clubs of the west side and the western suburbs are in full swing this month with varied programs of meetings, speeches, inspections of floral exhibits, and other activities. Several garden organizations are studying particular phases of plant life in which members have a special interest. Many novices in the art of gardening have reported success with their individual projects, ranging from backyard nasturtiums to yellow and red tulips.

An excursion to the Napier Green farm at Blue Island next Friday has been scheduled for members of the Lombard Garden club. At the June 7 meeting, held at the home of Mrs. George Potwin, a talk on "Lilacs" was given by Mrs. E. J. Andrews. Future events on the program of the club include a tour of north shore gardens on Aug. 23. It is expected that Wilmette, Glencoe, and Lake Forest will be visited. Officers of the club are: President, Mrs. A. J. Dietsche; first vice president, Mrs. A. C. Gothie; second vice president, Mrs. Irene Lewis; third vice president, Mrs. E. J. Andrews; secretary, Mrs. Edgar Elliott, and treasurer, Mrs. Charles E. Petersen.

Edison Club Invites Norwood.

The Edison Park Garden club held a meeting at Mertes' club rooms, 6152 Northwest highway, on Monday. Members of the Norwood Park Garden club were invited. The Edison Park group has been conducting a garden contest for residents of the community, the first prize being a silver loving cup offered by Dr. J. T. Hermsheim. Officers of the club are: President, Mrs. Oscar E. Brown; vice president, Mrs. Helen Alberry, and secretary and treasurer, Mrs. John Martinson.

At a meeting of the Norwood Park Garden club on Wednesday Mrs. Helen Hart Oakes, head of the Maywood Garden club, spoke on "The Friendly Little Garden." Members of this club recently visited Joy Morton's arboretum at Lisle, Ill. The officers are: President, Mrs. T. H. Slusser; vice president, Mrs. Robert Ball; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. C. Ziller. The program chairman is Mrs. L. M. Bowes.

The next meeting of the Scilla chapter of the Glen Ellyn Garden club is announced for Thursday. The president is Mrs. B. W. Alspaugh.

Talks on "Annuals" were given by members of the Rose chapter of the Glen Ellyn Garden club at a meeting on Thursday. The head of the chapter is Mrs. Elmer A. Foster.

Park Ridge Club Holds Show.

Members of the newly organized Park Ridge Garden club conducted a flower exhibit June 8 and 9 in the Pickwick club rooms. Several interesting floral displays were shown. Prizes were awarded for the most artistic luncheon table set for six people; for the most artistically arranged vase or bowl of flowers and the most artistically arranged basket of flowers; for unusual flowers and plants, rock and water gardens and floral displays by professional growers. Three Park Ridge women, Mrs. Fred Y. Everhard, Mrs. R. S. Cunningham, and Mrs. Hugh Crawford won first, second, and third places respectively in the luncheon table competition. The wainscoted walls of early English finish of the club rooms provided an appropriate background for the elaborate display of flowers.

The Park Ridge Garden club, which was formed in April, now has 60 members, according to Mrs. J. W. Saul, president. Tours of local gardens are to be taken by the members in July, August, and September, the first of these being scheduled for July 13. A junior department of the club is to be organized next year. The officers besides Mrs. Saul are: Vice president, Frederick Hager, and secretary and treasurer, Mrs. Marene Christianson.

The flower show of the La Grange Garden club was held yesterday. A wide variety of colorful exhibits was on view. Meetings of this club are conducted on the first Monday of each month. The officers are: President, Mrs. David L. Meyers; vice president, Mrs. J. A. Gardner, and secretary and treasurer, Mrs. A. C. Dallagh.

Wins Armour Degre

J. M. VEGGEBERG.

[De Haven Photo.]

The degree of mechanical engineer was granted to Julian Maurice Veggeberg, 2122 North Keystone avenue, at the graduation exercises at Armour Institute of Technology for his solution of the surge problem arising in connection with the Wilson avenue water tunnel. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Veggeberg, gave a dinner for him on June 6 at Hotel La Salle.

Northwest Commerce Body.

The Northwest chamber of commerce will hear Michael Flicht, Logan Square civic leader, at its luncheon tomorrow at the Irving Park Boulevard Y. M. C. A. Mrs. Anne Adams is entertainment chairman for the meeting.

ORGANIZE CLUB TO BOOST TRADE IN PORTAGE PARK

Members See Big Center at Six Corners.

Business men of Portage Park, seeking to make the six corners at Irving Park boulevard and Milwaukee and Cicero avenues the shopping center of the northwest side, are organizing the Portage Park Commercial club, through which they hope to obtain unified effort of all the merchants in building up that business district.

The committee on organization hopes to have 100 merchants signed up by July 1, according to Alfred L. Slade, one of the organizers. Others who, with Mr. Slade, form the nucleus of the new group are William King, Alfred Le Roy, P. H. Cleven and Julius Kagan. These men are drawing up a set of by-laws for the club and mapping out a tentative plan of action, Mr. Slade said yesterday.

Concentrate on Aiding Trade.

Since the Northwest chamber of commerce looks after the civic affair of the northwest side, the Portage Park group will center its efforts toward improving only that district bounded by Byron street and Lavergne, Berteau, and Kenton avenues.

"Other shopping centers on the northwest side have, through business organizations, built up attractive business streets, and brought large and high class stores to their districts," Mr. Slade said. "While individual merchants can do little for the six corners, our organization hopes to initiate a program for building business and boosting the district.

"We must have an organization in order to stage pageants and community sales and to advertise our district as a shopping center. Furthermore, something must be done immediately if our district is to have the trade and prosperity which it should have by virtue of its excellent physical features," he concluded.

Seek Fund of $2,500.

Memberships in the commercial club are being sold at $25, the aim being to start work with $2,500, which will be used entirely for promotional purposes.

It is planned to meet monthly at the Irving Park Y. M. C. A., 4251 Irving Park boulevard. The date of the next meeting has not yet been set.

OLD TIME RESIDENTS OF NORTHWEST SIDE OBSERVE GOLDEN DAY

JOHN HEINLEIN.

MRS. JOHN HEINLEIN.

Mr. and Mrs. John Heinlein, 816 North Marshfield avenue, observed the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding on June 8, with their son and a score of relatives and friends. Mr. and Mrs. Heinlein were married in Cincinnati. They are old time residents of the northwest side, having been at their present address twenty-two years. Mr. Heinlein was born in Cincinnati and his wife in Germany.

Present at the golden wedding celebration were their son, E. J. Heinlein, and his wife; their four grandchildren, Miss Louise, Miss Anna, Miss Gertrude and Edward Heinlein; their niece, Mrs. Mary Davis of Ohio; their grandniece, Mrs. Edna Dennison of Ohio; their grandnephew, Frank Boggs and his wife of Ohio, and the following friends: Mr. and Mrs. Frank White, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Smtih of Oak Park; Mr. and Mrs. John Frye of Oak Park; Mr. and Mrs. Joe Dickman and their family, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Scott, Mr. and Mrs. Pete Nordie and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Eisenmann and their family. Several other friends also joined in the celebration.

Portage Park Delegates.

J. Leslie Hanson, A. Slade, E. Schreyer, George McGuire, Joseph M. Meyer, and Richard B. Hart will represent the Portage Park Lions club at the international convention in Louisville, Ky., June 18-21.

38 SENIORS AT ROOSEVELT HAVE AVERAGE OVER 90

Graduation Exercises to Be Held June 27.

Of the 264 senior students who will graduate from the Roosevelt High school this month, 38 have an average of 90 per cent or better. James T. Gaffney, principal, announced last week. This record was made over a period of four years. The commencement exercises will be held Thursday evening, June 27, in the auditorium of the school building, 3436 Wilson avenue.

In addition to the presentation of the diplomas, the awarding of R. O. T. C. commissions and the announcement of scholarships will be made by Mr. Gaffney. It is not known whether William J. Bogan, superintendent of schools, will be able to make the commencement address, Alfred H. Clarke, assistant principal in charge of graduation plans said. Mr. Bogan, who will attend an education convention at that time, has promised to give the address if it is possible.

Senior Prom Is Held.

The annual senior prom was given Friday evening in the ballroom of the Sovereign hotel, 6200 North Kenmore avenue. Officers of the class, who were in charge of the ball, are: President, Sol Porte; vice president, George Hill; secretary, Louis Petrie, and treasurer, Don Mandelblatt. Class day exercises, at which members of the 4B class are welcomed into the 4A class, will be held next week.

Miss Hortense Klein, with a four year average of 94.43 per cent, heads the list of 38 honor students. The honor students are: Anna Dorothy Dorkovic, Muriel Loraine Schreiber, Rose Alice Kaufman, Leonard Herman Davidson, Louise Marie Kalk, Minnette Jeanne Hamburg, Jacob Theodore Mauer, Lillian Louise Hedler, Olav Larsen, Francis Kessler, Ruth Karasik, Pearl B. PARENTS GIVE PICNIC FOR BAND OF SCHURZ HIGH

The boys of the R. O. T. C. band of Schurz High school were guests of their parents at a picnic yesterday in the forest preserve. This was the first activity of a booster club of parents, organized at a recent meeting.

Temporary officers are Mrs. D. C. Mabie, 5365 Warner avenue, chairman, and Mrs. W. E. Gimbel, secretary. Permanent officers will be elected in the fall. The object of the group is to give financial and moral support to the band.

Offer Physical Tests for Prospective Pupils

A summer roundup will be held next Wednesday under the auspices of the Parent-Teacher association of Lovett school, 6333 Bloomingdale avenue. Children of school age will be examined by child specialists at the school. A thorough canvas of the district has been made, according to Mrs. Edward Smidl, press chairman. The president of the association is Mrs. Mary Ernsting and the chairman of the summer roundup committee, Mrs. G. Houtsinger.

THREE WEST SIDE WARDS BRIGHTEN WITH NEW LIGHTS

Turn On Lamps in 30th This Week.

Approximately $425,000 is being spent by the city this summer in providing modern street lamps for three west side wards, officials of the department of gas and electricity announced yesterday.

Residential streets of the 30th ward will be brightened this week when the new system of 716 lamps is turned on. 688 new lamps will have been installed in the 39th ward by July 1, and 724 additional lights will be installed in the 41st ward some time next month.

New Lights Are Better.

A total of 2,128 lamps will be installed. The new lamps, costing approximately $200 each, contain 250 candlepower globes and are mounted on 12.6 foot poles. Five posts are being put up in each block. Better lighting is provided than by the old lamps, engineers of the department say, since the old ones are mounted on poles from 20 to 26 feet high, and there are only three to the block.

Lights have been installed on the following streets in the 30th ward:

Mason, Mayfield, Menard, Waller and Central avenues between Adams and Madison streets; Mason, Mayfield, Mansfield and Menard avenues, between Roosevelt road and Lexington street; Arthington and Fillmore streets between Austin and Menard avenues; the entire district bounded by Harrison and Madison streets and Lavergne and Cicero avenues [except these streets], and the inside streets in the district bounded by Chicago, North, Kenton, and Crawford avenues.

Install Lamps in 39th.

In the 39th ward lamps will be installed in the districts bounded by Harlem, Natoma, Diversey, and Belmont avenues; by Roscoe street, Oak Park avenue, Addison street, and Natoma avenue; by Austin, Belmont, and Parkside avenues, and Addison street; by Diversey, Belmont, and Kolmar avenues and the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific railroad; and by Diversey, Kostner, and Keeler avenues, and Altgeld street.

The following sections of the 41st ward will have new lights; the district bounded by Irving Park boulevard, Harlem and Narragansett avenues, and Addison street; by Bryn Mawr, Milwaukee, Foster, and Elston avenue, and by Pratt, Onarga, Harlem and Oketa avenues.

NEW PRESIDENT IS INSTALLED BY CATHOLIC CLUB

District officers, junior members, and junior officers were guests of the Irving Park Catholic Woman's club at the annual luncheon held at the Parkway hotel.

Msgr. Joseph A. Casey of Mount Carmel church was the principal speaker. About 200 guests were present. Mrs. William Wermuth, 1436 Jonquil terrace, the new president, received the gavel from Mrs. Lawrence M. Marley, 4005 Irving Park boulevard, retiring president.

Mrs. Wermuth has appointed the following women as committee chairmen for the coming year:

Art, Mrs. Joseph F. Szcescycki; American home, Mrs. John Dalton; citizenship, Mrs. Minchin Lewis; community service, Mrs. William Lerch; education, Mrs. Harry Baldwin; junior, Mrs. Burrell Cramer; literature, Mrs. Lawrence Marley; drama, Mrs. William Hall; music, Mrs. Charles Fritz; press, Mrs. John Spencer; public health and child welfare, Mrs. George Peterson; philanthropy, Mrs. Alistair Mackenzie; program, Mrs. Jacob Hank; social, Mrs. Leonard Kreissl; house, Mrs. A. C. Fairbanks; membership, Mrs. William Berg; auditing, Mrs. Theodore Hinske; coöperation with war veterans, Mrs. Mary Castello; visiting, Mrs. Edwin Thomas; budget, Mrs. Frank Wejtalewicz.

Church Group Ends Season.

The Christian Mothers of Our Lady of Victory church of Portage Park held their final meeting of the season Thursday evening. After conference and benediction, the members held a short business meeting followed by cards. Mrs. V. J. Bastian Sr., 2150 Lincoln avenue, is president.

BROPHY POST AND FORGES TO PLAY BASEBALL GAME

Teams to Clash at Legion Picnic Today.

James G. Brophy post, No. 195, of the American Legion, has accepted the challenge of Forges post to a game of indoor baseball to be played today at Forges woods, 95th street and Archer avenue. Commander Al Brodie has announced that the game will be played as one of the features of a basket picnic to which the wives, sweethearts and children of members are invited.

"If you drive out," said Commander Brodie, "take route 4-A, Archer avenue, to 95th street, turn left on gravel road for about two blocks and you are there. Let's all go out and get together for one day of fun. Bring a basket of chow as you will get plenty hungry. Buttermilk will be served in the cans."

The lineup for Brophy post will be as follows:

Doc Renn, pitcher; Ed McCabe, catcher; Pat McCullough, first base, Jim McCune, second base; Art Husbands, third base; Jim Shealy, shortstop; Humphrey Sullivan, center field; Joe Ratigan, left field; Bert Carey, right field; Ed McGinnis, ball tosser, Bob McSweeney, locker boy; Joe Blaha bat boy; Tom Cunningham, water boy, Sarg Timmons, umpire; Ray Keegan, scorekeeper; Ald. F. E. Konkoski, trainer; Frank Lorden, cadger; Al Brodie, food inspector.

The judges of events will be Joseph Savage, James Coughlin, Martin Ward and Oscar Caplin. Red Cross nurses will be supplied by Mary Conway, president of Brophy auxiliary.

The recent death of Charles Levy, police chief of Berwyn, and a Legionnaire, has caused Berwyn post, No. 422, to adopt a resolution which said in part:

"Be it resolved that we, the members of the American Legion, Berwyn post, No. 422, do offer ourselves, our services, and our support collectively and individually, to the authorities of the city of Berwyn, for the enforcement and maintenance of law and order.

"Be it further resolved that if at any time we may aid, assist, or supplement the policing of this city, the constituted authorities may call upon us for our wholehearted support and coöperation."

La Grange post, No. 41, will receive tomorrow night the Allen Gilbert award in token of that post's having carried on the most outstanding community service during the last year of all posts in Illinois.

SUMMER TO BE BEST IN RADIO, EXPERT CLAIMS

High Power Conquers Old Bugaboo—Static.

CINCINNATI, O.—Summer is faced this year by radio manufacturers and broadcasters with more optimism than ever before in the history of the industry, according to Powel Crosley, radio expert. Summer radio as a separate entity is no more.

That "summer radio," as a separate and fearful factor in the radio industry is no more, is due more, perhaps, to the attitude of the radio listeners rather than to that of the manufacturers and broadcasters.

"Previous to last summer it was the custom of manufacturers to shut down their plants following the Christmas rush and not to begin operations again until time to prepare for the fall business," Mr. Crosley said. "With the coming of hot weather broadcasters revised their programs and cut expensive features to the bone. They made little or no effort to retain the better commercial accounts and thus materially contributed to the slump.

Fans Play Part.

"On the other hand, owners of radio receivers continued to use them through the summer months and in so doing found that better apparatus brought about better summer reception. As improved receivers were brought out each fall and the purchasers continued to use them during the following summer, it was noticed that reception was better. Listeners also brought about increases in power and thus struck a hard blow to summer static. Always quick to realize the advantages to them of a few extra watts in a station's power, they sent letters of praise to the broadcasters who added this power and neglected those who did not. As a result the more progressive of the broadcasters added even more power, and static became less disturbing.

Many New Listeners.

"Last summer was the most successful in radio history, both from a business and from a broadcasting angle. Some say that the season had a false stimulus due to the national political conventions and campaign and that business and broadcasting will fall off in 1929. This is not true, the stimulus given radio by the exceptional features of last summer will continue. These features brought hundreds, yea, thousands of new listeners into the radio field and taught them that summer radio is just as interesting as winter radio. Accordingly, these new converts will be at the loud speaker this summer listening to the good musical and other features just as they sat and listened to the politicians in 1932."

Inside the Loud Speaker

BY QUIN RYAN.

The Dempsey-Firpo fight took place on Friday evening, Sept. 14, 1923. Although it lasted only one round and fifty-seven seconds, it was one of the most thrilling of Dempsey's encounters. It was the first time that the mauler was knocked from his feet in the ring. We undertake to present it in radio broadcast lingo this morning.

Firpo was the Argentinian giant who came to America obsessed with the idea of capturing the heavyweight boxing crown. A series of preliminary fights demonstrated his ability as a worthy foe, and Tex Rickard matched him with the champion.

Now, let the announcer tell you the story.

ANNOUNCER—Good evening, ladies and gentlemen. This is W-G-N broadcasting direct from the Polo grounds in New York City.

We're down here next to the ring that Tex Rickard has set up near what corresponds to second base when the Giants are at home playing baseball in this big playground. It's after 10 o'clock here in New York and only the ring with its battery of Kleig lights playing over it, is illuminated. Ninety thousand fight fans are accommodated here in the semi-darkness, and they've been screaming and shouting for hours as one preliminary fight after another went its weary way.

Now the jam in the ring is subsiding, and Announcer Joe Humphries, the man with the megaphone voice, is waving his hat for silence. He's introducing Firpo, the "Wild Bull of the Pampas," Joe calls him, and the crowd shouts—listen to them! Now, Humphries is waving Jack Dempsey, the champion, to his feet, and the crowd goes mad once more. In a few moments the big fight will be under way. It's just a minute or two after 10 o'clock here in New York City.

Watch the ring, now—that's where all the excitement. The photographer and the camp followers are clearing out—only Firpo and Lavelle and Vega, his Argentinian friends, remain in one corner and Dempsey and Jack Kearns and Barney Dempsey are in the champion's angle of the arena. Johnny Gallagher, the referee, is summoning the men to the center of the ring for their instructions. It's to be fifteen rounds to a judges' decision, for a purse of $500,000 at least. The heavyweight boxing championship of the world is at stake. Johnny is motioning with his hands as he talks. Now, they're going back to their corners—in Dempsey's corner Kearns is rubbing the champion's chest and together they are staring across the ring at Firpo, whose might right hand is now incased in the red leather of a boxing glove.

It will be just a few moments more now. There's the whistle! That means seconds out of the ring. Kearns is outside the ropes, and across the ring Lavelle and Vega are giving Firpo last minute advice in Spanish. Now, they're out!

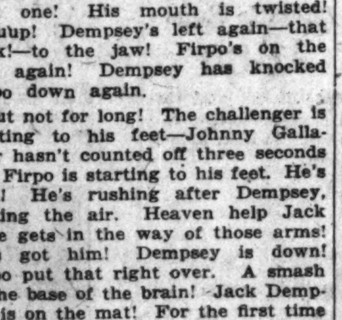
[Gong.]

There's the bell! Round one!

Both men are out of their seats and in the center of the ring, and Dempsey is letting go with both hands—rights to the heart and lefts to the head. Firpo is swinging his arms like a pair of flails. This is not a boxing match—it's a fight! Zowie! Dempsey crushed Luis that time with a stiff left to the mouth! Now Firpo is swinging that great right hand, but Dempsey is dodging and ducking and weaving in under it and using his guard. It's sock and get socked all the way through! Dempsey is lathering Firpo with right handers to the heart. And there's a sock on the chin, and Firpo is down! The Argentinian is on the mat! Johnny Gallagher jumps in and his arm swings down once, twice, but Firpo is up and after Dempsey like a mad bull, like the Wild Bull of the Pampas that he is, his two arms waving before him like the sails on a windmill.

Dempsey drives home another punch to the heart, but Firpo is coming right back for more. O! Look out for that right hand, Jack! Luis just swung one from his back that nearly grazed Dempsey's chin—the champ got out of the way just in time. Now they're in a clinch, but that won't last long. Owww! Firpo crashed through Jack's defense with a right hander to the heart. Jack is scowling! It hurt! Now Dempsey is tearing in once more, the same course; rights to the body and that Dempsey left hook to the head!



Firpo is banging away with that right hand. He's fighting his own kind of a fight — slug and get slugged. He drives a right hander to Dempsey's head—Oww! There's Dempsey's left, a hook from the elbow, and Firpo is crumpling up again—he's down! Firpo is down for the second time in this mad first round! Gallagher is counting off the seconds—from Firpo's corner come mad shouts in Spanish for him to wait for the count of nine, bu the Mad Bull just shakes himself and rises to his feet. Once again the sluggish brain gets that right arm set for a killing blow, and he rushes after Dempsey—the bristling black hair is wet and sweaty now, but still he keeps on—he's not hurt! Ow! He drives that right against Dempsey's head, but the champion ducks and sends home a right to the Bull's heart—Luis felt that one! His mouth is twisted! Whuup! Dempsey's left again—that hook!—to the jaw! Firpo's on the mat again! Dempsey has knocked Firpo down again.

But not for long! The challenger is starting to his feet—Johnny Gallagher hasn't counted off three seconds and Firpo is starting to his feet. He's mad! He's rushing after Dempsey, beating the air. Heaven help Jack if he gets in the way of those arms! He's got him! Dempsey is down! Firpo put that right over. A smash at the base of the brain! Jack Dempsey is on the mat! For the first time in his championship career, he's been knocked down. But he's conscious! He's waiting for the count. Gallagher is tolling off the seconds. Firpo has retired to one side of the ring, waiting for the champion to get up. The crowd has gone mad! Four . . . Five . . . Six . . . Dempsey is getting up, he's getting to his feet. He's been regaining his strength by that rest on the mat. Now he's on his feet, and Firpo steps out again. Jack is crouching down, waiting for the big Argentinian! There's a right! Dempsey shoots a right to the heart! And now—Oww! That left again! FIRPO IS DOWN! Dempsey has knocked Firpo down again! The Argentinian is on the mat! He's not bounding up like a rubber ball this time—he's waiting for the count—one, two, three, four, five, six, seven, eight, nine. He's on his feet! Now he's gritting his teeth and charging forward again! All he knows is to charge! The arms are waving again, and—Gee! Dempsey felt that one! Firpo shook the champion to his toes with that right hander to the head. Jack is socking right back, but backing away—Firpo is bearing down on the champion—now he's got Jack over against the ropes. That right hand is beating down like a club—punch, punch, punch; and Dempsey drives back, and Whuup!

Ow! Firpo has knocked Dempsey out of the ring! A right hand to the head! He's landed in the laps of the newspaper men! Hear that din! Johnny Gallagher is so surprised that he hasn't started to count! Now Dempsey is crawling back into the ring. Clambering over the heads of the newspaper men. He's back in the ring, still on the mat, he's going to take the count. Three, says Referee Gallagher, four . . . five . . . six . . . seven—Dempsey is getting up. . . . Jack is groggy—as Firpo comes forward, he grabs those big arms and he's holding—Jack Dempsey is holding on! Now they're breaking and Dempsey is backing away, his arms dropping at his side—and Firpo is driving home that great right hand! Jack Kearns is yelling at Dempsey to bring up his guard. Now they're clinching! Away again, and they're slugging! Dempsey has gone into a clinch. Firpo has him groggy! It may be all over! Dempsey is still holding on.

[Gong!] There's the bell. That's the end of round one! Whew! What a scrap! Science has been tossed to the winds—they're just two cavemen in their fighting. We've been told all about that right hand of Firpo's—and it certainly is a sledge hammer. Listen to that mob. Ninety thousand of them on their feet and cheering madly. There's the whistle. The fighters sit there, waiting for round two.

[Gong!]. There's the bell. Round two. Dempsey is out of his corner in a flash. That one minute rest has been enough, Dempsey is himself again! He's crouching, waiting for the first of those rights that Firpo deals out— the only punch that he carries—Oww! Dempsey has pushed the right away, and he's landing a bunch of lefts and rights to the body and head. Dempsey is still the champion by a long shot! Firpo is swinging his arms, but Dempsey is getting in under them with murderous rights to the stomach, that are making Luis twitch with agony. Ohhh! Dempsey landed a pair of lefts to the head! Luis managed to sneak over that right hand, but it's barely touched Dempsey's head—the champ is dodging and ducking and weaving and twisting about as only he knows how! Whuup! There's another left to Firpo's mouth! Blood is dribbling down the Argentinian's unshaven chin! And they continue to slug! Ow! Dempsey drove two lefts into Firpo's body.

The challenger is down. Firpo is on the mat again! Those lefts seemed to bury themselves in his vitals. Now he's twisting there on the mat—he's coming up again—bleeding and groggy—yes! He's groggy! Now he's on his feet, and Dempsey is fighting his kind of fight. They're slugging each other with everything they've got. Kearns is yelling to Jack to keep his guard high—Firpo gets through a right hand again — but Dempsey brushes it away—the steam's gone out of it, I guess—Dempsey is tearing in—rights and lefts to the body and head—Firpo can't hold on—he can only hit with that right—he tries again—but Dempsey is in there first with the punch. There's the right! Look out, Luis! Dempsey cracked Firpo with a hard right hander to the chin, and Firpo's arms fly up in the air in instinctive protection—two lefts to the body! Firpo is going down—he's on the mat!—he's lying on his face—it looks like the end this time—slowly Referee Gallagher is counting off the seconds. . . . two . . . three . . . . four . . . . five . . . . Firpo's body is twitching and now he rolls over on his back. His face is twisted with pain, claret trickles from his mouth, his eyes are closed. His arms—that mighty right arm—are lying at his side—powerless . . . still the count—seven . . . eight . . . . the crowd is silent—nine . . . . ten!

Jack Dempsey is still champion of the world! He has knocked out Luis Angel Firpo!

TWO NEW RADIO PROGRAMS ADDED TO TRIB STATION

One Is Daily and One Is Weekly Feature.

Two new radio programs, one daily and one weekly, both of a reminiscent nature, were announced this week by Henry Selinger, program director of W-G-N, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE station.

Beginning Saturday, and continuing every Saturday evening, the W-G-N players, under the direction of Harry W. Spingold, are reviving old time plays in a series called "Old Time First Nights."

"The Count of Monte Cristo," in which James O'Neill, father of Eugene O'Neill, starred; "The Two Orphans," "Richelieu," "Lena Rivers," and other famous productions of thirty and forty years ago will be included in the répertoire of the W-G-N players.

By way of novelty, Old First Nighter will attend each of the plays with his daughter, and will re-create for her and for radio listeners the various theaters as they appeared when O'Neill, Joseph Jefferson, and others of the old school strode the boards in their premieres. Jean Conover is adapting the plays to radio presentation. The curtain rises every Saturday at 8.

At once new and old, "'Way Back When," a combination of spoken reminiscences and old fashioned music, is the other W-G-N feature introduced this week. It is broadcast every evening at 10:10, the time at which the Hungry Five went on the air previous to their vacation.

"In the Good Old Summer Time," "Little Annie Rooney," "On a Bicycle Built for Two," and similar tunes from pre-automobile days help to recaller the 'way-back-whens of W-G-N listeners.

Meanwhile, resting up in Wisconsin before they begin their new amusement park engagement, Louie's Hungry Five have forgotten "Ach! Du Lieber Augustin" and "Schnapps Waltz" and are concentrating on fishing, pretzels, and near beer.

MUSIC BREEZES

The breeziness of a bus-top—the gayety of pretty girls at the prom—the crispness of dawn—all have been turned into music by that wizard, Goldkette. Through your loudspeaker comes the spirit of the New Music. Your fingers tingle as you listen. You want to laugh with the tunes. Notes race. Notes scamper. Notes make a crooked design. The trumpets sputter little notes. The trombones bellow large, organ-like notes. The director grins with delight as the clarinets hurry through two octaves and half way back. Three times today Jean Goldkette and his W-G-N Dance Orchestra reach their dancing climax 1:30, 2:25, and 11 P. M.

NAME ....

ADDRESS ....

BLUE NOTES

Three whispering voices and a deep guitar. Tom, Dick and Harry sing old songs, new songs or songs that are rich with music. Smooth and round—quick and dexterous—each measure punctuated with the resonant voice of the guitar. Tom, Dick and Harry make all their own arrangements, and they know how to sing them. Hear the three snappy artists at 5:30 and 11 P. M.

KIDS

Listen, kids. The composers who have great names now were children once. They ran around and broke windows and made their mothers nervous, just like you. Besides, they didn't forget it. Once when Mr. Tschaikowski remembered he had been a child, he wrote a group of pieces to a Nutcracker! Can you imagine! A Nutcracker! Mr. Gaston du Moulin, who was little once, too, leads the W-G-N Symphony Orchestra as they play it. 5:45 P. M.

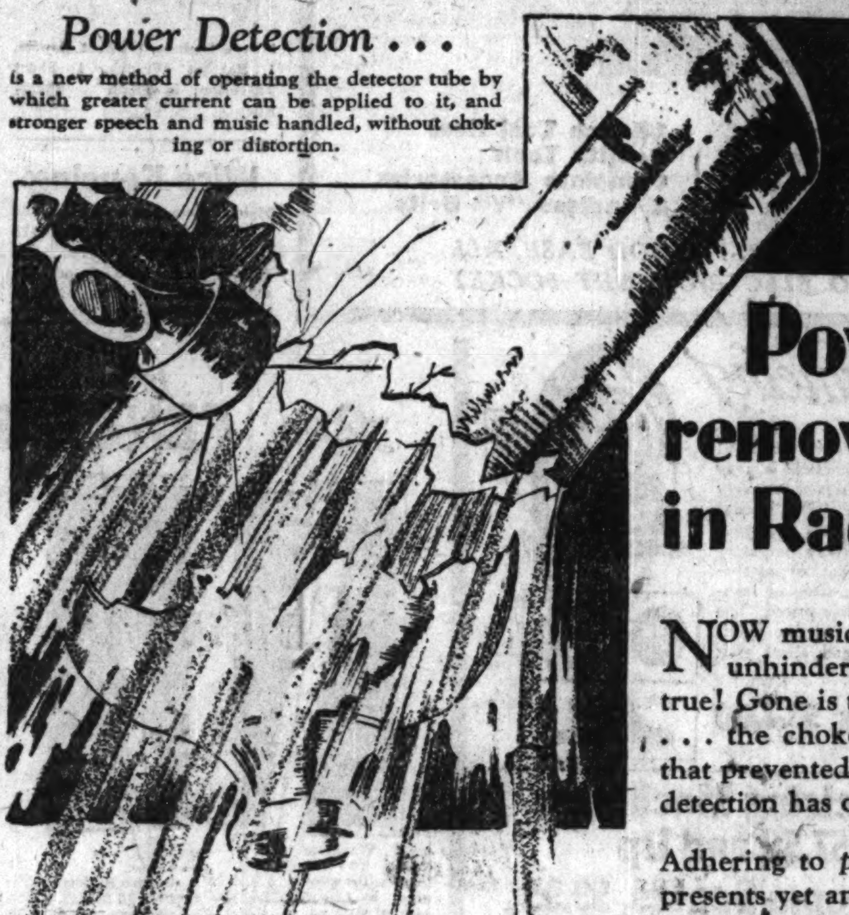
Power Detection . . .

is a new method of operating the detector tube by which greater current can be applied to it, and stronger speech and music handled, without choking or distortion.



Majestic

Power Detection removes the "Bottle-neck" in Radio Reception . . .

NOW music can sweep gloriously through the radio, unhindered and undistorted . . . complete, satisfying, true! Gone is the "throttling" action of old style detection . . . the choked, fuzzy effect on medium and low notes that prevented absolute realism. In Majestic Radio, power detection has opened up the "bottle-neck."

Adhering to proved tubes and proved circuits, Majestic presents yet another remarkable development in its Automatic Equal Sensitivity Control. Maximum range and power at the low waves . . . at the high waves . . . without need of touching other than tuning knob while finding stations.

Majestic's Anniversary Models . . . new Mighty Monarchs of the Air just released . . . present a combination of beauty, range and power unequaled by any other radio set at any price! Let the nearest Majestic Dealer demonstrate Models 91 and 92 . . . he will be glad to put one in your home for trial . . . no obligation.

$25 Allowance for Your Old Washer on a New MAYTAG

WOMEN may choose from over a hundred different makes of washers, but 400 per cent more Maytags are purchased than the next fastest selling washer. Because of this large production and long experience, the Maytag can give you a seamless cast aluminum tub, containing 36 pounds of pure aluminum, also such superior features as the Gyrafoam washing action and the Roller Water Remover — a combination of advantages obtainable only in the Maytag.

$25 Allowance for Your Old Icebox on a New WAYNE Mechanical Refrigerator

IN ORDINARY refrigeration ice melts and its efficiency gradually decreases with the melting. Mechanical Refrigeration not only keeps foods sufficiently cold at all times, but also keeps a constant supply of dainty cubes of ice always on hand. The cubes are just the right size for glasses. Special trays are provided for this service, and your regular drinking water can be used, thus safeguarding the purity of the ice.

Convenient budget plan puts this refrigerator in your home without delay.

TRINITY HIGH SCHOOL PRESENTS DIPLOMAS TO SWEET GIRL GRADUATES

Seniors of Trinity High school, River Forest, presented a charming picture as they marched, attired in white and laden with flowers sent by relatives and friends, into the auditorium to receive their diplomas June 6. The pictures show two sections of the academic procession. The class included seventy-one members. The Rt. Rev. Bernard James Sheil, auxiliary bishop of Chicago, delivered the address to the graduates and conferred the honors. He is shown, wearing biretta, in the picture at the right.

ASHLAND PAVING PROJECT FACES STIFF PROTESTS

Taxpayers Balk at Assuming Cost.

A hearing on the proposed paving of Ashland avenue between Roosevelt road and 22d street, a project which Michael J. Faherty, president of the board of local improvements, says must be approved, will be held at the city hall next Friday morning.

Mr. Faherty at a previous hearing on this project said that since it is an important part of the Ashland avenue improvement, classified as a major project by the Chicago Plan commission, it must not be delayed any longer. It has already been pending [illegible] years, he pointed out.

However, indications were at the last hearing that the board will have difficulty in obtaining the approval of property owners next Friday. It is likely that so many objections will be raised that the board will be forced to defer the project a year. But even if the board declared the improvement approved despite the protests, objectors made it clear that they would file a petition forcing the board to abandon the project, and if that failed, would get out an injunction restraining the board from proceeding with the work.

See No Value in Project.

Foremost among the objections raised to the project by Ald. Frank A. Sloan [26th] and property owners who would be assessed to pay for the pavement is the fact that the improvement of this stretch alone would not increase property values by bringing more traffic. Residents of the district might agree to pay for the project if street cars are run on Ashland avenue between Roosevelt road and Lake street rather than on Paulina street, as they are now.

This would make Ashland avenue a direct connecting link between the north and south sides, would increase property values, and bring business to the street. Although there is no plan on foot for such an improvement, according to the alderman, Dr. John Dill Robertson, president of the west park board, which has jurisdiction over Ashland avenue in this section, has indicated that he would coöperate to obtain one.

This, however, is only one of the objections to the improvement voiced by property owners at the last hearing, which will be reiterated next Friday.

Assessment $23 a Foot.

Ald. A. Sloan said that property owners who had received notice that they would be assessed for this improvement are in no position to pay the assessment, which, according to engineers of the city, would amount to about $23 per front foot.

They have already been assessed for the improvement of Ashland avenue north of Lake street, a project more than a mile away, but they have no assurance that property owners not immediately affected by the improvement south of Roosevelt road will help to bear the cost, he said.

Furthermore, Ald. Sloan sontinued, residents of his ward do not know what their taxes will be this year. Property in this district is probably the poorest paying of any in the city, he added, and as a result, owners are generally in financial straits.

Still Feel Roosevelt Road Tax.

Another objection to an assessment at this time, he continued, is the fact that residents of the near west side are still thinking of the heavy taxes they paid for the widening of Roosevelt road, a project which has done nothing to increase property values or bring business to the district.

[illegible] H. Huizenga, property owner of the district, said he did not object to improvements, but held that if one must pay for them, they should bring some return. Property as far south as [illegible]th street was assessed on the Ashland avenue improvement north of Lake street.

The sentiment is so strong against the improvement, according to John [illegible]thouse, another property owner, that a petition circulated only two days containing signatures of more than [illegible] per cent of the property owners.

Property in the district can neither be rented nor sold, he continued, and home owners cannot be expected to meet a special assessment.

Two Other Objections.

But, even if the improvement must be made, since Ashland avenue is an important street and part of the Chicago Plan for west side development, Ald. Sloane said in conclusion, there are still two more objections to the board's plan.

First, he said, no one will agree to paving before a new sewer is installed. Secondly, everybody in the district wants a concrete pavement rather than asphalt as the board recommends.

The cost of the paving has been estimated at $315,000 and would be borne partly by the city and partly by property owners. Mr. Faherty said the city would probably bear 40 per cent of the total cost and property owners the other 60 per cent.

ELMHURST GLEE CLUB EMBARKS ON LAST TOUR

The Elmhurst College Glee club, under the directorship of Dean John [illegible], of the school of music, left Friday on its last tour of the season which is also the longest, covering a period of two weeks.

Traveling in two large double-deck buses, the thirty men will give their first concert at Lincoln, Ill. Going to Pekin, Ill., for their second stop, the following cities will be visited in succession: Waterloo, Ia.; St. Louis, Mo.; Little Rock, Ark.; Okeene, Okla.; Independence, Kas.; Colorado Springs, Colo.; Denver, Colo.; Herndon, Kas.; St. Joe, Mo.; Hubbard, Ia.; and Fredericksburg, Ia.

START CAMPAIGN TO SIGN PLEDGES ON OBEYING LAW

The Ministers' union of Oak Park and River Forest has indorsed the law obeying pledge signing campaign as set forth by the Young People's Civic council. The object of the campaign is to gain 100,000 pledges of law observance by July 4.

Several of the churches of Oak Park have already sent out the pledges. Mrs. M. Simpson of the Young People's Civic council has made pleas in these churches. The pledge reads as follows:

"Believing, with the President, that the duty of citizens to support the law is co-equal with the duty of their government to enforce it, I solemnly covenant to obey the laws of my country so far as known to me, without reservation and without exception. In making this pledge, however, I am not surrendering my right to protest against such laws as I may disapprove, or to seek their amendment or repeal by constitutional means."

A massmeeting will be held on July 2.

Onahan P.-T. Body to Give Party for Eighth Graders

The last meeting of the season will be held Tuesday by the Parent-Teacher association of Onahan school. The seventh grade mothers will serve refreshments. A graduation party is being planned for the afternoon of June 25, at which the mothers of the 8-B class will be hostesses. The president of the association is Mrs. John Richards and the principal of the school Miss Mary I. Reynolds.

Berwyn Commerce Body Reopens Member Drive

The membership campaign of the Berwyn chamber of commerce is now in progress, Arthur A. R. Nelson, chairman of the membership committee, said yesterday. The drive, which was inaugurated some time ago, was temporarily slowed up owing to outside activities.

Wins Coveted Key

Miss Clara Grusalski, 2418 North Spaulding avenue, is one of fourteen west side students of the University of Chicago who have been elected to membership in Phi Beta Kappa.

Thirteen west side students in the University of Chicago have been elected, with forty-two others, to membership in Phi Beta Kappa, national scholarship fraternity, according to an announcement made at the university last week.

They are:

Van V. Alderman, 3929 North Keeler avenue.
Lester Asher, 3247 Douglas boulevard.
Jacob Cohen, 2047 West Division street.
Miss Clara Grusalski, 2418 North Spaulding avenue.
Miss Mary E. Herzog, 125 South Catherine avenue, La Grange.
Charles S. Saltzman, 923 North Sacramento boulevard.
Arnold B. Schlachet, 5430 West Monroe street.
Bernard Weinberg, 5512 West Van Buren street.
Miss Belle H. Lieberman, 1212 South Harding avenue.
Frank H. Detweiler, Aurora, Ill.
Lawrence S. Jacobson, 1455 North Ashland avenue.
Donald B. McGuiness, 824 North Grove avenue, Oak Park.
James M. Stickney, La Grange.

The fifty-five students who won the coveted key of the society included juniors who have maintained an average of "A minus" or higher, some seniors whose averages are slightly less than "A minus," and five elected "in recognition of clear evidence of intellectual service, leadership, and scholarly attainments."

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

BY FRED PASLEY.

"YOU will always find Otto Berz on his toes except when he goes over his horse's head," advises T. W. Barker truthfully, speaking of our popular undertaker and president of the West Town Chamber of Commerce. "Still," he adds, referring to Otto's cropper at his Michigan summer home, "Otto is well upholstered, so a sudden contact with terra firma was not as jarring as might have been." Well, anyway, Otto, nature loves a fat man.

We are glad to announce that Mr. and Mrs. Bernard H. Superfine are in their new home at 32 North Lorel avenue and are receiving the congratulations of their many friends on its appointments. Mr. Superfine is with the Madison and Kedzie State bank and his fellow workers were guests at the Superfine house warming.

An interesting debate was held at Progressive lodge, we learn through Brother Zoch, George Loach, the organist, upholding the negative and Samuel Anderson, the carpenter, the affirmative. The theme was, "Resolved —How to Miter a Molding to 45 Degrees," and Sam was acclaimed winner by a city square.

Ben Graham, superintendent of the Jefferson park district, says Gladstone park is the finest on the northwest side of our village. "Yes, sir," Ben declared, "we've got a wonderful bed of flowers in the park, which no one expected us to have. We put it in just before Decoration day. We've got benches there, too, which we let people sit on and enjoy the moonlight."

Al Dillon has definitely retired as a civic uplifter in semi-pro baseball to enter the brawn industry at 30 South Michigan avenue, we are reliably informed by Tommy Wren. Al was a pitcher of note with the West Ends, the Joliet Standards, Buck's Colts, and St. Patrick's. His new factory is known as the Illinois Olympian club.

NEIGHBOR A. G. TRAYE, who runs the Park Ridge speakeasy when he isn't hoeing in his garden, deposes that a bunch of radishes, which have a retail value of about a nickel, when raised in one's own backyard at an expense of not less than $3 in time, thought, and manual labor, become as pearls beyond price with a flavor incomparable. Righto, A. G.

Incidentally, Prof. Frank Ridgway, dean of agriculture in THE TRIBUNE faculty and popular resident of Evanston, cradle of the W. C. T. U., was attacked by a rabbit last Sunday and chewed on the finger. Frank says he is off prohibition.

O. Rhodius Elofson, secretary of the Logan Square Kiwanis, and proprietor of the well known photograph gallery, has moved from 2602 to 2532 Milwaukee avenue, where he is again prepared to receive the grownups and greet the children with "Shee the birdie."

IF the warm weather continues, says the optimistic Joe Gubbins, the wading pools for kiddies at each of the parks in the northwest district will be opened. Which will be pretty nice.

Again referring to the advantages of the western over the north side suburbs, Col. Lillian K. Shattuck of Glen Ellyn asserts there has never been a time in the history of Al Chase's home town when so many different kinds of birds have visited the yards and gardens. She reports a scarlet tanager, a Baltimore oriole, and a wild canary, while children of the C. O. M. club on an outing saw 35 different species.

HARRY E. BYRAM, fellow townsman, has barred the venerable red flannel shirt from the wardrobes of section hands on his road, the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific. "We found they were too often mistaken for danger signals," said Harry, wiping away a sentimental tear.

Mrs. Victor A. Brodsky, 3307 Warren boulevard, is the mother of a pretty baby girl, Phyllis Merle, seven pounds and five and a half ounces, born June 8 at Grant hospital.

Monthly Golf Matches Planned by Midwest Club

The golf committee of the Midwest Athletic club is planning a tournament every month for members and their friends. The golf committee is made up of the following: M. B. Cummins, chairman; T. J. Prodie, vice chairman; V. E. Adland, C. L. Broxham, Stanley Case, Bert Collett, Lewis Davis, Dennis Madden, Dr. E. G. Nelson, Egbert Schrik, John Schrik, and Ray R. Simpson.

GRADUATE

MISS FRANCES LAWTON.

[Gibson-Casebeer Photo.]

Several students from the west side and the west suburbs were graduated last Wednesday from National Kindergarten and Elementary college in Evanston.

Among those receiving the degree of bachelor of education were Miss Dorothy Beatty of Hinsdale and Miss Miss Helen Christeson of Oak Park.

Kindergarten-elementary diplomas were given to Miss Jane Allen of La Grange; Miss Alberta Campbell, 1239 North Austin boulevard; Miss Francis Lawton of Hinsdale, Miss Ethel B. Wright of La Grange, Miss Virginia Zoelle of Elmhurst, and Miss Marie Redmond, 120 North Lotus avenue.

GLEE CLUBS OF HARRISON HIGH GIVE OPERETTA

The glee clubs of Harrison High school presented "The Crimson Star," an operetta, on June 8. Other performances were given previously. Students taking part included Miss Beulah Jelinek, Miss Florence Gustafson, Joseph Belman, Max Terry, Miss Julia Brown, Miss Mildred Moss, Harold Bergman, Jack Besserer, Miss Bessie Balaban, Miss Georgianna Roucek, Frank Hnatek, Edward Nadle, Miss Sarah Berkovitz, Miss Helen Baccash, William Abramchick, Milton Kodash, Leslie Liss, Hyman Adler, and Miss Edith Leifer. Miss Celia Campbell, Harrison, music teacher, directed, assisted by Miss Milada Krametbauer. Miss Elizabeth Pestinek and Miss Bernice Weisler were prompters.

An edition of 24 pages, the largest known high school newspaper, was issued last Wednesday by the students of York Community High school, Elmhurst. Eight pages were devoted to a sepia picture section, containing photos of the school and campus, the various classes and the outstanding events of the year.

The remainder of the paper was divided into two sections, the news section and the sport section. The news section contained editorials, advice to the freshmen, faculty opinions on different topics, and a complete club and organization program for the last year.

The sport section consisted of the year in sports, the feature page contained society, literary review, aviation, radio, motion picture and scientific notes. The contributors' page was also in this section, with articles written by the students.

This special edition represents the work of over one hundred students. More than 1,000 pounds of paper and several gallons of ink were used in making the 5,000 copies.

The advertising was entirely sold out in one week by J. W. Bragsted Jr., who was also the publisher of the paper. During the year he sold enough advertising to keep "York-Hi" out of debt and has financed a new office for the paper.

DENY FORGERY CHARGE IN MOVE FOR REZONING

Property owners on Pine avenue between Chicago avenue and Huron street will appear before the city council committee on buildings and zoning tomorrow morning to repudiate charges that a petition to rezone their block contains forged names and was completed by means of other "irregularities," as was charged by a resident of the block recently.

The petition now in the hands of the committee contains the names of 84 per cent of the property owners in the block, and asks that the zoning classification be changed to permit the construction of apartment houses between a line 125 feet north of Huron street and a line 125 feet south of Chicago avenue. Present zoning permits the construction of residences only.

Property owners under the leadership of Charles Post, a resident at 741 North Pine avenue for 40 years; Ebbert E. Russell, 736 North Pine avenue, and Dr. R. W. Chilcote, 724 North Pine avenue, will ask the committee to approve the zoning change. Ald. J. H. Taylor [37th] will also be on hand to lend his support.

J. M. Gubbins, 725 North Pine avenue, told the committee at the previous hearing that he could bring in property owners whose names appear on the petition but who know nothing about it. He charged that the name of Dr. Harry V. Shaw, 709 North Pine avenue, appeared, but that Dr. Shaw had made the statement that he had not signed it.

Mr. Post yesterday produced an affidavit signed by Dr. Shaw saying that his signature on the petition is authentic.

Seek Members for Branch of Tax Reduction Group

A drive to form a Portage Park-Belmont Park branch of the Citizens' Tax Reduction association has begun, and members are being solicited in these northwest side communities. The association seeks to bring mass pressure to bear against tax increases and inequalities, and stands for consolidation of Cook county taxing bodies.

Beach Picnic to Be Held by Chicago Cycle Club

The Chicago Cycle club of 1243 South Homan avenue has chartered a special train for an excursion trip to Tremont, Ind., and Waverley Beach next Sunday. Games, races and bathing will be the order of the day. The train will leave the Illinois Central station at Roosevelt road and Michigan avenue at 9 a. m.

KINDERGARTNERS PORTRAY MOTHER GOOSE CHARACTERS

MUSIC IS MADE LARGE ITEM IN CHURCH SERVICE

Moreland Lutheran Has 3 Choruses.

BY ONEY FRED SWEET.

THE REV. G. M. RUNDHAUG.

Music has been made a most attractive feature of the services of the Moreland Lutheran church, Lotus avenue and Huron street. For many years there has been a senior chorus and a junior chorus and, during this last year there has been launched a male chorus. The musical organizations are under the direction of David Nyvall Jr. The organist is Mrs. Thelma Michelsen.

The last program before the vacation season will be given by the senior chorus of the church next Sunday night. This chorus is heard at all of the Sunday morning services and on Sunday nights once a month. Its selections include many of the compositions of F. Melius Christiansen, director of the famous St. Olaf Lutheran choir.

The juvenile chorus, made up of boys and girls between the ages of seven and thirteen, sings only on special occasions.

The new Moreland Lutheran church is entered by a flight of stone steps, where a Gothic doorway, set as a jewel in a field of ashlar, is flanked by pylons of brick and stone and surmounted by the delicate tracery of a Gothic window. This delicate Gothic tracery is repeated in the windows of the main auditorium and again in the windows of the transepts, and are recalled in the upper part of a well designed tower.

Tower Is Connecting Link.

The tower is located on the Huron street frontage and forms a connection between the church and the parish house. The manse and the parish house have been designed in keeping with the main church, but the detail has been subdued in order to further emphasize the graceful dignity of the main structure.

The chancel is finished in Caen stone. The altar is of dark oak and is surmounted by a window in which the Good Shepherd is depicted in art glass. Between the trusses and wood beams of the roof has been introduced an acoustical ceiling which has proved its purpose in the absence of echoes. In the transepts to the left are located the choir and the organ console. The opposite transept is arranged for the visiting choir.

The new church building is the second the congregation has erected. The first place of worship at Lawler avenue and Ferdinand street, made possible through heroic sacrifice, served for many years. It was the realization of the hopes of a little handful of folk who, back in 1886, first met in their homes, then in a room in a public school, then in a store building.

Difficult to Find Site.

For a long period it was realized that a new building was needed, but the neighborhood had developed and there was scarcely any vacant property in the vicinity. Not until 1927 could satisfactory ground be purchased. In March of that year a campaign for funds was started with more than a hundred willing workers in the field, the result being that $115,000 was subscribed.

On Sunday, June 19, 1927, the ground breaking service was held. On Oct. 9, the corner stone was laid, the Rt. Rev. Dr. H. G. Stub being present to perform that sacred rite. He was assisted by the pastor—the Rev. Grant Milo Rundhaugh—Dr. Martin Anderson, and the Rev. Jesse Thorson. Fifteen hundred persons were in attendance.

On Palm Sunday, 1928, the doors were opened, the Rev. Mr. Rundhaug taking for his sermon text: "I have hallowed this house, which thou hast built, to put my name there forever; and mine eyes and my heart shall be there perpetually." Dedication of the church took place on Sunday, April 29, 1928. This occasion was attended by the Rt. Rev. Dr. J. A. Aasgaard, president of the synod, also the Rt. Rev. O. J. Preus, president of the eastern district, together with most of the pastors from the Chicago circuit. It was called "The church with the Christlike aim."

Pastor Installed in 1919.

Rejoicing with the congregation was the pastor, the Rev. Mr. Rundhaug, who was installed in 1919 and who, therefore, has been with the church for the last ten years. During that period the church has doubled in membership. He has seen the new church built. To him have come calls from some of the largest churches in the synod but he has chosen to remain with his faithful workers in the Austin neighborhood.

The Rev. Mr. Rundhaug is a graduate of St. Olaf college, Northfield, Minn., also of the United Lutheran seminary of St. Paul, Minn. He was ordained as a minister in 1916 and, before coming to Chicago, served at Alexandria, Minn.

The congregation stands high in the synod for having contributed more than its share in funds during the last eight years.

The church has had seven pastors during its existence. The Rev. Marcus Nilsen served from 1886-'89; the Rev. O. O. Wold, 1891-'92; the Rev. John Olsen, 1892-'94; the Rev. O. J. Norby, 1894-'99; the Rev. O. K. Espeseth, 1899-1907; the Rev. T. C. Thompson, 1908-'19.

Officers of the church are the Rev. G. M. Rundhaug, pastor; John A.

GERMAN-FRENCH HERO OF '76 GAVE NAME TO DE KALB

City First Was Known as Buena Vista.

Young as we are as a nation, we are old enough to have forgotten our beginnings in many cases. Day after day we tread some historic spot, time after time we repeat the name of the particular town or locality where we live nor remember what events occurred there, what heroic deeds or twists of fate caused it to be named this instead of that. In the next few weeks the Metropolitan section of The Tribune will present a series of sketches explaining the origin of many of the names now used without remembrance of why or wherefore. Herewith is an explanation of how De Kalb and De Kalb county were named.

Along with no fewer than fifteen towns and about as many counties in the United States, the City of De Kalb, in De Kalb county, was named for Baron De Kalb, a distinguished French officer, who came to this country with Lafayette, and, assisting the American colonies in the revolutionary war, was mortally wounded at the battle of Camden.

Baron Johann De Kalb was born at Huttendorf, Bavaria, in 1721. He entered the French army as a lieutenant in 1743 and became a captain in 1747 and a brigadier general in 1761. In 1768 he was sent by France on a secret mission to England's American colonies and in 1777 accompanied Lafayette to the United States and offered his services to congress. In September, 1777, he received a commission as major general and until the spring of 1780 served in New Jersey and Maryland.

Prayed for Soldier's Death.

In April, 1780, De Kalb was sent to join the southern army as second in command to Gates. Wounded at the battle of Camden, he died three days later. When a British officer sympathized with him in his last moments De Kalb said:

"I thank you for your generous sympathy, but I die the death I have always prayed for—the death of a soldier fighting for the rights of man, and though I fight no more in this world, I trust I may still be of some service to the cause of freedom.

De Kalb's name was chosen for the Illinois county when, in the winter of 1836-37, a bill was passed in the state legislature to create a county from the west half of the county of Kane, providing a majority of the legal voters in Kane should, on a given day, vote for such a new county. History records that before "the guns of the glorious Fourth came booming over the land in 1837, De Kalb was a sister in the sisterhood of counties in the great state of Illinois."

First Reserved for Indians.

Until the spring of 1835 very few white people had trod the soil of what constitutes De Kalb county. It was the home of the Indian, and the Indian agent in Chicago, backed by companies of United States troops, was authorized to drive off whites who should encroach on their land. In 1835, however, it having been noised about that the Indians were about to remove west of the Mississippi river, no further attempt was made to restrain the immigration of the whites and they poured into the county in great numbers.

Tradition has it that a company of mounted troops, engaged in assembling the Indians preparatory to their removal, camped for the night on the present site of the city of De Kalb.

The town of De Kalb, first called Buena Vista, did not progress much until the arrival of the railroad in 1853. As late as 1850, Russell Huntley, representing a company of capitalists, was offering half of the land upon which De Kalb now stands to any man who would pay $1.25 to enter it. For nearly twenty years Mr. Huntley kept a tavern at the place.

Station for Grain Wagons.

The tavern was the stopping place for teamsters from west of the Mississippi on their way to Chicago with grain. Often the proceeds of the load did not pay the expense of hauling to market. The arrival of the railroad revolutionized the business affairs of the county and a flourishing village was speedily built. Houses, we are told, sprang up as if by magic. Farmers, it is said, hardly recognized it, from one monthly visit to another.

The financial crash of 1857 impeded the town's progress for a time, but its citizens lost none of their enterprise, courage and enthusiasm. The community gave 223 of its male citizens to the Union cause during the civil war.

Early in its history, the town became known for its barbed wire factories. The invention and manufacture of the product needed on the prairie farms added much to the growth of the place. Since then have come the agricultural implement, piano, shoe, glove, nail and creamery package factories. It is the seat of the Northern Illinois State Normal school.

A picture of the Petersen children and their playmates this week won for Edna Andersen, 4744 North Kildare avenue, the first prize of $5 in The Tribune's spring picture contest for amateur photographers of the west side. The picture shows, left to right: Dorothy Engen and her lamb, Skeezix, Buddy Petersen and Rover, Lester Petersen, and Grace Petersen. The young gent in the racing auto is Henry Kluck Jr., 4337 Lawn avenue, Western Springs. His mother, Mrs. Henry Kluck, won the second prize of $3. The third prize of $2 went to Mrs. Winter, 208 Le Moyne parkway, Oak Park, for a picture of Billy Winter and his dog, Chief.

Charles, a teacher at Bancroft school, 1638 North Maplewood avenue. They expect to visit England, Scotland, Germany, Switzerland, France, and Italy. Both reside in River Forest.

PLAN RESOLUTE FIGHT TO DEFER MONROE SEWER

Maypole and Van Norman Seek Year's Delay.

A fight to the finish to defer the $2,566,000 Monroe street sewer project at least a year will be started this week by Aldermen H. C. Van Norman [27th] and George M. Maypole [28th], they announced yesterday. The aldermen asserted they will demand defeat of the ordinance for the project at the next meeting of the city council or opponents of the sewer will circulate a petition.

Disregarding demands that the project be deferred for a year, Michael J. Faherty, president of the board of local improvements, ordered the project recorded as approved at a recent hearing. Subsequently an ordinance for the sewer was recommended for passage by the council committee on judiciary and special assessment.

Cites Heavy Burden of Taxes.

Ald. Maypole, who appeared at the hearing, asked for the delay on the ground that property owners were already too heavily burdened with taxes and special assessments for other projects.

Ald. Maypole also pointed out that if Monroe street were subsequently widened as is contemplated, the street would again have to be torn up, forcing a double inconvenience on property owners.

Three Chances to Block It.

Ald. Van Norman declared the improvement would be halted either on the floor of the council, by a petition of property owners, or when it came up for approval in the County court.

Plans for the sewer call for branch sewers diverging off the main line between Fulton and Harrison streets in Peoria, Loomis, Shelton, Wood, Leavitt, and Madison streets.

Nobel School Pupils to Hear Illustrated Lecture

An illustrated lecture, "Public Schools and Their Service," will be shown by Dr. C. J. Lunak, assistant superintendent of schools, at the Nobel school, 4127 Hirsch street, Thursday. The lecture will be the feature of an evening of entertainment being prepared by graduates of the school and by pupils at the Sherwood School of Music. Mrs. E. Steege, president of the parent-teacher association, is arranging the program.

THE CHUCKLE COLUMN

High school students, send in your best laughs to the Chuckle Editor of The Tribune. Two dollars will be paid for each jingle, joke, or verse printed in the Metropolitan section. Address your contributions to the Chuckle Editor, Metropolitan section, The Tribune. Write on one side of the paper only and print your name and address plainly.

The teacher was giving a drill in the meaning of words and their opposites. "Now tell me," she began, "what is the opposite of misery?"

"Happiness," said the class in unison.

"Gladness."

"And the opposite of woe?"

"Giddap!" shouted the enthusiastic class.

She went to dad and asked him for
A brand new sealskin coat.
Said papa, "Seal is not for you."
That's why he got her goat.

GORDON ARMBRUSTER,
804 North Taylor avenue, Oak Park.

Billy—Mama, will you wash my face?

Mama—Why, Billy, can't you wash your own face?

Billy—Yes, but I'd have to wet my hands and they don't need it.

STANLEY WOJNICKI,
834 North Paulina street.

Dog—Say, what keeps you up?

Duck—My down.

CATHARINE JOSLYN,
1515 Cornelia avenue.

Jane—Jack said I was like a pearl.

Jean—Aw, don't let him string you.

Second story worker—Hullo, Bill. See you got a new overcoat. What did it cost you?

Pal—Six months. I don't wear cheap clothes.

GEORGE SMETANA,
5114 South Horne avenue.

Boy from big town—Got anything snappy in rubber bands?

Sally, the salesgirl—No, but we have something very catchy in fly paper.

HELEN KNIZE,
8139 South Paulina street.

Soliloquizing Sal—Folks, did you ever notice that we keep on shooing flies, but still they go around barefooted?

MARY JANE SCHUMACHER,
1311 Ridge street, La Porte, Ind.

Sillycus—I never could understand why a chap shouldn't have more than one wife.

Sinnycus—When you are older you will realise that the law protects those who are incapable of protecting themselves.

LILLYAN MARGUERITE GILL,
620 West 41st street.

Exasperated teacher—Why is it that you are always late at class?

Student—Because of a certain sign I have to pass.

Teacher—What has the sign to do with it?

Student—The sign says: "School Ahead—Go Slow!"

HELEN ROHRABAUGH,
7446 Eggleston avenue.

Sarcastic—Did you ever ride a donkey?

Stupid—No. Why?

Sarcastic—Why don't you get on to yourself?

L. MARKERT,
5562 Shields avenue.

Mr. Grievance—Look here, I came to see you about this paragraph announcing my resignation from the chamber of commerce.

Editor—But it's quite true, isn't it?

Mr. G.—Quite, but I should like you to explain why you printed it under "Public Improvements."

MARJORIE JANE REGAN,
7519 South Morgan street.

Judge—What proof have you that Sam hit you in the eye?

Plaintiff—Yo, honuh, Ah got it down in black and blue.

DOROTHEA V. MURPHY,

Mandy, at insurance office—[illegible] all got some fire insurance?

Clerk—Sure; what do you want to take it out on?

Mandy—Mah husban'.

Clerk—Then you want life insurance.

Mandy—No, suh; Ah wants fire insurance. Mah husban' was fired [illegible] times in de last two weeks.

HENRY LYSON,
529 Surf street.

Sunday school teacher—You shouldn't talk like that to your playmate. Had you ever thought of heaping coals of fire on his head?

Tommy—No, ma'am, I hadn't, but it's a peach of an idea.

EVELYN McMAHON,
7752 South Racine avenue.

Mistress—I am a woman of few words; if I beckon with my hand like this, that means "come."

New Maid—That suits me, ma'am, I, too, am a woman of few words, and if I shake my head like this it means "I'm not coming."

ELEANOR M. LYDON,
R. 2, Box 7, M. S., Blue Island.

Soph—Where is your roommate?

Junior—If the ice is as thick as he thinks it is, he's skating; if it's as thin as I think it is, he's swimming.

ALICE LAHEY,
5733 South Carpenter street.

Doctor—What is your profession?

Patient—I'm a gentleman.

Doctor—Hm-m, I see. You'll have to try something else—it doesn't agree with you.

NEW MONUMENT OF ODD FELLOWS TO BE DEDICATED

The Rosehill Cemetery association, I. O. O. F., will dedicate a new monument at the Odd Fellows' plot in Rosehill cemetery this afternoon. A. L. Yantis, past grand master of the grand lodge of Illinois, will be the speaker and the Drum and Bugle corps of Square post No. 232 of the American Legion will furnish the music. The association was formed in 1865 to provide a burial place for transient Odd Fellows who die in Chicago. A monument dedicated in 1868 was destroyed several years ago and the new one, 46 feet high and of Vermont granite, will replace it.

An Open Letter on Cleaning

By

N. PREIB & Co.

CLEANERS & DYERS

A NUMBER of cleaners, moved by their natural desire to please the public, have allowed themselves to be stampeded into quoting lower prices, frankly admitting that in order to meet these prices they are putting out an inferior class of work. They remind you that hand pressing is eliminated and that machines are resorted to. As for spots, they admit that the time required for proper attention to this work cannot be devoted to the job at that price. In other words, the chief purpose of sending a garment to a cleaner—that of proper pressing and proper cleaning—is defeated. You pay for something you do not get. The price you pay becomes expensive indeed.

Having devoted all the years of our experience to the constant improvement of our cleaning and dyeing processes, and having reached a high degree of efficiency and quality, we are not now organized nor are we disposed to produce this cheaper class of work. We refuse to tear down that quality for which we have now achieved considerable distinction. It costs more to do the job right—it is cheaper by far in the end.

GRADE SCHOOLS OF CICERO HOLD COMMENCEMENT

Board President Gives Diplomas to 6 Groups.

Graduation exercises for Roosevelt, Cicero, and Columbus schools of Cicero were held recently at Morton High school auditorium, Cicero. On the following night similar exercises were conducted for children of Goodwin, Wilson, and Burnham schools. Frank J. Petru, president of the Cicero board of education, presented the diplomas, and an address to the graduates was given each night by George A. Schwebel, superintendent of the public schools.

The address of welcome at both exercises was made by H. V. Church, superintendent of the Morton schools. Harry E. Musick, principal of Cicero school, spoke on the first evening, and Ernest R. Bails, principal of Wilson school, on the second.

County Superintendent Speaks.

E. J. Tobin, Cook county superintendent of schools, talked at both exercises. Others on the program for both evenings included the Cicero Boys' band, M. E. Sparks conducting; the Combined Grade School orchestra, under the direction of Miss Evelyn Chval; the Boys' chorus and the Eighth Grade chorus, both led by Miss Lulu Kilpatrick, and the Girls' chorus.

In conjunction with the graduation exercises, Supt. Schwebel said last week that a selection of honor students is not made, inasmuch as some may excel in academic accomplishment and others may excel in acquiring proper attitudes and appreciations as the result of the application of subject matter.

Principals of Schools.

The principals of the schools represented in the graduation festivities are: Columbus, Hobart Bolerjack; Cicero, Harry E. Musick; Roosevelt, Roy M. Poust; Burnham, Franklin Musgrave; Wilson, Ernest Bails, and Goodwin, H. C. Hickes. Members of the Cicero board of education, besides Mr. Petru, are Michael Solar, secretary; Joseph Idziaszek, H. E. Armstrong, John Blazek, Charles Burda, John Kubecek, Stanley Laszewski, Joseph Cerny, and Frank Novak.

Two Clubs Meet.

The West Side Kiwanis club held an interclub meeting with the Garfield Lions on Tuesday. The program was in charge of Dr. N. P. Lloyd and William Hooper.

Marshall High to Hold Commencement June 27

Commencement exercises at Marshall High school will be held June 27, according to an announcement made yesterday. There will be no outside speaker this year. Several musical numbers are to be presented and speeches made by various students.

Crane Class of 1919 Plans Reunion June 24

The class of 1919 of Crane Technical High school will observe the tenth anniversary of its graduation at a reunion to be held Monday evening, June 24, at 7:30 o'clock in the high school building, Jackson and Oakley boulevards. Monroe H. Loeb is in charge of arrangements.

CHILDREN'S DAY IS OBSERVED BY ALL OAK PARK

Children's day in Oak Park as proclaimed by the village president, Charles Crysler, was yesterday, June 15. Open house was held at the playgrounds. The day also marked the opening of the full time summer program on the playgrounds.

One of the features of the Oak Park recreation system is the junior police force. There are 32 boys whose duty it is to help keep order on the grounds.

The new staff on the playgrounds is announced by Miss Josephine Blackstock, director of playgrounds, as follows: Robert Louis Stevenson playground—Miss Grace Lerch and Claude Gordon; Hans Andersen—Miss Esther Parris and Arthur Schultz; Lewis Carroll—Miss Eugenie Callahan and Emil Schultz; Eugene Field—Miss Mary Abbott and Joseph Hubata; dramatics—Miss Agnes Durham; music—Harry Dowse; handicraft—Miss Virginia Lorenzen.

The playground board consists of W. J. Watts and J. J. Maloney, commissioners; Dudley C. Meyers, secretary, and Miss Josephine Blackstock, director.

DAILY CLASS IN DEBATING CHOSEN AT HARRISON HIGH

Plans have been made at Harrison High school to transform the Debating club into a daily class in argumentation. Meetings will be held during the second period every day. The personnel of the class will be limited to fifteen, all of whom will take part in debates with other schools. The class, as now planned, will include the following students: Maurice Kaplan, Ralph Mansfield, Frank Erde, Miss Ethel Robbins, David Berger, Miss Sophie Miller, Ben Gould, Leo Kavitz, Leo Mininberg, Robert Strecker, Sam Kaplan, Cy Shapiro, Daniel Frazin, Miss Elaine Eckerling, Herman De Koven, Irving Steinberg, and Louis Smith. Coach Leslie Bradley will be in charge of the class. It is expected that the new system will enable the students to acquire a more thorough grasp of the principles of debating.

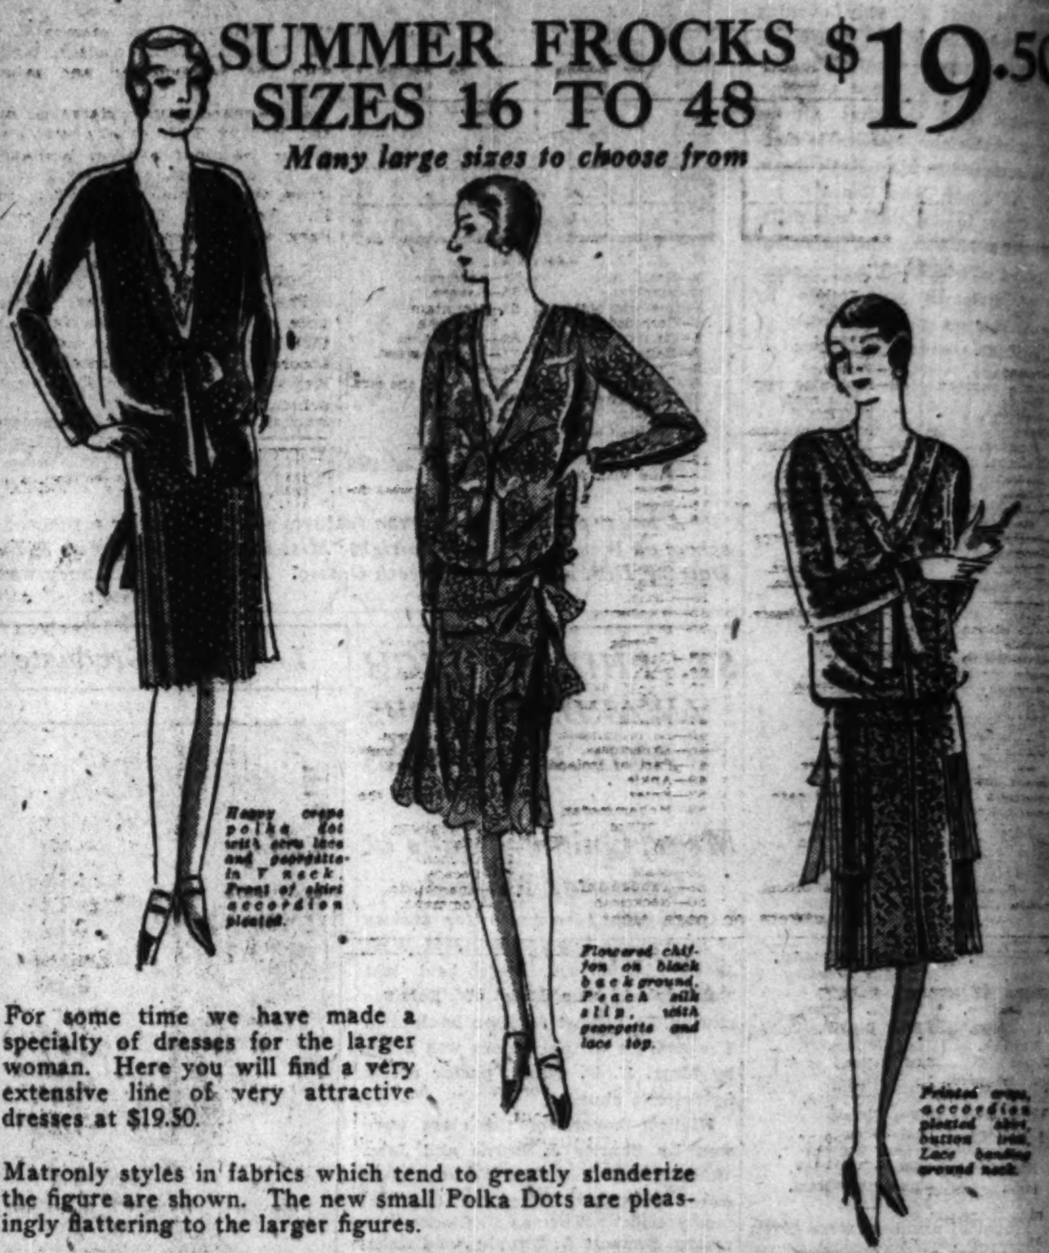
A Word About Our Store

If you've ever come to think of it—or if you haven't—you'll find that Meier Company is the largest dry goods, apparel and house furnishings store between Cicero Avenue and the Fox River. That's quite an area, too.

SUMMER FROCKS SIZES 16 TO 48 $19.50

Many large sizes to choose from



Heavy crepe polka dot with ecru lace and georgette in V neck. Front of skirt accordion pleated.
Flowered chiffon on black background. Peach silk slip, with georgette and lace top.
Printed crepe, accordion pleated skirt, button trim. Lace banding around neck.

For some time we have made a specialty of dresses for the larger woman. Here you will find a very extensive line of very attractive dresses at $19.50.

Matronly styles in fabrics which tend to greatly slenderize the figure are shown. The new small Polka Dots are pleasingly flattering to the larger figures.

DIPLOMAS GIVEN 88 GRADUATES AT YORK COMMUNITY

Flag day last Friday had an added meaning for the 88 graduates of York Community High school, Elmhurst, inasmuch as it was also commencement day for them with the scene laid in the high school auditorium.

Frank Avery, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Avery, first in scholarship among the graduates, delivered the valedictory address, while Miss Winifred Hornberger, ranking second, was salutatorian.

Among the other graduates winning honors were William J. Baskoff, who has been elected to the National Honor society and also to the National Athletic Scholarship society. Alice E. Berens, Robert M. Black, Howard C. Fischer, Aubrey F. Helms, Donald Pettet, Marjorie L. Saint, Margaret L. Schueman, Edgar A. Speogis, Amy J. Stewart, Madge E. Stewart, and Carmen Wahl also won membership in the National Honor society, together with the valedictorian and salutatorian.

E. Maynard Bauby, Harry U. Burns and William E. Lueschke were elected to the National Athletic Scholarship society for outstanding work in athletics during their high school years. The Rev. Roy Ewing Vale of Oak Park was the speaker.

School to Keep Flag Day.

There will be a program in observance of Flag day at Mayfair school, 4626 North Knox avenue, next Friday, according to an announcement made last week. Miss Annie S. Newman is principal.

ROSARY GIRLS END YEAR WITH PRETTY RITES

Candle, Rose Ceremony Observed by Classes.

Colorful festivities marked this year's commencement at Rosary college, River Forest, as forty-two young women received their diplomas. An extensive program beginning with the senior breakfast on the west campus on Saturday, June 8, and ending with the conferring of degrees by the Rt. Rev. Bernard J. Sheil, auxiliary bishop of Chicago, on Monday morning brought the school year to a close.

The most picturesque feature of commencement was the candle and rose ceremony on Sunday evening. This consisted of an exchange of candles and roses between the seniors and the juniors. The lighted candles given by the graduates to the younger girls symbolized the passing of the light of knowledge and the love of truth from the senior to the junior class and the roses received in exchange expressed the love and loyalty which form the bond between the college and its students.

St. Viator President Preaches.

The principal event of baccalaureate Sunday consisted of a sermon preached at 2:30 o'clock by the Rev. J. W. R. Maguire, C. S. V., president of St. Viator college, Bourbonnais, Ill. The ceremony closed with solemn benediction given by Very Rev. Msgr. John J. Code, pastor of St. Edmund's church, Oak Park, assisted by the Rev. Timothy E. O'Shea of Visitation church and the Rev. E. L. Dondanville of St. Thomas Aquinas church.

At 8 o'clock Sunday evening the glee club of the college presented a special program. The singers were grouped on the cloister walk and the students and their guests on the lawn in front of the cloister building.

Preceding the conferring of degrees on Monday morning a solemn high mass was sung, with Bishop Sheil presiding. The Very Rev. Richard V. Walker, O. P., was celebrant; the Rev. William P. McIntyre, O. P., deacon, and the Rev. Vincent R. Hughes, O. P., subdeacon. Following the mass "Emitte Spiritum" was sung by the glee club. Candidates for degrees were presented by Father McIntyre, and the diplomas awarded by Bishop Sheil.

Roll of Graduates.

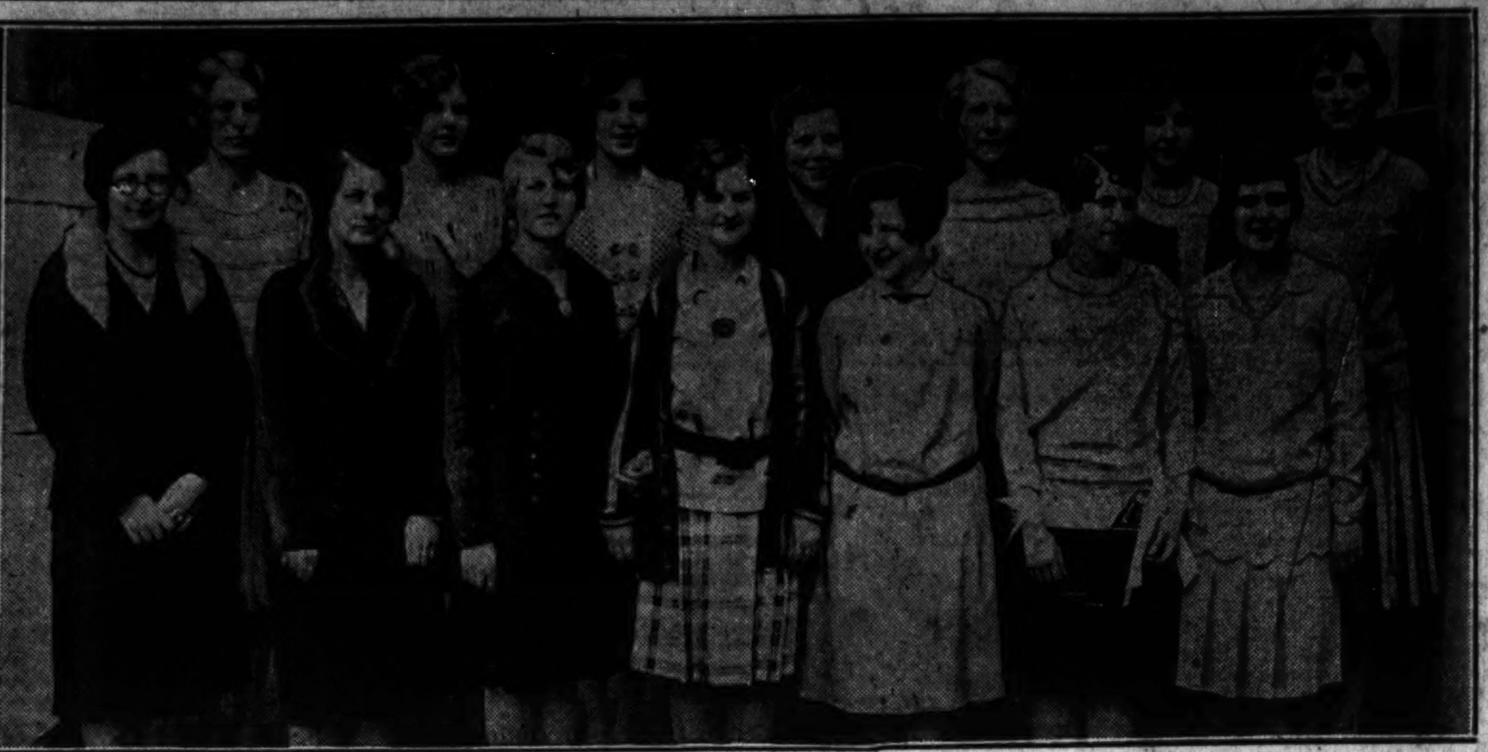
IOWA STUDENTS HONOR FOUNDER OF ROSARY COLLEGE



In honor of the Rev. Samuel Mazzuchelli, founder of Rosary college and reputed designer of the old capitol of Iowa, which now serves as the administration building of the University of Iowa, the Iowa club at Rosary presented to the school a picture of the famous old Iowa building. The picture above shows the members of the club. Front, left to right: Miss Mary Duffy, Miss Eleanor Cunningham, Miss Marie Lacey, Miss Ruth Kerker, Miss Jane Walker, Miss Marjorie Elliott, and Miss Florine Ill. Rear: Miss Eleanor Schrunk, Miss Katherine Ward, Miss Margaret Fitzgibbons, Miss Helen Niles, Miss Catherine Becker, Miss Muriel Reynolds, and Miss Evelyn May. As president of the club, Miss May made the presentation.

BUYS CASTING ROD FOR $2.69; MAKES PROFIT OF $22.31

The Tribune will pay $2 for each story of a best bargain obtained in a neighborhood store printed in the Metropolitan section. Address Bargains, Metropolitan section, The Tribune. Make them short and snappy, writing on only one side of the paper, and print your name and address plainly.

Chicago, June 11.—Last summer I purchased a casting rod for $2.69 at a neighborhood sporting goods store. I went with a friend on a fishing trip to Long Lake, Wis., and the friend developed such a strong affection for my rod that he offered me $25 for it. The transaction took place in record time. My profit was $22.31. I'll tell the world that was some bargain.

ROBERT G. MURBACH,
3418 Hirsch street.

47 CENT HAT ADMIRED.

Chicago, June 9.—I bought a soiled pink hat made of silk straw braid for 47 cents at a neighborhood store two years ago. After it was cleaned it looked even prettier than I had hoped so it made its debut at a party, where it was much admired. The next year I dyed it purple and trimmed it with little white flowers. If compliments are any criterion for bargains, then this was my best one.

MRS. B. J. DEYSCH,
2940 North Mansfield avenue.

WATCHES MONTHLY SALES.

Chicago, June 10.—Two months ago I was shopping in a department store on Madison street near Crawford avenue and chanced upon the best bargain I ever got in hosiery. Black silk stockings regularly selling for $1.75 were on sale for 19 cents a pair. They have worn remarkably well—not even a run in them so far. It pays to watch out for end-of-the-month sales in neighborhood stores; they offer some exceptional bargains.

MIDWEST CLUB WOMEN WAGING MEMBER DRIVE

Wives, mothers, sisters, and daughters of members of the Midwest Athletic club, 6 North Hamlin avenue, were invited to join the woman's auxiliary of the organization in an appeal made in connection with the campaign to augment the membership to 1,000 women. The present enrollment is about 600.

The chairman of the auxiliary membership committee is Mrs. Samuel P. Moore. Officers of the auxiliary are: President, Mrs. Joseph Mills; first vice president, Mrs. George J. Dehn; second vice president, Mrs. B. J. Boehm; recording secretary, Mrs. Sol Westerfeld; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Bernard Baer; assistant corresponding secretary, Mrs. William Renz; treasurer, Mrs. L. M. Watson, and assistant treasurer, Mrs. George E. Hart.

$1,500,000 for Eyes.

Injuries to eyes of 2,767 Wisconsin laborers cost nearly $1,500,000 in damages in four years, says the state industrial commission.

WHO SAID IT? When, Where and Why

Following are the answers to quotations previously published:

Quotation—I should worry.

Answer—These words are attributed to former President William Howard Taft, who is supposed to have said them when his administration was criticized by former President Theodore Roosevelt, who had been Mr. Taft's personal and political friend. "I should worry" afterward became a favorite slang expression and is in general use today.—James Conwell, 6202 Lakewood avenue, Chicago.

Quotation—One more such victory and we shall be ruined.

Answer—Pyrrhus (318-272 B. C.), king of the little country of Epirus, northwest of Greece, was a kinsman of the family of Alexander the Great and was ambitious to imitate the great general's career. Tarentum, a Greek city in lower Italy, at war with Rome, invited him to fight their battles and he accepted with alacrity. Pyrrhus sailed for Tarentum in 280 B. C. with about 25,000 soldiers and a number of elephants. In the spring of that year the Greek and Roman armies met at Heraclea and Pyrrhus won the victory, chiefly with his cavalry and the elephants, which caused confusion in the Roman ranks.

The war was renewed in the spring of 279, when Pyrrhus invaded Apulia. At Asculum the king of Epirus, supported by the Tarentines, Samnites, Lucanians, and Bruttians, met the allied forces of Rome, Latium, and Etruria. The battle lasted two days, but Pyrrhus finally won. Congratulated on his triumph, he looked over the field where 3,500 of his men lay dead, and replied: "Another such victory and we are undone."

From this incident has come our expression "Pyrrhic victory," meaning a victory won at too great price.—Judson L. Rose, 1730 West Adams street, Chicago.

NOTE—Authorities differ as to what Pyrrhus actually said, whether it was "We are undone," "We shall be ruined," "I am lost," or "I shall have to return alone to Epirus"; but the meaning is the same.

Quotation—Reduce taxation before taxation reduces us.

Answer—This was said by Horatio Seymour, a civil war governor of New York, in 1868, when he was running for President on the Democratic ticket against Gen. U. S. Grant. The words were spoken during one of Seymour's speeches in New York.—Chester Schieff, P. O. Box 131, Gary, Ind.

SUMMER TO BE BEST IN RADIO, EXPERT CLAIMS

High Power Conquers Old Bugaboo—Static.

CINCINNATI, O.—Summer is faced this year by radio manufacturers and broadcasters with more optimism than ever before in the history of the industry, according to Powel Crosley, radio expert. Summer radio as a separate entity is no more.

That "summer radio," as a separate and fearful factor in the radio industry is no more, is due more, perhaps, to the attitude of the radio listeners rather than to that of the manufacturers and broadcasters.

"Previous to last summer it was the custom of manufacturers to shut down their plants following the Christmas rush and not to begin operations again until time to prepare for the fall business," Mr. Crosley said. "With the coming of hot weather broadcasters revised their programs and cut expensive features to the bone. They made little or no effort to retain the better commercial accounts and thus materially contributed to the slump.

Fans Play Part.

"On the other hand, owners of radio receivers continued to use them through the summer months and in so doing found that better apparatus brought about better summer reception. As improved receivers were brought out each fall and the purchasers continued to use them during the following summer, it was noticed that reception was better. Listeners also brought about increases in power and thus struck a hard blow to summer static. Always quick to realize the advantages to them of a few extra watts in a station's power, they sent letters of praise to the broadcasters who added this power and neglected those who did not. As a result the more progressive of the broadcasters added even more power, and static became less disturbing.

Many New Listeners.

"Last summer was the most successful in radio history, both from a business and from a broadcasting angle. Some say that the season had a false stimulus due to the national political conventions and campaign and that business and broadcasting will fall off in 1929. This is not true, the stimulus given radio by the exceptional features of last summer will continue. These features brought hundreds, yea, thousands of new listeners into the radio field and taught them that summer radio is just as interesting as winter radio. Accordingly, these new converts will be at the loud speaker this summer listening to the good musical and other features just as they sat and listened to the politicians in 1932."

Inside the Loud Speaker

BY QUIN RYAN.

The Dempsey-Firpo fight took place on Friday evening, Sept. 14, 1923. Although it lasted only one round and fifty-seven seconds, it was one of the most thrilling of Dempsey's encounters. It was the first time that the mauler was knocked from his feet in the ring. We undertake to present it in radio broadcast lingo this morning.

Firpo was the Argentinian giant who came to America obsessed with the idea of capturing the heavyweight boxing crown. A series of preliminary fights demonstrated his ability as a worthy foe, and Tex Rickard matched him with the champion.

Now, let the announcer tell you the story.

ANNOUNCER—Good evening, ladies and gentlemen. This is W-G-N broadcasting direct from the Polo grounds in New York City.

We're down here next to the ring that Tex Rickard has set up near what corresponds to second base when the Giants are at home playing baseball in this big playground. It's after 10 o'clock here in New York and only the ring with its battery of Kleig lights playing over it, is illuminated. Ninety thousand fight fans are accommodated here in the semi-darkness, and they've been screaming and shouting for hours as one preliminary fight after another went its weary way.

Now the jam in the ring is subsiding, and Announcer Joe Humphries, the man with the megaphone voice, is waving his hat for silence. He's introducing Firpo, the "Wild Bull of the Pampas," Joe calls him, and the crowd shouts—listen to them! Now, Humphries is waving Jack Dempsey, the champion, to his feet, and the crowd goes mad once more. In a few moments the big fight will be under way. It's just a minute or two after 10 o'clock here in New York City.

Watch the ring, now—that's where all the excitement. The photographer and the camp followers are clearing out—only Firpo and Lavelle and Vega, his Argentinian friends, remain in one corner and Dempsey and Jack Kearns and Barney Dempsey are in the champion's angle of the arena. Johnny Gallagher, the referee, is summoning the men to the center of the ring for their instructions. It's to be fifteen rounds to a judges' decision, for a purse of $500,000 at least. The heavyweight boxing championship of the world is at stake. Johnny is motioning with his hands as he talks. Now, they're going back to their corners—in Dempsey's corner Kearns is rubbing the champion's chest and together they are staring across the ring at Firpo, whose might right hand is now incased in the red leather of a boxing glove.

It will be just a few moments more now. There's the whistle! That means seconds out of the ring. Kearns is outside the ropes, and across the ring Lavelle and Vega are giving Firpo last minute advice in Spanish. Now, they're out!

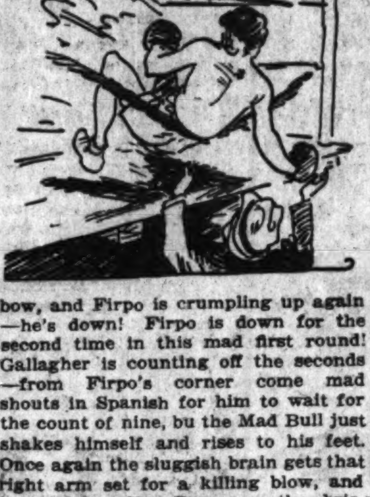
[Gong.]

There's the bell! Round one!

Both men are out of their seats and in the center of the ring, and Dempsey is letting go with both hands—rights to the heart and lefts to the head. Firpo is swinging his arms like a pair of flails. This is not a boxing match—it's a fight! Zowie! Dempsey crashed Luis that time with a stiff left to the mouth! Now Firpo is swinging that great right hand, but Dempsey is dodging and ducking and weaving in under it and using his guard. It's sock and get socked all the way through! Dempsey is lathering Firpo with right handers to the heart. And there's a sock on the chin, and Firpo is down! The Argentinian is on the mat! Johnny Gallagher jumps in and his arm swings down once, twice, but Firpo is up and after Dempsey like a mad bull, like the Wild Bull of the Pampas that he is, his two arms waving before him like the sails on a windmill.

Dempsey drives home another punch to the heart, but Firpo is coming right back for more. O! Look out for that right hand, Jack! Luis just swung one from his back that nearly grazed Dempsey's chin—the champ got out of the way just in time. Now they're in a clinch, but that won't last long. Owww! Firpo crashed through Jack's defense with a right hander to the heart. Jack is scowling! It hurt! Now Dempsey is tearing in once more, the same course; rights to the body and that Dempsey left hook to the head!

Firpo is banging away with that right hand. He's fighting his own kind of a fight — slug and get slugged. He drives a right hander to Dempsey's head—Oww! There's Dempsey's left, a hook from the elbow, and Firpo is crumpling up again—he's down! Firpo is down for the second time in this mad first round! Gallagher is counting off the seconds—from Firpo's corner come mad shouts in Spanish for him to wait for the count of nine, bu the Mad Bull just shakes himself and rises to his feet. Once again the sluggish brain gets that right arm set for a killing blow, and he rushes after Dempsey—the bristling black hair is wet and sweaty now, but still he keeps on—he's not hurt! Ow! He drives that right against Dempsey's head, but the champion ducks and sends home a right to the Bull's heart—Luis felt that one! His mouth is twisted! Whuup! Dempsey's left again—that hook!—to the jaw! Firpo's on the mat again! Dempsey has knocked Firpo down again.



But not for long! The challenger is starting to his feet—Johnny Gallagher hasn't counted off three seconds and Firpo is starting to his feet. He's mad! He's rushing after Dempsey, beating the air. Heaven help Jack if he gets in the way of those arms! He's got him! Dempsey is down! Firpo put that right over. A smash at the base of the brain! Jack Dempsey is on the mat! For the first time in his championship career, he's been knocked down. But he's conscious! He's waiting for the count. Gallagher is tolling off the seconds. Firpo has retired to one side of the ring, waiting for the champion to get up. The crowd has gone mad! Four . . . Five . . . Six . . . Dempsey is getting up, he's getting to his feet. He's been regaining his strength by that rest on the mat. Now he's on his feet, and Firpo steps out again. Jack is crouching down, waiting for the big Argentinian! There's a right! Dempsey shoots a right to the heart! And now—Oww! That left again! FIRPO IS DOWN! Dempsey has knocked Firpo down again! The Argentinian is on the mat! He's not bounding up like a rubber ball this time—he's waiting for the count—one, two, three, four, five, six, seven, eight, nine. He's on his feet! Now he's gritting his teeth and charging forward again! All he knows is to charge! The arms are waving again, and—Gee! Dempsey felt that one! Firpo shook the champion to his toes with that right hander to the head. Jack is socking right back, but backing away—Firpo is bearing down on the champion—now he's got Jack over against the ropes. That right hand is beating down like a club—punch, punch, punch, and Dempsey drives back, and Whuup!

Ow! Firpo has knocked Dempsey out of the ring! A right hand to the head! He's landed in the laps of the newspaper men! Hear that din! Johnny Gallagher is so surprised that he hasn't started to count! Now Dempsey is crawling back into the ring. Clambering over the heads of the newspaper men. He's back in the ring, still on the mat, he's going to take the count. Three, says Referee Gallagher, four . . . five . . . six . . . seven—Dempsey is getting up. . . . Jack is groggy—as Firpo comes forward, he grabs those big arms and he's holding—Jack Dempsey is holding on! Now they're breaking and Dempsey is backing away, his arms dropping at his side—and Firpo is driving home that great right hand! Jack Kearns is yelling at Dempsey to bring up his guard. Now they're clinching! Away again, and they're slugging! Dempsey has gone into a clinch. Firpo has him groggy! It may be all over! Dempsey is still holding on.

[Gong!] There's the bell. That's the end of round one! Whew! What a scrap! Science has been tossed to the winds—they're just two cavemen in their fighting. We've been told all about that right hand of Firpo's—and it certainly is a sledge hammer. Listen to that mob. Ninety thousand of them on their feet and cheering madly. There's the whistle. The fighters sit there, waiting for round two.

[Gong!] There's the bell. Round two. Dempsey is out of his corner in a flash. That one minute rest has been enough, Dempsey is himself again! He's crouching, waiting for the first of those rights that Firpo deals out— the only punch that he carries—Oww! Dempsey has pushed the right away, and he's landing a bunch of lefts and rights to the body and head. Dempsey is still the champion by a long shot! Firpo is swinging his arms, but Dempsey is getting in under them with murderous rights to the stomach, that are making Luis twitch with agony. Ohhh! Dempsey landed a pair of lefts to the head! Luis managed to sneak over that right hand, but it's barely touched Dempsey's head—the champ is dodging and ducking and weaving and twisting about as only he knows how! Whuup! There's another left to Firpo's mouth! Blood is dribbling down the Argentinian's unshaven chin! And they continue to slug! Ow! Dempsey drove two lefts into Firpo's body.

The challenger is down. Firpo is on the mat again! Those lefts seemed to bury themselves in his vitals. Now he's twisting there on the mat—he's coming up again—bleeding and groggy—yes! He's groggy! Now he's on his feet, and Dempsey is fighting his kind of fight. They're slugging each other with everything they've got. Kearns is yelling to Jack to keep his guard high—Firpo gets through a right hand again — but Dempsey brushes it away—the steam's gone out of it, I guess—Dempsey is tearing in—rights and lefts to the body and head—Firpo can't hold on—he can only hit with that right—he tries again—but Dempsey is in there first with the punch. There's the right! Look out, Luis! Dempsey cracked Firpo with a hard right hander to the chin, and Firpo's arms fly up in the air in instinctive protection—two lefts to the body! Firpo is going down—he's on the mat!—he's lying on his face—it looks like the end this time—slowly Referee Gallagher is counting off the seconds. . . . two . . . three . . . four . . . five . . . Firpo's body is twitching and now he rolls over on his back. His face is twisted with pain, claret trickles from his mouth, his eyes are closed. His arms—that mighty right arm—are lying at his side—powerless . . . still the count—seven . . . eight . . . the crowd is silent—nine . . . ten!

Jack Dempsey is still champion of the world! He has knocked out Luis Angel Firpo!

Marshall Students Urged for Journalistic Society

Eight journalism students at Marshall High school, 3250 West Adams street, have been recommended by Max Batt, journalism adviser, for enrollment in the Quill and Scroll, national honorary organization for high school journalists. They are Jean Goldberg, Miss Virginia Covitz, Ben Shleiman, David Shapiro, Miss Beatrice Gutensky, Sol Rose, Miss Miriam Oiring, and Miss Ruth Alicz.

TWO NEW RADIO PROGRAMS ADDED TO TRIB STATION

One Is Daily and One Is Weekly Feature.

Two new radio programs, one daily and one weekly, both of a reminiscent nature, were announced this week by Henry Selinger, program director of W-G-N, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE station.

Beginning Saturday, and continuing every Saturday evening, the W-G-N players, under the direction of Harry W. Spingold, are reviving old time plays in a series called "Old Time First Nights."

"The Count of Monte Cristo," in which James O'Neill, father of Eugene O'Neill, starred; "The Two Orphans," "Richelieu," "Lena Rivers," and other famous productions of thirty and forty years ago will be included in the répertoire of the W-G-N players.

By way of novelty, Old First Nighter will attend each of the plays with his daughter, and will re-create for her and for radio listeners the various theaters as they appeared when O'Neill, Joseph Jefferson, and others of the old school strode the boards in their premieres. Jean Conover is adapting the plays to radio presentation. The curtain rises every Saturday at 8.

At once new and old, "'Way Back When," a combination of spoken reminiscences and old fashioned music, is the other W-G-N feature introduced this week. It is broadcast every evening at 10:10, the time at which the Hungry Five went on the air previous to their vacation.

"In the Good Old Summer Time," "Little Annie Rooney," "On a Bicycle Built for Two," and similar tunes from pre-automobile days help to recaller the 'way-back-whens of W-G-N listeners.

Meanwhile, resting up in Wisconsin before they begin their new amusement park engagement, Louie's Hungry Five have forgotten "Ach! Du Lieber Augustin" and "Schnapps Waltz" and are concentrating on fishing, pretzels, and near beer.

MUSIC BREEZES

The breeziness of a bus-top—the gayety of pretty girls at the prom—the crispness of dawn—all have been turned into music by that wizard, Goldkette. Through your loudspeaker comes the spirit of the New Music. Your fingers tingle as you listen. You want to laugh with the tunes. Notes race. Notes scamper. Notes make a crooked design. The trumpets sputter little notes. The trombones bellow large, organ-like notes. The director grins with delight as the clarinets hurry through two octaves and half way back. Three times today Jean Goldkette and his W-G-N Dance Orchestra reach their dancing climax: 1:30, 2:25, and 11 P. M.

BLUE NOTES

Three whispering voices and a deep guitar. Tom, Dick and Harry sing old songs, new songs or any songs that are rich with music. Smooth and round—quick and dexterous—each measure punctuated with the resonant voice of the guitar. Tom, Dick and Harry make all their own arrangements, and they know how to sing them. Hear the three snappy artists at 5:30 and 11 P. M.

KIDS

Listen, kids. The composers who have great names now were children once. They ran around and broke windows and made their mothers nervous, just like you. Besides, they didn't forget it. Once when Mr. Tschaikowski remembered he had been a child, he wrote a group of pieces to a Nutcracker! Can you imagine? A Nutcracker! Mr. Gaston du Moulin, who was little once, too, leads the W-G-N Symphony Orchestra as they play it. 5:45 P. M.

GARDEN GROUPS HOLD CONTESTS AND MAKE TOURS

Many Clubs Are Engaged in Special Studies.

Garden clubs of the west side and the western suburbs are in full swing this month with varied programs of meetings, speeches, inspections of floral exhibits, and other activities. Several garden organizations are studying particular phases of plant life in which members have a special interest. Many novices in the art of gardening have reported success with their individual projects, ranging from backyard nasturtiums to yellow and red tulips.

An excursion to the Napier Green farm at Blue Island next Friday has been scheduled for members of the Lombard Garden club. At the June 7 meeting, held at the home of Mrs. George Potwin, a talk on "Lilacs" was given by Mrs. E. J. Andrews. Future events on the program of the club include a tour of north shore gardens on Aug. 23. It is expected that Wilmette, Glencoe, and Lake Forest will be visited. Officers of the club are: President, Mrs. A. J. Dietsche; first vice president, Mrs. A. C. Gothie; second vice president, Mrs. Irene Lewis; third vice president, Mrs. E. J. Andrews; secretary, Mrs. Edgar Elliott, and treasurer, Mrs. Charles E. Petersen.

Edison Club Invites Norwood.

The Edison Park Garden club held a meeting at Mertes' club rooms, 6152 Northwest highway, on Monday. Members of the Norwood Park Garden club were invited. The Edison Park group has been conducting a garden contest for residents of the community, the first prize being a silver loving cup offered by Dr. J. T. Hermsheim. Officers of the club are: President, Mrs. Oscar E. Brown; vice president, Mrs. Helen Alberry, and secretary and treasurer, Mrs. John Martinson.

At a meeting of the Norwood Park Garden club on Wednesday Mrs. Helen Hart Oakes, head of the Maywood Garden club, spoke on "The Friendly Little Garden." Members of this club recently visited Joy Morton's arboretum at Lisle, Ill. The officers are: President, Mrs. T. H. Slusser; vice president, Mrs. Robert Ball; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. C. Ziller. The program chairman is Mrs. L. M. Bowes.

The next meeting of the Scilla chapter of the Glen Ellyn Garden club is announced for Thursday. The president is Mrs. B. W. Alspaugh.

Talks on "Annuals" were given by members of the Rose chapter of the Glen Ellyn Garden club at a meeting on Thursday. The head of the chapter is Mrs. Elmer A. Foster.

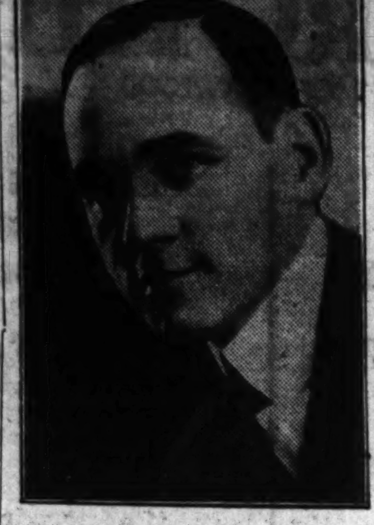
Park Ridge Club Holds Show.

Members of the newly organized Park Ridge Garden club conducted a flower exhibit June 8 and 9 in the Pickwick club rooms. Several interesting floral displays were shown. Prizes were awarded for the most artistic luncheon table set for six people; for the most artistically arranged vase or bowl of flowers and the most artistically arranged basket of flowers; for unusual flowers and plants, rock and water gardens and floral displays by professional growers. Three Park Ridge women, Mrs. Fred Y. Everhard, Mrs. R. S. Cunningham, and Mrs. Hugh Crawford won first, second, and third places respectively in the luncheon table competition. The wainscoted walls of early English finish of the club rooms provided an appropriate background for the elaborate display of flowers.

The Park Ridge Garden club, which was formed in April, now has 60 members, according to Mrs. J. W. Saul, president. Tours of local gardens are to be taken by the members in July, August, and September, the first of these being scheduled for July 13. A junior department of the club is to be organized next year. The officers besides Mrs. Saul are: Vice president, Frederick Hager, and secretary and treasurer, Mrs. Marene Christianson.

The flower show of the La Grange Garden club was held yesterday. A wide variety of colorful exhibits was on view. Meetings of this club are conducted on the first Monday of each month. The officers are: President, Mrs. David L. Meyers; vice president, Mrs. J. A. Gardner, and secretary and treasurer, Mrs. A. C. Dallagh.

SINGS TONIGHT



WILLIAM ROGERSON.

A concert for the benefit of the Sisters of Mercy of St. Patrick's academy will be given by William Rogerson, Irish tenor, and Miss Clara Taylor, dramatic soprano, at St. Catherine's auditorium, Washington boulevard and Central avenue, tonight at 8:30 o'clock. They will be assisted by Adalbert Hugelet, pianist, and Miss Grace Grove, accompanist. For three years Mr. Rogerson has been leading tenor in the Chicago Grand Opera association. Friends of the school have been invited by the faculty to attend.

HOLMES SCHOOL BOY WINS FIRST IN FLAG CONTEST

First honors in the annual Flag day contest embracing contestants from the eleven elementary schools of Oak Park and held at the Hawthorne school, Oak Park, on June 7, were won by Robert Williamson of the Holmes school. His oration was entitled "Tributes to the American Flag." Second place was taken by Robert Westphal of the Washington Irving school, who spoke on "Makers of the Flag." As a result of young Williamson's victory the Holmes school received a silk American flag awarded by the Oak Park Elks lodge. The second prize, which went to the Irving school, was a collection of library books, also presented by the lodge.

Besides the two winners the children who participated in the competition were John Trimble of the Hatch school, Helen Kettner of the Whittier school, Blanch Hallnagel of the Emerson school, Donald De Jong of the Longfellow school, Clarisso McLaughlin of the Hawthorne school, Suzanne Howard of the Lincoln school, Harold K. Larsen of the Lowell school, Edward Mendonhall of the Beye school, and Norman Fagerson of the Mann school.

The two winners repeated their orations at the annual Flag day program held in the Elks' lodge hall on Friday in celebration of Flag day.

Oak Park High Story Club Announces New Officers

Story club of the Oak Park and River Forest Township High school announces the election of Miss Carol Hemingway as president to succeed Miss Ruth Pier. The other elections were Miss Barbara Harris, vice president, succeeding Miss Alice Rose Dedouch; Miss Elizabeth Snell, secretary, for Miss Elsie Jane Simmons; Miss Betty Shuman, treasurer, for Miss Jane Thalman, and Miss Laura Gage, quartermistress, for Miss Eleanora Pfeffer. Miss Mildred Linden is faculty advisor of Story club.

THREE WEST SIDE WARDS BRIGHTEN WITH NEW LIGHTS

716 Lamps to Be Turned On in 30th This Week.

Approximately $425,000 is being spent by the city this summer in providing modern street lamps for three west side wards, officials of the department of gas and electricity announced yesterday.

Residential streets of the 30th ward will be brightened this week when the new system of 716 lamps is turned on. 688 new lamps will have been installed in the 39th ward by July 1, and 724 additional lights will be installed in the 41st ward some time next month.

New Lights Are Better.

A total of 2,128 lamps will be installed. The new lamps, costing approximately $200 each, contain 250 candlepower globes and are mounted on 12.6 foot poles. Five posts are being put up in each block. Better lighting is provided than by the old lamps, engineers of the department say, since the old ones are mounted on poles from 20 to 26 feet high, and there are only three to the block.

Lights have been installed on the following streets in the 30th ward:

Mason, Mayfield, Menard, Waller and Central avenues between Adams and Madison streets; Mason, Mayfield, Mansfield and Menard avenues, between Roosevelt road and Lexington street; Arthington and Fillmore streets between Austin and Menard avenues; the entire district bounded by Harrison and Madison streets and Lavergne and Cicero avenues [except these streets], and the inside streets in the district bounded by Chicago, North, Kenton, and Crawford avenues.

Install Lamps in 39th.

In the 39th ward lamps will be installed in the districts bounded by Harlem, Natoma, Diversey, and Belmont avenues; by Roscoe street, Oak Park avenue, Addison street, and Natoma avenue; by Austin, Belmont, and Parkside avenues, and Addison street; by Diversey, Belmont, and Kolmar avenues and the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific railroad; and by Diversey, Kostner, and Keeler avenues, and Altgeld street.

The following sections of the 41st ward will have new lights; the district bounded by Irving Park boulevard, Harlem and Narragansett avenues, and Addison street; by Bryn Mawr, Milwaukee, Foster, and Elston avenue, and by Pratt, Onarga, Harlem and Oketa avenues.

COUNCIL PLAN OF OAK PARK C. C. PROVES SUCCESS

First of New Units Holds Meeting.

The community council plan of organization recently adopted by the Oak Park chamber of commerce for the various districts of the village is proving highly successful, according to a statement issued by the chamber last week.

The South Oak Park avenue council, first of the new units to be organized, held its first regular monthly meeting on Tuesday, with J. R. Cessna, chairman, presiding. This council serves the district centering about South Oak Park avenue and Harrison street. Several problems of particular interest to residents of the neighborhood were discussed, among them adequate street cleaning, provision of safe and suitable parking facilities for customers, the stopping of sidewalk delivery of merchandise by wholesalers, and the adoption of a standard evening closing rule.

Adopt Closing Rule.

In connection with the last named project, a closing rule was adopted, namely, that stores may remain open Tuesdays, Thursdays, and Saturdays until 9 o'clock all year. Furthermore, the Wednesday noon closing rule for July and August was approved, taking effect this year at noon July 10.

Several other neighborhood councils are to be formed. They will serve to bring before the chamber the various projects in which residents of the various neighborhoods are interested.

Plan Is Outlined.

At a meeting of the Avenue Business Men's association on Monday, L. D'Ooge, executive secretary of the chamber, outlined the community council plan. Dr. Harry J. Stewart and Willis Herrick, immediate past president of the association, also spoke in behalf of the plan. The new executive committee of the association was given the proposal to adopt the plan, with the recommendation that action be favorable.

MORTON SCHOOL HEAD FINISHES 30TH YEAR AS CICERO TEACHER

With the close of the current school term H. V. Church, principal of the Morton school of Cicero, completed his thirtieth year at the institution. Mr. Church's outside activities include that of secretary of the National Association of Secondary School Principals and editor of the year book published by that group. He is also a member of the executive committee of the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools. One of Mr. Church's hobbies is the 'cello. His summers are usually spent on his fruit farm in Michigan.

MAYFAIR GROUPS MEET C. & N. W. ON ELSTON STATION

Representatives of three improvement organizations of the northwest side met with Bert E. Terpning, general superintendent of the Chicago and North Western railway, on Tuesday to discuss the proposed new station stop on Elston avenue. M. R. Leahy, general passenger agent, was also present. The committee attending the meeting comprised A. C. Rochow of the Albany Park West End Improvement association; Benjamin S. Herbert of the North Mayfair Improvement association, and Wenzel J. Weise of the Mayfair Chamber of Commerce.

The committee had prepared blue prints mapping the territory contiguous to the site. An array of figures was also presented. The chief difficulty encountered was in securing statistics showing the exact population of the territory which would be served by the station. Precinct lists for the twelve adjoining precincts gave a total of 5,156 registered voters, but the members of the committee ventured that the adult population making use of the transportation facilities would be at least 25 per cent more.

At the conclusion of the conference Mr. Terpning agreed to inspect the site of the suggested station and also the surrounding neighborhood, for the purpose of making recommendations.

MADIGAN BROTHERS

4030 MADISON ~ JUST WEST OF CRAWFORD

Presto! And Three Jacket Frocks Become a Whole Wardrobe

$25

Not quite, of course, but certainly one good jacket frock deserves another. For example, the red dotted cape jacket to the left might be worn with white. And the white jacket sketched center will go with any other color. The embroidered coat—while a typical spectator sports costume as sketched right—will join other frocks for the afternoon or may be used as a light wrap for formal evening wear. Which all goes to prove you CAN be Fashion-Wise and Thrifty.

Left, georgette ensemble in red with white dots. Jacket with cape effect and soft neckline. Sleeveless

Right, a spectator sports costume in steel blue with the jacket effectively embroidered in black and white.

Felts with Wider Brims

$10

There is a little more width to the brims of the felts for summer and those with sides a little longer carry the highest honors. The frill back, pleated over the neckline, is prominent.

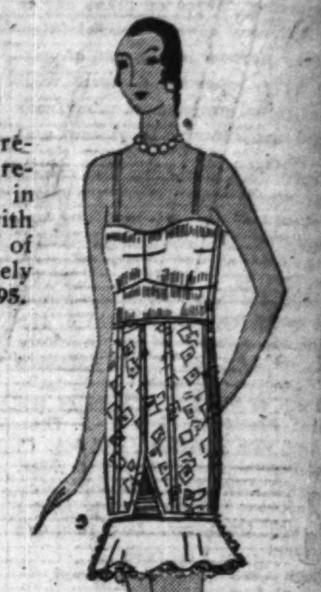
MADIGAN'S—SECOND FLOOR

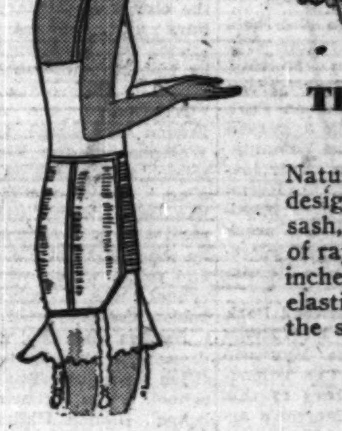
Summer Freedom A "College Girl" Foundation

Cool comfort is the claim of the "College Girl" Foundation for it combines a brassiere, girdle and pantie all in one single garment. Sufficiently boned for figure control. Sketched below. $5.

For the Petite

—figure that requires little restraint, a three in one garment with uplift brassiere of lace and entirely boneless is $3.95.



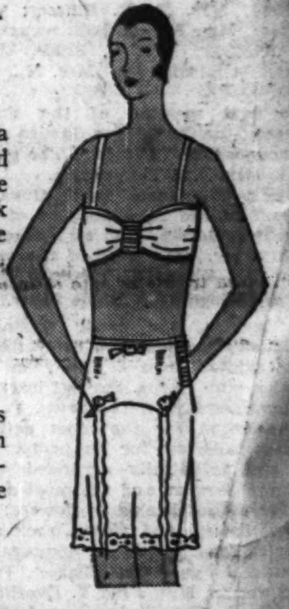


The Circle Sash

Nature's rival has designed the circle sash, sketched left, of rayon jersey. 10 inches wide, with elastic sections at the side. $3.50.

The Garter Belt

Sketched right is a garter belt fashioned of crepe de Chine combined with silk elastic. $1.50. The Uplift Bandeau is $1.



For Active Sports

A one-piece boneless corsette. Semi-stepin style with uplift brassiere. Launders like a glove. $3.75.

MADIGAN'S—SECOND FLOOR

A Gordon Hosiery Shade for Every Skin Under the Sun

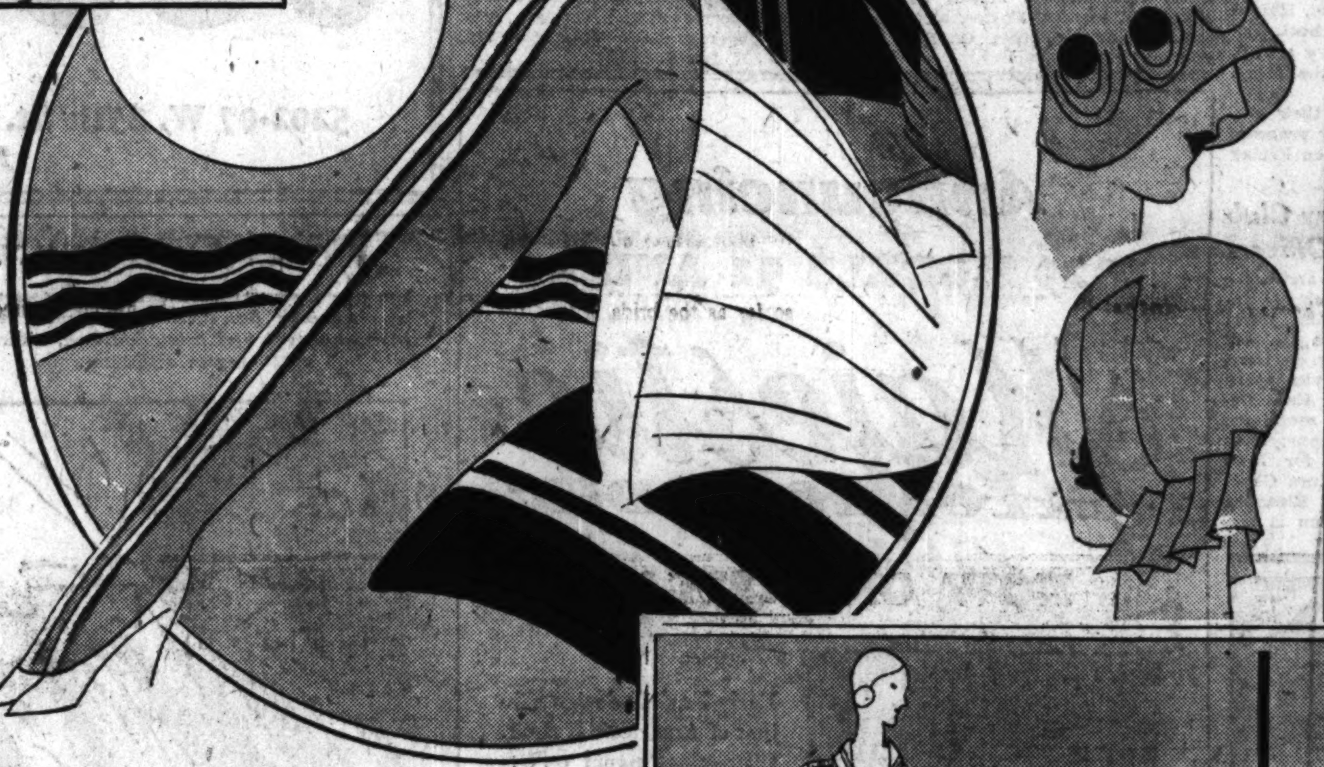
$1.50

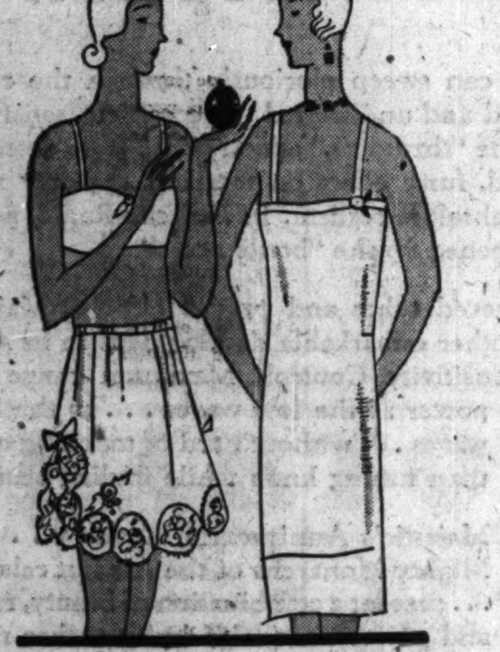
For, of course, each skin takes on a different tone of tan from the sun's rays. The blonde, the brunette and the medium toned complexion will each find a Gordon shade to blend with their particular shade of tan.

And they blend too with many of the best known brands of suntan preparations for those who prefer to acquire their brown before leaving the boudoir.

Sketched to the right are the famous Gordon "Narrow Heels" in a full fashion hose that are sheer chiffon to the top with a lisle foot. In the suntan shades of Fair Tan, Blush Tan, Pandora, Aloma Tan, Sonora, Pocahontas, Ramona.

MADIGAN'S—FIRST FLOOR





The Stepins Above of Crepe de Chine

INDIANS LAID OUT VINCENNES, STATE STREET

Names and Routes Recall Pioneers.

Young as we are as a nation, we are old enough to have forgotten our beginnings in many cases. Day after day we tread some historic spot, time after time we repeat the name of the particular town or locality where we live nor remember what events occurred there, what heroic deeds or strange twists of fate caused it to be named this instead of that. In the next few weeks the Metropolitan section of The Tribune will present a series of sketches explaining the origin of many of the names now used without remembrance of why or wherefore.

Herewith is an explanation of how Vincennes avenue was named.

Residents of the great southwest district of Chicago, speeding back and forth over Vincennes avenue, seldom wonder about the origin of this long, diagonal street which daily leads them to the loop, or recall that a few centuries ago the red man first trod this same pathway. Yet since the last of the 18th century the Vincennes road has been an important factor in the growth of Chicago.

In that century the Indians, tramping single file from Lake Michigan to the mouth of the Wabash river, wore a path which was followed again and again by the red men of the Pottawatomie, Iroquois and Kankakee tribes. A few years later when Fort Dearborn was established on the site which is now Chicago and the Old Fort, which later became known as Vincennes, Ind., was built 160 miles above the mouth of the Wabash, traders, soldiers, and pioneers followed this same trail. Thus it gradually became known as Vincennes trace, named obviously from the town of Vincennes situated at its southern terminus.

Capital of French Territory.

The Old Fort was built originally in 1702 by François Morgan de Vincenne, an officer of the French army who was sent by the French king with a military force to build a chain of forts which would connect Louisiana and Canada. The Old Fort, which was the third of the three he established, has lasted longer than any of the others. At that time, Indiana, as well as Illinois, Ohio, Michigan, and Wisconsin, were all part of the territory north of the River Ohio, and the Old Fort was capital of this territory.

The Old Fort, Chippecoke, Brush Wood, Post St. Francis Xavier, and Post Vincents were the names given to this fort at different times during its existence. It was not until after 1736 that it became known as Vincennes. Later, when the fort was taken by the British, an attempt was made to call the town Sackeville, for Sir Thomas Sackeville, then earl of Dorset. However, the name of Vincennes was kept by the French settlers, who were the first to build houses on the site of the present town of Vincennes.

It has been said that the name of Vincennes was taken from the vicinity in France of that name. However, all historians seem to agree that the town was doubtless named for its founder, François Morgan de Vincenne.

Beginning with Vincennes, the old trail led through the present towns of Danville, Myersville, Hoopeston, Grant, Blue Island, to Chicago, following the same landmarks that Vincennes avenue and Vincennes road follow today.

Converged with Hubbard Trace.

At the town of Sheldon, Ind., the Vincennes trace united with another trail called Hubbard trace, which came from the west but also led into Chicago by way of Danville. The Hubbard trace was so called because from 1825 Gurdon S. Hubbard, one of Chicago's pioneers, who was at that time superintendent of Illinois river trade, carried on his trading activities over the road which became known by his name.

The history of State street is also associated with that of Vincennes avenue and the Vincennes trace. For that part of this early trail, also known as the Hubbard trace, later was marked with milestones and became known as the State road. With the coming of the railroad the old State road was superseded and abandoned, but within Chicago its name still survives in the State street of today. And although many communities and the city of Chicago have been built up around the northern part of Vincennes trace, it still lives in Vincennes avenue, which is a prominent thoroughfare for south siders.

The old trail is still a popular road downstate. Beginning at the city limits, Vincennes runs diagonally across the city through Beverly Hills, Brainerd, Gresham, Auburn Park, and Hamilton Park, until it unites with State street at 68th street.

Wentworth School P.-T. A. Gives Lunch for Graduates

The 141 members of the graduating class of Wentworth school were the special guests at a luncheon given in their honor by the members of the Wentworth Parent-Teacher association Tuesday in the school lunchroom, 70th and Sangamon streets. Mrs. Michael Haggerty, 7019 Peoria street, was chairman of the committee in charge of arrangements for the luncheon.

Dr. Schroeder Speaks.

Dr. P. L. Schroeder of the Institute for Juvenile Research was the principal speaker at the meeting of the Beverly service council Friday at the home of Mrs. G. B. Levee, 10510 Longwood drive.

START ADDITION TO BLUE ISLAND HIGH BUILDING

Excavation has been started for the addition to the new Blue Island Community High school, which will cost a half million dollars. It is expected that the structure will be ready for occupation in the fall.

The addition will be in the form of a wing connecting with the present structure. It will be constructed of brick limestone, with two floors containing work shops, domestic science rooms, class rooms, swimming pool, gymnasium, and an auditorium with a capacity of 1,500.

Perkins, Chatten & Hammond, 160 North La Salle street, are the architects, and Frank Randall, 305 West Wacker drive, is the structural engineer.

GIRLS PRESENT COUNTRY FAIR OF OLD ENGLAND

Three hundred girl reserves, representing seventeen clubs on the south side, took part in the spring hi-jinks held on the lawn of the Carrie McGill residence of the Y. W. C. A., at 4928 Drexel boulevard, June 8.

The festivities were modeled after an English country fair. There were dances, singing, and stories. Clad in English overalls and gingham dresses, one group of girls danced a Billy Boy dance under the direction of Mrs. A. J. Reed, 2344 Touhy avenue, advisor of the West Ridge Community Church club. The English gentry were represented in a Sir Roger de Coverly dance, and a Maypole dance was given by the Farragut Junior High school Girl Reserves club.

Robin Hood and Nottingham Fair stories were told by Mrs. C. W. Israel, 7378 Paxton avenue, advisor of the Girl Reserves of the South Shore Evangelical church.

The annual hi-jinx programs are a tradition with Chicago Girl Reserves, of whom there are 4,000 in clubs connected with high schools and churches. The Girl Reserve movement is the junior department of the Y. W. C. A. Mrs. Donald De Frees of Hotel Windemere represents this department on the metropolitan board of directors.

Loretto Seniors Guests of Woodlawn Alumnae

The Woodlawn alumnæ of Loretto academy gave a luncheon and musical for members of the spring graduating class yesterday afternoon at the Shoreland hotel. Miss Gladys A. Members of the Delta Lambda sorority will give a dance Friday evening in the Castilian room of the Hotel Shoreland, 55th street and South Shore drive.

SCHOOL PLANS HANG ON RULING OF HIGH COURT

Await Decision in Fairbanks Case.

Residents of the seventh and eighth wards are eagerly awaiting the decision of the Illinois Supreme court on an appeal for a rehearing made by the officials of the board of education to settle the ownership of the Fairbanks estate, the 80 acre plot of ground bounded by 83d street, 87th street, Cottage Grove avenue, and St. Lawrence avenue.

More than a month ago, the Supreme court ruled that the disputed land belonged to the Fairbanks estate and that the board of education had no claim to the property. The fact that the South Side Federation of Improvement associations has adopted a resolution asking that immediate action be taken by the officials of the board in obtaining a site for the long promised high school in the district is taken to indicate that the members of the group don't believe that the decision will be reversed.

Doesn't Expect to Win.

William R. Wendland, president of the association, declared that he did not believe that the board would win its appeal. He pointed out, however, that although no plans have been disclosed by the board, it is understood that if the court rules that the property belongs to the Fairbanks estate, the officials of the board will immediately start condemnation proceedings to obtain a site for a senior high school and a high school stadium.

Mr. Wendland pointed out that the new high school, which will be included in the 1930 building program, would be erected on the block bounded by 83d and 84th streets, from Langley to Champlain avenues.

Members of the association have long argued the need for a new high school in the district and they assert that they were put off by promises of the officials of the board to wait until a decision had been reached in regard to the Fairbanks' case. The members declare that they have waited patiently for many years, while their children could not have the school facilities which they deserved, and they now demand that the officials of the board take immediate steps to remedy this condition.

Must Travel Long Way.

They point out that their children are compelled to travel to either South Chicago or Pullman to attend high school. This, they say, is a great hardship for the children, and it is also a great one for the parents who find it expensive to send their children such distances.

The members say that the time has come when the officials of the board must keep their promise and find an adequate site for a new high school. They believe that as taxpayers, their children deserve the same school facilities as the children of other communities. Further action will be postponed until the Supreme court has handed down its decision in regard to the board's appeal.

NEW ST. SIMON'S CHURCH WILL BE DEDICATED TODAY

Cardinal Mundelein will dedicate the recently completed St. Simon's church and school at 5157 South California avenue, this morning at 10:30 o'clock. He will be assisted by the Rev. Msgr. W. O. O'Brien of St. John's church, the Rt. Rev. Msgr. William Foley of St. Ambrose church, and the Rt. Rev. Msgr. J. Dettmer of St. Anthony's church.

Solemn high mass will be celebrated by the Rev. Bonaventure Sovinski, O. F. M., of St. Mary's church, Lemont, Ill., assisted by the Rev. Charles Florek of St. Michael's church and the Rev. Anthony Nouza, also of St. Michael's church. The dedication sermon will be preached by the Rev. John Kostik of St. John's church, Whiting, Ind. Masters of ceremonies will be the Rev. Joseph P. Morrisson and the Rev. Julius Chvojka.

The parish was organized Oct. 1, 1926, and the Rev. Edward Emdek is pastor. John Slovinec was the architect who designed the new $200,000 structure, which was completed four months ago and has been occupied since that time. The seating capacity of the church is 1,020 and there are eight classrooms for the accommodation of the 193 pupils.

We are reliably informed that the Diablos, comprising the best minds of the north shore, the Gold Coast and points south, will foregather the evening of Thursday, June 20, with the Ronald F. Brunswicks at their delightful local chateau, he Chicago Beach hotel. There will be the historical session devoted to the genesis and present aims and purposes of the Diablos; the reading of the minutes of the last meeting and an open forum on current topics, such as Tia Juana, climate, California and golf, with Mrs. Helen Danek reading a paper on "Davey's Locker." The young people will then indulge in social diversion.

LAKE CALUMET SITE FOR VAST CITY EXPANSION

Reclamation Need Is Vital Topic.

BY ONEY FRED SWEET.

Standing on the roof of his store at 112th street and Michigan avenue, James Gately, a director in the South End Chamber of Commerce, pointed off to the east where Lake Calumet gave the impression of being a substantial body of water.

"There it is," he said, ruefully, "serving not the slightest purpose. Just waste, a loss not only to the Pullman district but to the entire city of Chicago. The lake isn't more than three feet deep at its deepest point. Fifty-three blocks of swamp land that industries would be eager to utilize and which would pay big revenue to the city. Yet nothing has been done all these years."

By "all these years," Mr. Gately was probably referring to the more than two decades during which legislation has been sought which would make it possible for Chicago to develop Lake Calumet as a harbor.

Survey Made in 1833.

History goes back to the year 1833 when the government directed that a critical survey be made of the Calumet and Chicago rivers, to discriminate as to the superiority for marine and commercial purposes. The duty was entrusted to Lieut. Jefferson Davis, later president of the Confederacy, who strongly recommended and advocated the improvement of the Calumet river and the establishment of the harbor there. Stephen A. Douglas, in his day, considered Calumet as the proper outlet for the Illinois and Michigan canal, esteeming that it would afford a waterway for the shipment of grain and thus would avoid so much wagon transportation.

"Up here on 'the mountain top,'" said Mr. Gately, "let us consider Lake Calumet from an economic angle, not only as it affects the south side but all of Chicago. I have come up here often to look at that tragic waste.

Involved in Politics.

"Why has nothing been done? No one really knows. Calumet harbor has been termed a political football. That may be the main reason for lack of action. Another possible reason is that Lake Calumet is located in the extreme south end of Chicago and residents of other parts of the city can't realize its general benefit. Coming up from my store below and up from the business atmosphere, it appears to me a simple business proposition requiring little or no capital on the part of the city.

"Out there is the 'mud hole.' In it will be made 1,425 acres of land to be owned by the city of Chicago with power to sell or lease. Around the lake, in what is now worthless property, would be reclaimed approximately 3,000 acres of privately owned land. Along the river and the Sag canal, developments of a similar nature would take place within some 1,500 acres of land.

Would Mean Profit to City.

"Let us consider what that means. At the present time the land is valued at $500 an acre. Compare this with the harbor lands developed in other cities, the property would show a potential value of $50,000 an acre. So it is easy to appreciate from a business standpoint that if the city of Chicago would awaken to the possibilities from a financial standpoint only, the development of the harbor would not only finance itself but leave a sufficient surplus to revert to the corporate fund. An outsider would scarcely believe that we have been content all these years to allow such a worthless tract—without fitting revenue—inside the city limits.

"So much for the reclamation of land angle. Much has been said about the harbor. I cannot refrain from mentioning the fact that just within the last few months have occurred typical examples of what has been happening all these twenty odd years. The Lever Brothers, manufacturers of soap, were anxious to locate in the Calumet harbor area, as was also the Empire Gas and Fuel company. Reviewing the lackadaisical methods of the city in developing the harbor and unable to get assurance that work would be started soon, both concerns went to Hammond, not only taking their pay rolls with them, but their taxes, that might have gone into the city, into another state.

Cites Cost of Shipping.

"Chicago doesn't realize the situation. Chicago was once the manufacturing center of the world. Today it costs a Chicago manufacturer $51.50 to ship a piano to Los Angeles—the same piano that is shipped from the eastern seaboard, via the Panama canal, for $12.50. It costs 40 per cent more to ship steel to the west coast from Chicago than it does from the eastern seaboard. Likewise, raw material costs more in the Chicago area in proportion.

"In two years we expect to have the completion of the Mississippi river service into Chicago. Failure to develop Lake Calumet would be identical with having a railroad terminal without a depot. Calumet is the proposed site for the lake to gulf terminus, and is admitted by all to be the only logical location for such a terminus.

"So much for Calumet. The city council committee on harbors, wharves, and bridges has just appointed a subcommittee to deal with the Lake Calumet harbor project. Now that enabling legislation has been passed in Springfield, the matter rests solely with that committee. The time has come for deeds. We must remember that we are all a part of Chicago. If the south side fights the west side, and vice versa, we'll never get any place. The project has been hammered this way and that long enough.

"And along with the development of Calumet harbor and reclaiming 6,000 acres of 'frozen territory,' there

COUNCIL GROUP TO REOPEN FIGHT OVER REZONING

Civic Leaders to Oppose Change in Restrictions.

Rezoning, the principal political issue in the 19th ward, and the chief topic of discussion in Beverly Hills and Morgan Park for the last two years, will again be considered by the city council committee on buildings and zoning tomorrow morning.

Ordinances to rezone two parts of the far southwest side were deferred at a previous hearing on Jan. 28 because the matter was destined to be the chief campaign issue in the aldermanic race, and was too hot a subject for the committee to handle at that time.

More than 500 residents of the district are expected to attend the hearing tomorrow. Civic and political leaders will demand that the existing zoning ordinances restricting building to one family residences be kept in force, while large property owners and real estate operators in the section will ask for the passage of the ordinances permitting the construction of apartment buildings.

Would Change Entire District.

The ordinances to be taken up by the committee would rezone the district bounded by 109th and 111th streets, Western avenue, and Rockwell street; and the section between 95th, 99th and Leavitt streets, and Oakley boulevard. However, these are merely test cases, since, if they are approved, others will be introduced, and the entire character of Beverly Hills subsequently will be changed.

Ald. O. E. Northrup [19th], who in his campaign was pledged to fight any zoning change, said yesterday that he cannot predict the outcome of tomorrow's hearing.

"Without question, every civic organization and political leader in the district is opposed to rezoning," the alderman said, "but there is to be considered the new tendency in zoning matters. While we will fight to the finish to maintain a restricted section and to protect our homes, in other parts of the city, the zoning committee has been inclined to remove the restrictions to make way for bigger populations and increased property values. More than 12,000 property owners of Morgan park and Beverly Hills have signed petitions opposing the zoning change."

Civic Groups to Appear.

Officers of the Ridge Plan commission, Forest Ridge Improvement association, Beverly Improvement association, Longwood Manor association, Brainerd, and Washington Heights Improvement associations, and Ridge Civic council will be on hand tomorrow to state their side of the question again, while representatives of Harold J. McElhinny and other real estate operators will appear to demand rezoning.

The argument for rezoning will be based chiefly on a contention that the growth of the city demands provision for the erection of more apartment buildings, that no district should continue to be a restricted area, and that the city could obtain additional revenue in taxes from the increased land values which the rezoning would bring.

Those opposed to the change will reiterate their arguments that rezoning would ruin the district which is now one of the most beautiful residential centers in Chicago, would benefit only pense of the home owner, would re- real estate speculators at the ex- sult in congestion injurious to the health and morale of children, and would generally destroy all the benefits of Beverly Hills which caused thousands to build homes there.

SO. SIDE W. C. T. U. PAYS TRIBUTE TO JENNIE CASSIDY

Tribute to the late Jennie Cassidy, originator of the idea, "flowers for the needy," was paid by members of the South Side Women's Christian Temperance union last Monday on the anniversary of her birth. The meeting was held at the St. James church, 46th street and Ellis avenue. Miss Etha Marshaly, state corresponding secretary, gave a history of Miss Cassidy's life. This was followed with a musical by Mrs. Minnie Marshall, 4641 Indiana avenue. Mrs. Amelie Batchelder, 1022 East 42d place, gave a report on the work done by the department of south side flower mission and relief.

Sigma Alpha Sorority Will Hold "Golf Ball"

A "Golf Ball" will be given by the members of the Sigma Alpha sorority Friday evening, June 28, at the Hotel Shoreland, 55th street and South Shore drive. Mrs. Bertha Shaw, 7505 Yates avenue, is president of the organization, while Miss Margaret Lahart is in charge of arrangements for the dance.

SNAP 'EM AT PLAY AND WIN CASH PRIZE IN TRIBUNE CONTEST

Try your hand at a playtime picture and win a prize in The Tribune's photo contest. Playtime for Sally Ann under the hose, or playtime for father with a fishing rod, Jane and John playing cowboy and Indian, or baby sister finding out that grass is ticklish for the first time—catch them with a camera and send them in.

The Tribune will pay $5 for the best playtime picture taken by an amateur. It will pay $3 for the second best and $2 for the third. All pictures must be taken in the Chicago area.

The contest is open only to amateurs and the editor will be final judge. Theme, treatment, and clearness of the print all will be taken into consideration. No pictures will be returned.

Springtime Delights Among the Trees

His wife reading beside the lagoon opposite the old Fine Arts building in Jackson park presented so charming a picture that S. M. Golden, 1516 East 67th place, couldn't resist snapping it. And this week Mr. Golden won the first prize of $5 in The Tribune's spring picture contest for amateur photographers of the south side. Alan Boardman peeked around a big tree so cutely that he won the second prize of $3 for his dad, S. K. Boardman, Hazelcrest, Ill. R. Martin, 208 East 26th street, won the third prize of $2 with a picture of Antoinette Pareti enjoying a picnic tidbit.

"NEW BUSINESS OF THE CHURCH" TO BE TOPIC OF SERMON

[Gibson, Sykes & Fowler Photo.]

"The New Business of the Church" will be the subject of an address by Rev. R. A. White at the services this morning in the People's Liberal church, 65th street and Stewart avenue.

The Rev. Mr. White, who has been pastor of the church for more than 37 years, was reelected to the position at a recent meeting of the board of trustees.

The name of the Women's Aid society of the church, by vote of the members of the organization, was changed to the Women's club of the People's Liberal church, according to an announcement by Mrs. Una McRae Cropper, 7952 Langley avenue, secretary of the group. The work of the organization will be conducted along club lines in the future, she said

COUNCIL READY TO O. K. PAVING CRAWFORD AVE.

Archer to 63d Stretch Is Covered by Ordinance.

The city council Wednesday ordered deferred until the next meeting an ordinance permitting the paving of Crawford avenue between Archer avenue and 63d street. Unless some unforeseen objection arises within the next few days, the ordinance will be passed at the next council meeting, and the paving petition will be filed in the County court.

This improvement is hailed by members of the Southwest Federation of Improvement clubs as an important step in the opening of Crawford avenue through the entire southwest side. Paving this stretch will provide a good road from the heart of the district at 63d street and Crawford avenue to the center of Chicago by way of Archer avenue, according to M. A. Seymour, secretary of the federation. The cost has been estimated at $476,000.

Seek to Improve Long Stretch.

The organization is attempting to have Crawford avenue improved from the drainage canal to 135th street, he pointed out, and while this project is an important part of the improvement, every effort of the federation in the future will be made toward obtaining the improvement of the remaining portions.

The federation has proposed that the portion of Crawford avenue south of 63d street be paved partly by the board with the aid of special assessments, and partly out of the state highway funds.

It is imperative that this street be improved soon, Mr. Seymour explained, since the Crawford avenue bridge across the canal will be ready for traffic within a few months and will be practically useless until some method of approaching it from the south end is provided. That part of the thoroughfare cannot be used in its present condition.

Other Projects to Be Passed.

The council also is expected to pass an ordinance at its next meeting permitting the paving of a system of south side streets as follows: Avenues M, N, and O, between 106th and 109th streets, and 107th, 108th, and 109th streets, between Green Bay and Ewing avenues. This project will cost $228,000.

THE CHUCKLE COLUMN

Mr. Grievanon—Look here, I came to see you about this paragraph announcing my resignation from the chamber of commerce.

Editor—But it's quite true, isn't it?

Mr. G.—Quite, but I should like you to explain why you printed it under "Public Improvements."

MARJORIE JANE REGAN,
7519 South Morgan street.

Judge—What proof have you that Sam hit you in the eye?

Plaintiff—Yo, honuh, Ah got it down in black and blue.

DOROTHEA V. MURPHY,
1454 West 72d place.

Sillycus—I never could understand why a chap shouldn't have more than one wife.

Sinnycus—When you are older you will realize that the law protects those who are incapable of protecting themselves.

LILLYAN MARGUERITE GILL,
620 West 41st street.

Exasperated teacher—Why is it that you are always late at class?

Student—Because of a certain sign I have to pass.

Teacher—What has the sign to do with it?

Student—The sign says: "School Ahead—Go Slow!"

HELEN ROHRABAUGH,
7446 Eggleston avenue.

Sarcastic—Did you ever ride a donkey?

Stupid—No. Why?

Sarcastic—Why don't you get on to yourself?

L. MARKERT,
5562 Shields avenue.

Boy from big town—Got anything snappy in rubber bands?

Sally, the salesgirl—No, but we have something very catchy in fly paper.

HELEN KNIZE,
8130 South Paulina street.

Soliloquizing Sal—Folks, did you ever notice that we keep on shooing flies, but still they go around barefooted?

MARY JANE SCHUMACHER,
1311 Ridge street, La Porte, Ind.

The teacher was giving a drill in the meaning of words and their opposites. "Now tell me," she began, "what is the opposite of misery?"

"Happiness," said the class in unison.

"Gladness."

"And the opposite of woe?"

"Giddap!" shouted the enthusiastic class.

MARGUERITE ZACCARDI,
6140 West North avenue.

Junior—Columbus certainly was some prophet.

Senior—how do you make that out?

Junior—When he discovered America he shouted, "I see dry land!"

ROBERT D. REDDING,
145 Cleveland avenue, Whiting, Ind.

Inquisitive—Where are you going with nine buckets of water?

Peculiar—I've gotta drown a cat.

EDWARD J. MILLER,
3440 West 12th place.

Second story worker—Hullo, Bill. See you got a new overcoat. What did it cost you?

Pal—Six months. I don't wear cheap clothes.

GEORGE SMETANA,
5114 South Hoyne avenue.

High school students, send to your best laughs to the Chuckle Editor of The Tribune. Two dollars will be paid for each laugh, joke, or verse printed in the Metropolitan section. Address your contributions to the Chuckle Editor, Metropolitan section, The Tribune. Write on one side of the paper only and print your name and address plainly.

Sunday school teacher — You shouldn't talk like that to your playmate. Had you ever thought of heaping coals of fire on his head?

Tommy—No, ma'am, I hadn't, but it's a peach of an idea.

EVELYN McMAHON,
7752 South Racine avenue.

Mistress—I am a woman of few words; if I beckon with my hand like this, that means "come."

New Maid—That suits me, ma'am, I, too, am a woman of few words, and if I shake my head like this it means "I'm not coming."

ELEANOR M. LYDON,
R. 2, Box 7, M. S., Blue Island.

Soph—Where is your roommate?

Junior—If the ice is as thick as he thinks it is, he's skating; if it's as thin as I think it is, he's swimming.

ALICE LANEY,
5733 South Carpenter street.

Doctor—What is your profession?

Patient—I'm a gentleman.

Doctor—Hm-m, I see. You'll have to try something else—it doesn't agree with you.

ESTHER BORGESON,
7733 South Carpenter street.

Romantic Rosie—Speak burning words of love to me, sweetheart!

Hopeless Harry—Hot dog!

RALPH ANTHONY,
634 North County street, Waukegan.

Mandy, at insurance office—Hab you all got some fire insurance?

Clerk—Sure; what do you want to take it out on?

Mandy—Mah husban'.

Clerk—Then you want life insurance.

Mandy—No, suh; Ah wants fire insurance. Mah husban' was fired [illegible] times in de last two weeks.

HENRY LIPSON,
529 Surf street.

Teacher—What do two pints make?

Fresh Kid—Two pints make one cavort.

MARY BURR,
2661 Eastwood avenue.

She went to dad and asked him for
A brand new sealskin coat.
Said papa, "Seal is not for you,"
That's why he got her goat.

GORDON ARMBRUSTER,
804 North Taylor avenue, Oak Park.

Bill—Where to in such a hurry, Phil?

Phil—To save my brother.

Bill—What's the matter?

Phil—The nurse just called up and said that he's at death's door and the doctor is trying to pull him through.

RICHARD BROWNE,
329 East 56th street.

Prof. This gas is deadly poison. What steps would you take if it escaped?

Frosh—Long ones.

RAY DRUCKER,
920 Marianna street.

GIRL PICKED AS STAR STUDENT AT ENGLEWOOD

Mary O'Conner Leads the Graduating Class.

Miss Mary O'Conner, who boasts a record of 33 "S's" in her four years at high school, leads the June graduating class of Englewood High school, 62d street and Stewart avenue, in scholastic achievement. According to Miss Joanna Zander, faculty adviser of the student publication, this is the first time in many years that a student has been graduated with so high an average.

In her junior year, Miss O'Conner was vice president of her class, president of the Purple Pilots, a student organization, and vice president of the Aristel, the school honor society. In her senior year she was appointed as co-editor of the "E" Weekly, the student paper. Before becoming editor, she had been a reporter, news editor, and assigning editor on the staff.

Official of Honor Society.

In addition to being editor of the paper, she is vice president of the honor society, chairman of the assistant principal's secretaries, a member of the Quill and Scroll, the honorary journalism society, a member of the Engleboosters executive committee, and a member of the social service auxiliary.

Miss Ruth Dalrymple, with an average of 4.9 for her four years of high school, stands second among her classmates in scholastic achievement. At present she is vice president of the Engleboosters, manager of the school service bureau, news editor on the weekly, and a member of the honor society.

The next three highest in the class are Miss Venetia Croucher, Bazil Bilder, and Wilbur Bush. Miss Croucher and Mr. Bush are co-editors of the Annual, while Bilder is co-editor of the weekly.

Two Awarded Scholarships.

Bilder and Bush were both given two year scholarships to the University of Chicago by the alumni association of the school. Bush also received a one year scholarship to the University of Chicago from Julius Rosenwald at the Boys' Week Civic assembly, which was held last month in the Auditorium theater. According to Miss Zander, Bush may drop both scholarships for an opportunity of attending Northwestern university for four years.

Two hundred and twenty-one students of the school were elected to the honor society. They are:

WINS SCHOLARSHIP

MISS MARJORIE L. BECKER. [Daguerre Photo.]

Miss Marjorie L. Becker, 8138 Ingleside avenue, a senior at Hyde Park High school, is one of the high school students in the city who was recently awarded a one year entrance scholarship for the University of Chicago. The award was in recognition of the high grade of work accomplished by Miss Becker in high school. She was a member of the 1928 year book staff, a sponsor for the senior class, and a member of Sigma Epsilon, the Hyde Park High school honor society, and the English honor society.

AIRPLANE MODEL WINNERS GROOM FOR TITLE MEET

With the opening date for the second national Airplane Model League of America contests in Detroit less than a week distant, Chicago's champions are putting final touches on the models they hope will win them national titles, free trips to Europe and a handful of additional awards.

They are to compete with more than 500 boys, the cream of the 300,000 members of the league, who will represent every corner of the country at the contests. According to Merrill Hamburg, league secretary, every existing model record, indoor and outdoor, is almost certain to fall. The indoor record, 353.6 seconds, has stood since 1928, when Aram Abgarian, Detroit, made it; the outdoor record, 614.4 seconds, has stood since Robert Jaros, Chicago, made it at Dayton in 1925.

The local champions are Carl V. Carlson, 245 North Austin boulevard, and Henry Pacevitz, 1620 West 18th street.

Hyde Park Kiwanians Hear Ex-Cabinet Member

"The Interior Department" was the subject of an address by Roy O. West, former secretary of the interior, at the meeting of the Hyde Park Kiwanis club Wednesday at the Hotel Windermere West, 55th street and Stony Island avenue. Dr. Paul M. Cliver, 841 East 63d street, president of the organization, acted as chairman of the meeting. Charles W. Hoff, president of the University State bank, 55th street and Ridgeland court, introduced the speaker.

Willard Parent-Teacher Group Elects Officers

Mrs. Lovelyn J. Evans was elected president of the Willard Parent-Teacher association at a recent meeting of the organization in the school auditorium, 49th street and St. Lawrence avenue. Other officers elected were: Vice president, Mrs. Eugene Marshall; recording secretary, Mrs. C. F. Stradford; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Asa M. Burroughs, and treasurer, Mrs. Zella Williams. The new officers will be installed at a meeting Thursday.

GRADUATE CLASS OF MORGAN PARK HIGH ON JUNE 27

Rev. W. H. Boddy Will Deliver Address.

Commencement exercises for the graduating class of Morgan Park High school will be held in Blackwelder hall, the high school auditorium, on the evening of June 27. The Rev. William Henry Boddy, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, 64th street and Kimbark avenue, will deliver the address, and the presentation of diplomas will be made by W. Schoch, principal of the school. Graduates of the two year commercial course will be given their certificates Saturday afternoon, Junet 22.

Officers of the fourth year graduating class are: Jack Haliday, president; Miss Gertrude Fennema, vice president; James Peebles, secretary; and Miss Martha Janney, treasurer. Miss Grace Wemlinger is president of the second year graduating class and the other officers are Miss Bernice Semmer, vice president; Miss Elsie Johnson, secretary; and Harold Oetter, treasurer.

Seniors Hold "Kid Day."

Spring festivities started Friday with "Senior Kid Day," when all the seniors recalled the days of their childhood and appeared with socks, curls, hair ribbons, pinafores and overalls.

The senior banquet will be held in the school lunchroom next Friday evening with the following students in charge: Ross Wood, Miss Helen Grimes, and Miss Catherine Pullar. Kednesday, June 26, will be the day of the senior assembly, when talent in the senior class will be demonstrated for the last time. The committee in charge of this assembly includes: Miss Dorothy Lloyd, Miss Annie Gunner, and Robert Brookes.

Other Committee Members.

The class gift committee consists of Miss Mildred Knabe, Miss Betty Crane, Luther Halladay, and Mark Guerin. The committee in charge of senior announcements includes: Miss Mary Gorman, Miss Marion Mingea, and Miss Dorothy Stump.

Sigma Phi Omego Sorority to Hold Card Party and Tea

Members of the Kappa chapter of Sigma Phi Omega sorority will hold a card party, which will be followed by a pledge meeting and tea, Saturday afternoon in the Hotel Shoreland, 55th street and South Shore drive. Miss Ruth Brady, 7645 Yates avenue, is president of the organization, while Miss Leona Saindon, 7846 Cregier avenue, is chairman of the committee in charge of arrangements for the affair.

SENIOR CADETS AT MORGAN PARK GET DIPLOMAS

Graduation Ends Festivities of Four Days.

Commencement exercises for the graduating class of Morgan Park Military academy were held Wednesday morning at the Morgan Park Congregational church, following four days of festivities. Arthur Perrow, president of the Executives' club of Chicago, gave the commencement address.

In addition to diplomas, members of the graduating class received commissions in the Illinois National Guard and those who had completed the military work received eligibility certificates for commissions in the United States army reserve corps.

Alumni Day Observed.

Graduation festivities at the military academy began the Saturday preceding commencement with alumni day, when many former cadets returned for a golf tournament, baseball games, tennis matches, and banquet. Last Sunday a good citizenship program was held on the academy parade ground in which the Morgan Park High school R. O. T. C., and the Boy Scouts paraded with the cadets. The units were reviewed by Maj. Gen. Frank Parker, commander of the sixth corps area. Monday was lower school day and was spent in athletics for the younger boys. In the evening graduation exercises were held in Morgan Park Presbyterian church for the lower school boys while the cadets met in Blaker hall for a ceremony at which medals and athletic awards were presented.

Tuesday was class day with the special senior exercises held during the afternoon in the gymnasium and upper school athletic contests in the morning. The senior prom was held Tuesday night.

Members of Graduating Class.

NEW MONUMENT OF ODD FELLOWS TO BE DEDICATED

The Rosehill Cemetery association, I. O. O. F., will dedicate a new monument at the Odd Fellows' plot in Rosehill cemetery this afternoon. A. L. Yantis, past grand master of the grand lodge of Illinois, will be the speaker and the Drum and Bugle corps of Square post No. 232 of the American Legion will furnish the music. The association was formed in 1865 to provide a burial place for transient Odd Fellows who die in Chicago. A monument dedicated in 1868 was destroyed several years ago and the new one, 46 feet high and of Vermont granite, will replace it.

Garfield Methodist Group Presents Comedy Tuesday

The cast will include: Philip Waterman, Miss Lois Stanton, Dick Taylor, Miss Dorothy Briggs, Miss Elizabeth Briggs, Russell Morgan, Milan Morgan, Jack Alston, Miss Alma Harwick, Duane Rucker, Miss Lucille Granbom, Miss Mary Curry, Miss Virginia Hamilton, Miss Edna Carren, Harold Burkee and Arthur Mathis.

O. K. $850,000 IMPROVEMENTS FOR SOUTH SIDE

Improvements estimated to cost more than $850,000 were approved by south side property owners at a hearing conducted recently by the board of local improvements. Only one project, estimated to cost $69,000, was abandoned because of objections.

Paving projects which would cost more than $700,000 were approved at the hearing. The one paving project defeated was the improvement of Talman avenue between 59th and 63d streets. Property owners told Michael J. Faherty, president of the board, that 90 per cent of the residents were opposed to paving.

Projects Approved.

The following paving projects were approved without objection:

Anthony avenue from 80th street to Jeffery avenue, costing $175,000.

A system of streets in the neighborhood of 83d street and Stony Island avenue, costing $137,000.

A system of Chicago Lawn streets south of 63d street in the vicinity of Austin avenue, at a cost of $187,000.

CROWDS ATTEND ART EXHIBITION OF HIGH SCHOOLS

Success Causes Plans for Bigger 1930 Show.

Costume designs, posters, linoleum cuts, pencil sketches, designs in pen and ink as well as colors, landscapes and still life, formed part of the high school art exhibition which opened at the Art institute May 31 and closed Monday.

South side schools were well represented. Lindblom exhibited landscapes and still life studies done in pastel water colors, pencil and pen and ink, samples of lettering and botany designs showing cross sections of various flowers. There were hand made bookcovers, designs for certain popular advertisements, posters for the May festival and spring play, and a few technical designs from the shops from Englewood High school, and both designs for costumes and posters advertising "Jerry of Jericho Road," the opera recently presented by students of Morgan Park High school.

Tilden's Art Is Technical.

The art of Tilden Technical High school was somewhat different from that shown by other schools. It included views of famous cathedrals, with each detail carefully worked out in the pen and ink, the medium with which most of the work was done, designs of ancient Greek, Roman and Egyptian architecture, and drawing of intricate machinery.

Conventionalized landscapes done in colors and in black and white were displayed by Bowen students. There were other conventionalized designs arranged in a long strip which might be used for borders on anything from a spring dress or wallpaper to bookplates, exhibited by Bowen, Parker, Morgan Park, Fenger and Hyde Park High schools. Complicate studies in various types of design were also exhibited by Calumet students.

This was the first exhibit of high school art held since 1914. Benjamin F. Buck, assistant superintendent of schools, was general chairman of the committee sponsoring the exhibition, and due to its success and the large crowds which gathered each day during the display, Mr. Buck plans to hold a more formal exhibit next year in the form of a contest, at which prizes will be given in the different classes of art work entered.

South Side Committee Members.

South side instructors who were members of Mr. Buck's committee were: Mrs. Nellie Osgood of Englewood, Miss Dorothy Gordon of Calumet, Miss Ada Enander of Tilden, Mrs. Edna Hotchkiss of Morgan Park, and Miss Florence Bigelow of Hyde Park.

Teachers in the south side high schools who directed the students whose work was displayed are: Miss Mary Logeman, Miss Gordon, Mrs. John Sievers, Mrs. H. D. Burke, and Mrs. M. Keepers of Calumet; Miss Beatrice Cannon, Miss Agnes Dandliker, Mrs. Osgood, Miss Elsa Schmidt, Miss Elizabeth Troeger, and H. Baller of Englewood; Miss Edna Marlin, Earl Musick, and Miss Helen Vizard of Fenger; Miss Bigelow, Miss Katherine Dimock, Mrs. Gertrude C. Lewis, Miss Helen S. Gilbert, Miss Verna Curtis, and Miss Ella Ottaway of Hyde Park; Mrs. Daisy Williams of Phillips; Mrs. Anna D. Knehans, Miss Frances Manion, Miss Marguerite Norcott, and Miss Ruth Worst of Lindblom; Mrs. Hotchkiss and Miss Claribel Sheehy of Morgan Park; Miss Evelyn Alexander of Parker, Miss M. B. Bohmann, Miss Ada Enander, Miss P. M. Portersfield, and Harry T. Yates of Tilden.

BOYS SEEKING HONORS WITH MODEL YACHTS

Two of Chicago's model yacht enthusiasts packed their miniature craft and entrained for Washington, D. C., last Wednesday where they planned to enter their sailing boats in the annual national races sponsored by the Model Yacht Racing Association of America, which has headquarters in Washington.

Orville Sonntag and Thomas Malloy are the two members of the Chicago Model Yacht club of Ogden park who hope to return bearing national honors for their organization. The races will be held on the reflecting pool beside the Lincoln memorial today and tomorrow.

Fourteen model yacht racing clubs belong to the national organization, two of which have their headquarters in Ogden park, where they hold competitions among their members on the model yacht pool. The other clubs are situated in New York, Brooklyn, Boston, St. Augustine, Fla.; Toledo, Detroit, and Washington.

PARENT-TEACHER OFFICIAL PICKS HER COMMITTEES

Mrs. J. E. Taylor, 2714 East 77th street, newly elected president of the Chicago Council of Senior and Junior Parent-Teacher associations, appointed the chairmen of the standing committees of the organization at a meeting last week at the home of Mrs. C. I. Palmer, 6440 Greenwood avenue, retiring president.

The new committee chairmen are: Mrs. Walter Hancock, 4421 North Winchester avenue, program; Mrs. Merritt Ranstead, 6949 Stewart avenue, membership; Mrs. William Crowhurst, 7120 Langley avenue, juvenile protection; Mrs. William G. Booth, 7535 Eggleston avenue, school beautiful, and Mrs. Palmer, transportation.

DOLLAR SALE YIELDS TRANSPARENT STRAW HAT VALUED AT $8

The Tribune will pay $2 for each story of a best bargain obtained in a neighborhood store printed in the Metropolitan section. Address Bargains, Metropolitan Section, The Tribune. Make them short and snappy, writing on only one side of the paper, and print your name and address plainly.

HAND MADE HAT FOR $1.

Chicago, June 11.—Recently a department store on the south side had a dollar sale. Among the articles advertised were hats—a choice of any one in the store for a dollar. I purchased a beautiful hand made summer hat of delicate, transparent straw. Later a friend of mine, who is a milliner, estimated the actual value at about $8. Being just a normal woman and a natural bargain hunter, I consider this a real buy.

MRS. MILDRED BEYER.

LUNCH CLOTH FOR 40 CENTS.

Chicago, June 9.—I bought four fine linen dinner napkins for 10 cents each from a heap of soiled odds and ends on a bargain counter in a neighborhood store recently. When I had laundered them and fagotted them together I had a handsome lunch cloth worth $5.

MRS. KAY ROGERS,
1901 West 35th street.

BARGAIN, SIGHT UNSEEN.

Chicago, June 10.—I got my best bargain two weeks ago when a south side drug store advertised a prize package sale. The package I purchased, which cost 10 cents, contained a pint bottle of witch hazel, a tube of good tooth paste, and a yard of inch wide adhesive tape.

MRS. WILLIAM HERATY.

WATCHFULNESS WINS.

Chicago, June 9.—Last year our neighborhood shoe store held a big sale. I purchased a pair of oxfords for $3.95. Just the other day I saw the same style shoe in the same store for $6.50.

DEMAND OPENING OF NEW ARTERIES INTO SOUTHWEST

At a meeting of the Hamilton Park Improvement association held Tuesday night in Hamilton park field house, delegates to the South Side Federation of Improvement associations were instructed that the association favored immediate action toward the opening of Michigan avenue at 63d street, in order that traffic congestion to the south and southwest sides could be eliminated from 63d to 68th streets, the widening and repairing of Vincennes avenue from 67th street to 107th street, and the opening of Wentworth avenue from 73d street to 74th street.

This is in accordance with the policy favored by the Beverly Hills Business Men's association, of which W. C. Waddell is president. James Hyland, 7349 Vincennes avenue, is president of the Hamilton Park Improvement association.

Complaints on ground tax rates covering certain streets within Hamilton park district were made out and forwarded to the board of assessors, requesting a reinvestigation and lowering of the present rates.

AIRPLANE MODEL WINNERS GROOM FOR TITLE MEET

With the opening date for the second national Airplane Model League of America contests in Detroit less than a week distant, Chicago's champions are putting final touches on the models they hope will win them national titles, free trips to Europe and a handful of additional awards.

They are to compete with more than 500 boys, the cream of the 300,000 members of the league, who will represent every corner of the country at the contests. According to Merrill Hamburg, league secretary, every existing model record, indoor and outdoor, is almost certain to fall. The indoor record, 353.6 seconds, has stood since 1928, when Aram Abgarian, Detroit, made it; the outdoor record, 614.4 seconds, has stood since Robert Jaros, Chicago, made it at Dayton in 1925.

The local champions are Carl V. Carlson, 245 North Austin boulevard, and Henry Pacevitz, 1620 West 18th street.

COMMENCEMENT ACTIVITIES OPEN AT LINDBLOM HIGH

Scholarship Winners Are Honored at Banquet.

Although graduation exercises at Lindblom High school will not be held until June 26 and 27, commencement activities started last Tuesday with an assembly in the morning and banquet followed by a dance Tuesday evening, in honor of the scholarship winners. They are Warren Thompson and Walter Maneikis, who were awarded the two year scholarship at the University of Chicago, and Miss Ruth Willard, who won the one year scholarship at the university.

The scholarship banquet was given by the Lindblom Honorary society, composed of third and fourth year students who have maintained an average of excellent or superior in all their studies for the last three semesters. The senior class annual dinner-dance will be given Thursday night in the girls' gymnasium.

Award Diplomas June 27.

The graduation exercises for the four year graduating class will be held June 27 in the Lindblom auditorium.

The address of welcome will be given by the class president, Elmer K. Koncel, and two other student addresses will be given, one by Miss Lillian Schley, who was chosen by members of the faculty for this honor, the other by George Staib, who was selected by his classmates. Robert Frase, by reason of standing highest scholastically in his class, will deliver the valedictory address. The address to the seniors and presentation of diplomas will be made by Harry Keeler, principal of the school.

There will be music by the Lindblom High school orchestra with a violin obligato by Miss Verna O'Leary, a piano solo by Miss Lillian S. Freeman, and choral selections by the Lindblom musical clubs, with Miss Helen Umbach at the piano.

Commercial Finals June 26.

The commencement exercises for graduates of the two-year commercial and technical courses will be held the evening of June 26. Addresses will be made by Ralph Levin, class president, and C. Principal Harry Keeler will present the certificates and music will be provided by the Boys' Glee club directed by Miss Catherine Taheny, the high school orchestra, and Arthur Goettler who will play a cornet solo accompanied at the piano by Miss Emily Faegenson.

THREE MARK 44TH ANNIVERSARY OF SUNDAY SCHOOL

Forty-four years ago, 125 children trotted to Sunday school donned in their holiday best; it was the opening day of the new school.

Three of this number participated in the forty-fourth annual birthday celebration of the school—the Kenwood—Greenwood avenue and 46th street, last Sunday. They are Mrs. Frederick Mehlhop, Kenwood hotel; Miss Lillian Berry, 4438 Woodlawn avenue, and A. W. Glesmer, 4630 Greenwood avenue.

They reminisced of early days at the school and of the various activities of the students who attended.

Mrs. Mehlhop was present with her daughter, Mrs. Robert Willett, 1369 East 50th street, and with her four year old grandchild who is in the kindergarten class. Mrs. Mehlhop's father was the first superintendent of the school.

A talk was also given by Dr. A. L. Wilson, pastor. The program was arranged by Fred A. Huber, superintendent.

The Kenwood school is interdenominational and is believed to be the oldest on the south side.

GIRL ATHLETES ATTEND TEA AT LINDBLOM HIGH

Officers of the Lindblom High School Girls' Athletic association gave a tea last week for representatives from similar associations in other Chicago high schools at the school last week.

Miss Dorothy Plunkett, president of the Lindblom association, presided at the meeting and gave the welcoming speech. Miss Edna Gardner, supervisor of the girls' athletic association in the city, spoke of the progress made in the last year by the various associations. An open forum was then held, during which one representative from each school spoke of the activities of the organization in her school.

A musical program closed the afternoon's meeting. There was a violin solo by Miss Verna O'Leary and songs by Miss Bernice Kunde, both of whom were accompanied by Miss Helen Umbach.

Schools represented at the tea were McKinley, Medill, Harrison, Phillips, Austin, Bowen, Fenger, Parker, Hyde Park, Englewood, Calumet and Lake View.

The speaker representing Fenger was Miss Martha James. Miss Ruth Scheuter spoke for Parker, Miss La Verne Hackenbarach represented Calumet, and Miss Walverta [illegible] spoke for Bowen. The girls discussed various sports, such as golf, tennis, skating, horseback riding, volleyball, and baseball. Miss Scheuter in particular had interesting things to tell concerning the indoor golf instruction given during the winter at Parker.

STUDENTS TO GET ROSELAND POST SERVICE MEDALS

Legion to Honor Fenger, Pullman Graduates.

Roseland post, No. 49, of the American Legion, will present its service medal to students of Fenger and Pullman Technical High schools at the graduating exercises of these schools to be held during the last week of this month. This medal is awarded semi-annually to the member of the graduating class selected by the faculty of the school as having given the greatest service to the school. The award is made under the direction of the Americanism officer of the post, Maj. Albert V. Becker. The medal for athletics offered annually by the post for athletic competition at Palmer park will be awarded by the post athletic officer, James Stinson.

Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, coroner of Cook county, will be the speaker tomorrow night at the meeting of Square post, No. 232, at the Midway Masonic temple, 61st street and Cottage Grove avenue. Dr. Bundesen will speak on "Crime of Cook County." This will be an open meeting and invitation has been especially extended to the women who were workers on poppy day. Also, the wives and other women members of the veterans' families are invited, as it will be ladies' night at Square post.

Efforts of the Cook county council to bring the national convention of the Legion to Chicago in 1933 were pledged in a resolution adopted at the latest meeting of the council. A committee is expected to be appointed to coöperate with the Chicago Association of Commerce in the campaign to win the convention. Assurance has been given, " was announced, that if the convention comes to Chicago special arrangements for the delegates will be made at the World's Fair.

Brig. Gen. Abel Davis will be the speaker at a meeting of Advertising Men's post, No. 38, to be held in Hotel Sherman tomorrow noon. His message will be on "Americanism."

Peoples Gas post, No. 836, is having its semi-annual roundup on June 18, at 8 p. m., in the Peoples Gas building. More than 100 members are coöperating to make it truly a roundup of old and new members. Chairman Ralph J. Hoberg has secured good entertainment, refreshments will be served and several attendance prizes will be given. Delegates to the department convention will be elected.

"Is there no balm in Gilead?" Is there no physician there?" Fort Dearborn post, No. 268, after reviewing the success of its spring activities, answers "yes." There was that childrens' party at which seventy-five youngsters, including thirty-one handicapped children from Christopher school, played the harmonica. There was the happiness of the seventy Boy Scouts at their party. There was the trip to Normal last Sunday, when W. C. Wakefield, commander of the post, and Mrs. Wakefield, president of the auxiliary, with members of both organizations, caught the smiles of happy boys and girls. Dearborn post auxiliary, in keeping with Flag day, has purchased a beautiful "Old Glory," and will have it dedicated at its first meeting with Mrs. George Kellogg, national defense chairman, officiating.

Chicago Labor post, No. 745, will hold its next meeting at its clubhouse, 4334 Jackson boulevard, at 8:30 o'clock tomorrow night, according to announcement from Commander James Murphy.

The new regime will take over command of Voiture 220 of the Forty and Eight, Friday evening at the Hotel La Salle when the newly elected officials of the local voiture are formally inducted into office as follows:

C. E. Taylor, of Chicago Stock Yards post, No. 333, chef de gare.

George Sugarman of Rogers Park post, No. 208; A. L. Brodie of James G. Brophy post, No. 195; Robert E. Casey of Chicago Police post, No. 207, and Lisle Hart of North Shore post, No. 21, chefs de train.

John R. Caldow of Harold A. Taylor post, No. 47, commissaire intendant.

C. J. Hughes, of Chicago Loop post, No. 144, correspondent.

SUMMER TO BE BEST IN RADIO, EXPERT CLAIMS

High Power Conquers Old Bugaboo—Static.

CINCINNATI, O.—Summer is faced this year by radio manufacturers and broadcasters with more optimism than ever before in the history of the industry, according to Powel Crosley, radio expert. Summer radio as a separate entity is no more.

That "summer radio," as a separate and fearful factor in the radio industry is no more, is due more, perhaps, to the attitude of the radio listeners rather than to that of the manufacturers and broadcasters.

"Previous to last summer it was the custom of manufacturers to shut down their plants following the Christmas rush and not to begin operations again until time to prepare for the fall business," Mr. Crosley said. "With the coming of hot weather broadcasters revised their programs and cut expensive features to the bone. They made little or no effort to retain the better commercial accounts and thus materially contributed to the slump.

Fans Play Part.

"On the other hand, owners of radio receivers continued to use them through the summer months and in so doing found that better apparatus brought about better summer reception. As improved receivers were brought out each fall and the purchasers continued to use them during the following summer, it was noticed that reception was better. Listeners also brought about increases in power and thus struck a hard blow to summer static. Always quick to realize the advantages to them of a few extra watts in a station's power, they sent letters of praise to the broadcasters who added this power and neglected those who did not. As a result the more progressive of the broadcasters added even more power, and static became less disturbing.

Many New Listeners.

"Last summer was the most successful in radio history, both from a business and from a broadcasting angle. Some say that the season had a false stimulus due to the national political conventions and campaign and that business and broadcasting will fall off in 1929. This is not true, the stimulus given radio by the exceptional features of last summer will continue. These features brought hundreds, yea, thousands of new listeners into the radio field and taught them that summer radio is just as interesting as winter radio. Accordingly, these new converts will be at the loud speaker this summer listening to the good musical and other features just as they sat and listened to the politicians in 1932."

GOVERNMENT TO HANDLE PROGRAM IN AUSTRALIA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SYDNEY, New South Wales, June 15.—A new radio broadcasting scheme provides for the commonwealth government assuming control throughout Australia. Companies desiring to broadcast were invited to tender programs. The government accepted today the tender of the Fuller Vaudeville company, which has an extensive circuit in the capital cities but his hitherto not engaged in broadcasting. Tenders rejected included companies operating pioneer services, 2-FC of Sydney and 3-LO of Melbourne.

The government will receive all license fees, paying the agreed price for programs, and royalties fees. The technical operation of the stations will be by the Amalgamated Wireless company.

Inside the Loud Speaker

BY QUIN RYAN.

The Dempsey-Firpo fight took place on Friday evening, Sept. 14, 1923. Although it lasted only one round and fifty-seven seconds, it was one of the most thrilling of Dempsey's encounters. It was the first time that the mauler was knocked from his feet in the ring. We undertake to present it in radio broadcast lingo this morning.

Firpo was the Argentinian giant who came to America obsessed with the idea of capturing the heavyweight boxing crown. A series of preliminary fights demonstrated his ability as a worthy foe, and Tex Rickard matched him with the champion.

Now, let the announcer tell you the story.

ANNOUNCER—Good evening, ladies and gentlemen. This is W-G-N broadcasting direct from the Polo grounds in New York City.

We're down here next to the ring that Tex Rickard has set up near what corresponds to second base when the Giants are at home playing baseball in this big playground. It's after 10 o'clock here in New York and only the ring with its battery of Kleig lights playing over it, is illuminated. Ninety thousand fight fans are accommodated here in the semi-darkness, and they've been screaming and shouting for hours as one preliminary fight after another went its weary way.

Now the jam in the ring is subsiding, and Announcer Joe Humphries, the man with the megaphone voice, is waving his hat for silence. He's introducing Firpo, the "Wild Bull of the Pampas," Joe calls him, and the crowd shouts—listen to them! Now, Humphries is waving Jack Dempsey, the champion, to his feet, and the crowd goes mad once more. In a few moments the big fight will be under way. It's just a minute or two after 10 o'clock here in New York City.

Watch the ring, now—that's where all the excitement. The photographer and the camp followers are clearing out—only Firpo and Lavelle and Vega, his Argentinian friends, remain in one corner and Dempsey and Jack Kearns and Barney Dempsey are in the champion's angle of the arena. Johnny Gallagher, the referee, is summoning the men to the center of the ring for their instructions. It's to be fifteen rounds to a judges' decision, for a purse of $500,000 at least. The heavyweight boxing championship of the world is at stake. Johnny is motioning with his hands as he talks. Now, they're going back to their corners—in Dempsey's corner Kearns is rubbing the champion's chest and together they are staring across the ring at Firpo, whose might right hand is now incased in the red leather of a boxing glove.

It will be just a few moments more now. There's the whistle! That means seconds out of the ring. Kearns is outside the ropes, and across the ring Lavelle and Vega are giving Firpo last minute advice in Spanish. Now, they're out!

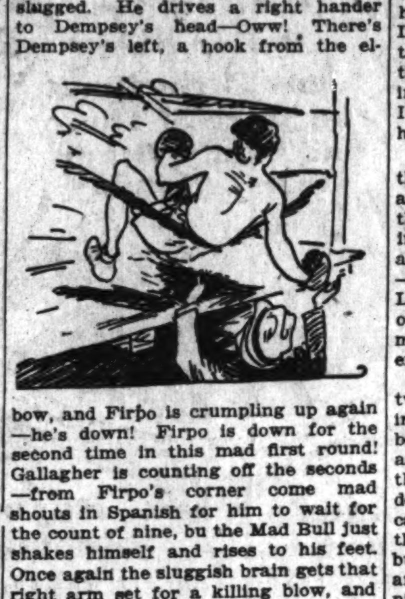
[Gong.]

There's the bell! Round one!

Both men are out of their seats and in the center of the ring, and Dempsey is letting go with both hands—rights to the heart and lefts to the head. Firpo is swinging his arms like a pair of flails. This is not a boxing match—it's a fight! Zowie! Dempsey crashed Luis that time with a stiff left to the mouth! Now Firpo is swinging that great right hand, but Dempsey is dodging and ducking and weaving in under it and using his guard. It's sock and get socked all the way through! Dempsey is lathering Firpo with right handers to the heart. And there's a sock on the chin, and Firpo is down! The Argentinian is on the mat! Johnny Gallagher jumps in and his arm swings down once, twice, but Firpo is up and after Dempsey like a mad bull, like the Wild Bull of the Pampas that he is, his two arms waving before him like the sails on a windmill.

Dempsey drives home another punch to the heart, but Firpo is coming right back for more. O! Look out for that right hand, Jack! Luis just swung one from his back that nearly grazed Dempsey's chin—the champ got out of the way just in time. Now they're in a clinch, but that won't last long. Owww! Firpo crashed through Jack's defense with a right hander to the heart. Jack is scowling! It hurt! Now Dempsey is tearing in once more, the same course; rights to the body and that Dempsey left hook to the head!



Firpo is banging away with that right hand. He's fighting his own kind of a fight—slug and get slugged. He drives a right hander to Dempsey's head—Oww! There's Dempsey's left, a hook from the elbow, and Firpo is crumpling up again—he's down! Firpo is down for the second time in this mad first round! Gallagher is counting off the seconds—from Firpo's corner come mad shouts in Spanish for him to wait for the count of nine, bu the Mad Bull just shakes himself and rises to his feet. Once again the sluggish brain gets that right arm set for a killing blow, and he rushes after Dempsey—the bristling black hair is wet and sweaty now, but still he keeps on—he's not hurt! Ow! He drives that right against Dempsey's head, but the champion ducks and sends home a right to the Bull's heart—Luis felt that one! His mouth is twisted! Whuup! Dempsey's left again—that hook!—to the jaw! Firpo's on the mat again! Dempsey has knocked Firpo down again.

But not for long! The challenger is starting to his feet—Johnny Gallagher hasn't counted off three seconds and Firpo is starting to his feet. He's mad! He's rushing after Dempsey, beating the air. Heaven help Jack if he gets in the way of those arms! He's got him! Dempsey is down! Firpo put that right over. A smash at the base of the brain! Jack Dempsey is on the mat! For the first time in his championship career, he's been knocked down. But he's conscious! He's waiting for the count. Gallagher is tolling off the seconds. Firpo has retired to one side of the ring, waiting for the champion to get up. The crowd has gone mad! Four . . . Five . . . Six . . . Dempsey is getting up, he's getting to his feet. He's been regaining his strength by that rest on the mat. Now he's on his feet, and Firpo steps out again. Jack is crouching down, waiting for the big Argentinian! There's a right! Dempsey shoots a right to the heart! And now—Oww! That left again! FIRPO IS DOWN! Dempsey has knocked Firpo down again! The Argentinian is on the mat! He's not bounding up like a rubber ball this time—he's waiting for the count—one, two, three, four, five, six, seven, eight, nine. He's on his feet! Now he's gritting his teeth and charging forward again! All he knows is to charge! The arms are waving again, and—Gee! Dempsey felt that one! Firpo shook the champion to his toes with that right hander to the head. Jack is socking right back, but backing away—Firpo is bearing down on the champion—now he's got Jack over against the ropes. That right hand is beating down like a club—punch, punch, punch, and Dempsey drives back, and Whuup!

Ow! Firpo has knocked Dempsey out of the ring! A right hand to the head! He's landed in the laps of the newspaper men! Hear that din! Johnny Gallagher is so surprised that he hasn't started to count! Now Dempsey is crawling back into the ring. Clambering over the heads of the newspaper men. He's back in the ring, still on the mat, he's going to take the count. Three, says Referee Gallagher, four . . . five . . . six . . . seven—Dempsey is getting up. . . . Jack is groggy—as Firpo comes forward, he grabs those big arms and he's holding—Jack Dempsey is holding on! Now they're breaking and Dempsey is backing away, his arms dropping at his side—and Firpo is driving home that great right hand! Jack Kearns is yelling at Dempsey to bring up his guard. Now they're clinching! Away again, and they're slugging! Dempsey has gone into a clinch. Firpo has him groggy! It may be all over! Dempsey is still holding on.

[Gong!] There's the bell. That's the end of round one! Whew! What a scrap! Science has been tossed to the winds—they're just two cavemen in their fighting. We've been told all about that right hand of Firpo's—and it certainly is a sledge hammer. Listen to that mob. Ninety thousand of them on their feet and cheering madly. There's the whistle. The fighters sit there, waiting for round two.

[Gong!]. There's the bell. Round two. Dempsey is out of his corner in a flash. That one minute rest has been enough, Dempsey is himself again! He's crouching, waiting for the first of those rights that Firpo deals out— the only punch that he carries—Oww! Dempsey has pushed the right away, and he's landing a bunch of lefts and rights to the body and head. Dempsey is still the champion by a long shot! Firpo is swinging his arms, but Dempsey is getting in under them with murderous rights to the stomach, that are making Luis twitch with agony. Ohhh! Dempsey landed a pair of lefts to the head! Luis managed to sneak over that right hand, but it's barely touched Dempsey's head—the champ is dodging and ducking and weaving and twisting about as only he knows how! Whuup! There's another left to Firpo's mouth! Blood is dribbling down the Argentinian's unshaven chin! And they continue to slug! Ow! Dempsey drove two lefts into Firpo's body.

The challenger is down. Firpo is on the mat again! Those lefts seemed to bury themselves in his vitals. Now he's twisting there on the mat—he's coming up again—bleeding and groggy—yes! He's groggy! Now he's on his feet, and Dempsey is fighting his kind of fight. They're slugging each other with everything they've got. Kearns is yelling to Jack to keep his guard high—Firpo gets through a right hand again — but Dempsey brushes it away—the steam's gone out of it, I guess—Dempsey is tearing in—rights and lefts to the body and head—Firpo can't hold on—he can only hit with that right—he tries again—but Dempsey is in there first with the punch. There's the right! Look out, Luis! Dempsey cracked Firpo with a hard right hander to the chin, and Firpo's arms fly up in the air in instinctive protection—two lefts to the body! Firpo is going down—he's on the mat!—he's lying on his face—it looks like the end this time—slowly Referee Gallagher is counting off the seconds. . . . two . . . three . . . four . . . five . . . Firpo's body is twitching and now he rolls over on his back. His face is twisted with pain, claret trickles from his mouth, his eyes are closed. His arms—that mighty right arm—are lying at his side—powerless . . . still the count—seven . . . eight . . . the crowd is silent—nine . . . ten!

Jack Dempsey is still champion of the world! He has knocked out Luis Angel Firpo!

TWO NEW RADIO PROGRAMS ADDED TO TRIB STATION

One Is Daily and One Is Weekly Feature.

Two new radio programs, one daily and one weekly, both of a reminiscent nature, were announced this week by Henry Selinger, program director of W-G-N, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, station.

Beginning Saturday, and continuing every Saturday evening, the W-G-N players, under the direction of Harry W. Spingold, are reviving old time plays in a series called "Old Time First Nights."

"The Count of Monte Cristo," in which James O'Neill, father of Eugene O'Neill, starred; "The Two Orphans," "Richelieu," "Lena Rivers," and other famous productions of thirty and forty years ago will be included in the répertoire of the W-G-N players.

"'Way Back When."

By way of novelty, Old First Nighter will attend each of the plays with his daughter, and will re-create for her and for radio listeners the various theaters as they appeared when O'Neill, Joseph Jefferson, and others of the old school strode the boards in their premieres. Jean Conover is adapting the plays to radio presentation. The curtain rises every Saturday at 8.

At once new and old, "'Way Back When," a combination of spoken reminiscences and old fashioned music, is the other W-G-N feature introduced this week. It is broadcast every evening at 10:10, the time at which the Hungry Five went on the air previous to their vacation.

Old Time Tunes.

"In the Good Old Summer Time," "Little Annie Rooney," "On a Bicycle Built for Two," and similar tunes from pre-automobile days help to recaller the 'way-back-whens of W-G-N listeners.

Meanwhile, resting up in Wisconsin before they begin their new amusement park engagement, Louie's Hungry Five have forgotten "Ach! Du Lieber Augustin" and "Schnapps Waltz" and are concentrating on fishing, pretzels, and near beer.

PICK 200 BOYS FROM SOUTH SIDE TO ATTEND CAMP

A committee of citizens on the south side, under the leadership of Ald. Louis B. Anderson [2d] and Dr. Spencer C. Dickerson is selecting a group of 200 boys from among needy families in the Second, Third and Fourth wards to be sent to Camp Wabash on Rowe lake, Michigan, during the summer months.

Ald. Anderson believes that for every boy who is properly supervised and removed from the temptations of the streets of Chicago during the summer months, the citizens get a hundred dollars of protection in return. Vandalism and burglary grow out of the desire of the boy for amusement, excitement, luxury and money, he said, and for a small investment per boy, these wants are satisfied at the camp.

The Wabash Avenue department, Y. M. C. A., will serve 500 boys during the summer months, 200 of whom will be sent to the camp with all or part of their expenses paid through the assistance of many generous citizens of Chicago who appreciate the problems and needs of boys.

Headed by the Louis B. Anderson Civic club, the first group of 100 boys will sail Monday, July 8, on the steamship Banbridge for Camp Wabash. Every other Monday following an additional 100 boys will embark on their voyage across Lake Michigan.

MUSIC BREEZES

The breeziness of a bus-top—the gayety of pretty girls at the prom—the crispness of dawn—all have been turned into music by that wizard, Goldkette. Through your loudspeaker comes the spirit of the New Music. Your fingers tingle as you listen. You want to laugh with the tunes. Notes race. Notes scamper. Notes make a crooked design. The trumpets sputter little notes. The trombones bellow large, organ-like notes. The director grins with delight as the clarinets hurry through two octaves and half way back. Three times today Jean Goldkette and his W-G-N Dance Orchestra reach their dancing climax: 1:30, 2:25, and 11 P. M.

BLUE NOTES

Three whispering voices and a deep guitar. Tom, Dick and Harry sing old songs, new songs or any songs that are rich with music. Smooth and round—quick and dexterous—each measure punctuated with the resonant voice of the guitar. Tom, Dick and Harry make all their own arrangements, and they know how to sing them. Hear the three snappy artists at 5:30 and 11 P. M.

KIDS

Listen, kids. The composers who have great names now were children once. They ran around and broke windows and made their mothers nervous, just like you. Besides, they didn't forget it. Once when Mr. Tschaikowski remembered he had been a child, he wrote a group of pieces to a Nutcracker! Can you imagine? A Nutcracker! Mr. Gaston du Moulin, who was little once, too, leads the W-G-N Symphony Orchestra as they play it. 5:45 P. M.

Power Detection . . . is a new method of operating the detector tube by which greater current can be applied to it, and stronger speech and music handled, without choking or distortion.

Majestic
Power Detection removes the "Bottle-neck" in Radio Reception . . .

NOW music can sweep gloriously through the radio, unhindered and undistorted . . . complete, satisfying, true! Gone is the "throttling" action of old style detection . . . the choked, fuzzy effect on medium and low notes that prevented absolute realism. In Majestic Radio, power detection has opened up the "bottle-neck."

Adhering to proved tubes and proved circuits, Majestic presents yet another remarkable development in its Automatic Equal Sensitivity Control. Maximum range and power at the low waves . . . at the high waves . . . without need of touching other than tuning knob while finding stations.

Majestic's Anniversary Models . . . new Mighty Monarchs of the Air just released . . . present a combination of beauty, range and power unequaled by any other radio set at any price! Let the nearest Majestic Dealer demonstrate Models 91 and 92 . . . he will be glad to put one in your home for trial . . . no obligation.

GRADUATE 53 AT ENGLEWOOD HIGH EVENING SCHOOL

Dr. Charles Lunak Is the Chief Speaker.

Fifty-three students were graduated from the Englewood evening high school at the exercises held Thursday in the school auditorium, 62d street and Stewart avenue. This class, according to members of the faculty, is believed to be the largest class ever graduated from an evening high school in Chicago.

Dr. Charles Lunak, assistant superintendent of schools, who is in charge of all evening schools, was the principal speaker at the exercises. The address of welcome was given by Benedict Theisen, class president, while a talk on "The Joy of Work" was given by William H. Drysdale, elected speaker of the class.

Gold Medal Is Presented.

Daniel F. O'Hearn, principal of the Englewood High school, presented Joseph Mathews with the gold medal given to the member of the graduating class who led in scholastic achievement for four years of high school work. Mr. Mathews responded with a speech of thanks.

The musical entertainment was presented by a quartet which was composed of members of the faculty. They were: Mrs. Harry H. Hornstein, Miss Joanna Zander, Earl A. Rosinbum, and Harry H. Hornstein.

List of Graduates.

Mr. O'Hearn presented the following persons with their diplomas: Howard E. Barclay, Miss Marion Blackman, Mrs. Nannie L. Burch, Salvatore Cosentino, Francis E. De Wtit, Elmer G. Forgue, Carl H. Freeberg, James G. Gibson, Miss Inez Gleason, Jerome F. Grass, Miss Irene B. Gwizdowski, Victor W. Hillger, Miss Alice M. Leonard, Angus MacDonald, Thomas H. MacRoy, Stanley H. Marra, Joseph Mathews, Herbert C. Oestermeyer, Arthur O. Palm, John J. Rafferty, Miss Gertrude E. Richter, Mrs. Mabel C. Schaaf, Miss Marie F. Skamarak, Julian P. Skrzypek, Miss Ellen E. LAKE CALUMET SITE FOR VAST CITY EXPANSION

Reviews Need for Reclamation.

is another thing that Greater Pullman must have to carry out its natural progressive development—a project, by the way, that is vital to all Chicago. I refer to a highway that will give the City of Chicago a proper connection with the arterial highways leading from the south into the city.

"The Chicago Plan commission has submitted a plan providing for a boulevard on South Park and Indiana avenues, from Washington park to 130th street, 200 feet wide all the way. The north end connects with South Park way, the new outer drive in Burnham and Grant parks, and with Sheridan road.

The south end connects with ten thoroughfares coming into the city from the south and southeast—thoroughfares of state and national importance, including Ridge road, Michigan City road, Lincoln highway, and Dixie highway. It passes through the center of Roseland and greater south side.

Vital to All Chicago.

"This proposed route would give direct access to the loop from the east, south, and southwest. It would take care of traffic to and from all east and south towns, such as Riverdale, Dolton, Chicago Heights, Hammond, Gary, Indiana Harbor, East Chicago, Ivanhoe, Steger, Flossmoor, Homewood, Markham, Harvey, Matteson, and Blue Island. Through bound traffic would use this route to avoid the loop via the outer lake front drive.

"This improvement is of the utmost importance to the south side and to all Chicago. We are the south park taxing area, but all we have to show as a receipt is one small park. The territory is void of boulevards, such as are maintained all over the city by the park district. Therefore the necessity of a South Park way.

"South side hotels have lost the tourist trade of motorists due to the present traffic conditions. It is difficult now for the motorists to enter Chicago from the south. He has been going west to get away from the congestion.

"Let's have those 6,000 acres of Lake Calumet territory reclaimed. Let's have a highway that will take the Pullman district out of the 'detour' territory. Both projects are of a sort in which all Chicago should take pride, and it is our desire that both of them be understood."

Entertain Mothers of Cooke School Graduating Class

Mothers of the members of the graduating class of Cooke school were the special guests at a meeting of the Cooke Parent-Teacher association Friday afternoon in the school auditorium, 82d street and Bishop avenue. A program was presented by the pupils of the school.

WHO SAID IT? When, Where and Why

Following are the answers to quotations previously published:

Quotation—I should worry.

Answer—These words are attributed to former President William Howard Taft, who is supposed to have said them when his administration was criticized by former President Theodore Roosevelt, who had been Mr. Taft's personal and political friend. "I should worry" afterward became a favorite slang expression and is in general use today.—James Conwell, 6202 Lakewood avenue, Chicago.

Answer—Pyrrhus (318-272 B. C.), king of the little country of Epirus, northwest of Greece, was a kinsman of the family of Alexander the Great and was ambitious to imitate the great general's career. Tarentum, a Greek city in lower Italy, at war with Rome, invited him to fight their battles and he accepted with alacrity. Pyrrhus sailed for Tarentum in 280 B. C. with about 25,000 soldiers and a number of elephants. In the spring of that year the Greek and Roman armies met at Heraclea and Pyrrhus won the victory, chiefly with his cavalry and the elephants, which caused confusion in the Roman ranks.

The war was renewed in the spring of 279, when Pyrrhus invaled Apulia. At Asculum the king of Epirus, supported by the Tarentines, Samnites, Lucanians, and Bruttians, met the allied forces of Rome, Latium, and Etruria. The battle lasted two days, but Pyrrhus finally won. Congratulated on his triumph, he looked over the field where 3,500 of his men lay dead, and replied: "Another such victory and we are undone."

From this incident has come our expression "Pyrrhic victory," meaning a victory won at too great price. —Judson L. Rose, 1730 West Adams street, Chicago.

NOTE—Authorities differ as to what Pyrrhus actually said, whether it was "We are undone," "We shall be ruined," "I am lost," or "I shall have to return alone to Epirus"; but the meaning is the same.

Quotation—Reduce taxation before taxation reduces us.

Answer—This was said by Horatio Seymour, a civil war governor of New York, in 1868, when he was running for President on the Democratic ticket against Gen. U. S. Grant. The words were spoken during one of Seymour's speeches in New York.—Chester Schleff, P. O. Box 131, Gary, Ind.

INDIANS LAID OUT VINCENNES, STATE STREET

Names and Routes Recall Pioneers.

Young as we are as a nation, we are old enough to have forgotten our beginnings in many cases. Day after day we tread some historic spot, time after time we repeat the name of the particular town or locality where we live nor remember what events occurred there, what heroic deeds or strange twists of fate caused it to be named this instead of that. In the next few weeks the Metropolitan section of The Tribune will present a series of sketches explaining the origin of many of the names now used without remembrance of why or wherefore.

Herewith is an explanation of how Vincennes avenue was named.

Residents of the great southwest district of Chicago, speeding back and forth over Vincennes avenue, seldom wonder about the origin of this long, diagonal street which daily leads them to the loop, or recall that a few centuries ago the red man first trod this same pathway. Yet since the last of the 18th century the Vincennes road has been an important factor in the growth of Chicago.

In that century the Indians, tramping single file from Lake Michigan to the mouth of the Wabash river, wore a path which was followed again and again by the red men of the Pottawatomie, Iroquois and Kankakee tribes. A few years later when Fort Dearborn was established on the site which is now Chicago and the Old Fort, which later became known as Vincennes, Ind., was built 160 miles above the mouth of the Wabash, traders, soldiers, and pioneers followed this same trail. Thus it gradually became known as Vincennes trace, named obviously from the town of Vincennes situated at its southern terminus.

Capital of French Territory.

The Old Fort was built originally in 1702 by François Morgan de Vincenne, an officer of the French army who was sent by the French king with a military force to build a chain of forts which would connect Louisiana and Canada. The Old Fort, which was the third of the three he established, has lasted longer than any of the others. At that time, Indiana, as well as Illinois, Ohio, Michigan, and Wisconsin, were all part of the territory north of the River Ohio, and the Old Fort was capital of this territory.

The Old Fort, Chippecoke, Brush Wood, Post St. Francis Xavier, and Post Vincents were the names given to this fort at different times during its existence. It was not until after 1736 that it became known as Vincennes. Later, when the fort was taken by the British, an attempt was made to call the town Sackeville, for Sir Thomas Sackeville, then earl of Derset. However, the name of Vincennes was kept by the French settlers, who were the first to build houses on the site of the present town of Vincennes.

It has been said that the name of Vincennes was taken from the vicinity in France of that name. However, all historians seem to agree that the town was doubtless named for its founder, François Morgan de Vincenne.

Beginning with Vincennes, the old trail led through the present towns of Danville, Myersville, Hoopeston, Grant, Blue Island, to Chicago, following the same landmarks that Vincennes avenue and Vincennes road follow today.

Converged with Hubbard Trace.

At the town of Sheldon, Ind., the Vincennes trace united with another trail called Hubbard trace, which came from the west but also led into Chicago by way of Danville. The Hubbard trace was so called because from 1825 Gurdon S. Hubbard, one of Chicago's pioneers, who was at that time superintendent of Illinois river trade, carried on his trading activities over the road which became known by his name.

The history of State street is also associated with that of Vincennes avenue and the Vincennes trace. For that part of this early trail, also known as the Hubbard trace, later was marked with milestones and became known as the State road. With the coming of the railroad the old State road was superseded and abandoned, but within Chicago its name still survives in the State street of today. And although many communities and the city of Chicago have been built up around the northern part of Vincennes trace, it still lives in Vincennes avenue, which is a prominent thoroughfare for south siders.

The old trail is still a popular road downstate. Beginning at the city limits, Vincennes runs diagonally across the city through Beverly Hills, Brainerd, Gresham, Auburn Park, and Hamilton Park, until it unites with State street at 68th street.

Wentworth School P.-T. A. Gives Lunch for Graduates

The 141 members of the graduating class of Wentworth school were the special guests at a luncheon given in their honor by the members of the Wentworth Parent-Teacher association Tuesday in the school lunchroom, 70th and Sangamon streets. Mrs. Michael Haggerty, 7019 Peoria street, was chairman of the committee in charge of arrangements for the luncheon.

Dr. Schroeder Speaks.

Dr. P. L. Schroeder of the institute for Juvenile Research was the principal speaker at the meeting of the Beverly service council Friday at the home of Mrs. G. B. Levee, 10510 Longwood drive.

Award Prizes in Beverly Hills Flower Show

The eighteenth anual flower show of the Beverly Hills Woman's club was held last week at the Bethany Union church. Peonies, poppies, columbine, campanula, valeriana, iris, violas, pyrethrum, primroses, and lupine were the chief varieties of spring flowers exhibited. Prizes were given for individual flowers, group displays, and arrangements of flowers.

S. M. Dominick, 10130 Parnell avenue, took all the prizes in special exhibits of peonies, and R. A. Napier of Blue Island won the majority of prizes for the perfection of an individual bloom in the peony group. Mr. Dominick, Mrs. L. G. Luck, Mrs. J. G. Skinner, Mrs. Dana Howard, William Turner and Mrs. Andrew Holm also won prizes for the perfection of bloom of the individual peonies they exhibited.

Other Prize Winners.

Other prize winners for perfection of bloom included: Oriental poppy, Mrs. George Hamilton, Robert Howard, and Mrs. Andrew Holm; columbine, Miss Grace French; campanula, Mrs. John Mortenson; valeriana, Mrs. Dana Howard and Mrs. Otto Henry; iris, Mrs. R. A. Napier, Mrs. William Lowitz, and Mrs. W. H. Sanders; iris collection, Mrs. William Riddell; dianthus barbatus, Mrs. Sophie Wagner and Mrs. W. O. Krick; violas, Mrs. Holland Flagler.

Dianthus, Mrs. Kress Garside and Mrs. Otto Henry; pyrethrum, Mrs. R. A. Napier and Mrs. F. B. Boice; primrose, Mrs. William Church; gallardia, Mrs. F. B. Boice; lupine, Mrs. John Mortenson.

Those who won prizes for the number of blooms in their displays were: roses, Mrs. George Hamilton, Mrs. Kress Garside, and Mrs. William Lowitz; forget-me-nots, Mrs. William Lowitz and Mrs. Henry Heineman; iris, Mrs. Luther Mieriman; anchusa, Mrs. John Mortenson; zethranthus, Mrs. Fannie Morton; garden heliotrope, Mrs. William Lowitz and Mrs. Henry Heineman; sweet William, Mrs. Sophie Wagner.

Win Arrangement Prizes.

Winners for flower arrangement included: Mrs. William Lowitz, Mrs. James Brough, Mrs. George Morris, Mrs. Otto Henry, Mrs. M. Gebhardt, Mrs. Amos Miner, Mrs. E. G. Fairbank, Mrs. Helen George and Mrs. Charles M. Bacon. Dorothy Bebb and Mary Elizabeth Bebb won prizes in the group for flowers arranged by children.

Those who took prizes for the table arrangement of flowers for a luncheon were: Mrs. Wilmer States, Mrs. James Peebles, and Mrs. W. W. McAllister. Mrs. Raymond Gifford was awarded the prize of her table arrangement of flowers for a tea table. Mrs. Anthony Gould won the prize for arranging flowers on an invalid's tray and Mrs. J. B. Lester for her method of using flowers on a card table.

PARENT-TEACHER GROUP IS FORMED AT FENGER HIGH

Fenger High school's repeated attempts to organize a parent-teacher group culminated last Tuesday in the forming of a preliminary association and the setting of next Friday as a meeting date for all the parents.

Henry Penn, 10359 Lowe avenue, was selected as temporary chairman and on his committees are: Program, Mrs. Margaret Hill, Mr. Penn, and Lawrence Drumheller, representative of the student council who helped form the group; publicity, Mrs. E. C. Helland, Mrs. G. C. Gault, and Mr. Drumheller.

Mrs. J. E. Taylor, president of the parent council of junior and senior high schools, helped in the organization work and is expected to attend next Friday. Mrs. Edward W. Jackson, president of district one, will speak. Permanent officers will be elected at the meeting, which will be held in the small auditorium at Fenger, 112th and Wallace streets.

SORORITY HOSTESS

MISS HELEN O'GRADY.
[Du Bois Photo.]

Miss Helen O'Grady, 7946 Aberdeen street, grand president of Zeta Sigma Psi, national sorority, will be hostess at a luncheon which will be held in connection with the midyear national convention of the organization next Saturday. Miss O'Grady will be assisted by Miss Helen Peterson, Miss Mary Morris, Miss Mary Enright and Miss Jacqueline Kennedy.

GIRL RESERVES STAGE SPRING HI-JINKS

Clad in English overalls and gingham dresses, Girl Reserves of the south side presented their spring Hi-Jinks June 8 at the Carrie McGill residence of the Y. W. C. A., 5928 Drexel avenue. Left to right: Miss Mildred Panuska, Miss Pauline Burroughs, Miss Martha Kolar and Miss Clara Pribramsky.

These two girls were among those who participated in a Billy Boy dance on the lawn of the residence. They are Miss Florence Adelman (left) and Miss Betty Wilson.

START ADDITION TO BLUE ISLAND HIGH BUILDING

Excavation has been started for the addition to the new Blue Island Community High school, which will cost a half million dollars. It is expected that the structure will be ready for occupation in the fall.

The addition will be in the form of a wing connecting with the present structure. It will be constructed of brick limestone, with two floors containing work shops, domestic science rooms, class rooms, swimming pool, gymnasium, and an auditorium with a capacity of 1,500.

Perkins, Chatten & Hammond, 160 North La Salle street, are the architects, and Frank Randall, 205 West Wacker drive, is the structural engineer.

GIRLS PRESENT COUNTRY FAIR OF OLD ENGLAND

Three hundred girl reserves, representing seventeen clubs on the south side, took part in the spring hi-jinks held on the lawn of the Carrie McGill residence of the Y. W. C. A., at 4928 Drexel boulevard, June 8.

The festivities were modeled after an English country fair. There were dances, singing, and stories. Clad in English overalls and gingham dresses, one group of girls danced a Billy Boy dance under the direction of Mrs. A. J. Reed, 2344 Touhy avenue, advisor of the West Ridge Community Church club. The English gentry were represented in a Sir Roger de Coverly dance, and a Maypole dance was given by the Farragut Junior High school Girl Reserves club.

Robin Hood and Nottingham Fair stories were told by Mrs. C. W. Israel, 7378 Paxton avenue, advisor of the Girl Reserves of the South Shore Evangelical church.

The annual hi-jinx programs are a tradition with Chicago Girl Reserves, of whom there are 4,000 in clubs connected with high schools and churches. The Girl Reserve movement is the junior department of the Y. W. C. A. Mrs. Donald De Frees of Hotel Windemere represents this department on the metropolitan board of directors.

Loretto Seniors Guests of Woodlawn Alumnae

The Woodlawn alumnae of Loretto academy gave a luncheon and musical for members of the spring graduating class yesterday afternoon at the Shoreland hotel. Miss Gladys A. Burns acted as toastmistress and officers of the alumnae made up the reception committee. Mrs. James P. Galligan is president, Miss Marie Zang, vice president, and Mrs. Fred Winterfield, treasurer.

ARCHE CLUB ELECTS MRS. MILTON H. MACK AS ITS NEW PRESIDENT

MRS. MILTON H. MACK.

Mrs. Milton Howard Mack, 4530 Oakenwald avenue, was elected president of the Arche club at a recent meeting of the organization. Other officers elected were: Vice president, Mrs. Charles L. Samson, 7416 Bennett avenue; second vice president, Mrs. William I. Simonton, 5316 Greenwood avenue; recording secretary, Mrs. Archy Corken, 4003 Ellis avenue; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Chester M. Turner, 7132 Crandon avenue, and treasurer, Mrs. Guy B. Child, 5430 Eastwood park.

The list of committee chairmen includes: Mrs. Cahries W. Strawbridge, 7100 South Shore drive, reception; Mrs. William H. Collins, 7536 Colfax avenue, social; Mrs. Rufus G. Collins, 4715 Drexel boulevard, luncheon; Mrs. Fred H. P. Howard, 5227 Woodlawn avenue, printing; Mrs. William C. Van Benschoten, 6618 Kimbark avenue, house; Mrs. Steve Gavin, press and pictures; Mrs. Arthur R. Webber, 7205 Euclid avenue, art study; Mrs. William G. Norris, 6910 Oglesby avenue, literature; Mrs. Joseph A. Jerger, 4839 Dorchester avenue, music; and Mrs. David Charles Harries, 5494 Cornell avenue, community service.

Sorority to Give Dance.

Members of the Delta Lambda sorority will give a dance Friday evening in the Castilian room of the Hotel Shoreland, 55th street and South Shore drive.

SCHOOL PLANS HANG ON RULING OF HIGH COURT

Await Decision in Fairbanks Case.

Residents of the seventh and eighth wards are eagerly awaiting the decision of the Illinois Supreme court on an appeal for a rehearing made by the officials of the board of education to settle the ownership of the Fairbanks estate, the 80 acre plot of ground bounded by 83d street, 87th street, Cottage Grove avenue, and St. Lawrence avenue.

More than a month ago, the Supreme court ruled that the disputed land belonged to the Fairbanks estate and that the board of education had no claim to the property. The fact that the South Side Federation of Improvement associations has adopted a resolution asking that immediate action be taken by the officials of the board in obtaining a site for the long promised high school in the district is taken to indicate that the members of the group don't believe that the decision will be reversed.

Doesn't Expect to Win.

William R. Wendland, president of the association, declared that he did not believe that the board would win its appeal. He pointed out, however, that although no plans have been disclosed by the board, it is understood that if the court rules that the property belongs to the Fairbanks estate, the officials of the board will immediately start condemnation proceedings to obtain a site for a senior high school and a high school stadium.

Mr. Wendland pointed out that the new high school, which will be included in the 1930 building program, would be erected on the block bounded by 83d and 84th streets, from Langley to Champlain avenues.

Members of the association have long argued the need for a new high school in the district and they assert that they were put off by promises of the officials of the board to wait until a decision had been reached in regard to the Fairbanks' case. The members declare that they have waited patiently for many years, while their children could not have the school facilities which they deserved, and they now demand that the officials of the board take immediate steps to remedy this condition.

Must Travel Long Way.

They point out that their children are compelled to travel to either South Chicago or Pullman to attend high school. This, they say, is a great hardship for the children, and it is also a great one for the parents, who find it expensive to send their children such distances.

The members say that the time has come when the officials of the board must keep their promise and find an adequate site for a new high school. They believe that as taxpayers, their children deserve the same school facilities as the children of other communities. Further action will be postponed until the Supreme court has handed down its decision in regard to the board's appeal.

NEW ST. SIMON'S CHURCH WILL BE DEDICATED TODAY

Cardinal Mundelein will dedicate the recently completed St. Simon's church and school at 5157 South California avenue, this morning at 10:30 o'clock. He will be assisted by the Rev. Msgr. W. O. O'Brien of St. John's church, the Rt. Rev. Msgr. William Foley of St. Ambrose church, and the Rt. Rev. Msgr. J. Dettmer of St. Anthony's church.

Solemn high mass will be celebrated by the Rev. Bonaventure Sovinski, O. F. M., of St. Mary's church, Lemont, Ill., assisted by the Rev. Charles Florek of St. Michael's church and the Rev. Anthony Nouza, also of St. Michael's church. The dedication sermon will be preached by the Rev. John Kostik of St. John's church, Whiting, Ind. Masters of ceremonies will be the Rev. Joseph P. Morrisson and the Rev. Julius Chvojka.

The parish was organized Oct. 1, 1926, and the Rev. Edward Emdek is pastor. John Slovinec was the architect who designed the new $200,000 structure, which was completed four months ago and has been occupied since that time. The seating capacity of the church is 1,020 and there are eight classrooms for the accommodation of the 193 pupils.

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

BY FRED PASLEY.

We are reliably informed that the Diablos, comprising the best minds of the north shore, the Gold Coast and points south, will foregather the evening of Thursday, June 20, with the Ronald F. Brunswicks at their delightful local chateau, he Chicago Beach hotel. There will be the historical session devoted to the genesis and present aims and purposes of the Diablos; the reading of the minutes of the last meeting and an open forum on current topics, such as Tia Juana, climate, California and golf, with Mrs. Helen Danek reading a paper on "Davey's Locker." The young people will then indulge in social diversion.

LAKE CALUMET SITE FOR VAST CITY EXPANSION

Reclamation Need Is Vital Topic.

BY ONEY FRED SWEET.

Standing on the roof of his store at 112th street and Michigan avenue, James Gately, a director in the South End Chamber of Commerce, pointed off to the east where Lake Calumet gave the impression of being a substantial body of water.

"There it is," he said, ruefully, "serving not the slightest purpose. Just waste, a loss not only to the Pullman district but to the entire city of Chicago. The lake isn't more than three feet deep at its deepest point. Fifty-three blocks of swamp land that industries would be eager to utilize and which would pay big revenue to the city. Yet nothing has been done all these years."

By "all these years," Mr. Gately was probably referring to the more than two decades during which legislation has been sought which would make it possible for Chicago to develop Lake Calumet as a harbor.

Survey Made in 1833.

History goes back to the year 1833 when the government directed that a critical survey be made of the Calumet and Chicago rivers, to discriminate as to the superiority for marine and commercial purposes. The duty was entrusted to Lieut. Jefferson Davis, later president of the Confederacy, who strongly recommended and advocated the improvement of the Calumet river and the establishment of the harbor there. Stephen A. Douglas, in his day, considered Calumet as the proper outlet for the Illinois and Michigan canal, esteeming that it would afford a waterway for the shipment of grain and thus would avoid so much wagon transportation.

"Up here on 'the mountain top'," said Mr. Gately, "let us consider Lake Calumet from an economic angle, not only as it affects the south side but all of Chicago. I have come up here often to look at that tragic waste.

Involved in Politics.

"Why has nothing been done? No one really knows. Calumet harbor has been termed a political football. That may be the main reason for lack of action. Another possible reason is that Lake Calumet is located in the extreme south end of Chicago and residents of other parts of the city can't realize its general benefit. Coming up from my store below and up from a business atmosphere, it appears to me a simple business proposition requiring little or no capital on the part of the city.

"Out there is the 'mud hole.' In it will be made 1,425 acres of land to be owned by the city of Chicago with power to sell, or lease. Around the lake, in what is now worthless property, would be reclaimed approximately 3,000 acres of privately owned land. Along the river and the Sag canal, developments of a similar nature would take place within some 1,500 acres of land.

Would Mean Profit to City.

"Let us consider what that means. At the present time the land is valued at $500 an acre. Compare this with the harbor lands developed in other cities, the property would show a potential value of $50,000 an acre. So it is easy to appreciate from a business standpoint that if the city of Chicago would awaken to the possibilities from a financial standpoint only, the development of the harbor would not only finance itself but leave a sufficient surplus to revert to the corporate fund. An outsider would scarcely believe that we have been content all these years to allow such a worthless tract—without fitting revenue—inside the city limits.

"So much for the reclamation of land angle. Much has been said about the harbor. I cannot refrain from mentioning the fact that just within the last few months have occurred typical examples of what has been happening all these twenty odd years. The Lever Brothers, manufacturers of soap, were anxious to locate in the Calumet harbor area, as was also the Empire Gas and Fuel company. Reviewing the lackadaisical methods of the city in developing the harbor and unable to get assurance that work would be started soon, both concerns went to Hammond, not only taking their pay rolls with them, but their taxes, that might have gone into the city, into another state.

Cites Cost of Shipping.

"Chicago doesn't realize the situation. Chicago was once the manufacturing center of the world. Today it costs a Chicago manufacturer $51.50 to ship a piano to Los Angeles—the same piano that is shipped from the eastern seaboard, via the Panama canal, for $12.50. It costs 40 per cent more to ship steel to the west coast from Chicago than it does from the eastern seaboard. Likewise, raw material costs more in the Chicago area in proportion.

"In two years we expect to have the completion of the Mississippi river service into Chicago. Failure to develop Lake Calumet would be identical with having a railroad terminal without a depot. Calumet is the proposed site for the lake to gulf terminus, and is admitted by all to be the only logical location for such a terminus.

"So much for Calumet. The city council committee on harbors, wharves, and bridges has just appointed a subcommittee to deal with the Lake Calumet harbor project. Now that enabling legislation has been passed in Springfield, the matter rests solely with that committee. The time has come for deeds. We must remember that we are all a part of Chicago. If the south side fights the west side, and vice versa, we'll never get any place. The project has been hammered this way and that long enough.

"And along with the development of Calumet harbor and reclaiming 6,000 acres of 'frozen territory,' there

COUNCIL GROUP TO REOPEN FIGHT OVER REZONING

Civic Leaders to Oppose Change in Restrictions.

Rezoning, the principal political issue in the 19th ward, and the chief topic of discussion in Beverly Hills and Morgan Park for the last two years, will again be considered by the city council committee on buildings and zoning tomorrow morning.

Ordinances to rezone two parts of the far southwest side were deferred at a previous hearing on Jan. 28 because the matter was destined to be the chief campaign issue in the aldermanic race, and was too hot a subject for the committee to handle at that time.

More than 500 residents of the district are expected to attend the hearing tomorrow. Civic and political leaders will demand that the existing zoning ordinances restricting building to one family residences be kept in force, while large property owners and real estate operators in the section will ask for the passage of the ordinances permitting the construction of apartment buildings.

Would Change Entire District.

The ordinances to be taken up by the committee would rezone the district bounded by 109th and 111th streets, Western avenue, and Rockwell street; and the section between 95th, 99th and Leavitt streets, and Oakley boulevard. However, these are merely test cases, since, if they are approved, others will be introduced, and the entire character of Beverly Hills subsequently will be changed.

Ald. O. E. Northrup [19th], who in his campaign was pledged to fight any zoning change, said yesterday that he cannot predict the outcome of tomorrow's hearing.

"Without question, every civic organization and political leader in the district is opposed to rezoning," the alderman said, "but there is to be considered the new tendency in zoning matters. While we will fight to the finish to maintain a restricted section and to protect our homes, in other parts of the city, the zoning committee has been inclined to remove the restrictions to make way for bigger populations and increased property values. More than 12,000 property owners of Morgan park and Beverly Hills have signed petitions opposing the zoning change."

Civic Groups to Appear.

Officers of the Ridge Plan commission, Forest Ridge Improvement association, Beverly Improvement association, Longwood Manor association, Brainerd, and Washington Heights Improvement associations, and Ridge Civic council will be on hand tomorrow to state their side of the question again, while representatives of Harold J. McElhinny and other real estate operators will appear to demand rezoning.

The argument for rezoning will be based chiefly on a contention that the growth of the city demands provision for the erection of more apartment buildings, that no district should continue to be a restricted area, and that the city could obtain additional revenue in taxes from the increased land values which the rezoning would bring.

Those opposed to the change will reiterate their arguments that rezoning would ruin the district which is now one of the most beautiful residential centers in Chicago, would benefit only pense of the home owner, would re- real estate speculators at the ex- sult in congestion injurious to the health and morale of children, and would generally destroy all the benefits of Beverly Hills which caused thousands to build homes there.

SO. SIDE W. C. T. U. PAYS TRIBUTE TO JENNIE CASSIDY

Tribute to the late Jennie Cassidy, originator of the idea, "flowers for the needy," was paid by members of the South Side Women's Christian Temperance union last Monday on the anniversary of her birth. The meeting was held at the St. James church, 46th street and Ellis avenue. Miss Etha Marshaly, state corresponding secretary, gave a history of Miss Cassidy's life. This was followed with a musical by Mrs. Minnie Marshall, 4341 Indiana avenue. Mrs. Amelie Batchelder, 1022 East 42d place, gave a report on the work done by the department of south side flower mission and relief.

Sigma Alpha Sorority Will Hold "Golf Ball"

A "Golf Ball" will be given by the members of the Sigma Alpha sorority Friday evening, June 28, at the Hotel Shoreland, 55th street and South Shore drive. Mrs. Bertha Shaw, 7505 Yates avenue, is president of the organization, while Miss Margaret Lahart is in charge of arrangements for the dance.

SNAP 'EM AT PLAY AND WIN CASH PRIZE IN TRIBUNE CONTEST

Try your hand at a playtime picture and win a prize in The Tribune's photo contest. Playtime for Sally Ann under the hose, or playtime for father with a fishing rod, Jane and John playing cowboy and Indian, or baby sister finding out that grass is ticklish for the first time—catch them with a camera and send them in.

The Tribune will pay $5 for the best playtime picture taken by an amateur.

It will pay $3 for the second best and $2 for the third. All pictures must be taken in the Chicago area.

Address entries to Photo Contest, Metropolitan section of The Tribune. The name and address of the photographer should be printed plainly on the back of the print as well as the names of all persons in the picture.

The contest is open only to amateurs and the editor will be final judge. Theme, treatment, and clearness of the print all will be taken into consideration. No pictures will be returned.

Springtime Delights Among the Trees

His wife reading beside the lagoon opposite the old Fine Arts building in Jackson park presented so charming a picture that S. M. Golden 1516 East 67th place, couldn't resist snapping it. And this week Mr Golden won the first prize of $5 in The Tribune's spring picture contest for amateur photographers of the south side. Alan Boardman peeked around a big tree so cutely that he won the second prize of $3 for his dad, S. K. Boardman, Hazelcrest, Ill. R. Martin, 208 East 26th street, won the third prize of $2 with a picture of Antoinette Pareti enjoying a picnic tidbit.

HEARING FRIDAY ON 17 SOUTH SIDE STREET PROJECTS

Property Owners to Voice Opinions.

South side property owners have been invited to attend a public hearing to be conducted by the board of local improvements at the city hall next Friday morning to voice their opinions regarding seventeen improvements which the board desires made.

Nine water supply pipe systems, six paving projects, and one sewer system will be considered at the hearing.

List of Water Projects.

Water supply pipes are desired in the following streets:

Merrill avenue, between 87th and 86th streets.

Wabash avenue, between 85th and 87th streets.

Prairie avenue, between Burnside avenue and 93d street.

Manistee avenue, between 95th and 99th streets.

Hoyne avenue, between 84th street and the Pennsylvania tracks.

Morgan street, between 105th and 107th streets.

Ninety-third street, between Beverly and Ashland avenues.

Saginaw avenue, between 128th and 130th streets.

Seek Approval of Paving.

The board wishes to pave the following streets:

Avers avenue, between 53d and 55th streets.

Washtenaw avenue, between 62d and 63d streets.

California avenue, between 59th and 63d streets.

Sixty-sixth street, between Parnell avenue and Halsted street.

One Hundred and Twelfth street, between Aberdeen street and Hamlet avenue.

The sewer project up for hearing would consist of a main line in 116th place, between Central Park and St. Louis avenues and branches in a few neighboring blocks.

AIRPLANE MODEL WINNERS GROOM FOR TITLE MEET

With the opening date for the second national Airplane Model League of America contests in Detroit less than a week distant, Chicago's champions are putting final touches on the models they hope will win them national titles, free trips to Europe and a handful of additional awards.

They are to compete with more than 500 boys, the cream of the 300,000 members of the league, who will represent every corner of the country at the contests. According to Merrill Hamburg, league secretary, every existing model record, indoor and outdoor, is almost certain to fall. The indoor record, 353.6 seconds, has stood since 1928, when Aram Abgarian, Detroit, made it; the outdoor record, 614.4 seconds, has stood since Robert Jaros, Chicago, made it at Dayton in 1925.

The local champions are Carl V. Carlson, 245 North Austin boulevard, and Henry Pacevitz, 1620 West 18th street.

WHO SAID IT? When, Where and Why

Following are the answers to quotations previously published:

Quotation—I should worry.

Answer—These words are attributed to former President William Howard Taft, who is supposed to have said them when his administration was criticized by former President Theodore Roosevelt, who had been Mr. Taft's personal and political friend. "I should worry" afterward became a favorite slang expression and is in general use today.—James Conwell, 6202 Lakewood avenue, Chicago.

Quotation—One more such victory and we shall be ruined.

Answer—Pyrrhus (318-272 B. C.), king of the little country of Epirus, northwest of Greece, was a kinsman of the family of Alexander the Great and was ambitious to imitate the great general's career. Tarentum, a Greek city in lower Italy, at war with Rome, invited him to fight their battles and he accepted with alacrity. Pyrrhus sailed for Tarentum in 280 B. C. with about 25,000 soldiers and a number of elephants. In the spring of that year the Greek and Roman armies met at Heraclea and Pyrrhus won the victory, chiefly with his cavalry and the elephants, which caused confusion in the Roman ranks.

The war was renewed in the spring of 279, when Pyrrhus invaled Apulia. At Asculum the king of Epirus, supported by the Tarentines, Samnites, Lucanians, and Bruttians, met the allied forces of Rome, Latium, and Etruria. The battle lasted two days, but Pyrrhus finally won. Congratulated on his triumph, he looked over the field where 3,500 of his men lay dead, and replied: "Another such victory and we are undone."

From this incident has come our expression "Pyrrhic victory," meaning a victory won at too great price.—Judson L. Rose, 1730 West Adams street, Chicago.

NOTE—Authorities differ as to what Pyrrhus actually said, whether it was "We are undone," "We shall be ruined," "I am lost" or "I shall have to return alone to Epirus"; but the meaning is the same.

Quotation—Reduce taxation before taxation reduces us.

Answer—This was said by Horatio Seymour, a civil war governor of New York, in 1868, when he was running for President on the Democratic ticket against Gen. U. S. Grant. The words were spoken during one of Seymour's speeches in New York.—Chester Schleff, P. O. Box 131, Gary, Ind.

SEEK HELP OF 30,000 IN TAX REFORM DRIVE

Massmeeting to Launch South Side Campaign.

A massmeeting in the Chicago Lawn district to be conducted with the coöperation of the Southwest Federation of Improvement clubs will be held within the next two weeks by the Citizens' Tax Reduction association, Justus Chancellor, president, announced yesterday.

The meeting will launch the association's campaign on the south side to enlist approximately 30,000 tax payers into the tax reducing body. H. A. Seymour, secretary of the federation, is coöperating with the association in arranging for the meeting, Mr. Chancellor said.

Similar meetings are being planned in Auburn Park, where Harry B. Willard will organize the local groups in support of the Citizens' association, and in Englewood, where M. L. Jacobs of the Englewood Business Men's association will take charge.

Plan Their Campaign.

The association plans an appeal to local groups to form a strong organization in Cook county which will be in a position to reduce taxes by instituting certain reforms and by keeping an efficient check on taxing bodies, Mr. Chancellor said.

At these meetings the tax situation in Cook county will be outlined for the local taxpayers who will be asked to become members of the association. Tentative plans for reducing taxes and doing away with alleged irregularities in local government will be discussed.

Subscriptions of $1.00, the membership fee being solicited by organizers of the association, will be used partly to conduct a reform campaign among the governing bodies of the county immediately, and partly to aid in the expression of the new soicety, according to Mr. Chancellor.

List Association's Officers.

The association, recently organized as a "not for profit" corporation, the aims of which are to equalize and reduce taxes, has begun work with the following officers: President, Mr. Chancellor; vice president and secretary, William T. Gridley; treasurer, Earl G. Gubbins; assistant secretary, J. L. Newman; and directors, George W. Dixon, E. E. Grant, F. E. Erstman, Si Mayer, J. Scott Matthews, and William J. Tomkins.

Four main objectives are included in the association's program. They are as follows:

The elimination by legislation of the 400 tax raising or tax spending bodies in Cook county;

Compulsory restitution of money illegally used by public office holders, to be brought about by suing the bondsmen or bonding companies of these office holders found guilty of malfeasance in office;

Organizing the members of the association into a political force whose votes [estimated at 300,000 or three to a household] would constitute the balance of power in local elections;

If necessary, enjoin by legal process unjust or inequitable tax rates and the infliction of taxation without referenda where they are required.

Mr. Chancellor explained that the fund of $100,000 to be acquired from fees of 100,000 members is necessary to begin efficiently the campaign which the association has outlined. Of every $1.00 subscribed, he pointed out, it is estimated that 25 cents will be required for operating expenses, and the remaining 75 cents will be expended to further the program of the organization.

S. SIDE CHURCHES PLAN CHILDRENS' SUMMER SCHOOL

A community vacation for children, offering four weeks of worship, study, recreation, and craft work, will be held during July and August jointly by the Englewood Baptist and the Englewood First Methodist Episcopal churches.

The school will open July 8. The kindergarten and first and second grades will be taught at the Methodist church, 64th street and Stewart avenue, and classes for those in grades above the second will meet in the community house of the Baptist church, 6248 Stewart avenue. Miss Marie Leberman, director of the church's religious education, will direct the pupils of the classes meeting at the Methodist church, and O. H. McDonald will direct those in the upper classes. Mr. McDonald is chairman of the joint committee sponsoring the vacation school.

Martin Peterson, 7715 May street, president of the association, acted as chairman.

O. K. $850,000 IMPROVEMENTS FOR SOUTH SIDE

Widely Scattered Paving Projects Approved.

Improvements estimated to cost more than $850,000 were approved by south side property owners at a hearing conducted recently by the board of local improvements. Only one project, estimated to cost $69,000, was abandoned because of objections.

Paving projects which would cost more than $700,000 were approved at the hearing. The one paving project defeated was the improvement of Talman avenue between 59th and 63d streets. Property owners told Michael J. Faherty, president of the board, that 90 per cent of the residents were opposed to paving.

Projects Approved.

The following paving projects were approved without objection:

Anthony avenue from 80th street to Jeffery avenue, costing $175,000.

A system of streets in the neighborhood of 83d street and Stony Island avenue, costing $137,000.

A system of Chicago Lawn streets south of 63d street in the vicinity of Austin avenue, at a cost of $187,000.

Austin avenue between 60th and 63d street, costing $45,500.

Meade avenue between 60th and 63d streets, costing $50,000.

Moody avenue between 60th and 63d streets, costing $45,000.

73d street between California and Kedzie avenues, at a cost of $74,000.

Heading the list of south side sewer projects approved at the hearing is the 77th street system, serving the district between 75th and 78th streets and Kedzie and Central Park avenues. This system will cost $96,000.

Chicago Lawn Sewers Win.

Four sewers costing $8,400 each will be installed in Neenah, Natoma, Normandy, and Nashville avenues between 51st and 54th streets. Each is a separate project.

Property owners on Cicero avenue between 58th street and a line 430 feet south of 58th street approved construction of a sewer in their block costing $1,500.

Others approved are in the following streets: Damen avenue between 78th and 79th streets, costing $2,100; Seeley avenue between 78th and 79th streets, also costing $2,100; 97th street between Normal and Wallace street, costing $1,500; and Oakley avenue between a line 566 feet north of 99th street and 97th street, costing $2,500.

SERVICE LEAGUE OF SANITARIUM PLANS FIELD DAY

The tenth annual field day exercises and luncheon given by the board of directors of the Service league of the Municipal Tuberculosis sanitarium will be held Thursday afternoon on the sanitarium grounds, 5601 North Crawford avenue, Mrs. Samuel Hamilton, president, announced last week.

The program, which will begin at 12:30 o'clock, has been arranged and will be presented entirely by patients in the hospital. It will include a flag raising drill by the Sanitarium Boy Scout troop, No. 809, a pageant and fashion show and a playlet by children of the sanitarium. Hospital officials who are in charge of the entertainment include Miss Alice Holmes, dressmaking teacher; Ronald Herforth, musical director; Thomas Smith, director of dramatics, and John D. McGinnis, scoutmaster.

Among the south side women who are officers and directors of the league are: Mrs. J. G. O'Donnell, Mrs. George J. Feser, Mrs. George B. Angell, Mrs. William R. Fetzer, Mrs. Edward D. Hayes, Mrs. Eva Holland Hamilton, Mrs. Helen Lynch, and Mrs. Harry Letton.

NEW YALE SCHOOL BUILDING IN 1930, CALDWELL HINTS

A committee of three citizens from Englewood called on H. Wallace Caldwell, president of the school board, Tuesday afternoon and presented a report compiled by three city departments on the actual condition of Yale school, 7010 Yale avenue. The Yale school is more than thirty years old, and the fourth floor was recently destroyed.

A new building is urged by residents of the community, and, according to Mr. Caldwell, steps will doubtless be taken to have a new building for this school placed on the 1930 building program.

The building, health and fire departments have investigated the school from basement to attic and their conclusions, which were presented to Mr. Caldwell Tuesday, will be compiled into a single report and submitted to the board of education at its next meeting this month. Discontinuance of the use of the east end of the third floor as an assembly hall is recommended in the findings of the fire department, the only report thus far made public.

111TH STREET 'Y' PLANS SUMMER EVENTS FOR BOYS

Summer days will be crowded ones for the 111th street Y. M. C. A. boys. Wiener roasts, beach parties, trips and hikes, big league baseball games, summer camps, swimming and games have been planned to fill the days with constructive and worth while activities which will keep the boys from loitering on the streets.

Twenty-six boys have registered for Camp Hastings, in addition to those listed in a previous edition. They are Melvin Brandsma, 10747 South State street; Walter Borgstrom, 10916 South State street; Harry Brassfield, 11243 Normal boulevard; Dick Calkins, William Downs, Harold Erickson, 702 West 115th street; William Furlonger, Vincent Ferrini, 10818 Normal avenue; Robert Fiske, 18 East 111th place; Henry Koopman, 49 West 110th place; James Krueger, 10856 Indiana avenue; Russell Krueger, 10856 Indiana avenue; David Law, 8956 Parnell avenue; Edward Nelson, 46 West 111th street; Walter Schmidt, 11306 Eggleston avenue; Adrian Ton, 11252 Normal avenue; William Trapp, 10643 Perry avenue; Edward Vieth, 11725 Normal avenue; Claude Griffith, 11047 Wabash avenue; William Dardis, 11222 State street; Eugene Muzinski, 10730 Stephenson street; Robert Rutherford, 11150 Vernon avenue; Robert Gilden, 11023 Vernon avenue; Eugene Ordds, 11354 Church street; Jack McNaughton, Tunis Dekker, and George Dekker, 38 West 110th street.

Chorus Plans Program.

Numbering more than 150 musicians, the chorus and orchestra of the 111th Street "Y" will present Hayden's "Creation" in the Fenger High school auditorium tomorrow night. Their previous production of the "Messiah" drew an audience of 1,500 persons. Ray Madderom is president of the chorus, Mrs. F. Helland is vice president and business manager and Miss Florence Madderom is librarian. The accompaniment is under the direction of Hans Sett, concert master, and Miss Hilda Butler Farr will play the piano accompaniment. Prof. Wallace B. Graham is directing the entire production.

Start Swimming Lessons.

The second annual "Learn to swim" campaign for boys from 10 to 17 years will be held this week starting tomorrow and closing Saturday. Two hundred boys of the community have signed up for the six free lessons which will be given during the week under the direction of Lloyd Dyer, physical director.

Ten big league baseball games will be seen free by Y. M. C. A. boys during the summer. The Boys' chorus under the direction of William Singleton will make a series of outing trips during the summer.

HYDE PARK HIGH GRAD RANKS THIRD AMONG ANNAPOLIS SENIORS

James Farrin Jr., 6433 Minerva avenue, was graduated from the United Naval academy at Annapolis last week. Mr. Farrin, who was an honor student throughout his four years at the academy, ranked first in scholarship for his last year and third for the entire course.

JAMES FARRIN JR.

He was a member of the Navy tennis team for three years and a member of the basketball team for two years.

At the graduation exercises he was presented a dress sword, awarded to the midshipman of the graduating class who stands highest among his classmates in practical and theoretical ordnance and gunnery. He was graduated from Hyde Park High school, 62d street and Stony Island avenue.

CROWDS ATTEND ART EXHIBITION OF HIGH SCHOOLS

Success Causes Plans for Bigger 1930 Show.

Costume designs, posters, linoleum cuts, pencil sketches, designs in pen and ink as well as colors, landscapes and still life, formed part of the high school art exhibition which opened at the Art institute May 31 and closed Monday.

South side schools were well represented. Lindblom exhibited landscapes and still life studies done in pastel water colors, pencil and pen and ink, samples of lettering and botany designs showing cross sections of various flowers. There were handmade bookcovers, designs for certain popular advertisements, posters for the May festival and spring play, and a few technical designs from the shops from Englewood High school, and both designs for costumes and posters advertising "Jerry of Jericho Road," the opera recently presented by students of Morgan Park High school.

Tilden's Art Is Technical.

The art of Tilden Technical High school was somewhat different from that shown by other schools. It included views of famous cathedrals, with each detail carefully worked out in the pen and ink, the medium with which most of the work was done, designs of ancient Greek, Roman and Egyptian architecture, and drawing of intricate machinery.

Conventionalized landscapes done in colors and in black and white were displayed by Bowen students. There were other conventionalized designs arranged in a long strip which might be used for borders on anything from a spring dress or wallpaper to bookplates, exhibited by Bowen, Parker, Morgan Park, Fenger and Hyde Park High schools. Complicate studies in various types of design were also exhibited by Calumet students.

This was the first exhibit of high school art held since 1914. Benjamin F. Buck, assistant superintendent of schools, was general chairman of the committee sponsoring the exhibition, and due to its success and the large crowds which gathered each day during the display, Mr. Buck plans to hold a more formal exhibit next year in the form of a contest, at which prizes will be given in the different classes of art work entered.

South Side Committee Members.

South side instructors who were members of Mr. Buck's committee were: Mrs. Nellie Osgood of Englewood, Miss Dorothy Gordon of Calumet, Miss Ada Enander of Tilden, Mrs. Edna Hotchkiss of Morgan Park, and Miss Florence Bigelow of Hyde Park.

Teachers in the south side high schools who directed the students whose work was displayed are: Miss Mary Logeman, Miss Gordon, Mrs. John Sievers, Mrs. H. D. Burke, and Mrs. M. Keepers of Calumet; Miss Beatrice Cannon, Miss Agnes Dandliker, Mrs. Osgood, Miss Elsa Schmidt, Miss Elizabeth Troeger, and H. Baller of Englewood; Miss Edna Marlin, Earl Musick, and Miss Helen Vizard of Fenger; Miss Bigelow, Miss Katherine Dimock, Mrs. Gertrude C. Lewis, Miss Helen S. Gilbert, Miss Verna Curtis, and Miss Ella Ottaway of Hyde Park; Mrs. Daisy Williams of Phillips; Mrs. Anna D. Knehans, Miss Frances Manion, Miss Marguerite Norcott, and Miss Ruth Worst of Lindblom; Mrs. Hotchkiss and Miss Claribel Sheehy of Morgan Park; Miss Evelyn Alexander of Parker, Miss M. B. Bohmann, Miss Ada Enander, Miss P. M. Portersfield, and Harry T. Yates of Tilden.

HEBREW TEMPLE YOUNG PEOPLE TO GIVE PLAY

"Cabbages," a one-act comedy, will be presented by the Young People's club of the South Side Hebrew congregation this evening in the temple auditorium, 74th street and Chappel avenue. The players are Miss Rella Wolfe, Miss Violet Selger, Miss Pearl Lubin, Miss Harriet La Belle, Miss Gisela Greenwald, Sol Levine, Leo D'Atri, and William Frey.

The dance and social hour, which will follow the presentation of the play, will mark the close of the social season for the members of the organization. The activities of the group will be reopened in the fall.

Woodlawn Kiwanians See Phone Call Demonstration

A demonstration of how telephone calls are handled was presented by A. D. Howlett, manager of the Hyde Park area of the Illinois Bell Telephone company, and six assistants at a meeting of the Woodlawn Kiwanis club Wednesday in the Wedgewood hotel, 64th street and Woodlawn avenue. New members, who were initiated at the meeting are: Grant W. Porter, Otto A. Piggott, George R. Kennedy, Herbert A. Byfield, Thomas W. Moore, J. B. Wilder, and Gordon Mullen.

U. OF C. PLAYERS AGAIN PRESENT FOUR FAVORITES

Repeat Drama Program at Reynolds Club.

A three act play and three one act plays were repeated Friday evening and last evening by the Dramatic association of the University of Chicago. The dramas were presented in the auditorium of the Reynolds club, 57th street and University avenue, under the direction of Frank H. O'Hara, instructor in dramatics at the university.

"Aren't We All?" a three act play by Frederick Lonsdale, was presented Friday evening. The cast was composed of Miss Dorothy Hartford, Norman Eaton, Alexander Dunsay, Miss Catherine Scott, Miss Beatrice Scheibler, and Maxwell Mason.

Repeat Playfest Dramas.

The three one-act plays presented last evening were "Stone," "The Diva," and "Shall We Join the Ladies?" "Stone," which was first presented at the recent university playfest, was written by Miss Dorothy Simpson, a student at the school. The players were Russell Huber, Miss Dorothy Hartford, and Donald Rosenthal.

"The Diva," which was also given at the playfest, is another product of a university student. Miss Constance Weinberger is the author of the play. The cast was composed of Miss Beatrice Scheibler, Jay Anderson Parker, Miss Constance Reiner, Gordon Watrous, and Miss Ruth Norman. The sketch concerns the life of a retired opera prima donna.

Barrie Play Presented.

"Shall We Join the Ladies?" was written by Sir James M. Barrie, and was presented earlier by students of the school at Settlement night, held a few months ago for the benefit of the University of Chicago Settlement house. It is the first act of an unfinished English mystery play. The cast included Alexander Dunsay, Maxwell Mason, Norman Bridge Eaton, Robert Graf, Alan King, Miss Beatrice Scheibler, Miss Dorothy Hartford, Miss Rosalie Martin, Miss Marguerite Fernholz, Miss Margaret Dean, and Miss Eleanor Grossman.

GIRL PICKED AS STAR STUDENT AT ENGLEWOOD

Mary O'Conner Leads the Graduating Class.

Miss Mary O'Conner, who boasts a record of 33 "S's" in her four years at high school, leads the June graduating class of Englewood High school, 62d street and Stewart avenue, in scholastic achievement. According to Miss Joanna Zander, faculty adviser of the student publication, this is the first time in many years that a student has been graduated with so high an average.

In her junior year, Miss O'Conner was vice president of her class, president of the Purple Pilots, a student organization, and vice president of the Aristol, the school honor society. In her senior year she was appointed as co-editor of the "E" Weekly, the student paper. Before becoming editor, she had been a reporter, news editor, and assigning editor on the staff.

Official of Honor Society.

In addition to being editor of the paper, she is vice president of the honor society, chairman of the assistant principal's secretaries, a member of the Quill and Scroll, the honorary journalism society, a member of the Englebooster executive committee, and a member of the social service auxiliary.

Miss Ruth Dalrymple, with an average of 4.9 for her four years of high school, stands second among her classmates in scholastic achievement. At present she is vice president of the Engleboosters, manager of the school service bureau, news editor on the weekly, and a member of the honor society.

The next three highest in the class are Miss Venetia Croucher, Bazil Bilder, and Wilbur Bush. Miss Croucher and Mr. Bush are co-editors of the Annual, while Bilder is co-editor of the weekly.

Two Awarded Scholarships.

Bilder and Bush were both given two year scholarships to the University of Chicago by the alumni association of the school. Bush also received a one year scholarship to the University of Chicago from Julius Rosenwald at the Boys' Week Civic assembly, which was held last month in the Auditorium theater. According to Miss Zander, Bush may drop both scholarships for an opportunity of attending Northwestern university for four years.

Two hundred and twenty-one students of the school were elected to the honor society. They are:

LAKE CALUMET SITE FOR VAST CITY EXPANSION

Reviews Need for Reclamation.

is another thing that Greater Pullman must have to carry out its natural progressive development—a project, by the way, that is vital to all Chicago. I refer to a highway that will give the City of Chicago a proper connection with the arterial highways leading from the south into the city.

"The Chicago Plan commission has submitted a plan providing for a boulevard on South Park and Indiana avenues, from Washington park to 130th street, 200 feet wide all the way. The north end connects with South Park way, the new outer drive in Burnham and Grant parks, and with Sheridan road.

The south end connects with ten thoroughfares coming into the city from the south and southeast—thoroughfares of state and national importance, including Ridge road, Michigan City road, Lincoln highway, and Dixie highway. It passes through the center of Roseland and greater south side.

Vital to All Chicago.

"This proposed route would give direct access to the loop from the east, south, and southwest. It would take care of traffic to and from all east and south towns, such as Riverdale, Dolton, Chicago Heights, Hammond, Gary, Indiana Harbor, East Chicago, Ivanhoe, Steger, Flossmoor, Homewood, Markham, Harvey, Matteson, and Blue Island. Through bound traffic would use this route to avoid the loop via the outer lake front drive.

"This improvement is of the utmost importance to the south side and to all Chicago. We are the south park taxing area, but all we have to show as a receipt is one small park. The territory is void of boulevards, such as are maintained all over the city by the park district. Therefore the necessity of a South Park way.

"South side hotels have lost the tourist trade of motorists due to the present traffic conditions. It is difficult now for the motorists to enter Chicago from the south. He has been going west to get away from the congestion.

"Let's have those 6,000 acres of Lake Calumet territory reclaimed. Let's have a highway that will take the Pullman district out of the 'detour' territory. Both projects are of a sort in which all Chicago should take pride, and it is our desire that both of them be understood."

THREE MARK 44TH ANNIVERSARY OF SUNDAY SCHOOL

Forty-four years ago, 125 children trotted to Sunday school donned in their holiday best; it was the opening day of the new school.

Three of this number participated in the forty-fourth annual birthday celebration of the school—the Kenwood—Greenwood avenue and 46th street, last Sunday. They are Mrs. Frederick Mehlhop, Kenwood hotel; Miss Lillian Berry, 4438 Woodlawn avenue, and A. W. Glesmer, 4630 Greenwood avenue.

They reminisced of early days at the school and of the various activities of the students who attended.

Mrs. Mehlhop was present with her daughter, Mrs. Robert Willett, 1369 East 50th street, and with her four year old grandchild who is in the kindergarten class. Mrs. Mehlhop's father was the first superintendent of the school.

A talk was also given by Dr. A. L. Wilson, pastor. The program was arranged by Fred A. Huber, superintendent.

The Kenwood school is interdenominational and is believed to be the oldest on the south side.

17 MORGAN PARK JOURNALISTS IN HONOR SOCIETY

Seventeen members of the Morgan Park High school journalism class became charter members of a chapter of the honorary society, "Quill and Scroll," Wednesday evening at a banquet given at the high school.

They are: Miriam Blew, Roger Boylan, Mary Brennan, George Christie, David Fornell, Evelyn Grage, Mary Louise Heald, Elaine Jacobson, Hazel Jewett, Willard Johannsen, Ruth Paddock, Ella Reed, Sidney Stevens, Lucille Smock, Mary Sturges, and Elenor Young.

Speeches were made by Miss Lillian Condit, dean of girls; George G. Lorentz of the faculty, and Miss Elizabeth Leitzbach, president of the Matrix club and managing editor of "The Chicago Girl." The award of five dollars for the prize slogan for the Empehi News was presented to Miss Helene Warner, whose slogan was "Leadership Through Merit and Service."

Willard Parent-Teacher Group Elects Officers

Mrs. Lovelyn J. Evans was elected president of the Willard Parent-Teacher association at a recent meeting of the organization in the school auditorium, 49th street and St. Lawrence avenue. Other officers elected were: Vice president, Mrs. Eugene Marshall; recording secretary, Mrs. C. F. Stradford; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Asa M. Burroughs, and treasurer, Mrs. Zella Williams. The new officers will be installed at a meeting Thursday.

Sigma Phi Omego Sorority to Hold Card Party and Tea

Miss Ruth Brady, 7645 Yates avenue, is president of the organization, while Miss Leona Saindon, 7846 Cregier avenue, is chairman of the committee in charge of arrangements for the affair.

AIRPLANE MODEL WINNERS GROOM FOR TITLE MEET

With the opening date for the second national Airplane Model League of America contests in Detroit less than a week distant, Chicago's champions are putting final touches on the models they hope will win them national titles, free trips to Europe and a handful of additional awards.

They are to compete with more than 500 boys, the cream of the 300,000 members of the league, who will represent every corner of the country at the contests. According to Merrill Hamburg, league secretary, every existing model record, indoor and outdoor, is almost certain to fall. The indoor record, 353.6 seconds, has stood since 1928, when Aram Abgarian, Detroit, made it; the outdoor record, 614.4 seconds, has stood since Robert Jaros, Chicago, made it at Dayton in 1925.

The local champions are Carl V. Carlson, 245 North Austin boulevard, and Henry Pacevitz, 1620 West 18th street.

SENIOR CADETS AT MORGAN PARK GET DIPLOMAS

Graduation Ends Festivities of Four Days.

Commencement exercises for the graduating class of Morgan Park Military academy were held Wednesday morning at the Morgan Park Congregational church, following four days of festivities. Arthur Perrow, president of the Executives' club of Chicago, gave the commencement address.

In addition to diplomas, members of the graduating class received commissions in the Illinois National Guard and those who had completed the military work received eligibility certificates for commissions in the United States army reserve corps.

Alumni Day Observed.

Graduation festivities at the military academy began the Saturday preceding commencement with alumni day, when many former cadets returned for a golf tournament, baseball games, tennis matches, and banquet. Last Sunday a good citizenship program was held on the academy parade ground in which the Morgan Park High school R. O. T. C., and the Boy Scouts paraded with the cadets. The units were reviewed by Maj. Gen. Frank Parker, commander of the sixth corps area. Monday was lower school day and was spent in athletics for the younger boys. In the evening graduation exercises were held in Morgan Park Presbyterian church for the lower school boys while the cadets met in Blaker hall for a ceremony at which medals and athletic awards were presented.

Tuesday was class day with the special senior exercises held during the afternoon in the gymnasium and upper school athletic contests in the morning. The senior prom was held Tuesday night.

Members of Graduating Class.

Members of the graduating class of cadets included: Peter Beinarauskas, Paul Bergstrom, Lester Bern, John W. Blacklidge, John Richard Burns, Guillermo Cabrera, Gilson E. Clarke, Milton Cohen, Robert Theodore Conklin, Vernon John Crededio, Theodore Eiselt, Ferdinand Fischer, William P. Forbes, Rube Sanford Frodin Jr., Robert Garen, Lawrence D. GIRL ATHLETES ATTEND TEA AT LINDBLOM HIGH

Officers of the Lindblom High School Girls' Athletic association gave a tea last week for representatives from similar associations in other Chicago high schools at the school last week.

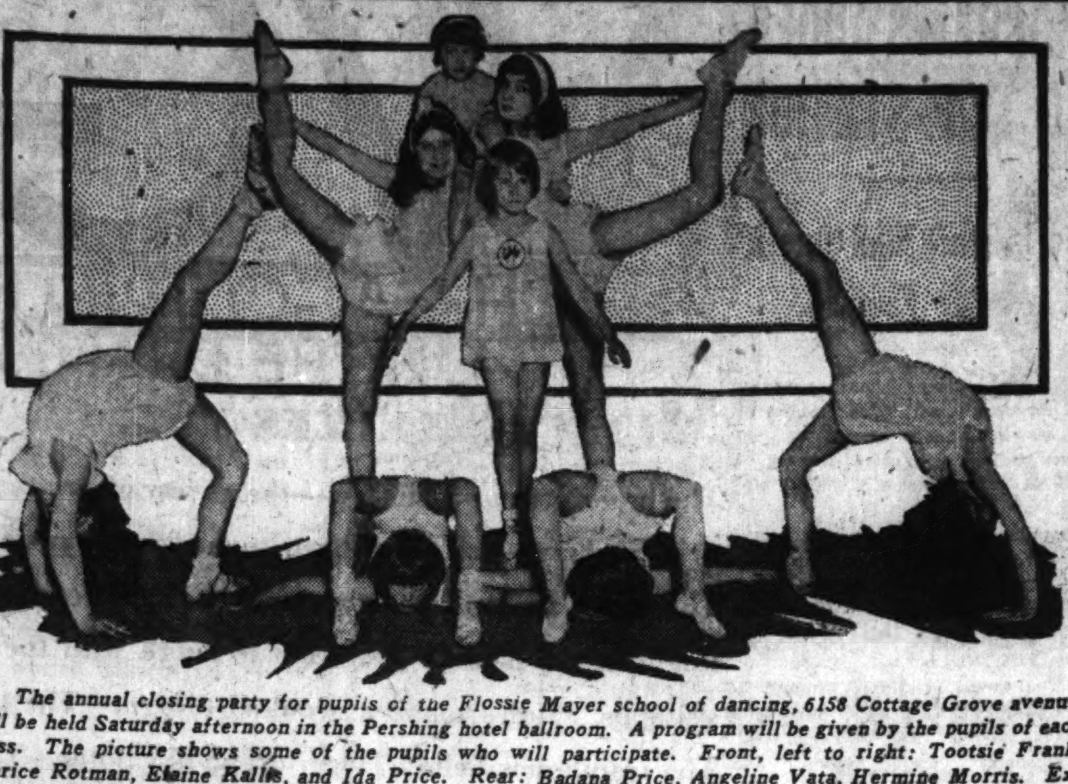
Miss Dorothy Plunkett, president of the Lindblom association, presided at the meeting and gave the welcoming speech. Miss Edna Gardner, supervisor of the girls' athletic associations in the city, spoke of the progress made in the last year by the various associations. An open forum was then held, during which one representative from each school spoke of the activities of the organization in her school.

A musical program closed the afternoon's meeting. There was a violin solo by Miss Verna O'Leary and songs by Miss Bernice Kunde, both of whom were accompanied by Miss Helen Umbach.

Schools represented at the tea were: McKinley, Medill, Harrison, Phillips, Austin, Bowen, Fenger, Parker, Hyde Park, Englewood, Calumet and Lake View.

The speaker representing Fenger was Miss Martha James, Miss Ruth Scheuter spoke for Parker, Miss La Verne Hackenbarach represented Calumet, and Miss Walverta Swanson spoke for Bowen. The girls discussed various sports, such as golf, tennis, skating, horseback riding, volleyball, and baseball. Miss Scheuter in particular had interesting things to tell concerning the indoor golf instruction given during the winter at Parker.

They'll Dance at School's Closing Party



The annual closing party for pupils of the Flossie Mayer school of dancing, 6158 Cottage Grove avenue, will be held Saturday afternoon in the Pershing hotel ballroom. Amos Thornburg, pastor of the Normal Park Methodist Episcopal church, 71st street and Union avenue, is representative to the Church Athletic association.

SCOTTISH PIPER IS ALARM CLOCK FOR KING GEORGE

BOGNOR, England. — (AP) — King George at Craigwell house is awakened by bagpipes each morning just as at Buckingham palace.

Pipe Major Forsyth, the king's Scottish piper, is included in the staff their majesties have taken to Craigwell house, and every morning promptly at eight o'clock he will stand below the king's bedroom window and pipe him a Highland tune as an eye opener.

The king has had his favorite piper for many years, and counts on the bagpipes to rouse him, except in wet weather, when he will not allow Maj. Forsyth to stand in the rain to play.

The major is usually very punctual, but one morning when the king was very ill at Buckingham palace he was a little late. Just after 8 a. m. the king asked, "Is it raining, nurse?" Before she could answer the pipes struck up, and the king smiled. "O, no, it's fine weather," he said.

Airplanes Carry Food to Ice Bound Island

FLENSBURG, Germany.—(AP)—For the relief of the inhabitants of the ice bound island of Pellworm in the North sea, the Lufthansa at the request of the provincial president and the minister of the interior organized a temporary airplane service between Flensburg and Pellworm.

GRADUATE 53 AT ENGLEWOOD HIGH EVENING SCHOOL

Dr. Charles Lunak Is Chief Speaker.

Fifty-three students were graduated from the Englewood evening high school at the exercises held Thursday in the school auditorium, 62d street and Stewart avenue. This class, according to members of the faculty, is believed to be the largest class ever graduated from an evening high school in Chicago.

Dr. Charles Lunak, assistant superintendent of schools, who is in charge of all evening schools, was the principal speaker at the exercises. The address of welcome was given by Benedict Theisen, class president, while a talk on "The Joy of Work" was given by William H. Drysdale, elected speaker of the class.

Gold Medal Is Presented.

Daniel F. O'Hearn, principal of the Englewood High school, presented Joseph Mathews with the gold medal given to the member of the graduating class who led in scholastic achievement for four years of high school work. Mr. Mathews responded with a speech of thanks.

The musical entertainment was presented by a quartet which was composed of members of the faculty. They were: Mrs. Harry H. Hornstein, Miss Joanna Zander, Earl A. Rosinbum, and Harry H. Hornstein.

List of Graduates.

Mr. O'Hearn presented the following persons with their diplomas: Howard E. Barclay, Miss Marion Blackman, Mrs. Nannie L. Burch, Salvatore Cosentino, Francis E. De Witt, Elmer G. Forgue, Carl H. Freeberg, James G. Gibson, Miss Inez Gleason, Jerome F. Grass, Miss Irene B. Gwizdowski, Victor W. Hilger, Miss Alice M. Leonard, Angus MacDonald, Thomas H. MacRoy, Stanley H. "Taxation" was the subject of an address by Edward R. Litsinger at the meeting of the Englewood Kiwanis club Tuesday at the Englewood Y. M. C. A., 66th street and Union avenue. Shepard Levine, radio artist, furnished the entertainment for the meeting. Raymond J. Crist, president, was chairman of the meeting.

DOLLAR SALE YIELDS TRANSPARENT STRAW HAT VALUED AT $8

The Tribune will pay $2 for each story of a best bargain obtained in a neighborhood store printed in the Metropolitan section. Address Bargains, Metropolitan Section, The Tribune. Make them short and snappy, writing on only one side of the paper, and print your name and address plainly.

HAND MADE HAT FOR $1.

Chicago, June 11.—Recently a department store on the south side had a dollar sale. Among the articles advertised were hats—a choice of any one in the store for a dollar. I purchased a beautiful hand made summer hat of delicate, transparent straw. Later a friend of mine, who is a milliner, estimated the actual value at about $8. Being just a normal woman and a natural bargain hunter, I consider this a real buy.

MRS. MILDRED BEYER,

LUNCH CLOTH FOR 40 CENTS.

Chicago, June 9.—I bought four fine linen dinner napkins for 10 cents each from a heap of soiled odds and ends on a bargain counter in a neighborhood store recently. When I had laundered them and fagotted them together I had a handsome lunch cloth worth $5.

MRS. KAY ROGERS,
1901 West 35th street.

BARGAIN, SIGHT UNSEEN.

Chicago, June 10.—I got my best bargain two weeks ago when a south side drug store advertised a prize package sale. The package I purchased, which cost 10 cents, contained a pint bottle of witch hazel, a tube of good tooth paste, and a yard of inch wide adhesive tape.

MRS. WILLIAM HERATY,
6427 South Carpenter street.

WATCHFULNESS WINS.

Chicago, June 9.—Last year our neighborhood shoe store held a big sale. I purchased a pair of oxfords for $3.95. Just the other day I saw the same style shoe in the same store for $6.50.

CHILE BUILDS GAMING CASINO ON ITS RIVIERA

VALPARAISO, Chile.—(AP)—Chile's coast line in the vicinity of Valparaiso resembles the French and Italian Rivieras, and an effort is being made to turn Valparaiso and Vina del Mar, the seaside resort adjoining the city, into a second Monte Carlo.

A temporary casino has been constructed overhanging the rugged coast, and more than a million dollars will be expended in the construction of a permanent gambling and amusement place designed to become a leading resort of the west coast of South America.

This is the only place on the west coast where gambling is recognized as legal.

Roulette is the favorite game in the Chilean casino, and every night finds hundreds of players gathered about a dozen great tables.

COUNCIL READY TO O. K. PAVING CRAWFORD AVE.

Archer to 63d Stretch Is Covered by Ordinance.

The city council Wednesday ordered deferred until the next meeting an ordinance permitting the paving of Crawford avenue between Archer avenue and 63d street. Unless some unforeseen objection arises within the next few days, the ordinance will be passed at the next council meeting, and the paving petition will be filed in the County court.

This improvement is hailed by members of the Southwest Federation of Improvement clubs as an important step in the opening of Crawford avenue through the entire southwest side. Paving this stretch will provide a good road from the heart of the district at 63d street and Crawford avenue to the center of Chicago by way of Archer avenue, according to M. A. Seymour, secretary of the federation. The cost has been estimated at $476,000.

Seek to Improve Long Stretch.

The organization is attempting to have Crawford avenue improved from the drainage canal to 135th street, he pointed out, and while this project is an important part of the improvement, every effort of the federation in the future will be made toward obtaining the improvement of the remaining portions.

The federation has proposed that the portion of Crawford avenue south of 63d street be paved partly by the board with the aid of special assessments, and partly out of the state highway funds.

It is imperative that this street be improved soon, Mr. Seymour explained, since the Crawford avenue bridge across the canal will be ready for traffic within a few months and will be practically useless until some method of approaching it from the south end is provided. That part of the thoroughfare cannot be used in its present condition.

Other Projects to Be Passed.

The council also is expected to pass an ordinance at its next meeting permitting the paving of a system of south side streets as follows: Avenues M, N, and O, between 106th and 109th streets, and 107th, 108th, and 109th streets, between Green Bay and Ewing avenues. This project will cost $228,000.

BOYS SEEKING HONORS WITH MODEL YACHTS

Two of Chicago's model yacht enthusiasts packed their miniature craft and entrained for Washington, D. C., last Wednesday where they planned to enter their sailing boats in the annual national races sponsored by the Model Yacht Racing Association of America, which has headquarters in Washington.

Orville Sonntag and Thomas Malloy are the two members of the Chicago Model Yacht club of Ogden park who hope to return bearing national honors for their organization. The races will be held on the reflecting pool beside the Lincoln memorial today and tomorrow.

Fourteen model yacht racing clubs belong to the national organization, two of which have their headquarters in Ogden park, where they hold competitions among their members on the model yacht pool. The other clubs are situated in New York, Brooklyn, Boston, St. Augustine, Fla.; Toledo, Detroit, and Washington.

NEW MONUMENT OF ODD FELLOWS TO BE DEDICATED

The Rosehill Cemetery association I. O. O. F., will dedicate a new monument at the Odd Fellows' plot in Rosehill cemetery this afternoon. A. L. Yantis, past grand master of the grand lodge of Illinois, will be the speaker and the Drum and Bugle corps of Square post No. 232 of the American Legion will furnish the music. The association was formed in 1865 to provide a burial place for transient Odd Fellows who die in Chicago. A monument dedicated in 1868 was destroyed several years ago and the new one, 46 feet high and of Vermont granite, will replace it.

COMMENCEMENT ACTIVITIES OPEN AT LINDBLOM HIGH

Scholarship Banquet Opens Final Program.

Although graduation exercises at Lindblom High school will not be held until June 26 and 27, commencement activities started last Tuesday with an assembly in the morning and banquet followed by a dance Tuesday evening, in honor of the scholarship winners. They are Warren Thompson and Walter Maneikis, who were awarded the two year scholarship at the University of Chicago, and Miss Ruth Willard, who won the one year scholarship at the university.

The scholarship banquet was given by the Lindblom Honorary society, composed of third and fourth year students who have maintained an average of excellent or superior in all their studies for the last three semesters. The senior class annual dinner-dance will be given Thursday night in the girls' gymnasium.

Award Diplomas June 27.

The graduation exercises for the four year graduating class will be held June 27 in the Lindblom auditorium.

The address of welcome will be given by the class president, Elmer K. Koncel, and two other student addresses will be given, one by Miss Lillian Schley, who was chosen by members of the faculty for this honor, the other by George Staib, who was selected by his classmates. Robert Frase, by reason of standing highest scholastically in his class, will deliver the valedictory address. The address to the seniors and presentation of diplomas will be made by Harry Keeler, principal of the school.

There will be music by the Lindblom High school orchestra with a violin obligato by Miss Verna O'Leary, a piano solo by Miss Lillian S. Freeman, and choral selections by the Lindblom musical clubs, with Miss Helen Umbach at the piano.

Commercial Finals June 26.

The commencement exercises for graduates of the two-year commercial and technical courses will be held the evening of June 26. Addresses will be made by Ralph Levin, class president, and C. Paul Spade, an instructor at Lindblom. Miss Eleanor L. Smedburg will give the valedictory. Principal Harry Keeler will present the certificates and music will be provided by the Boys' Glee club directed by Miss Catherine Taheny, the high school orchestra, and Arthur Goettler who will play a cornet solo accompanied at the piano by Miss Emily Faegenson.

City of David Emerges in Syrian Excavations

JERUSALEM. — (AP) — Excavations on the Mount of Ophel designed to lay bare the City of David have revealed an ancient wall at a depth of 20 feet. It is thought to have formed part of a fortress of the Syrian army stationed by the Greeks in Jerusalem. One street has been cleared of earth. It is lined with the ruins of houses belonging to the Byzantine period. The buildings have mosaic floors of good design. Much of the pottery dates back to the time of the First temple.

"NEW BUSINESS OF THE CHURCH" TO BE TOPIC OF SERMON

[Gibson, Sykes & Fowler Photo.]

"The New Business of the Church" will be the subject of an address by Rev. R. A. White at the services this morning in the People's Liberal church, 65th street and Stewart avenue.

The Rev. Mr. White, who has been pastor of the church for more than 37 years, was reelected to the position at a recent meeting of the board of trustees.

The name of the Women's Aid society of the church, by vote of the members of the organization, was changed to the Women's club of the People's Liberal church, according to an announcement by Mrs. Una McRae Cropper, 7952 Langley avenue, secretary of the group. The work of the organization will be conducted along club lines in the future, she said.

THE CHUCKLE COLUMN

High school students, send in your best laughs to the Chuckle Editor of The Tribune. Two dollars will be paid for each jingle, joke, or verse printed in the Metropolitan section. Address your contributions to the Chuckle Editor, Metropolitan section, The Tribune. Write on one side of the paper only and print your name and address plainly.

Mr. Grievance—Look here, I came to see you about this paragraph announcing my resignation from the chamber of commerce.

Editor—But it's quite true, isn't it?

Mr. G.—Quite, but I should like you to explain why you printed it under "Public Improvements."

MARJORIE JANE REGAN,
7519 South Morgan street.

Judge—What proof have you that Sam hit you in the eye?

Plaintiff—Yo, honuh, Ah got it down in black and blue.

DOROTHEA V. MURPHY,
1454 West 72d place.

Sillycus—I never could understand why a chap shouldn't have more than one wife.

Sinnycus—When you are older you will realize that the law protects those who are incapable of protecting themselves.

LILLYAN MARGUERITE GILL,
620 West 41st street.

Exasperated teacher—Why is it that you are always late at class?

Student—Because of a certain sign I have to pass.

Teacher—What has the sign to do with it?

Student—The sign says: "School Ahead—Go Slow!"

HELEN ROHRABAUGH,
7446 Eggleston avenue.

Sarcastic—Did you ever ride a donkey?

Stupid—No. Why?

Sarcastic—Why don't you get on to yourself?

L. MARKERT,
5562 Shields avenue.

Boy from big town—Got anything snappy in rubber bands?

Sally, the salesgirl—No, but we have something very catchy in fly paper.

HELEN KNIZE,
8139 South Paulina street.

Soliloquizing Sal—Folks, did you ever notice that we keep on shooing flies, but still they go around barefooted?

MARY JANE SCHUMACHER,
1311 Ridge street, La Porte, Ind.

The teacher was giving a drill in the meaning of words and their opposites. "Now tell me," she began, "what is the opposite of misery?"

"Happiness," said the class in unison.

"Gladness."

"And the opposite of woe?"

"Giddap!" shouted the enthusiastic class.

MARGUERITE ZACCARDI,
6140 West North avenue.

Junior—Columbus certainly was some prophet.

Senior—how do you make that out?

Junior—When he discovered America he shouted, "I see dry land!"

ROBERT D. REDDING,
145 Cleveland avenue, Whiting, Ind.

Inquisitive—Where are you going with nine buckets of water?

Peculiar—I've gotta drown a cat.

EDWARD J. MILLER,
3440 West 12th place.

Second story worker—Hullo, Bill. See you got a new overcoat. What did it cost you?

Pal—Six months. I don't wear cheap clothes.

GEORGE SMETANA,
5114 South Hoyne avenue.

Sunday school teacher — You shouldn't talk like that to your playmate. Had you ever thought of heaping coals of fire on his head?

Tommy—No, ma'am, I hadn't, but it's a peach of an idea.

EVELYN McMAHON,
7752 South Racine avenue.

Mistress—I am a woman of few words; if I beckon with my hand like this, that means "come."

New Maid—That suits me, ma'am, I, too, am a woman of few words, so if I shake my head like this it means, "I'm not coming."

ELEANOR M. LYDON,
R. 2, Box 7, M. S., Blue Island.

Soph—Where is your roommate?

Junior—If the ice is as thick as he thinks it is, he's skating; if it's as thin as I think it is, he's swimming.

ALICE LAHEY,
5733 South Carpenter street.

Doctor—What is your profession?

Patient—I'm a gentleman.

Doctor—Hm-m, I see! You'll have to try something else—it doesn't agree with you.

ESTHER BORGESON,
7733 South Carpenter street.

Romantic Rosie — Speak burning words of love to me, sweetheart!

Hopeless Harry—Hot dog!

RALPH ANTHONY,
634 North County street, Waukegan.

Mandy, at insurance office—Hab you all got some fire insurance?

Clerk—Sure; what do you want to take it out on?

Mandy—Mah husban'.

Clerk—Then you want life insurance.

Mandy—No, suh; Ah wants fire insurance. Mah husban' was fired fo' times in de last two weeks.

HENRY LIPSON,
529 Surf street.

Teacher—What do two pints make?

Fresh Kid—Two pints make one cavort.

MARY BURNS,

SUMMER TO BE BEST IN RADIO, EXPERT CLAIMS

High Power Conquers Old Bugaboo—Static.

CINCINNATI, O.—Summer is faced this year by radio manufacturers and broadcasters with more optimism than ever before in the history of the industry, according to Powel Crosley, radio expert. Summer radio as a separate entity is no more.

That "summer radio," as a separate and fearful factor in the radio industry is no more, is due more, perhaps, to the attitude of the radio listeners rather than to that of the manufacturers and broadcasters.

"Previous to last summer it was the custom of manufacturers to shut down their plants following the Christmas rush and not to begin operations again until time to prepare for the fall business," Mr. Crosley said. "With the coming of hot weather broadcasters revised their programs and cut expensive features to the bone. They made little or no effort to retain the better commercial accounts and thus materially contributed to the slump.

Fans Play Part.

"On the other hand, owners of radio receivers continued to use them through the summer months and in so doing found that better apparatus brought about better summer reception. As improved receivers were brought out each fall and the purchasers continued to use them during the following summer, it was noticed that reception was better. Listeners also brought about increases in power and thus struck a hard blow to summer static. Always quick to realize the advantages to them of a few extra watts in a station's power, they sent letters of praise to the broadcasters who added this power and neglected those who did not. As a result the more progressive of the broadcasters added even more power, and static became less disturbing.

Many New Listeners.

"Last summer was the most successful in radio history, both from a business and from a broadcasting angle. Some say that the season had a false stimulus due to the national political conventions and campaign and that business and broadcasting will fall off in 1929. This is not true, the stimulus given radio by the exceptional features of last summer will continue. These features brought hundreds, yea, thousands of new listeners into the radio field and taught them that summer radio is just as interesting as winter radio. Accordingly, these new converts will be at the loud speaker this summer listening to the good musical and other features just as they sat and listened to the politicians in 1982."

GOVERNMENT TO HANDLE PROGRAM IN AUSTRALIA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SYDNEY, New South Wales, June 15.—A new radio broadcasting scheme provides for the commonwealth government assuming control throughout Australia. Companies desiring to broadcast were invited to tender programs. The government accepted today the tender of the Fuller Vaudeville company, which has an extensive circuit in the capital cities but his hitherto not engaged in broadcasting. Tenders rejected included companies operating pioneer services, 2-FC of Sydney and 3-LO of Melbourne.

The government will receive all license fees, paying the agreed price for programs, and royalties fees. The technical operation of the stations will be by the Amalgamated Wireless company.

Inside the Loud Speaker

BY QUIN RYAN.

The Dempsey-Firpo fight took place on Friday evening, Sept. 14, 1923. Although it lasted only one round and fifty-seven seconds, it was one of the most thrilling of Dempsey's encounters. It was the first time that the mauler was knocked from his feet in the ring. We undertake to present it in radio broadcast lingo this morning.

Firpo was the Argentinian giant who came to America obsessed with the idea of capturing the heavyweight boxing crown. A series of preliminary fights demonstrated his ability as a worthy foe, and Tex Rickard matched him with the champion.

Now, let the announcer tell you the story.

ANNOUNCER—Good evening, ladies and gentlemen. This is W-G-N broadcasting direct from the Polo grounds in New York City.

We're down here next to the ring that Tex Rickard has set up near what corresponds to second base when the Giants are at home playing baseball in this big playground. It's after 10 o'clock here in New York and only the ring with its battery of Kleig lights playing over it, is illuminated. Ninety thousand fight fans are accommodated here in the semi-darkness, and they've been screaming and shouting for hours as one preliminary fight after another went its weary way.

Now the jam in the ring is subsiding, and Announcer Joe Humphries, the man with the megaphone voice, is waving his hat for silence. He's introducing Firpo, the "Wild Bull of the Pampas," Joe calls him, and the crowd shouts—listen to them! Now, Humphries is waving Jack Dempsey, the champion, to his feet, and the crowd goes mad once more. In a few moments the big fight will be under way. It's just a minute or two after 10 o'clock here in New York City.

Watch the ring, now—that's where all the excitement. The photographer and the camp followers are clearing out—only Firpo and Lavelle and Vega, his Argentinian friends, remain in one corner and Dempsey and Jack Kearns and Barney Dempsey are in the champion's angle of the arena. Johnny Gallagher, the referee, is summoning the men to the center of the ring for their instructions. It's to be fifteen rounds to a judges' decision, for a purse of $500,000 at least. The heavyweight boxing championship of the world is at stake. Johnny is motioning with his hands as he talks. Now, they're going back to their corners—in Dempsey's corner Kearns is rubbing the champion's chest and together they are staring across the ring at Firpo whose might right hand is now incased in the red leather of a boxing glove.

It will be just a few moments more now. There's the whistle! That means seconds out of the ring. Kearns is outside the ropes, and across the ring Lavelle and Vega are giving Firpo last minute advice in Spanish. Now, they're out!

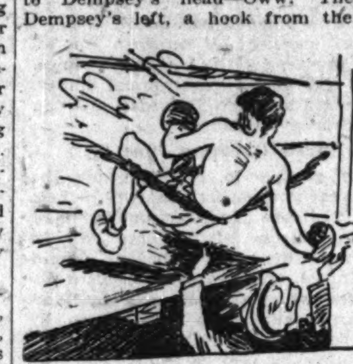
[Gong.]

There's the bell! Round one!

Both men are out of their seats and in the center of the ring, and Dempsey is letting go with both hands—rights to the heart and lefts to the head. Firpo is swinging his arms like a pair of flails. This is not a boxing match—it's a fight! Zowie! Dempsey crashed Luis that time with a stiff left to the mouth! Now Firpo is swinging that great right hand, but Dempsey is dodging and ducking and weaving in under it and using his guard. It's sock and get socked all the way through! Dempsey is lathering Firpo with right handers to the heart. And there's a sock on the chin, and Firpo is down! The Argentinian is on the mat! Johnny Gallagher jumps in and his arm swings down once, twice, but Firpo is up and after Dempsey like a mad bull, like the Wild Bull of the Pampas that he is, his two arms waving before him like the sails on a windmill.

Dempsey drives home another punch to the heart, but Firpo is coming right back for more. O! Look out for that right hand, Jack! Luis just swung one from his back that nearly grazed Dempsey's chin—the champ got out of the way just in time. Now they're in a clinch, but that won't last long. Owww! Firpo crashed through Jack's defense with a right hander to the heart. Jack is scowling! It hurt! Now Dempsey is tearing in once more, the same course; rights to the body and that Dempsey left hook to the head!

Firpo is banging away with that right hand. He's fighting his own kind of a fight — slug and get slugged. He drives a right hander to Dempsey's head—Oww! There's Dempsey's left, a hook from the elbow, and Firpo is crumpling up again—he's down! Firpo is down for the second time in this mad first round! Gallagher is counting off the seconds—from Firpo's corner come mad shouts in Spanish for him to wait for the count of nine, bu the Mad Bull just shakes himself and rises to his feet. Once again the sluggish brain gets that right arm set for a killing blow, and he rushes after Dempsey—the bristling black hair is wet and sweaty now, but still he keeps on—he's not hurt! Ow! He drives that right against Dempsey's head, but the champion ducks and sends home a right to the Bull's heart—Luis felt that one! His mouth is twisted! Whuup! Dempsey's left again—that hook!—to the jaw! Firpo's on the mat again! Dempsey has knocked Firpo down again.



But not for long! The challenger is starting to his feet—Johnny Gallagher hasn't counted off three seconds and Firpo is starting to his feet. He's mad! He's rushing after Dempsey, beating the air. Heaven help Jack if he gets in the way of those arms! He's got him! Dempsey is down! Firpo put that right over. A smash at the base of the brain! Jack Dempsey is on the mat! For the first time in his championship career, he's been knocked down. But he's conscious! He's waiting for the count. Gallagher is tolling off the seconds. Firpo has retired to one side of the ring, waiting for the champion to get up. The crowd has gone mad! Four . . . Five . . . Six . . . Dempsey is getting up, he's getting to his feet. He's been regaining his strength by that rest on the mat. Now he's on his feet, and Firpo steps out again. Jack is crouching down, waiting for the big Argentinian! There's a right! Dempsey shoots a right to the heart! And now—Oww! That left again! FIRPO IS DOWN! Dempsey has knocked Firpo down again! The Argentinian is on the mat! He's not bounding up like a rubber ball this time—he's waiting for the count—one, two, three, four, five, six, seven, eight, nine. He's on his feet! Now he's gritting his teeth and charging forward again! All he knows is to charge! The arms are waving again, and—Gee! Dempsey felt that one! Firpo shook the champion to his toes with that right hander to the head. Jack is socking right back, but backing away—Firpo is bearing down on the champion—now he's got Jack over against the ropes. That right hand is beating down like a club—punch, punch, punch, and Dempsey drives back, and Whuup!

Ow! Firpo has knocked Dempsey out of the ring! A right hand to the head! He's landed in the laps of the newspaper men! Hear that din! Johnny Gallagher is so surprised that he hasn't started to count! Now Dempsey is crawling back into the ring. Clambering over the heads of the newspaper men. He's back in the ring, still on the mat, he's going to take the count. Three, says Referee Gallagher, four . . . five . . . six . . . . seven—Dempsey is getting up. . . . Jack is groggy—as Firpo comes forward, he grabs those big arms and he's holding—Jack Dempsey is holding on! Now they're breaking and Dempsey is backing away, his arms dropping at his side—and Firpo is driving home that great right hand! Jack Kearns is yelling at Dempsey to bring up his guard. Now they're clinching! Away again, and they're slugging! Dempsey has gone into a clinch. Firpo has him groggy! It may be all over! Dempsey is still holding on.

[Gong!] There's the bell. That's the end of round one! Whew! What a scrap! Science has been tossed to the winds—they're just two cavemen in their fighting. We've been told all about that right hand of Firpo's—and it certainly is a sledge hammer. Listen to that mob. Ninety thousand of them on their feet and cheering madly. There's the whistle. The fighters sit there, waiting for round two.

[Gong!]. There's the bell. Round two. Dempsey is out of his corner in a flash. That one minute rest has been enough, Dempsey is himself again! He's crouching, waiting for the first of those rights that Firpo deals out— the only punch that he carries—Oww! Dempsey has pushed the right away, and he's landing a bunch of lefts and rights to the body and head. Dempsey is still the champion by a long shot! Firpo is swinging his arms, but Dempsey is getting in under them with murderous rights to the stomach, that are making Luis twitch with agony. Ohhh! Dempsey landed a pair of lefts to the head! Luis managed to sneak over that right hand, but it's barely touched Dempsey's head—the champ is dodging and ducking and weaving and twisting about as only he knows how! Whuup! There's another left to Firpo's mouth! Blood is dribbling down the Argentinian's unshaven chin! And they continue to slug! Ow! Dempsey drove two lefts into Firpo's body.

The challenger is down. Firpo is on the mat again! Those lefts seemed to bury themselves in his vitals. Now he's twisting there on the mat—he's coming up again—bleeding and groggy—yes! He's groggy! Now he's on his feet, and Dempsey is fighting his kind of fight. They're slugging each other with everything they've got. Kearns is yelling to Jack to keep his guard high—Firpo gets through a right hand again — but Dempsey brushes it away—the steam's gone out of it, I guess—Dempsey is tearing in—rights and lefts to the body and head—Firpo can't hold on—he can only hit with that right—he tries again—but Dempsey is in there first with the punch. There's the right! Look out, Luis! Dempsey cracked Firpo with a hard right hander to the chin, and Firpo's arms fly up in the air in instinctive protection—two lefts to the body! Firpo is going down—he's on the mat!—he's lying on his face—it looks like the end this time—slowly Referee Gallagher is counting off the seconds. . . . two . . . three . . . four . . . five . . . Firpo's body is twitching and now he rolls over on his back. His face is twisted with pain, claret trickles from his mouth, his eyes are closed. His arms—that mighty right arm—are lying at his side—powerless . . . still the count—seven . . . eight . . . the crowd is silent—nine . . . ten!

Jack Dempsey is still champion of the world! He has knocked out Luis Angel Firpo!

TWO NEW RADIO PROGRAMS ADDED TO TRIB STATION

One Is Daily and One Is Weekly Feature.

Two new radio programs, one daily and one weekly, both of a reminiscent nature, were announced this week by Henry Selinger, program director of W-G-N, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE station.

Beginning Saturday, and continuing every Saturday evening, the W-G-N players, under the direction of Harry W. Spingold, are reviving old time plays in a series called "Old Time First Nights."

"The Count of Monte Cristo," in which James O'Neill, father of Eugene O'Neill, starred; "The Two Orphans," "Richelieu," "Lena Rivers," and other famous productions of thirty and forty years ago will be included in the répertoire of the W-G-N players.

"'Way Back When."

By way of novelty, Old First Nighter will attend each of the plays with his daughter, and will re-create for her and for radio listeners the various theaters as they appeared when O'Neill, Joseph Jefferson, and others of the old school strode the boards in their premieres. Jean Conover is adapting the plays to radio presentation. The curtain rises every Saturday at 8.

At once new and old, "'Way Back When," a combination of spoken reminiscences and old fashioned music, is the other W-G-N feature introduced this week. It is broadcast every evening at 10:10, the time at which the Hungry Five went on the air previous to their vacation.

Old Time Tunes.

"In the Good Old Summer Time," "Little Annie Rooney," "On a Bicycle Built for Two," and similar tunes from pre-automobile days help to recaller the 'way-back-whens of W-G-N listeners.

Meanwhile, resting up in Wisconsin before they begin their new amusement park engagement, Louie's Hungry Five have forgotten "Ach! Du Lieber Augustin" and "Schnapps Waltz" and are concentrating on fishing, pretzels, and near beer.

PICK 200 BOYS FROM SOUTH SIDE TO ATTEND CAMP

A committee of citizens on the south side, under the leadership of Ald. Louis B. Anderson [2d] and Dr. Spencer C. Dickerson is selecting a group of 200 boys from among needy families in the Second, Third and Fourth wards to be sent to Camp Wabash on Rowe lake, Michigan, during the summer months.

Ald. Anderson believes that for every boy who is properly supervised and removed from the temptations of the streets of Chicago during the summer months, the citizens get a hundred dollars of protection in return. Vandalism and burglary grow out of the desire of the boy for amusement, excitement, luxury and money, he said, and for a small investment per boy, these wants are satisfied at the camp.

The Wabash Avenue department, Y. M. C. A., will serve 500 boys during the summer months, 200 of whom will be sent to the camp with all or part of their expenses paid through the assistance of many generous citizens of Chicago who appreciate the problems and needs of boys.

Headed by the Louis B. Anderson Civic club, the first group of 100 boys will sail Monday, July 8, on the steamship Banbridge for Camp Wabash. Every other Monday following an additional 100 boys will embark on their voyage across Lake Michigan.

Sigma Kappa Pi Gives Card Party at I. A. C.

Members of the Sigma Kappa Pi sorority sponsored a card party Tuesday evening at the Illinois Athletic club. The committee in charge of arrangements was composed of Adele Conrad, 8053 Justine street; Lee E. Dulso, 8051 Sangamon street; Esther Gratza, 6657 Justine street; Elsa Lakemeyer, 1618 Humboldt boulevard, Edith Marie Nelson, 7943 Hermitage avenue; Margaret Petty, 9019 Laflin street, and Grace Robinson, 7340 Jeffery avenue.

Mrs. Wm. Gorman Heads Barnabas Women's Club

Mrs. William Gorman, 9800 Hoyne avenue, was reëlected as president of the St. Barnabas Women's club at a meeting of the organization, last week in the social rooms of the St. Barnabas church, 101st street and Longwood drive. Other officers elected are: Vice president, Mrs. Dennis Sullivan; recording secretary, Mrs. Fred Ritchey; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Charles Doerr; treasurer, Mrs. Thomas F. Casey, and social chairman, Mrs. Jay Farrell.

MUSIC BREEZES

The breeziness of a bus-top—the gayety of pretty girls at the prom—the crispness of dawn—all have been turned into music by that wizard, Goldkette. Through your loudspeaker comes the spirit of the New Music. Your fingers tingle as you listen. You want to laugh with the tunes. Notes race. Notes scamper. Notes make a crooked design. The trumpets sputter little notes. The trombones bellow large, organ-like notes. The director grins with delight as the clarinets hurry through two octaves and half way back. Three times today Jean Goldkette and his W-G-N Dance Orchestra reach their dancing climax: 1:30, 2:25, and 11 P. M.

BLUE NOTES

Three whispering voices and a deep guitar. Tom, Dick and Harry sing old songs, new songs or any songs that are rich with music. Smooth and round—quick and dexterous—each measure punctuated with the resonant voice of the guitar. Tom, Dick and Harry make all their own arrangements, and they know how to sing them. Hear the three snappy artists at 5:30 and 11 P. M.

KIDS

Listen, kids. The composers who have great names now were children once. They ran around and broke windows and made their mothers nervous, just like you. Besides, they didn't forget it. Once when Mr. Tschaikowski remembered he had been a child, he wrote a group of pieces to a Nutcracker! Can you imagine? A Nutcracker! Mr. Gaston du Moulin, who was little once, too, leads the W-G-N Symphony Orchestra as they play it. 5:45 P. M.

Power Detection . . .

is a new method of operating the detector tube by which greater current can be applied to it, and stronger speech and music handled, without choking or distortion.

Majestic Power Detection removes the "Bottle-neck" in Radio Reception . . .

NOW music can sweep gloriously through the radio, unhindered and undistorted . . . complete, satisfying, true! Gone is the "throttling" action of old style detection . . . the choked, fuzzy effect on medium and low notes that prevented absolute realism. In Majestic Radio, power detection has opened up the "bottle-neck."

Adhering to proved tubes and proved circuits, Majestic presents yet another remarkable development in its Automatic Equal Sensitivity Control. Maximum range and power at the low waves . . . at the high waves . . . without need of touching other than tuning knob while finding stations.

Majestic's Anniversary Models . . . new Mighty Monarchs of the Air just released . . . present a combination of beauty, range and power unequaled by any other radio set at any price! Let the nearest Majestic Dealer demonstrate Models 91 and 92 . . . he will be glad to put one in your home for trial . . . no obligation.

STUDENTS TO GET ROSELAND POST SERVICE MEDALS

Legion to Honor Fenger, Pullman Graduates.

Roseland post, No. 49, of the American Legion, will present its service medal to students of Fenger and Pullman Technical High schools at the graduating exercises of these schools to be held during the last week of this month. This medal is awarded semiannually to the member of the graduating class selected by the faculty of the school as having given the greatest service to the school. The award is made under the direction of the Americanism officer of the post, Maj. Albert V. Becker. The medal for athletics offered annually by the post for athletic competition at Palmer park will be awarded by the post athletic officer, James Stinson.

Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, coroner of Cook county, will be the speaker tomorrow night at the meeting of Square post, No. 232, at the Midway Masonic temple, 61st street and Cottage Grove avenue. Dr. Bundesen will speak on "Crime of Cook County." This will be an open meeting and invitation has been especially extended to the women who were workers on poppy day. Also, the wives and other women members of the veterans' families are invited, as it will be ladies' night at Square post.

Efforts of the Cook county council to bring the national convention of the Legion to Chicago in 1933 were pledged in a resolution adopted at the latest meeting of the council. A committee is expected to be appointed to coöperate with the Chicago Association of Commerce in the campaign to win the convention. Assurance has been given, it was announced, that if the convention comes to Chicago special arrangements for the delegates will be made at the World's Fair.

Brig. Gen. Abel Davis will be the speaker at a meeting of Advertising Men's post, No. 38, to be held in Hotel Sherman tomorrow noon. His message will be on "Americanism."

Peoples Gas post, No. 336, is having its semi-annual roundup on June 18, at 8 p. m., in the Peoples Gas building. More than 100 members are coöperating to make it truly a roundup of old and new members. Chairman Ralph J. Hoberg has secured good entertainment, refreshments will be served and several attendance prizes will be given. Delegates to the department convention will be elected.

"Is there no balm in Gilead?" Is there no physician there?" Fort Dearborn post, No. 268, after reviewing the success of its spring activities, answers "yes." There was that childrens' party at which seventy-five youngsters, including thirty-one handicapped children from Christopher school, played the harmonica. There was the happiness of the seventy Boy Scouts at their party. There was the trip to Normal last Sunday, when W. C. Wakefield, commander of the post, and Mrs. Wakefield, president of the auxiliary, with members of both organizations, caught the smiles of happy boys and girls. Dearborn post auxiliary, in keeping with Flag day, has purchased a beautiful "Old Glory," and will have it dedicated at its first meeting with Mrs. George Kellogg, national defense chairman, officiating.

Chicago Labor post, No. 745, will hold its next meeting at its clubhouse, 4356 Jackson boulevard, at 8:30 o'clock tomorrow night, according to announcement from Commander James Murphy.

The new regime will take over command of Voiture 220 of the Forty and Eight, Friday evening at the Hotel La Salle when the newly elected officials of the local voiture are formally inducted into office as follows:

C. E. Taylor, of Chicago Stock Yards post, No. 333, chef de gare.

George Sugarman of Rogers Park post, No. 208; A. L. Brodie of James G. Brophy post, No. 195; Robert E. Casey of Chicago Police post, No. 207, and Lisle Hart of North Shore post, No. 21, chefs de train.

John R. Caldow of Harold A. Taylor post, No. 47, commissaire intendant.

C. J. Hughes, of Chicago Loop post, No. 144, correspondent.

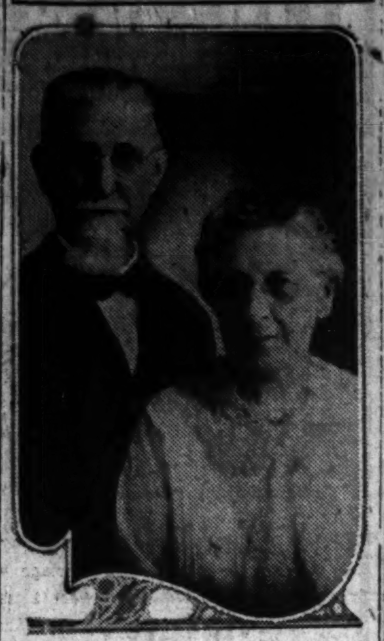
Edward Hines Jr. chapter, No. 10, Disabled American Veterans of the World War, recently installed new officers as follows: Roy Cunningham, commander; Herman H. Weimer, D. S. C., senior vice commander and adjutant; Edward J. Powers, D. S. C., first vice commander; Robert Spraggon, second junior vice commander; William Bouliotis, third junior vice commander; Arthur Zohn, treasurer; Edwin Baldus, color sergeant; John McCarthy, sergeant at arms. Members of the executive committee are Carter M. Smith, John De LaCour, Omar Cooper, Patrick J. Hynes, Hyman Gordon, and Harry Walsh.

The annual basket picnic of Harold A. Taylor post, No. 47, will be held Sunday, July 7, at the House of Niles Grove. Comrade Walter Goldsmith gives out the word that the location is an ideal spot for a picnic and easy to reach. Dancing, music, games for children and adults, and numerous entertainment features are on the program for both afternoon and evening. On the arrangement committee are Harry Beeson, Dr. Walter Goldsmith, and Chester Woolman.

Van Buren post, No. 401, is already planning on its picnic to be held at Morton Grove on Sunday, Aug. 4. Commander L. M. Hanna intends that this event shall go over with a bang. Van Buren post's membership of 454 makes it second high in the district and entitled to five delegates at the next state convention.

WED 50 YEARS



Mr. and Mrs. A. F. W. Fedder of Hammond, Ind., who celebrated their golden wedding anniversary yesterday with a service in St. Paul's Lutheran church, followed by dinner and a reception at the Woodmar Country club. Mr. Fedder was born in St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 3, 1858. Mrs. Fedder was born Nov. 22, 1860, in Tolleston, Ind. They have six children living. Mr. Fedder is now secretary of the Hammond Building Loan and Savings association.

DEMAND OPENING OF NEW ARTERIES INTO SOUTHWEST

At a meeting of the Hamilton Park Improvement association held Tuesday night in Hamilton park field house, delegates to the South Side Federation of Improvement associations were instructed that the association favored immediate action toward the opening of Michigan avenue at 63d street, in order that traffic congestion to the south and southwest sides could be eliminated from 63d to 68th streets, the widening and repairing of Vincennes avenue from 67th street to 107th street, and the opening of Wentworth avenue from 73d street to 74th street.

This is in accordance with the policy favored by the Beverly Hills Business Men's association, of which W. C. Waddell is president. James Hyland, 7349 Vincennes avenue, is president of the Hamilton Park Improvement association.

Complaints on ground tax rates covering certain streets within Hamilton park district were made out and forwarded to the board of assessors, requesting a reinvestigation and lowering of the present rates.

A FAIR QUESTION

What kind of Subdivision property is easier to sell: Property with all improvements – sewer, water, gas, electricity, sidewalks, paving, curbs and trees, etc.—or vacant prairie without transportation and miles away from nowhere?

YOU KNOW THE ANSWER!

Our North Side properties with all improvements paid for by us, high class restrictions, and splendid transportation are the easiest selling properties in Chicago.

No drifters or floaters need apply; only ambitious men ready to work and follow our instructions.

Come in and see me in person from 10 a. m. to 3 p. m.

WANTED—MALE HELP.

Salesmen, Solicitors, Etc.

A MENTALLY BIG MAN

A manufacturer of highest credit rating and operating nationally has an opening for a man of successful selling experience. Prefer one who has met and sold chief Executives, although in the final analysis personality will be the determining factor.

We are opening a new line in which experience in selling intangibles would be of great value. This is not stocks, bonds, real estate, check writers, club memberships, insurance or books—nor is it posters.

We are not so much interested in a salesman as we are in a man of potential executive ability—one who can learn our business and then qualify to direct others. To qualify it is necessary to obtain actual experience by actively selling our product as a salesman in the field. For a real salesman there is an opportunity for quick promotion and a brilliant future.

Do not investigate unless you feel confident that you can earn $7,500 per year or more on a liberal commission basis.

We will grant you a personal interview if you are able to interest us over the telephone. Phone Mr. J. W. DAVIS, Randolph 4745, for appointment, or if you prefer, address G H 378, Tribune.

A POSITION WHICH REQUIRES THE SERVICES OF A MAN WITH EXCEPTIONAL ABILITY.

The Bolyn corporation, Sales and Advertising Counselors, have an opening in their sales department for a man with the following qualifications, experience and background:

Age thirty to forty-five. Diversified selling experience, comprising either advertising, high grade specialties, or intangibles.

Must have earned $7,000 per year or better for past three years.

Good appearance, tact, personality, sales sense, responsibility, reliability, and integrity.

The position to be filled will be worth $1,000 per year or better to the man who qualifies. We do not wish to interview a man who has failed in a previous position. We employ only the type of man who has a keen sense of values, responsibility and relationships. In fact, we require the services of a man who thinks right and lives right, because his contacts will be of the highest order.

We have many men associated with us who have previously earned $15,000 to $25,000 per year, and who are earning this amount of income at the present time. The opportunities are unlimited for the man with real ability.

We do not wish to interview a man who is at present financially embarrassed. We have nothing to sell the applicant, but wish to interview a man who is accustomed to success.

Should you feel that you can measure up to the above qualifications phone
J. L. BARCLAY,
FRANKLIN 7236 or
Address THE BOLYN CORP., 185 N. Wabash,
Chicago, Ill.

A GOOD JOB

is open to a man honestly seeking a permanent connection where sincere application will mean a steady substantial immediate income, and place him on the ground floor of a genuine opportunity.

MAKE MONEY ON ELMORE'S
IDEAL
FARMS

35 complete ideal poultry farms are now occupied and making money for their owners. Three ideal poultry farms have complete plumbing, running water, gas and electricity, built-in ironing board, shades and screens, Kelvinator iceless refrigeration, large poultry house, 20x40, cement floors, electric light, 3 large Jamesway brooder stoves, heating system for winter months.

PAY FOR YOUR HOME
OUT OF EARNINGS.

With this complete unit, stocked with 250 pullets of fine strain in the fall or 1,000 little chicks in the spring free with farm, you can earn enough money during your spare time to pay for your home under the Elmore plan with co-operative feed buying and marketing of eggs and poultry, with the advice of our poultry expert who was formerly Junior Animal Husbandman, Poultry Investigator, U. S. Dept. of Agriculture; $100.00 will start you and when $750.00 is paid in you can move into your ideal poultry farm. Come out and see what we have accomplished in the past 4 months and talk with our customers who are living on their farms. VISIT OUR DEMONSTRATION FARM AND OUR 2 STORY POULTRY HOUSE, LARGE ENOUGH FOR 2,000 LAYING HENS. On this demonstration farm you will see thousands of young pullets that will be laying in October. If you wish to give all your time to raising poultry, the land is large enough to add additional units. Our ideal poultry farms with all city conveniences are only 47 minutes from the loop and 3 blocks from good transportation, near schools, stores and churches. This should interest every thrifty person who wants to increase his income and buy land on the fringe of Chicago. This land should increase in value and prove a profitable investment.
Call, write, or phone FRANKLIN 2650 for free round trip tickets to inspect our ideal poultry farm, or we will send an automobile for you without any obligation.

REAL ESTATE—ACRE PROPERTY.

1,500 Acres on I. C.

This is probably the largest piece of acreage intact to be had along the main lines of the Illinois Central. Only 29 miles south of the loop, with over a mile frontage on the railroad. This tract offers an opportunity for developers who operate on a large scale. Ideal for a townsite; suitable for an airport. A real spot for a country club and enough property of different nature to meet the requirements of most any kind of development. This proposition offers conditions that cannot be equaled in possibilities for a big increase in value between now and the World's Fair.

This tract has several hundred rolling acres of heavily wooded property, in addition to a like amount of flat and clear area. The state and county are now building 3 new highways leading to this property, including the new governor's superhighway. It would be worth your while to spend a day inspecting this property.

REAL ESTATE LOANS.

SECOND MORTGAGE LOANS

Our second mortgage department had an idea that advertising their second mortgage plan was merely a matter of telling what they do, that a simple outline of the service they offer would be more convincing than any high pressure advertising copy. So the advertising man decided to let them try their hand at it—and a clear statement of the facts was in itself such good advertising copy that the advertising man has come to the conclusion that he was making a big job out of something that is really easy.

Here are probably all the questions you would like answered to tell you why you should come to us when you are seeking a second mortgage—if not at just this time, in the future:

1. Loans made to home owners [we construe up to a 3 flat building as a home];
2. Loans granted for a period of from one to three years;
3. Payments at 2% of principal per month;
4. Interest 6% per annum payable monthly;
5. Commission 3½% for one year, 6½% for two years 9% for three years—and these commissions are flat, regardless of the amount of the loan or other conditions of a particular loan.

Read these five points over again and see if the essentials of a second mortgage loan are not covered, and in a manner surprisingly satisfactory to yourself.

If you are in the market for a second mortgage loan we will be glad to have you come in in order that we may prove to you how fair and simple are the terms of our second mortgage plan.

STUDEBAKER

A SMALL DOWN PAYMENT

WILL SECURE FOR YOU ANY CAR ADVERTISED

BALANCE ON EASY TERMS

A liberal allowance will be given for your car in trade.

For the BIGGEST SAVINGS in Chicago you must naturally see the BIGGEST DEALER of good used cars, and that is the Studebaker Sales Co. of Chicago. Five days' free driving trial goes with every car sold under the terms of our pledge.

BUICK ROADSTER—Recent model Mast. 6 with an attractive two-tone finish in ivory and dark tan. Has a sweet running motor, rumble seat, and long wheel base. Equipped with 4-whl. brakes, snubbers, windshield wings, bumpers, etc. You cannot find a roadster in Chicago as smart appearing or fine running as this one at $765.

STUDEBAKER BROUGHAM—Special 6, 2-dr. that's exceptionally clean throughout. Has dandy tires, and the equipment includes trunk, spare tire, snubbers, bumpers, etc. Finished a dark blue. Fine mohair upholstery. Only $245.

OAKLAND SEDAN—1928, only driven a few thousand miles. This car is absolutely brand new in every respect. Equipped with 4-whl. brakes and every essential extra. Worth considerably more than our price of $750.

FLINT SEDAN—We recommend this as one of our best buys. Has attractive appearance and the motor is in good condition. Equipped with spotlight, heater, seat covers, snubbers, etc. Special for $425.

DIANA SEDAN—Here is a high quality car, offered at a remarkably low figure. It's a Str. 8 equipped with 4-whl. brakes, shutter front, spotlight, shock absorbers, etc. You would be proud to show off this Diana as your own. It's in splendid mechanical condition. For today, $485.

STEARNS-KNIGHT SEDAN—1928 model that sold at a very high figure a few months ago. Examine this car from bumper to bumper and you'll agree it's one of the most handsome cars you've ever seen. Bring your own mechanic to inspect the motor and he'll testify it's O. K. in every respect. This Stearns must really be seen to be appreciated. A real bargain at $1,150.

STUDEBAKER PRESIDENT—A late 7-pass. Big Six that will satisfy the most exacting buyer. Equipped with the most powerful motor of its size and weight. The interior is in the original new condition. There are hundreds of dollars worth of extra equipment, including 4-whl. brakes and many valuable extras. The motor was checked over by expert Studebaker mechanics and now carries a 30-day free service guarantee. Offered for only $945.

DODGE SEDAN—It's a late model; finished a beautiful blue; the mileage is very low, as this car was in storage for almost a year; equipped with snubbers, bumpers, spare tire, and other extras; the motor is excellent; $395.

MARMON PHAETON—Late model Big 6 that is one of the most attractive open cars we ever had in our stock; it's a 7-pass. that's the last word for beautiful appearance, sparkling performance; equipped with 4-whl. brakes, shock absorbers, windshield wings, 2 Lorraine driving lights, bumpers, 2 spare tires, etc.; this Marmon was given exceptional attention and today it will give you new car satisfaction. At $1,250 it is an unusual buy. Has special custom body and wire wheels, 2 of which are mounted in fender wells.

HUDSON COACH—Recent model that is in new car condition; the finish is bright and shiny and the expensive upholstery appears unused. Tires have little mileage. Motor has been carefully checked over and today it's in topnotch condition. At $550 this is a bargain.

BUICK COUPE—A late sport model painted a beautiful green with red striping; has a rumble seat and the equipment includes 4-whl. brakes, driving light, shock absorbers, bumpers, spare tire, etc. If you want a sporty car, you cannot beat this snappy Buick with its spirited performance. Only $885.

STUDEBAKER SEDAN—1926 Std. 6 that was used by a physician only to make house calls; it's in wonderful condition; the finish, upholstery and tires are A1; has a sweet running motor; there are many valuable extras and our price of $495 is out of keeping with the high quality of this car.

ERSKINE SEDAN—Late model six that is the aristocrat of the low priced field; it's in dandy mechanical condition and the appearance is unusually smart and attractive; equipped with 4-whl. brakes, snubbers, bumpers, spare tire, etc.; will not remain long at $595.

CHEVROLET COACH—One of the very latest Chevs. that's a fine performing, good looking car; if you inspected it carefully, you would be forced to admit it's in A1 condition; has every essential extra. Will be sold within 24 hours at $345.

STUTZ SEDAN—It's a beauty; equipped with 4-whl. brakes, shock absorbers, bumpers, wire wheels, spare tires, trunk, etc.; this car was taken on consignment and when it is sold the owner will take out a new Studebaker President. We are anxious to sell it immediately, so we've put the low price of $545 on it. See this Stutz at once.

PAIGE COACH—If you are in the market for a late model, you cannot get a better bargain than this 1927 Paige. It's the last word for beautiful appearance and spirited performance. Attractive finish, expensive upholstery that looks new; tires have little mileage; equipped with 4-whl. brakes, snubbers, bumpers, spare tire, etc. Special for $550.

STUDEBAKER COMMANDER—A late model 5-pass. sedan that was just traded in by a Lake Forest millionaire. He owned this in conjunction with a Pierce-Arrow and a Packard, so this beautiful Commander received very little mileage. A trained chauffeur inspected and checked it over carefully every day and now it absolutely looks and runs like a brand new car. The finish glistens like a new dollar. The tires are practically brand new and the motor is in such splendid condition that it carries a new car guarantee. Equipment includes 4-whl. brakes, snubbers, bumpers, spare tire and other valuable extras. Offered at $785 but really worth twice our price.

WILLYS-KNIGHT SEDAN—This car was formerly owned by an actor who actually only used it for a short time. It's a beauty. Equipped with shock absorbers, bumpers, spare tire, etc. This car was traded in at a low figure, and we're willing to pass on the saving to you. Only $385.

NASH CABRIOLET—Late model with rumble seat and collapsible top. This is a sporty car, with low slung lines and snappy performance. Equipped with 4-whl. brakes and hundreds of dollars' worth of special accessories. Tires have little mileage. Priced for today, $745.

PACKARD CLUB SEDAN—One of the very latest Packards with 4-whl. brakes, snubbers, heater, bumpers, spare tire, etc. This Packard sold at a very high figure just a short time ago. Only driven for a short time and taken care of by an expert chauffeur, so now this car will satisfy the most discriminating buyer. Cannot be duplicated any place else at our price. $1,095.

LINCOLN SEDAN—If you want to spend about $350 on a used car do not pass up this Lincoln. It has fine performance and the appearance is attractive. The finish has not a mar on it and the extras are trunk, shutter front, spare tire, bumpers, etc. Only $345.

CHRYSLER SEDAN—Just refinished a beautiful tan and now it is one of the smartest Chryslers you can find in Chicago. Runs fine and the equipment includes 4-whl. brakes, snubbers, spotlight, seat covers, etc. Special at $425.

Open Evenings and Sundays.

BROADWAY PACKARD

PACKARD 2-43, "8" SEDAN, 7 PASS. We cannot tell you in a newspaper description just what a value we have to offer in this high grade Packard car. It is one that has been privately owned and has been kept in exceptional condition. It is painted in a conservative color and ready for immediate service, with no expenditures other than the purchase price. Packard owners are reluctant to part with cars of this type, and for that reason we seldom have them to offer, particularly at the price we are offering this one. It has much extra equipment, including seat covers, and a rare bargain at $950.

PACKARD 3-33, "6" 7 PASS. SEDAN. This one is rebuilt and guaranteed. It is refinished to look like new, interior renovated, and it enables you to enjoy Packard performance and Packard prestige for a very moderate sum. Equipment is complete and includes 5 very good tires, spotlight, disc wheels. The buyer will certainly get a remarkable value at $1,050.

PACKARD 8, 3-43 7 PASS. SEDAN. A late series in this type, with new finish, new Goodyear Double Eagle tires, cowl band and lights, and in immaculate condition in all respects. Motor and chassis rebuilt; guaranteed. Roomy, luxurious, with exceptional lines and trimmings. A substantial saving is possible at $1,950.

PACKARD 6, 5-33 DE LUXE CLUB SEDAN. Four door, 2 window type, with trunk and extra trunk carrier; in perfect condition from front to rear; 6 disc wheels, side mountings, slip covers, Lorraine spotlight, 2 spare tires, etc. Guaranteed mechanically. Special, $1,850.

PIERCE-ARROW OFFERS YOU REMARKABLE SAVINGS!

BIG REMOVAL SALE!

We are moving to new quarters within a few weeks and all our stock of excellent used cars must be liquidated within that time. This is an opportunity for you to save $200 to $500, no matter what you buy!

PIERCE-ARROW SPORT PHAETON—4 pass., finished a beautiful tan. The motor is smooth and powerful. There are a number of expensive extras. This is probably the best open car buy in Chicago. Removal sale price, $750.

HUPMOBILE SEDAN—1927 six in splendid mechanical condition. It is unusually clean throughout and the finish is an attractive maroon and black. Equipped with 4-whl. brakes, snubbers, spotlight, bumpers, spare tire, etc. Removal sale price, $545.

STUDEBAKER PRESIDENT—1928, 5 pass. str. 8, with very low mileage. This is a de luxe state model with 6 wire wheels, fender wells, 4-whl. brakes, shock absorbers, 2 spare tires, bumpers, driving light, etc. Luxurious mohair upholstery. Handsome lacquered finish. Sold for $2,500 recently. Removal sale price, $1,385.

LINCOLN SEDAN—Late model, 7 pass. that will give new car satisfaction today. The upholstery, finish and motor are in the original new condition. Equipped with 4-whl. brakes, shock absorbers, shutter front, driving light, bumpers, 2 spare tires, etc. Removal sale price, $1,685.

OAKLAND SEDAN—1928 two-door sedan that never left the Chicago blvds. Finish is bright and shiny and the tires have little mileage. Motor is O. K. in every respect. 4-whl. brakes, snubbers, bumpers, spare tire, etc. Removal sale price, $650.

CADILLAC COUPE—1928 convertible model, only run 6,400 miles. This beautiful sporty car sold for over $4,000 and although it is in brand new condition, today we price it at $2,485 for our removal sale. Has rumble seat, wire wheels, fender wells, and many valuable extras.

STUTZ SEDAN—Late model with special Weyman body. Every feature appears brand new. The equipment includes nonshatterable glass, 4-whl. brakes, snubbers, 2 spare tires, bumpers, 2 road lights, heater, trunk, etc. This Stutz is a beauty. The motor is A1. Has wire wheels and fender wells. Sold for over $5,000 not long ago. Removal sale price, $2,250.

OLDSMOBILE SEDAN—1927 that was oiled and greased every 500 miles by the original buyer. Result is it's in topnotch condition today. Has spotlight, snubbers, heater, trunk, 5 practically new tires, etc. Removal sale price, $445.

PIERCE-ARROW BROUGHAM—Model 80 that we recommind as one of our best buys. Has expensive aluminus body and equipment includes 4-whl. brakes, shock absorbers, spare tire, driving light, bumpers, trunk, etc. This Pierce is the last word for sparkling performance and beautiful appearance. Removal sale price, $1,350.

BUICK COUPE—1928 five pass. that's a remarkable buy. This is a beautiful maroon finished car with expensive upholstery and a wealth of extra equipment. Actually looks and runs as though direct from the factory. Removal sale price, $1,085.

A PAGE FROM THE 'Used Car Buyers' Guide'

Investment or Speculation?

"To buy a used car from a dealer whose representation and used car inspection and reconditioning policies are unknown is without question HAZARDOUS SPECULATION."

BUT

"To buy a used car of known make—inspected, reconditioned and represented by a reliable dealer—sold under a registered trademark is AN INVESTMENT."

The following cars ARE INVESTMENTS:

614 GRAHAM-PAIGE 5 PASS. 1928 SEDAN. The first used "614" we have had to offer in some weeks. This is the model with 4 speed transmission; was used but a few thousand miles. Has many extras: excellent tires, and because of the thorough checking it has received carries our regular guarantee. We believe you will have to act quickly to take advantage of this value. $875.

885 PAIGE STRAIGHT 8 BARGAIN. This beautiful model 885 5 passenger sedan with 4 speed transmission has just come into our possession. It was given the finest care imaginable; the finish, a beautiful dark blue, is like new, and the condition of the interior would lead you to believe the upholstery had never been sat upon. The tires are A-1, has lots of equipment, including Lorraine spotlight, and we will guarantee it mechanically. $875.

629 GRAHAM-PAIGE 1928 SEDAN. This is a 4 door 5 passenger and a recent delivery; side mountings, de luxe equipment, first class mechanically, and backed by our guarantee. Its appearance is perfect and practically identical with the latest cars. You owe it to yourself to come and investigate this particular car. It is a car that is exceptional in more ways than one, and represents by far the greatest automobile value ever offered for $1,425.

1928 GRAHAM-PAIGE 619 SEDAN, 5 pass. This car should appeal strongly to the purchaser who insists upon absolute value for every dollar invested, a car that is truly economical to operate and one that presents more and better looks than any other car in its class. Car has perfect duco finish, hydraulic 4 wheel brakes, practically new tires, and everything else that goes to make up a complete car. It's reconditioned and guaranteed. Try to match its value and performance with the car you have been thinking about. Price $1,075.

610 GRAHAM-PAIGE 1928 SEDAN. If you are contemplating spending from $300 to $800 for a closed car, we believe it would be folly to invest in any car before seeing and riding in this one. Mechanically it's as near perfect as an automobile can be; the finish is high grade and should stay like new for some time to come, and it handles as easily, goes as fast, and just as efficient on gas, oil and tires as cars costing three times as much. This is a full sized 5 passenger, and one that any family would be proud to own. It's a special for today. $725.
